THE LAW OF HORSES; including the Bargain and Sale of Chattels; also the Law of Racing, Wagers, and Gaming. By GEORGE HENRY HEWITT OLIPHANT, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. Third Edition. By GRANVILLE R. RYDER, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3 Chancery-lane.

The valuable LAW LIBRARY of the late H. T. ERSKINE, Esq. MESSRS. HAMMOND & EILOART will SELL by AUCTION, at their Rooms, 28, Chancery-lane, on THURSDAY, July 20, at 12, the above valuable LAW LIBRARY; including the Law Journal Reports from 1839 to 1864, inclusive; with a Series of all the best Reports in Equity, the House of Lords, and Common-law Courts, complete to the present time; also a Collection of nearly all the best Works of Reference and Practice.

Catalogues are preparing.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.
68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q. C.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions. Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office.

C. B. CLABON, Sec.

CURES OF COUGHS, COLDS, AND ASTHMA. BY

DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS.—From Mr. W. J. DALE, Chemist, 65, Queen-street, Portsea:—"I consider them invaluable for coughs, colds, asthma, &c." To singers and public speakers they are invaluable for strengthening the voice. They have a pleasant taste. Price 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per box. Sold by all Druggists.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS at
PARTRIDGE & COZENS,

WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS IN PARCHEMENT.

192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 90s.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bond fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their customers the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual RETAIL charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.

Draft Paper, 6s., 7s., 7s. 6d., and 9s. per ream.
Brief Paper, 13s. 6d., 16s., and 18s. 6d. per ream.
Foolscap Paper, 10s. 6d., 13s. 6d., and 17s. 6d. per ream.
Cream Laid Note, 3s., 4s., and 5s. per ream.
Large Cream Laid Note, 4s., 6s., and 7s. 6d. per ream.
Large Blue Note, 3s., 4s., and 6s. per ream.
Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2s. 9d., 3s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. per 1000.
Foolscap Official Envelopes, 1s. 6d. per 100, or 13s. 6d. per 1000.
Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, Pencils, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25s.; Good Stand for ditto, with two Drawers, 17s.

Parohment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1s. 6d. each, or 17s. per dozen.
Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1s. 4d. each, or 15s. per dozen.
Records or Memorials, Ruled, 6s. per dozen, or 23s. 6d. per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inkstands; Postage Scales; Writing-cases; Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post-free.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

A A

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	279
Review	280
Book Received	281
Statutes passed during the late Session of Parliament.

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF CHANCERY.

By W. W. KNOX, Barrister at Law.

Hutton v. The Scarborough Cliff Hotel Company.— (Limited liability company—Preferential dividend on unallotted shares— Ultra vires —Companies Act, 1862, sects. 12, 50, and 176)	551
Re The Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1862, and The Companies Act, 1862; and Re The Sheffield and Hallamshire Ancient Order of Foresters Co-operative and Industrial Society (Limited); Ex parte Fountain.—(Limited liability—Winding up—Unlimited company afterwards becoming limited—Contributory—Industrial Societies Act, 1862—Companies Act, 1862)	553

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. MARETT, Barrister at Law.

Hadley v. London Bank of Scotland.—(Vendor and purchaser—Injunction—Contract)	554
North Staffordshire Steel &c. Co. v. Camoys.—(Injunction—Landlord and tenant—Forfeiture) ..	555

ROLLS COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Boltho v. Hillyar.—(Will—Vested interest—Deed of arrangement—Married woman)	556
Re Philbrick's Settlement.—(Appointment by married woman—Persons to execute the trusts)	558

VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY'S COURT.

By E. LLOYD, Barrister at Law.

Mills v. Borthwick.—(Statute of Limitations—Marriage settlement—Bond of husband)	558
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By T. F. MORSE, Barrister at Law.

Re The British and Foreign Gas Generating Apparatus Company (Limited).—(Practice—Company—Winding up—Concurrent petitions—Costs—Unregistered office)	559
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Stokes v. The City Office Company.—(Ancient lights—Practice—Injunction—Liberty to apply in chambers—Inspection—15 & 16 Vict. c. 42) 560

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVSEY, Barrister at Law.

Backhouse and Others v. Hall.—(Guarantee, when to be considered as continuing—Change of partners in trading firm—19 & 20 Vict. c. 97 (Mercantile Amendment Act, 1856), s. 4)	562
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By E. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

Rawlings v. Morgan.—(Lessor and lessee—Covenant to repair—Breach—Damages).....	564
By H. RUTHERFORD, Barrister at Law.
Boaler and Another v. Mayor and Another.—(Merger of simple contract in specialty—Promissory note given as collateral security for part of sums secured by deed—Giving time to principal debtor) .	565

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

By W. BRANDT, Barrister at Law.

The Attorney-General v. Gell.—(Succession Duty Act—Succession to a right by death)	566
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT FOR DIVORCE AND MATRIMONIAL CAUSES.

By W. ERNST BROWNING, Barrister at Law.

Knight v. Knight.—(Cruelty)	568
Rowe v. Rows.—(Judicial separation—Withdrawal of wife from bed)	569

COURT OF PROBATE.

By DR. MIDDLETON.

In the Goods of George Thorne, Deceased.—(Will—Conditional—Actual military service)	569
In the Goods of Sarah Coward, Deceased.—(Will—Married woman—Husband sentenced to transportation for life)	569
In the Goods of Elizabeth Nosworthy, Deceased.—(Two wills—Same date—On same paper—Inconsistent)	570

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

SIMON'S LAW RELATING TO RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.

In 12mo., price 3s. cloth.

THE LAW relating to RAILWAY ACCIDENTS, including an Outline of the Liabilities of Railway Companies as Carriers generally, concisely discussed and explained. By HENRY A. SIMON, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

GREENWOOD'S CONVEYANCING.

This day is published, in 8vo., price 15s. cloth.

A MANUAL of the PRACTICE of CONVEYANCING, showing the present Practice relating to the daily routine of Conveyancing in Solicitors' Offices. To which are added, Concise Common Forms and Precedents in Conveyancing, Conditions of Sale, Conveyances, and all other Assurances in constant use. Third Edition, revised and considerably enlarged. By G. W. GREENWOOD, Solicitor, and HENRY HORWOOD.

London: Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

LE RICHE'S BOOK of COSTS in the COMMON LAW, PROBATE, and DIVORCE COURTS: with Observations on the Principle of the Allowances, and an Analysis of Decisions upon Costs from the Time of passing the first Common-law Procedure Act. Post 8vo. 1860. Price 5s. cloth.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

PRACTICE OF THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL.

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 16s. cloth boards.

THE PRACTICE of the JUDICIAL COMMITTEE of Her Majesty's most Honourable PRIVY COUNCIL. By WILLIAM MACPHERSON, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law, Author of "The Procedure of the Civil Courts of British India." H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

COURT OF THE VICE-WARDEN OF THE STANNARIES.

Price 1s. 6d. sewed.

GENERAL RULES, FORMS, and COURT FEES on the WINDING UP of MINING COMPANIES within the JURISDICTION of the STANNARIES; also Solicitors' Fees and Charges on the Equity Side of the Court.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE BRITISH CONSTITUTION EXPLAINED.

In 1 thick vol. 8vo., price 12. 4s. cloth.

THE INSTITUTIONS of ENGLISH GOVERNMENT: being an Account of the Constitution, Powers, and Procedure of its Legislative, Judicial, and Administrative Departments; with copious References to Ancient and Modern Authorities. By HOMERSHAM COX, M.A., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, JULY 15, 1865.

IN an age when the habits of society are such that no man can find time to go through with his occupations—he they business, reading, or amusement—thinking is commonly postponed to some future convenient time, which seldom arrives; and thus it happens that reputations are acquired upon very slender grounds, and pass current with very little investigation. It can only be for want of consideration on the part of those who lead public opinion, that Mr. Gladstone's fair scholarship, his smatterings of knowledge on many subjects, and his power of making a long financial statement without wearying his hearers, are accepted in proof of his competency as a financier, when almost every measure he proposes, and every reason he offers in support of his proposals, shews his ignorance or disregard of the most elementary principles of taxation, and even of the most obvious inferences of common sense. Whether the facility of collecting a particular tax ought to outweigh objections founded on the inequality or inconvenience of its incidence, is a question upon which opinions may differ considerably, without disparagement to the wisdom of any of those who differ; but when we find a legislator proposing and effecting, year after year, alterations in taxation which merely complicate the law, and embarrass and annoy those who come within its operation, without in any degree redressing inequalities, removing restrictions on freedom of action, or tending to improve the revenue, we can only conclude that he is meddling with matters which he does not understand, and which ought not to be intrusted to him. These remarks are immediately suggested by the two Inland Revenue Acts of the last session as affecting the stamp laws—the latter of them passed by Mr. Gladstone in defiance of advice and remonstrances proceeding from men of experience, well entitled to a respectful hearing. It is very true, that since the general Consolidation Act of the 55 Geo. 3, c. 184 (founded on some prior statutes of the same reign, which had been drawn with admirable care and skill), there has not been a single well-drawn Stamp Act; but the deterioration in conception and execution of the Inland Revenue Acts has been marked since the accession of Mr. Gladstone to power. Scarcely a session passes without alterations in the stamp laws, and these alterations are usually effected by two acts in the same session. The consequence is, that it is very difficult to determine the proper stamp to be affixed on an instrument, and impossible, without an enormous expenditure of time and trouble, to discharge the ordinary duty of ascertaining the sufficiency of the stamps upon the various instruments of different dates which come under investigation by the legal advisers of a purchaser or a mortgagee. When Mr. Gladstone accepted the office of Chancellor of the Exchequer, the stamp laws were in a most unsatisfactory state, both as to substance and as to form; and if he felt himself unequal to the task of substantially amending or wholly repealing them, it was at least within his power to engage a competent draftsman to prepare a consolidation bill. Instead of doing that, he has trebled the complications by a series of petty alterations, under the childish notion of equalising the incidence of the duties. It would be incredible, if we had not the authority of Mr. Gladstone himself for the statement, that the clauses relating to stamp duties in the act 28 & 29 Vict. c. 96, were introduced solely as an act of relief and justice to the taxpayers. Let us first consider how the matter stood before the alteration, and then see what the alteration amounts to. As the law stood, a merchant or shopkeeper might buy or sell goods to the value of a million, without paying any duty on the transaction; but on any written transfer of property of any kind, a duty of 10s. per cent. was exacted. A written transfer of property for a real consideration of 25*l.* was liable to a duty of 2*s.* 6*d.*; a valid transfer of property of the value of 10*s.*, without consideration, or for a nominal consideration, was liable to a duty of 30*s.* A settlement of money or stock was liable to an ad valorem duty at the rate of 5*s.* per cent; a settlement of furniture or land, whether great or small in value, was liable to a fixed duty of 35*s.*; a will operating as a settlement of land was not liable to any duty. A conveyance in consideration of 25*l.* was liable, as we have said, to a duty of 2*s.* 6*d.*; an authority by the grantor to a third person to execute such a deed, was liable to a duty of 30*s.* An award paid an ad valorem duty up to 1*l.* 15*s.*; an opinion of counsel paid nothing; and so forth. In short, the entire system was devoid of any principle or symmetry; and if it had been in itself complete, logical, and symmetrical, it would still have been, in fact, and as part of a general system of taxation—an absolute anomaly, and a mere nuisance. For an ad valorem tax on a legal document bears no relation either to the means of the person who pays it, or to the value of the transaction to him; and the two great and conclusive objections to all stamp duties of the kind under consideration are—first, that they are arbitrary and unequal in incidence; and, secondly, that they are collected at a cost, in money and in trouble to the community, greater than the cost of the collection of any other tax.

Such being the state of the case, what is the relief which Mr. Gladstone gives us in the session of 1865?

First, and for this we have not to thank him—a reduction of the duty on fire insurance, which, though a stamp duty, is separated from the other enactments of the session relating to stamp duties, and associated with enactments relating to customs and income tax.

Secondly. Whereas the ad valorem duties on conveyances commenced with a duty of 2*s.* 6*d.*, and proceeded by steps of that amount to 1*l.* 10*l.*, and then by steps of 5*s.* to 3*l.*, and then upwards by steps of 10*s.*, they are henceforth to commence with a duty of 6*d.*, and proceed by sixpences to 2*s.* 6*d.*, thence by half-crowns to 1*l.* 10*s.*, and then upwards by crowns! But powers of attorney to execute such deeds still bear a stamp of 1*l.* 10*s.*

And whereas on awards the duty was at the rate 5*s.* of per cent. on the value of the subject-matter, up to 1000*l.*, commencing with a duty of 2*s.* 6*d.*, the duty henceforth shall commence at 3*d.*

And whereas on a simple transfer of a mortgage the same duty, up to the limit of 1*l.* 15*s.*, was payable as on the original mortgage; but no duty was payable in respect of the transfer if a further sum was charged by the same deed; now a transfer duty of 6*d.* per 100*l.* is payable in all cases. But if the security transferred is a bond, and not a mortgage, the duty is at the rate of 10*s.* per 100*l.* on the money paid for the transfer; or if no money is paid, the duty is 1*l.* 15*s.* in every case.

The duty on appraisements is unaltered in rate, but commences at 3*d.* (on amounts of 5*l.* and under) instead of 2*s.* 6*d.*

The duty on certain ecclesiastical licenses is reduced from 2*l.* to 10*s.*

The duty on an agreement for letting a tenement for less than a year, at a weekly or monthly rent not exceeding 3*s.* 6*d.* per week, is reduced from 6*d.* to 1*d.*

The duty on certificates taken out by conveyancers and pleaders within the first three years of their practice is reduced by one-half.

The stamp on a charterparty is reduced to 6*d.*, and may be "adhesive," and certain terms are prescribed for stamping charterparties after execution, which are not improvements on the regulations previously in force.

The duty on certain time policies of sea insurance is reduced. The limitation of time for applying for allowances on policies of reinsurance is repealed. The duties on policies other than life, fire, and marine policies, are altered. The duties on policies are extended to foreign policies enforceable in the United Kingdom.

Receipts for deposits on allotments of shares or scrip are charged with duty. The duties on declarations for marriage without license, and on certificates of marriage, are repealed. The duty on contracts under the Highway Act is fixed at 6*d.* And, as relevant to the subject of stamps, a variety of excise regulations are made. Such is the fruit of the splendid abilities, zeal, and industry of our Chancellor of the Exchequer during the session of 1865!

REVIEW.

A Treatise on Arrangements with Creditors under the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, with Precedents; to which are added the Sections of the Bankruptcy Act, 1849 and 1861, and the Rules and Orders relating thereto; with a full Index. By WILLIAM DOWNES GRIFFITH, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law. 12mo., pp. 204. [Sweet; and Stevens, Sons, & Haynes.]

THE arrangement clauses in the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, are in themselves utterly unintelligible; and of the 400 cases cited by Mr. Griffith, the greater part are decisions on what is properly called the construction of the act—the building up of a legal structure out of the chaotic mass of materials provided by the Legislature, who of late have done their best to redress the inequality of the rule propounded by Maule, J., that easy questions are for the Court, and difficult ones for the jury. But at present, as Martin, B., truly complained in Scott v. Berry (11 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 510), "the law which has been established about the deeds of composition sanctioned in the act of Parliament is not in a satisfactory condition. I cannot help feeling that, every time I deliver judgment on the subject." When about 400 more cases have been decided, a tolerably complete system of law on this subject will have been elaborated, and deeds of arrangement may be prepared, and advice may be given on them with some degree of confidence; and as soon as this is accomplished, we may expect that some enterprising law reformer will sweep the whole away, and prepare fresh materials for the exercise of the constructive faculties of the judge. In the meantime debtors and creditors must arrange, and do their best to keep the Bankruptcy Court and its officials at arm's length; and their lawyers must advise them according to their lights. Those who have to do so will find Mr. Griffith's book very useful. It is brief, but complete and trustworthy. On the important question, whether secured creditors are to be included in the computation of number or value, or both, Mr. Griffith writes as follows:—

"So much, at least, in general terms, seems to be now admitted law, but some difficulty still remains in the application even of these rules, the principal difficulty being on the question, who are all the creditors, and how are their consents to be computed in estimating the majority necessary to give validity to a deed within this section; are creditors holding specific securities to be reckoned as creditors, and if so, are they so to be reckoned for the amount of their debt covered by their security, or only for the unsecured balance, if any? In answer to these questions, it was held by the Lords Justices in Re Shettle (1 De G., J., & S. 260; 11 Weekly Rep. 158); see also Ex parte Watts (10 Law T., N. S., 74); Turgand v. Moss (12 Weekly Rep. 960); and, under the 185th section, Re Murphy (7 Law T., N. S., 26), that creditors, whether fully and sufficiently secured, must all be taken into account in estimating the necessary majority. In the case Ex parte Morgan (1 De G., J., & S. 288; 11 Weekly Rep. 316), the Lord Chancellor, premising that he did not mean to overrule the case of Re Shettle, yet gave it as his opinion, that creditors being, upon the execution and registration of such deed, brought by sect. 197 of the act of 1861 into the same condition as creditors under a bankruptcy, secured, creditors could rank against the debtor's estate only for the balance after realising the value of their securities; and the Court of Common Pleas seems to have agreed with the Lord Chancellor (King v. Randall, 14 C. B., N. S., 721; 11 Weekly Rep. 1031; 2 N. B. 325); Turgand v. Moss (12 Weekly Rep. 960), in considering that this dictum does not affect the judgment in Re Shettle. The only way in which the cases can stand together, is by requiring the assent of such a majority of unsecured creditors as will amount to three-fourths in value of the creditors unsecured, and the further consent of as many creditors, whether secured or not, as will make the whole number of assents up to the requisite majority of all the creditors, including the secured as well as the unsecured (by unsecured in the foregoing clause is meant to be included creditors only partially secured, so far as concerns the unsecured balance of their debt); but as no means are provided for estimating the value of the security, at least prior to the registration of the deed, it will not, considering these authorities, be safe to rely on any deed, for the validity of which the consent given by any secured creditor is requisite, unless after allowing the very maximum value which his security can possibly be worth, and estimating his assent for the balance only of his debt after deducting such maximum value; for though the consent of a secured creditor may be prima facie good for the whole amount of his debt, as seems to be decided in Re Shettle and the other cases lastly above cited, yet when the deed comes to be admitted, his provable debt will be reduced to the unsecured balance, and, of course, his assent will have to be reduced accordingly. This may bring down the value of the assents to the deed below what is required by the 192nd section, and invalidate the entire proceeding. It is, however, not to be forgotten that the total amount of debt is reduced in such a case precisely by the same sum as the assent is reduced, a matter to be taken into consideration in determining the effect of the reduction on the validity of the proceeding.

"After the foregoing remarks on Re Shettle and Ex parte Morgan were penned, the same point came again before the Lord Chancellor in Ex parte Smith (10 Law T., N.S., 551, 803); in that case the assent of creditors who were fully secured, was necessary to make up the requisite majority in number as well as in value; there were seventy creditors, of whom thirty-four assented to the deed, but among the dissenting and non-assenting creditors were some who were fully secured, and if they were excluded from the number of creditors, then the requisite majority had been obtained in number as well as value. The Lord Chancellor held the deed to be invalid, on the ground that a creditor, though fully secured, was entitled to be reckoned as a creditor, for the purpose of making up the requisite majority in number, but that, if fully secured, his assent as to value was not to be estimated at anything; and his Lordship expressed an opinion that the cases which seemed to rule or did rule the point in question adversely to that opinion, viz. King Randall (14 C.B., N.S., 721; 11 Weekly Rep. 1031; 2 N. R. 325) and Turquand v. Moss (15 Weekly Rep. 960), were both founded on Re Shettle (1 De G., J., & S. 260; 11 Weekly Rep. 158), in which he said the supposed decision on the question was only a dictum of one of the judges. On this matter, however, it will appear from a close examination of the case, that his Lordship was in error, though his error is countenanced by some remarks in the conclusion of the judgment of the Lord Justice Turner, which were, probably, the foundation of the Lord Chancellor's mistake.

"The present writer was in court when the case of Re Shettle was argued and decided; and the argument in the case was certainly directed mainly to the question, whether or not the assent of fully secured creditors was to be reckoned in value for the full amount of the debt, without allowing for the value of the security. He has further taken the precaution to examine the deed and the schedule of creditors filed in the matter at the registrar's office; and it appears therefrom, that among all the creditors holding security there scheduled, one only was insufficiently secured, his debt being for 750*l.*, and the value of the security 600*l.*, and his assent had been obtained; so that the only question in the case in this respect must have been, and was, the identical question which arose in Smith's case, viz. whether a fully-secured creditor was entitled to rank as a creditor for value to the full nominal amount of his debt, without deducting the value of the security which would reduce that debt to nothing. Since, therefore, in the case of Ex parte Smith the deed was held bad, on the ground above mentioned, and is reduced, on the question now under discussion, to a dictum of the Lord Chancellor, while Re Shettle's case, and the other two above mentioned, remain actual decisions on the point, it is submitted that their authority is still the prevalent and binding authority, and that the assent of secured creditors cannot safely be neglected for the full nominal value of their debts in computing the majority in value as well as in number."

In Whittaker v. Lowe (11 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 530, reported since the publication of the work before us), in the Court of Exchequer, the authority of Shettle's case and Turquand v. Moss was upheld against the dictum of the late Lord Chancellor in Ex parte Smith; but the case is under appeal to the Exchequer Chamber.

In Ex parte Wensley (1 De G. & S. 273; 9 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 315), Lord Westbury, C., held that a deed of assignment not duly registered under the act of 1861, and therefore not to be "received in evidence," might be received in evidence for the purpose of being set up—not as a valid deed—but as an act of bankruptcy. In Ex parte Potter, re Barron (11 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 49), an unstamped deed of assignment was offered in evidence to prove the commission of an act of bankruptcy by the execution of the deed, and Ex parte Wensley was cited as a decision by Lord Campbell. Lord Westbury refused to receive the deed in evidence, observing that the law was perfectly clear, and added, "I do not wish it to be understood that I accede to the decision which was come to in Ex parte Wensley. I should require further argument before I could follow that case." Mr. Griffith considers that the decision in Wensley's case is the sounder of the two, and observes, that "the point seems by no means a new one, and appears to be governed by the decisions in Reculist's case (2 Leach's C. C. 706), which is a judgment of the twelve judges, and that in Coppock v. Bower (4 M. & W. 361), beside several other cases to the like effect, which are referred to in the last-named case, while none of these were noticed in the argument in Ex parte Potter." We are surprised that the absurdity of the conclusion in Wensley's case did not strike Mr. Griffith. The enactment is, that a deed not registered according to the directions of the act shall not be received in evidence. The time for registering the deed in question had passed, and it was impossible that it could ever be registered or received in evidence. How then could it be looked at as an operative assignment—and if not as an operative assignment, how as an act of bankruptcy? The cases of Re v. Reculist, Coppock v. Bower, &c., were entirely different. In Reculist's case, an unstamped paper, purporting to be a bill of exchange, was received in evidence, not as a bill of exchange, but to prove that the prisoner had committed the crime of forging the signature which it bore. If it had been a genuine document unstamped, and the indictment had been for stealing a bill of exchange, it would have been inadmissible. (Re v. Pooley, 3 Bos. & P. 311). So, in Coppock v. Bower (4 M. & W. 361), in an action on an I. O. U. for 500*l.*, the defence being that it was given for an illegal consideration, namely, an agreement to abandon a petition against the return of a member of Parliament on the ground of bribery, an unstamped writing, containing the agreement in question, was admitted in evidence—not as an operative agreement—but as part of the res gestæ.

We and all our subscribers have reason to complain that Mr. Griffith cites The Jurist as seldom as possible—and very frequently refers only to The Weekly Reporter for cases which are reported in all the contemporary reports. This is a great inconvenience to those who do not burthen themselves with all the reports that unemployed barristers choose to inflict on the profession.

BOOK RECEIVED.

The Law of Trade Marks; with some Account of its History and Development in the Decisions of the Courts of Law and Equity. By Edward Lloyd, of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law. Second edition, 12mo., pp. 93.—Solicitors' Journal Office.

REPORT OF THE DIRECTORS

Of the EQUITY AND LAW LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,
18, Lincoln's-inn-fields, London, W.C.,

TO THE EXTRAORDINARY GENERAL MEETING,

Held on Friday, June 30, 1865.

THE fourth quinquennial period of the society's operations having closed on the 31st December last, the directors have caused a careful valuation to be made by the actuary of the assets and liabilities of the society as at that date; and have now in conformity with the provisions of the deed of settlement, to report the results to the proprietors and the assured.

It will be convenient, in the first instance, to give a summary of the progress of the society since the last valuation. In the five years in question, there have been issued 805 new policies insuring 1,159,619*l.*, the average amount of each policy being 1440*l.* In the previous five years, the number of policies issued was 725, insuring 792,485*l.*, and averaging 1093*l.* each. Comparing the two quinquennial periods, therefore, there has not only been a large increase in the business of the office, but that business is of a still higher and more profitable character than formerly.

It is worthy of note, that during the last five years the practice of effecting insurances against the birth of issue, in connexion with loans on contingent reversionary interests, has grown into importance. Up to the present date, such insurances have been effected with this society to the extent of 98,320*l.*, and the premiums received in respect of them have amounted to 5869*l.*

On the 31st December, 1859, there were in force 1336 policies, insuring 1,403,880*l.*; and, adding to these the policies since issued, there are 1414 policies insuring 2,563,499*l.* to be accounted for. Of these, 105 insuring 72,825*l.*, have become claims; 280 insuring 311,908*l.*, have terminated by lapse, surrender, or expiry; leaving 1756 policies in force on the 31st December last, insuring 2,178,766*l.*

In estimating the liability of the society under its various insurance contracts, it has been the wish of the directors to strengthen the position of the society by making an ample reserve, rather than to divide the largest sum which circumstances might seem to justify. A very large profit has been derived during the last five years from the claims being much lighter than could have been possibly expected, the losses having reached only 55 per cent. of the anticipated amount; but the directors consider it would be unwise to divide the whole of this profit on the present occasion. The process of valuation employed has, therefore, been of the most stringent character.

The table of mortality made use of has been that known as the "Experience Table," which would appear to be the most suitable, as having been derived from observations on assured life, furnished by seventeen insurance companies. The reserve obtained by the use of this table is considerably larger than that given by any of the other tables commonly employed. The rate of interest assumed in the calculations is 3*l.* per cent., being the rate commonly adopted for the purpose, as the highest which can, with prudence, be assumed as likely to prevail permanently during the currency of the policies. The whole of the loading, or addition to the net premium for expenses, contingencies, &c., has been thrown off in estimating the value of the future premiums. In these and other respects, the greatest care has been taken to avoid everything in the nature of anticipation of profits not yet realised.

With these explanations the directors would call attention to the following balance sheet, in which the position of the society on the 31st December, 1864, is clearly set forth:—

BALANCE SHEET, DECEMBER 31, 1864.

Liabilities.
Value of 1,481,724 l. insured under 1276 policies with profits	£	s.	d.
Value of 70,054 l. bonuses thereon	777,564	14	0
Value of 568,083 l. insured under 410 policies without profits	40,936	12	0
Reserve for short term insurances, extra risks, special cases, &c.	271,145	0	0
Claims announced and other liabilities	13,219	8	0
Balance, being the excess of assets over liabilities	919	4	0
	72,357	17	7
	£1,175,982	15	7
Assets.
Amount of assurance fund as per printed account	£	s.	d.
Value of 47,892 l. annual premiums on policies with profits	383,986	5	7
Less reserve for expenses, future bonuses, and contingencies	709,825	2
	140,020	14
Value of 18,086 l. annual premiums on policies without profits	500,804	8	0
Less reserve for expenses, &c.	226,352	18
	23,744	10
Value of reassurances for 255,348 l.	106,086	8	0
	34,553	14	0
	£1,175,982	15	7

The directors recommend that of the above balance of 72,357*l.* a sum of 2400*l.* should be appropriated to reduce the price at which the society's house stands in the books; and that the remaining sum of 69,957*l.* be actually divided. The share of the proprietors will be 6995*l.* 14*s.*, which will allow of the payment of an increased dividend for the ensuing five years at the rate of 8*s.* 6*d.* per share, or 8*l.* 10*s.* per cent. on the amount originally paid. The amount to be divided among the assured will be 62,961*l.* 6*s.*, and the amount of the policies which will participate on the present occasion, being effected on the participating scale, and of more than one year's standing, is 1,339,608*l.* At the last division of profits the sum of 39,500*l.* was divided among policies for the sum of 925,306*l.* If the same relation still subsisted, the sum to be divided among the assured would be 57,186*l.* The sum now to be divided is, therefore, considerably larger in proportion; and this, notwithstanding that a larger proportionate reserve has been made.

In distributing the above sum among the assured care has been taken to adjust equitably the shares of persons insuring at different periods in the society's existence. A somewhat larger bonus will be given to the persons who insured many years ago, than to persons who have insured at the same age more recently; but this difference is proportioned to the larger profit derived in the former case; and no advantage is given to the older assured at the expense of the more recent. A larger bonus will be also given to those persons who chose the reversionary bonus at former divisions, than to those who have received the value of the former bonuses in cash, or reduction of premium.

The principle on which the distribution has been made, will be better understood when it is stated, that the average rate of interest at which the funds of the society (including the unproductive assets) have been improved during the last five years has been 47. 8s. per cent. per annum, after deduction of income-tax. In all the valuations, it has been assumed that 34. per cent. only would be realised; and the profit from this source upon the amount of the funds on the 31st December, 1859, forms a considerable sum, of which persons who have insured subsequently have contributed no part.

The directors, in conclusion, bearing in mind that it is essential to the continued prosperity of any insurance company that the amount of new business should be maintained, or increased, from year to year; and believing that the advantages offered by the "Equity and Law" need only to be known to be appreciated, would urge upon the proprietors and the assured the importance of making known, as widely as possible, the facts above detailed.

In 1 thick vol. royal 8vo., price 14. 14s. cloth boards,
WOODFALL'S LAW OF LANDLORD AND TENANT. With a full Collection of Precedents and Forms of Procedure. The Eighth Edition. By W. R. COLE, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's inn; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

SHELFORD'S LAW OF HIGHWAYS in ENGLAND and WALES, brought down to 1865.

In 1 vol. 12mo., price 12s. cloth.
THE LAW OF HIGHWAYS in ENGLAND and WALES; comprising Highways in Districts under Boards of Health and of Local Government, and as affected by Railways. With additional Forms not contained in the Acts. By LEONARD SHELFORD, Esq. The Third Edition, with a Supplement, containing the Highway Act, 1864, &c. With Notes and a revised Index. By C. MANLEY SMITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

SMITH'S ACTION AT LAW, 1863.

In 12mo., price 12s. cloth.

AN ELEMENTARY VIEW of the PROCEEDINGS in an ACTION at LAW. By JOHN WILLIAM SMITH, Esq., late of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law, Author of "Leading Cases," "A Compendium of Mercantile Law," &c. Eighth Edition, adapted to the present practice, by SAMUEL PRENTICE, Esq., Barrister at Law, Editor of "Chitty's Archbold's Practice."

London: Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Booksellers and Publishers.

In 12mo., price 5s. boards,
THE LEASES AND SALES OF SETTLED ESTATES ACT, 19 & 20 Vict. c. 120; and the General Orders and Regulations relating thereto. With an Introduction and Notes, and a Supplement, containing the Amending Act, 21 & 22 Vict. c. 77, and the Cases and Decisions down to the end of Easter Term, 1861. By M. I. FORTESCUE BRICKDALE, of the Middle Temple and Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

This day is published, price 7s. cloth boards,
A TREATISE on ARRANGEMENTS with CREDITORS under the BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861. With Precedents. To which are added, the Sections of the Bankruptcy Acts, 1849 and 1861, and the Rules and Orders relating thereto. With a full Index. By WILLIAM DOWNES GRIFFITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

GREAVES'S CRIMINAL ACTS.—Second Edition.

In post 8vo., price 16s. cloth.

THE CRIMINAL-LAW CONSOLIDATION and AMENDMENT ACTS of the 24 & 25 VICT. With Notes, Observations, and Forms for Summary Proceedings. By CHARLES SPENGLER GREAVES, Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

RUSSELL ON ARBITRATION.—Third Edition.

In royal 8vo., price 36s. cloth.

A TREATISE on the POWER and DUTY of an ARBITRATOR, and the Law of Submissions and Awards. With an Appendix of Forms, and of the Statutes relating to Arbitration. Third Edition. By FRANCIS RUSSELL, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn; and H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

Price 5s. cloth boards.

A HANDY-BOOK of the LAW of COPYRIGHT, comprising Literary, Dramatic, and Musical Copyright, and Copyright in Engraving, Sculpture, and Works of Art. With an Appendix, containing the Statute, Convention with France, and Forms under the 25 & 26 Vict. c. 68. By F. P. CHAPPELL and JOHN SHOARD, LL.D.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NICOL'S BANKRUPTCY ACTS.

THE BANKRUPTCY ACTS, 1849, 1854, and 1861, Consolidated on the Arrangement of the Act of 1849; with the Decisions upon the last Act; and the General Orders of 1852, 1855, 1856, 1857, 1861, 1862, and 1863. With Forms and Precedents applicable to Proceedings in the Bankruptcy and County Courts, and a Tabular Index. By HENRY NICOL, Esq., Barrister at Law. The Second Edition, much enlarged. Royal 12mo., price 14s. cloth.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE CONTRACT of SALE

A TREATISE on the EFFECT of the CONTRACT of SALE on the LEGAL RIGHTS of PROPERTY and POSSESSION in GOODS, WARES, and MERCHANDISE. By COLIN BLACKBURN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. 8vo., price 12s. boards.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

JARMAN on WILLS, by WOLSTENHOLME and VINCENT. The Third Edition, in 2 vols. royal 8vo., price 34. 3s.

A TREATISE on the LAW of WILLS. By THOMAS JARMAN, Esq. The Third Edition. By E. F. WOLSTENHOLME, M.A., and S. VINCENT, B.A., of Lincoln's-inn and the Inner Temple, Barristers at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

TOULMIN SMITH'S "THE PARISH."

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 18s. cloth bds.

THE PARISH: its Powers and Obligations at Law as regards the Welfare of every Neighbourhood, and in Relation to the State; its Officers and Committees, and the Responsibility of every Parishioner. With Illustrations of the Practical Working of this Institution in all Secular Affairs, and of some modern Attempts at Ecclesiastical Incroachment. By TOULMIN SMITH, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. The Second Edition, with important Additions.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

SETON'S DECREES IN EQUITY.

Now complete, in 2 vols. royal 8vo., price 34. 18s. cloth, lettered.

SETON'S FORMS of DECREES in EQUITY, and of Orders connected with them. A new Edition, adapted to the present Practice, with Practical Notes. By W. H. HARRISON, Esq., Barrister at Law, and R. H. LEACH, Esq., one of the Registrars of the Court. Third Edition. 2 vols. royal 8vo. 1862.

Vol. 2, part 2, completing the work, may be had separately, price 14s. cloth.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

HAZLITT and ROCHE'S LAW of MARITIME WARFARE.

A MANUAL of the LAW of MARITIME WARFARE, embodying the Decisions of Lord Stowell and other English Judges, and of the American Courts, and the Opinions of the most eminent Jurists. With an Appendix of the Official Documents and Correspondence in relation to the present War. By WILLIAM HAZLITT and H. P. ROCHE, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. In 12mo. 1864. Price 10s. 6d. cloth.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SHIPPING LAW.

In 8vo., price 20s. cloth, lettered.

THE SHIPPING LAW MANUAL: a concise

Treatise on the Law governing the Interests of Shipowners, Merchants, Masters, Seamen, and other Persons connected with British Ships. Together with the Acts of Parliament, Forms, and Precedents relating to the subject. Being especially intended for popular use in Seaport Towns. By W. T. GREENHOW, of the Middle Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law.

"The 'Shipping Law Manual,' by Mr. W. T. Greenhow, brings into a popular shape, and to the latest date, the entire body of legal regulations affecting the shipping trade of the country alike in relation to owners, merchants, masters, and seamen, and is especially adapted for ordinary use by all persons connected with the business of seaport towns."—Times, Jan. 31, 1863.

"The object of the author of this book is to popularise the Law of Merchant Shipping, and to compress within the compass of a single volume all that is necessary to be known by those directly interested in British navigation. It was no easy task to condense and arrange this mass of legislation, so as to make it intelligible to the general reader. But Mr. Greenhow has achieved it, and placed within reach of every one connected with shipping a valuable compendium of the law relating to that branch of industry."—Shipping and Mercantile Gazette.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

Equity and Law Life Assurance Society,

18, LINCOLN'S-INN-FIELDS, LONDON, W.C.

ESTABLISHED 1844.

CAPITAL—ONE MILLION, FULLY SUBSCRIBED.

BY UPWARDS OF 200 MEMBERS OF THE LEGAL PROFESSION, A LIST OF WHOM MAY BE OBTAINED ON APPLICATION.

TRUSTEES.

THE RIGHT HON. THE LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR.
THE RIGHT HON. LORD MONTEAGLE.
THE RIGHT HON. THE LORD CHIEF JUSTICE ERLE.
THE RIGHT HON. THE LORD CHIEF BARON.
THE RIGHT HON. SIR JOHN TAYLOR COLERIDGE.
CHARLES PURTON COOPER, Esq., Q.C., LL.D., F.R.S.
GEORGE CAPRON, Esq.

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN—GEORGE LAKE RUSSELL, Esq., Lincoln's-inn.
DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—JOHN MOXON CLABON, Esq. (Fearon, Clabon, & Fearon).

JOHN EDWARD ARMSTRONG, Esq., Middle Temple.
HENRY WM. BIRCH, Esq. (Birch & Ingram).
HENRY FOX BRISTOWE, Esq., Lincoln's-inn.
R. J. P. BROUGHTON, Esq. (White, Broughton, & White).
ANTHONY CLEASBY, Esq., Q.C., Inner Temple.
JOHN ELLIS CLOWES, Esq. (Clowes & Hickley).
CHARLES J. DIMOND, Esq. (Simpson & Dimond).
SIMON DUNNING, Esq. (Burder & Dunning).
JOHN W. HAWKINS, Esq., Chief Clerk to the Master of the Rolls.
WILLIAM E. HILLIARD, Esq., Gray's-inn.
N. HOLLINGSWORTH, Esq. (Hollingsworth, Tyerman, & Green).
THOMAS HUGHES, Esq., M.P., Inner Temple.

JOHN ILIFFE, Esq. (Iliffe, Russell, & Iliffe).
THOMAS GLOVER KENSIT, Esq., Clerk to Skinners' Company.
CHARLES HENRY MOORE, Esq., 7, Lincoln's-inn-fields.
EDMUND F. MOORE, Esq., Middle Temple.
WILLIAM BENFORD NELSON, Esq. (Park & W. B. Nelson).
FREDERICK PEAKE, Esq. (Barker, Bowker, & Peake).
SIR ROBERT J. PHILLIMORE, Q.C., the Queen's Advocate.
GEORGE W. K. POTTER, Esq., Secondary of London.
W. B. S. RACKHAM, Esq., 46, Lincoln's-inn-fields.
GEORGE ROBINS, Esq. (Warry, Robins, & Burgess).
ALFRED H. SHADWELL, Esq., Taxing Master in Chancery.
RICHARD SMITH, Esq. (Richard & W. B. Smith).

AUDITORS.

ELECTED BY THE PROPRIETORS.
JOHN BOODLE, Esq., 59, Chancery-lane.
ELLIS CLOWES, Esq., Secretary of the Alliance Bank.

ELECTED BY THE ASSURED.
JOHN C. TEMPLER, Esq., Master of the Court of Exchequer.
A. H. BAILEY, Esq., Actuary to the London Assurance Corporation.

SOLICITOR.

GEORGE ROOPER, Esq., 28, Lincoln's-inn-fields.

MEDICAL OFFICER.

W. O. MARKHAM, M.D., 3, Harley-street.

ACTUARY AND SECRETARY.

THOMAS BOND SPRAGUE, Esq., M.A., formerly Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge.

PREMIUM INCOME, £87,432. SUMS ASSURED, £2,178,768. TOTAL INCOME OF 1864, £93,369.
ASSETS, £443,966—INCLUDING SHAREHOLDERS' PAID-UP CAPITAL, £60,000, AND ASSURANCE FUND, £383,966.

At the Fourth Quinquennial Division of Profits to the 31st December, 1864, the sum of 69,957*l.* was divided in the proportion of 6995*l.* 14*s.* (or one-tenth) to the Shareholders, and 62,961*l.* 6*s.* (or nine-tenths) among the Participating Assured, under Policies for 1,339,608*l.*, on which the Annual Premiums amount to 42,615*l.*

The following Table shows the TOTAL BONUS ADDITIONS to Policies for £1000 taken out at various Ages, and at different Periods of the Society's Existence :—

AGE AT ENTRY.	NUMBER OF ANNUAL PREMIUMS PAID ON 31st DEC., 1864.
	TWENTY.	FIFTEEN.	TEN.	FIVE.
20	£303 10	£228 0	£161 10	£71 10
30	342 10	250 10	176 0	77 0
40	385 0	280 10	197 0	85 0
45	411 10	303 10	210 0	90 10
50	438 0	334 0	231 0	99 10
55	—	389 10	265 0	113 10
60	—	460 10	316 10	133 10

The INCREASE of the ASSETS in the last Five Years has been 188,082*l.*, being equal to 51 per Cent. of the Total Receipts.

The EXPENSES of MANAGEMENT are only FOUR PER CENT. on the Income.

The PREMIUMS are calculated for every half-year of age.

NINE-TENTHS of the Total Profits are divided among the Assured. Considerably more than one-tenth of the Profits is derived from Policies which do not participate in the Profits, so that the Assured have larger Bonuses than if they formed a Mutual Insurance Company, and received the whole of the Profits derived from their own Policies.

The Business of the Society includes the granting of LOANS on the Society's Policies, on Life Interests, Reversions, and other approved Securities; also the PURCHASE of Life Interests and Reversions, and the GRANT of Immediate and Survivorship ANNUITIES.

The Annual Reports are regularly printed, with full Accounts of the Receipts and Expenditure, and may be obtained, by written or personal application at the Office.

The Jurist

No. 550, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.
No. 1499, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

JULY 22, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

WANTED, a CLERK, competent to make out Bills of Costs in Chancery, Conveyancing, and Common Law. Address, B. R., at Mr. Lowe's, Law Stationer, Bell-yard, Fleet-street.

In the press.
THE LAW of FIRE INSURANCE. By C. J. BUNYON, M.A., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law, Author of "The Law of Life Assurance," &c.
London: Charles & Edwin Layton, Fleet-street, Depot for Books on Assurance, Fire, Life, and Marine.

WINDING UP OF COMPANIES.

This day is published, price 13s.,
TAYLOR'S MANUAL on the FORMATION to the WINDING UP OF COMPANIES, under the Joint-Stock Act of 1862. With Forms, Table of Costs, and all the recent Cases.
London: Wm. Amer, Law Bookseller, Lincoln's-inn-gate, Carey-street, W. C.

Now ready, price 10s. 6d., the Third Edition of the COMMON LAW PROCEDURE. By THOMAS HUGH MARKHAM, Esq., M.A., Barrister at Law, Inner Temple.
London: Stannard & Smith, 30, Chancery-lane.

This day is published, in 3vo., price 1l. 1s. cloth,
TREATISE 'ON' COSTS in CHANCERY. By G. O. MORGAN, M.A., and HORACE DAVEY, M.A., Barristers at Law. With an Appendix, containing Forms and Precedents of Bills of Costs.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

OLIPHANT'S LAW OF HORSES, GAMING, &c.
Just published, considerably enlarged, price 15s. cloth.
THE LAW OF HORSES; including the Bargain and Sale of Chattels; also the Law of Racing, Wagers, and Gaming. By GEORGE HENRY HEWITT OLIPHANT, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. Third Edition. By GRANVILLE R. EYDER, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

POLLOCK'S PRACTICE OF THE COUNTY COURT.
THE PRACTICE of the COUNTY COURTS; with the Decisions of the Superior Courts, and Tables of Fees and Costs; also Appendices, containing all the Statutes, Rules of Practice, and Forms, including those relating to Bankruptcy. In Two Parts, with Tabular Indices. The Fifth Edition. By C. E. POLLOCK, Esq., and H. NICOL, Esq., Barristers at Law. In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 1l. 10s. cloth boards.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

This day is published, price 7s. cloth boards,
A TREATISE on ARRANGEMENTS with CREDITORS under the BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861. With Precedents. To which are added, the Sections of the Bankruptcy Acts, 1849 and 1861, and the Rules and Orders relating thereto. With a full Index. By WILLIAM DOWNES GRIFFITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE SOLICITORS' JOURNAL, every SATURDAY, price 6d., containing the Legal News of the Week, Gazette, &c. With the WEEKLY REPORTER, price 1s.
Office, 59, Carey-street, W. C.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.
68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.
CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., Recorder of London.
DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q. C.
Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.
Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.
Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.
Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office. C. B. CLABON, Sec.

No. 550, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

This day is published, in demy 12mo., 1016 pp., price 1l. 12s. cloth,
ROGERS on ELECTIONS, ELECTION COMMITTEES, and REGISTRATION. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Tenth Edition. With the new Registration Statute, and all the Election and Registration Cases to the present time. By F. S. P. WOLFERSTAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

UNIVERSAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,

(Established 1831), 1, King William-street, London, E. C.
At the THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING, a Reduction of 50 per Cent., or one-half, upon the Premiums for the current Year, was declared upon all Participating Policies Six Years in force, as shewn in the following examples:—

Age in Policy.	Sums Assured on Lives in England.	Original Premium.	Reduced Premium for next Year.
20	£1000	£19 6 8	£9 13 4
30	1000	24 8 4	12 4 2
40	1000	31 10 0	15 15 0

Age in Policy.	Assured on Lives in India.	Original Premium.	Reduced Premium next Year.	Further Reduced Premium if in Europe.
20	£1000	£42 0 0	£21 0 0	£9 13 4
30	1000	48 0 0	24 0 0	12 4 2
40	1000	59 0 0	29 10 0	15 15 0

The above will shew the great advantages attaching to Policies effected with this Society, the annual reductions of Premium having been nearly 50 per cent. per annum at twenty-six divisions of profit. Large Reversionary Bonuses were also added to Policies, the holders of which preferred increasing the Sums assured to decreasing their Premiums.

Premiums and conditions highly favourable to Assurers proceeding to India. The Society has Branch Offices at Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, where Policies may be taken out on Lives residing in any part of India.

FREDK. HENDRIKS, Actuary and Secretary.

Messrs. Grindlay & Co., 55, Parliament-street, S. W., have been appointed Agents to this Society for the West-end of London.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS at
PARTRIDGE & COZENS,
WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS in PARCHMENT.
192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 20s.
PARTRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bona fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual RETAIL charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.
Draft Paper, 6s., 7s., 7s. 9d., and 9s. per ream.
Brief Paper, 13s. 6d., 16s., and 18s. 6d. per ream.
Foilsap Paper, 10s. 6d., 13s. 6d., and 17s. 6d. per ream.
Cream Laid Note, 3s., 4s., and 5s. per ream.
Large Cream Laid Note, 4s., 6s., and 7s. 6d. per ream.
Large Blue Note, 3s., 4s., and 6s. per ream.
Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2s. 9d., 3s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. per 1000.
Foilsap Official Envelopes, 1s. 6d. per 100, or 13s. 6d. per 1000.
Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, Piercers, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25s.; Good Stand for ditto, with two Drawers, 17s.

Parchment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1s. 6d. each, or 17s. per dozen.
Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1s. 4d. each, or 15s. per dozen.
Records or Memorials, Ruled, 5s. per dozen, or 22s. 6d. per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inkstands; Postage Scales; Writing-cases; Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post-free.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

B B

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	287
General Examination of Students, Michaelmas Term. 289
Prospectus of Lectures to be delivered during Michaelmas Term.....	291
July Examination on the Subjects of the Lectures and Classes of the Readers of the Inns of Court	293
Statutes passed during the late Session of Parliament.

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCH, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF CHANCERY.

By W. W. KNOX, Barrister at Law.

Ex parte Kimberley, re Kimberley.—(Bankrupt—Renewed protection—Intermediate arrest of bankrupt—Jurisdiction of the Court to order release—Bankruptcy Act, 1849, sect. 112).....	571
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. MARBET, Barrister at Law.

Re The Agricultural Cattle Insurance Company.—Bellhaven's Case.—(Contributory—Compromise—Cancellation)	572
Re The Life Association of England.—Thomson's Case.—(Joint-stock company—Winding up—Contributory—Agreement to take shares)	574

ROLLS COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Lawrence v. Austin. — Durell v. Pritchard. — Dunball v. Walters. —(Obstruction of rights—Injunction—Relief in equity—Damages— Sir Hugh Cairns Act (31 & 32 Vict. c. 27)).....	576
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY'S COURT.

By E. LLOYD, Barrister at Law.

Ex parte The Rector of Holywell.—(Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, sect. 80—Costs of reinvestment—Purchase not completed).....	579
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By T. F. MORSE, Barrister at Law.

Dover v. Buck. —(Trust for the benefit of creditors—Purchase by trustee of trust property upheld) ..	580
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVETT, Barrister at Law.

Hernulowicz and Others v. Jay. —(Bankruptcy—Death of inspectorship—Unreasonable conditions—Bankruptcy Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 134), s. 192)	582
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By R. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

Pristwick and Another v. Poley. —(Attorney—Power of—Action—Compromise).....	583
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

By H. RUTHERFORD, Barrister at Law.

Jeffries v. Evans. —(Game—Reservation of right of sporting—Implied covenants)	584
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

By W. BRANDT, Barrister at Law.

Bostock v. Jardine and Others. —(Purchase by broker—Lump contract—Failure of consideration—Money had and received).....	586
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF PROBATE.

By DR. MIDDLETON.

In the Goods of Robert Raine, Deceased. —(Will—Execution—Witness's name struck through—Probate in fac simile).....	587
Cordeux v. Traser. —(Administration suit—Petition—Evidence—Practice—Prior petens).....	587
Bellew v. Bellew and Others. —(Administration pendente lite—Necessity not shown—Future practice)	588

CROWN CASES RESERVED.

By G. FRANCIS, Barrister at Law.

Reg. v. Adolph Bjornsen. —(Murder on the high seas—British ship—Evidence—Register—Owner alien born—Merchant Shipping Act, 17 & 18 Vict. c. 104)	589
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

EBSWORTH'S LAW OF INFANTS.

In 12mo. (1861), price 3s. cloth.

A HANDY BOOK OF THE LAW OF INFANTS.

By JOHN EBSWORTH, Esq., Solicitor. Treating of—1. Infants, their Parents and Guardians generally.—2. Rights and Liabilities of Infants, Criminals.—3. Infant Labourers.—4. Apprentices.—5. Rights and Liabilities of Infants, Civiliter.

"Mr. Ebsworth's book is therefore likely to be very useful for reference in the first instance. It supplies a want which the voluminous and deeper works on the same subject appear to have only partially filled up.

"We recommend it as a book of first reference to all who desire information on the branch of law of which it treats."—Solicitors' Journal, June 8, 1861.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

GOUGH'S LAND REGISTRY MANUAL.

In 12mo., price 5s. 6d. cloth.

A MANUAL OF PRACTICE in the OFFICE of LAND REGISTRY; including the Acts to facilitate the Proof of Title to, and the Conveyance of, Real Estates, and for obtaining a Declaration of Title (25 & 26 Vict. c. 53, 67). Also, the General Rules and Orders of the Registry, Forms, and Practical Directions for all Proceedings therein, and the Table of Fees. By HENRY GOUGH, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

MOORE'S INSTRUCTIONS for PREPARING

ABSTRACTS of TITLES after the most improved System of eminent Conveyancers; to which is added a Collection of Precedents, shewing the Method, not only of abstracting every species of Deeds, but also of so connecting them together, by collateral Documents, as to form a complete Title. Second Edition, with considerable Additions. By HENRY MOORE, Esq. 12mo. 1852. Price 6s. cloth.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 20s. cloth.

GALE ON EASEMENTS. The Third Edition, much enlarged. By W. H. WILLES, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

DAY'S COMMON-LAW PRACTICE.

The Second Edition, recently published.

THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACTS of 1852, 1854, and 1860. With an Introduction, explanatory of the recent Changes, Notes, Forms of Proceeding, and a copious Index. By J. C. F. S. DAY, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 1 vol. royal 12mo. Price 18s. cloth boards.

This Work comprises a carefully-revised Edition of Mr. Kerr's Procedure Acts of 1852 and 1854, the Cases that have been decided since the publication of these Works being added; the Bills of Exchange Act of 1855, and the Decisions upon it; those portions of the Interpretation Act and Mercantile Law Amendment Act which relate to the Procedure thereon in Court or at Chambers, and all the New Rules: thus constituting a complete Practice of the Superior Courts of Common Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

The Sixth Edition, new ready, price 21s. cloth boards.

HAYES AND JARMAN'S CONCISE FORMS OF WILLS, with Practical Notes: a Popular View of the Statute of Wills, and Suggestions to Persons taking Instructions for and preparing Wills; the Decisions on the Wills Acts, and other Testamentary Matters, in the House of Lords and Privy Council, and in the Equity, Common Law, Ecclesiastical, and Probate Courts, down to the Time of Publication; and many additional Forms. Sixth Edition. By THOMAS S. BADGER EASTWOOD, of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, M.A., and of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law, Reader on the Law of Real Property to the Four Inns of Court.

London: H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street, Law Bookeller and Publisher.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, JULY 22, 1865.

THE CASE OF CONSTANCE KENT AND THE SEAL OF CONFESSION.

SOME questions of considerable legal interest may be raised in the case of Constance Kent; as to the nature of which, however, much misapprehension appears to prevail. The case has been discussed, for instance, not only in the press, but in Parliament, as if it were one which raised the question of the seal of sacramental confession: If it were, the question, perhaps, would not be quite so clear as the late Lord Chancellor and the Home Secretary appeared, in their answers to inquiries, to assume. But it is, in truth, no question of the kind. And it is rather observable, but very easily explainable, that hardly any case has ever occurred in which the question, in a pure and simple form, has ever arisen. That is, the question: whether, by the law of England, the seal of sacramental confession is or is not respected. It is very easily explainable how such a question, in so pure and simple a form, should scarcely ever have arisen; for it will be obvious, upon reflection, that unless either the priest do something out of confession, or the penitent in some way disclose the matter of confession—neither of which cases is likely to occur—there is not likely to be any clue to this species of evidence. It may be from this reason, or it may be from the natural disposition on the part of the courts of law, while this country was Roman Catholic, to respect the seal of confession; but certain it is, that from the very earliest period down to the Reformation, no authority can be cited to shew that a priest was compellable to disclose matter strictly coming under the seal of confession. Whether or not this is precisely the same question as whether such evidence would be receivable, if offered, or not refused, no case can be cited in which it was even voluntarily offered and received; though this, of course, might be accounted for by the absence of reports. The two questions, however, are practically identical; for, of course, whether or not a priest was legally compellable to disclose matter of confession (or, rather, whether he was legally punishable if he did not disclose it), no one can doubt that he would have been regarded as infamous by a Roman Catholic community if he did so. Perhaps, indeed, he would be so regarded, even by a Protestant community (as the case of Mr. Wagner seems to indicate), not, indeed, necessarily on the ground of religious sacredness, but on the ground of breach of confidence; for undoubtedly, according to the common understanding of those who practice confession, it is deemed sacred; and if a priest receives it upon that understanding, many, if not most persons, would consider that he was bound in morality, and in honour to respect it, even though in law he was bound to disclose it; and that, at all events, if he meant to obey the supposed legal obligation, he ought to warn his penitent that he intends to do so, if called upon; in which case, of course, no one would confess to him. And those who summarily hold that confession is not legally sacred, appear to overlook the difficulty that if this were once understood, and acted upon, confession would no longer be practised, so that the denial of the legal sacredness of confession would practically be equivalent to its legal abolition; or to the denial of its legality, which would lead to awkward consequences. And it does not appear an adequate answer to this to reply, that this would not matter, because, if confession were sincere, it would be open and public. For surely this is confounding human justice with divine; and the penalties of human laws are hardly of moral obligation! Many persons, indeed, doubt if it is lawful to hang criminals, even for murder. And assuming that it is so, it is, at all events, an open question among Christians. And there were times, even within living memory, when horse stealing was capital. Could not a man be sincerely sorry for having stolen a horse, who, nevertheless, was not ready and willing to be hanged for it? And what moral obligation could there be voluntarily to submit to a sentence which now all Christian jurists regard as inhuman, and contrary to divine law? And even admitting that capital punishment for murder is not inconsistent with divine law, can any one say it is imposed by divine law? If so, then no one convicted, if convicted legally and rightly, could lawfully, by divine law, solicit pardon; which is absurd. The utmost that can be said is, that it is lawful to hang persons for murder. But that is far from shewing, that they are bound by divine law to render themselves up to be hung for it. If not, then confession may be sincere, although secret; and if so, then, assuming confession to be lawful, to say the least, it is not obvious that it is to be disclosed. That in Roman Catholic times it was not disclosed seems clear, for legal history records no instance of it; while, on the contrary, ecclesiastical history records cases in which its disclosure has been deemed sacrilegious; and even the attempt to enforce it, equally so. Practically, there appears to be no difference between the question; whether a priest can be compelled to disclose matter of confession, and whether he may volunteer it. For, in the first place, he cannot be compelled to disclose it; and though he can be punished, if he does not do so, his doing so must be a voluntary act. And, in the next place, if he is bound to disclose it in a court, it can only be because of the obligation of human law; and assuming such obligation, then surely it equally applies, whether the priest is or is not summoned, and called upon; and if he may disclose, then it follows, that he may denounce; and so the priest would be a kind of policeman or public prosecutor; and we need not say, that if this had ever been understood, confession would have speedily ceased in the land; and the fact, that it prevailed down to the Reformation, and even afterwards, and exists, as the present case shews, down to the present time, not only in the Church of Rome, but in the Church of England, is abundantly enough to shew that it has not been so understood, and could not have been so understood. It is manifest that confession, a sacrament of the Romish Church, could not have existed, if it had been so understood. And it is very observable, that in the 9 Edw. 2, c. 10, where it is provided, with reference to privileges of sanctuary, that those who are in sanctuary may go forth for necessary purposes, it is provided—"that they may, whenever they will, confess their offences to priests;" and it is added—"but let the confessors beware that they do not erroneously inform the appellors (i. e. the prosecutors) thereof;" which plainly implies, not only that the law recognised the seal of confession, but that the Legislature made special provision for it, and went out of its way to caution confessors not to violate the seal. Lord Coke, in commenting upon this, says not a word to suggest that it is obsolete or bad law; on the contrary, he recognises it, and only introduces an exception, in the case of inchoate or attempted treason, when the safety of the realm requires it—that is, where one of several traitors confesses a conspiracy to dethrone the Sovereign or murder her—and the public weal requires immediate disclosure. Whether this exception would have held in law it is not worth while to discuss; it probably never did occur, and certainly never will occur. Enough, that Lord Coke recognises the general law as to sacredness of confession. The Reformation did nothing to alter the law upon that subject. The Articles contain nothing against confession; the service of the Visitation of the Sick recognises it, and actually advises it; and it contains an absolution in the judicial form used by the Romish priest—"Ego te absolvo." Added to this, one of the Canons declares that a priest who discloses matter of confession is irregular, except in the case which is excepted by Lord Coke. Confession, therefore, is rather recognised than otherwise in the Established Church; and as to the Roman Catholic Church, it is tolerated by law; and the act of 1831 expressly recognises bequests for the teaching and administration of the Roman Catholic faith. It is by no means clear that even in the English Church confession is not a sacrament, for the answer in the Catechism as to the number of the sacraments—"Two only generally necessary to salvation"—would not necessarily, whether upon Roman Catholic or Anglican construction, exclude confession; for it has been held that, according to our law, marriage is sacramental (Richards v. Dovey, Willes's Rep. 622); and the Roman Catholic Church does not consider all the sacraments "generally necessary to salvation;" for example, it has been legally proved that extreme unction is not. (Reg. v. Howell, 1 Car. & K. 689). There is nothing, therefore, in the statutes of the Reformation to alter the common law on the subject one way or the other. And as to the cases since these statutes, they have, for one reason or another, been indeterminate and indecisive.

No light is thrown upon the question by the cases as to the exclusion of a confession from evidence, on the ground that it has been made to a chaplain, or to some one in authority. (Reg. v. Giffin, 6 Cox's O. C. 219). Such cases can only apply where the priest voluntarily offers the evidence, and it is objected to on the ground that the confession has been obtained by undue influence, which is quite another point.

It is not surprising that Mr. Best, in his learned work on Evidence (p. 596), treats it as a very arguable question, whether by our law the seal of sacramental confession does not bind at law. He says distinctly that there can be no doubt that, previous to the Reformation, statements made to a priest in sacramental confession, were held privileged. And he does not state anything to shew that the case is altered. Indeed, as already mentioned, the question in a pure and simple form could scarcely ever arise. In Garner's case the supposed exception would apply (as it was a case of treason), and yet Lord Coke labours to shew that it was not a matter under the seal of confession at all, but out of confession; and that has always been the case wherever the claim of privilege has been overruled. The privilege of cause only applies to what is said in the course of sacramental confession. That is what is said by the penitent, for he only confesses; and it is the privilege of confession. It is, in other words, the privilege of the penitent, not of the priest. This is according to general principles of law as to privileged communications. The privilege, it has always been held, is that of the patient or the client, not of the medical attendant or the attorney. So, assuming a privilege in sacramental confession, it is that of the penitent, not of the priest. It is a privilege to protect the penitent, not the priest. To conceal what the penitent has said, not what the priest has said. Of course, in cases where the penitent has not disclosed the secret, and disclosure of what the priest has said may tend indirectly to disclose what the penitent had said, the privilege, assuming it to exist, may apply to what the priest said, but only on account of the penitent. And if the penitent has already disclosed the matter of confession, the seal is broken, and it no longer exists. The concealment of what the priest has said cannot now be of any advantage or avail to the penitent (for whose benefit alone the privilege can possibly exist), but may be to his prejudice. For instance, the disclosure by the penitent may have been the result of persuasion or influence by the priest, which would in a court of law be deemed undue, and which might exclude the confession of the penitent as legally admissible evidence, and thus the disclosure of what the priest had said, not its suppression, would be for the protection of the penitent; and the priest, in setting up the supposed privilege, to suppress what he said, is using the privilege, not for the advantage of his penitent, but adversely to him; not for the protection of the penitent, but for his destruction. And this is the question which will arise in Constance Kent's case, if, on any issue, direct or collateral, Mr. Wagner should refuse on the trial, as he did at the hearing, to answer, as to what he said. This would be setting up the supposed privilege not to shield, protect, or save his penitent, but to ruin and destroy her, and deprive her of any chance of safety. No one ever heard of any privilege set up to destroy the privileged party. And, as already pointed out, if the privilege exists, it exists only for the benefit and protection of the penitent. That a confession obtained by illegitimate influence or inducement is excluded in a court of law, is clear, even although the form it actually takes is a mere exhortation to tell the truth. (Reg. v. Garner, 2 Car. & K. 920). And no one can doubt that a priest, in the confessional or out of it, used illegitimate influence to induce the penitent to make a public confession, then that confession would be excluded as legal evidence. That is the question which may arise in Constance Kent's case; whether or not, the question also arises, whether a priest can be compelled to disclose statements made to him in confession. That question could only arise if the clergyman were asked as to other or further statements made by the prisoner in the course of confession, beyond or beside those made in public confession; and the question might be one of great difficulty, as it would be one of some complication. But the question which did arise on the hearing, and which is most likely to arise on the trial is, whether, when asked by the Court or the counsel for the prisoner to disclose what he said to the prisoner, in order to discover whether any illicit inducement was held out to confess publicly, the clergyman can decline to answer. We think not; and that, whether or not the law regards the seal of confession, for that seal, in this case, is broken by the act of the penitent. And what the priest said, upon or after her sacramental confession—though it might, indeed, be covered by the seal of confession before the penitent had broken it (because its disclosure might tend indirectly to disclose it)—can scarcely exist afterwards. Confession was then over. The priest could hardly endeavour to induce her to confess publicly until she had already confessed secretly; and, on the other hand, what he said after her confession could not necessarily be covered by the seal of confession. If covered by it at all, it could only be incidentally and indirectly, before she had broken the seal; after she had broken it, how could it possibly cover what he said? Now, what he said might possibly have been in law illegitimate influence to induce her to make public and open confession, and might exclude that confession as legal evidence in a court of law. It being said in the confessional, or on an occasion of confession, would not necessarily cover it by the seal of confession. It has been held, that if a priest receive restitution of a stolen article after confession; he cannot decline to answer from whom he had the article. (Reg. v. Hay, 2 Fost. & F. 4). And of course it would be the same although it was in the confessional, for it could only be after confession, and so must be necessarily out of confession; and moreover, it would be an act of the priest as well as of the penitent. In that case it was held, indeed, that the evidence might be extracted compulsorily; à multo fortiori, where, as in the present case, the priest has brought his penitent up to public confession. In both cases the question would be, not what the penitent said, but what the priest said, and the objection would not be to protect the penitent, but the priest. That case, therefore, bears clearly and closely upon the present, supposing the question to be put as suggested. Of course, these lines being written before the assizes have opened, it may be that no question of the kind may arise, for the unhappy girl may plead guilty. Even in that case, however, it is not quite clear that the question might not arise on a collateral question, as to her sanity and competence to plead. Counsel might rise, not, indeed, as her counsel, for if she be insane, she cannot plead, but as amicus curiæ, to suggest, and give the Court to understand, that the prisoner is not in a sane state of mind, and so is not competent to plead; upon which a collateral issue would be raised, and evidence would be taken as to her present state of mind. This might or might not involve the question of her insanity at the time of the act itself; and if the case were one of hereditary insanity, and continuing insanity, it would be so. Again: it might be a case of insanity super-vening since the time of the act, and induced, it may be, by spiritual influence and over excitement acting on a mind weakened by an hereditary predisposition to insanity. In either case, especially the latter, the question of the nature and extent of the influence exercised over her by the priest, with reference to her alleged confession, might be material. If, for instance, he refused to administer absolution, unless upon condition of a public confession, assuring her that, upon pain of damnation, she was bound to such confession, it might be a very grave question whether this, coming from a person in a position to exercise such undue influence, as would avoid a will, for instance, would not invalidate a confession. That it would be undue, no one can doubt; for, upon the ground already adverted to, there is no necessary connexion between human justice and divine, and though the priest might be right in exhorting her to public confession, he would have no right to impose it as a condition. This, however, at all events, it would not be for the priest to judge; and the point is, that he has no right to withhold information as to what passed. It might be more material still, with reference to sanity. The observations which, so to speak, led up to the supposed confession might be very material, with a view to test its reliability, and her sanity or insanity. And when a priest has publicly and ostentatiously connected himself with the open and public confession, by accompanying the penitent to the police court, and by avowing that she had been a penitent of his just previous to the public confession (which almost necessarily implies that something had passed between them on the subject); and further, by actually proving the confession; all this amounts to conduct on his part out of confession, connected with his conduct in confession, and uncovered by the seal of confession, even supposing any to exist. It may or may not be that the questions, or any of them, may arise. But they may arise; and as, about the time these lines are published, the report of the case may appear, it may be of interest to the profession to see what, a priori, were the ideas which occurred to a member of a profession, to remark on the case before it came on for trial. Let it be distinctly understood, at all events, that it does not involve the question of the sanctity of confession. If the priest is called upon to answer, and refuses, and he is committed for not answering, it is apprehended that the jury must be discharged, and the prisoner remanded into custody until next assizes.

GENERAL EXAMINATION.—MICHAELMAS TERM, 1865.

THE Council of Legal Education have approved of the following rules for the public examination of the students.

The attention of the students is requested to the following rules of the Inns of Court:—

“As an inducement to students to propose themselves for such examination, studentships and exhibitions shall be founded of fifty guineas per annum each, and twenty-five guineas per annum each respectively, to continue for a period of three years, and one such studentship shall be conferred on the most distinguished student at each general examination; and one such exhibition shall be conferred on the student who obtains the second position; and further, the examiners shall select and certify the names of three other students who shall have passed the next best examinations; and the Inns of Court to which such students as aforesaid belong, may, if desired, dispense with any terms, not exceeding two, that may remain to be kept by such students previously to their being called to the Bar. Provided that the examiners shall not be obliged to confer or grant any studentship, exhibition, or certificate, unless they shall be of opinion that the examination of the students has been such as entitles them thereto."

"At every call to the Bar those students who have passed a general examination, and either obtained a studentship, an exhibition, or a certificate of honour at such examination, shall take rank in seniority over all other students who shall be called on the same day."

RULES FOR THE PUBLIC EXAMINATION OF CANDIDATES FOR HONOURS, OR CERTIFICATES ENTITLING STUDENTS TO BE CALLED TO THE BAR.

An examination will be held in next Michaelmas Term, to which a student of any of the Inns of Court who is desirous of becoming a candidate for a studentship, an exhibition, or honours, or of obtaining a certificate of fitness for being called to the Bar, will be admissible.

Each student proposing to submit himself for examination will be required to enter his name at the treasurer's office of the Inn of Court to which he belongs on or before Monday, the 23rd day of October next; and he will further be required to state in writing whether his object in offering himself for examination is to compete for a studentship or other honourable distinction, or whether he is merely desirous of obtaining a certificate preliminary to a call to the Bar.

The examination will commence on Monday, the 30th day of October next, and will be continued on the Tuesday and Wednesday following.

It will take place in the Hall of Lincoln's Inn; and the doors will be closed ten minutes after the time appointed for the commencement of the examination.

The examination by printed questions will be conducted in the following order:—

Monday morning, the 30th October, at half-past nine, on Constitutional Law and Legal History; in the afternoon, at half-past one, on Equity.

Tuesday morning, the 31st October, at half-past nine, on Common Law; in the afternoon, at half-past one, on the Law of Real Property, &c.

Wednesday morning, the 1st November, at half-past nine, on Jurisprudence and the Civil Law; in the afternoon, at half-past one, a paper will be given to the students including questions bearing upon all the foregoing subjects of examination.

The oral examination will be conducted in the same order, during the same hours, and on the same subjects, as those already marked out for the examination by printed questions, except that on Wednesday afternoon there will be no oral examination.

The oral examination of each student will be conducted apart from the other students; and the character of that examination will vary, according as the student is a candidate for honours, or desires simply to obtain a certificate.

The oral examination and printed questions will be founded on the books below mentioned, regard being had, however, to the particular object with a view to which the student presents himself for examination.

In determining the question whether a student has passed the examination in such a manner as to entitle him to be called to the Bar, the examiners will principally have regard to the general knowledge of law and jurisprudence which he has displayed.

A student may present himself at any number of examinations until he shall have obtained a certificate.

Any student who shall obtain a certificate may present himself a second time for examination as a candidate for the studentship or exhibition, but only at the general examination immediately succeeding that at which he shall have obtained such certificate; provided, that if any student so presenting himself shall not succeed in obtaining the studentship or exhibition, his name shall not appear in the list.

Students who have kept more than eleven terms shall not be admitted to an examination for the studentship or the exhibition.

The READER ON CONSTITUTIONAL LAW and LEGAL HISTORY proposes to examine in the following subjects:—

1. The principal statutes from the time of King John to that of Queen Anne.

2. The State Trials in the reigns of James I, Charles I, and Charles II.

3. The chapter on the English Constitution in Hallam's Middle Ages (c. 8, part 3).

4. Hallam's Constitutional History, from the accession of James I to the Revolution of 1688.

The READER ON EQUITY proposes to examine in the following books:—

1. Haynes's Outlines of Equity; Smith's Manual of Equity Jurisprudence; Hunter's Elementary View of the Proceedings in a Suit in Equity, part 1.

2. The Cases and Notes contained in the 1st volume of White & Tudor's Leading Cases; the Act to further amend the Law of Property and to relieve Trustees, 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35; the Act to further amend the Law of Property, 23 & 24 Vict. c. 38; the Act to give to Trustees, Mortgagees, and others, certain Powers now commonly inserted in Settlements, Mortgages, and Wills, 23 & 24 Vict. c. 145; the Act to regulate the Procedure in the High Court of Chancery and the Court of Chancery of the County Palatine of Lancaster, 25 & 26 Vict. c. 42; the General Orders of the Court of Chancery of the 1st February, 1861, and of the 5th February, 1861 (7 Jur., N. S., part 2, p. 58); Mitford on Pleadings in the Court of Chancery—Introduction, c. 1, ss. 1, 2; c. 1, s. 3 (the first six pages); c. 2, s. 1; c. 2, s. 2, part 1 (the first three pages); c. 2, s. 2, part 2 (the first two pages); c. 2, s. 2, part 3; c. 3.

Candidates for certificates of having passed a satisfactory examination will be expected to be well acquainted with the books mentioned in the first of the above classes.

Candidates for the studentship, exhibition, or honours will be examined in the books mentioned in the two classes.

The READER ON THE LAW OF REAL PROPERTY, &c., proposes to examine in the following books and subjects:—

1. Joshua Williams on the Law of Real Property, 6th ed.

2. The Law of Copyholds—Josiah Wm. Smith on Real and Personal Property, 3rd ed., pp. 118-127, 209-211, 928-935, and the other references in the Index; under title "Copyholds."

3. Personal Annuities, Stocks, and Shares—Joshua Williams on Personal Property, 5th ed., pp. 180-213.

4. Dee v. Hiscocks (5 M. & W. 363), and the Notes to that case, Tudor's Leading Cases in Conveyancing, pp. 819-836, 2nd ed.

5. Spencer's case (5 Co. 16); and the Notes to that case in 1 Smith's Leading Cases at the Common Law, p. 48; Sugden's Vendors and Purchasers, 14th ed., pp. 576-598.

Candidates for the studentship, exhibition, or honours will be examined in all the foregoing books and subjects; candidates for a certificate in those under heads 1, 2; and 3.

The READER ON JURISPRUDENCE, CIVIL and IN-

INTERNATIONAL LAW, proposes to examine in the following books and subjects:—

1. The First Book of the Institutes of Justinian, with the Notes of Sandars or Ortolan.

2. Mackeldell—Systema Juris Romani hodie Usitati (Leps. 1847)—Pars Generalis, §§ 116-142—Pars Specialis—Jus Familiare, lib. 3.

3. Code Napoleon, §§ 144-515.

4. Maine's Ancient Law, c. 5—Primitive Society and Ancient Law.

5. Wheaton's International Law, part 2—Absolute International Rights of States, pp. 115-356 (ed. 1863).

Candidates for the studentship or honours will be examined in the whole of the above-mentioned subjects; but candidates for a pass certificate will be examined in 1, 4, and 5.

The READER ON COMMON LAW proposes to examine in the following books and subjects:—

Candidates for a pass certificate will be examined in—

1. The ordinary Steps and Course of Procedure in an Action at Law.

2. The Law of Contracts, so far as set forth in Smith's Lectures on Contracts, 1-5 inclusive.

3. "Torts Generally." Broom's Commentaries (3rd ed.), book 3, c. 1, and "Torts to the Person." Id., c. 2, to p. 730.

4. The Law of Homicide and Simple Larceny, which may be read from Archbold's Criminal Pleading (15th ed.)

Candidates for the studentship, exhibition, or honours will be expected to be familiar with 1, 2, and 3 of the above subjects, and will also be examined in—

5. "Pleadings in an Action."—Broom's Commentaries (3rd ed.), pp. 159-192.

6. The following Cases, with the Notes thereto, in Smith's Leading Cases:—Armory v. Delamire; Ashby v. White; Chandlor v. Lopus; Collins v. Blantern; and Pasley v. Freeman.

7. Foster's Discourse of Homicide, cc. 1, 2, 3, 5, and 8.

8. "Maxims applicable to the Law of Evidence."—Broom's Legal Maxims, (4th ed.), c. 10.

By order of the Council,

WESTBURY, Chairman.

Council Chamber, Lincoln's-inn,

July 14, 1865.

PROSPECTUS OF THE LECTURES

To be delivered during the ensuing Michaelmas Educational Term, by the several Readers appointed by the Inns of Court.

CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND LEGAL HISTORY.

The Reader on Constitutional Law and Legal History proposes to deliver, during the ensuing Educational Term, Six Public Lectures on

THE HISTORY OF ENGLISH LAW UNDER THE STUARTS.

With his Private Class, the Reader proposes to go through the principal Statutes, Trials, Cases, and State Documents, which illustrate the History of the English Constitution and the History of English Law under the Stuarts. He will use Hallam's Constitutional History and Coke's Institutes as his principal Text-books.

EQUITY.

The Reader on Equity proposes to deliver, during the ensuing Educational Term, Two Courses of Public Lectures (there being Six Lectures in each Course), on the following subjects:—

An Elementary Course.

1. On Civil Judicial Procedure in General. On the Origin of the Feudal System, and its Influence over Judicial Procedure.

2. On the Origin of the Superior Courts of Law and Equity.

3. On the History of the Court of Chancery; its Ordinary and Extraordinary Jurisdiction and Present Constitution.

4. On the Custody of the Great Seal.

5. On the General Principles of Equity.

An Advanced Course.

1. On Trusts by Implication and Construction of Law.

2. On the Equitable Doctrine of Conversion.

3. On Relief in Equity against Fraud.

In the Elementary Private Class, the subjects discussed will be—The Remedies in Equity for Breaches of Agreements, and Equitable Relief against Waste.

In the Advanced Private Class, the subjects treated will be—The Nature of Pleadings in the Court of Chancery; The Doctrine of Equity with reference to Election, Performance, and Satisfaction.

THE LAW OF REAL PROPERTY, &c.

The Reader on the Law of Real Property, &c. proposes to deliver, in the ensuing Educational Term, Two Courses of Public Lectures (there being Six Lectures in each Course), on the following subjects:—

Elementary Course.

1. A Common Contract for the Sale of Land.

2. A Common Conveyance of Land.

Advanced Course.

The Law of Wills.

In his Private Classes, the Reader will, with the Elementary Class, endeavour to go through a Course of Real Property Law, using the work of Mr. Joshua Williams as a Text-book; and with the Advanced Class, the Reader will examine and comment upon some of the Leading Cases, to be selected from the Volumes of Leading Cases, on Conveyancing and Equity, by Tudor, and White and Tudor.

JURISPRUDENCE, CIVIL, AND INTERNATIONAL LAW.

The Reader on Jurisprudence, Civil, and International Law proposes, in the ensuing Educational Term, to deliver Six Public Lectures upon the following subjects:—

1. International Law; its Sources and Constituents.

2. The Jurisconsulti of Ancient Rome; their Functions and Emoluments.

3. The Historical Development of the Roman Civil Procedure, and its Influence upon the Amendment of the Substantive Law.

4. The System of Pleading in Roman Civil Actions, and the Modes of Determination of Questions of Law and Fact.

In his Private Class, the Reader will continue the consideration of the Law of Contracts, commencing with the Contracts of Locatio Conductio (Letting and Hiring), and Societas (Partnership), using Sandars's Edition of Justinian's Institutes, and the Systema Juris Romani of Mackelday as Text-books, and contrast it with the English and French Law upon the same head.

The Reader, in his Private Class, will also discuss points of International Law relating to Rights of War as between Enemies, using the work of Wheaton as the Text-book, and referring to the works of the principal modern Jurists; the decisions of the Admiralty and Prize Courts of England and America; the Debates in Parliament; and State Papers relating to the cases under discussion.

COMMON LAW.

The Reader on Common Law proposes to deliver, during the ensuing Educational Term, Two Courses of Six Public Lectures each, on the following subjects:—

Elementary Course.

1. Common Law—What it is—Whence it has been derived—Into what Departments it is subdivided.
2. The Characteristics of Contract, Tort, and Crime will be exhibited, and illustrated by Leading Cases.
3. The Rules of Evidence ordinarily applied in Civil and Criminal Proceedings will be stated and explained.

Advanced Course.

1. The Theory of the Law of Contracts, express or implied, will be considered.
2. The Three Classes of Contracts—of Record, Special, and Simple—will be noticed, and Cases illustrating each respectively will be cited.
3. The Rules of Evidence applicable in Actions ex Contractu will be specified, and the Mode of applying them will be explained.

With his Private Classes, the Reader will consider, seriatim, the various subjects above mentioned, and especially demonstrate the manner in which the Rules of Evidence are practically applied—whether for interpreting written instruments, or for proving facts relevant to the issues raised on the record.

The following books will generally be referred to:—

Elementary Class:—Blackstone's Commentaries (twenty-first edition); Broom's Commentaries (third edition); and Taylor on Evidence.

Advanced Class:—Chitty on Contracts (last edition) and Roscoe on Evidence at Nisi Prius.

By order of the Council.

(Signed) WESTBURY, Chairman.

Council Chamber, Lincoln's-inn,

July 14, 1865.

JULY EXAMINATION ON THE SUBJECTS OF THE LECTURES AND CLASSES OF THE READERS OF THE INNS OF COURT,

Held at Lincoln's-inn Hall on the 3rd, 4th, and 5th days of July, 1865.

The Council of Legal Education have awarded the following Exhibitions to the under-mentioned Students, of the value of thirty guineas each, to endure for two years:—

CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND LEGAL HISTORY.

Samuel Poynter, Esq., student of the Middle Temple.

JURISPRUDENCE, CIVIL, AND INTERNATIONAL LAW.

Alfred Claribeu Curlew, Esq., student of Lincoln's-inn.

EQUITY.

Charles H. Anderson, Esq., student of the Inner Temple.

THE COMMON LAW.

John Ewart, Esq., student of the Middle Temple.

THE LAW OF REAL PROPERTY, &c.

John Ewart, Esq., student of the Middle Temple.

The Council of Legal Education have also awarded the following Exhibitions of the value of twenty guineas each, to endure for two years, but to merge on the acquisition of a superior Exhibition:—

EQUITY.

T. De Courcy Atkins, Esq., student of the Middle Temple.

THE COMMON LAW.

Edwyn Jones, Esq., student of Gray's-inn.

THE LAW OF REAL PROPERTY, &c.

Edward Ford, Esq., student of Lincoln's-inn.

By order of the Council,

(Signed) WESTBURY, Chairman.

Council Chamber, Lincoln's-inn,

July 14, 1865.

CHITTY'S COLLECTION OF STATUTES.

Now ready, in 4 very thick vols., price 12l. 12s. cloth.

A COLLECTION of all the STATUTES of PRACTICAL UTILITY, with Notes thereon; intended as a Circuit and Court Companion. The Third Edition, containing all the Statutes of Practical Utility in the Civil and Criminal Administration of Justice to the present time. By W. N. WELSBY and EDWARD BEAVAN, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

"The principal branches of the Law are arranged alphabetically, and under each is collected all the Statutes relating to it, with explanatory notes. Besides the easy access afforded by the alphabetical arrangement of the subjects, a very copious general Index supplies the means of ready reference to all the subjects of lesser importance to which the various Statutes are directed."

"We could not say more for this great work by any words of approbation than by this short description of it. It is an admirable design admirably executed."—Law Times, May 13, 1855.

"* In the debate on the proposed consolidation of the Statutes, on the 9th February, 1854, Lord Campbell said, 'that the Statutes at large extended to about fifty volumes folio, but all the Statutes which were usually required by lawyers for reference might be found in three octavo volumes, compiled by his learned friend Mr. Welsby. When he (Lord Campbell) was upon the Bench, he always had this work by him, and no Statutes were ever referred to by the Bar which he could not find in it.'"

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

The Fifteenth Edition, by W. N. Welsby, Esq., adapted to the New Criminal Statutes of 1861, in 1 vol. royal 18mo., price 1l. 6s. cloth boards.

ARCHBOLD'S PLEADING and EVIDENCE in CRIMINAL CASES; with the Statutes, Precedents of Indictments, and the Evidence necessary to support them. By JOHN JERVIS, Esq. (late Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas). The Fifteenth Edition. Including the Practice in Criminal Proceedings by Indictment. By W. N. WELSBY, Esq., Barrister at Law, Recorder of Chester.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

In royal 12mo., price 14s. cloth.

A TREATISE on the PRINCIPLES and PRACTICE of the COURT for DIVORCE and MATRIMONIAL CAUSES, with the Statutes, Rules, Fees, and Forms relating thereto, and copious Examples of Bills of Costs. By GEORGE BROWNE, Esq., B. A., Barrister at Law, of the Inner Temple.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 12mo., price 9s. cloth.

A TREATISE on BILLS of SALE, with an Appendix, containing the Registration Act, 17 & 18 Vict. c. 36, and Precedents, &c. By F. C. J. MILLAR and J. R. COLLIER, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. SECOND EDITION, revised and enlarged. By F. C. J. MILLAR, Esq.

Stevens & Sons; and H. Sweet.

CHITTY ON BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 1l. 8s.

CHITTY ON BILLS of EXCHANGE, Promissory Notes, Cheques on Bankers, Bankers' Cash Notes, and Bank Notes; with References to the Law of Scotland, France, and America. The Tenth Edition. By JOHN A. RUSSELL and D. MACLACHLAN, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

STEPHEN ON PLEADING.—Sixth Edition.

In 8vo., price 15s. cloth.

A TREATISE on the PRINCIPLES of PLEADING in CIVIL ACTIONS; comprising a Summary Account of the whole Proceedings in a Suit at Law; being a Sixth Edition of Mr. Serjeant Stephen's Work under that title, with Alterations adapting it to the Present System. By JAMES STEPHEN and FRANCIS F. PINDER, Barristers at Law.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the Office, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, July 22, 1865.

The Jurist

No. 551, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.

No. 1490, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

JULY 29, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

UNIVERSITY OF LONDON.—The Institution of the Degree of DOCTOR OF LITERATURE (D. Lit.) having been decided on by the Senate, and approved by her Majesty's Government, the REGULATIONS relating thereto may be obtained on application to the Registrar.

The Revised Regulations relating to Degrees in Laws may also be obtained on application to the Registrar.

WILLIAM B. CARPENTER, M.D., Registrar.
Burlington House, London, W., July 26, 1865.

In the press,
THE LAW OF FIRE INSURANCE. By C. J. BUNYON, M.A., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law, Author of "The Law of Life Assurance," &c.
London: Charles & Edwin Layton, Fleet-street, Depot for Books on Assurance, Fire, Life, and Marine.

HANSON'S SUCCESSION DUTY ACT, 1865.

Just published, in 12mo., price 6s. cloth.

THE SUCCESSION DUTY ACT, 1863 (15 & 16 Vict. c. 51). With the Decisions to 1865, with Notes. By ALFRED HANSON, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Haynes, 11, Bell-yard, Temple-bar.

This day is published, in 12mo., price 2s. 6d. cloth, lettered.
COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION; or the New Act, 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99, conferring further Equitable Jurisdiction on the County Courts. With Notes. By JAMES J. ASTON, Esq., Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

WINDING UP OF COMPANIES.

This day is published, price 13s.

TAYLOR'S MANUAL on the FORMATION to the WINDING UP OF COMPANIES, under the Joint-Stock Act of 1862. With Forms, Table of Costs, and all the recent Cases.
London: Wm. Amer, Law Bookseller, Lincoln's-inn-gate, Carey-street, W.C.

This day is published, price 7s. cloth boards,
A TREATISE ON ARRANGEMENTS with CREDITORS under the BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861. With Precedents. To which are added, the Sections of the Bankruptcy Acts, 1849 and 1861, and the Rules and Orders relating thereto. With a full Index. By WILLIAM DOWNES GRIFFITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, in 8vo., price 1l. 1s. cloth,
A TREATISE ON COSTS in CHANCERY. By G. O. MORGAN, M.A., and HORACE DAVEY, M.A., Barristers at Law. With an Appendix, containing Forms and Precedents of Bills of Costs.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, in demy 12mo., 1016 pp., price 1l. 12s. cloth,
ROGERS on ELECTIONS, ELECTION COMMITTEES, and REGISTRATION. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Tenth Edition. With the new Registration Statute, and all the Election and Registration Cases to the present time. By F. S. P. WOLFERSTAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

OLIPHANT'S LAW OF HORSES, GAMING, &c.

Just published, considerably enlarged, price 15s. cloth.

THE LAW OF HORSES; including the Bargain and Sale of Chattle; also the Law of Racing, Wagers, and Gaming. By GEORGE HENRY HEWITT OLIPHANT, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. Third Edition. By GRANVILLE R. RYDER, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3 Chancery-lane.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 16s.,
A TREATISE ON DAMAGES, comprising their Measure, the Mode in which they are Assessed and Reviewed, the Practice of Granting New Trials, and the Law of Set-off and Compensation under the Lands Clauses Act. By JOHN D. MAYNE, Esq., Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

No. 551, VOL. XI, NEW SERIES.

CHITTY'S COLLECTION OF STATUTES.

Now ready, in 4 very thick vols., price 12l. 12s. cloth.

A COLLECTION of all the STATUTES of PRACTICAL UTILITY, with Notes thereon; intended as a Circuit and Court Companion. The Third Edition, containing all the Statutes of Practical Utility in the Civil and Criminal Administration of Justice to the present time. By W. N. WELSBY and EDWARD BEAVAN, Esqms., Barristers at Law.

"The principal branches of the Law are arranged alphabetically, and under each is collected all the Statutes relating to it, with explanatory notes. Besides the easy access afforded by the alphabetical arrangement of the subjects, a very copious general Index supplies the means of ready reference to all the subjects of lesser importance to which the various Statutes are directed."

"We could not say more for this great work by any words of approbation than by this short description of it. It is an admirable design admirably executed."—Law Times, May 13, 1855.

"In the debate on the proposed consolidation of the Statutes, on the 9th February, 1854, Lord Campbell said, 'that the Statutes at large extended to about fifty volumes folio, but all the Statutes which were usually required by lawyers for reference might be found in three octavo volumes, compiled by his learned friend Mr. Welsby. When he (Lord Campbell) was upon the Bench, he always had this work by him, and no Statutes were ever referred to by the Bar which he could not find in it.'"

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.

68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q.C.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.

Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office.
C. B. CLABON, Sec.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS at

PARTRIDGE & COZENS,

WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS in PARCHMENT,

192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 20s.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bond fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual RETAIL charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.

Draft Paper, 6s., 7s., 7s. 9d., and 9s. per ream.
Brief Paper, 13s. 6d., 16s., and 18s. 6d. per ream.
Foolscap Paper, 10s. 6d., 13s. 6d., and 17s. 6d. per ream.
Cream Laid Note, 3s., 4s., and 5s. per ream.
Large Cream Laid Note, 4s., 6s., and 7s. 6d. per ream.
Large Blue Note, 3s., 4s., and 6s. per ream.
Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2s. 9d., 3s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. per 1000.
Foolscap Official Envelopes, 1s. 6d. per 100, or 12s. 6d. per 1000.
Blottings, Browday Cartridges, Tapes, Piercers, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25s.; Good Stand for ditto, with two Drawers, 17s.

Parchment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1s. 6d. each, or 17s. per dozen.

Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1s. 4d. each, or 15s. per dozen.

Records or Memorials, Ruled, 5s. per dozen, or 52s. 6d. per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inkstands; Postage Scales; Writing-cases; Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post-free.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

C C

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	295
Reviews	297
Statutes passed during the late Session of Parliament.

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. MARRETT, Barrister at Law.

Garrett v. Banstead and Epsom Downs Railway Company.—(Injunction—Railway—Contractor)....	591
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

ROLLS COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Collier v. M'Bean.—(Estate tail—Equitable estate for life, and legal remainder in tail—Shelley's case—Conveyance of legal estate by trustees—Breach of trust)	592
Re Massey.—(Taxation—Third party clause—8 & 7 Vict. c. 73, s. 38)	594

VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY'S COURT.

By E. LLOYD, Barrister at Law.

Newland v. Steer.—(Practice—Production of documents—Sufficiency of description—Proceedings in chambers)	596
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

The Attorney-General v. The Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Borough of Kingston-upon-Thames.—(Nuisance—Injunction—Quia timet—Navigable river)	596
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVESY, Barrister at Law.

Kenyon, App., Hart, Resp.—(Game—Trespass in pursuit of—1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 32, s. 30)	602
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By H. RUTHERFURD, Barrister at Law.

Mathey, Administratrix, v. Wiseman and Another.—(Lord Mayor's Court—Foreign attachment—Death of defendant in original suit before plaintiff affirmed—Action against garnishee)	603
Murchie v. Black.—(Adjoining owners—Right to lateral support)	608

COURT FOR DIVORCE AND MATRIMONIAL CAUSES.

By W. ERNST BROWNING, Barrister at Law.

Ellis v. Ellis and Smith.—(Condonation)	610
--------------------------------------------------------	-----

N O T I C E.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

THE LAW OF LETTERS-PATENT.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 18s., cloth boards.

A TREATISE ON THE LAW OF LETTERS-PATENT FOR THE SOLE USE OF INVENTIONS in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, including the Practice connected with the Grant. To which is added, a Summary of the Patent Laws in force in the principal Foreign States; with an Appendix of Statutes, Rules, Practical Forms, &c. By JOHN CORYTON, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

HAYES'S CONCISE CONVEYANCER.

THE CONCISE CONVEYANCER, or SHORT PRECEDENTS OF CONVEYANCES. With Practical Remarks, and Summary of the Stamp Laws relating to Conveyances. By WILLIAM HAYES, Esq., Barrister at Law, one of the Six Conveyancing Counsel of the High Court of Chancery. The Second Edition, with considerable Additions; including a Chapter on Composition Deeds, under the New Bankrupt Act. By W. B. COLTMAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. Royal 12mo, price 18s.

* The present Edition contains Conveyances on Sales, Mortgages, Leases, Settlements, and a variety of Miscellaneous Instruments, but no "Wills," as the work is intended to be a companion volume to the well-known work by Hayes & Jarman of Concise Forms and Wills.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE LAWS AFFECTING RAILWAYS, BROUGHT DOWN TO THE PRESENT TIME.

Now ready, in one thick vol. royal 8vo., price 17. 15s. cloth boards.

SIR W. HODGES'S PRACTICAL TREATISE ON THE LAW OF RAILWAYS, RAILWAY COMPANIES, and RAILWAY INVESTMENTS. With an Appendix of Statutes, Forms, &c. The Fourth Edition. By CHARLES MANLEY SMITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple and Midland Circuit, Barrister at Law.

* The great and increasing interest in everything relating to Railways now manifested by the public, have created such a demand for this valuable work, that the Publisher has been induced to have a new Edition of it prepared. This Edition comprises the important Statutes passed in the Session of 1864, as well as the Standing Orders for the Session of 1865, in addition to the numerous Decisions of the Courts, both of Law and Equity, since the last Edition was published, and such of the Rules of the London Stock Exchange as are applicable to Railways, as amended up to 1864. The task of preparing and conducting through the press this new Edition has been a really arduous one; but no pains have been spared by the learned Editor (whose work on the Law of Master and Servant is well known, not only in Westminster Hall, but also in Ireland, Scotland, and America), to make the work complete; and the Publisher believes that he can with confidence recommend it to all persons interested in Railways, especially Directors, Secretaries, and shareholders, as the most complete work on Railway Law yet offered to the public.

The English and Irish Railway Clearing Acts have also been added to this Edition.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

Recently published, in 1 vol. super royal 8vo., price 40s. cloth.

WHARTON'S LAW LEXICON. Third Edition.

A Dictionary of Jurisprudence, explaining all the Technical Words and Phrases employed in the several Departments of English Law; including also the various Legal Terms used in Commercial Transactions; together with an Explanatory as well as Literal Translation of the Latin Maxims contained in the Writings of the Ancient and Modern Commentators. Greatly improved and enlarged. By J. J. S. WHARTON, Esq., Barrister at Law, assisted by G. H. COOPER and R. SEARLE, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn, W. C.

WHARTON'S ARTICLED CLERKS' MANUAL.

In royal 12mo., price 18s. cloth.

A MANUAL FOR ARTICLED CLERKS; containing Courses of Study, as well in Common Law, Conveyancing, Equity, Bankruptcy, and Criminal Law, as in Constitutional, Roman Civil, Ecclesiastical, Colonial, and International Laws, Medical Jurisprudence, and Bookkeeping. A Digest of all the Examination Questions, with the New Statutes, General Rules, Forms of Articles of Clerkship, Notices, Affidavits, &c., and a List of the proper Stamps and Fees; being a Comprehensive Guide to their successful Examination, Admission, and Practice as Attorneys and Solicitors of the Superior Courts. By J. J. S. WHARTON, Esq., M.A., Oxon., Barrister at Law, Author of "The Law Lexicon," &c. Ninth Edition. Greatly enlarged, and with the Addition of Bookkeeping by Single and Double Entry. By CHARLES HENRY ANDERSON, Solicitor, Editor of "The Legal Examiner."

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's inn.

MORGAN'S CHANCERY ACTS AND ORDERS.

Price 28s. cloth.

THE STATUTES, GENERAL ORDERS, and REGULATIONS relating to the PRACTICE, PLEADING, and JURISDICTION of the COURT OF CHANCERY. With copious Notes, containing a Summary of every reported Decision thereon. By GEORGE OSBORNE MORGAN, M.A., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law, late Stowell Fellow of University College, and Eldon Law Scholar in the University of Oxford. Third Edition, considerably enlarged.

"Mr. Morgan's work merits the highest commendation for its usefulness, simplicity, and completeness. . . . The practitioner will find in the pages of this book ample, and at the same time terse and business-like, information upon almost all the questions that arise in the ordinary proceedings in Chancery."—Law Magazine, November, 1861.

"No labour has been spared to make the work as complete and accurate as possible. With its elaborate index and marginal references, it is impossible to over-estimate its value as a manual of general practice."—Law Magazine, May, 1862.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, JULY 29, 1865.

THE WIFE'S AUTHORITY TO PLEDGE HER HUSBAND'S CREDIT.

If a woman living with her husband orders necessities, suitable to his apparent estate and degree, and she orders them on credit, he having forbidden her to do so, is he liable? One would suppose that this was a question which lawyers would be able, satisfactorily, if not easily, to answer. And yet, as our readers are aware, the answers it has received are certainly far from satisfactory, for they are hesitating, and, indeed, contradictory; and it would seem, therefore, that the question is one which it is not so easy to answer. Yet when the grounds and reasons of the decision are examined, it may appear, that in this, as in most cases of legal doubt, the difficulty has arisen simply from leaving out of consideration elements which enter into the question. If we find that the decisions, one way—against the husband's liberty—unanimously leave out of consideration that which would be the governing principle in such cases, there can be little difficulty in arriving at the conclusion that they are erroneous; and it will certainly be easy to shew that this has been so. All agree, that the question resolves itself into one of agency; but then it has been forgotten that there are several kinds of agency or authority: actual agency, or agency in fact, whether express or implied, general or special, and agency implied in law; and again, as opposed to actual agency, or agency in fact, apparent agency, or authority, arising from being held out as having such authority. And lastly, general agency or authority, implied in a certain position, office, or function; and special or particular agency. The primary question surely must be the ordinary agency or authority of the wife while living with her husband, in household or domestic matters. There must be some distinction between the case of a wife not living with her husband, and of a wife living with him; just as there must be some distinction between her authority in household and domestic matters, and matters of business. Even when they are living separately—slight evidence—mere knowledge that she is incurring debts with a tradesman, and no attempt at interference, may be sufficient to fix the husband for necessities, on the ground of actual authority implied in fact. (Edwards v. Powell, 5 Man. & G. 624). And there may be an authority implied in law, on the ground of absolute necessity, as in case of his lunacy (Read v. Legard, 6 Exch. 636), or her death. (Ambrose v. Kerrison, 10 C. B. 176). And again: even in matters of business—slight evidence, as her being in the habit of attending to such matters—may suffice to shew an actual authority even to make admissions (Meredith v. Foolner, 11 M. & W. 202), or sign bills (Low v. Hall, 8 C. B. 627). Just as in any other case of agency (Lurders v. Bradwell, 5 C. B. 583). Where the wife is living apart from the husband, the question must usually be one of authority in law, arising from necessity, for of course there is not likely to be any actual authority, or any holding out of the wife as agent, and, therefore, it is that in such a case the question of separate allowance, and its sufficiency, may arise (Holden v. Cope, Car. & K. 437; Johnston v. Sumner, 3 H. & Norm. 261); but there the Court laid it down, "that if a man and his wife live together, it matters not what private agreement they may make, the wife has all the usual authority of a wife." And again: "Authority may be express or implied, or arising from conduct; as where one person holds out another in such a way as to induce a belief of authority." This implies plainly what we premised, that a wife living with her husband has an ordinary or usual general authority in domestic matters, quite different from the actual authority she may acquire in matters of business, or the authority which may, when she is living apart, be implied in law, on the ground of necessity. In the latter class of cases, no doubt, there must be a real substantial necessity, and the question of sufficiency of allowance or separate means is, of course, to that question most material. But it would be quite otherwise, when she is living with her husband, in matters purely domestic. It is undoubtedly true, that the liability of the husband, while living with his wife, for goods supplied to her, depends upon the question whether she is his agent, for the purpose of binding him by her contract; and that, in determining that question, the extravagant nature of the orders is a matter fit for the consideration of the jury (Lane v. Iremonger, 13 M. & W. 368); because the extravagant nature of the orders is a matter open, and palpable, and apparent to the tradesman, and compared with her husband's apparent position and resources, it may be material on a question of apparent authority, or holding out of the wife as agent; just as on a question of authority in law implied from necessity, the sufficiency of allowance or separate income may be supposed. But the case just cited implies what is laid down in later cases, that the wife, while living with her husband, has a usual general authority in household or domestic matters, or how could she be held out to the world as agent in such matters? Holding out, it is to be observed, must either be to all the world, or the neighbourhood where a person lives, which is the world to him and them, or to the particular tradesman. Thus, a man may hold out a woman not his wife as his wife; and if so, then he may be liable while living with her as man and wife. (Ryan v. Sams, 12 Q. B. 460). And the liability of a man who has cohabited with a female not his wife, and has obtained goods to be supplied at her residence on his credit, continues until the parties supplying the goods have been informed of the termination of such coverture. (Ubi sup.) Hence, it is manifest that the authority of a woman living with a man as his wife is one arising from her being placed in a position which always of itself implies a usual and general authority in household matters; and that this authority continues during cohabitation until it is revoked, not merely to the wife herself, but to all the world, or the particular tradesman. In Renan v. Teakle (8 Exch. 680) it was said by Pollock, C. B., that the wife is in no other situation in this respect than any other member of the household. If a servant goes to a shop, and orders goods on the credit of his master, the shopman is bound to ascertain the servant's authority; and so a shopkeeper is bound to inquire into the authority of the wife. This dictum was so obviously wrong, that in one report (1 Com. Law Rep. 62), Martin, B., immediately added, by way of correction—"If a wife orders things reasonably necessary for her degree, the husband is, prima facie, liable; which, of course, implies that her position as wife implies authority." And surely every one's knowledge of the world may draw, that in the common opinion of all men, lawyers and laymen, a respectable married woman living with her husband has a domestic "agency and authority simply in that character, and that if she orders goods of a tradesman, no tradesman would ever dream of going to the husband to ask, even in the first instance, whether she had authority." In point of fact, the question, however, never arises until after the wife has for some period lived with her husband managing his household, and giving orders for necessities on credit. So that even if a wife were "in the same position as every other servant, she has always acquired a usual general authority." It can scarcely be said in common law that she is like every other servant, for she is, at all events, the manager of her husband's household, and must, at least, be in the position of a foreman or manager; and no one surely could say that there was no difference between her authority and that of a scullerymaid. But even if there were none, the servant, once entrusted with an apparent authority to order goods on credit, that authority must be revoked, not to the servant merely, but to the world, or to the tradesman. This it is which has been entirely overlooked in all the cases adverse to the wife's authority; yet it has been again and again established, that a servant, even a footman, once allowed to order goods on credit, the authority must be revoked openly to all persons to whose knowledge it ever had existed, and this even after his leaving the master's service, if he is allowed to appear still to be in that service, as if he is permitted to wear the same livery. (Aste v. Montague, 1 Fost. & F. 264). The only question in such cases is, whether the servant has ever been put in a position of apparent authority, and to what extent; for to the same extent, and to all persons acquainted with its existence, it must be openly revoked. (Stavely v. Uzzielli, 2 Fost. & F. 30). Even, therefore, if a wife is only in the position of a servant, once allowed to order goods on credit in the neighbourhood, then, at all events, while she continues to live there with her husband, her authority continues until it is revoked to the knowledge of the tradesmen in that neighbourhood; at all events, until notice of the revocation is given to all the tradesmen who had dealt with and trusted her. The degree of publicity to be given to such a notice of revocation of authority would, of course, be in proportion to the period of time during which the apparent authority had existed, the extent to which it had been exercised, the length of residence in the neighbourhood, and other circumstances. And in each case it would be a question for the jury whether the notice of revocation was sufficient. But that during cohabitation, and at all events after having been allowed to manage her husband's household in the ordinary way, there is a general authority in the wife to order goods on credit, as is usual and reasonable; and that this authority is very apparent, and daily allowed by the husband to be exercised, and manifest to "all the world," in the sense of the neighbourhood, which is each man's little world; and that, therefore, it continues until it is withdrawn, to the knowledge of that world, appears too clear to be even arguable.

The case of a wife is open; daily management of her husband's house can scarcely be deemed less than that of the master of a ship who has authority to order goods necessary (Arthur v. Barton, 6 M. & W. 138); or the case of a butler or cook, who has once had authority to order goods on credit, and who certainly would bind his master for similar goods, though otherwise in the case of a club (Todd v. Emley, 8 M. & W. 505); or the case of a livery servant sent out of town to order oats on credit (Aste v. Montague, 1 Fost. & F. 264); and even if she is only in that position, then her authority continues until there has been an open revocation. It is not, perhaps, worth while to dispute whether she is not in a better and higher position, by virtue of her conjugal character as the head of her husband's household—even antecedent to her being allowed to, and beginning to, order goods on credit. For, practically, the question never has arisen, and is not likely never to arise, as to her authority in that way. It always arises after a cohabitation of some duration, and then a revocation of her authority; but, on the other hand, a revocation of it, not made openly and publicly, but merely by prohibition to herself. Thus, in the last leading case on the subject (Jolly v. Rees, 15 C. B., N. S., 628), the husband and wife had lived together for some years, and then we are told, being dissatisfied with her expenditure, he told her not to pledge his credit, and that he would supply her with sufficient money to buy necessities; which he did not do. This, however, was, in any view of the case, quite beside the question, for, as we have seen, the question of sufficiency of allowance only does, in cases of separation, when the husband is sought to be made liable, on the ground either of actual authority, or on the ground of an authority implied in law from necessity. The question was, whether the husband having for years allowed the wife to order goods from the tradesmen in the neighbourhood on credit, and she continuing to live with him in the same neighbourhood, the authority ought not to have been revoked to her, and not merely to her. This question the Court did not at all consider; nor were the authorities upon it called to their attention. They did not look at the question as one of continuing apparent authority, derived from the original holding out of the rule as agent, but only looked at it as a question of natural assent at the time of the orders in dispute, to her orders. They did not consider that, upon the authority of the numerous cases here adverted to (none of which are cited), the continuance of holding out does not depend upon a continuance of assent; it depends upon the manner of dissent; and as the holding out, as the very term implies, has been open, and to the world, so must the dissent. When, therefore, the majority of the Court gave effect to a secret dissent—a revocation of authority—as putting an end to an implied and apparent authority, arising out of a public holding out, they pronounced a decision which could scarcely have been satisfactory, even if Mr. Justice Byles had not dissented. That learned judge dissented, on the grounds here presented:—"The wife's power to bind her husband may not rest merely on actual authority, but on the apparent authority with which the husband invests her by cohabitation. He thereby represents her to the tradesmen as being, within certain limits, his domestic manager, and is, therefore, responsible for her contracts, within the margin of that apparent authority. No private reservation of authority, or private agreement between husband and wife, not communicated to a tradesman honestly dealing with the wife, by supplying necessaries for the family in the ordinary course of domestic affairs, can affect the tradesman's right to rely on the apparent authority of the wife." And the learned judge cited the proposition laid down by the Court of Exchequer, in the case of Johnson v. Seine—"If a man and his wife live together, it matters not what private agreement they may make; the wife has all the usual authority of a wife." Thus, then, Mr. Justice Byles and the Court of Exchequer have taken the view we have here supported; and the Court of Queen's Bench are not unlikely to take the same view. For from the report in the Times of the recent case of Morgan v. Chetwynd, at the Guildhall Sittings, the Lord Chief Justice read those observations of Mr. Justice Byles, and with great emphasis, and after some consideration, declared his adhesion to them, and his entire dissent from the decision of the Court of Common Pleas; or rather, of three judges of that Court. And the Lord Chief Justice said that he did not see how the business of life could be carried on, as between mothers of families on one side, and tradesmen on the other, if the wife's authority to order goods on credit were to be put a stop to by some secret and private arrangement between her and her husband, unknown to the tradesmen who have dealt with and trusted her, with his knowledge and assent. And he added, that the view taken by Mr. Justice Byles seemed to him, on the other hand, to be equally consistent with law and with common sense. In this view we venture to concur; and it is satisfactory to observe, that the contrary view was only taken in a case in which the real point was not touched, and the authorities upon it were not considered.

Reviews.

The Practice of the High Court of Chancery, with some Observations on the Pleadings in that Court. By the late EDMUND ROBERT DANIELL, Barrister-at-Law. Fourth Edition, with considerable Alterations and Additions, incorporating the Statutes, Orders, and Cases to the present Time, and Braithwaite's Record and Writ Practice; together with References to a Companion Volume of Forms and Precedents. By LEONARD FIELD and EDWARD CLENNELL DUNN, Barristers-at-Law, with the Assistance of JOHN BIDDLE, of the Master of the Rolls' Chambers. In 2 vols. Vol. 1, 8vo., pp. 948. [Stevens, Sons, & Haynes.]

THE editors of the fourth edition of Daniell's Chancery Practice are imitating their author, by publishing the work piecemeal. The first volume of the original work appeared in 1837, the second in 1840, and the third was published in parts, of which the last did not appear until some months after the promulgation of the Orders of May, 1845. There is no reason to fear that the editors will emulate the tardiness of the late Mr. Daniell's progress, which was in some measure justified by the unsettled state of Chancery practice. In publishing the first volume immediately upon its completion, we think they have done wisely, both because the volume is useful as far as it extends, and because its possessors can note up in it the subsequent orders and decisions as they appear—a much easier task, and one more likely to be performed, than the noting up of five or six months' arrears, which would be necessary if the publication of the first volume were delayed until the completion of the work.

Mr. Daniell's work was a very able production, the fruit of great learning, experience, and industry, and we are glad to perceive that, in the fourth edition, it has received far better treatment than that which it met with at the hands of Mr. Headlam in the second and third editions. The editors have wisely availed themselves of the official experience of Mr. Braithwaite, of the Record and Writ Clerks' office, and Mr. Biddle, of the Master of the Rolls' chambers, to complete those details of practice which do not fall under the notice of counsel, and seldom or never form the subject of reported decisions. The work is to be completed in two volumes.

A companion volume, containing precedents of pleadings and forms of all the proceedings in use in the court with reference to the practice, is stated to be in active preparation.

From the following statement of the contents of the first volume, it will be seen that the arrangement of the original work has been preserved, but, on examination of the very numerous references in the notes to cases decided within the last fifteen or twenty years, will shew that a very large proportion of the matter of the new edition is due to the present editors:—

Cap. 1. The commencement of a suit. 2. Persons by whom a suit may be instituted. 3. Suits by persons who are under disability. 4. Persons against whom a suit may be instituted. 5. Parties to a suit. 6. The bill. 7. Process by service of a copy of the bill on formal defendants, and proceedings by service of notice of the decree. 8. Process to compel, and proceedings in default of appearance. 9. Interrogatories for the execution of the defendants in answer to the bill. 10. Process to compel, and proceedings in default of answer. 11. Taking bills pro confesso. 12. The defence to a suit. 13. Appearance. 14. Demurrers. 15. Pleas. 16. Disclaimers. 17. Answers. 18. The joinder of several defences. 19. Dismissing bill otherwise than at the hearing, and staying proceedings. 20. Motion for a decree. 21. Replication. 22. Evidence.

The editors have performed their task with great care and discretion; and we trust that we shall soon have to congratulate them and the profession on the completion of their labours, and the restoration of Daniell's excellent treatise to the position which, from the incapacity or carelessness of its former editor, and the lapse of time, it had ceased to occupy.

The Privilege of Religious Confessions in English Courts of Justice considered in a Letter to a Friend. By EDWARD BADELEY, Esq., M.A., Barrister-at-Law. 8vo., p. 79. [Butterworths.]

* FROM the rule of the canon law, as set forth in the "Decretum," under the title "De Pœnitentiâ:"—

"Deponatur sacerdos qui peccata pœnitentis publicare præsumit.

"Sacerdos ante omnia caveat, ne de his qui ei confitentur peccata alicui recitet, non propinquis, non extraneis, neque, quod absit, pro aliquo scandalo. Nam si hoc fecerit, deponatur, et omnibus diebus vite sue ignominiosus peregrinando pergat," and adopted in England, Mr. Badeley infers that the privilege of penitential confession from disclosure was part of the common law, and that, contrary to the opinion of Lord Coke, it extended to high treason. He then inquires whether any change was made in the reign of King Henry VIII, and concludes, that as the stat. 25 Hen. 8, c. 19, which authorised the king to appoint thirty-two persons to revise the canons, constitutions, and ordinances of the Church, and saved all canons, &c. already in force, and not contrariant or repugnant to the laws and customs of the realm, nor to the damage or hurt of the prerogative, until they should be otherwise ordered by the said thirty-two persons, which was never done, these canons remained in force. Then, after shewing that auricular and secret confession was sanctioned by King Edward's Books of Common Prayer, he proceeds to argue, at greater length than we can here afford space to set forth, that such confession is still recognised as lawful by the English Church, and must involve the privilege of exemption from disclosure.

But the more important question is, as to the right of Catholics at the present day to have their confessions protected from disclosure. Having shewn that they had that right down to the period of the Reformation, our author insists that they lost it, not because it was separately abrogated by any special enactment, but because the religion, of which it formed part, was proscribed, and concludes, that as the religion is now restored, not, indeed, as the religion of the State, but as one sanctioned and protected by law, the Catholic is reinstated in his right to the perfect enjoyment of all the ordinances of his creed, and of those privileges which are necessary to the performance of his religious duties. Otherwise the Sacrament of Penance would be practically denied to the Catholic who most requires it, and the priest would be exposed to the alternative of either violating his most solemn obligations, and destroying his position and his character, or exposing himself to punishment for refusing to violate his conscience.

"How can he be said to be restored to the free exercise of his religion, or the due performance of those very duties which the law has actually authorised him to perform? Until I am shewn some act of Parliament, which has expressly destroyed the secrecy of religious confession, I must take the liberty of doubting whether any Catholic can be deprived of it, as he actually had it by law till his religion itself was exterminated, and since the free enjoyment of his religion has been restored to him, without any legislative restriction.

"With respect to Protestant Dissenters, the question may possibly not be quite so easy of solution, as that respecting the members of the Established Church, or the Roman Catholics. But if there are any of them, as I believe there are some, who recognise the duty, and conform to the practice, of private religious confession, they may fairly ask, why they should not have it, with all the privileges which always belonged to it, and which are essential to its due observance? If their forms of religion are legalised, they are entitled to protection in the exercise of them all. The right of confession they probably retain, as a remnant of the religious system from which they separated at or after the Reformation, and thus it may be deemed to have passed to them and unaffected, and therefore privileged; while the Anglican Church itself shews, that the Reformation has not abrogated it, and that it is not inconsistent with the religion of Protestants."

There is surely here a confusion between toleration and protection or guarantee. The act "for the Relief of his Majesty's Roman Catholic Subjects" merely removed certain restraints and disabilities, allowing Roman Catholics to sit in Parliament, or hold certain offices, on taking a certain oath, but it imposed a penalty on Roman Catholic ecclesiastics exercising the rites of their religion, or wearing the habits of their order, save within their usual places of worship or in private houses, and made provisions against the establishment of religious orders. The stat. 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 115, provided that Roman Catholics should be subject to the same laws in respect of their schools, places of worship, education, and charitable purposes as Protestant Dissenters; and the stats. 7 & 8 Vict. c. 102, and the 9 & 10 Vict. c. 59, relieved them from various penal enactments and disabilities, and protected religious assemblies from disturbance. There is nothing in all this to authorise a Catholic, or any other Dissenter, on the strength of any religious belief or practice, to refuse to be bound by the laws of his country. A Quaker was not punishable for his religious belief, but he was punishable for refusing to be sworn as a witness, until the stat. 7 & 8 Will. 3, c. 34, excused him in civil cases; and it was not until the 9 Geo. 4, c. 32, that he was excused from giving testimony on oath in criminal cases. To say that a Catholic shall not be liable to any special pains or disabilities on the ground of his belief and ritual, is not to say that his belief or ritual shall override and exempt him from that duty of testifying to matters within his knowledge, which the law imposes on every one.

Mr. Badeley then criticises the statements of English writers on the law of evidence, and the cases on which they rely. He shews very clearly the inconclusiveness of most of the authorities commonly cited against the privilege, and commends Mr. Best for the candour and caution with which he treats the question. But he does not himself shew so much candour and caution in dealing with the case of Buller v. Brown, before the Master of the Rolls in Ireland in 1803, reported in Macnally's Rules of Evidence, 253, "in which, the question being one respecting the validity of Lord Dunboyne's will, the Catholic priest, who had attended him in his last illness, was called to say, whether he had died a Catholic. The priest refused to give evidence of what he declared to be 'a confidential communication, made to him in the exercise of his clerical functions.' It was admitted that there had been no previous decision upon the subject, and the refusal of the priest was defended on the analogy of other cases of privilege, and on the inconsistency which would exist in the law, if it sanctioned, or even tolerated, the Roman Catholic religion, and at the same time compelled its ministers to violate the tenets of that religion, by betraying the confidence reposed in them. The Master of the Rolls, however, decided against the privilege of the priest, 'thinking the analogy of the cases not so strong, and the principle on which the privilege was claimed not so clear, as to justify him in deciding otherwise.'

* It will easily be seen that this notice is not from the same pen which wrote the article on Constance Kent's case (ante, p. 287).

"This is the whole substance of this case, so far as it can be collected from the very imperfect report of it which alone exists; and I can scarcely suppose, that even in Ireland it is deemed of much value. It was admitted to be a case 'of the first impression,' and seems to have been very imperfectly and inadequately argued; it was decided only by a single judge, of no great judicial eminence; and the judgment, as reported, is about as meagre and unsatisfactory as any judgment can well be:—It rests upon no principle; it cites no authority; it contains no careful balancing of arguments; it ignores altogether the rights which a priest might possess by the common law; it shews no attempt to elicit truth, either by legal reasoning, or by historical research: 'sit pro ratione voluntas' seems to be its utmost effect. Taking it, therefore, in the full sense, in which it seems to have been understood by the writers on evidence, I think it of no importance, as it certainly is not binding in any court of law or equity in England, and it has no such intrinsic merit, as to give it any independent authority.

"But it is most material to observe, that the case does not really meet the point for which it has been so often cited; for the reason alleged by the priest, for his refusal to give the required evidence, is in no respect conclusive or sufficient. He is merely reported to have said, that what he was asked, 'was a confidential communication made to him in the exercise of his clerical functions.' It does not appear, that it was a matter revealed to him in confession;—in fact it is most probable that it was not;—or that, although possibly it had been alluded to in confession, it was one which he was strictly bound by the rules of the Church to conceal, for he might have known it quite independently of any confession, or simply as a confidential friend; in either of which cases the rule does not apply.

"The case, therefore, cannot be cited as any authority to prove, that religious confessions are not privileged, for it falls completely short of this. With these observations I feel that I may safely discard it."

If every decision is to be discarded as of no importance which was decided by a single judge of no great judicial eminence, or which has not been reported in great detail, or contains no careful balancing of arguments, &c., the digesting of our case law, and its reduction to a compendious bulk, will be a comparatively easy task. But we are surprised that Mr. Badeley should treat a statement alleged to have been made by a dying man confidentially to a Catholic priest in the exercise of his clerical functions, as a simple communication to a confidential friend.

"Under these circumstances," says Mr. Badeley, "I know not how any person can venture to affirm that confessions are not privileged in courts of justice. Even if statutes and canons had left this privilege doubtful, which I fearlessly maintain that they have not, it exists, as we have seen, by the common law; and therefore the legal maxim would apply to it, 'Quæ communi legi derogant, stricte interpretari debent.' (Jenk. Cent. 29; 20 Vin. Ab. 14). In a word, if confession is authorised or permitted as a religious rite, its secrecy is authorised and permitted also; for without it the rite itself is neutralised, and the rules which sanction it are a dead letter; but, as was well said by Baron Alderson, in another case (Scott's case, 1 Dears. & Bell's C. C. 67), 'if you make a thing lawful to be done, it is lawful in all its consequences.'"

In this conclusion we cannot concur; but we must say that Mr. Badeley has treated the subject with learning and ability; and, if he has not arrived at a sound conclusion, has at least aided the fair discussion of the question.

PETTY SESSIONS PRACTICE.

In thick 12mo., price 18s. cloth, lettered,

STONE'S PRACTICE OF PETTY SESSIONS.

With the Statutes, a List of Summary Convictions, and an Appendix of Forms. Seventh Edition. By THOMAS BELL and LEWIS W. CAVE, Esq., Barristers at Law. With a Supplement, bringing the Statutes and Cases up to 1883. 12mo., price 18s. cloth.

"It is remarkable for a rare combination of conciseness and clearness in the composition, which have recommended it to magistrates who have not been educated as lawyers, and to whom, therefore, the books written for the use of lawyers are often obscure by reason of their technicalities. The present editors have preserved this characteristic of Mr. Stone's volume in their own abundant additions to it."—Law Times.

*. The Supplement may be had by itself, price 3s. boards.
Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Publishers.

JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES LAW.

In 12mo., price 7s. 6d. cloth,

A SUPPLEMENT TO THE LAW AND PRACTICE

OF JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES: containing the Companies Act, 1862; the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1862; and the Rules of the Court of Chancery for regulating the Mode of Proceeding under the Companies Act, 1862. With an Introduction, Practical Notes, and Forms. By HENRY THRING, M.A., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

London: Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Book-sellers and Publishers.

THRING'S LAW OF JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES.

THE LAW AND PRACTICE OF JOINT-STOCK

COMPANIES: including the Statutes of 1860 and 1862, with Notes, and the Forms required in making, administering, and winding up a Company. By HENRY THRING, Esq., Barrister at Law, Parliamentary Counsel to the Home Office. In 2 vols. 12mo. Price 18s. cloth.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

In 2 thick vols., price 21s. 12s. 6d. cloth,

CHITTYS ARCHBOLD'S PRACTICE OF THE COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH IN PERSONAL ACTIONS AND EJECTMENT. By THOMAS CHITTY, Esq. Including the Practice of the Courts of Common Pleas and Exchequer. The Eleventh Edition. By SAMUEL PRENTICE, Esq., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 1 thick vol., price 11s. 11s. 6d. cloth,

CHITTYS FORMS OF PRACTICAL PROCEED-

INGS IN THE COURTS OF QUEEN'S BENCH, COMMON PLEAS, AND EXCHEQUER OF PLEAS. With Notes and Observations thereon. The Ninth Edition, enlarged.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

BY AUTHORITY.

Price 9s. cloth boards,

PROCEDURE IN THE STANNARIES OF CORN-

WALL AND DEVON. Containing the New Rules and Orders for Regulating the Practice, both at Equity and Common Law, of the Court of the Vice-Warden of the Stannaries; and the recent Statutes for establishing and extending its Jurisdiction. Preceded by Observations on the Power of the Court in relation to Mining Associations and Partnerships in the Counties of Cornwall and Devon.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street; and Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

FOURTH EDITION OF PALEY ON SUMMARY CON-

VICTIONS.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 21s. cloth boards,

PALEY ON THE LAW AND PRACTICE OF SUM-

MARY CONVICTIONS by JUSTICES OF THE PEACE. Including Proceedings preliminary and subsequent to Convictions, and under the 18 & 19 Vict. c. 126, relating to Larceny, &c. With Practical Forms and Memoranda of Convictions. The Fourth Edition. By H. T. J. MACNAMARA, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard; W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard.

In 12mo., price 12s. 6d. cloth,

THE BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861: incorporating so much as remains in force of the Bankrupt-law Consolidation Act, 1849, and of the Bankruptcy Act, 1854. With an Appendix, containing the 7 & 8 Vict. c. 70; the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 33; the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 147; the General Orders under the Bankruptcy Act, 1861; and the General Rules and Orders under the Bankrupt-law Consolidation Act, 1849, With Notes. By WILLIAM HAZLITT, of the Middle Temple, Esq., a Registrar of the Court of Bankruptcy, and HENRY PHILIP ROCHE, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

In 12mo., price 4s. cloth,

THE LAWYER AND HIS PROFESSION. A

Series of Letters to a Solicitor commencing Business. By I. ORTON SMITH.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

DODD AND BROOKE'S PRACTICE OF THE COURT OF PROBATE.

This day is published, in 8vo., price 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* cloth,
THE LAW AND PRACTICE OF THE COURT OF PROBATE, Contentious and Common Form. With the Rules, Statutes, and Forms. By PHILIP WM. DODD, Solicitor, and GEORGE HENRY BROOKE, Doctors' Commons.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

PRIDEAUX'S PRECEDENTS IN CONVEYANCING.

Price 2*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*, in 2 vols. royal 8vo., cloth,

PRIDEAUX'S PRECEDENTS IN CONVEYANCING: with Dissertations on its Law and Practice. Fourth Edition. By FREDERICK PRIDEAUX and JOHN WHITCOMBE, both of Lincoln's-inn, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.
Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

STARKIE'S LAW OF EVIDENCE.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW OF EVIDENCE. By THOMAS STARKIE, Esq. Fourth Edition, with very considerable alterations and additions; incorporating the Statutes and reported Cases to the time of publication. By G. M. DOWDESWELL and J. G. MALCOLM, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. In 1 vol. royal 8vo., 1853, price 1*l.* 10*s.* cloth.

In the parliamentary debate on disqualified witnesses (House of Commons, Feb. 12, 1861), referring to the case of Maden v. Catnach, Sir G. C. Lewis said, "He would read from Starkie on Evidence, which was known to be a standard work upon the subject, a statement of the law as applicable to the case (vide Examination as to Religious Belief, pp. 115, 116). That is a clear statement of the rule of law upon the subject."

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

BURTON ON REAL PROPERTY.—Eighth Edition.

Price 1*l.* 4*s.* cloth,

A N ELEMENTARY COMPENDIUM of the LAW of REAL PROPERTY. By W. H. BURTON, Esq. With Notes, shewing the Alterations in the Law to the present time. To which is now prefixed an Introductory Chapter, giving a concise Historical Outline of such Parts of the Law as have been the subject of Statutory Alteration. By EDWARD PRIESTLEY COOPER, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 8vo., price 15*s.* cloth,
A HAND-BOOK of PRECEDENTS in CONVEYANCING. By FRANCIS HOUSMAN, Barrister at Law.
"We know of no work of the kind which contains within the same limited number of pages, and consequently at the same moderate price, so extensive a collection of forms readily applicable to the various exigencies of the draftsman."—Law Magazine, August, 1861.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

TISLEY'S STAMP ACTS.

In 8vo., price 12*s.* 6*d.* cloth,

A DIGEST of the STAMP ACTS, and the JUDICIAL DECISIONS on the STAMP LAWS, not contained in the Author's Treatise; including the Probate, Legacy, and Succession Duties; with Tables of all the Stamp Duties. By HUGH TISLEY, Assistant Solicitor of Inland Revenue. Ninth Edition, revised, by his Son, EDWARD HUGH TISLEY, of the Inland Revenue Office.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

Recently published, vol. 1, price 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* cloth,
THE PRACTICE of the HIGH COURT of CHANCERY, with some Observations on the Pleadings in that Court. By the late EDMUND ROBERT DANIELL, Barrister at Law. Fourth Edition, with considerable Alterations and Additions, incorporating the Statutes, Orders, and Cases to the present time, and Braithwaite's Record and Writ Practice; together with References to a Companion Volume of Forms and Precedents. By LEONARD FIELD and EDWARD CLENNELL DUNN, Barristers at Law, with the assistance of JOHN BIDDLE, of the Master of the Rolls' Chambers. In 2 vols.

* * Vol. 2, and the Companion Volume of Forms, will be published in Michaelmas Term.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

LEVI'S COMMERCIAL LAW.

In 2 vols. royal 8vo., price 35*s.* cloth, lettered,

INTERNATIONAL COMMERCIAL LAW. Being the Principles of Mercantile Law of the following and other Countries—viz. England, Scotland, Ireland, British India, British Colonies,

Austria,	France,	Netherlands,	Spain,
Belgium,	Germany,	Norway,	Sweden,
Brazil,	Greece,	Portugal,	Switzerland,
Buenos Ayres,	Hans Towns,	Prussia,	United States,
Denmark,	Italy,	Russia,	Wurtemberg.

By LEONE LEVI, Esq., F.S.A., F.S.S., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law, Professor of the Principles and Practice of Commerce in King's College, London, &c. In 3 vols. royal 8vo. 1863.
Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

NEW EDITIONS OF LORD ST. LEONARDS' WORKS.

Price 1*l.* 18*s.* cloth, the Fourteenth Edition, much enlarged.
A CONCISE and PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW of VENDORS and PURCHASERS of ESTATES. By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

Also, uniform with the above, in 1 thick vol. royal 8vo., the Eighth Edition, price 1*l.* 15*s.* cloth,

A PRACTICAL TREATISE of POWERS.

By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 1*l.* 5*s.* cloth.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE on the NEW STATUTES relating to PROPERTY. The Second Edition. By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY.

PRINCIPLES of the LAW of REAL PROPERTY.

Intended as a first Book for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law. The Sixth Edition, enlarged. 8vo., price 1*l.* cloth.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

* * The Publisher respectfully informs the Profession that the above book has been reprinted, and that copies can now be had at all booksellers in town and country.

WILLIAMS (JOSHUA) ON PERSONAL PROPERTY.

The Fifth Edition, price 18*s.* cloth boards.

PRINCIPLES of the LAW of PERSONAL PROPERTY, intended for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

JOSHUA WILLIAMS ON REAL ASSETS.

Price 8*s.* cloth boards.

A N ESSAY on REAL ASSETS; or the Payment of the Debts of a deceased Person out of his Real Estate, and the Means by which that Payment ought to be accomplished. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

BYTHEWOOD AND JARMAN'S CONVEYANCING.—

Vol. 8, Part 1.

Price 8*s.* boards.

A SELECTION of PRECEDENTS from MODERN MANUSCRIPT COLLECTIONS, and DRAFTS of ACTUAL PRACTICE; forming a System of Conveyancing. With Dissertations and Practical Notes. By THOMAS JARMAN, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law. The Third Edition. Vol. 1. By WHITLEY STOKES, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

PART 1.—POWERS of ATTORNEY.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NEW EDITION OF BEST ON EVIDENCE

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 28*s.* cloth boards.

A TREATISE on the PRINCIPLES of the LAW of EVIDENCE; with Elementary Rules for conducting the Examination and Cross-examination of Witnesses. The Third Edition. By W. M. BEST, A.M., LL.B., of Gray's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE DECISIONS of the RIGHT HON. LORD EVERSLY.

The Second Edition, price 12*s.*

THE DECISIONS of the Right Honourable Lord EVERSLY, late Speaker of the House of Commons, on Points of Order, Rules of Debate, and the General Practice of the House. The Second Edition, revised, corrected, and continued to the present time. By the Hon. ROBERT BOURKE, of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

In 1 thick vol. 8vo., price 1*l.* 8*s.* cloth boards.
A PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAWS relating to the CHURCH and the CLERGY. By H. W. CRIPPS, M.A., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law, Recorder of Leichfield. The Third Edition, revised and enlarged, containing the Statutes and Cases to the present time.

* * Since the publication of the first edition, the progress of legislation on the subjects treated of has rendered necessary considerable alterations and additions in this and in the preceding edition, and while much new matter has been introduced, all that has become obsolete has been omitted. In many other matters the Law has been materially altered, and doubtful points have been settled by recently-decided cases, all which are now to be found in the present edition.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the OFFICE, No. 29, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, July 29, 1865.

The Jurist

No. 552, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.

No. 1491, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

AUGUST 5, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

INCORPORATED LAW SOCIETY.—

LAW CLASSES.—For the purpose of facilitating the acquisition of Legal Knowledge amongst the Articled and other Clerks of Solicitors, and guiding them in their studies, LAW CLASSES, in addition to the Lectures annually delivered, will be instituted by and under the control of the Incorporated Law Society, and will commence on the 1st November next.

The Classes will be held during the Months of November, December, January, February, and March, subject to a short interval during the Christmas Vacation, on the following subjects:—

THE LAW OF REAL PROPERTY.—Reader, ALFRED BAILEY, Esq., Barrister at Law.

COMMON LAW.—Reader, WILLIAM MARKEY, Esq., Barrister at Law. EQUITY.—Reader, MONTAGUE COOKSON, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Each Reader will hold two Classes during the above period—one on the elementary, and the other on the more advanced, portion of his particular subject.

The Reader in Real Property will, with the Elementary Class, go through a Course of Real Property Law, taking the work of Mr. Joshua Williams as a text-book; and, with the Advanced Class, will examine, comment on, and illustrate the principal Forms in Messrs. Davidson & Stapylton's Concise Precedents in Conveyancing, 6th ed., 1865.

The Reader in Equity will take Mr. Josiah Smith's Manual as a text-book of Principles with both his Classes, and illustrate it by reference to White & Tudor's Leading Cases in Equity, and the later reported Decisions.

For the Procedure of the Court, he will use, with his Elementary Class, Hunter's Suit in Equity. With his Advanced Class, he will refer to the larger treatises on the subject and the Chancery Acts and Orders collected in the third edition of the work of Mr. Osborne Morgan.

The Reader on Common Law will discuss the following subjects:—With the Elementary Class, (1) The Law of Civil Procedure, (2) The Law of Contracts. With the Advanced Class, Mercantile Law, including the Law of Bankruptcy.

The discussions will be founded on Smith's Action at Law, Smith's Law of Contracts, and Smith's Mercantile Law respectively.

The Readers will call attention, as opportunity may serve, to the bearings of their several subjects upon Constitutional Law and Legal History.

The fee payable by each Articled or other Clerk of any member of the Society, for the privilege of attending all or any number of Classes, will be 3*l.* per annum, and by every other person attending such Classes, 4*l.* per annum; but no person will be at liberty to attend an Elementary and Advanced Class on the same subject simultaneously.

Three Classes, one upon each of the subjects above mentioned, will be held, as nearly as possible, in every eight days. No Classes will be held on Saturdays. The Elementary Class will commence at 4.40 and close at 5.30 p.m., and the Advanced Class will commence at 5.30 and close at 6.30 p.m.

Application for tickets may be made at the Office of the Incorporated Law Society, Chancery-lane, on and after the 20th October next.

Rooms will be appropriated for the Classes at the Hall of the Incorporated Law Society.

In the press.

THE LAW OF FIRE INSURANCE. By C. J.

BUNYON, M.A., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law, Author of "The Law of Life Assurance," &c.

London: Charles & Edwin Layton, Fleet-street, Depot for Books on Assurance, Fire, Life, and Marine.

WINDING UP OF COMPANIES.

This day is published, price 1*5s.*

TAYLOR'S MANUAL on the FORMATION to the WINDING UP OF COMPANIES, under the Joint-Stock Act of 1862. With Forms, Table of Costs, and all the recent Cases.

London: Wm. Amer, Law Bookseller, Lincoln's-inn-gate, Carey-street, W.C.

COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION; or the New Act, 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99, conferring further Equitable Jurisdiction on the County Courts. With Notes. By JAMES

J. ASTON, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, in demy 12mo., 1016 pp., price 1*l.* 12*s.* cloth, ROGERS on ELECTIONS, ELECTION COMMISSIONERS, and REGISTRATION. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Tenth Edition. With the new Registration Statute, and all the Election and Registration Cases to the present time. By F. E. P. WOLFESEAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

No. 552, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

COUNCIL OF LAW REPORTING.

AT a MEETING of the COUNCIL, held on the 1st August inst., Sir FITZROY KELLY in the Chair, it was unanimously resolved, that the Series of Reports in the Superior Courts of Law and Equity and the Appellate Courts, proposed to be established under the superintendence of the Council, be commenced as from the first day of Michaelmas Term next, and that the necessary arrangements be forthwith made for that purpose.

The approval of the scheme by the Lord Chancellor and others of her Majesty's Judges was communicated to the Council.

A Sub-Committee was authorised to receive Proposals for the Appointment of Editors and Reporters, subject to the approval of the Council at a future meeting.

Persons intending to subscribe to the Reports are requested to communicate with the Secretary, JAMES T. HORWOOD, Esq., No. 3, New-square, Lincoln's-inn.

By Order.

FITZROY KELLY, Chairman.

Lincoln's-inn, Aug. 3, 1865.

THE LAW MAGAZINE AND LAW REVIEW

for AUGUST, being No. 38 of the United New Series, is this day published, price 5*s.*, and contains—1. The Venue for Trials, Civil and Criminal.—2. The Law of the Drama.—3. Law considered as a Formal System.—4. A Digest of Moohummudan Law.—5. Lord Westbury and the Recent Scandals.—6. Clerical Disabilities.—7. The Royal Commission on the Laws of Marriage.—8. Contingent Remainders—Wright Rhodes's Grandchildren.—9. Law and Lawyers in British Burmah.—10. Marriage with a Deceased Wife's Sister.—Notices of New Books.—Events of the Quarter.—Necrology.

London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

This day is published, price 7*s.* cloth boards,

A TREATISE ON ARRANGEMENTS with CREDITORS under the BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861. With Precedents. To which are added, the Sections of the Bankruptcy Acts, 1849 and 1861, and the Rules and Orders relating thereto. With a full Index. By WILLIAM DOWNES GRIFFITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS at PARTRIDGE & COZENS,

WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS in PARCHEMENT.

192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 20*s.*

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bona fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual RETAIL charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.

Draft Paper, 6*s.*, 7*s.*, 7*s.* 9*d.*, and 9*s.* per ream.

Brief Paper, 13*s.* 6*d.*, 16*s.*, and 18*s.* 6*d.* per ream.

Foolscap Paper, 10*s.* 6*d.*, 13*s.* 6*d.*, and 17*s.* 6*d.* per ream.

Cream Laid Note, 3*s.*, 4*s.*, and 5*s.* per ream.

Large Cream Laid Note, 4*s.*, 6*s.*, and 7*s.* 6*d.* per ream.

Large Blue Note, 3*s.*, 4*s.*, and 6*s.* per ream.

Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2*s.* 9*d.*, 3*s.* 6*d.*, and 4*s.* 6*d.* per 1000.

Foolscap Official Envelopes, 1*s.* 6*d.* per 100, or 13*s.* 6*d.* per 1000.

Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, Piercers, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25*s.*; Good Stand for ditto, with two Drawers, 17*s.*

Parchment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1*s.* 6*d.* each, or 17*s.* per dozen.

Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1*s.* 4*d.* each, or 15*s.* per dozen.

Records or Memorials, Ruled, 5*s.* per dozen, or 22*s.* 6*d.* per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inkstands; Postage Scales; Writing-cases; Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post-free.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

D D

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	309
Reviews	307
Statutes passed during the late Session of Parliament.

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF CHANCERY.

By W. W. KNOX, Barrister at Law.

Ex parte Bromley, re Redfearn. — (Bankruptcy—Practice—Appeal—Bankrupt-law Consolidation Act, 1849, sects. 12, 14, 17)	611
Simpson v. South Staffordshire Waterworks Company. — (Minutes of decree)	611
Fray v. Drew. — (Practice—Rehearing—Caveat—Inrolment of decree)	612

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. MARETT, Barrister at Law.

Munro v. Wivenhoe and Brightlingsea Railway Company. — (Interlocutory injunction—Contract—Railway works)	612
Re Dummer. — (Public company—Investment—Building)	615
Re Forsyth. — (Practice—Solicitor—Taxation—Summons)	615

VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY'S COURT.

By E. LLOYD, Barrister at Law.

Re The East of England Banking Company, ex parte Bugg. — (Joint-stock company—Purchase of shares in name of trustee or nominee—Beneficial owner—Liability as contributory)	616
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By T. F. MORSE, Barrister at Law.

Knight v. Knight . — (Separate estate—Mortgage by husband and wife—Misrepresentations by the husband—Divorce)	617
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Re The Scottish and Universal Finance Bank (Limited). — (Practice—Winding up—Costs—Debt of company—Priority)	619
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVESEY, Barrister at Law.

Alexander v. The North-eastern Railway Company. — (Libel—Inaccurate statement)	619
Reg. , on the Prosecution of The Committee of Visitors of the Cambridgehire, Isle of Ely, and Borough of Cambridge Lunatic Asylum, Appas., The Overseers of the Parish of Fulbourn, Respas. — (Poor rate—County lunatic asylum—Exemption from rateability under the 16 & 17 Vict. c. 97, s. 35) ..	620
Smith and Another, Assignees of Willden, a Bankrupt, v. Hudson. — (Sale of goods—Stoppage in transitu—Acceptance and receipt to satisfy sect. 17 of the Statute of Frauds—Order and disposition of bankrupt—12 & 13 Vict. c. 106, s. 125) ..	622

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By E. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

Hartley and Others v. Mare. — (Bankruptcy Act, 1861—Deed of inspectorship—Process without leave) ..	625
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

By W. BRANDT, Barrister at Law.

Hempstead et Uxor v. The Phoenix Gas-light and Coal Company. — Hempstead v. Same. — (Husband and wife—Consolidation of actions—Common-law Procedure Act, 1862, sect. 40)	626
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

N O T I C E.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

OLIPHANT'S LAW OF HORSES, GAMING, &c.

Just published, considerably enlarged, price 15s. cloth.

THE LAW OF HORSES; including the Bargain and Sale of Chattels; also the Law of Racing, Wagers, and Gaming. By GEORGE HENRY HEWITT OLIPHANT, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. Third Edition. By GRANVILLE R. RYDER, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. H. Sweet, 3 Chancery-lane.

SIR JOHN BARNARD BYLES ON BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

The Eighth Edition, price 11. 2s. cloth boards.

A TREATISE ON THE LAW OF BILLS OF EXCHANGE, PROMISSORY NOTES, BANK NOTES, and CHECKS. By SIR JOHN BARNARD BYLES, Queen's Serjeant (now one of the Judges of her Majesty's Court of Common Pleas). The Eighth Edition, with Notes from the Fourth American Edition. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

CHITTY'S (JUN.) LAW OF CONTRACTS, BY RUSSELL.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 11. 12s.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON THE LAW OF CONTRACTS, and upon the Defences to Actions thereon. By JOSEPH CHITTY, Jun., Esq. The Sixth Edition. By JOHN A. RUSSELL, LL.B., of Gray's-inn, Barrister at Law, and Professor of English Law in University College, London. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

TOULMIN SMITH'S "THE PARISH"

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 18s. cloth bds.

THE PARISH: its Powers and Obligations at Law as regards the Welfare of every Neighbourhood, and in Relation to the State; its Officers and Committee, and the Responsibility of every Parishioner. With Illustrations of the Practical Working of this Institution in all Secular Affairs, and of some modern Attempts at Ecclesiastical Incroachment. By TOULMIN SMITH, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. The Second Edition, with important Additions. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

PHILLIPS'S LAW OF COPYRIGHT.

In 8vo., price 12s. cloth.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT IN WORKS OF LITERATURE AND ART, and in the Application of Designs. With the Statutes relating thereto. By CHARLES PALMER PHILLIPS, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 8vo. 1863.

"Mr. Phillips has shewn, not only great diligence in collecting cases bearing upon the various topics which he has treated, but considerable judgment in the manner in which he has dealt with them. He has spared no pains to make his work reliable as a legal text-book, and at the same time equally useful to publishers, authors, artists, and other persons who are interested in works of literature, art, or design. In a word, such a book has long been wanted, and Mr. Phillips has given abundant proof of his ability to meet the desideratum."—Solicitors' Journal, Nov. 14, 1863.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

BY AUTHORITY.

In royal 8vo., price 7s. 6d. cloth.

THE CONSOLIDATED GENERAL ORDERS OF THE HIGH COURT OF CHANCERY; with Regulations as to certain Fees and Charges.

"The new arrangement of the Orders leaves nothing to be wished for: it is clear, convenient, and admirably adapted for the purposes of practice. Although the language of the old Orders has been adhered to as far as possible, it has been altered whenever it was found necessary for the purpose of adapting them to the present practice, and also for the purpose of removing those doubts and difficulties which so frequently arose under the old Orders."—Jurist, Jan. 21, 1866.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SIMON'S LAW RELATING TO RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.

In 12mo., price 2s. cloth.

THE LAW RELATING TO RAILWAY ACCIDENTS, including an Outline of the Liabilities of Railway Companies as Carriers generally, concisely discussed and explained. By HENRY A. SIMON, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, AUGUST 5, 1865.

THE CASE OF CONSTANCE KENT AND THE PLEA OF GUILTY.

THE case of Constance Kent has brought to light, strongly and clearly, some defects in our criminal procedure. The judge was not satisfied; the press is not satisfied; the public mind is not satisfied; and it was scarcely possible that it should be. The judge said, with emphasis, and with an evident desire for a trial, "A person unacquainted with judicial inquiries might ask, why there should be any further discussion, or evidence offered, when there was a confession by the prisoner. He answered, that admissions of this kind ought to be very closely investigated, with a view to see that it has not been given from other motives than a consciousness of guilt and a desire to state it; whether it was a conscientious statement; and whether the circumstances of the case did or did not confirm it." This plainly implied that Mr. Justice Willes, a man of large and philosophic mind, as well as a learned lawyer, knows that confessions, even of capital crimes, may be made from other motives than a consciousness of guilt, and a desire to disclose it, and may or may not be confirmed; and may even, perchance, be contradicted by the circumstances of the case. And that this is so no one can doubt, who is at all acquainted with the history of criminal jurisprudence. In the very same week there appeared in the papers an account of a circumstantial confession of a murder by poison, which the magistrates found to be false. In the case of William Roupell, he was convicted, upon his own confession, of a forgery, which afterwards another jury, in a civil case, having the advantage of seeing and hearing him, refused to affirm he had committed. Nay, in this very case, it is curious it should have been forgotten, that another person confessed the crime, and, as it was thought, falsely. He, however, retracted his confession before committal for trial; but, on the other hand, Constance Kent, by adhering to her confession, avoided a trial, and its truth has not been tested. It could only be tested, either by a public trial, or by entering into details which might afford internal evidence of truth; or by its being confirmed or contradicted by circumstances and facts already established. The public trial has been avoided by a persistence in the plea of guilty. The confession, or rather, as Mr. Justice Willes accurately calls it, the admission, carefully avoids entering into any details, by which its truth could be tested, and which, on the hypothesis of truth, would, for that very reason, have been presented. All that remains is to see how far it is consistent with or inconsistent with other facts and circumstances disclosed. And we are naturally led to enter into that inquiry, because, on the one hand, the admission was made under circumstances the most strongly suggestive of some other motive than the consciousness of guilt, and the desire to disclose it; and, on the other hand, for the very reason that all the circumstances by which its truth might be tested are carefully withheld. It is avowed—it has been publicly avowed on the part of the girl—it is plainly implied on the face of her admission—that her great object is to rehabilitate others dearly beloved by her, who have been ruined by the unhappy event. And, on the other hand, she herself has for five years endured the most terrible of all moral tortures—banishment from all one loves, and the brand of suspicion, if not the belief in one's guilt. That this belief was entertained by some, and apparently by those with whom she lived, is manifest; but it could only be by persons who were predisposed to believe in her guilt, for certainly all the facts were inconsistent with it. It could only have been through an utter forgetfulness of the facts proved that people could so easily have acquiesced in the truth of her so-called confession. Even in the ablest of the press there is displayed the grossest ignorance of it. Both the Times and the Saturday Review made it the basis of their argument, that it was proved almost to demonstration, that the murder was committed by an inmate of the house. There was not a particle of evidence to shew this, and there was strong and almost conclusive evidence to the contrary. It was proved that there was easy access to the nursery by the window (through a wall and the low roof of an outbuilding); and, on the other hand, it appeared that the pieces of flannel found with the body had never been washed by the laundress for any of the inmates; and the pieces of paper found in the same place smeared with blood were portions of newspapers not taken in by the master of the house, and, therefore, probably not brought there by any inmate, for it is not likely that either children or servants would take in newspapers. Nay, as large a piece of paper as would cover a space a yard in circumference was found in the well under the body, and no part of this was identified with any found in the house, or any paper ever taken in there. The surgeon swore repeatedly, what indeed is self-evident, that the deep stab in the body must have been made by a dagger—a long pointed knife, as he described it—and no such instrument was found in the house or in the well, nor was any weapon which could have caused such a wound missed in the house. All the circumstances, then, rather tended to shew that the crime was actually committed by a person not an inmate in the house, although, no doubt, most probably that person had an accomplice in the house; so that the facts not only do not shew that the murder was by one of the inmates, but, so far as they go, rather shew that it was not. Then, as to the particular inmate who has admitted the deed, not one of the facts confirm her admission, and many of them rather contradict it. We call it, as the learned judge so accurately called it, an admission, not a confession; for it is a mere admission—it is not a confession. A confession is always more or less explicit, and states the manner of the commission of the act, and the means by which it was concealed, both as tests of truth and in order to exculpate others. There are no details in this case; there is a mere cut and dried admission, in dry formal language. If it is not true, of course, there could be no details given; and then the absence of details, which would be so usual and natural, is, as far as it goes, a negative evidence of untruth, or, at all events, the absence of the ordinary marks of truth. If there was an accomplice, however, and if there were two persons implicated, and one of them not an inmate, no one would suppose that Constance was concerned in it, for all the theories of her guilt imply that she was the sole criminal; and so she says herself. As to her statements, however, it has been strangely forgotten that she is not a credible witness, unless confirmed, or unless her statement, being contrary to her interest, renders it necessarily true. For she has been again and again examined upon oath, and made statements not consistent with her present admission, which was not upon oath, and which, as it injures no one but herself, she may suppose a very venial offence. She has shewn herself capable of committing perjury, assuming her present statement to be true; why, then, should it be credited, unless indeed a confession of a crime must necessarily be true? which it certainly is not, as Mr. Justice Willes plainly implies. It is strangely forgotten again, that another person had already made a confession of the crime—a man who seems to have been just the sort of fellow to do such a deed, a vague man who had deserted his wife, and was roaming about the country. He gave the best possible proof of the truth of his statement, for he did what Constance has carefully avoided doing; he entered somewhat into details; he said the child was handed to him out of the window; and it might have been, for he gave a description of the house substantially accurate, and which shewed that he must have been in it, or about it. It is true, that this man's confession was discarded, but not until examination and inquiry; and even then it was discarded without sufficient reason; the man retracted his confession, and tried to prove that he was elsewhere at the time, but failed to do so; and a pretended brother he wrote to, and from whom he produced a letter promising that he would appear and swear he was at Portsmouth on the fatal night, never did appear, nor was his letter verified; and in short, the magistrates, with that fatuity which marked their conduct throughout, set the man at liberty, though on the first version he gave an accurate description of the house. There was nothing in the case to shew that his confession was not true; and it is not the less likely to have been so, because, when he began to see the probable results of it, he got frightened, and retracted it. He had given the strongest proof of its verity, and he gave none of its falsity. Of course he must have had an accomplice in the house, and this answers all the objections to the probability of his story. These were, that the clothes were smoothed, that the drawing-room window was left open, and that a night-dress of Constance was missing. The accomplice, no doubt, a woman, would smooth the clothes, and would open the window, and abstract the night-dress, all to divert suspicion from herself. Why, then, was his confession so easily discarded, and why was that of Constance so eagerly credited? If he had an accomplice, beyond all doubt it was not Constance. She would have had no relations with a fellow like that; but he was just such a fellow as might have known a domestic servant, or a former domestic servant, in the house, and had relations of some sort with her, which might in some way or other have led to the crime. And, at all events, his statement, even if false, suggested a very probable mode in which the murder might have been committed by some one not an inmate. The confession was discarded, rightly or wrongly, however, but not without examination; and we are contending that no confession ought to be received without an examination and inquiry to see how far it is confirmed or contradicted by the known facts in the case. There is not one single fact in the case to confirm her confession, while almost every fact in it contradicts it. To begin with the only suggested motive—revenge for ill-treatment, or jealousy of the child. Both these she solemnly disclaimed; the first by the lips of her counsel, who, in her name, solemnly declared that she had been "treated always with love and tenderness;" the second, still more emphatically by herself, at the moment before she received the dread sentence of the law. And here the question as to the truth of her confession becomes embarrassed by a curious dilemma. If her present statement is true as to her tender treatment, then her former statements upon that point were false, for her school-fellows swore she had complained of ill-treatment. But assuming her present statement to be true, what possible motive could there have been for such a deed? No one will, or ever could, suppose that a mere sudden gust of anger would lead a girl of fifteen to such a horrid deed. To render it at all conceivable, there must, at all events, have been long latent and lurking feelings of revenge or jealousy, at last rising in intensity to a kind of possession. Such was the theory suggested by the learned judge, and is the only conceivable theory. But she disclaimed both conditions—both jealousy and revenge. What, then, could it be? She did not say. Yet if she did the deed, there must have been a motive; and the confession of the motive is an important part of confession; for it very much characterises the crime. So far, then, at the very outset of the case, there is not only no confirmation of her confession, but rather a contradiction. So as to the manner of perpetrating the deed—"alone and unaided." So she was obliged to say, to make her confession answer its avowed end—the exculpation of others; but she said no more. That much, however, is almost enough to contradict her confession. The child, it was sworn by its mother, was so stout and heavy that she could not carry him! Constance was a girl of fifteen, and would have had to lift him out very carefully not to disturb him, and while holding him with one hand, put the bed clothes as they were found (or said to have been found next morning), carefully straight, and tucked up and tight, that the witnesses who saw the bed could not believe the child had been taken out of it. Then she would have to carry him out of the room, and along the passage, past the door where her mother-in-law lay, restless and watchful—the floor creaking at every step, as it always does under the steps of a person heavy laden; then down stairs, every step probably creaking for the same reason; then out of the house, some way or other, opening doors and windows, and shutting them or half shutting them again; and then coming back into the house and up the stairs to her room, her bed-dress or whatever she wore, dripping blood, as it must have done, at every step. Then the nature of the wounds, one of which, the stab, must, as the surgeon stated again and again, have been made with a dagger, or something of that sort. The girl does not state in her confession what she did it with, but it was sworn that she said she did it with one of her father's razors. This must have been false; no razor could have made such a stab, nor, indeed, any stab at all. No wonder she abstained from details in her public confession. Here we see how details may detect a falsehood. She had probably forgotten the surgeon's evidence, to which we have referred, or she remembered it when she wrote her confession, and was entirely silent as to the means and manner of perpetration. So far, then, nothing confirms her confession, and everything rather tends to contradict it, even if it does not altogether contradict it. But then it is suggested, that there is one fact, at all events, which not only confirms her confession, but even alone would almost suffice to convict her. That fact is, that one of her night-dresses was said to be missing. This is, no doubt, the key of the case, but it opens it, at all events, in our view of it, in a very different aspect. It is strangely forgotten that the mere fact of one of her night-dresses was missing, of itself would come to nothing, unless it was shewn that she had secreted it, or that no one else had the opportunity of doing so. But the very contrary of this is the fact, and when closely and carefully looked at, the evidence upon this point is suggestive of the most serious doubts, not as to the girl herself, but as to others; while on the other hand, the damning force of the fact, taken by itself, without any apparent possibility of explanation, may have driven her to despair, and have then been the main motive of her admission of a crime which she feared would always be believed, and could never be disproved. It is in this view that it may be the clue of the case. And, at all events, it must not be taken that the mere fact that the night-dress was missing, of itself in the least makes against her. If, indeed, it had been found missing the morning after the murder, it would have been otherwise; though even then it is worthy of notice, that an intelligent observer on the spot, in a letter to the Times, suggested that the night-dress might have been abstracted, even on the night of the murder, from her bed, her drawers, or from among the clean clothes just returned from the wash, and put even in a lumber-room. The really guilty party might easily, either on that night, or on the next day, have abstracted one of the girl's night-dresses, to throw suspicion on her, as it did, in fact, do; and upon that fact she was arrested and suspected. But, on the other hand, after it had been investigated, she was discharged. How could it have been otherwise? and how could the mere fact, that the dress was missing, be an atom of evidence against her? When was it missed? Not the next day, when the wife of one of the police came for the purpose of searching the female inmates, and particularly inquired as to the girl's night-dress; nor the third day, nor the fourth day, nor even on the fifth. Not until the evening of the fifth day after the murder, was anything said as to the missing night-dress; and during all that time others in the house, including, possibly, the real murderer, had access to the bed-room and drawers, and could easily have secreted one of her night-dresses, and then suggested its absence as a ground of suspicion against her. The latter part of the supposition actually is verified by the evidence. One of the inmates did—herself under suspicion—suggest the absence of the girl's night-dress as a ground of suspicion against her; and accompanied the suggestion by a statement rather eagerly made, but which she immediately denied, that she had herself seen it put into the clothes-basket. Two witnesses swore that this person so said, and she denied saying so. This of itself is sufficient to suggest that the real criminal, or some one rightly or wrongly suspected, and anxious to ward off suspicion to another, might have secreted the night-dress with that view. At all events, how does the mere fact, that it was missing some days after the event, shew that Constance had secreted it? Other circumstances tend strongly to shew that she had not. If she had, then she, doubtless, had destroyed it, as it was never found. And if she could thus destroy one dangerous piece of evidence, so she could and would have destroyed any other. Now, there was another article of female attire, a shift, found, blood-stained, secreted downstairs in the scullery, in a place to which servants had access, and in which it was likely to be found. On the theory that Constance destroyed the night-dress as a proof of her guilt, she would surely not have had the fatuity not to destroy the other piece of clothing, but simply place it in so dangerous a place. This is upon the suggestion that it was ordinary blood which was found upon it, and that it was no evidence of guilt. The man who found it so described its appearance as to shew that it was not so; for he said the blood was not on the breast, where it would naturally have been if worn during a deed of blood, but lower down, where it would naturally be, on the suggestion that it was not ordinary blood. Now, as he swore it was shewn to a surgeon, and nothing more was said of it, the natural presumption is in favour of this suggestion. At all events, as the contrary was not proved, it may have been so. And as it was not shewn to have belonged to Constance at all, and it did not appear to have ever been in her possession, it is strange that its disappearance should have been made an argument against her; while, on the other hand, assuming it to have been part of the attire worn by the murderess on the dreadful occasion, then its having been found where it was, is rather an argument, coupled with the disappearance of the night-dress, against her having been the murderess. Because it seems incredible, that having successfully destroyed one damning piece of evidence, and having the power to destroy the other, she should have elected not to destroy it as she did the other, but to place it where it was certain to be found. There is not a particle of evidence to shew that she secreted either garment; and as to one of them, there was not a particle of evidence that she ever had it in her possession. In this part of the case, therefore, there is no confirmation, although, no doubt, there is no contradiction, of her confession. Both garments may have been hers; both may have been secreted by her; but the probability is, that they were not. For if one was, then no one doubts the other was; and if she destroyed the one, she would surely have destroyed the other. On the other hand, both garments may have been secreted by some other person, the actual murderer, or a female accomplice, one of the other inmates; and this supposition is supported by the fact that another inmate (herself suspected) did make a statement about it, which she immediately, on the testimony of the witnesses, retracted or denied. There was, indeed, one piece of evidence produced, at a late stage in the history of the case, with a view to shew that Constance might have abstracted a night-dress from the basket; not, indeed, that this was the one supposed to have been worn during the murder, but in substitution for it, and in order by its abstraction, and throwing the loss on the washerwoman, to account for the loss of the other. But as to this there was a complete confusion of ideas. There was not any evidence that the girl did abstract the night-dress, for all that was shewn, that she had an opportunity of doing so, was true of every one else in the house, especially the servants, one of whom, be it observed, did try to throw suspicion upon her. And it is very remarkable that this piece of evidence, as to her having, as if accidentally, got access to the basket, was not disclosed by the servant who proved it until the latest stage in the history of the case, although she had been three or four times examined on the subject, and on every occasion attention was drawn to the point of the girl's night-dress. A piece of evidence, so significant, concealed so long, and disclosed so late, may well be looked upon with suspicion. But taking it to be strictly true, it comes to nothing, except that the girl might have removed the dress, which is equally true of every one else in the house, and especially of the servants. In this part of the case, therefore, there is no confirmation of the girl's confession. If, indeed, she had gone into detail, and disclosed what she did with one dress, and what with the other; how she got hold of one, and why, and when, and for what reason—then we should have been able to see how in these particulars her story tallied with the facts already in evidence, and that would have been confirmation.

But all this is withheld; and that is the great badge of suspicion about this confession or admission, and the great reason why it does not give satisfaction. There are no means of enabling us to determine, in the language of the learned judge, how far it is confirmed or contradicted by the other facts in the case. It is to be lamented that this should be so, and it would not have been so if the judge had had power to direct a plea of guilty to be entered. It is plain that he would have done so if he could, and we only wish that he had been able to do so. The public would have been far more satisfied. There never was a confession made under circumstances more suggestive of suspicion as to the probability of indirect motive. On the one side despair, and the mental torture of five years' suspicion, and, on the part of many, belief of her guilt, and the fatal incident of the missing night-dress, may well have confirmed a feeling of despair in a mind weakened by years of depression, and exiled from home as a kind of outcast. Then, on the other hand, there were the most powerful motives to a false confession in the avowed anxiety to clear the father and brother; and all this, probably, coupled with a well-founded belief that she was not likely to be executed, and that her life was pretty certain to be spared, as it has been; and penal servitude of late years has lost many of its terrors. At all events, the unhappy girl was probably little less wretched than she is now; while, on the other hand, her wretchedness is mitigated and relieved by the reflection that she has acted heroically, and rescued her father and her brother from a crushing load of suspicion. It may be that she has committed an act of mistaken self-sacrifice, under the inspiration of despair. That she is not truthful nor credible as a witness is clear; for assuming her confession to be true, she committed perjury before; therefore she may be untruthful now; she is not reliable. There was the strongest motive to falsification, or she probably was under the influence of despair. She might well despair. If she be innocent, nothing could ever relieve her from suspicion except the confession of the real murderer. That was hardly to be expected, for murderers rarely confess. The real murderer alone could account for the missing night-dress; as for the weapon, and other means of perpetration or concealment. If she did the deed, she, and she alone, could have cleared up these matters. She has not done so. If she were not the murderer, she could not do so. As her avowed object would have been promoted by her doing so, her not doing so is of itself a circumstance of suspicion, and there is not a single fact in confirmation of her confession.

Reviews.

A Manual of the Practice of Conveyancing, shewing the Present Practice relating to the Daily Routine of Conveyancing in a Solicitor's Office. To which are added, Concise Common Forms and Precedents in Conveyancing, Conditions of Sale, Conveyances, and all other Assurances in constant Use. Third Edition, revised, and considerably enlarged. By G. W. GREENWOOD, Solicitor, and HENRY HORWOOD. 8vo., pp. 546.

[Stevens & Sons.]

A Treatise on the Practice of Conveyancing. By WILLIAM WHITTAKER BARRY, of Lincoln's Inn, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, late holder of the Studentship of the Inns of Court, and Author of "A Treatise on the Statutory Jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery." "Dans la littérature par exemple, la mérite pratique domine encore," Guiz. Civ. en Fr. t. 1, 13. 8vo., pp. 545.

MR. GREENWOOD's book is intended to be an elementary guide to solicitors' clerks in the practice of conveyancing, and has been, with great judgment, strictly limited to practical matters. Here are no meagre outlines of law, but straightforward explanations of the objects of the various conveyancing documents of ordinary occurrence, and statements of the provisions usually contained in them, and the precautions to be borne in mind in framing them. The precedents are generally well selected, but we must except from this praise two of the precedents of composition deeds, introduced for the first time in the present edition. The first is a transcript of the deed which formed the subject of litigation in Clapham v. Atkinson (11 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 217; 4 B. & S. 722); which, though it was expressed to be made between the debtor of the one part, and "the undersigned creditors" of the debtor of the other part, and throughout spoke only in the name of the executing creditors, was yet held to extend to and bind the non-assenting creditors, because it stated that the undersigned creditors were "a majority in number, representing three-fourths in value of the creditors." Now, whether the decision was right or not, it is obvious that the deed was inaccurately framed, and ought not to be put forth as a precedent merely because it has stood fire. The second form is that which was pleaded in vain in The Ipstone Park Iron Ore Company v. Pattinson (10 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 427), being in substance the form given in Schedule (D.) to the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, with the important difference, however, that the benefit of the deed was limited to the undersigned creditors, and with the addition of words which to us certainly seem to imply a release, but were held by the Court of Exchequer not so to operate, though the Court thought it might be made available as a protection from execution; and Martin, B., said, "With regard to the deed itself, so far from considering it void, I think it is the only good deed of the kind that has come before us, and that it has all the operation that such deeds were intended by the Legislature to have;" yet the operation and benefit of the deed were in terms limited to the undersigned creditors. We extract the following neat summary of the principal points decided on the enactments:—

"1. A deed of arrangement under sect. 192 of the act, must be, on the face of it, for the benefit of all the creditors, and not merely for those who execute it. (Walter v. Adcock, 10 Weekly Rep. 542; 31 L. J., Bank., 92; Ex parte Morgan, 32 L. J., Bank., 15).

"2. Such deed need not contain an assignment of all the debtor's property. (Ex parte Morgan, re Woodhose, 11 Weekly Rep. 316; Ex parte Cockburn, 33 L. J., Ch., 17; Clapham v. Atkinson, 33 L. J., Q. B., 81).

"3. It must be assented to by a majority in number, representing three-fourths in value of the secured as well as the unsecured creditors. (Ex parte Golden, in re Skille, 32 L. J., Bank., 37; Turquand v. Moss, 12 Weekly Rep. 960).

"4. A composition deed must contain a release of the estate of the debtor, otherwise it cannot be pleaded in bar to an action, in respect of a debt for which a composition is payable under such deed (Ipstone Park Iron Ore Company v. Pattinson, 12 Weekly Rep. 344); and query, whether a deed could be framed with a covenant making it so pleadable, without rendering it void against non-assenting creditors. (S. C.).

"5. Such a deed if duly executed, and containing a release, may be pleaded in bar to an action by a non-assenting creditor. (Whitehead v. Porter, 12 Weekly Rep. 742).

"6. Every deed of arrangement between a debtor and the whole body of his creditors, must be registered under the 194th section, whether it be framed under the provisions of sect. 192 or not. (Ex parte Morgan, supra).

"7. The production of the registrar's certificate of registration is prima facie evidence that the conditions of the act have been complied with; but a creditor may produce evidence to shew the contrary, and may require that the deed be examined to see that the necessary assents have been given. (Re Church, 1 N. R. 86).

"8. To render a deed of composition and reliance binding on the meeting of the creditors who have not executed, or assented to or approved of it in writing, it is necessary that the non-assenting creditors should stand under the deed in the same situation, and with the same advantages, as the creditors forming the majority. (Ex parte Cockburn, 12 Weekly Rep. 673).

"9. The deed to be binding must be complete at the time it is registered, and it cannot be subsequently executed by any creditor who had not previously assented to or approved of it in writing. (Ex parte Cockburn, supra)."

The greater part of Mr. Barry's work has already appeared in the Law Times. He states, in his Preface, that his object is "to afford a similar introduction to the practice of conveyancing as is already supplied, with reference to the principles of this branch of the law, by such writers as Watkins, Burton, Joshua Williams, or Josiah W. Smith," and he thus divides and arranges his subjects:—

1. Abstracts of title. 2. Agreements. 3. Particulars and conditions of sale. 4. Copyholds. 5. Covenants. 6. Creditors' deeds and arrangements. 7. Preparation of deeds. 8. On evidence. 9. Leases. 10. Mortgages. 11. Partnership deeds and arrangements. 12. Sales and purchases. 13. Settlements. 14. Wills. 15. The Land Registry Acts. 16. The Act for obtaining a Declaration of Title.

This arrangement is obviously immethodical and incomplete. Sales and purchases (what is the difference?) ought not to be separated from abstracts and particulars and conditions of sale. A chapter on the law of copyholds is out of place in a treatise limited to the practice of conveyancing, and many subjects (such as contracts for works or services, awards, mining leases, mercantile contracts, &c.) on which there is a dearth of practical information, are omitted. But the work is evidently the fruit of considerable study and labour, and as a compendium of ordinary information on conveyancing matters, brought down to the present time, will be found useful.

When Mr. Barry goes out of the beaten path in search of novelty, he is not always happy. For instance, in the chapter on the preparation of deeds we find the following suggestion:—

"It has often occurred to me, as a matter of regret, that the names of those counsel who have settled the drafts of deeds should not be affixed to the deeds themselves, in the same manner as is done with reference to bills in Chancery. The reason generally given for the latter practice is, that the Court will not entertain a suit unless some counsel has certified that it is fit that it should be entertained. It is probable that formerly the rule proposed some vitality, but this has long ceased to be, for the signatures of counsel to a bill has been reduced to a mere formality; indeed, were it otherwise, counsel would be acting as it were as preliminary judges, which would be exceeding the limits of their duty, and would not be beneficial to the public. In the case of deeds, however, much additional confidence would be felt in titles, if on examination of the abstract it were found that many, or all, of the assurances had been prepared by skilled hands; certainly such a course would have rendered the reading of abstracts more profitable to the student and junior practitioner. How pleasant it would be to meet with such honoured names as Butler, Duval, and Preston. As matters stand, it is easy, indeed, to distinguish the hand of a master, but the names of the draftsmen lie buried in obscurity."

Mr. Barry forgets that a bill passes directly from the pen of the draftsman to the file of the court without mutilation or change, and is the work of the draftsman's mind, untrammelled by anything but the circumstances of the case; but, in conveyancing, counsel is often bound by instructions of which he does not approve, and can never be sure that the symmetry and perfection, and even the essential operation of his draft, may not be marred by alteration from other pens.

ALL THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACTS, AND ALL THE ACTS AND RULES RELATING TO TRIALS OF ISSUES OF FACT.

In 12mo., price 10s. 6d. cloth.
THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACTS OF 1852, 1854, and 1860. With Notes, and the Forms and Rules. To which are prefixed or appended all the Acts (or Portions of Acts) relating to Common-law Procedure, or the Trial of Issues of Fact in the Courts of Common Law, Chancery, or Probate, with the Rules of each Court respectively. Adapted to the use of Practitioners in all the Courts, and also to the use of Students. By W. F. FINLASON, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law, Editor of "The Common-law Procedure Acts, 1852 and 1854."

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 12mo., price 7s. cloth.

A BRIEF and PRACTICAL EXPOSITION of the LAW of CHARITABLE TRUSTS, with special Reference to the Jurisdiction of the Commissioners of Charities; containing also all the Charitable Trusts Acts. With Notes, and the Rules, Minutes, and Orders of the Court of Chancery and the Commissioners of Charities. By W. F. FINLASON, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law, Editor of "The Charitable Trusts Acts of 1853 and 1855."

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SMITH'S MANUAL OF EQUITY JURISPRUDENCE.

SEVENTH EDITION, 1864.

A MANUAL of EQUITY JURISPRUDENCE, founded on the works of Story, Spence, and other writers, and on the subsequent Cases: comprising the Fundamental Principles and the Points of Equity usually occurring in General Practice. By JOSIAH W. SMITH, B.C.L., Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel. Seventh Edition. In 12mo., 1864, price 12s. cloth.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SMITH'S REAL AND PERSONAL PROPERTY.

This day is published, in 1 thick vol. 8vo., price 35s. cloth.

A COMPENDIUM of the LAW of REAL and PERSONAL PROPERTY, connected with Conveyancing: designed as a comprehensive Second Book for Students, and as a Digest of the most useful learning for Practitioners. Third Edition. By JOSIAH W. SMITH, B.C.L., Q.C.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

The Sixth Edition, now ready, price 21s. cloth boards.

HAYES and JARMAN'S CONCISE FORMS OF WILLS, with Practical Notes: a Popular View of the Statute of Wills, and Suggestions to Persons taking Instructions for and preparing Wills; the Decisions on the Wills Acts, and other Testamentary Matters, in the House of Lords and Privy Council, and in the Equity, Common Law, Ecclesiastical, and Probate Courts, down to the Time of Publication; and many additional Forms. Sixth Edition. By THOMAS S. BADGER EASTWOOD, of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, M.A., and of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law, Reader on the Law of Real Property to the Four Inns of Court.

London: H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street, Law Bookseller and Publisher.

NEW EDITION OF SMITH (G. MANLEY) ON THE LAW OF MASTER AND SERVANT.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 16s. cloth boards.

A TREATISE on the LAW of MASTER and SERVANT, including therein MASTERS and WORKMEN in every Description of Trade and Occupation. With an Appendix of Statutes. The Second Edition. By CHARLES MANLEY SMITH, Esq., Barrister at Law, of the Inner Temple and Midland Circuit.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

MAUDE & POLLOCK'S LAW OF SHIPPING.

A COMPENDIUM of the LAW of MERCHANT SHIPPING. With an Appendix, containing all the Statutes and Forms of Practical Utility. By FREDERIC PHILIP MAUDE and CHARLES EDWARD POLLOCK, Esqrs., of the Inner Temple; Barristers at Law. The Third Edition, including the Statutes and Decisions to the present time. Royal 8vo., price 11. 14s. cloth.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

PRACTICE OF THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL.

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 16s. cloth boards.

THE PRACTICE of the JUDICIAL COMMITTEE of Her Majesty's most Honourable PRIVY COUNCIL. By WILLIAM MACPHERSON, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law, Author of "The Procedure of the Civil Courts of British India."

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

COURT OF THE VICE-WARDEN OF THE STANNARIES.

Price 1s. 6d. sewed.

GENERAL RULES, FORMS, and COURT FEES on the WINDING UP of MINING COMPANIES within the JURISDICTION of the STANNARIES; also Solicitors' Fees and Charges on the Equity Side of the Court.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

CHITTY ON BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 11. 8s.

CHITTY on BILLS of EXCHANGE, Promissory Notes, Cheques on Bankers, Bankers' Cash Notes, and Bank Notes; with References to the Law of Scotland, France, and America. The Tenth Edition. By JOHN A. RUSSELL and D. MACLACHLAN, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

ROSCOE'S CRIMINAL EVIDENCE—Sixth Edition.

In royal 12mo., price 90s. cloth.

ROSCOE'S DIGEST of the LAW of EVIDENCE in CRIMINAL CASES. Sixth Edition, with considerable Additions. By DAVID POWER, Esq., Q.C.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Publishers, London.

WILDMAN'S INTERNATIONAL LAW.

INSTITUTES of INTERNATIONAL LAW, in Time of Peace and Time of War. By RICHARD WILDMAN, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 2 vols. 8vo. 1849-50. Price 14. 2s. 6d. 6s.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

PELICAN LIFE INSURANCE OFFICE.

(ESTABLISHED IN 1797).

No. 70, Lombard-street, E. C., and 57, Charing-cross, S. W.

DIRECTORS.

Octavius E. Coope, Esq.	Kirkman D. Hodson, Esq., M.P.
William Cotton, Esq., D.C.L., F.R.S.	Henry Lancelot Holland, Esq.
Thomas Henry Farquhar, Esq.	William James Lancaster, Esq.
James A. Gordon, Esq., M.D., F.R.S.	Sir John Lubbock, Bart., F.R.S.
Edward Hawkins, jun., Esq.	Benjamin Shaw, Esq.
	Matthew Whiting, Esq.
	M. Wyvill, jun., Esq., M.P.

ROBERT TUCKER, Secretary and Actuary.

This Company grants Assurances on moderate rates of Premium, with participation in Profits, and at low rates without Profits.

Also, Loans in sums of not less than 500l., in connexion with Life Assurance, upon approved Security.

At the last division of Profits the Bonus varied from 28 to 60 per cent. on the Premiums paid.

For Particulars and Forms of Proposal apply to the Secretary.

EQUITABLE REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.

10, LANCASTER-PLACE, STRAND.

Established 1835.—Capital £500,000.

DIRECTORS.

Daniel Smith Bockett, Esq.	Francis Bennett Goldney, Esq.
Major C. L. Boileau.	Charles Richard Harford, jun., Esq.
Lieut.-Colonel Chaze.	Henry Pigeon, Esq.
William Henry Cole, Esq.	Henry Roberts, Esq.
Thomas Curtis, Esq.	George Rootes, Esq.

AUDITORS.

Charles Armstrong Esq. | William Richard Bingley, Esq.
 Alfred Langdale, Esq.

SOLICITORS.—Messrs. Clayton & Son.

BANKERS.—Messrs. Coutts & Co.

ACTUARY.—F. Hendrika, Esq.

This Society purchases Reversionary Property, Life Interests, and Life Policies of Assurance, and grants Loans on these Securities.

Forms of Proposal may be obtained at the Office.

JOHN CLAYTON, } Joint
 FRANCIS CLAYTON, } Secretaries.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.

68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN.—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN.—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q.C.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.

Annuitants, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office.

C. B. CLABON, Sec.

Another Cure this Week of Disease of the Lungs of Ten Years standing, by DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS.—From Mr. D. VERNAN, Coast Guard, Mountcharles, Donegal, July 18, 1865:—"I am happy to say that they are all they are represented to be. I have a child who was affected in the lungs (for ten years), and they are the only thing that have done him any good. I have tried all other means in vain." They give instant relief of asthma, consumption, coughs, and all disorders of the breath and lungs. They have a pleasant taste. Price 1s. 1½d. per box. Sold by all Medicine Vendors.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the OFFICE, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, August 5, 1865.

The Jurist

No. 553, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.
No. 1492, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

AUGUST 12, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

WANTED, a FIRST-CLASS CONVEYANCING CLERK, to carry on the Compulsory Purchase Clauses of an Act of Parliament, and to conduct the litigated questions arising thereunder. Salary 300*l.* per annum. Apply, by letter, to Mr. A., care of Mr. Manby, Law Stationer, 29, Castle-street, Holborn.

LAW PARTNERSHIP.—A SOLICITOR, well connected, admitted in Easter Term, 1863, and who took Honours at his Examination, wishes to PURCHASE (after the Long Vacation) a SHARE of from 500*l.* to 600*l.* per annum in an old-established General Practice in London.

The Applicant is in his 37th year, and served his Articles in a Conveyancing Office of considerable practice in the country, and since his admission has held the post of Managing Conveyancing, and Chancery Clerk in one of the leading Agency Firms in London.

Unexceptionable references will be given and required, and Principals only will be treated with.

Address, N. D., care of Messrs. Hawkins, Bloxam, Paterson, & Power, No. 2, New Boswell-court, Lincoln's-inn, W. C.

Just published, 8vo., 2s. sewed.
THE PRIVILEGE OF RELIGIOUS CONFESSIONS IN ENGLISH COURTS OF JUSTICE considered, in a Letter to a Friend. By EDWARD BADLEY, Esq., M.A., Barrister at Law.
London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

In the press.
THE LAW OF FIRE INSURANCE. By C. J. BUNYON, M.A., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law, Author of "The Law of Life Assurance," &c.
London: Charles & Edwin Layton, Fleet-street, Depot for Books on Assurance, Fire, Life, and Marine.

This day is published, in 12mo., price 2*s.* 6*d.* cloth, lettered.
COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION: or the New Act, 23 & 29 Vict. c. 99, conferring further Equitable Jurisdiction on the County Courts. With Notes. By JAMES J. ASTON, Esq., Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, in demy 12mo., 1016 pp., price 1*l.* 12*s.* cloth.
ROGERS on ELECTIONS, ELECTION COMMITTEES, and REGISTRATION. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Tenth Edition. With the new Registration Statute, and all the Election and Registration Cases to the present time. By F. & P. WOLFERSTAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

DODD AND BROOKE'S PRACTICE OF THE COURT OF PROBATE.

This day is published, in 8vo., price 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* cloth.
THE LAW AND PRACTICE OF THE COURT OF PROBATE, Contentious and Common Form. With the Rules, Statutes, and Forms. By PHILIP WM. DODD, Solicitor, and GEORGE HENRY BROOKE, Doctors' Commons.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

LE RICHE'S BOOK OF COSTS IN THE COMMON LAW, PROBATE, and DIVORCE COURTS: with Observations on the Principle of the Allowances, and an Analysis of Decisions upon Costs from the Time of passing the first Common-law Procedure Act. Post 8vo. 1860. Price 5*s.* cloth.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

Recently published, vol. 1, price 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* cloth.
THE PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT OF CHANCERY, with some Observations on the Pleadings in that Court. By the late EDMUND ROBERT DANIELL, Barrister at Law. Fourth Edition, with considerable Alterations and Additions, incorporating the Statutes, Orders, and Cases to the present time, and Smithwaite's Record and Writ Practice; together with References to a Companion Volume of Forms and Precedents. By LEONARD FIELD and EDWARD CLENNELL DUNN, Barristers at Law, with the assistance of JOHN BIDDLE, of the Master of the Rolls' Chambers. In 2 vols.
Vol. 2, and the Companion Volume of Forms, will be published in Michaelmas Term.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

No. 553, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

DAY'S COMMON-LAW PRACTICE.

The Second Edition, recently published.

THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACTS of 1852, 1854, and 1860. With an Introduction, explanatory of the recent Changes, Notes, Forms of Pleading, and a copious Index. By J. C. F. S. DAY, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 1 vol. royal 12mo. Price 15*s.* cloth boards.

This Work comprises a carefully-revised Edition of Mr. Kerr's Procedure Acts of 1852 and 1854, the Cases that have been decided since the publication of these Works being added; the Bills of Exchange Act of 1855, and the Decisions upon it; those portions of the Interpleader Act and Mercantile Law Amendment Act which relate to the Procedure thereon in Court or at Chambers, and all the New Rules: thus constituting a complete Practice of the Superior Courts of Common Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

BYTHEWOOD AND JARMAN'S CONVEYANCING.—

Vol. 8, Part 1.

Price 3*s.* boards.

A SELECTION OF PRECEDENTS from MODERN MANUSCRIPT COLLECTIONS, and DRAFTS of ACTUAL PRACTICE; forming a System of Conveyancing. With Dissertations and Practical Notes. By THOMAS JARMAN, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law. The Third Edition. Vol. 8. By WHITLEY STOKES, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

PART 1.—POWERS OF ATTORNEY.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.
68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN.—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN.—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q. C.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.

Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office.
C. B. CLABON, Sec.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS at PARTRIDGE & COZENS,

WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS in PARCHMENT.

192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 90*s.*

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bonâ fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual RETAIL charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.

Draft Paper, 6*s.*, 7*s.*, 7*s.* 9*d.*, and 9*s.* per ream.

Brief Paper 13*s.* 6*d.*, 16*s.*, and 18*s.* 6*d.* per ream.

10*s.* 6*d.*, 13*s.* 6*d.*, and 17*s.* 6*d.* per ream.

Large Cream Laid Note, 4*s.*, 6*s.*, and 7*s.* 6*d.* per ream.

Large Blue Note, 3*s.*, 4*s.*, and 6*s.* per ream.

Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2*s.* 9*d.*, 3*s.* 6*d.*, and 4*s.* 6*d.* per 1000.

Foolscap Official Envelopes, 1*s.* 6*d.* per 100, or 13*s.* 6*d.* per 1000.

Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, Piercers, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25*s.*; Good Stand for ditto, with two Drawers, 17*s.*

Parchment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1*s.* 6*d.* each, or 17*s.* per dozen.

Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1*s.* 4*d.* each, or 15*s.* per dozen.

Records or Memorials, Ruled, 5*s.* per dozen, or 22*s.* 6*d.* per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inkstands; Postage Scales; Writing-cases; Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post-free.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

E E

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	311
Law Reporting	319
Statutes passed during the late Session of Parliament.

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF CHANCERY.

By W. W. KNOX, Barrister at Law.

Stewart v. The Great Western Railway Company and Saunders.—(Bill in aid of action—Jurisdiction—Railway company—Compensation—Fraud—Limited relief).....	627
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. MARETT, Barrister at Law.

The Attorney-General v. St. John's Hospital.—(Charity—Jurisdiction—Time)	629
Rummen v. Robins.—(Vendor and purchaser—Offer—Withdrawal)	631

ROLLS COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

D'Huart v. Harkness.—(Power—Execution by "will"—Foreign will)	633
Heywood v. Heywood.—(Descent—Marriage settlement—Ultimate limitation—S & 4 Will. 4, c. 106, s. 3)	633
Re Gregory's Settlement.—(Will—Latent ambiguity—Parol evidence)	634

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By T. F. MORSE, Barrister at Law.

Hacker v. The Mid Kent Railway Company and The South-eastern Railway Company.—(Demurrer—Transfer of property from one railway company to another—Parties)	634
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Re The Bank of Hindustan, China, and Japan (Limited).—Martin's case.—(Companies Act, 1862—Rectification of register—Order of Court—Creditors)	635
Hepburn v. Lordan	636

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOYNEY, Barrister at Law.

Gunglieni, App., Matthews, Resp.—(Place of public entertainment—License—25 Geo. 2, c. 36, s. 2) ..	636
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By R. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

Barker and Another v. M'Andrew.—(Charterparty—Construction of—Voyage—Meaning of)	637
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

By H. RUTHERFORD, Barrister at Law.

Trayce and Another v. Worms.—(General average—Charterparty—Freight paid in advance—Liability to contribute)	639
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

By W. BRANDT, Barrister at Law.

Kershaw v. Ogden.—(Statute of Frauds—Acceptance)	642
-----------------------------------------------------------------	-----

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

SETON'S DECREEES IN EQUITY.

Now complete, in 2 vols. royal 8vo., price 21. 18s. cloth, lettered, SETON'S FORMS OF DECREES IN EQUITY, and of Orders connected with them. A new Edition, adapted to the present Practice, with Practical Notes. By W. H. HARRISON, Esq., Barrister at Law, and R. H. LEACH, Esq., one of the Registrars of the Court. Third Edition. 2 vols. royal 8vo. 1862.

Vol. 2, part 2, completing the work, may be had separately, price 14s. cloth.
Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

GREENWOOD'S CONVEYANCING.

In 8vo., price 15s. cloth,

A MANUAL of the PRACTICE of CONVEYANCING, shewing the present Practice relating to the daily routine of Conveyancing in Solicitors' Offices. To which are added, Concise Common Forms and Precedents in Conveyancing, Conditions of Sale, Conveyances, and all other Assurances in constant use. Third Edition, revised and considerably enlarged. By G. W. GREENWOOD, Solicitor, and HENRY HORWOOD.

London: Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

HAZLITT and ROCHE'S LAW of MARITIME WARFARE.

A MANUAL of the LAW of MARITIME WARFARE, embodying the Decisions of Lord Stowell and other English Judges, and of the American Courts, and the Opinions of the most eminent Jurists. With an Appendix of the Official Documents and Correspondence in relation to the present War. By WILLIAM HAZLITT and H. P. ROCHE, Esqs., Barristers at Law. In 12mo. 1864. Price 10s. 6d. cloth.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

COOKE ON INCLOSURE OF COMMONS.

In 12mo., price 16s. cloth,

THE ACTS for facilitating the INCLOSURE of COMMONS in ENGLAND and WALES; with a Treatise on the Law of Rights of Commons, in reference to these Acts; and on the Jurisdiction of the Inclosure Commissioners in Exchanges and Partitions; under the public and private Monies Drainage Acts; and under the Companies' Acts relating thereto; with Forms as settled by the Commissioners. By GEORGE WINGROVE COOKE, of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law. Fourth Edition.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard Lincoln's-inn.

STAMP'S INDEX TO THE STATUTES.

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 18s. cloth boards, STAMP'S INDEX to the STATUTE LAW of ENGLAND. By GEORGE STAMP, Esq. The Third Edition, brought down to the close of the Session 24 & 25 Vict. By JAMES EDWARD DAVIS, Esq., Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

In 1 vol. 12mo., price 7s., A TREATISE ON COMPOSITION DEEDS under the Stat. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 134. By THOMAS EBBINGE HOLLAND, M. A., Fellow of Exeter College, Oxford, and of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

PEACHEY ON MARRIAGE AND OTHER FAMILY SETTLEMENTS.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 16. 16s. cloth boards, A TREATISE ON the LAW of MARRIAGE and other FAMILY SETTLEMENTS; with Precedents and Practical Notes. By JAMES PEARSE PEACHEY, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NICOL'S BANKRUPTCY ACTS.

THE BANKRUPTCY ACTS, 1849, 1854, and 1861, Consolidated on the Arrangement of the Act of 1849; with the Decisions upon the last Act; and the General Orders of 1852, 1855, 1856, 1857, 1861, 1862, and 1863. With Forms and Precedents applicable to Proceedings in the Bankruptcy and County Courts, and a Tabular Index. By HENRY NICOL, Esq., Barrister at Law. The Second Edition, much enlarged. Royal 12mo., price 14s. cloth.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE BRITISH CONSTITUTION EXPLAINED.

In 1 thick vol. 8vo., price 12. 4s. cloth, THE INSTITUTIONS of ENGLISH GOVERNMENT: being an Account of the Constitution, Powers, and Procedure of its Legislative, Judicial, and Administrative Departments; with copious References to Ancient and Modern Authorities. By HOMERESHAM COX, M. A., Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, AUGUST 12, 1865.

THE question of the policy of allowing partners to limit their responsibility has made great progress, as social reformers say, since the year 1854, when the first report of the commissioners appointed to consider that question, and the practicability of assimilating the mercantile laws of England, Ireland, and Scotland, was presented. Probably the question has never received so full and fair a discussion as it did before that commission, which consisted of members of great ability and experience, namely, Sir T. B. Cusack Smith, then M. R. in Ireland, Sir Crosswell Crosswell, then one of the justices of the Common Pleas, Lord Curriehill, Mr. Baron Bramwell, then a Queen's counsel, James Anderson, Q. C., Kirkman Daniel Hodgson, Thomas Bazley, and Robert Slater. Questions were sent to seventy-six persons in the United Kingdom, selected, on the whole, with great judgment and impartiality. Questions were also circulated among the chambers of commerce of twenty of the principal towns in the kingdom. Other copies were circulated on the continent and in North America. The result of the inquiries and deliberations of the commission on the question of the expediency of allowing loans and services in trade to be repaid by a share of profits, without liability for debts, was, that they could not agree upon any conclusion; and some of the members delivered their opinions separately. Lord Curriehill, while he strongly disapproved of commandite partnerships, thought that there was no objection to loans at interest varying with profits, without liability beyond the amount of the loan—provided the loan was made for a fixed period, and if repaid before the appointed time, recoverable from the lender for the benefit of creditors. His Lordship concluded his remarks in these terms:—

"I by no means shut my eyes to the difficulties which the parties to contracts of loan or hiring on the footing above mentioned might experience in extricating their rights. But I would leave it to themselves to consider whether or not they would encounter these difficulties. And, of course, in any case in which it might be found that such a transaction is truly a partnership, under the colour of a loan, both parties would be liable as partners, without limitation, for all the debts of the concern."

Seeing that partnership is participation of profits, it is difficult to see how any other case than that suggested by the words in italics could ever arise under the modification of the law, which his Lordship was prepared to sanction, and which has since been effected.

Mr. Bramwell recommended,

"First, that persons be allowed, as of right, to form partnerships, limiting the liability of one or more, or all, of the partners.

"Secondly, that they be allowed to do so by private agreement among themselves, on registering their names, place and nature of business, term of partnership, and capital subscribed by the limited partner.

"Thirdly, that where the liability of all the partners is to be limited, the partnership should be incorporated on registration.

"Fourthly, that the partnership name should be used, and in such way as to indicate the limited liability.

"Fifthly, I need hardly say that I would allow money and services to be paid for by a portion of profits."

Whether the fact that money or services were so paid for should be publicly indicated, is not said.

Mr. Anderson's opinion agreed with that of Lord Curriehill, with the additional condition, that no special loan should be withdrawn without a year's previous notice.

Mr. Kirkman Daniel Hodgson agreed with Mr. Bramwell.

Mr. Slater disapproved of any limitation of partnership liability in ordinary trading companies or firms, and proposed to allow it only in companies formed for special objects of public utility; and he disapproved of allowing payment in profits for loans or services.

No opinion on the question was given by Sir T. B. Cusack Smith, Sir Crosswell Crosswell, or Mr. Bazley; but they, with Lord Curriehill and Mr. Slater, forming a majority of the commissioners, concurred in recommending that the privilege of trading with limited liability should not be allowed to all companies indiscriminately.

That privilege, however, was almost immediately afterwards conceded by the Legislature; but eleven long years passed before capitalists and clerks, pining for profits without liability, were told that they might have their desire. The question is set at rest, at least for the present; and our business is now to see how it has been settled, and whether an opening has been made for any other questions.

The 1st section of the Partnership Law Amendment Act (28 & 29 Vict. c. 86), enacts, that "The advance of money by way of loan to a person engaged or about to engage in any trade or undertaking upon a contract in writing with such person that the lender shall receive a rate of interest varying with the profits, or shall receive a share of the profits, arising from carrying on such trade or undertaking, shall not, of itself, constitute the lender a partner with the person or the persons carrying on such trade or undertaking, or render him responsible as such."

The contract for a share of the profits must be in writing. If you lend a basket woman the price of a chest of oranges, on condition of sharing her profits, and do not make her sign the contract, you become liable for all the debts of her stall:—otherwise, if she sign.

But if you carry the good woman's stock to and fro for her, or guard it while she gets her tea, for a like consideration, you do not thereby incur liability, though the contract be not evidenced in writing; for

"No contract for the remuneration of a servant or agent of any person engaged in any trade or undertaking by a share of the profits of such trade or undertaking, shall, of itself, render such servant or agent responsible as a partner therein, nor give him the rights of a partner." (Sect. 2).

What then, henceforth, will be the indicia of partnership? Formerly the main inquiry was, "Who are entitled to the profits, and who hold themselves out, or allow themselves to be held out, as concerned?" but the inquiry as to taking profits is no longer material.

The effect of a contract of partnership without qualification is to give to each partner equal rights in respect of the management of the business, and to render each partner responsible for all the engagements of the concern. But a contract of partnership, like other contracts, may be made subject to special qualifications and conditions, variously modifying, abridging, or excluding the rights and duties of the partners, as between themselves; and it may even, as between the contracting parties, wholly exempt one or more of them from all the duties of a partner, and preclude him or them from exercising any of the rights of a partner, except only the right of sharing the profits, and, almost as a necessary consequence, the right at some time or times at least, and subject or not to some restrictions, to inspect the accounts; though even that right may be waived, the sleeping partner consenting to rely on the honour of the accounting party, or to accept his statutory declaration as the sole verification of his balance-sheet.

But in whatever way the partners may modify their mutual rights, and vary the fashion of their partnership contract, it was, until the 5th July, 1865, a settled principle of law, that, wherever there is a partnership—that is to say, a right to share profits, the persons who are entitled to the profits, however they may qualify their rights as among themselves, are all, with regard to third persons, principals in the business, and, therefore, are all primarily liable for its engagements. The only exceptions to this rule were cases where the personality of the individuals was merged in a corporate personality, or where the liability of the principals was expressly qualified by act of Parliament. We have now a further statutory exception, so extensive that the poor remains of the rule can scarcely be recognised; so mangled and mutilated are they that scarcely a vestige of common sense is left, and the best thing to be done will be to bury them out of sight, and erect over them a Parliamentary monument, with an inscription in whitewash, "To the memory of Debit, the soul of Credit;" and a suitable text from scripture, which we need not set forth.

Henceforth a writer on the law of partnership must state the rule as to partnership liability in terms to this effect:—

"Every person who is entitled to participate in the profits of a business is liable for all the engagements contracted in that business, unless the right is solely founded on a written contract to pay the share of profits in consideration of a loan, or on a contract to pay the share of profits in consideration of services or of the sale of the goodwill of the business, or the person taking the share of profits is the widow or child of a deceased partner."

The loan may be for a fixed or for an indefinite time, and if for a fixed time it may be repaid before it is due, if the parties agree. Whether "the advance of money by way of loan" extends to money's worth or not, will be a question. Whether A. actually pays over to B. one thousand pounds in money, or, having a right to demand from B. the present payment of a debt of that amount, agrees to forego payment for a certain time, seems to be indifferent; and unless it is held to be so, the act may become a snare even to those whom it was intended to favour; for if a loan is made under the act for a fixed period in consideration of profits, and after the time for repayment has passed the lender leaves the money in the business, and continues to receive his share of the profits, he is no longer taking profits in consideration of the advance of money, but he is taking them in consideration of the forbearance of a debt.

On the other hand, if the advance of money's worth is within the act, then a manufacturer may supply a dealer with all or a portion of the goods required in his business on the terms of sharing profits—a transaction which, probably, was not contemplated by the wisdom of Parliament, though it certainly was intended by the promoters of the bill. But if it should be held that money does not include money's worth, then, unless it is also held that the advance of money does not include the forbearance of a pecuniary debt, the difficulty may be got over by selling the goods to the trader nominally for prompt payment; and agreeing for a share of profits in respect of the balance left unpaid.

As the words "money or money's worth" are used in the 5th section, it seems that "money" was not understood to include money's worth.

There seems to be no difficulty in making arrangements which shall be clearly within the act. The difficulty is, to say what arrangements will not be within the act, and to construe agreements for partnership or division of profits.

In Richardson's Dictionary, partners are said to be "Persons associated to part, share, or divide what they may gain or possess;" and the first example is from Robert of Gloucester:—

"An ych mot ek of Engeland be thy partyner."

Suppose an agreement in writing between A. and B., stating that B. is engaged in a certain business, and stipulating that A. shall advance 1000*l.* to be employed in the business; that in consideration thereof the profits of the business shall be equally divided between A. and B.; that accounts shall be kept and be always open to the inspection of A.; that the accounts shall be annually balanced, &c. Here are some of the main provisions of a partnership deed, and though the word "partnership" is not used, the equivalent expression "division of profits" is used. Probably A. would not be held liable under the agreement for the debts of the business. But suppose a stipulation were added that A. should not be bound to give any assistance in the conduct of the business. He would not have been bound under the contract, if nothing had been said about it. The addition of this superfluous negative cannot alter his position. "True;" it may be said, "but the stipulation shews that the parties contemplated partnership." They contemplated a division of profits—the carrying on of the business for the benefit of A. and B.—capital furnished by A., management by B. That the act says is not partnership. So far seems clear. But proceed a step. Let the agreement not only provide for the division of profits, but also use the equivalent expression—"partnership." Let it be provided that A. and B. shall be partners in the business of —; that A. shall furnish the capital, B. the superintendence; that the profits shall be divided; that A. shall not be required to give any time or attention to the business. Is the case within the act? "Yes, they expressly agree to be partners." True, partners in profits; that the act allows. What is the difference between "partners in the business" and "partners in the profits of the business?" "But partnership is a technical term, and implies liability for debts." Very well; add a clause that A. is not to be liable for the engagements of the concern.—Will that neutralise the noxious word? "No; A. still has the rights of a partner. He may interfere in and control the business." Very well; stipulate further that he shall not; will the act then apply? Probably it will.

But under sect. 2, A. may agree and be bound to manage the business for B., and this agreement may be made:—

A. lives in London, B. in Paris; A. agrees to provide all the capital required to carry on a business for B. in London; further, to manage the business as "agent" for B.—to keep accounts, &c. B. agrees to adopt all A.'s engagements properly contracted in the business, and to indemnify him—not to dismiss him without a year's notice. To allow him for his capital three-sixths of the profits, for his services two-sixths more. This is within the letter of the act.

But let the agreement be differently framed; let it express that A. shall furnish 10,000*l.*, to be employed in carrying on the business of — in London; that B. shall furnish other 10,000*l.*; that A. shall manage and give all his time and attention to the business—shall not hire any servant or enter into any contract contrary to the expressed wish or direction of B.; that the profits shall be divided, &c.; that either party may determine the agreement by notice. What is this—a partnership, or a statutory contract? If it is a partnership, what makes it so? The stipulation that B. shall bring in 10,000*l.*? What would be the effect of an express declaration that there shall be no partnership? Which would then be liable to the creditors, A. or B., the firm being "X.?" In a partnership each partner is agent for the other, and shares the profits. Sect. 2 says, that an agent may share the profits and not be a partner.

We come at last to the conclusion that the problem may be thus expressed: "Ascertain who is the trader: who borrows the money, or employs the servant or agent"—a problem more easily proposed than solved, for we have to bring the sleeping capitalist and the active manager or agent into the same conception. The rationale of sect. 1 (if a positive enactment can have a rationale) is, that A., who takes profits, but is not liable, is a sleeping partner—does not interfere. That of sect. 2 is, that A. is subject to orders, and can give none. But any partner may, by contract, be subject to orders; and no partner can give orders to a sleeping partner.

In the case of a loan, under sect. 1, the mere title to profits in consideration of the loan is not of itself to constitute partnership. What additional circumstances will change the relation—where there are, or where there are not, in the written contract, other provisions? Will managing the business, as an agent might manage it? Hardly, in the face of sect. 2. A partnership may be constituted dissoluble at will. In the meantime the lawful acts of each partner bind the others. An agency may be constituted dissoluble at will. In the meantime the lawful acts of the agent bind the principal. Which is which? Suppose the parties examined as to the terms of their contract, will the test be, whether or not the word "partnership" passed between them? How much power of imperative control may a lender stipulate for without becoming a partner? May he reserve a power to demand immediate repayment in case the borrower refuses to listen to his advice, or adopt his suggestions?

We have hitherto been dealing with the substance of the act. The 5th section is a little defective in form. It runs thus:—"In the event of any such trader as aforesaid being adjudged a bankrupt, or taking the benefit of any act for the relief of insolvent debtors [there is no such act], or entering into an arrangement to pay his creditors less than 20*s.* in the pound, or dying in insolvent circumstances, the lender of any such loan as aforesaid shall not be entitled to recover any portion of his principal, or of the profits or interest payable in respect of such loan, nor shall any such vendor of a goodwill as aforesaid be entitled to recover any such profits as aforesaid, until the claims of the other creditors of the said trader for valuable consideration in money or money's worth have been satisfied." Suppose that the borrowing trader agrees to wind up his affairs under inspection? This is not an arrangement to pay his creditors less than 20*s.* in the pound, and under such an arrangement there is nothing to exclude the lender from taking a dividend with the other creditors.

LAW REPORTING.

IN March last a preliminary address, with the above heading, bearing the signature of Sir Fitzroy Kelly, was circulated among the members of both divisions of the profession. It stated the appointment of the Bar Committee on the 2nd December, 1863; that they made their report in June, 1864, recommending a scheme; that in November, 1864, at an adjourned meeting of the Bar, the report was adopted; that in Hilary Term, 1865, the report and scheme were submitted to the several Inns of Court, Serjeant's-inn, and the Incorporated Law Society for their consideration; that the Benchers of Lincoln's-inn, the Inner Temple, and Middle Temple, and the Incorporated Law Society, had appointed members of the Council, in conformity with the scheme; and that Gray's-inn had declined, and Serjeant's-inn had not decided, to appoint members of the Council.

The ex-officio members were—The Attorney-General, the Solicitor-General, and the Queen's Advocate.

The elected members were—Sir Fitzroy Kelly, Knt., M.P., and W. T. S. Daniel, Esq., Q. C., of Lincoln's-inn; William Forsyth, Esq., Q. C., and George Markham Giffard, Esq., Q. C., of the Inner Temple; T. W. Greene, Esq., Q. C., and J. B. Karlake, Esq., Q. C., of the Middle Temple; W. S. Cookson, Esq. (firm—Clayton, Cookson, & Wainwright), 6, New-square, Lincoln's-inn, and William Williams, Esq., Vice-President of the Incorporated Law Society (firm—Currie & Williams), Lincoln's-inn-fields, of the Incorporated Law Society.

The address then proceeded as follows:—

"It is now proposed to invite the assistance and co-operation of the several branches of the profession, for the purpose of accomplishing the object involved in the resolutions of the Bar.

"There are published at the present time six independent sets of Reports:—1. The Regular Reports. 2. The Law Journal. 3. The Jurist. 4. The Law Times. 5. The Weekly Reporter. 6. The New Reports. The present cost of all these Reports is about 50*l.* per annum; the cost of the regular Reports alone is about 30*l.* per annum. The multiplicity of the Reports, apart from the cost, occasions the evils of which the profession complain. The remedy proposed is—the establishment, under the management and control of the profession, of ONE SET OF STANDARD REPORTS, upon the basis of a fair regard for existing interests. One complete set of Reports, prepared with the requisite learning, skill, and care, and published with expedition, regularity, and at a moderate cost, is all that is required for citation as authority.

"It needs, surely, no argument to prove how deeply the interests of the public are concerned in the certainty of the law; or how important it is, that the judge who decide, the counsel who advises, and the solicitor under whose guidance the client acts, should all be regulated by one of the same standard of authority. If the legal profession in its several branches co-operate for the purpose, such a set of Reports may be obtained, and their continuance secured under public professional control.

"The proposed Reports would be divided into three series:—

- "1. Appellate—comprising the House of Lords and Privy Council;
- "2. Chancery—including Bankruptcy Appeals and Lunacy;
- "3. Common Law—including the Probate, Matrimonial, Admiralty, and Ecclesiastical Courts."

And then we have the following further announcement:—

"Arrangements have been made for the reception of the names of those who may be willing to become subscribers to a set of Reports to be established with the above objects; but in order that this may be done, it is requisite that 2000 subscribers for the entire series, or a subscription of 10,500*l.* per annum at the least, should be obtained.

"The question of the establishment of the proposed set of Standard Reports is one entirely for the profession to determine, and to their determination it is now submitted.

"Forms of subscription will be circulated, and it is hoped that future proceedings may be decided upon not later than the last day of Trinity Term, the 15th June next.

"In the event of subscriptions to a sufficient amount being received, endeavours will be made to arrange that the Reports commence as from the first day of Michaelmas Term next.

"Names of subscribers will be received and recorded by James Thomas Hopwood, Esq., No. 3, New-square, Lincoln's-inn, Secretary pro tem."

The next intimation on the subject is contained in the following advertisement, which appeared in the last number of THE JURIST (August 5):—

"Council of Law Reporting.

"At a meeting of the Council, held on the 1st August inst., Sir Fitzroy Kelly in the chair, it was unanimously resolved, that the series of Reports in the Superior Courts of Law and Equity, and the Appellate Courts, proposed to be established under the superintendence of the Council, be commenced as from the first day of Michaelmas Term next, and that the necessary arrangements be forthwith made for that purpose.

"The approval of the scheme by the Lord Chancellor and others of her Majesty's judges was communicated to the Council.

"A sub-committee was authorised to receive proposals for the appointment of editors and reporters, subject to the approval of the Council at a future meeting.

"Persons intending to subscribe to the Reports are requested to communicate with the Secretary, James T. Hopwood, Esq., No. 3, New-square, Lincoln's-inn.

"By order,

"Fitzroy Kelly, Chairman.

"Lincoln's-inn, Aug. 3, 1865."

Now, it is very desirable that the scheme recommended by the Bar Committee, and substantially adopted by the Council of Law Reporting in the address of the 11th March, should be carried into effect. But it is equally undesirable that a seventh series of Reports should be commenced without adequate foundation and support.

The representation of the preliminary address was, that a subscription of 10,500*l.* per annum at the least would be necessary; and it was added that the question of the establishment of the proposed Reports was entirely for the profession to determine. The subscriptions which have been sent in on this address are clearly conditional on a sufficient list being made up before they take effect. Subscriptions sent in under the advertisement of August 3, do not appear to us to be subject to any such condition. The distinction is important. If 2000 lawyers subscribe to a series of Reports, there is every reason to expect that the series will always be supported to that extent, and will ultimately make its way, and extinguish or absorb its rivals. Such a subscription will enable the managers to offer at once to the reporters a fair remuneration, with prospect of increase. But to commence a new series of Reports on a subscription materially less than 10,500*l.* per annum, implies either a permanent guarantee—which will certainly cease after a short trial, or very inferior and precarious remuneration to the reporters—if indeed all or some of them do not accept the terms on which a contemporary is said to have commenced, and may, for aught we know, be proceeding—of paying to its reporters what its profits may afford—the amount being probably nothing. Such an undertaking is entirely different from that suggested by the preliminary address, and we conceive ought not to be encouraged, or indeed tolerated. No doubt the Council's position is difficult; and the main difficulty lies, we believe, in the inertia rather than the indifference of the profession. But unless they obtain from bonâ fide subscribers such an amount of support as will enable them to offer acceptable terms to the authorised reporters, or procure in lieu of subscriptions such a guarantee as the authorised reporters will trust, we do not see how they can with propriety commence operations. To create a new staff of reporters, where there are already six, would be absurd; to start with inferior or inexperienced hands, would be to give to the profession something very different from the "Standard Reports" which have been projected.

We think that the Council owes both to those who have sent in their names upon the address of March, and to those who are invited by the advertisement of last week, some explanation of the financial position of the undertaking, and of the arrangements, if any, which have been made, or are proposed, with the authorized reporters.

JURY DE MEDIETATE LINGUÆ.

OXFORD CIRCUIT.

CROWN COURT.—(Before CHANNELL, B.)—July 9.

Samuele Giorgetti was indicted for the wilful murder of Thomas Kelly, on the 27th May, at Newport.

Mr. G. Somerset and Mr. A. S. Hill were for the prosecution.

Mr. Matthews and Mr. H. James were for the prisoner.

The prisoner was an Italian, and claimed a jury de medietate linguae. As the jurymen were being called, it soon became evident that there would be considerable difficulty in getting a jury, from the number of objections raised on the part of both the prisoner and the Crown.

HIS LORDSHIP accordingly had the panel gone through, by calling the names of the jurors; but upon objection raised, they were ordered to stand aside without going into the box. At length the panel was gone through, and nine jurors, without objection, were called into the box. Of these, six were Englishmen and three were foreigners. His Lordship then ordered three more foreigners and aliens to be called. It appeared that some foreigners and aliens had been returned on the ordinary jury panel for the purpose of this trial. One of these foreigners was then called. The Crown objected peremptorily to him, and wished him to be ordered to stand aside.

Mr. Matthews then urged, that upon the statute of the 28 Edw. 1, c. 13 (by which the right was given to have half the jury composed of foreigners, if possible), and upon the 6 Geo. 4, c. 50, the Crown had no right to challenge a foreigner without assigning cause, and that the reason of the thing required the same decision; and further, that the panel had been exhausted by calling out the names of the jurors, and ordering them to stand by, and, therefore, the Crown could no longer challenge without cause.

To this it was replied, on the part of the Crown, that the name of this juror being on the ordinary jury panel, it must be taken that he was naturalised, and not a foreigner; and that the panel had not been exhausted, because the order to stand aside was not equivalent to the giving of a challenge; and further, that the Crown had a right to challenge peremptorily a foreigner, just as any Englishman.

HIS LORDSHIP said that the panel was not exhausted by the standing by of the jurors, and that would only take place when the challenges had been given; and (after consulting Mr. Justice Byles) said, that the spirit of the statute was to secure six foreigners in addition to six Englishmen. That the sheriff was to get the former, either by going out into the streets or in some other way; and if he could not get that number, to get as many as possible to make up the twelve. And that in this case either party had a right to challenge, but that the Crown had only a right to challenge for cause.

The Undersheriff then returned a supplemental panel of foreigners; and upon the name of Dominic Maffia being called, the Crown objected, on the ground that he was a native of the same State to which the prisoner belonged, and that he was about to return there, and had publicly stated, that if he found the prisoner guilty his (the juror's) life would not be safe when he got back to his State. His Lordship ordered two triers to try the truth of this challenge, when it was discovered that the prosecution had mistaken this juror for his brother, and the objection was accordingly withdrawn, and the juror called to the box. The officer of the court then gave him the book, and recited the oath to him, but as the juror was about to raise the book to his lips, and before he had done so, he took the same objection that had been raised for him and withdrawn. It was then suggested that he had already been sworn; but his Lordship ruled that he had not. The prosecution had then put the cause of challenge in writing, when his Lordship stated, that upon reconsideration, and upon looking at several cases mentioned in Joy, of Confessions, which had been handed up to him, he thought that the juror had really been sworn, although he had not kissed the book; and therefore the challenge was too late. The juror then kissed the book. After some further difficulty with respect to another foreigner who had been put on the ordinary panel, and the lapse of two hours and a quarter, a jury was sworn, and the trial commenced.

SUMMER ASSIZES.

HOME CIRCUIT.—CRODON, August 9.

Three courts sat to-day, as every day this week—the first before Mr. Justice Crompton, the senior judge, for special jury cases; the second, before Mr. Baron Pigott, for common jury cases; and a third before Mr. Hawkins, Q. C., also for common jury cases. Several cases were tried or disposed of in the latter two courts, none of which were of any public interest; but the first court was occupied all day with a case which had already taken up part of yesterday. This case was an instance of what was stated yesterday, that if half or even a third of the cases were tried the assizes would not be over till the middle of September, and that the fact is that the causes are disposed of otherwise than by trial, simply because there is not time to try them without waiting here half or all the vacation, and incurring an enormous expense for the maintenance of witnesses, which in many cases would more than outweigh the whole amount in dispute. Already witnesses have been kept waiting in many cases for several days, and as the expense becomes unbearable the parties succumb and settle, or in some way or other take their cases away. Yesterday and to-day several cases, each of which would have taken several days to try, were thus withdrawn. This is the more natural, as most of the cases—indeed, almost all of them—have nothing to do with the county. In the course of the day the venue was changed by consent; thus taking the cases back again to their proper counties, after all the expense of bringing them down here, and waiting here for several days, had been already and uselessly incurred. Of course, if cases are settled or disposed of by mutual agreement, they may be disposed of in any time, and twenty cases may be got rid of in an hour; and it may be easily understood that the rate at which causes go in this way is in the ratio of the delay and expense which the parties have suffered, and is likely to increase every day the assizes last; so that, in truth, when once it is ascertained that cases cannot be tried the rapidity at which they are got rid of may become greater as the assizes draw towards an end. So many cases were thus settled, withdrawn, or disposed of in the course of yesterday and to-day that at the close of the day not above fifty-four cases remained, of which about fourteen were special jury cases. Of these, however, more than one are known of likely to last a day each, so that it is still possible the business may not be concluded this week. On the other hand, if some of those which remain should be withdrawn, settled, or disposed of without trial, it is quite possible that the business may be over by the end of the week, in which case the assizes will have proved one of the shortest known here, for the very same reason from which it was likely that it would prove one of the longest, viz. the great number of the cases entered for trial—a number so great as to render parties indisposed to wait long enough to get their cases tried, especially as almost all of them, with their witnesses, had to come down here from London or some other county. As regards the rate at which cases are tried, it will be seen the special jury cases take at least a day a piece to try such of them as are tried.—The Times.

COMMON-LAW BUSINESS.—The annual return made to the Home-office shews that Westminster-hall has no reason to complain of want of business. 113,158 writs of summons were issued last year from the Courts of Queen's Bench, Common Pleas, and Exchequer; the average is very little over 100,000. The great mass of these claims are settled, and in only about a fourth of them is any appearance entered for the defendant; but more causes were brought to trial last year than usual—1219 at Westminster and Guildhall, and 1035 at the assizes. The plaintiff got a verdict in more than two-thirds of the causes tried, including those which were undefended, and which constituted a fifth of the whole number in London and Westminster, where alone they are distinguished in the returns; the defendant won the day either by verdict in his favour or by nonsuiting the plaintiff, in nearly a sixth of the causes; and the rest were disposed of in various ways—175 referred to arbitration, 38 sent to the full court for argument on a special case, in 86 a juror was withdrawn by consent and no verdict asked, and 35 were puzzling cases in which the jury had to be discharged, unable to agree upon a verdict. One cause on circuit is returned as made a remanet pro defectu juratorum. 17,676 writs of execution against goods were issued from these courts in the year, and 7242 writs of capias for taking the person in execution upon a judgment obtained; the aggregate is above the average, but the latter number is below it. Of the business transacted in full court a just idea can hardly be given by numbers; but it may be noted that in 348 cases application was made for a new trial, or otherwise altering the verdict, and in 110 the application was after argument granted; 308 other special motions were made, and in 236 of them a rule nisi was granted to be afterwards argued by both sides; 54 special cases were heard, 89 demurrers, 14 appeals from decisions of revising barristers. The Court of Queen's Bench had also its Crown-side business to dispose of. The business done in the year at the chambers of the judges did not equal the average amount, but there were 41,123 summonses issued, and 17,826 affidavits or affirmations made; there were 3810 attendances of counsel.

THE CHANCERY VACATION.—Yesterday the Chancery vacation commenced, and will terminate on the 26th October. The office of the Accountant-General will close on the 18th instant, and during the vacation will be reopened for a few days, for the payment of the October dividends. Vice-Chancellor Wood is the vacation judge of the Court of Chancery.

This day is published, price 7s. cloth boards,
A TREATISE on ARRANGEMENTS with CREDITORS under the BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861. With Precedents. To which are added, the Sections of the Bankruptcy Act, 1849 and 1861, and the Rules and Orders relating thereto. With a full Index. By WILLIAM DOWNES GRIFFITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

CHITTY'S COLLECTION OF STATUTES.
Now ready, in 4 very thick vols., price 12l. 12s. cloth,
A COLLECTION of all the STATUTES of PRACTICAL UTILITY, with Notes thereon; intended as a Circuit and Court Companion. The Third Edition, containing all the Statutes of Practical Utility in the Civil and Criminal Administration of Justice to the present time. By W. N. WELSBY and EDWARD BEAVAN, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.
"The principal branches of the Law are arranged alphabetically, and under each is collected all the Statutes relating to it, with explanatory notes. Besides the easy access afforded by the alphabetical arrangement of the subjects, a very copious general Index supplies the means of ready reference to all the subjects of lesser importance to which the various Statutes are directed."
"We could not say more for this great work by any words of approbation than by this short description of it. It is an admirable design admirably executed."—Law Times, May 13, 1855.
"In the debate on the proposed consolidation of the Statutes, on the 9th February, 1854, Lord Campbell said, 'that the Statutes at large extended to about fifty volumes folio, but all the Statutes which were usually required by lawyers for reference might be found in three octavo volumes, compiled by his learned friend Mr. Welsby. When he (Lord Campbell) was upon the Bench, he always had this work by him, and so Statutes were ever referred to by the Bar which he could not find in it.'"
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE LAWS AFFECTING RAILWAYS, BROUGHT DOWN TO THE PRESENT TIME.
Now ready, in one thick vol. royal 8vo., price 1l. 15s. cloth boards,
SIR W. HODGES'S PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW of RAILWAYS, RAILWAY COMPANIES, and RAILWAY INVESTMENTS. With an Appendix of Statutes, Forms, &c. The Fourth Edition. By CHARLES MANLEY SMITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple and Midland Circuit, Barrister at Law.
"The great and increasing interest in everything relating to Railways now manifested by the public, have created such a demand for this valuable work, that the Publisher has been induced to have a new Edition of it prepared. This Edition comprises the important Statutes passed in the Session of 1864, as well as the Standing Orders of the Court of Session of 1865, in addition to the numerous Decisions of the Courts, both of Law and Equity, since the last Edition was published, and such of the Rules of the London Stock Exchange as are applicable to Railways, as amended up to 1864. The task of preparing and conducting through the press this new Edition has been a really arduous one; but no pains have been spared by the learned Editor (whose work on the Law of Master and Servant is well known, not only in Westminster Hall, but also in Ireland, Scotland, and America), to make the work complete; and the Publisher believes that he can with confidence recommend it to all persons interested in Railways, especially Directors, Secretaries, and shareholders, as the most complete work on Railway Law yet offered to the public.
The English and Irish Railway Clearing Acts have also been added to this Edition.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

SHIPPING LAW.
In 8vo., price 20s. cloth, lettered,
THE SHIPPING LAW MANUAL: a concise Treatise on the Law governing the Interests of Shipowners, Merchants, Masters, Seamen, and other Persons connected with British Ships. Together with the Acts of Parliament, Forms, and Precedents relating to the subject. Being especially intended for popular use in Seaport Towns. By W. T. GREENHOW, of the Middle Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law.
"The 'Shipping Law Manual,' by Mr. W. T. Greenhow, brings into a popular shape, and to the latest date, the entire body of legal regulations affecting the shipping trade of the country alike in relation to owners, merchants, masters, and seamen, and is especially adapted for ordinary use by all persons connected with the business of seaport towns."—Times, Jan. 31, 1863.
"The object of the author of this book is to popularise the Law of Merchant Shipping, and to compress within the compass of a single volume all that is necessary to be known by those directly interested in British navigation. It was no easy task to condense and arrange this mass of legislation, so as to make it intelligible to the general reader. But Mr. Greenhow has achieved it, and placed within reach of every one connected with shipping a valuable compendium of the law relating to that branch of industry."—Shipping and Mercantile Gazette.
Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the OFFICE, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, August 13, 1865.

Oke's Jurist

No. 554, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.
No. 1493, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

AUGUST 19, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

OKE'S GAME AND FISHERY LAWS.—Second Edition.

Just published, 12mo., 10s. 6d. cloth,

A HANDY-BOOK of the GAME and FISHERY LAWS throughout the United Kingdom. By GEORGE C. OKE, Author of "The Magisterial Synopsis," &c. Second Edition. London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

Just published,
HALL'S LEGAL FORMS in COMMON LAW and CONVEYANCING, containing Seventy Practical Forms, for Use of Attorneys and Solicitors. By W. C. HALL, Attorney at Law. 12mo., price 5s.
Horace Cox, 10, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

In the press,
THE LAW of FIRE INSURANCE. By C. J. BUNYON, M.A., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law, Author of "The Law of Life Assurance," &c.
London: Charles & Edwin Layton, Fleet-street, Depot for Books on Assurance, Fire, Life, and Marine.

This day is published, in 12mo., price 2s. 6d. cloth, lettered,
COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION; or the New Act, 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99, conferring further Equitable Jurisdiction on the County Courts. With Notes. By JAMES J. ASTON, Esq., Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, in demy 12mo., 1016 pp., price 1l. 12s. cloth,
ROGERS on ELECTIONS, ELECTION COMMITTEES, and REGISTRATION. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Tenth Edition. With the new Registration Statute, and all the Election and Registration Cases to the present time. By F. S. P. WOLFERSTAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

TILSLEY'S STAMP ACTS.

In 8vo., price 12s. 6d. cloth,

A DIGEST of the STAMP ACTS, and the JUDICIAL DECISIONS on the STAMP LAWS, not contained in the Author's Treatise; including the Probate, Legacy, and Succession Duties; with Tables of all the Stamp Duties. By HUGH TILSLEY, Assistant Solicitor of Inland Revenue. Ninth Edition, revised, by his Son, EDWARD HUGH TILSLEY, of the Inland Revenue Office.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 8vo., price 15s. cloth,

A HAND-BOOK of PRECEDENTS in CONVEYANCING. By FRANCIS HOUSMAN, Barrister at Law.
"We know of no work of the kind which contains within the same limited number of pages, and consequently at the same moderate price, so extensive a collection of forms readily applicable to the various exigencies of the draftsman."—Law Magazine, August, 1861.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

BURTON ON REAL PROPERTY.—Eighth Edition.

Price 1l. 4s. cloth,

A N ELEMENTARY COMPENDIUM of the LAW of REAL PROPERTY. By W. H. BURTON, Esq. With Notes, showing the Alterations in the Law to the present time. To which is now prefixed an Introductory Chapter, giving a concise Historical Outline of such Parts of the Law as have been the subject of Statutory Alteration. By EDWARD PRIESTLEY COOPER, Esq., Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

BY AUTHORITY.

In royal 8vo., price 7s. 6d. cloth,

THE CONSOLIDATED GENERAL ORDERS of the HIGH COURT OF CHANCERY; with Regulations as to certain Fees and Charges.
"The new arrangement of the Orders leaves nothing to be wished for: it is clear, convenient, and admirably adapted for the purposes of practice. Although the language of the old Orders has been adhered to as far as possible, it has been altered whenever it was found necessary for the purpose of adapting them to the present practice, and also for the purpose of removing those doubts and difficulties which so frequently arose under the old Orders."—Jurist, Jan. 21, 1860.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

No. 554, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

Price 5s. cloth boards,

A HANDY-BOOK of the LAW of COPYRIGHT, comprising Literary, Dramatic, and Musical Copyright, and Copyright in Engravings, Sculpture, and Works of Art. With an Appendix, containing the Statutes, Convention with France, and Forms under the 25 & 26 Vict. c. 68. By F. P. CHAPPELL and JOHN SHOARD, LL.D.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE CONTRACT OF SALE

A TREATISE on the EFFECT of the CONTRACT of SALE on the LEGAL RIGHTS of PROPERTY and POSSESSION in GOODS, WARES, and MERCHANDISE. By COLIN BLACKBURN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. 8vo., price 12s. boards.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE DECISIONS of the RIGHT HON. LORD EVERSLEY.

The Second Edition, price 12s.,

THE DECISIONS of the Right Honourable Lord EVERSLEY, late Speaker of the House of Commons, on Points of Order, Rules of Debate, and the General Practice of the House. The Second Edition, revised, corrected, and continued to the present time. By the Hon. ROBERT BOURKE, of the Inner Temple; Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.
68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.
DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q.C.
Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.
Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.
Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.
Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office.
C. B. CLABON, Sec.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS in the POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS at PARTRIDGE & COZENS,
WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS in PARCHEMENT.
192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 20s.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bond fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual RETAIL charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.
Draft Paper, 6s., 7s., 7s. 9d., and 9s. per ream.
Brief Paper, 13s. 6d., 16s., and 18s. 6d. per ream.
Foolscap Paper, 10s. 6d., 13s. 6d., and 17s. 6d. per ream.
Cream Laid Note, 3s., 4s., and 5s. per ream.
Large Cream Laid Note, 4s., 6s., and 7s. 6d. per ream.
Large Blue Note, 3s., 4s., and 6s. per ream.
Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2s. 9d., 3s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. per 1000.
Foolscap Official Envelopes, 1s. 6d. per 100, or 13s. 6d. per 1000.
Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, Piercers, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25s.; Good Stand for ditto, with two Drawers, 17s.

Parchment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1s. 6d. each, or 17s. per dozen.
Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1s. 4d. each, or 15s. per dozen.
Records or Memorials, Ruled, 5s. per dozen, or 22s. 6d. per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.
An Illustrated Price List of Inkstands; Postage Scales; Writing-cases; Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post free.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

F F

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	319
Correspondence	321
Infanticide.—The Indian Penal Code.....	323
Descent.—Limitation to the Heirs of the Settlor	323
Statutes passed during the late Session of Parliament.

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

HOUSE OF LORDS.

By W. W. KNOX, Barrister at Law.

Bowes v. The Hope Mutual Life Insurance and Honesty Guarantee Society.—(Winding up—Judgment debt impeached—Companies Act, 1862—"Registered" company—"Unregistered" company).....	643
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. MARRETT, Barrister at Law.

Kisch v. Venezuela Railway Company.—(Public company—Prospectus—Fraud—Misrepresentation). 646
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	--

ROLLS COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Lister v. Pickford.—(Will—Devise of "land in G., with its appurtenances"—Possession by trustee—Statute of Limitations).....	649
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

ROLLS COURT—(Continued).

Mackenzie v. Bradbury.—(Will—Erroneous recital in codicil—New gift)	650
---------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVEBAY, Barrister at Law.

Barker, App., Davis, Resp.—(Game—Right of shooting—Evidence)	651
--------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By R. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

Phelps v. The London and North-western Railway Company.—(Carriers—Passenger's luggage—Deeds, documents, and bank notes—Ordinary luggage)	652
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

By W. BRANDT, Barrister at Law.

Sacker, Assignee, v. Chidley.—("Possession, order, and disposition" of bankrupt)	654
Morgan v. Gath.—(Statute of Frauds—Agreement in writing—Substituting one contract for another)	654
Saunders and Waine v. Merewether and Another.—(Estoppel—Recitals in deed).....	656

COURT FOR DIVORCE AND MATRIMONIAL CAUSES.

By W. ERNEST BROWNING, Barrister at Law.

Cousen v. Cousen.—(Cruelty).....	656
----------------------------------	-----

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

JARMAN ON WILLS, by WOLSTENHOLME and VINCENT.

The Third Edition, in 2 vols. royal 8vo., price 3*l.* 3*s.*

A TREATISE ON THE LAW OF WILLS. By THOMAS JARMAN, Esq. The Third Edition. By E. P. WOLSTENHOLME, M.A., and S. VINCENT, B.A., of Lincoln's-inn and the Inner Temple, Barristers at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NEW EDITIONS OF LORD ST. LEONARDS' WORKS.

Price 1*l.* 1*8s.* cloth, the Fourteenth Edition, much enlarged.

A CONCISE and PRACTICAL TREATISE ON the LAW OF VENDORS and PURCHASERS OF ESTATES. By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

Also, uniform with the above, in 1 thick vol. royal 8vo., the Eighth Edition, price 1*l.* 1*5s.* cloth.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE OF POWERS.

By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 1*l.* 5*s.* cloth.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON THE NEW STATUTES relating to PROPERTY. The Second Edition. By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY.

PRINCIPLES OF THE LAW OF REAL PROPERTY, intended as a first Book for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law. The Sixth Edition, enlarged. 8vo., price 1*l.* cloth.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

••• The Publisher respectfully informs the Profession that the above book has been reprinted, and that copies can now be had at all bookellers in town and country.

WILLIAMS (JOSHUA) ON PERSONAL PROPERTY.

The Fifth Edition, price 1*8s.* cloth boards.

PRINCIPLES OF THE LAW OF PERSONAL PROPERTY, intended for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

JOSHUA WILLIAMS ON REAL ASSETS.

Price 6*s.* cloth boards.

AN ESSAY ON REAL ASSETS; or the Payment of the Debts of a deceased Person out of his Real Estate, and the Means by which that Payment ought to be accomplished. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

STARKIE'S LAW OF EVIDENCE.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON THE LAW OF EVIDENCE. BY THOMAS STARKIE, Esq. Fourth Edition, with very considerable alterations and additions; incorporating the Statutes and reported Cases to the time of publication. By G. M. DOWDESWELL and J. G. MALCOLM, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. In 1 vol. royal 8vo., 1853, price 1*l.* 1*6s.* cloth.

In the parliamentary debate on disqualified witnesses (House of Commons, Feb. 12, 1861), referring to the case of Maden v. Cefnack, Sir G. C. Lewis said, "He would read from Starkie on Evidence, which was known to be a standard work upon the subject, a statement of the law as applicable to the case (vide Examination as to Religious Belief, pp. 115, 116). That is a clear statement of the rule of law upon the subject."

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

LEVI'S COMMERCIAL LAW.

In 2 vols. royal 8vo., price 3*5s.* cloth, lettered.

INTERNATIONAL COMMERCIAL LAW. Being the Principles of Mercantile Law of the following and other Countries—viz. England, Scotland, Ireland, British India, British Colonies,

Austria,	France,	Netherlands,	Spain,
Belgium,	Germany,	Norway,	Sweden,
Brazil,	Greece,	Portugal,	Switzerland,
Buenos Ayres,	Hans Towns,	Prussia,	United States,
Denmark,	Italy,	Russia,	Wurtemberg.

By LEONE LEVI, Esq., F.S.A., F.R.S., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law, Professor of the Principles and Practice of Commerce in King's College, London, &c. In 2 vols. royal 8vo. 1863.

Stevens & Sons, Law Bookellers and Publishers No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

PHILLIPS' LAW OF COPYRIGHT.

In 8vo., price 1*2s.* cloth,

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT IN WORKS OF LITERATURE and ART, and in the Application of Designs With the Statutes relating thereto. By CHARLES PALMER PHILLIPS, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 8vo. 1863.

"Mr. Phillips has shown, not only great diligence in collecting cases bearing upon the various topics which he has treated, but considerable judgment in the manner in which he has dealt with them. He has spared no pains to make his work reliable as a legal text-book, and at the same time equally useful to publishers, authors, artists, and other persons who are interested in works of literature, art, or design. In a word, such a book has long been wanted, and Mr. Phillips has given abundant proof of his ability to meet the desideratum."—Scholar's Journal, Nov. 14, 1863.

Stevens & Sons, Law Bookellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, AUGUST 12, 1865.

Of the many doubtful questions which have arisen under the 192nd, and eight following sections of the 24 & 25 Vict. c. 134, one not the least difficult of solution is, as to the validity and effect of a deed of arrangement, under the 192nd section, between joint debtors, and their joint and separate creditors, when such joint debtors have both joint and separate estates. It is provided by the 197th section of the said act, that "from and after the registration of every such deed" (i. e. a deed under the 192nd section), "all parties bound thereby shall, in all matters relating to the estate and effects of such debtor, be subject to the jurisdiction of the Court of Bankruptcy, and shall respectively have the benefit of, and be liable to, all the provisions of this act, in the same or like manner as if the debtor had been adjudged a bankrupt, and the creditors had proved, and the trustees had been appointed creditors' assignees under such bankruptcy; and the existing or future trustees of any such deed or instrument, and the creditors under the same, shall, as between themselves respectively, and as between themselves and the debtor, and against third persons, have the same powers, rights, and remedies, with respect to the debtor and his estate and effects, and the collection and recovery of the same, as are possessed, or may be used or exercised, by assignees or creditors, with respect to the bankrupt, or his acts, estate, and effects in bankruptcy; and, except where the deed shall expressly provide otherwise, the Court shall determine all questions arising under the deed according to the law and practice in bankruptcy, so far as they may be applicable, and shall have power to make and enforce all such orders as it would be authorised to do, if the debtor in such deed had been adjudged bankrupt, and his estate was administered in bankruptcy."

Now, in bankruptcy, when joint debtors, having joint and separate estates, become bankrupt, distinct accounts must be kept of the joint estate, and also of the separate estate or estates of each bankrupt, and the separate estate will be applied in the first instance in satisfaction of the debts owing to the separate creditors, and, in case there be an overplus of the separate estate, such overplus will be carried to the account of the joint estate; and in case there be an overplus of the joint estate, such overplus will be carried to the account of the separate estates of each bankrupt, in proportion to the right and interest of each bankrupt in the joint estate. (See the Orders in Bankruptcy, 19th October, 1852—order 54; and, also, the General Orders in Bankruptcy, 1861—order 96). The question, therefore, that arises is, whether a deed so framed as to interfere with the above-mentioned principle of distribution in bankruptcy, can be a valid deed under sect. 192 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, and pleadable as a defence in an action at law against the debtor by a mere assenting creditor. A recent decision on the subject has made a distinction, under such circumstances, between a deed of composition and a deed of assignment. We refer to the decision of the Court of Exchequer in the recent case of Walker and Others v. William Nevill and William James Nevill (11 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 246). In that case the plaintiffs sued the defendants on a joint and several bond, to recover the sum of 10,000*l.*; the defendant William Nevill pleaded that he had entered into a deed of arrangement, under the 192nd section of the Bankruptcy Act, 1861. The deed was set out in the plea, and was made between both the defendants and all their creditors, and it shewed that there were joint and separate creditors, and joint and separate estates, of the defendants, and that a uniform composition was to be paid both to the joint and to the separate creditors. The plea then contained an averment, that "a majority in number, representing three-fourths in value of the said creditors of the defendants, and each of them, executed the indenture; or in writing assented thereto, or approved thereof." To this plea the plaintiffs replied specially, "that there were joint creditors and also separate creditors, and that the defendants were possessed of joint property and estate, and each of them was possessed of separate property and estate." The plaintiffs also demurred to the plea. The Court decided that the plea was good; that the deed was clearly within the meaning of the 192nd section of the Bankruptcy Act; and that, being a deed of composition, and not of assignment, the 197th section did not apply; in other words, that there was no objection in such a case to the joint and separate creditors being put upon the same footing, and receiving composition at a uniform rate. With regard to this branch of the case, the Court said, "Whatever weight there might be in the objection, as applicable to a deed of assignment, where the property is to be distributed, but at the same time a distribution according to the law of bankruptcy, as applicable to joint and separate creditors and joint and separate estates, is excluded, we think that it does not invalidate a deed of composition and insolvency good within the 192nd section; and we think that the words of the 197th section, which we have been considering, may be so read as to be inapplicable to a deed of composition, however they may apply to and affect a deed of distribution." Another objection was raised by the plaintiffs, that the deed ought not to be held to bind non-assenting creditors, unless a majority in number, representing three-fourths in value of each class of creditors (i. e. of the joint and of the separate creditors) had assented. It is to be observed, however, on this point, the Court did not offer any opinion, but said that they thought that the allegation in the plea, that a majority of the said creditors of the defendants, and each of them, assented, was a sufficient averment of such assent by the requisite number of creditors of each class.

On the whole, assuming that it was the intention of the Legislature, that partnerships should be discharged from their liabilities, by entering into arrangements of this nature, we do not see any reason to impugn the decision of the Court of Exchequer in this important case. It appears impossible to read the 197th section of the Bankruptcy Act, and say, that it was intended to apply to any case other than that of an assignment, collection, recovery, and distribution of a debtor's estate. Hence, if the deed be a deed of composition within the 192nd section, no valid objection can be raised on the ground, that the joint and separate creditors are put upon the same footing as to the amount of their composition, and the order of distribution observed in the Courts of Bankruptcy thus interfered with. With respect to the number of assenting creditors to deeds of composition and assignment of the nature now in discussion, it seems to be only a just and equitable interpretation of the words of the statute—"a majority in number, representing three-fourths in value of the creditors," &c., to define them to mean a majority &c. of the joint creditors, and also a majority of the separate creditors. It would certainly seem to be unjust to allow all the separate creditors, with a sufficient number of the joint creditors, to constitute a majority to bind the rest of the joint creditors, or vice versa. By consenting to a deed of composition, in some cases the joint, and in other cases the separate, creditors, will receive less in discharge of their debts than if the debtors became bankrupt, and their joint and separate estates were distributed according to the rules in bankruptcy. In order, therefore, that non-assenting creditors may be bound, and prevented from taking what they would be entitled to receive under such rules, it is only fair that a consent of a majority of each class should be first obtained. And here we may refer to the case of Ex parte Cockburn (10 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 573), wherein this question was adverted to; and the Lord Chancellor said—"In this case I am obliged to assume that there is no joint estate, because it lies at the very foundation of this objection" (that a majority of the joint creditors had not assented) "that there should be a joint estate. If there had been any joint estate, there might have been some weight in the objection." These remarks shew the tendency of his Lordship's opinion. The result is, that until the Courts pronounce an opinion opposed to the view above suggested, the only safe course for practitioners will be, to obtain the assent of a majority of each class of creditors.

Having thus far considered the question, so far as regards composition deeds, we will now turn to deeds of assignment between joint debtors (having joint and separate estates) and their creditors. The Court of Exchequer in the case of Walker v. Nevill, expressed no decided opinion as to whether the deed in that case (making the same provision for both joint and separate creditors) would have been valid, supposing it had been a deed of assignment. In the case of Leonard v. Sheard (5 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 1050), the defendants, being joint debtors, pleaded a deed of assignment under the 224th section of the Bankrupt-law Consolidation Act, 1849, whereby they conveyed all their joint and separate estates to trustees, upon trust to pay the trust moneys (after payment of expenses) among themselves and the other creditors of the defendants, and to pay the ultimate surplus (if any), and also the dividends of such of the creditors who should not execute the deed, to the defendants. The plaintiffs replied, that there were separate creditors to the amount of more than 10*l*. To this the defendants rejoined, and demurred. The Court of Queen's Bench held that this deed was invalid, for under the Bankrupt-law Consolidation Act, 1849, sect. 228 (as by the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, sect. 197), joint and separate estates under deeds of arrangement, were to be distributed in like manner as in bankruptcy. And Erle, J., said, "By the deed, the joint and separate property, and the joint and separate assets of the defendants, are assigned to the trustees, and the trusts provide for the distribution of the estate among the joint creditors. In a case of bankruptcy the joint assets would be distributed among the joint creditors, and the separate assets among the separate creditors. Therefore, a distribution of joint and separate assets among joint creditors only, is not in conformity with the bankrupt law." As there is no decision on this point under the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, it is, at all events, safer, in drawing such deeds, to adopt the doctrine which the Court laid down in Leonard v. Sheard as the rule of interpretation of the 197th section of that act. The probability is, whenever a case of this kind should arise, a deed of assignment, made by joint debtors having joint and separate estates, must, in order to be held a valid deed, substantially provide for the distribution of the joint estate among the joint creditors, and the separate estate among the separate creditors. In Shell v. De Mattos (3 H. & C. 30) there was a clause introduced into the deed as follows:—"1. That the said estate shall be administered in accordance with the principles of the present bankrupt law in England, or as near thereto as circumstances will permit, having regard to the terms of these presents." It would seem that even such a clause would not, on the above view, be sufficient, inasmuch as circumstances, or the terms of the deed, might limit the known order of distribution in bankruptcy, and that nothing short of the unqualified and unconditional adoption of the principles of distribution in bankruptcy would be sufficient. If this be so, the trustees under a deed of assignment for distribution of an insolvent estate must adopt the principles of the Court of Bankruptcy; and though with regard to the machinery of the court there may not be, in the case of assignments by separate debtors, any occasion to resort to it for aid, yet in the case of firms, where there are joint estates and separate estates, and all the complications that necessarily attend the adjustment of the affairs of a partnership in difficulties, the interposition of the Court of Bankruptcy would appear to be inevitable; and it would all appear to come to this—that a deed of assignment for distribution under sect. 192, is either inapplicable to partnership concerns, or only applicable by the scheme being worked out by the Court of Bankruptcy, and being a bankruptcy in fact, though not a bankruptcy by name.

THE RECORDERSHIP OF FALMOUTH.—By a recent act of Parliament the office of recorder is abolished, and the borough court is to be discontinued. All the prisoners are to be removed to Cornwall county prison. The recorder is to receive his salary for life, or until the receipt of another appointment. The act is to take effect on the 1st January.

Correspondence.

LAW REPORTING.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE JURIST."

SIR,—In reference to the article upon Law Reporting, which appeared in THE JURIST of the 12th inst., I would desire to state, that materials were submitted to the council, at the meeting on the 1st inst., which, in the unanimous opinion of those present, called for the resolution, "that the Reports be commenced as from the first day of Michaelmas Term next." In pursuance of the scheme of the Bar Committee, the offer has been made to the existing authorised reporters, of the appointments in their respective courts, and I have no reason to doubt but that, with probably only one exception, all those gentlemen will concur in the proposed arrangement. I am happy to say that the existing authorised reporters of the House of Lords, the Courts of the Lord Chancellor, Lords Justices, Vice-Chancellor Kindersley, Vice-Chancellor Stuart, Vice-Chancellor Wood, the Court of Common Pleas, and the Court of Probate and Divorce, have already accepted the offer made to them; so that their respective publications will, at all events, cease, as from Michaelmas Term next, except as to arrears, with which the council have nothing to do.

Any appointment that may not be filled by any existing authorised reporter will, I have no doubt, be given to gentlemen of known professional ability and experience in reporting, of whom there are, as might be expected, many who are anxious to forward the public objects which the council are endeavouring to accomplish.

In the absence of express authority from the council, the members of which are now scattered for the Long Vacation, I do not feel justified in stating in your columns the details of the materials upon which the council were led to the resolution of the 1st inst., but I may state generally, that they involved financial security, and the highest judicial and professional sanction.

There has been no secrecy or mystery about the arrangements; they have been generally communicated to persons interested, and, I believe, have given satisfaction to all those who think the Bar scheme a desirable plan of amendment.

The complete and final arrangements will, no doubt, be made in October, when the members of the council will be able conveniently to meet again.

I have the honour to be,

Your obedient servant,

JAMES T. HOPWOOD,

Secretary.

3, New Square, Aug. 15, 1865.

[We are very glad to receive the explanation contained in Mr. Hopwood's letter, an explanation needed to justify, and fully justifying, the resolution of the council. The concurrence of the regular reporters and the sanction of the judges will satisfy the scruples of all who were standing aloof from fear of a seventh plague. We congratulate Mr. Daniel on a success which may now be considered as secure, and which is almost entirely due to his able and persevering conduct of the agitation.]

INFANTICIDE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE JURIST."

SIR,—Mr. Justice Willes, in his able charge to the Grand jury at Wells (reported in the Times, Aug. 9), drew attention to a defect in the law, which has often caused a failure of justice. In a large number of cases of child murder, the question arises as to whether the child when it was killed had "a separate and complete existence." In Reg. v. Brain (6 Car. & P. 349), Mr. Justice Park, in summing up, said, "A child must be actually wholly in the world in a living state to be the subject of a charge of murder; but if it has been wholly born, and is alive, it is not essential that it should have breathed at the time it was killed, as many children are born alive, and yet do not breathe for some time after their birth. But you must be satisfied that the child was wholly born into the world at the time it was killed, or you ought not to find the prisoner guilty of murder."

And a child is considered "wholly born," although attached to the mother by the umbilical cord. (See Reg. v. Trilloe, 2 Moo. C. C. 260). This had been previously doubted. The defect, however, in the law pointed out by Mr. Justice Willes still remains in this country, although in India the subject has been dealt with, and the law amended.

The Indian Penal Code passed by the Legislative Council in 1860, enacts, that "the causing of the death of a child in the mother's womb is not homicide; but it may amount to culpable homicide to cause the death of a living child, if any part of that child has been brought forth, though the child may not have breathed, or been completely born." (Explanation 3 to sect. 299). The learned editors of this Code, Mr. Morgan and Mr. Macpherson, in a note, make the following comment upon this section:—

"Instead of an uncertain period, which it would be difficult to define satisfactorily, and which would in many cases of infanticide greatly add to the difficulty of proof, a definite and readily ascertained point of time (that is, the time when any part of the child is brought forth) is fixed, to denote when the child may become a subject of culpable homicide.

"If no part of the child has been brought forth, any bodily injury which it receives, however criminal, does not constitute an offence under this section; though it may be an offence under subsequent provisions of the chapter (see sects. 315 and 316), and this, whether such injury prevents the child from being born alive, or causes the death of the child afterwards. If any part of the child has been brought forth, the causing of its death may amount to culpable homicide—not because the child in this state has necessarily, and in all cases a more independent existence than while it is wholly unborn, or because it is now more likely to live than before (for the part first brought forth may be such as to put the child's life in great peril), but, as we have already seen, because this is a definite period of time."

One of the sections referred to, sect. 315, is as follows:—

"Whoever before the birth of any child does any act with the intention of thereby preventing that child from being born alive, or causing it to die after its birth, and does by such act prevent that child from being born alive, or causes it to die after its birth, shall, if such act be not caused in good faith for the purpose of saving the life of the mother, be punished with imprisonment of either description, for a term which may extend to ten years, or with fine, or with both."

Sect. 316 is as follows:—

"Whoever does any act under such circumstances, that if he thereby caused death he would be guilty of culpable homicide, and does by such act cause the death of a quick unborn child, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description, for a term which may extend to ten years, and shall also be liable to fine."

Illustration (which is part of the Code):—

"A., knowing that he is likely to cause the death of a pregnant woman, does an act which, if it caused the death of the woman, would amount to culpable homicide. The woman is injured, but does not die; but the death of the quick unborn child with which she is pregnant is thereby caused. A. is guilty of the offence defined in this section."

In a letter from R. R., which appears in the Times of the 10th August, he states, "I know, moreover, that there is a very common idea among the ignorant, that if an infant is not allowed to breathe at its birth, it is not alive, and, therefore, cannot be said to be murdered, if not allowed to breathe."

There can be little doubt that "the common idea among the ignorant," alluded to by R. R., has arisen from the application of what is termed the hydrostatic test, i.e. evidence derived from the lungs, floating or not floating in water, for the purpose of proving whether a child has or has not respired.

Dr. A. S. Taylor has pointed out in his well-known work on Medical Jurisprudence, that this test is no more capable of shewing that a child has been born alive or dead, than it is of proving whether it has been murdered or died from natural causes; but that it is of course useful for the purpose of shewing whether a child has breathed.

It is somewhat remarkable, that the evidence given upon trials for child murder, as to the floating power of the lungs, should have caused the ignorant to believe that a child which had not breathed might be murdered with impunity.

H. B. P.

INFANTICIDE.—THE INDIAN PENAL CODE.

THE provisions and illustrations contained in the Indian Penal Code, with respect to infanticide, exposure, and concealment of birth, are as follows:—

299. Whoever causes death by doing an act, with the intention of causing death, or with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, or with the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death, commits the offence of culpable homicide.

Explanation 3.—The causing of the death of a child in the mother's womb is not homicide; but it may amount to culpable homicide to cause the death of a living child, if any part of that child has been brought forth, though the child may not have breathed, or been completely born.

315. Whoever before the birth of any child does any act with the intention of thereby preventing that child from being born alive, or causing it to die after its birth, and does by such act prevent that child from being born alive, or causes it to die after its birth, shall, if such act be not caused in good faith for the purpose of saving the life of the mother, be punished with imprisonment of either description, for a term which may extend to ten years, or with a fine, or with both.

316. Whoever does any act under such circumstances that if he thereby caused death, he would be guilty of culpable homicide, and does by such act cause the death of a quick unborn child, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description, for a term which may extend to ten years, and shall also be liable to fine.

Illustration.—A., knowing that he is likely to cause the death of a pregnant woman, does an act which, if it caused the death of the woman, would amount to culpable homicide. The woman is injured, but does not die; but the death of the quick unborn child with which she is pregnant is thereby caused. A. is guilty of the offence defined in this section.

317. Whoever, being the father or mother of a child under the age of twelve years, or having the care of such child, shall expose or leave such child in any place with the intention of wholly abandoning such child, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description, for a term which may extend to seven years, or with fine, or with both.

Explanation.—This section is not intended to prevent the trial of the said offender for murder or culpable homicide, as the case may be, if the child die in consequence of the exposure.

318. Whoever, by secretly burying, or otherwise disposing of, the dead body of a child, whether such child die before, or after, or during its birth, intentionally conceals, or endeavours to conceal, the birth of such child, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description, for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both.

DESCENT.—LIMITATION TO THE HEIRS OF SETTLOR.

THE Inheritance Act (3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 106, s. 5) enacts, "that when any land shall have been devised by any testator who shall have died after the 31st December, 1833, to the heir, or to the person who shall be heir of such testator, such heir shall be considered to have acquired the land as a devisee, and not by descent; and when any land shall have been limited by any assurance executed after the said 31st December, 1833, to the person or to the heir of the person who shall thereby have conveyed the same land, such person shall be considered to have acquired the same as a purchaser by virtue of such assurance, and shall not be considered to be entitled thereto as his former estate, or part thereof."

The old rule was, that under a devise to the testator's heir, or in trust for his heir, the heir took by his elder title as heir, and not under the will; and even on the devise of an estate which had descended to the testator from his mother to the person who was the testator's heir on the mother's side, the heir took by descent, and not under the will; and under a feoffment or grant to the use of the feoffor or grantor and his heirs, the descent was not changed.

In the case of a devise of an estate inherited by the testator from his mother to his heir, the act says, that the heir shall take by purchase and not by descent, but it provides no express solution for the question, "Which heir was intended to take?" In a matter so purely arbitrary as the rules of descent, it is impossible to make any inference of intention as to a casus omissus beyond, at most, such inference as may be required either for the sake of symmetry or to avoid some gross absurdity. The Legislature has said that the devisee is to take by purchase; in other words, that on the death and intestacy of the devisee the devisee's heir general shall take by descent. But it has given no rule for ascertaining the devisee himself. Mr. Hayes, in his comment upon the act, distinguishes between a devise to the heir (whether by name or by description as heir) and a devise to the heirs of the testator, and observes, that "the legal import of a limitation by will to the heirs or right heirs generally (as distinguished from a devise to the individual heir) of the testator, which does not appear to be altered by the act, is equivalent to a declaration of intestacy, as regards the estate to which it applies." We venture to think that this is not so, and that whether the testator devises to his heir, or his right heir, or to his heirs, or his right heirs, the enactment applies, and gives effect to the devise. Coparceners make one heir, but they may properly be described as heirs, and if the testator has daughters as his heirs presumptive, or is disposing of gavelkind lands, he will naturally use the word "heirs." The application of the enactment ought not to be governed by such nice distinctions. If a testator uses words of gift, effect should be allowed to the gift. If, instead of giving the estate to his heir, he says, "I leave my estate at —, to descend to my heir," then clearly there is no gift within the statute.

In Davis v. Kirk (2 Kay & J. 591) a testator, by a will dated in 1845, devised the residue of his real estate to a trustee, upon trust to pay the rents to his wife during her life; and after her decease, to convey the residuary real estate to such person as should answer the description of his heir-at-law. Part of the testator's real estate was copyhold, which had descended to him from his mother. Sir W. P. Wood, V.C., held, that the customary heir ex parte paternâ was also the heir-at-law. "The expression," he said, "heir-at-law" is somewhat strong; but independently of that, the fact of the testator having divested the inheritable quality of the estate by breaking the descent entirely, and giving the estate to the trustees, and leaving them to find out the heir, has put them under an obligation to look upon the heir as a persona designata; and they cannot regard the inheritable quality of the estate, but they must find out the person who answers the description of heir-at-law of the testator. I think that there is not any authority precisely in point; but the principle must be, that when once the descent is broken by a devise of the whole fee-simple to trustees, upon trust to convey it to the testator's heir, they are bound to convey it to the person who is heir of the testator according to the common law."

The question clearly is, as to the construction of the will, and not as to the effect of the statute; and though formerly a devise of the testator's maternal inheritance to his heir would not have operated, although a devise of the estate to the person who was actually his heir ex parte paternâ would have operated, the old authorities, which proceeded on the ground of preferring a descent to a devise, cannot be considered as applicable to a state of things in which a devise is preferred to a descent. Technical reasoning might point to the heir to whom the estate would descend as the proper object of the devise: the subject of gift being a descendible estate, and the donee being described as the person who would take by descent, it would seem that the person who would take that particular estate must be the object. But on the other hand, the expression is applicable to the heir general; and he is the person who is most commonly in the contemplation of a testator as being his heir, and most likely to have been intended as the object of a gift to the heir. And, though a gift of pure personality to the heir of a person, by way of substitution, passes to the next of kin, yet, an original gift, even of personality, goes to the heir-at-law. (De Beauvoir v. De Beauvoir, 3 H. L. C. 524). And this is in accordance with the rule, that under a devise of gavelkind, or borough English lands, to the heirs of A., or to the testator's heirs male, the common-law heir, and not the customary heir, will take. (Rob. Gavelk. 156; Thorp v. Owen, 2 Sm. & Giff. 91).

In the case of Heywood v. Heywood (11 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 633), the question arose upon a marriage settlement by a lady, of lands which she inherited through her mother, as heiress of Serjeant Heywood. The lands were conveyed by the heiress to trustees upon trust for the settlor, her heirs and assigns, until the marriage, and then upon trust for her for life, and after her death for her children; and in default of children, in trust for her, her heirs, and assigns, in case she should survive her husband; but if she should die in his lifetime, then from and after her decease and failure of issue, upon such trusts as she should appoint; and in default of appointment, in trust for the person who, on her decease, would have become entitled to the estate in case she had died intestate, and without having been married. The marriage took effect, and the settlor died in her husband's lifetime without issue, and without having appointed. It was contended by her heir ex parte paternâ, that if the limitation in question had not been inserted, and the settlor had died after having executed the settlement, but without having been married, he would have taken by descent, the settlement having broken the course of descent; and that the limitation, being merely an expression of intestacy, must have the same operation. But the Master of the Rolls held that the heir ex parte maternâ was intended, and was entitled; reading the limitation as if it had been thus expressed:—"To the person who would have been entitled to the estate in case she had died intestate, and without having married, and without having executed this settlement."

We conceive that in this the Court went beyond the limits of construction. All that was expressed, and, doubtless, all that was intended, was to limit the estate to the heirs, to the exclusion of the husband—the exclusion of the husband being the main object. What probably was not intended, because not thought of, and if intended, was certainly not expressed or suggested, was to correct or cure the operation of the settlement as a conveyance breaking the descent. The intention was wholly irrespective of any interruption of the course of descent, which, indeed, might have been previously effected by a mortgage and reconveyance.

SMITH'S ACTION AT LAW, 1863.

In 12mo., price 12s. cloth.

AN ELEMENTARY VIEW OF THE PROCEEDINGS in an ACTION AT LAW. By JOHN WILLIAM SMITH, Esq., late of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law, Author of "Leading Cases," "A Compendium of Mercantile Law," &c. Eighth Edition, adapted to the present practice, by SAMUEL PRENTICE, Esq., Barrister at Law, Editor of "Chitty's Archbold's Practice."

London: Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Book-sellers and Publishers.

GREAVES'S CRIMINAL ACTS.—Second Edition.

In post 8vo., price 16s. cloth.

THE CRIMINAL-LAW CONSOLIDATION AND AMENDMENT ACTS of the 21 & 25 VICT. With Notes, Observations, and Forms for Summary Proceedings. By CHARLES SPRENGEL GREAVES, Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

RUSSELL ON ARBITRATION.—Third Edition.

In royal 8vo., price 36s. cloth.

A TREATISE on the POWER and DUTY of an ARBITRATOR, and the Law of Submissions and Awards. With an Appendix of Forms, and of the Statutes relating to Arbitration. Third Edition. By FRANCIS RUSSELL, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 76, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn; and H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

In one very thick vol. 8vo., price 35s.,
A COMPENDIUM of the LAW of REAL and PERSONAL PROPERTY, connected with CONVEYANCING. Designed as a Comprehensive Second Book for Students, and as a Digest of the most useful Learning for Practitioners. By JOSIAH W. SMITH, B.C.L., Q.C. THIRD EDITION. 1865.

"As a refresher to the memory, and a repository of information that is wanted in daily practice, it will be found of great value."—Jurist, April 5, 1856.

"It will be seen from this outline, that the work is extremely well planned; the topics are arranged in the natural order as they flow out of one another, and thus immensely aid the reader's memory. He writes like a man who is master of his theme, clearly and concisely."—Law Times, Dec., 1855.

"A portly, admirable volume. . . . He has given to the student a book which he may read over and over again with profit and pleasure."—Law Times, Jan. 21, 1865.

"The work before us will, we think, be found of very great service to the practitioner."—Solicitors' Journal, Jan. 21, 1865.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THRING'S (T.) CRIMINAL LAW OF THE NAVY, 1861.

In 12mo., price 8s. 6d. cloth,

THE CRIMINAL LAW of the NAVY; comprising an Introductory Sketch of the Early State and Discipline of the Navy; the Naval Discipline Act of 1860, with Notes; Criminal Offences and their Punishment; the Constitution and Jurisdiction of Courts-Martial; the Forms of Procedure and Law of Evidence applicable to Trials by Courts-Martial; with the New Regulations of the Admiralty, and a copious Index. By THEODORE THRING, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THRING'S LAND DRAINAGE ACT, 1861.

In 12mo., price 7s. cloth,

THE LAND DRAINAGE ACT, 1861. With an Introduction, Practical Notes, an Appendix of Statutes relating to Drainage, and Forms. By THEODORE THRING, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SELWYN'S NISI PRIUS.

In 2 vols. royal 8vo., 1859-61, price 2l. 16s. cloth,

SELWYN'S ABRIDGMENT of the LAW of NISI PRIUS. Twelfth Edition, with a Supplement, containing a Summary of the Law of Bankruptcy, with reference to Questions that arise in Actions at Law, as amended by the Bankruptcy Act, 1861. By DAVID POWER, Esq., one of her Majesty's Counsel, Recorder of Ipswich.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

OLIPHANT'S LAW OF HORSES, GAMING, &c.

Just published, considerably enlarged, price 15s. cloth,

THE LAW of HORSES; including the Bargain and Sale of Chattels; also the Law of Racing, Wagers, and Gaming. By GEORGE HENRY HEWITT OLIPHANT, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. Third Edition. By GRANVILLE R. RYDER, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

NEW EDITION OF BEST ON EVIDENCE.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 28s. cloth boards,

A TREATISE on the PRINCIPLES of the LAW of EVIDENCE; with Elementary Rules for conducting the Examination and Cross-examination of Witnesses. The Third Edition. By W. M. BEST, A.M., LL.B., of Gray's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

TOULMIN SMITH'S "THE PARISH."

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 18s. cloth bds.,

THE PARISH: its Powers and Obligations at Law as regards the Welfare of every Neighbourhood, and in Relation to the State; its Officers and Committees, and the Responsibility of every Parishioner. With Illustrations of the Practical Working of this Institution in all Secular Affairs, and of some modern Attempts at Ecclesiastical Incroachment. By TOULMIN SMITH, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. The Second Edition, with important Additions.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

In 1 thick vol. 8vo., price 1l. 8s. cloth boards,

A PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAWS relating to the CHURCH and the CLERGY. By H. W. CRIPPS, M.A., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law, Recorder of Lichfield. The Third Edition, revised and enlarged, containing the Statutes and Cases to the present time.

"* Since the publication of the first edition, the progress of legislation on the subjects treated of has rendered necessary considerable alterations and additions in this and in the preceding edition, and while much new matter has been introduced, all that has become obsolete has been omitted. In many other matters the law has been materially altered, and doubtful points have been settled by recently-decided cases, all which are now to be found in the present edition."

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

This day is published, price 7s. cloth boards,
A TREATISE on ARRANGEMENTS with CREDITORS under the BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861. With Precedents. To which are added, the Sections of the Bankruptcy Act, 1849 and 1861, and the Rules and Orders relating thereto. With a full Index. By WILLIAM DOWNES GRIFFITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SHELFORD'S LAW of HIGHWAYS in ENGLAND and WALES, brought down to 1865.

In 1 vol. 12mo., price 12s. cloth,

THE LAW of HIGHWAYS in ENGLAND and WALES; comprising Highways in Districts under Boards of Health and of Local Government, and as affected by Railways. With additional Forms not contained in the Acts. By LEONARD SHELFORD, Esq. The Third Edition, with a Supplement, containing the Highway Act, 1864, &c. With Notes and a revised Index. By C. MANLEY SMITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

CHITTY'S COLLECTION OF STATUTES.

Now ready, in 4 very thick vols., price 12l. 12s. cloth,

A COLLECTION of all the STATUTES of PRACTICAL UTILITY, with Notes thereon; intended as a Circuit and Court Companion. The Third Edition, containing all the Statutes of Practical Utility in the Civil and Criminal Administration of Justice to the present time. By W. N. WELSBY and EDWARD BEAVAN, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

"The principal branches of the Law are arranged alphabetically, and under each is collected all the Statutes relating to it, with explanatory notes. Besides the easy access afforded by the alphabetical arrangement of the subjects, a very copious general Index supplies the means of ready reference to all the subjects of lesser importance to which the various Statutes are directed."

"We could not say more for this great work by any words of approbation than by this short description of it. It is an admirable design admirably executed."—Law Times, May 13, 1855.

"* In the debate on the proposed consolidation of the Statutes, on the 9th February, 1854, Lord Campbell said, "that the Statutes at large extended to about fifty volumes folio, but all the Statutes which were usually required by lawyers for reference might be found in three octavo volumes, compiled by his learned friend Mr. Welsby. When he (Lord Campbell) was upon the Bench, he always had this work by him, and no Statutes were ever referred to by the Bar which he could not find in it."

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 1 thick vol. royal 8vo., price 1l. 15s. cloth boards,

WOODFALL'S LAW of LANDLORD AND TENANT. With a full Collection of Precedents and Forms of Procedure. The Eighth Edition. By W. R. COLE, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's inn; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

In 12mo., price 5s. boards,

THE LEASES and SALES of SETTLED ESTATES ACT, 19 & 20 Vict. c. 120; and the General Orders and Regulations relating thereto. With an Introduction and Notes, and a Supplement, containing the Amending Act, 21 & 22 Vict. c. 77, and the Cases and Decisions down to the end of Easter Term, 1861. By M. I. FORTESCUE BRICKDALE, of the Middle Temple and Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

STEPHEN ON PLEADING.—Sixth Edition.

In 8vo., price 15s. cloth,

A TREATISE on the PRINCIPLES of PLEADING in CIVIL ACTIONS; comprising a Summary Account of the whole Proceedings in a Suit at Law; being a Sixth Edition of Mr. Sergeant Stephen's Work under that title, with Alterations adapting it to the Present System. By JAMES STEPHEN and FRANCIS F. PINDER, Barristers at Law.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

The Fifteenth Edition, by W. N. Welsby, Esq., adapted to the New Criminal Statutes of 1861, in 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 1l. 6s. cloth boards,

ARCHBOLD'S PLEADING and EVIDENCE in CRIMINAL CASES; with the Statutes, Precedents of Indictments, and the Evidence necessary to support them. By JOHN JERVIS, Esq. (late Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas). The Fifteenth Edition. Including the Practice in Criminal Proceedings by Indictment. By W. N. WELSBY, Esq., Barrister at Law, Recorder of Chester.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the OFFICE, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, August 19, 1865.

The Jurist

No. 555, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.
No. 1494, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

AUGUST 26, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

TO GENTLEMEN, PUBLIC COMPANIES, and Others.—A Gentleman, a member of the University of Cambridge (Trin. Coll.), and also of the Inner Temple, is desirous of EMPLOYMENT as SECRETARY, or in some such capacity. Address, A. B., 25, Drayton Grove, West Brompton, S. W.

OKE'S GAME AND FISHERY LAWS.—Second Edition.

Just published, 12mo., 10s. 6d. cloth.

A HANDY-BOOK of the GAME and FISHERY LAWS throughout the United Kingdom. By GEORGE C. OKE. Author of "The Magisterial Synopsis." &c. Second Edition. London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

CHITTY'S COLLECTION OF STATUTES.

Now ready, in 4 very thick vols., price 12l. 12s. cloth.

A COLLECTION of all the STATUTES of PRACTICAL UTILITY, with Notes thereon; intended as a Circuit and Court Companion. The Third Edition, containing all the Statutes of Practical Utility in the Civil and Criminal Administration of Justice to the present time. By W. N. WELSBY and EDWARD BEAVAN, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

"The principal branches of the Law are arranged alphabetically, and under each is collected all the Statutes relating to it, with explanatory notes. Besides the easy access afforded by the alphabetical arrangement of the subjects, a very copious general Index supplies the means of ready reference to all the subjects of lesser importance to which the various Statutes are directed."

"We could not say more for this great work by any words of approbation than by this short description of it. It is an admirable design admirably executed."—Law Times, May 13, 1855.

"In the debate on the proposed consolidation of the Statutes, on the 9th February, 1854, Lord Campbell said, 'that the Statutes at large extended to about fifty volumes folio, but all the Statutes which were usually required by lawyers for reference might be found in three octavo volumes, compiled by his learned friend Mr. Welsby. When he (Lord Campbell) was upon the Bench, he always had this work by him, and no Statutes were ever referred to by the Bar which he could not find in it.'"

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

GALE ON EASEMENTS, The Third Edition, much enlarged. By W. H. WILLES, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

STAMP'S INDEX TO THE STATUTES.

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 18s. cloth boards.

STAMP'S INDEX to the STATUTE LAW of ENGLAND. By GEORGE STAMP, Esq. The Third Edition, brought down to the close of the Session 24 & 25 Vict. By JAMES EDWARD DAVIS, Esq., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

HAYES'S CONCISE CONVEYANCER.

THE CONCISE CONVEYANCER, or SHORT PRECEDENTS of CONVEYANCES. With Practical Remarks, and Summary of the Stamp Laws relating to Conveyances. By WILLIAM HAYES, Esq., Barrister at Law, one of the Six Conveyancing Counsel of the High Court of Chancery. The Second Edition, with considerable Additions; including a Chapter on Composition Deeds, under the New Bankrupt Act. By W. B. COLTMAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. Royal 12mo. price 18s.

"The present Edition contains Conveyances on Sales, Mortgages, Leases, Settlements, and a variety of Miscellaneous Instruments, but no 'Wills,' as the work is intended to be a companion volume to the well-known work by Hayes & Jarman of Concise Forms and Wills."

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

HAYES AND JARMAN'S CONCISE FORMS

OF WILLS, with Practical Notes: a Popular View of the Statute of Wills, and Suggestions to Persons taking Instructions for and preparing Wills; the Decisions on the Wills Acts, and other Testamentary Matters, in the House of Lords and Privy Council, and in the Equity, Common Law, Ecclesiastical, and Probate Courts, down to the Time of Publication; and many additional Forms. Sixth Edition. By THOMAS S. BADGER EASTWOOD, of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, M.A. and of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law, Reader on the Law of Real Property to the Four Inns of Court.

London: H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street, Law Bookseller and Publisher.

No. 555, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

This day is published, in 12mo., price 2s. 6d. cloth, lettered, COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION; or the New Act, 23 & 29 Vict. c. 99, conferring further Equitable Jurisdiction on the County Courts. With Notes. By JAMES J. ASTON, Esq., Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, in demy 12mo., 1016 pp., price 1l. 12s. cloth, ROGERS on ELECTIONS, ELECTION COMMITTEES, and REGISTRATION. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Tenth Edition. With the new Registration Statute, and all the Election and Registration Cases to the present time. By F. S. P. WOLFERSTAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SETON'S DECREES IN EQUITY.

Now complete, in 2 vols. royal 8vo., price 2l. 18s. cloth, lettered, SETON'S FORMS OF DECREES IN EQUITY, and of Orders connected with them. A new Edition, adapted to the present Practice, with Practical Notes. By W. H. HARRISON, Esq., Barrister at Law, and R. H. LEACH, Esq., one of the Registrars of the Court. Third Edition. 2 vols. royal 8vo. 1862.

Vol. 2, part 2, completing the work, may be had separately, price 14s. cloth.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY. 68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.
DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q. C.
Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions. Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office. C. B. CLABON, Sec.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS at PARTRIDGE & COZENS,

WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS in PARCHMENT,

192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 20s.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bona fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual RETAIL charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.

Draft Paper, 6s., 7s., 7s. 9d., and 9s. per ream.
Brief Paper, 13s. 6d., 16s., and 18s. 6d. per ream.
Foolscap Paper, 10s. 6d., 13s. 6d., and 17s. 6d. per ream.
Cream Laid Note, 3s., 4s., and 5s. per ream.
Large Cream Laid Note, 4s., 6s., and 7s. 6d. per ream.
Large Blue Note, 3s., 4s., and 6s. per ream.
Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2s. 9d., 3s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. per 1000.
Foolscap Official Envelopes, 1s. 6d. per 100, or 13s. 6d. per 1000.
Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, Piercers, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25s.; Good Stand for ditto, with two Drawers, 17s.

Parchment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1s. 6d. each, or 17s. per dozen.
Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1s. 4d. each, or 15s. per dozen.
Records or Memorials, Ruled, 5s. per dozen, or 22s. 6d. per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inkstands; Postage Scales; Writing-cases; Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post-free.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

G G

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	327
Agreements for reference within the Common-law Procedure Act, 1854	329
Bankruptcy.—Arrangements with Creditors	330
Statutes passed during the late Session of Parliament.

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. MARRETT, Barrister at Law.

Symonds v. Wilkes.—(Construction—Articles—Restraint against anticipation)	659
Phillips v. James.—(Construction—Executors—Issues—Estate tail) ..	660

ROLLS COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Re The Bank of Hindustan, China, and Japan (Limited), ex parte Lo.—(Companies Act, 1862, sects. 35, 161—Rectifying register—Jurisdiction—Amalgamation—Compulsory taking of shares in new company)	661
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY'S COURT.

By E. LLOYD, Barrister at Law.

Oakden v. Pike.—(Vendor and purchaser—Specific performance—Conditions of sale—Delivery of abstract)	666
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Barrs v. Fewkes.—(Will—Construction—Executor—Gift or trust—Extrinsic evidence)	669
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVEST, Barrister at Law.

Frewer v. Local Board of Health of Hastings.—(Local board of health—Purchase of land—Provisional order of Secretary of State—11 & 12 Vict. c. 63, s. 73—21 & 22 Vict. c. 98, ss. 75-77)	670
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By E. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

Walker v. Brogden.—(Libel—Newspaper—Bond fide comment)	671
---------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

By H. RUTHERFURD, Barrister at Law.

Alton v. The Midland Railway Company.—(Action by master for loss of services from injury to his servant—Action founded on contract between servant and third party—Railway—Common carrier) ..	672
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

By W. BRANDT, Barrister at Law.

Schreiber, Assignee of Debricks, v. Horsley.—(Parol evidence to explain written documents—Custom of merchants)	675
Lord Eglington's Trustees v. The Commissioners of Inland Revenue.—(Stamp—Scotch livery of seisin—Notarial act)	676

N O T I C E.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

Recently published, in 1 vol. super royal 8vo., price 40s. cloth,

WHARTON'S LAW LEXICON. Third Edition.

A Dictionary of Jurisprudence, explaining all the Technical Words and Phrases employed in the several Departments of English Law; including also the various Legal Terms used in Commercial Transactions; together with an Explanatory as well as Literal Translation of the Latin Maxims contained in the Writings of the Ancient and Modern Commentators. Greatly improved and enlarged. By J. J. S. WHARTON, Esq., Barrister at Law, assisted by G. H. COOPER and R. SEARLE, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn, W. C.

WHARTON'S ARTICLED CLERKS' MANUAL.

In royal 12mo., price 18s. cloth.

A MANUAL for ARTICLED CLERKS; containing Courses of Study, as well in Common Law, Conveyancing, Equity, Bankruptcy, and Criminal Law, as in Constitutional, Roman Civil, Ecclesiastical, Colonial, and International Laws, Medical Jurisprudence, and Bookkeeping. A Digest of all the Examination Questions, with the New Statutes, General Rules, Forms of Articles of Clerkship, Notices, Affidavits, &c., and a List of the proper Stamps and Fees; being a Comprehensive Guide to their successful Examination, Admission, and Practice as Attorneys and Solicitors of the Superior Courts. By J. J. S. WHARTON, Esq., M.A., Oxon., Barrister at Law, Author of "The Law Lexicon," &c. Ninth Edition. Greatly enlarged, and with the Addition of Bookkeeping by Single and Double Entry. By CHARLES HENRY ANDERSON, Solicitor, Editor of "The Legal Examiner."

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's inn.

OATHS in COMMON LAW.—FORMS of OATHS, AFFIRMATIONS, DECLARATIONS, and JURATS. To which are added, Forms of Recognisances of Bail in Error, &c. to be taken by Commissioners in the Country; with Explanatory Notes and Observations, and the Act 22 Vict. c. 16, for the use of Commissioners appointed under the authority of that Act. By ROBERT COLE, Solicitor.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

MOORE'S INSTRUCTIONS for PREPARING ABSTRACTS of TITLES after the most improved System of eminent Conveyancers; to which is added a Collection of Precedents, shewing the Method, not only of abstracting every species of Deeds, but also of so connecting them together, by collateral Documents, as to form a complete Title. Second Edition, with considerable Additions. By HENRY MOORE, Esq. 12mo. 1852. Price 6s. cloth.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

MAUDE & POLLOCK'S LAW OF SHIPPING.

A COMPENDIUM of the LAW of MERCHANT SHIPPING. With an Appendix, containing all the Statutes and Forms of Practical Utility. By FREDERIC PHILIP MAUDE and CHARLES EDWARD POLLOCK, Esqrs., of the Inner Temple, Barristers at Law. The Third Edition, including the Statutes and Decisions to the present time. Royal 8vo., price 11. 14s. cloth.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NEW EDITION OF SMITH (C. MANLEY) ON THE LAW OF MASTER AND SERVANT.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 16s. cloth boards.

A TREATISE on the LAW of MASTER and SERVANT, including therein MASTERS and WORKMEN in every Description of Trade and Occupation. With an Appendix of Statutes. The Second Edition. By CHARLES MANLEY SMITH, Esq., Barrister at Law, of the Inner Temple and Midland Circuit.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

CHITTY'S (JUN.) LAW OF CONTRACTS, BY RUSSELL.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 11. 12s.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW of CONTRACTS, and upon the Defences to Actions thereon. By JOSEPH CHITTY, Jun., Esq. The Sixth Edition. By JOHN A. RUSSELL, LL.B., of Gray's-inn, Barrister at Law, and Professor of English Law in University College, London.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

PRACTICE OF THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL.

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 16s. cloth boards.

THE PRACTICE of the JUDICIAL COMMITTEE of Her Majesty's most Honourable PRIVY COUNCIL. By WILLIAM MACPHERSON, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law, Author of "The Procedure of the Civil Courts of British India."

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

SIR JOHN BARNARD BYLES ON BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

The Eighth Edition, price 11. 2s. cloth boards.

A TREATISE on the LAW of BILLS of EXCHANGE, PROMISSORY NOTES, BANK NOTES, and CHECKS. By SIR JOHN BARNARD BYLES, Queen's Serjeant (now one of the Judges of her Majesty's Court of Common Pleas). The Eighth Edition, with Notes from the Fourth American Edition.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, AUGUST 26, 1865.

Is a post-dated cheque valid? Lawyers might well be expected to be able to answer this question. It is short and simple enough; and though it may be difficult, on account of the number of statutable enactments on the subject, the only difficulty that we are aware of arises from their not being rightly apprehended. When they are so, there is really no room for doubt at all; and though it is true that there are contradictory decisions, it will be found that the decisions one way have proceeded upon an entire unacquaintance with the main enactments on the question. Every one knows, that before the late Stamp Acts imposing a stamp duty upon cheques, a post-dated cheque was invalid. (Field v. Wood, 7 Ad. & El. 120). So that the question is—there being no new enactment expressly directed to the point—whether the imposition of a uniform stamp duty of a penny upon cheques has worked any difference in the law in this respect, and has made post-dated cheques valid? One would suppose, a priori, that it would not be so, for as the duty on cheques is a uniform minimum duty of a penny, and the duty upon bills is graduated by a sliding scale ascending with the amount, and the period after date at which the bill is payable, the reasons against the validity of post-dated cheques are as strong as they ever were—indeed rather stronger; so that if the law has been altered in that respect, it cannot have been intended; and, on the contrary, each successive Stamp Act since the earliest has not only never repealed, but carefully and expressly reserved all former penalties, forfeitures, prohibitions, or penal provisions, changing only the duties. Now, what were those provisions? The earliest statute on the subject—which has been lost sight of in the latest decisions, creating a doubt on the point—was the 31 Geo. 3, c. 25, which first imposed stamp duties upon bills of exchange, and provides that no bill, note, or other draft or order, liable to the duties imposed by the act, should be given in evidence, or admitted to be good, useful, or available, unless duly stamped; and the scale of duties was adjusted to the amount of the bill, draft, or order, and the period after date at which it was payable. The terms of the act being, it is to be observed, not only bill and note, but “draft or order,” the legal description of a banker’s cheque clearly was large enough to include such cheques; and therefore it implied that such a cheque, though not on the face of it liable to duty—there being then no duty on a cheque as such—might nevertheless be liable to a duty; and how could it be so, except upon the ground that it was post-dated, and therefore, though on the face of it payable on presentation, it was really not payable until some period after date. And accordingly, on this statute, before any clause expressly imposing a penalty on post-dated cheques, it was held that a post-dated cheque was void (Allen v. Reeves, 1 East, 435; Whitwell v. Bennett, 3 Bro. & P. 559), because it was not within the exception in that statute—

i. e. because not being so, it came within the general enactments imposing duties on bills, notes, drafts, or orders payable after date. The 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, in no degree altered the law in that respect, but continued everything in the previous act save the scale of duties, and contained a new enactment to meet the case of a bill or draft made payable after date, but bearing date subsequently to the day on which it is issued, and imposing a penalty upon the maker, upon the obvious ground that the duty was evaded; because, as the period at which a bill made payable expressly at a period after the date on the face of it cannot be held to be payable at any other or longer time, the duty payable would necessarily be calculated only by the date on the face of it; and thus the duty would be evaded, and therefore the penalty was imposed. (Williams v. Jarrett, 5 B. & Ad. 32). But the case of a banker’s cheque post-dated was quite different; for there it became payable after date, not by virtue of its being expressly made payable by reference to a date on the face of it, but, on the contrary, it would be payable on the face of it, immediately on demand, not at any period after date, for on the face of it it would be payable at once; although, as bearing a certain date, not yet arrived, it would really be payable a certain time after issued. To such a case, therefore, the duty would apply, for it would be a bill, draft, or order, payable on demand, and, consequently, the 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, contained an exception of bankers’ cheques, if dated on the day on which they were really issued, which implied, that if not so dated they would be liable to duty, and for the same reason they would not be under the penalty clause. It applied only to cases where the bill was expressly payable after date, and where the duty would be evaded; and, on the other hand, the 55 Geo. 3 expressly retaining all the previous powers, the post-dated cheque would be void, not by reason of the penalty clause, but by reason of the provision in the 31 Geo. 3, that all drafts which had not the proper duty should be inadmissible and unavailable. Consequently, it was held that a post-dated cheque was inadmissible and unavailable (Field v. Wood, 7 Ad. & El. 120), that is, upon the ground that a post-dated cheque was really liable to duty as a bill. Then, the 16 & 17 Vict. c. 59, and the 17 & 18 Vict. c. 83, for the first time, imposes a uniform duty of 1*d.* on any draft or order for the payment of any sum of money to the bearer, or to order, on demand, and on drafts or orders payable otherwise, then a graduated scale—that is, really payable on demand, or otherwise than on demand; for a banker’s cheque is not expressly payable on demand. Neither on the other hand is it expressly made payable at any period after date. It is an instant authority or order operating at its date, that is, when the date on the face of it arrives. It cannot be, it is conceived, an authority to the bankers to pay before then. It is notorious that cheques are instantly drawn upon anticipated assets; and if presented before the date, the banker would not pay. On the other hand, if the answer then was, no assets, or no sufficient assets, an action would not lie for its dishonour unless presented again at the date, and then, if there were assets the banker would be bound to pay. At all events, it is conceived, these are the considerations with reference to which the question should be decided; is or is not the cheque really payable on demand, i. e. on demand, at and immediately upon the time of making and issuing, or is it really payable otherwise than on demand, i. e. at a future time? The words are not, it is to be observed, "made payable," i. e. on the face of it, but "payable," i. e. really payable. But again, if the cheque is payable at and after the time of its date, then on the face of it it is not payable (i. e. when issued) upon demand, but otherwise; that is, not an instant demand, but a demand at a future time. So that even if the principle of Williams v. Jarrett applied, it would go to shew that a post-dated cheque was invalid; for with reference to the date on the face of it, it is not, when issued, payable immediately on demand. Therefore, it was that two judges successively (Hill, J., in Dunford v. Curlew, 1 Fost. & F. 732, and Keating, J., in 2 Fost. & F. 127) held that a post-dated cheque was still void or invalid. And when Byles, J., stated the law thus, in his work on Bills, "It should seem that a cheque may now be post-dated; but the point is doubtful, for a cheque post-dated is not really payable on demand," though his attention was not directed to the earliest statute on the subject (and this alone gave rise to his doubt), he hit the right point. And it is to be observed, that assuming this to be so, that a cheque post-dated is not really payable on demand, then it is clearly liable to ad valorem duty, and if so, then the old statute, the general provisions of which are expressly preserved, renders it inadmissible and unavailable. Bramwell, B., in a case (Key v. Mathias, 3 Fost. & F. 281) where the earlier statute was not referred to, and the two previous cases were not cited, felt great doubt; and he again, with his instinctive shrewdness, hit the right point when he suggested, that there was a distinction between being liable to duty and liable to penalty: and it was not without great hesitation and doubt that—his attention not being drawn to the earlier statute—he held the cheque valid. So, in the case of Whistler v. Forster (14 C. B., N. S., 248), the old statute was not so much as mentioned; and the real question was not at all touched. Thus Willes, J., cited Williams v. Jarrett, and the whole Court expressly relied upon it, though, as already pointed out, it proceeded upon the terms of the penalty clause in the later act, 55 Geo. 3, and upon the ground that duty was not payable; whereas, as Byles, J. (who was not present at the decision), had pointed out in his book, the question is, whether a post-dated cheque is really payable on demand at the time it is made. And when Willes, J., observed, "Williams v. Jarrett decided that the Court can only look to the time expressed on the face of the bill," he overlooked this—that the decision was entirely upon an enactment pointed expressly and exclusively at that. And when he added—"This, no doubt, must have been the ground of my Brother Bramwell's ruling in Key v. Mathias," he overlooked that, on the contrary, he avowed that his mind was pressed by the point put by Byles, J., in his work, and which is the point insisted upon in the present argument, that a cheque post-dated is not really payable on demand, nor does it purport to be so; but, on the contrary, it purports to be payable on demand at the date on the face of it; and, therefore, even taking the principle laid down by Willes, J., it is upon that very ground not payable on demand at the time it is issued; which, of course, is the governing point on all stamp questions. It is clear from the observations of Bramwell, B., as reported, that his mind was wavering on the very point here presented, viz. that the cheque might be liable to duty, though not liable to penalty. But, then, on the other hand, he was not aware of the earlier enactment, expressly preserved and retained in the most recent one—that a cheque not paying the duty to which it is liable, was, long before any penalty clause, invalid. His mind was exclusively directed to the penalty clause of the 55 Geo. 3; and, moreover, he was under the idea that it was repealed. His hesitating decision, therefore, is no authority for the point overruled, and his observations are authorities against it. And the Court of Common Pleas in like manner had not their minds at all directed to the earliest statute, which governs all the rest, and which makes a bill or cheque invalid if it does not bear the proper duty according to the time at which it is really payable, and were entirely directed to the later act, which only imposes a penalty precisely in cases in which the former act does not apply; that is, in cases where the duty is not payable. In the later case of Austin v. Bunyard (4 Fost. & F. 254), Cockburn, C. J., after some consideration, followed the decision of Hill, J., and Keating, J., and held the cheque invalid. And although he reserved the point, and the full Court reversed the ruling, it was only on the supposed authority of Whistler v. Forster, and with a distinct avowal, that the ground upon which it proceeded was not very intelligible. It is true, that the decision in the Common Pleas was upon a cheque payable to order. But the Court of Queen's Bench expressly intimated that they could not see how this made any distinction; nor can we discover any. The words of the 16 & 17 Vict. c. 59, imposing the duty are, draft or note payable (to bearer or order) on demand. The point is, whether the cheque (payable to bearer or order) is or is not really "payable on demand."—Per Byles, J. In all the cases in which that point has been met, and the earlier enactment borne in mind, the post-dated cheque has been held invalid. In all the cases in which it has been held valid, those two matters have been quite lost sight of. Therefore, we say that when they are kept in mind the point is clear; and the only doubt has arisen upon unacquaintance with the one and want of attention to the other. And we hold a post-dated cheque to be invalid. This is the opinion, we observe, of the learned reporter of Austin v. Bunyard; and in a long and elaborate note citing all the enactments and cases on the point, he arrives at the conclusion, that Hill, J., and Cockburn, C. J., were right; that Byles, J., and Bramwell, B., were warranted in their doubts; and that the case of Whistler v. Forster (decided only by three judges) cannot be relied upon.

AGREEMENTS FOR REFERENCE WITHIN THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACT, 1854.

THE 17th section of the Common-law Procedure Act, 1854, enacts, that "Every agreement or submission to arbitration by consent, whether by deed or [by] instrument in writing not under seal, may be made a rule of any one of the superior courts of law or equity at Westminster, on the application of any party thereto, unless such agreement or submission contain words purporting that the parties intend that it should not be made a rule of court;" and it further provides, that "When in any case the document authorising the reference is, or has been, made a rule or order of any one of such superior courts, no other of such courts shall have any jurisdiction to entertain any motion respecting the arbitration or award."

In Ex parte Glaysher, re Maitland and Glaysher (3 Hurlst. & C. 442), a lease of a farm contained a provision for certain allowances to be made to the lessee on the termination of the tenancy, according to a valuation; "such valuation to be made by two indifferent persons to be chosen for that purpose; one by the said F. Maitland, his heirs and assigns, and the other by the said J. Glaysher, his executors and administrators; and in case of their disagreement in the amount thereof, then by a third person to be chosen by the two former previous to their entering upon such valuation, whose decision shall be final and conclusive." The tenancy having determined, the lessor and lessee respectively appointed valuers to make the valuation according to the provisions in the lease; and the valuers appointed an umpire, who made his award; but the referees were appointed by word of mouth only. Upon these facts, the Court of Exchequer was asked to make the submission to arbitration a rule of court under the 17th section of the Common-law Procedure Act, 1854. The Court objected that the submission was by parol, and, therefore, not within the enactment; and, after taking time to consider, refused to grant the rule. Pollock, C. B., said, "There is an obvious distinction between an agreement to refer, to an arbitrator to be appointed, any matter of difference which may thereafter arise, and an agreement to refer, to an arbitrator named, a matter which has already become the subject of dispute. If there be a general agreement to refer future disputes to one or more persons to be appointed, and in pursuance of that disputes are referred, the submission is by parol, although the agreement is by deed, and a parol submission cannot be made a rule of court. There will, therefore, be no rule."

During the argument his Lordship thus stated his view of the case:—"When the dispute arose, the parties by parol submitted the matter to two arbitrators, and the arbitrators by parol appointed an umpire, who made an award. A parol submission cannot be made a rule of court."

This decision involves important consequences, which do not appear to have been foreseen, extending beyond the subject of references to arbitration. The principle on which the decision proceeded seems to be, that an agreement is not an agreement in writing, if any part of the transaction to take effect under it is left to be ascertained by word of mouth. A contract in writing, for instance, to sell such part of a given estate as the purchaser shall select, at an acreage price, is not a contract in writing, within the Statute of Frauds, if the selection is declared by parol. An agreement to refer a given question to arbitrators to be appointed, is not an agreement for reference in writing, unless the referees are also appointed by writing; and an agreement to refer all questions to arise between the parties in relation to a given matter is not an agreement for reference in writing, unless the questions are also agreed upon in writing. If that be so, few agreements for reference are within the act.

An agreement in writing to refer all questions at present existing between the parties to the arbitration of A. and B. would, it is presumed, be held by the Court of Exchequer to be within the act; yet the questions referred would be ascertained by parol—by the statements of the parties and their witnesses. But if the reference were to A. and B., or their umpire to be appointed by them, and the umpire were appointed by parol, the reference to A. and B. could be made a rule of court, but the reference to the umpire would, according to Ex parte Glaysher, be a reference by parol, and could not be made a rule of court. So of a reference to arbitrators to be appointed by the president of the Institution of Civil Engineers; for it cannot make any difference, in a question of parol or writing, whether the appointment is to be made by the persons interested or by a stranger, if only the authority is so framed as to need no further agreement between the parties. It is submitted, that in every case where the parties by their written agreement bind themselves to refer questions to arbitration, in such terms that either party can, against the will of the other, procure the appointment of a referee—competent within the terms of the agreement, and lay before him a question or dispute within the terms of the agreement, that is a written submission to arbitration, within the intent and meaning of the statute and all other intents and purposes, whether the differences contemplated are existing or future, and whether the referees be named or not. The context of the act seems to shew this conclusively. It will be observed that the last provision of the 17th clause speaks of the agreement contemplated by that clause as "the document authorising the reference." Now, the 11th section of the act makes certain provisions in case the parties to any deed or instrument in writing shall agree that "any then existing or future differences between them" shall be referred to arbitration; and the next section commences in these terms:—"If in any case of arbitration the document authorising the reference provide that the reference shall be to a single arbitrator, and all the parties do not, after the differences have arisen, concur in the appointment of an arbitrator, or if any appointed arbitrator refuses to act" &c., a judge may appoint an arbitrator. If, in the 12th section, a written agreement providing for the reference of future differences to arbitrators to be thereafter named, is spoken of as a document authorising the reference, can it be doubted that "the document authorising the reference," which is spoken of in the 17th section, may also be such agreement?

THE PRACTICE OF CONVEYANCERS.—When all is done, beware of the babe that was never weaned; the builder of Babel that brought about the confusion of tongues; beware of the conveyancer by the way side; the guardian of the golden fruit of all England, that only parts with one hissing head to receive back two; the rebellious sexton, who is the only one who knows where to find a place for a new corpse, and bullies his vicar accordingly; the conjuror who fills his mouth with nothing, and draws out endless shreds of paper; who can split gossamer, and spang a whale; who can sail in a sieve, and direct storms; at once Pallas and Neptune; a colossus, with one foot on the Athenæum and the other on the United Service; one moment twisting a few sharp and fiery cases, "three rays writhely riven," to form a "clapping thunderbolt" to launch at some unfortunate obdurate Teucer of a vendor, for whom he is not concerned, “Atque expirantem transfixo pectore flammas,

Turbine corripuit, scopuloque infixit acuto.”

The next,

“Placidum caput extulit undis,”

all care and entreaty for the pious Æneas of a purchaser for whom he is concerned.

“Et dicto citius tumida sequora placat,
Collectosque fugat nubes, solemque reducit.”

Now, there are ordinarily a good lot of first-rate conveyancers, who are considered, sometimes, by others, as equal to unplaced judges; all knowing too much to be either timid or modest, and each with some particular theory or other, that obtrudes stiffly and painfully against the grain, like what is called a feather in the hair, and in all other respects dreadfully alike; smooth, silent, watchful, ever darting out upon you from bye-places, though it be but to throw a somersault and go back again, and always scudding a little one way, before finally running off another; and very alarming even when defeated, which they never can be, being in the commissariat, and non-combatants. The fact is, the conveyancer, intensely laborious, and dwelling in perpetual solitude with his books, becomes subject to dreams and visions, which take form and colour from his waking occupations, and thus become what are called crotchets, being akin to fixed ideas; and these he stamps violently on his pupils and clients, and his pupils on the waiters at the Cock, and his clients on the Profession, and all of them together on the public; and thus they come to form what is known as the “Practice of Conveyancers.” But every now and then, one or other of these crotchets will get knocked over by an idle word from the Bench. How or why this is done, the producer knows not, but done it is, and he deeply resents it, for it is not only an affront, but an innovation; but as he cannot resist, and will not repent, the only effect of all this is to make him cling more closely to those the barbarian eye has still left him, and train them as well as he can in the way they should not go, and dream for more; and thus it has come to pass, that the “Practice of Conveyancers” never is, and never can be, either the better or the worse for anything that befalls, but all conveyancers hate a meddling act of Parliament as they do the devil out of his persuasive attributes—Thoughts on Legal Discontent. 1855.

BANKRUPTCY.—ARRANGEMENTS WITH CREDITORS.

RETURN of the Number of Trust Deeds registered under the Provisions of the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, shewing the Number of Deeds registered in each Year, commencing on the 11th October, 1861, to the 10th October, 1864, inclusive, and for the Six Months ending the 10th April, 1865; distinguishing in each Year the Number of Deeds registered under Composition, the Amount of the Debts, and the Amount of Composition engaged to be paid upon said Debts, and the Number of Deeds registered under Inspection and Assignment, and shewing the Amount of Unsecured Debts stated in those Deeds.

Number of Deeds registered from 11th October, 1861, to 10th April, 1865, inclusive.

Date.	Deeds of Assignment.		Composition Deeds.		Deeds of Inspectorship.
	Number.	Gross Amount of Unsecured Debts.	Number.	Gross Amount of Unsecured Debts.	Number.	Gross Amount of Unsecured Debts.
From 11th October, 1861, to 10th October, 1862	1886	£ 1,013,044 9 4	698	£ 373,138 7 5	46	£ 190,427 9 9
From 11th October, 1862, to 10th October, 1863	2344	4,040,930 12 6	662	926,048 2 2	15	50,883 15 7
From 11th October, 1863, to 10th October, 1864	2284	5,725,592 5 5	1278	2,497,805 2 3	39	620,522 16 0
From 11th October, 1864, to 10th April, 1865	1530	6,796,528 3 11	1210	4,436,901 1 3	85	5,306,185 4 6
Total . . .	8044	17,506,095 11 2	3848	8,233,892 13 1	185	6,167,969 5 10

S U M M A R Y.

	Number of Deeds.	Amount of Debts.
		£	s. d.
Year ending 10th October, 1862 . . .	2630	1,576,610	6 6
Ditto . ditto 1863 . . .	3021	5,017,862	10 3
Ditto . ditto 1864 . . .	3601	8,843,920	3 8
Half-year ending 10th April, 1865 . . .	2825	16,469,564	9 8
Total . . .	12,077	31,907,957	10 1

Number of Composition Deeds and Rates of Composition.

Year ending 10th October, 1862.		Year ending 10th October, 1863.		Year ending 10th October, 1864.		Half-Year ending 10th April, 1865.
Number of Deeds.	Rate per Pound.	Number of Deeds.	Rate per Pound.	Number of Deeds.	Rate per Pound.	Number of Deeds.	Rate per Pound.
	s. d.		s. d.		s. d.		s. d.
1	0 6	2	0 3	1	0 0½	13	0 6
24	1 0	1	0 6	1	0 3	1	0 8
1	1 3	22	1 0	1	0 4	1	0 9
4	1 6	2	1 4	9	0 6	79	1 0
1	1 7	7	1 6	1	0 8½	1	1 2
30	2 0	1	1 8	1	0 9	2	1 3
58	2 6	1	1 10	65	1 0	20	1 6
38	3 0	39	2 0	3	1 3	2	1 9
3	3 4	2	2 4	23	1 6	87	2 0
8	3 6	65	2 6	1	1 8	140	2 6
35	4 0	3	2 8	1	1 9	1	2 8
1	4 4	16	3 0	1	1 11	1	2 9
5	4 6	3	3 4	73	2 0	49	3 0
160	5 0	10	3 6	1	2 2	18	3 4
1	5 6	1	3 8	1	2 3	14	3 6
32	6 0	1	3 9½	1	2 4	2	3 8
1	6 2	46	4 0	152	2 6	67	4 0
6	6 6	2	4 6	2	2 8	1	4 2
20	6 8	179	5 0	1	2 10	1	4 3
9	7 0	4	5 6	1	2 10½	8	4 6
39	7 6	26	6 0	1	2 11	230	5 0
17	8 0	3	6 6	50	3 0	1	5 3
5	8 6	38	6 8	1	3 3	4	5 6
8	9 0	8	7 0	17	3 4	1	5 8
95	10 0	1	7 3	15	3 6	35	6 0
5	10 6	34	7 6	91	4 0	2	6 2
4	11 0	11	8 0	1	4 2	1	6 3
2	11 6	4	8 6	1	4 3	2	6 6
12	12 0	9	9 0	10	4 6	27	6 8
18	12 6	83	10 0	314	5 0	11	7 0
3	13 0	1	10 6	5	5 6	49	7 6
1	13 4	5	11 0	50	6 0	37	8 0
1	13 6	1	11 6	1	6 4	5	8 6
5	14 0	7	12 0	4	6 6	20	9 0
1	14 6	10	12 6	48	6 8	1	9 3
16	15 0	4	13 0	16	7 0	1	9 6
2	16 0	1	13 6	51	7 6	125	10 0
1	17 6	1	14 0	35	8 0	5	10 6
21	20 0	10	15 0	1	8 3	13	11 0
		1	19 11	7	8 6	1	11 3
		2	20 0	18	9 0	2	11 6
				3	9 6	13	12 0
				119	10 0	18	12 6
				3	10 6	4	13 0
				5	11 0	3	13 4
				8	12 0	4	13 6
				7	12 6	5	14 0
				1	13 3	2	14 6
				2	13 4	19	15 0
				1	13 6	2	16 0
				3	14 0	1	17 0
				15	15 0	1	17 6
				1	18 0	1	19 11
				37	20 0	51	20 0
608		662		1278		1210
						1278
						662
						608
						3848

Total . . .

4 July, 1865.

JOHN F. MILLER, Chief Registrar.

DAY'S COMMON-LAW PRACTICE.

The Second Edition, recently published,

THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACTS of 1852, 1854, and 1860. With an Introduction, explanatory of the recent Changes, Notes, Forms of Pleading, and a copious Index. By J. C. F. S. DAY, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 1 vol. royal 12mo. Price 15s. cloth boards.

This Work comprises a carefully-revised Edition of Mr. Kerr's Procedure Acts of 1852 and 1854, the Cases that have been decided since the publication of these Works being added; the Bills of Exchange Act of 1855, and the Decisions upon it; those portions of the Interpleader Act and Mercantile Law Amendment Act which relate to the Procedure thereon in Court or at Chambers, and all the New Rules: thus constituting a complete Practice of the Superior Courts of Common Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

BYTHEWOOD AND JARMAN'S CONVEYANCING.—

Vol. 8, Part 1.

Price 8s. boards.

A SELECTION OF PRECEDENTS from MODERN MANUSCRIPT COLLECTIONS, and DRAFTS of ACTUAL PRACTICE; forming a System of Conveyancing. With Dissertations and Practical Notes. By THOMAS JARMAN, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law. The Third Edition. Vol. 8. By WHITLEY STOKES, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

PART 1.—POWERS OF ATTORNEY.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NICOL'S BANKRUPTCY ACTS.

THE BANKRUPTCY ACTS, 1849, 1854, and 1861, Consolidated on the Arrangement of the Act of 1849; with the Decisions upon the last Act; and the General Orders of 1852, 1855, 1856, 1857, 1861, 1862, and 1863. With Forms and Precedents applicable to Proceedings in the Bankruptcy and County Courts, and a Tabular Index. By HENRY NICOL, Esq., Barrister at Law. The Second Edition, much enlarged. Royal 12mo., price 14s. cloth.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

PEACHEY ON MARRIAGE AND OTHER FAMILY SETTLEMENTS.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 17. 16s. cloth boards.

A TREATISE ON THE LAW OF MARRIAGE and other FAMILY SETTLEMENTS; with Precedents and Practical Notes. By JAMES PEARSE PEACHEY, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

PRIDEAUX'S PRECEDENTS IN CONVEYANCING.

Price 21. 12s. 6d., in 2 vols. royal 8vo., cloth.

PRIDEAUX'S PRECEDENTS IN CONVEYANCING; with Dissertations on its Law and Practice. Fourth Edition. By FREDERICK PRIDEAUX and JOHN WHITCOMBE, both of Lincoln's-inn, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SIMON'S LAW RELATING TO RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.

In 12mo., price 3s. cloth.

THE LAW relating to RAILWAY ACCIDENTS, including an Outline of the Liabilities of Railway Companies as Carriers generally, concisely discussed and explained. By HENRY A. SIMON, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

DODD AND BROOKE'S PRACTICE OF THE COURT OF PROBATE.

Recently published, in 8vo., price 11. 11s. 6d. cloth.

THE LAW AND PRACTICE OF THE COURT OF PROBATE, Contentious and Common Form. With the Rules, Statutes, and Forms. By PHILIP WM. DODD, Solicitor, and GEORGE HENRY BROOKE, Doctors' Commons.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SMITH'S MANUAL OF EQUITY JURISPRUDENCE.

SEVENTH EDITION, 1864.

A MANUAL OF EQUITY JURISPRUDENCE, founded on the works of Story, Spence, and other writers, and on the subsequent Cases: comprising the Fundamental Principles and the Points of Equity usually occurring in General Practice. By JOSIAH W. SMITH, B.C.L., Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel. Seventh Edition. In 12mo., 1864, price 12s. cloth.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SMITH'S REAL AND PERSONAL PROPERTY.

In 1 thick vol. 8vo., price 35s. cloth.

A COMPENDIUM OF THE LAW OF REAL AND PERSONAL PROPERTY, connected with Conveyancing; designed as a comprehensive Second Book for Students, and as a Digest of the most useful learning for Practitioners. Third Edition. By JOSIAH W. SMITH, B.C.L., Q.C.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, price 7s. cloth boards,
A TREATISE ON ARRANGEMENTS with CREDITORS under the BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861. With Precedents. To which are added, the Sections of the Bankruptcy Acts, 1849 and 1861, and the Rules and Orders relating thereto. With a full Index. By WILLIAM DOWNES GRIFFITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 2 thick vols., price 21. 12s. 6d. cloth.

CHITTYS ARCHBOLD'S PRACTICE of the COURT of QUEEN'S BENCH in PERSONAL ACTIONS and EJECTMENT. By THOMAS CHITTY, Esq. Including the Practice of the Courts of Common Pleas and Exchequer. The Eleventh Edition. By SAMUEL PRENTICE, Esq., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 1 thick vol., price 17. 11s. 6d. cloth.

CHITTYS FORMS OF PRACTICAL PROCEEDINGS in the COURTS of QUEEN'S BENCH, COMMON PLEAS, and EXCHEQUER of PLEAS. With Notes and Observations thereon. The Ninth Edition, enlarged.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

PETTY SESSIONS PRACTICE.

In thick 12mo., price 18s. cloth, lettered.

STONE'S PRACTICE OF PETTY SESSIONS. With the Statutes, a List of Summary Convictions, and an Appendix of Forms. Seventh Edition. By THOMAS BELL and LEWIS W. CAVE, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. With a Supplement, bringing the Statutes and Cases up to 1863. 12mo., price 18s. cloth.

"It is remarkable for a rare combination of conciseness and clearness in the composition, which have recommended it to magistrates who have not been educated as lawyers, and to whom, therefore, the books written for the use of lawyers are often obscure by reason of their technicalities. The present editors have preserved this characteristic of Mr. Stone's volume in their own abundant additions to it."—Law Times.

. The Supplement may be had by itself, price 3s. boards. Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Publishers.

JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES LAW.

In 12mo., price 7s. 6d. cloth.

A SUPPLEMENT TO THE LAW AND PRACTICE of JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES: containing the Companies Act, 1862; the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1862; and the Rules of the Court of Chancery for regulating the Mode of Proceeding under the Companies Act, 1862. With an Introduction, Practical Notes, and Forms. By HENRY THRING, M.A., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

London: Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Booksellers and Publishers.

THRING'S LAW OF JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES.

THE LAW AND PRACTICE OF JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES; including the Statutes of 1860 and 1862, with Notes, and the Forms required in making, administering, and winding up a Company. By HENRY THRING, Esq., Barrister at Law, Parliamentary Counsel to the Home Office. In 2 vols. 12mo. Price 16s. cloth.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

In 12mo., price 12s. 6d. cloth.

THE BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861: incorporating so much as remains in force of the Bankrupt-law Consolidation Act, 1849, and of the Bankruptcy Act, 1854. With an Appendix, containing the 7 & 8 Vict. c. 70; the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 33; the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 147; the General Orders under the Bankruptcy Act, 1861; and the General Rules and Orders under the Bankrupt-law Consolidation Act, 1849. With Notes. By WILLIAM HAZLITT, of the Middle Temple, Esq., a Registrar of the Court of Bankruptcy, and HENRY PHILIP ROCHE, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

BY AUTHORITY.

Price 9s. cloth boards.

PROCEDURE in the STANNARIES OF CORNWALL AND DEVON. Containing the New Rules and Orders for Regulating the Practice, both at Equity and Common Law, of the Court of the Vice-Warden of the Stannaries; and the recent Statutes for establishing and extending its Jurisdiction. Preceded by Observations on the Power of the Court in relation to Mining Associations and Partnerships in the Counties of Cornwall and Devon.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street; and Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the Office, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, August 26, 1865.

The Jurist

No. 556, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.

No. 1496, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

SEPTEMBER 2, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

TO SOLICITORS AND TRUSTEES.—FREE.
HOLD GROUND RENTS to be SOLD, producing 3741. per Annum. Price, 10,000. Plan and Particulars can be had of Mr. J. L. Dale, 8, Furnival's-inn, Holborn, between 12 and 3.

LAW.—WANTED, by a SOLICITOR in extensive practice at Melbourne, an experienced CONVEYANCING CLERK. Apply, by letter (stating age and qualifications, also the offices in which engagements have been held, and length of service in each), to Mr. Dugald Cameron, Solicitor, 19, Buckingham-street, Strand, W. C.

This day is published, price 1s. 6d., limp cloth,
THE VACCINATION ACTS, containing the Act for 1865, with Introductory Notes, Cases, Instructional Circulars, and Index. By DANBY P. FRY, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law, and of the Poor Law Board. Second Edition.
London: Knight & Co., 90, Fleet-street, Publishers, by authority, to the Poor Law Board.

This day is published, in 12mo., price 2s. 6d., cloth, lettered,
COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION, or the New Act, 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99, conferring further Equitable Jurisdiction on the County Courts. With Notes. By JAMES J. ASTON, Esq., Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, in demy 12mo., 1016 pp., price 17. 12s. cloth,
ROGERS on ELECTIONS, ELECTION COMMITTEES, and REGISTRATION. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Tenth Edition. With the new Registration Statute, and all the Election and Registration Cases to the present time. By F. & S. P. WOLFERSTAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

LE RICHE'S BOOK of COSTS in the COMMON LAW, PROBATE, and DIVORCE COURTS; with Observations on the Principle of the Allowances, and an Analysis of Decisions upon Costs from the Time of passing the first Common-law Procedure Act. Post 8vo. 1860. Price 5s. cloth.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE SOLICITORS' JOURNAL, Vol. 9, No. 43, price 6d. CONTENTS.—Topics.—The Stock Exchange.—Irish Court of Criminal Appeal.—Transitory Venue.—Charge against a Solicitor.—Rev. Mr. Kelly.—Louis Speltz's Case.—The Duties of the Police.—The Midland Banking Co. v. Bushell & Co.—Revising Barristers.—United States of America v. Frieleau.—Mr. Best and the London and North-Western Railway Company.—The Answer to Bishop Colenso's Sait.—Leaders.—Tribunals of Parliamentary Inquiry.—Bribery and Corruption at Elections.—Friendly Societies.—Discharge of a Jury in a Capital Case.—Recent Decision, Gandy v. Jubber.—Nuisance.—Landlord's Liability.—Reviews.—Courts.—Correspondence of the Profession.—Ireland, Statutes, Gazettes, &c.
Annual Subscription, 36s. With the WEEKLY REPORTER, 52s. Free by post to the country and colonies when paid in advance.
Office, 59, Carey-street, W. C.

EQUITABLE REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY,

10, LANCASTER-PLACE, STRAND,
Established 1835.—Capital £300,000.

DIRECTORS.

Daniel Smith Bockett, Esq.
Major C. L. Boleau.
Lieut.-Colonel Chase.
William Henry Cole, Esq.
Thomas Curtis, Esq.

Francis Bennett Goldney, Esq.
Charles Richard Harford, jun., Esq.
Henry Pigeon, Esq.
Henry Roberts, Esq.
George Roots, Esq.

AUDITORS.

Charles Armstrong Esq.

William Richard Bingley, Esq.
Alfred Langdale, Esq.

SOLICITORS.—Messrs. Clayton & Son.

BANKERS.—Messrs. Coutts & Co.

ACTUARY.—F. Hendrika, Esq.

This Society purchases Reversionary Property, Life Interests, and Life Policies of Assurance, and grants Loans on these Securities.

Forms of Proposal may be obtained at the Office.

JOHN CLAYTON, } Joint
FRANCIS S. CLAYTON, } Secretaries.

No. 556, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

THE DECISIONS of the RIGHT HON. LORD EVERSELEY.

The Second Edition, price 12s.

THE DECISIONS of the Right Honourable Lord EVERSELEY, late Speaker of the House of Commons, on Points of Order, Rules of Debate, and the General Practice of the House. The Second Edition, revised, corrected, and continued to the present time. By the Hon. ROBERT BOURKE, of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

PELICAN LIFE INSURANCE OFFICE.

(ESTABLISHED IN 1797).

No. 70, Lombard-street, E. C., and 57, Charing-cross, S. W.

DIRECTORS.

Octavius E. Coope, Esq.
William Cotton, Esq., D.C.L., F.R.S.
Thomas Henry Farquhar, Esq.
James A. Gordon, Esq., M.D., F.R.S.
Edward Hawkins, jun., Esq.
Kirkman D. Hodgson, Esq., M.P.
Henry Lancelot Holland, Esq.
William James Lancaster, Esq.
Sir John Lubbock, Bart., F.R.S.
Benjamin Shaw, Esq.
Matthew Whiting, Esq.
Marmaduke Wyvill, jun., Esq.

ROBERT TUCKER, Secretary and Actuary.

NOTICE.—The next distribution of Profit will be made at the end of 1865. All Policies now effected on the "return system" will participate. The last Bonus varied from 28 to 60 per cent. on the Premiums paid. For Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal apply to the Secretary, or to any of the Company's Agents.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.

68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN.—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN.—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q. C.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.

Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office.

C. B. CLABON, Sec.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS at PARTRIDGE & COZENS,

WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS in PARCHEMENT,

192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 90s.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being book fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual RETAIL charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.

Draft Paper, 6s., 7s., 7s. 9d., and 9s. per ream.

Brief Paper, 13s. 6d., 16s., and 18s. 6d. per ream.

Foolscap Paper, 10s. 6d., 13s. 6d., and 17s. 6d. per ream.

Cream Laid Note, 3s., 4s., and 5s. per ream.

Large Cream Laid Note, 4s., 6s., and 7s. 6d. per ream.

Large Blue Note, 3s., 4s., and 6s. per ream.

Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2s. 2d., 3s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. per 1000.

Foolscap Official Envelopes, 1s. 6d. per 100, or 13s. 6d. per 1000.

Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, Pencils, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25s.; Good Stand for ditto with two Drawers, 17s.

Parchment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1s. 6d. each, or 17s. per dozen.

Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1s. 4d. each, or 15s. per dozen.

Records or Memorials, Ruled, 5s. per dozen, or 12s. 6d. per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inkstands; Postage Scales; Writing-cases; Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationary Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post-free.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

H H

CONTENTS.

Leading Article 335
Judicial Statistics, 1864—Civil Side 336
Statutes passed during the late Session of Parliament.

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. R. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INGH, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. MARETT, Barrister at Law.

Botts v. Neilson.—(Patent—Foreigner—Transport). 676

ROLES COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Banks v. Gibson.—(Partnership—Dissolution—Right to use partnership style)..... 680

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By T. F. MORSE, Barrister at Law.

Macintosh v. The Great Western Railway Company.—(Railway company and contractor—Accounts—Objections to chief clerk's certificate overruled and explained—Penalties—Interest allowed to contractor—Refusal to arbitrate—Costs) 681

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Dean v. Handley.—(Will—Construction—Gift over in case of death without issue—Prior life interest—Absolute vesting)..... 686

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVETT, Barrister at Law.

Cowell v. The Amman Aberdare Colliery Company (Limited).—(Costs—Reference by consent before trial—County Court Act, 13 & 14 Vict. c. 61, s. 11)..... 687

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By E. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

The Overseers of the Poor of Sunderland-near-the-Sea, Apprs., The Guardians of the Sunderland Poor-law Union, Reops.—(Rating—Rateable value—Valuation list—Union Assessment Committee Act—Small Tenements Act—Brewery—Public-house) 688

CROWN CASES RESERVED.

By G. FRANCIS, Barrister at Law.

Reg. v. Jane Charlotte Smith.—(Manslaughter—Master and servant—Neglect to provide nourishment—Control—Restrains—Evidence of)..... 695

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

OLIPHANT'S LAW OF HORSES, GAMING, &c.

Just published, considerably enlarged, price 15s. cloth.

THE LAW OF HORSES; including the Bargain and Sale of Chattle; also the Law of Racing, Wagers, and Gaming. By GEORGE HENRY HEWITT OLIPHANT, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. Third Edition. By GRANVILLE R. RYDER, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. H. Sweet, 3 Chancery-lane.

THE BRITISH CONSTITUTION EXPLAINED.

In 1 thick vol. 8vo., price 12. 4s. cloth.

THE INSTITUTIONS OF ENGLISH GOVERNMENT: being an Account of the Constitution, Powers, and Procedure of its Legislative, Judicial, and Administrative Departments; with copious References to Ancient and Modern Authorities. By HOMERESHAM COX, M. A., Barrister at Law. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

COURT OF THE VICE-WARDEN OF THE STANNARIES.

Price 1s. 6d. sewed.

GENERAL RULES, FORMS, AND COURT FEES on the WINDING UP OF MINING COMPANIES within the JURISDICTION OF THE STANNARIES; also Solicitors' Fees and Charges on the Equity Side of the Court. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

In 1 vol. 12mo., price 7s.

A TREATISE ON COMPOSITION DEEDS under the Stat. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 134. By THOMAS ERSKINE HOLLAND, M. A., Fellow of Exeter College, Oxford, and of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NEW EDITION OF BEST ON EVIDENCE.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 32s. cloth boards.

A TREATISE ON THE PRINCIPLES OF THE LAW OF EVIDENCE; with Elementary Rules for conducting the Examination and Cross-examination of Witnesses. The Third Edition. By W. M. BEST, A.M., LL.B., of Gray's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

TOULMIN SMITH'S "THE PARISH."

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 12s. cloth bds.

THE PARISH: its Powers and Obligations at Law as regards the Welfare of every Neighbourhood, and in Relation to the State; its Officers and Committees, and the Responsibility of every Parishioner. With Illustrations of the Practical Working of this Institution in all Secular Affairs, and of some modern Attempts at Ecclesiastical Incroachment. By TOULMIN SMITH, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. The Second Edition, with important Additions. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

GREENWOOD'S CONVEYANCING.

In 8vo., price 15s. cloth.

A MANUAL OF THE PRACTICE OF CONVEYANCING, showing the present Practice relating to the daily routine of Conveyancing in Solicitors' Offices. To which are added, Concise Common Forms and Precedents in Conveyancing, Conditions of Sale, Conveyances, and all other Assurances in constant use. Third Edition, revised and considerably enlarged. By G. W. GREENWOOD, Solicitor, and HENRY HORWOOD. London: Stevens & Sons, Law Bookellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SHIPPING LAW.

In 8vo., price 25s. cloth, lettered.

THE SHIPPING LAW MANUAL: a concise Treatise on the Law governing the Interests of Shipowners, Merchants, Masters, Seamen, and other Persons connected with British Ships. Together with the Acts of Parliament, Forms, and Precedents relating to the subject. Being especially intended for popular use in Seaport Towns. By W. T. GREENHOW, of the Middle Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law.

"The 'Shipping Law Manual,' by Mr. W. T. Greenhow, brings into a popular shape, and to the latest date, the entire body of legal regulations affecting the shipping trade of the country alike in relation to owners, merchants, masters, and seamen, and is especially adapted for ordinary use by all persons connected with the business of seaport towns."—Times, Jan. 31, 1863.

"The object of the author of this book is to popularise the Law of Merchant Shipping, and to compress within the compass of a single volume all that is necessary to be known by those directly interested in British navigation. It was no easy task to condense and arrange this mass of legislation, so as to make it intelligible to the general reader. But Mr. Greenhow has achieved it, and placed within reach of every one connected with shipping a valuable compendium of the law relating to that branch of industry."—Shipping and Mercantile Gazette.

Stevens & Sons, Law Bookellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

BY AUTHORITY.

In royal 8vo., price 7s. 6d. cloth.

THE CONSOLIDATED GENERAL ORDERS of the HIGH COURT OF CHANCERY; with Regulations as to certain Fees and Charges.

"The new arrangement of the Orders leaves nothing to be wished for: it is clear, convenient, and admirably adapted for the purposes of practice. Although the language of the old Orders has been adhered to as far as possible, it has been altered whenever it was found necessary for the purpose of adapting them to the present practice, and also for the purpose of removing those doubts and difficulties which as frequently arose under the old Orders."—Jurist, Jan. 21, 1860.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, SEPTEMBER 2, 1865.

A VERY important and salutary statute has been passed this session (c. 63) respecting the validity of laws which may have been, or hereafter shall be, enacted in our "colonies;" meaning by that term all her Majesty's possessions abroad which have a legislature, except only the Channel Islands, the Isle of Man, and the Indian Empire; and we propose to draw attention to its provisions, inasmuch as, though printed among our issue of the statutes, a statute is sometimes overlooked amongst the number printed together; and, further, is sometimes not very easy reading for the laity, in consequence of its perpetually having reference to the interpretation clause.

The provisions, popularly and succinctly expressed, are as follows:—

In any colony which has a legislature (representative or not) competent to make laws, any law already or hereafter made by such legislature, or her Majesty in Council, which is repugnant to any act of Parliament applicable, by express words or necessary intendment, to such colony; or repugnant to any order or regulation made under such act of Parliament, or having the force of such act, shall be read subject to such act, order or regulation, and shall be void only to the extent of such repugnancy; and no such colonial act shall be void because it is repugnant to the law of England, unless it is also repugnant to such act of Parliament, order, or regulation.

In any colony which has a legislature (representative or not) competent to make laws, any law already or hereafter passed, with the consent or concurrence of the governor, shall not be void by reason of any instructions from the Crown with respect to such law, or the subject thereof, given by any instrument except his letters-patent, even though the letters-patent may refer to them.

In every colony which has a legislature (representative or not) competent to make laws, such legislature shall have full power within its jurisdiction to establish courts of judicature, to abolish them, reconstitute them, alter the constitution of such courts, and provide for the administration of justice therein; and if such colonial legislature comprises a legislative body of which one-half is elected by the colonists, it shall have full power to pass laws as to the constitution, powers, and procedure of the legislature, as long as the laws are passed in conformity with the acts of Parliament (by express words or necessary intendment), the letters-patent, the Orders in Council, and the laws of the colonial legislature for the time in force in the colony.

This section is very clumsy, and may lead to considerable controversy, for the proviso, if construed strictly, seems to cripple such representative colonial legislature from passing a law repugnant to one which they have already passed, which could never have been the intention of the section, as such power of reconstruction is of the very essence of a legislature, while, on the other hand, if the liberal and contrary construction be the true one, then it may be argued that it also follows, that in the case of a representative legislature, the imperial acts of Parliament may equally be abrogated, and that acts 2 and 3 in such cases do not apply. Whatever may have been the intention of this act, which has been passed for the settling of doubts respecting the legislative powers of our colonies, it has, by that fatal clumsiness which seems always to attend our colonial legislation, contained within itself as grave a matter of doubt as any of the doubts which it professes to cure. We hope that our Government will immediately draw up a new statute, free from this germ of contention, and pass it at the beginning of next session, in the place of this present act.

The statute then provides, that a certificate of the proper officer of the legislature, that an attached document is a true copy of a colonial law, &c., shall be prima facie evidence of the proper passing of such law, and the assent of or presentation to the governor, as the case may be; and also, that a proclamation in a colonial newspaper, purporting to be by the governor, shall be prima facie evidence of the disallowance or assent to the law.

And the act concludes with the following provision, which applies only to South Australia, viz. that all laws purporting to have been passed by persons acting as its legislature, and having been assented to by the Queen in Council or the governor, shall be valid; but nothing in the section is to give effect to any such law, which has been disallowed, or has expired or been repealed; nor to prevent the disallowance or repeal of any law.

In two articles published on the 25th June and the 30th July, 1859, we elaborately discussed all the cases there decided with respect to an owner's liability for injuries done by an animal belonging to him, and shewed how such cases substantiated and illustrated the well-known propositions of law; that the owner's liability depends on his knowledge of the propensity of his animal; that in case of animals feræ naturæ, the nature of the animal is of itself sufficient notice to him; that in case of animals ordinarily domesticated, it is necessary to shew that the owner knew on some previous occasion that his animal had disclosed his dangerous propensities; and that there is this distinction between an injury done by an animal at large and one confined on the owner's premises, as, for instance, a yard-dog; that, in the latter case, the owner's liability stands on the same footing as his liability for injury occasioned by any dangerous machine on his premises, so that he would not be liable unless he placed it where persons, either by express invitation or implied license, would come, and would not be liable for damage done to a mere trespasser. This latter proposition being, however, an exposition of the common law on the point, and of course subject to the qualification introduced by particular well-known statutory provisions respecting certain dangerous instruments, as spring guns, &c.

The law, then, having been firmly fixed, that a man was not liable for the injuries done by his dog, unless a scienter was alleged and proved, and having been so stated in the above-mentioned articles, we wish to draw attention to a statute which has been passed this session, materially altering the law on this point. This statute is cap. 60 of last session.

Cap. 60 applies to England and Wales, and enacts, that the owner of a dog shall be liable in damages for injury done to cattle and sheep by his dog, without its being shewn that the dog had a previous mischievous propensity, or that the owner was aware of it, or the injury attributable to his neglect; and that where such damage is under 5*l.*, it shall be recoverable in a summary way before a justice of the peace; and the occupier of the premises where the dog is kept, or permitted to live and remain at the time of the injury, is to be deemed to be the owner, unless he shew that he was not owner, and that the dog was on the premises without his sanction or knowledge; and where premises have more than one occupier, and are let in separate lodgings, &c., the occupier of the particular part where the dog is permitted to live is alone to be esteemed such owner. And as we have alluded in passing to the provisions, of certain criminal statutes, against the setting of spring guns, &c., we may also, before concluding, draw attention to the statutes passed long since the above-mentioned articles, and analogous in spirit, viz. the 26 & 27 Vict. c. 113, and the 27 & 28 Vict. c. 115; the former prohibiting the sowing or placing of poisoned grain in or upon any ground or exposed place; the latter prohibiting the placing of poisoned flesh on any land, except an inclosed garden attached to a dwelling-house, or in a drain protected against dogs, or in a stack, &c., in order to kill vermin.

JUDICIAL STATISTICS, 1864—CIVIL SIDE.

(From the Blue Book).

FOR all the courts of civil jurisdiction, the proceedings of which have been included in the judicial statistics of preceding years, similar information is given for 1864, in the second part of the present volume.

The tables are arranged in the same order as heretofore, and are preceded by the usual summaries and comparisons in the preliminary report, the numbers for 1863, and in almost every case the average of the numbers for the five years 1859 to 1863, inclusive, being shewn in comparison with the numbers for 1864.

In the preliminary part is given also (p. ix, after the statement of the Suitors' Fund) a further statement of fees, in respect of the common-law courts, and of the office of the Queen's Remembrancer.

An additional statement furnished by the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery, also, is inserted after the return of the Suitors' Fund and Suitors' Fee Fund of that court.

And with regard to the High Court of Admiralty, an explanation is given, as made by the registrar, of the reasons for which it is not possible for him to furnish a return of the Fee Fund of the court, similar to that made from the annual account presented to Parliament by the Accountant-General, under the act of the 5 Vict. c. 5, of the Suitors' Fund and the Suitors' Fee Fund of the Court of Chancery.

Returns are given in the tables in the usual form, as furnished by the different officers, shewing the proceedings in the three superior courts of common law, in the same detail for 1864 as for preceding years. The return of certain proceedings under the peculiar jurisdiction of the Court of Queen's Bench on the Crown side, made by the Queen's Coroner and Attorney, and Master of the Crown Office, forms the first table. These officers have added to their return the same explanation as given by them in previous years, to the effect that the casting of the several columns will not give an adequate notion of the total proceedings, inasmuch as the same matters appear more than once in the same column. They state that the real account of total proceedings for 1864 is given below. The corresponding numbers for 1863, are shewn for comparison, with the average of the numbers for the five years from 1859 to 1863, inclusive.

	1864.	1863.	Average 1859-63.
On writs of mandamus—made absolute	17	.. 13	..	20
On quo warranto—Informations filed	1	.. 4	..	5
On writs of habeas corpus—Applications for writs	34	.. 18	..	30
On writs of certiorari—Writs issued	87	.. 95	..	83
Judgments and executions	6	.. 10	..	18
On grand jury bills	13	.. —	..	—
On informations ex officio	—	.. —	..	2
On orders of sessions—Removed into Queen's Bench	13	.. 27	..	27
On special cases from quarter sessions (12 & 13 Vict. c. 45)	18	.. 7	..	11
On special cases on proceedings before justices (20 & 21 Vict. c. 43)	48	.. 31	..	47

The nature of the offences tried on the Crown side of the Court of Queen's Bench is, as stated by the officers of the court, conspiracies, perjuries, assaults, nuisances, and other misdemeanours, and occasionally, but rarely, felonies. It is further explained, that, as the trials take place at Nisi Prius in London and Middlesex, and at the assizes for the other counties, there is not any record kept in the Crown Office of the number of causes or of the number of persons tried, or of the judgments, except in cases in which judgment is entered up in the Queen's Bench, and except where parties are fined. No record is kept in the Crown Office of persons sentenced to be imprisoned, except where the sentences are passed by the court in banc, which very seldom occurs now, as sentences are, by virtue of stat. 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 70, almost invariably passed by the judge at Nisi Prius, and not afterwards entered up of record in the Queen's Bench.

In 1864, sentence of "fined" appears to have been recorded in three cases, viz. the Midland Railway Company, 300*l.*; John Jones, 50*l.*; and Robert Highat, 50*l.*

The total amount of fees received in the Crown Office in 1864 was 578*l.* 9*s.* 9*d.* The amount was 607*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.* in 1863, and higher in each of the four preceding years. No fees are now allowed to be taken for duties performed for any of the Government departments.

The chief proceedings on the plea side in each of the three superior courts of common law, as shewn in the returns furnished by the Masters, the form of procedure being similar in the three courts, are stated in the following summary for 1864. The totals of the matters under each heading are added for 1863, and the average of the totals of the five years 1859 to 1863, inclusive.

Nature of the Proceedings.	1864.								1863.		Average of the Totals for 1859-63.
	QUEEN'S BENCH.		COMMON PLEAS.		EXCHEQUER.		TOTAL.		TOTAL.
	Process issued.	Matters heard.	Process issued.	Matters heard.	Process issued.	Matters heard.	Process issued.	Matters heard.	Process issued.	Matters heard.	Process issued.	Matters heard.
Writs of summons issued . .	34,285	—	32,300	—	46,673	—	113,158	—	100,042	—	100,349	—
Writs of capias . . .	170	—	167	—	183	—	520	—	608	—	556	—
Appearances entered . . .	9,319	—	9,389	—	11,408	—	30,116	—	27,034	—	26,624	—
Judgments . . .	11,303	—	9,952	—	15,309	—	36,564	—	33,743	—	33,639	—
Executions . . .	7,759	—	7,994	—	10,721	—	25,574	—	22,752	—	25,729	—
Motions for new trials . . .	—	192	—	219	—	165	—	566	—	561	—	562
Other special motions . . .	—	252	—	272	—	181	—	765	—	846	—	781
Hand motions and on side bar rules . . .	1,135	—	1,030	—	1,211	—	3,376	—	3,180	—	3,405	—
Causes referred to Masters . .	227	—	221	—	216	—	664	—	426	—	531	—
Total amount of fees . . .	£24,311 6 0	£18,671 16 6	£26,824 2 0	£69,807 4 6	£64,537 11 6	£66,092 18 0

No statement is given in the returns for the Courts of Queen's Bench or Common Pleas of the number of bills of costs taxed in the year 1864. In the Court of Exchequer, the number, exclusive of bills taxed under the statute, was 7692, being an increase of 192, or 2·5 per cent. upon the number for the preceding year.

The number of causes entered for trial, the number of trials, and the number withdrawn, struck out &c., are shewn, with regard to the Courts at Westminster, in the returns furnished by the associates of each of the three courts, and with regard to the proceedings at Nisi Prius in the returns made by the clerks of assize and clerks of the Crown.

In the following abstract, the numbers for 1864 are given for each of the three courts, with the totals. The totals under each head are added for 1863, and the average of the totals for the five years 1859 to 1863, inclusive.

Number of Causes.	1864.								1863.		Average of Totals for 1859-63.
	Queen's Bench.		Common Pleas.		Exchequer.		Total.		Total.
	West-minster.	Nisi Prius.	West-minster.	Nisi Prius.	West-minster.	Nisi Prius.	West-minster.	Nisi Prius.	West-minster.	Nisi Prius.	West-minster.	Nisi Prius.
Entered for trial	839	484	838	303	824	535	2501	1392	2251	1266	2222	1243
Trials	—	355	—	220	—	377	—	952	—	959	—	942
Defended	303	—	346	—	316	—	965	—	939	—	970	—
Undefended	63	—	79	—	112	—	254	—	223	—	192	—
Withdrawn, struck out, &c. .	443	118	380	77	408	149	1196	339	1071	293	985	256

Besides the foregoing, there were forty cases entered for trial on circuit in the Common Pleas of Lancaster; two in the Common Pleas of Durham; and six issues from the Court of Probate, all of which were tried, except fourteen from the Common Pleas of Lancaster, which were withdrawn.

The nature of the suits tried at Westminster, and of all those entered for trial at Nisi Prius on circuit is shewn under the following classification in the returns furnished respectively by the associates, and by the clerks of assize and clerks of the Crown.

Nature of the Suits.	Total.		Queen's Bench.		Common Pleas.		Exchequer.		Court of Probate.	Common Pleas of Lancaster.		Common Pleas of Durham.
	Westminster.	Nisi Prius.	Westminster.	Nisi Prius.	Westminster.	Nisi Prius.	Westminster.	Nisi Prius.	Nisi Prius.	Nisi Prius.	Nisi Prius.	Nisi Prius.
On promissory notes, bills of exchange, &c. . .	159	99	44	29	52	19	63	48	—	3	—	—
On bonds . . .	20	7	2	2	13	—	3	5	—	—	—	—
For goods sold and delivered . . .	168	141	37	40	48	27	83	69	—	5	—	—
For work and labour done . . .	132	100	42	34	36	23	54	39	—	4	—	—
For money paid, advanced, or lent . . .	46	56	13	20	17	17	16	19	—	—	—	—
For money received . . .	26	20	8	4	8	6	10	9	—	1	—	—
For compensation for personal injuries under Lord Campbell's Act . . .	94	78	27	31	34	15	33	28	—	4	—	—
For compensation for other injuries from negligence . . .	42	58	10	28	13	16	19	14	—	—	—	—
Replevin or distress . . .	17	5	10	1	3	2	4	2	—	—	—	—
Trover or detinue . . .	39	62	11	14	11	23	17	24	—	1	—	—
For breach of contract . . .	135	102	57	34	46	27	32	39	—	2	—	—
Upon special contracts . . .	54	73	—	25	54	16	—	31	—	1	—	—
For breach of warranty . . .	8	15	4	1	1	3	3	10	—	1	—	—
For infringement of patents . . .	7	8	1	2	4	3	2	3	—	—	—	—
Carried forward . . .	947	824	266	265	340	197	339	340	—	22	—	—

Nature of the Suits.	Total.		Queen's Bench.		Common Pleas.		Exchequer.		Court of Probate.	Common Pleas of Lancaster.	Common Pleas of Durham.
	Westminster.	Nisi Prius.	Westminster.	Nisi Prius.	Westminster.	Nisi Prius.	Westminster.	Nisi Prius.	Nisi Prius.	Nisi Prius.	Nisi Prius.
Brought forward	947	824	208	285	340	197	329	249	—	22	—
For recovery of land (ejectments)	54	163	23	33	19	23	12	40	—	6	1
Trespasses relative to land, houses, &c.	26	144	9	82	19	26	8	49	—	7	—
Questions on wills	—	6	—	—	—	—	—	—	6	—	—
For breach of promise of marriage	9	23	2	10	4	8	3	10	—	—	—
Seduction	4	14	2	3	1	2	1	6	—	1	—
Libel	21	16	6	6	8	7	7	3	—	—	—
Slander	26	48	9	21	11	6	6	17	—	2	—
Malicious prosecution	3	9	2	3	—	2	1	3	—	1	—
False imprisonment	24	28	0	8	8	6	7	14	—	—	—
Assault	19	38	—	7	9	6	10	19	—	—	1
Interpleader issues	8	15	5	12	3	—	1	3	—	—	—
On the case	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Nuisance	2	13	2	8	—	—	—	5	—	—	—
Breach of covenant	17	23	7	6	—	6	10	11	—	—	—
For recovery of rent	18	6	9	3	3	3	6	1	—	—	—
On life and fire policies	8	3	5	—	—	2	3	1	—	—	—
Other suits	25	64	10	37	1	13	14	13	—	1	—
Total	1221	1370	306	484	425	303	428	535	6	40	2

The number of suits entered for trial at Nisi Prius on each circuit in 1864, and the number tried, were as follows:—

Circuit.	Entered for Trial.	Trial.
Home	290	208
Midland	239	173
Norfolk	76	60
Northern	28	25
Oxford	120	88
Western	84	78
Bristol	40	28
North Wales	62	54
South Wales	47	36
County palatine of Durham	23	17
County palatine of Lancaster	263	222

Total for trial, 1370; total tried, 986, or 71.9 per cent. of the number entered for trial. The remainder were withdrawn, referred, &c., as shewn in the table.

One case was not tried, "pro defectu juratorum." In 1863 the total number tried was 997; in 1862, 1059; in 1861, 1024; in 1860, 965.

The returns furnished by the Masters of the three superior courts, after stating the number of causes entered for trial, the number of writs of capias, and the number of appearances entered for each quarter of the year, next shew the number of judgments, under the different terms, as given in the following summary, in the causes tried at Westminster, and in those on circuit, without distinction. It rests with the parties for whom verdicts are given at Nisi Prius to make application for the return of the issues into the courts at Westminster, and in some cases a compromise is made after the verdict, and no further proceedings appear.

The following are the judgments as shewn in the returns for 1864, with the total numbers for each court in 1863, and the average of the totals for the five years 1859 to 1863, inclusive:—

	1864.				1863.	Average of Totals for 1859-63.
	Queen's Bench.	Common Pleas.	Exchequer.	Total.	Total.
On judges' orders:
For default of service	553	713	809	2,135	1,809	1,916
On affidavits of service	8,290	7,049	11,416	26,755	24,506	25,629
On demurrers:
For plaintiff	7	4	16	27	33	29
For defendant	6	—	4	10	21	22
On postea, writ of trial, and writ of inquiry:
For plaintiff	417	443	634	1,494	1,488	1,510
For defendant or nonsuit	99	112	143	354	475	450
By default for plaintiff	1,161	1,169	1,696	4,028	3,630	3,659
On non pros. for defendant	64	47	44	155	180	159
On special cases:
For plaintiff	5	2	3	10	19	17
For defendant	2	3	3	8	11	15
On judges' orders to stay proceedings:
Warrants of attorney, certificates of arbitrators, &c.	699	410	479	1,588	1,571	1,579
Total judgments	11,303	9,952	15,309	36,564	33,743	34,625

Comparing the totals, there is an increase in 1864 of 2821, or 8·3 per cent. above the number in 1863, and of 1939, or 5·6 per cent. above the average of five years. The increase extends to each of the three courts, amounting for the Queen's Bench, to 965, or 9·3 per cent.; for the Common Pleas, to 1017, or 11·3 per cent.; and for the Court of Exchequer, to 839, or 5·8 per cent.

The returns furnished by the associates shew the result of the causes tried in each of the courts at Westminster, in each description of suit. The returns made by the clerks of assize, and the clerks of the crown for the counties palatine, shew the results in the causes tried on circuit, in the different descriptions of suits and account for the whole of the causes entered for trial on circuit. The following summary shews the results of the suits both at Westminster and on circuit for 1864, with the total number for 1863, and the average of the totals for 1859 to 1863, inclusive:—

	1864.					1863.	Average of Totals, 1859-63.
	Queen's Bench.	Common Pleas.	Exchequer.	Nisi Prius.	Total.	Total.
Verdict for plaintiff	242	319	306	698	1565	1445	1402
Verdict for plaintiff, subject to special case	9	5	5	19	38	31	36
Verdict by consent with reference	23	6	23	123	175	145	137
Verdict for defendant	49	59	49	118	275	303	342
Jury discharged without verdict	7	6	12	10	35	30	31
Jury withdrawn	15	17	12	41	86	78	80
Nonsuit	21	18	20	28	86	104	96
Set process, venue changed, record withdrawn, &c.	—	—	—	335	335	282	297
Total	363	426	426	1379	2589	2476	2394

The classified amounts and the total amount recovered, under each description of suit, are shown in the returns made by the associates with regard to the causes tried at Westminster, and in those furnished by the clerks of assize and clerks of the crown with regard to the causes on circuit. The following summary shews the number of each class of amounts recovered in 1864, in each of the three superior courts, and at Nisi Prius. The total amount recovered exceeds by the sum of 103,118*l.*, or upwards of 39*l.* per cent., the amount shown in the returns for the year 1863:—

Number of each Class of Amounts.	Total.	Queen's Bench.	Common Pleas.	Exchequer.	Nisi Prius.
Above 5000 l.	16	1	3	1	5
5000 l. and above 3000 l.	8	2	2	—	4
3000 l. and above 2000 l.	18	2	1	3	12
2000 l. and above 1000 l.	22	3	4	5	17
1000 l. and above 500 l.	63	5	17	6	35
500 l. and above 300 l.	67	15	19	6	34
300 l. and above 200 l.	82	7	21	15	39
200 l. and above 100 l.	162	20	27	34	88
100 l. and above 50 l.	217	44	41	42	90
50 l. and above 20 l.	440	79	101	114	152
20 l. and under	204	48	70	68	188
Total amount recovered	£268,162	£48,258	£70,246	£42,168	£207,510

The Masters' returns next shew the number of executions under the different forms of writs. The following were the numbers in each of the three courts in 1864, with the totals for the three courts in 1863 and the average of the totals for the five years, 1859 to 1863, inclusive:—

	1864.				1863.	Average of Totals, 1859-63.
	Queen's Bench.	Common Pleas.	Exchequer.	Total.	Total.
Writs of fieri facias	5359	4674	7643	17,676	16,563	17,139
capias ad satisfaciendum	2173	2227	2842	7242	6557	7933
possession	151	119	145	415	436	479
elegit	54	53	61	170	145	115
exegi facias	18	16	23	57	34	51
capias utlagatum.	4	3	7	14	17	10
Total executions	7758	7094	10,721	25,574	23752	25,726

The judgments being subject to revision by the courts sitting in banco, on motions for new trials, or to enter or alter verdict, or for nonsuit, or arrest of judgment, or non obstante veredicto, the returns made by the Masters shew that of such cases there were the following in 1864, the totals for the preceding year and the average of the five years being added for comparison:—

	1864.				1863.	Average of Totals, 1859-63.
	Queen's Bench.	Common Pleas.	Exchequer.	Total.	Total.
Refused	49	53	26	128	110	114
Rule nisi granted	75	88	57	220	221	241
Rule absolute granted on payment of costs	6	2	—	8	7	102
Rule absolute granted without costs	26	33	33	92	105
Rule absolute granted with question of costs reserved	5	4	1	10	8
Rule discharged	31	37	36	106	119	107
Where court divided	—	2	—	2	1	3

(To be continued).

ALL THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACTS, AND ALL THE ACTS AND RULES RELATING TO TRIALS OF ISSUES OF FACT.

In 12mo., price 16s. 6d. cloth.

THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACTS of 1833, 1854, and 1860. With Notes, and the Forms and Rules. To which are prefixed or appended all the Acts (or Portions of Acts) relating to Common-law Procedure, or the Trial of Issues of Fact in the Courts of Common Law, Chancery, or Probate, with the Rules of each Court respectively. Adapted to the use of Practitioners in all the Courts, and also to the use of Students. By W. F. FINLASON, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law, Editor of "The Common-law Procedure Acts, 1853 and 1854."

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 12mo., price 7s. cloth.

A BRIEF and PRACTICAL EXPOSITION of the LAW OF CHARITABLE TRUSTS, with special Reference to the Jurisdiction of the Commissioners of Charities; containing also all the Charitable Trusts Acts. With Notes, and the Rules, Minutes, and Orders of the Court of Chancery and the Commissioners of Charities. By W. F. FINLASON, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law, Editor of "The Charitable Trusts Acts of 1853 and 1855."

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

COOKE ON INCLOSURE OF COMMONS.

In 12mo., price 16s. cloth.

THE ACTS for facilitating the INCLOSURE of COMMONS in ENGLAND and WALES; with a Treatise on the Law of Rights of Commons, in reference to these Acts; and on the Jurisdiction of the Inclosure Commissioners in Exchanges and Partitions; under the public and private Moneys Drainage Acts; and under the Companies' Acts relating thereto; with Forms as settled by the Commissioners. By GEORGE WINGROVE COOKE, of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law. Fourth Edition.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

Price 5s. cloth boards.

A HANDY-BOOK OF THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT, comprising Literary, Dramatic, and Musical Copyright, and Copyright in Engravings, Sculpture, and Works of Art. With an Appendix, containing the Statutes, Convention with France, and Forms under the 25 & 26 Vict. c. 68. By F. F. CHAPPELL and JOHN SHOARD, LL.D.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

In 1 thick vol. 8vo., price 11. 8s. cloth boards.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW relating to the CHURCH and the CLERGY. By H. W. CHIPPES, M.A., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law, Recorder of Lichfield. The Third Edition, revised and enlarged, containing the Statutes and Cases to the present time.

Since the publication of the first edition, the progress of legislation on the subjects treated of has rendered necessary considerable alterations and additions in this and in the preceding edition, and while much new matter has been introduced, all that has become obsolete has been omitted. In many other matters the law has been materially altered, and doubtful points have been settled by recently-decided cases, all which are now to be found in the present edition.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

CHITTY'S (JUN.) LAW OF CONTRACTS, BY RUSSELL.

In 1 vol. royal-8vo., price 11. 12s.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW of CONTRACTS, and upon the Defences to Actions thereon. By JOSEPH CHITTY, Jun., Esq. The Sixth Edition. By JOHN A. RUSSELL, LL.B., of Gray's-inn, Barrister at Law, and Professor of English Law in University College, London.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

This day is published, price 7s. cloth boards.

A TREATISE on ARRANGEMENTS with CREDITORS under the BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861. With Precedents. To which are added, the Sections of the Bankruptcy Acts, 1849 and 1861, and the Rules and Orders relating thereto. With a full Index. By WILLIAM DOWNES GRIFFITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 1 thick vol. royal 8vo., price 11. 15s. cloth boards.

WOODFALL'S LAW OF LANDLORD AND TENANT. With a full Collection of Precedents and Forms of Procedure. The Eighth Edition. By W. R. COLE, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

In royal 12mo., price 14s. cloth.

A TREATISE on the PRINCIPLES and PRACTICE of the COURT for DIVORCE and MATRIMONIAL CAUSES, with the Statutes, Rules, Fees, and Forms relating thereto, and copious Examples of Bills of Costs. By GEORGE BROWNE, Esq., B. A., Barrister at Law, of the Inner Temple.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

FOURTH EDITION OF PALEY ON SUMMARY CONVICTIONS.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 31s. cloth boards.

PALEY ON the LAW and PRACTICE of SUMMARY CONVICTIONS by JUSTICES of the PEACE. Including Proceedings preliminary and subsequent to Convictions, and under the 18 & 19 Vict. c. 126, relating to Larceny, &c. With Practical Forms and Precedents of Convictions. The Fourth Edition. By H. T. J. MACNAMARA, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard; W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard.

In 12mo., price 4s. cloth.

THE LAWYER AND HIS PROFESSION. A Series of Letters to a Solicitor commencing Business. By I. ORTON SMITH.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

CHITTY ON BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 11. 8s.

CHITTY ON BILLS OF EXCHANGE, Promissory Notes, Cheques on Bankers, Bankers' Cash Notes, and Bank Notes; with References to the Law of Scotland, France, and America. The Tenth Edition. By JOHN A. RUSSELL and D. MACLACHLAN, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

SHELFORD'S LAW OF HIGHWAYS IN ENGLAND and WALES.

brought down to 1865.

In 1 vol. 12mo., price 12s. cloth.

THE LAW OF HIGHWAYS in ENGLAND and WALES; comprising Highways in Districts under Boards of Health and of Local Government, and as affected by Railways. With additional Forms not contained in the Acts. By LEONARD SHELFORD, Esq. The Third Edition, with a Supplement, containing the Highway Act, 1864, &c. With Notes and a revised Index. By C. MANLEY SMITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the OFFICE, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, September 2, 1865.

The Jurist

No. 557, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.

No. 1496, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXXIX.

SEPTEMBER 9, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

LAW.—A Gentleman, age 28, admitted in 1861, will be disengaged about Christmas next, and is desirous of obtaining, by PURCHASE, a SHARE in an old-established CITY OFFICE. Satisfactory testimonials to character and ability can be given.—Address, LAW, Messrs. Bagbie & Co.'s, 10, Coleman-street, E. C.

CHITTY'S COLLECTION OF STATUTES.

Now ready, in 4 very thick vols., price 12l. 12s. cloth.

A COLLECTION of all the STATUTES of PRACTICAL UTILITY, with Notes thereon; intended as a Circuit and Court Companion. The Third Edition, containing all the Statutes of Practical Utility in the Civil and Criminal Administration of Justice to the present time. By W. N. WELSBY and EDWARD BEAVAN, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

"The principal branches of the Law are arranged alphabetically, and under each is collected all the Statutes relating to it, with explanatory notes. Besides the easy access afforded by the alphabetical arrangement of the subjects, a very copious general Index supplies the means of ready reference to all the subjects of lesser importance to which the various Statutes are directed."

"We could not say more for this great work by any words of approbation than by this short description of it. It is an admirable design admirably executed."—Law Times, May 13, 1855.

"* In the debate on the proposed consolidation of the Statutes, on the 9th February, 1854, Lord Campbell said, "that the Statutes at large extended to about fifty volumes folio, but all the Statutes which were usually required by lawyers for reference might be found in three octavo volumes, compiled by his learned friend Mr. Welsby. When he (Lord Campbell) was upon the Bench, he always had this work by him, and no Statutes were ever referred to by the Bar which he could not find in it."

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SOLICITORS' JOURNAL, No. 44, price 6d.—

CONTENTS:—Leaders.—Discharge of a Jury in a Capital Case.—The Ends of Justice.—The Legislation of the Year.—Topics.—State of the Law in relation to Infanticide.—Crown's-quest Law.—Correspondence of the Profession.—Appointments.—Gazettes, &c.

Office, 59, Carey-street, W. C.

HAYES'S CONCISE CONVEYANCER.

THE CONCISE CONVEYANCER, or SHORT PRECEDENTS of CONVEYANCES. With Practical Remarks, and Summary of the Stamp Laws relating to Conveyances. By WILLIAM HAYES, Esq., Barrister at Law, one of the Six Conveyancing Counsel of the High Court of Chancery. The Second Edition, with considerable Additions; including a Chapter on Composition Deeds, under the New Bankrupt Act. By W. E. COLTMAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. Royal 12mo, price 18s.

"The present Edition contains Conveyances on Sales, Mortgages, Leases, Settlements, and a variety of Miscellaneous Instruments, but no "Wills," as the work is intended to be a companion volume to the well-known work by Hayes & Jarman of Concise Forms and Wills.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

The Sixth Edition, now ready, price 21s. cloth boards.

HAYES AND JARMAN'S CONCISE FORMS OF WILLS, with Practical Notes: a Popular View of the Statute of Wills, and Suggestions to Persons taking Instructions for and preparing Wills; the Decisions on the Wills Acts, and other Testamentary Matters, in the House of Lords and Privy Council, and in the Equity, Common Law, Ecclesiastical, and Probate Courts, down to the Time of Publication; and many additional Forms. Sixth Edition. By THOMAS S. BADGER EASTWOOD, of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, M.A., and of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law, Reader on the Law of Real Property to the Four Inns of Court.

London: H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street, Law Bookseller and Publisher.

BYTHEWOOD AND JARMAN'S CONVEYANCING.—

Vol. 8, Part I.

Price 3s. boards.

A SELECTION of PRECEDENTS from MODERN MANUSCRIPT COLLECTIONS, and DRAFTS of ACTUAL PRACTICE, forming a System of Conveyancing. With Dissertations and Practical Notes. By THOMAS JARMAN, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law. The Third Edition. Vol. 8. By WHITLEY STOKES, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

Part I.—POWERS of ATTORNEY.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

No. 557, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

This day is published, in demy 12mo., 1016 pp., price 1l. 12s. cloth.
ROGERS on ELECTIONS, ELECTION COM-MITTEES, and REGISTRATION. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Tenth Edition. With the new Registration Statute, and all the Election and Registration Cases to the present time. By F. S. F. WOLFFERSTAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

PRIDEAUX'S PRECEDENTS IN CONVEYANCING.

Price 2l. 12s. 6d., in 2 vols. royal 8vo., cloth.

PRIDEAUX'S PRECEDENTS IN CONVEYANCING; with Dissertations on its Law and Practice. Fourth Edition. By FREDERICK PRIDEAUX and JOHN WHITCOMBE, both of Lincoln's-inn, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SIMON'S LAW RELATING TO RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.

In 12mo., price 3s. cloth.

THE LAW relating to RAILWAY ACCIDENTS, including an Outline of the Liabilities of Railway Companies as Carriers generally, concisely discussed and explained. By HENRY A. SIMON, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY. 68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q. C.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.

Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office. C. B. CLABON, Sec.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS at

PATRIDGE & COZENS,

WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS IN PARCHMENT,

192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 20s.

PATRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bona fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual RETAIL charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.

Draft Paper, 6s., 7s., 7s. 9d., and 9s. per ream.

Brief Paper, 13s. 6d., 16s., and 18s. 6d. per ream.

Foolscap Paper, 10s. 6d., 13s. 6d., and 17s. 6d. per ream.

Cream Laid Note, 3s., 4s., and 5s. per ream.

Large Cream Laid Note, 4s., 6s., and 7s. 6d. per ream.

Large Blue Note, 3s., 4s., and 6s. per ream.

Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2s. 9d., 3s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. per 1000.

Foolscap Official Envelopes, 1s. 6d. per 100, or 12s. 6d. per 1000.

Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, Piercers, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25s.; Good Stand for ditto with two Drawers, 17s.

Parchment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1s. 6d. each, or 17s. per dozen.

Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1s. 4d. each, or 15s. per dozen.

Records or Memorials, Ruled, 8s. per dozen, or 22s. 6d. per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inkstands; Postage Scales; Writing-cases; Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post-free.

PATRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

CONTENTS

Leading Article	343
Judicial Statistics, 1884—Civil Side	348
Statutes passed during the late Session of Parliament.

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

HOUSE OF LORDS.

By W. W. KNOX, Barrister at Law.

Blades v. Higgs.—(Fam. nature—Game—Property—Trespasser)	701
---------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. MARRETT, Barrister at Law.

Macintosh v. The Great Western Railway Company.—(Practice—Payment—Appeal)	705
Willoughby v. Brideoake.—(Reversion—Purchase—Time)	706

BOARDS COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

The Earl of Durham v. Legard, Bart.—(Specific performance—Deficiency in quantity—Compensation)	708
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HEWART, Barrister at Law.

Re Chapman's Trusts.—(Succession Duty Act, 1853—Legacy duty—Appointments)	708
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVELLY, Barrister at Law.

Reg. v. Colvill.—(Prisons—Quarter sessions, power of, to determine what prisons shall be adapted to particular offenders)	710
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By R. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

Comley, App., Carpenter, Resp.—(Turnpike Act—Tolls—Stage carriages)	712
---------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

EXCHEQUER CHAMBER.

By H. RUTHERFORD, Barrister at Law.

Symons and Another v. George and Others.—(Bankruptcy Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 134, ss. 192, 194, 197)—Trust deed—Validity at common law)	713
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

By W. BRANDT, Barrister at Law.

Fletcher v. Rylands.—(Action on the case—Injury by water sinking into ancient mines)	714
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

Recently published, vol. 1, price 11. 11s. 6d. cloth.

THE PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT OF CHANCERY, with some Observations on the Pleadings in that Court. By the late EDMUND ROBERT DANIELL, Barrister at Law. Fourth Edition, with considerable Alterations and Additions, incorporating the Statutes, Orders, and Cases to the present time, and Braithwaite's Record and Writ Practice; together with references to a Companion Volume of Forms and Precedents. By LEONARD FIELD and EDWARD CLENNELL DUNN, Barristers at Law, with the assistance of JOHN BIDDLE, of the Master of the Rolls' Chambers. In 2 vols.

* Vol. 2, and the Companion Volume of Forms, will be published in Michaelmas Term.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

DODD AND BROOKE'S PRACTICE OF THE COURT OF PROBATE.

Recently published, in 8vo., price 11. 11s. 6d. cloth.

THE LAW AND PRACTICE OF THE COURT OF PROBATE, Contentious and Common Forms. With the Rules, Statutes, and Forms. By PHILIP WM. DODD, Solicitor, and GEORGE HENRY BROOKE, Doctors' Commons.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

PHILLIPS'S LAW OF COPYRIGHT.

In 8vo., price 12s. cloth.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT in WORKS OF LITERATURE and ART, and in the Application of Designs. With the Statutes relating thereto. By CHARLES PALMER PHILLIPS, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 8vo. 1863.

"Mr. Phillips has shewn, not only great diligence in collecting cases bearing upon the various topics which he has treated, but considerable judgment in the manner in which he has dealt with them. He has spared no pains to make his work reliable as a legal text-book, and at the same time equally useful to publishers, authors, artists, and other persons who are interested in works of literature, art, or design. In a word, such a book has long been wanted, and Mr. Phillips has given abundant proof of his ability to meet the desideratum."—Solicitors' Journal, Nov. 14, 1863.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

TISLEY'S STAMP ACTS.

In 8vo., price 12s. 6d. cloth.

A DIGEST OF THE STAMP ACTS, and the JUDICIAL DECISIONS on the STAMP LAWS, not contained in the Author's Treatise; including the Probate, Legacy, and Succession Duties; with Tables of all the Stamp Duties. By HUGH TISLEY, Assistant Solicitor of Inland Revenue. Ninth Edition, revised, by his Son, EDWARD HUGH TISLEY, of the Inland Revenue Office.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

NEW EDITIONS OF LORD ST. LEONARD'S WORKS.

Price 11. 18s. cloth, the Fourteenth Edition, much enlarged.

A CONCISE AND PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW OF VENDORS AND PURCHASERS OF ESTATES. By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

Also, uniform with the above, in 1 thick vol. royal 8vo., the Eighth Edition, price 11. 15s. cloth.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE OF POWERS. By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 11. 5s. cloth.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE on the NEW STATUTES relating to PROPERTY. The Second Edition. By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

PRACTICE OF THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL.

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 18s. cloth boards.

THE PRACTICE OF THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE of Her Majesty's most Honourable PRIVY COUNCIL. By WILLIAM MACPHERSON, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law, Author of "The Procedure of the Civil Courts of British India."

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

SIR JOHN BARNARD BYLES ON BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

The Eighth Edition, price 11. 2s. cloth boards.

A TREATISE on the LAW OF BILLS OF EXCHANGE, PROMISSORY NOTES, BANK NOTES, and CHECKS. By Sir JOHN BARNARD BYLES, Queen's Serjeant (now one of the Judges of her Majesty's Court of Common Pleas). The Eighth Edition, with Notes from the Fourth American Edition.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

MAUDE & POLLOCK'S LAW OF SHIPPING.

A COMPENDIUM of the LAW OF MERCHANT SHIPPING. With an Appendix, containing all the Statutes and Forms of Practical Utility. By FREDERIC PHILIP MAUDE and CHARLES EDWARD POLLOCK, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barristers at Law. The Third Edition, including the Statutes and Decisions to the present time. Royal 8vo., price 11. 14s. cloth.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE CONTRACT OF SALE

A TREATISE on the EFFECT of the CONTRACT OF SALE on the LEGAL RIGHTS of PROPERTY and POSSESSION in GOODS, WARES, and MERCHANDISE. By COLIN BLACKBURN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. 8vo., price 12s. boards.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, SEPTEMBER 2, 1865.

WE have in a previous number (Aug. 12) discussed the "Act to amend the Law of Partnership," passed during the last session, but the measure is so important, that we think some further remarks upon it will not be out of place. Two matters struck us, during the passage of the bill, as being rather curious; the one was, that there should have been such a general impression that the bill was introducing a great novelty—a something contrary to the accepted principles of English law; the other was, that it does not seem to have been pointed out; that in truth it was merely substantiating the reasoning on which the learned lords who gave judgment in the important case of Cox v. Hickman founded their decision. With respect to the first (as was pointed out by the late Lord Chancellor), according to the true principles of English law, the existence of a partnership should depend upon the conduct and intention of the parties; and where the parties have not entered into a contract of partnership, the law should not hold them partners, as respects their liability to third parties, except in the case of their holding themselves out as such, and thus bringing into play another distinct principle of law; and the curiously fine-drawn distinctions and elaborate decisions which have so long been a disgrace to this portion of our law, have all sprung out of a struggle against an old and erroneous decision, causing the law of partnership, as his Lordship possibly put it, to depend on subtle distinctions, and not on the wholesome and well-established principles of the law of England. With respect to the second, Lords Cranworth and Wensleydale, in delivering judgment in Cox v. Hickman, laid down, that the law of partnership was merely a branch of the law of principal and agent, and was to be governed by the same principles; so that an agreement to share profits was not a final criterion, but a test to be used, as other circumstances, for arriving at a conclusion in each case. And thus, as pointed out by Mr. Lindley in his learned book on the Law of Partnership, the principles on which the judgment was founded would seem to establish the following propositions:—First, that persons who share the profits of a business are, like other persons, only liable for the acts of themselves, and of their real or ostensible agents. Secondly, that, whether in any particular case, the relation of principal and agent does or does not exist between one person who carries on a business, and another person who shares its profits, depends not on the mere fact that the business is carried on, more or less, for the benefit of the latter, but on all the circumstances of the case. Thirdly, that the relation of principal and agent is not constituted merely by an agreement which entitles one person to share the gross returns of a business or adventure conducted by another. Fourthly, that the relation of principal and agent is not constituted merely by an agreement which entitles one person to be paid definite sums out of the profits made by another.

Fifthly, that the relation of principal and agent is not constituted merely by an agreement which entitles one person to be paid sums varying with the profits made by another. Sixthly, that the relation of principal and agent is not constituted merely by the existence of a trust entitling one person to profits made by another. Seventhly, that prima facie the relation of principal and agent is constituted by an agreement entitling one person to share the profits made by another to an indefinite extent.

Accepting, then, the late Lord Chancellor's statement of the true principles of our law, and Mr. Lindley's statement of the deductions and consequences arising from the reasoning in the judgments in Cox v. Hickman to be correct, let us see if there be anything in this new statute which is more than a statutory affirmation of them.

The 1st section enacts, that "The advance of money by way of loan to a person, engaged or about to engage in any trade or undertaking, upon a contract in writing with such person that the lender shall receive a rate of interest varying with the profits, or shall receive a share of the profits arising from carrying on such trade or undertaking, shall not of itself constitute the lender a partner with the person or the persons carrying on such trade or undertaking, or render him responsible as such."

The section we see carefully provides, that such a contract shall not of itself constitute a partnership, leaving it, however, as a circumstance to be taken into consideration with other surrounding circumstances in determining the liability as respects third parties, and it can only be considered as an extension of the principles deduced by Mr. Lindley from Cox v. Hickman, in so far as it may affect his seventh deduction, that a participation of profits to an indefinite extent will prima facie, and without any explanation afforded by other circumstances, constitute a partnership liability; but it would really seem hardly to do this, as, in order to come within such seventh deduction, an indefinite participation of profit is requisite; whereas sect. 1 evidently points to a definite participation, dependent in some definite way on a fixed sum, viz. the amount of the loan; and this appears to be clearly the case, on referring back to the previous proposition; while, on the other hand, the provision as to the contract being in writing materially restricts Mr. Smalley's proposition.

Sect. 2 enacts, that "No contract for the remuneration of a servant or agent of any person, engaged in any trade or undertaking, by a share of the profits of such trade or undertaking, shall of itself render such servant or agent responsible as a partner therein, nor give him the rights of a partner." This certainly cannot be considered as any extension of Mr. Smalley's propositions; and we here parenthetically remark, that the provision as to the contract being in writing is confined to sect. 1.

The same may be said of sect. 3, which enacts, "No person being the widow or child of the deceased partner of a trader, and receiving by way of annuity a portion of the profits made by such trader in his business, shall, by reason only of such receipt, be deemed to be a partner of or to be subject to any liabilities incurred by such trader;" and of sect. 4, which enacts, "No person receiving by way of annuity or otherwise a portion of the profits of any business, in consideration of the sale by him of the goodwill of such business, shall, by reason only of such receipt, be deemed to be a partner of or be subject to the liabilities of the person carrying on such business." And, indeed, sects. 2, 3, and 4 are sections, the justice and policy of which can hardly be doubted, and to which no objection seems to have been offered; sect. 1 being the provision which has provoked discussion, and excited division of opinion. And now we come to sect. 5, which enacts, "In the event of any such trader as aforesaid being adjudged a bankrupt, or taking the benefit of any act for the relief of insolvent debtors, or entering into an arrangement to pay his creditors less than 20s. in the pound, or dying in insolvent circumstances, the lender of any such loan as aforesaid shall not be entitled to recover any portion of his principal, or of the profits or interest payable in respect of such loan, nor shall any such vendor of a goodwill as aforesaid be entitled to recover any such profits as aforesaid until the claims of the other creditors of the said trader for valuable consideration in money or money's worth have been satisfied." This section, it will be observed, applies to sect. 1, and is most eminently restrictive.

It thus, then, would appear that this statute, which many contended to be a dangerous innovation, is merely a proper carrying out of the true principles of our law, and the reasoning contained in the judgments of our highest legal tribunal, or, with some accuracy, perhaps, a statutory restriction thereon. It must not, however, be considered that it is therefore of little value, for the law lords were so careful in distinguishing former cases, and professing not to overrule them, and there was such a division among the judges, and such a disinclination to upset any old case, that we cannot but see that the reasoning of the law lords would have never been acted on, but the judgment in the particular case, and an application to it alone, would have alone been effectual. The statute in this view is most important and effective, and has put the law of partnership on its proper footing, and effectually nipped in the bud an enormous amount of expensive litigation which would inevitably have immediately arisen in the struggle to carry out the principles enunciated in Cox v. Hickman, which thus may be said to have been statutorily indorsed with definite applications. The practically trenchant effect of the statute we do not underrate, but we deny its novelty, and look on it merely as a return to proper principles, and a parliamentary enactment, whereby the principles of law enunciated in Cox v. Hickman are made law instead of (as in every probability would have otherwise been the case) the mere decision on the particular case.

JUDICIAL STATISTICS, 1864—CIVIL SIDE.

(Continued from p. 340).

It has been shewn that in 1864 the number of writs of summons issued, which represent the suits commenced, was 113,158, and the number of appearances entered 30,116, or 26·6 per cent. of the number of writs issued. It would, therefore, appear that 73·4 per cent. of the cases commenced were uncontested, the defendants at once settling the claims, except where judgment was obtained in default of the entry of an appearance. It appears remarkable in how slight a degree the proportion borne by the number of appearances entered to the number of writs of summons issued varies from year to year. In 1863 it was 27·0 per cent.; in 1862, 26·6 per cent., the same as in 1864; in 1861 it was 25·4; in 1860, 26·2 per cent.

Again: of the cases in which appearances were entered, 3823 only were entered for trial, the suits being thus reduced by 12·7 per cent. Of the number entered for trial, 2171, or less than 2 per cent. of the suits commenced, were tried; and of these, 11·7 per cent. were undefended.

As has been observed in former years, however, the issue of the suits commenced is not fully represented by the causes brought to trial, or by the appearances entered. The judgments obtained are a further test. Of these, as already shewn, there were, under the different forms of procedure, 36,564, leaving 76,594, or 67·7 per cent., as the number and proportion of the suits commenced in which no proceedings were taken beyond the issue of the writ of summons. In 1863 this proportion was 66·3 per cent. Of these cases, some may have been settled between the parties after the issue of the writ of summons; some may not have been pursued further by the plaintiff; and in either case they are lost from the record; some may have been left pending, the time which may elapse between the proceedings being uncertain.

For the enforcement of the judgments, writs were issued, as already shewn, in 25,574, or 69·9 per cent. of the cases. In the preceding year the proportion was 70·4 per cent. of the cases. In 1864, 69·1 per cent. of the writs were to levy upon the goods; 28·3 per cent. were against the person; 1·6 per cent. for possession after recovery in ejectment; the remainder under the different forms before shewn. In 1863 these proportions were, respectively, 67·9, 27·6, and 1·8 per cent.

Upon the large amount of procedure which has been shewn, the number of remanets under the different descriptions was as follows at the end of each term in 1864, as stated in the returns for the respective courts:—

	In the Quarters ending
	31st March.	30th June.	30th Sept.	31st Dec.
Queen's Bench:
By consent	2	9	—	13
By injunction or decree	17	31	—	38
For want of time to try	51	169	—	41
Common Pleas:
By consent	40	31	3	67
By injunction or decree	—	—	—	40
For want of time to try	—	—	77	20
Exchequer:
By consent	5	9	2	16
By injunction or decree	—	—	—	—
For want of time to try	5	—	—	—

The returns furnished by the chamber clerks shew the business in the chambers of each of the judges of the three superior courts of common law. In the following summary, the totals of the proceedings in the chambers of the five judges of each court are given under the different headings for 1864, and the totals under each heading, for all the chambers; with the totals for 1863, and the average of the totals for the five years, 1859-63. A comparison of the totals shews little variation from year to year in the number of the proceedings under each head, considering the large amount of business:—

Proceedings.	1864.				1863.	Average of Totals, 1859-63.
	Queen's Bench.	Common Pleas.	Exchequer.	Total.	Total.
Summonses	15,425	11,118	14,580	41,123	43,372	43,546
Common orders	13,091	8,381	12,557	34,029	36,331	36,109
Special orders	5,052	2,790	3,522	11,373	12,161	11,994
Certificates, special cases, special verdicts, &c., &c.	905	546	457	1,908	1,794	1,937
Affidavits, affirmations, &c.	9,581	3,966	4,279	17,826	19,404	22,698
Affidavits filed	8,811	2,967	5,279	17,057	18,156	18,106
Approbations for taking affidavits or special bail	162	97	96	355	355	419
Acknowledgments by married women	196	227	16	309	675	519
Office copies (number of folios)	5,106	2,660	4,378	12,144	11,895	11,473
Recognisances	4	—	16	20	49	57
Writs of error	—	—	—	—	—	1
Bail	13	7	23	43	67	62
Committals	—	2	—	2	4	157
Exhibits before judge	2,058	807	953	3,818	4,126	4,069
Producing judge's notes	29	36	16	81	114	119
Bills of exceptions signed by judge	—	—	1	1	2	3
Attendances in any court on subpoena	—	—	1	1	3	10
Attendances as a commissioner to take affidavits	14	13	10	37	46	48
Reports on private bills	1	1	—	2	3	5
Attendances by counsel (each side)	1,689	861	1,260	3,810	4,304	3,839
Appointment of commissioners	5	164	121	290	373	497
Admissions	432	—	2	434	378	363
Summons and order to try issue before sheriff	421	324	433	1,198	1,556	943
Allowances, bye-laws	—	3	—	3	4	4
Special commissions	164	108	—	272	122	214
Crown case (defendant)	—	—	—	—	—	—
Copying judge's notes	36	—	—	36	160	—
Other proceedings	—	—	1	1	8	—

The sittings in banco of the Court of Exchequer in the year 1864, relating to business on the revenue side of the court are shewn, as in preceding years, in a return furnished by the Queen's remembrancer, and were as follows:—One judgment on a motion for a new trial argued in 1863, rule discharged; five special cases, in three of which the decision was for the Crown, in one, judgment was for the defendant, and one was adjourned for judgment; four causes in equity, in three of which decree was for the Crown, and one was adjourned for judgment; five motions in court, and seventy-six motions in court (without argument), touching legacy and succession duties. In court of error, sitting as a court of appeal on a revenue case, the appeal was dismissed on the ground of no jurisdiction. In court of error, there was one case, in which judgment, as to the Crown was affirmed, and as to the defendant reversed.

On the 9th November the customary ceremony takes place of the presentation of the lord mayor of London to the barons of the Court of Exchequer; and on the morrow of Saint Martin (12th November), on the assembling of the council in the Court of Exchequer, nomination takes place of the sheriffs for England and Wales.

Returns of the proceedings into the court of error, Exchequer Chamber, have been made by the Masters of each of the three superior courts of common law in the same form as the returns furnished by them for each of the last two years, and shew the proceedings from each court to have been as follows for 1864:—

	Queen's Bench.	Common Pleas.	Exchequer.	Total.
Writs of error allowed	—	—	—	—
Memorandums of error lodged	24	5	10	39
Notices of appeal lodged	27	19	16	62
	51	24	26	101
Set down for argument:
Errors	19	1	6	26
Appeals	14	9	6	29
Remanets from 1863	6	8	2	16
	39	18	14	71
How disposed of—
Errors:
Judgments affirmed	12	5	3	20
reversed	2	—	—	2
Venire de novo	—	—	1	1
Struck out	1	—	1	2
Standing for judgment	2	—	—	2
Appeals:
Judgments affirmed	8	6	3	17
reversed	3	2	2	8
Venire de novo	—	—	—	—
Struck out	—	2	1	3
	28	16	11	55
Remanets and standing for judgment	11	2	3	16

The statements furnished by the Masters prove an increase in the receipts to the Suitors' Fund, and in the fees levied in 1864, as compared with the preceding year, amounting with regard to the former to 41.6, and with regard to the latter to 81 per cent.

In the amount disbursed for the Court of Common Pleas is included, it is stated, a sum of 284. 13s., paid to a stipendiary of the Queen's Bench Prison by direction of the Treasury. The following are the amounts, as shown in the returns for each of the three years, for 1864, with the totals for 1865:—

Suits' Fee Fund.	1864.				Total preceding Year.
	Queen's Bench.	Common Pleas.	Exchequer.	Total.
	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
Amount of Fund on 1st January, 1864	19,425 18 6	19,642 6 11	11,245 4 5	44,313 4 10	41,024 17 7
Amount paid in during the year	57,251 18 9	50,084 12 4	62,818 13 10	170,155 2 10	120,813 6 5
Total to 1st January, 1865	36,677 10 2	33,798 19 3	74,066 16 8	144,468 7 6	161,888 4 0
Amount paid out during the year	54,102 8 11	50,739 4 2	65,758 2 1	170,594 15 2	117,524 19 2
Balance to 1st January, 1865	22,575 1 3	12,967 15 1	8,310 16 2	43,873 12 6	44,313 4 10
Fees levied by the common law Masters:
Amount levied during the year 1864	24,311 6 8	18,671 15 6	26,824 2 0	69,807 4 6	64,537 11 6
Amount disbursed for salaries, &c.	15,203 17 9	16,955 5 0	13,259 10 2	39,428 10 11	39,218 0 4
Balance 1st January, 1865	9,107 8 3	7,706 13 6	13,564 11 10	30,378 13 7	25,319 11 2

The following summary of returns presented to Parliament under the act 15 & 16 Vict. c. 73, for each of the years 1863 and 1864, shews the total amount of fees received in the superior courts of common law (inclusive of the fees levied by the Masters as shewn above) and in the office of the Queen's Remembrancer, with the payments for salaries, pensions, and expenses, and for compensations, and the deficiency of the fees:—

1863.		1864.		Increase.	Decrease.
	£ s. d.		£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
Fees received	92,982 18 6	99,565 7 9	6,582 9 3
Payments, viz:	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
Salaries, pensions, and expenses	75,914 9 3	77,942 0 3	2,027 11 0
Compensations	24,222 12 4	21,854 16 3
	100,137 1 7	99,196 16 6			2,967 16 1
Deficiency	7,174 3 1	Surplus	368 11 3

The returns for the year 1864 furnished by the treasurers of county courts shew in the usual form for each of the fifty-nine county court circuits the proceedings for the recovery of debts, the proceedings under the Charitable Trusts Acts, and the proceedings under the act of 20 & 21 Vict., for granting protection to wives deserted by their husbands.

The proceedings in these courts under the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, for the year ending the 11th October, 1864, will be found in the tables under the head of Bankruptcy, as shewn in the returns prepared by the chief registrar of the Court of Bankruptcy, and presented to Parliament pursuant to the act. The proceedings in bankruptcy are also further adverted to at pages xii to xv.

The proceedings under the jurisdiction of the county courts in contentious cases relating to probates or administration of wills are given as usual in the returns from the district courts of probate.

In the following abstract are shewn the number of plaints in the whole of the county courts and the totals under each heading in the returns, with reference to the recovery of debts, for the year 1864, in comparison with the preceding year, and with the average of the years 1859-63, inclusive:—

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1859-63.
Total plaints entered (including 119 in 1864 and 100 cases in 1863, sent from the superior courts)	738,481	799,254	809,501
Cases determined:
With a jury	838	877	916
Without a jury	401,334	441,426	436,379
	402,172	442,305	439,189
Judgments:
For plaintiff	236,758	252,344	287,395
For plaintiff by consent	147,855	171,168	167,998
For plaintiff by default	464	832	878
Nonsuit	8,440	8,963	9,324
For defendant	8,655	9,038	9,177
	402,172	442,305	474,702
Judgment summonses:
Issued	76,613	119,713	100,687
Heard	42,308	62,363	57,851

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1859-63.
Warrants of commitment:-
Issued	23,096	27,861	26,190
Debtors imprisoned	6,529	8,583	8,511
Executions against goods:-
Issued	124,894	129,922	119,755
Sales made	3,610	4,075	4,317
Total amount for which plaintiffs entered	£1,760,364	£1,842,749	£1,930,957
On judgments obtained by plaintiffs on original hearings:-
Amount of debts	£380,755	£359,576	£364,765
Amount of costs	38,383	39,164	39,730
Total amount of fees on all proceedings	£244,841	£233,400	£250,708

Number of cases in which judgments were obtained:

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1859-63.
40s. and under	278,034	309,256	297,481
5l. and above 40s.	86,649	87,179	85,319
10l. " 5l.	28,840	30,537	30,875
20l. " 10l.	11,233	11,813	12,897
50l. " 20l.	3,405	3,513	3,867
By agreement above 50l.	11	11	—
	402,178.	442,305

The number of days the courts sat in each circuit is shewn in the table, the total number of days for the whole fifty-nine circuits being 7796, which, calculating on the number of causes determined, gives an average of 51.5 causes for each day of sitting. In 1863 the total number of days was 7931; but the number of causes determined having been so much greater than in 1864, the average for each day of sitting was 55.6. In each year the number of days of sitting in some of the circuits is greatly higher than the general average.

In 1864 there were ten appeals; twenty-five orders to stay proceedings; and eighty-eight cases of certiorari to remove proceedings. In 1863 the numbers were respectively fifteen, forty-one, and sixty-eight; in 1862, twelve, forty-seven, and eighty-one.

The number of plaintiffs entered continues to shew a considerable decrease. The decrease in 1864 amounts to 60,773, or 7.6 per cent., as compared with 1863; in 1863 there was a decrease of 48,034, or 5.7 per cent., as compared with 1862; and in 1862 a decrease of 56,669, or 6.3 per cent., as compared with 1861. The number in 1864 is less than the average of the five years 1859-63 by 71,020, or 8.7 per cent.

The causes determined in court were in the proportion of 54.4 per cent. to the total number of plaintiffs entered, leaving 45.6 per cent. as the number of those settled out of court. In 1863 these proportions were 55.3 and 44.7 per cent. Of the judgments given 95.9 per cent. were for the plaintiff; 2.1 per cent. were nonsuits; and 2.2 per cent. were for the defendant; for 1863 these proportions are 95.9:—2.1, and 2.0 per cent. The proportionate number of debtors imprisoned is slightly lower; the proportionate number of executions issued somewhat higher for 1864 than for the preceding year. As compared with the average of five years, the proportionate number of debtors imprisoned is slightly lower; the proportionate number of executions is 6 per cent. higher.

In the amount sought to be recovered, as well as in the number of plaintiffs entered, a decrease is shewn. As compared with 1863, this decrease is 92,365l., or 4.4 per cent., and follows a still larger decrease in each of the two preceding years. As compared with 1861, the decrease in 1864 is 407,953l., or 18.8 per cent. As compared with the average of the five years, 1859-63, it is 170,573l., or 8.8 per cent. The total amount gives an average of 2l. 7s. 8d. for each plaintiff entered: for 1863, this average was 2l. 6s. 1d.; for 1862 it was 2l. 7s. 4d.; for the average of the five years, 1859-63, it is 2l. 7s. 8d.

In the amount of debt for which judgments were obtained there is an increase of 41,179l., or 4.3 per cent. This amount is 55.7 per cent. of the amount for which plaintiffs were entered, which is a higher proportion than in the preceding year.

The amount of costs and the amount of fees both shew a decrease in 1864, following a decrease in each of the two preceding years, and being less than the average of the five years.

The costs and fees together give an average of 14s. 1d. for each cause determined.

Of the cases in which judgments were obtained, those for 40s. and under were 69.1 per cent., which is about the usual proportion.

Fifty-three warrants were issued for the arrest of absconding debtors; in three cases bail was given; in seven, the debt and costs were paid; and seven of the warrants were suspended.

Under the Charitable Trusts Act, two matters only were heard, and two orders made.

Under the 21 & 22 Vict. c. 85, protection orders to wives deserted by their husbands were registered in 590 cases; in two cases the orders were discharged. In 1863, 501 of these orders were registered; in 1862, 532; in 1861, 631; in 1860, 611; in 1859, 719.

The names of the whole of the local civil courts of ancient jurisdiction, thirty-three in number, which were included in the statistics of 1863, are given also in the tables of the present year. In nine of these, however, it will be seen that no proceedings took place, and in several of the remaining twenty-four the amount of business was inconsiderable. In several of the courts the cases were numerous, and the amounts sought to be recovered large. In the Sheriff's Court of London, 10,989 plaintiffs were entered for 38,292l.; of these, 10,857 were for amounts not exceeding 20l.; 132 were for amounts above that sum. In the Court of Passage at Liverpool there were 3701 plaintiffs entered, for a total amount of 202,466l.; of these, 1795 were for sums not exceeding 20l.; 1906 were for sums above 20l. At Manchester, and at Salford, where the proceedings are commenced by writ of summons, there were respectively 3912 and 2876 cases, for 46,270l. and 31,613l.

In the total number of proceedings commenced in all these courts, viz. 28,411, there is a decrease of 640, or 2·2 per cent., as compared with the number in 1863, following a decrease of 1736, or 5·7 per cent., in the latter mentioned year, as compared with the number in 1862.

In the amount sought to be recovered (exclusive of the amount at Liverpool), viz. 169,414*l.*, there is an increase of 9929*l.*, or 6·2 per cent., as compared with the amount in 1863.

With regard to the Court of Passage at Liverpool, it was stated in former years that no record was kept of the amount for which plaints were entered. For 1864, the amount is given as 202,466*l.*, which raises the total amount under this head for all these courts to 371,880*l.*

The total amount of debt, exclusive of costs, for which judgment was obtained in 1864, was 132,876*l.*, being an increase of 24,110*l.*, or 22·1 per cent., on the amount for the preceding year.

The total amount of costs was 17,939*l.* The total amount of fees was 11,047*l.*; shewing, as compared with the amounts in 1863, an increase, with regard to the former, of 595*l.*, or 3·4 per cent., and with regard to the latter of 91*l.*

The amount of costs and fees together was 21·8 per cent. on the amount of debt recovered. In 1863 it was 26·0 per cent.; in 1862, 25 per cent. on the amount of debt recovered.

(To be continued.)

WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY.

PRINCIPLES of the LAW of REAL PROPERTY, intended as a first Book for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law. The Sixth Edition, enlarged. 8vo., price 1*l.* cloth.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

* The Publisher respectfully informs the Profession that the above book has been reprinted, and that copies can now be had at all booksellers in town and country.

WILLIAMS (JOSHUA) ON PERSONAL PROPERTY.

The Fifth Edition, price 18s. cloth boards.

PRINCIPLES of the LAW of PERSONAL PROPERTY, intended for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

JOSHUA WILLIAMS ON REAL ASSETS.

Price 6s. cloth boards.

AN ESSAY on REAL ASSETS; or the Payment of the Debts of a deceased Person out of his Real Estate, and the Means by which that Payment ought to be accomplished. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

JARMAN ON WILLS, by WOLSTENHOLME and VINCENT.

The Third Edition, in 2 vols. royal 8vo., price 3*l.* 3s.

A TREATISE on the LAW of WILLS. By THOMAS JARMAN, Esq. The Third Edition. By E. F. WOLSTENHOLME, M.A., and S. VINCENT, B.A., of Lincoln's-inn and the Inner Temple, Barristers at Law. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 16s.

A TREATISE on DAMAGES, comprising their Measure, the Mode in which they are Assessed and Reviewed, the Practice of Granting New Trials, and the Law of Set-off and Compensation under the Lands Clauses Act. By JOHN D. MAYNE, Esq., Barrister at Law. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

In 8vo., price 15s. cloth.

A HAND-BOOK of PRECEDENTS in CONVEYANCING. By FRANCIS HOUSMAN, Barrister at Law. "We know of no work of the kind which contains within the same limited number of pages, and consequently at the same moderate price, so extensive a collection of forms readily applicable to the various exigencies of the draftsman."—Law Magazine, August, 1861. Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

BURTON ON REAL PROPERTY.—Eighth Edition.

Price 1*l.* 4s. cloth.

AN ELEMENTARY COMPENDIUM of the LAW of REAL PROPERTY. By W. H. BURTON, Esq. With Notes, shewing the Alterations in the Law to the present time. To which is now prefixed an Introductory Chapter, giving a concise Historical Outline of such Parts of the Law as have been the subject of Statutory Alteration. By EDWARD PRIESTLEY COOPER, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SETON'S DECREES IN EQUITY.

Now complete, in 2 vols. royal 8vo., price 2*l.* 18s. cloth, lettered.

SETON'S FORMS of DECREES in EQUITY, and of Orders connected with them. A new Edition, adapted to the present Practice, with Practical Notes. By W. H. HARRISON, Esq., Barrister at Law, and R. H. LEACH, Esq., one of the Registrars of the Court. Third Edition. 2 vols. royal 8vo. 1862.

Vol. 2, part 2, completing the work, may be had separately, price 14s. cloth.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

PETTY SESSIONS PRACTICE.

In thick 12mo., price 18s. cloth, lettered.

STONE'S PRACTICE of PETTY SESSIONS. With the Statutes, a List of Summary Convictions, and an Appendix of Forms. Seventh Edition. By THOMAS BELL and LEWIS W. CAVE, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. With a Supplement, bringing the Statutes and Cases up to 1863. 12mo., price 18s. cloth.

"It is remarkable for a rare combination of conciseness and clearness in the composition, which have recommended it to magistrates who have not been educated as lawyers, and to whom, therefore, the books written for the use of lawyers are often obscure by reason of their technicalities. The present editors have preserved this characteristic of Mr. Stone's volume in their own abundant additions to it."—Law Times.

* The Supplement may be had by itself, price 3s. boards. Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Publishers.

In 2 thick vols., price 2*l.* 12s. 6d. cloth.

CHITTY'S ARCHBOLD'S PRACTICE of the COURT of QUEEN'S BENCH in PERSONAL ACTIONS and EJECTMENT. By THOMAS CHITTY, Esq. Including the Practice of the Courts of Common Pleas and Exchequer. The Eleventh Edition. By SAMUEL PRENTICE, Esq., Barrister at Law. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 1 thick vol., price 1*l.* 11s. 6d. cloth.

CHITTY'S FORMS of PRACTICAL PROCEEDINGS in the COURTS of QUEEN'S BENCH, COMMON PLEAS, and EXCHEQUER of PLEAS. With Notes and Observations thereon. The Ninth Edition, enlarged. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

The Fifteenth Edition, by W. N. WELBY, Esq., adapted to the New Criminal Statutes of 1861, in 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 1*l.* 6s. cloth boards.

ARCHBOLD'S PLEADING and EVIDENCE in CRIMINAL CASES; with the Statutes, Precedents of Indictments, and the Evidence necessary to support them. By JOHN JERVIS, Esq. (late Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas). The Fifteenth Edition. Including the Practice in Criminal Proceedings by Indictment. By W. N. WELBY, Esq., Barrister at Law, Recorder of Chester. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

In 12mo., price 5s. boards.

THE LEASES and SALES of SETTLED ESTATES ACT, 19 & 20 Vict. c. 120; and the General Orders and Regulations relating thereto. With an Introduction and Notes, and a Supplement, containing the Amending Act, 21 & 22 Vict. c. 77, and the Cases and Decisions down to the end of Easter Term, 1861. By M. I. FORTESCUE BRICKDALE, of the Middle Temple and Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law. Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

In 12mo., price 12s. 6d. cloth.

THE BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861: incorporating so much as remains in force of the Bankrupt-law Consolidation Act, 1849, and of the Bankruptcy Act, 1854. With an Appendix, containing the 7 & 8 Vict. c. 70; the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 35; the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 147; the General Orders under the Bankruptcy Act, 1861; and the General Rules and Orders under the Bankrupt-law Consolidation Act, 1849. With Notes. By WILLIAM HAZLITT, of the Middle Temple, Esq., a Registrar of the Court of Bankruptcy, and HENRY PHILIP ROCHE, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the OFFICE, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, September 9, 1865.

The Jurist

No. 558, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.

No. 1497, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

SEPTEMBER 16, 1865.

Price 1s.

WANTED, in an Office of extensive practice in the City, an experienced CLERK, to assist in the Conveyancing Department. Also a Copying Clerk, able to write Short-hand from Dictation. Apply, with full particulars, to R., care of Mr. Woodgate, 45, Coleman-street, City.

GLEN'S LAW OF HIGHWAYS.—Second Edition.

This day is published, post 8vo., 20s. cloth.

THE LAW OF HIGHWAYS; comprising the Highway Acts, 1835, 1862, and 1864; the South Wales Highway Act; and the Decisions of the Courts on the subject of Highways, Bridges, Ferries, &c.; including the Law of Highways in Local Board of Health Districts; Highways affected by Railways, and Locomotives on Railroads. With an Appendix of Statutes relating to Highways. By W. CUNNINGHAM GLEN, Esq., Barrister at Law.

London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

POWELL'S LAW OF EVIDENCE.—Second Edition.

12mo., 12s. cloth.

THE PRINCIPLES and PRACTICE of the LAW of EVIDENCE. By EDMUND POWELL, Esq., M.A., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law, Author of "A Treatise on the Law of Island Carriers." Second Edition.

London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

POWELL'S LAW OF CARRIERS.—Second Edition.

8vo., 14s. cloth.

THE LAW of INLAND CARRIERS, especially as regulated by the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854. By EDMUND POWELL, Esq., M.A., Barrister at Law, Author of "Principles and Practice of the Law of Evidence." Second Edition, almost rewritten.

London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

THE SOLICITORS' JOURNAL, No. 45, price 6d.

—CONTENTS:—Leaders: Hasty Judgments—Tribunals of Parliamentary Inquiry.—2. The Legislation of the Year.—3. Topics: The Stock Exchange—Bennett's Clock—Abduction of Miss Crosse—Stipendiary Magistrates, &c. Gazettes, Correspondence of the Profession, &c. Office, 59, Carey-street, W. C.

This day is published, in demy 12mo., 1016 pp., price 1l. 12s. cloth.
ROGERS on ELECTIONS, ELECTION COMMITTEES, and REGISTRATION. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Tenth Edition. With the new Registration Statute, and all the Election and Registration Cases to the present time. By F. S. P. WOLFERSTAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

STARKIE'S LAW OF EVIDENCE.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW of EVIDENCE. By THOMAS STARKIE, Esq. Fourth Edition, with very considerable alterations and additions; incorporating the Statutes and reported Cases to the time of publication. By G. M. DOWDESWELL and J. G. MALCOLM, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. In 1 vol. royal 8vo., 1853, price 1l. 16s. cloth.

In the parliamentary debate on disqualified witnesses (House of Commons, Feb. 12, 1861), referring to the case of Maden v. Caimach, Sir G. C. Lewis said, "He would read from Starkie on Evidence, which was known to be a standard work upon the subject, a statement of the law as applicable to the case (vide Examination as to Religious Belief, pp. 115, 116). That is a clear statement of the rule of law upon the subject."

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

BY AUTHORITY.

In royal 8vo., price 7s. 6d. cloth.

THE CONSOLIDATED GENERAL ORDERS of the HIGH COURT OF CHANCERY; with Regulations as to certain Fees and Charges.

"The new arrangement of the Orders leaves nothing to be wished for: it is clear, convenient, and admirably adapted for the purposes of practice. Although the language of the old Orders has been adhered to as far as possible, it has been altered whenever it was found necessary for the purpose of adapting them to the present practice, and also for the purpose of removing those doubts and difficulties which so frequently arose under the old Orders."—Jurist, Jan. 31, 1860.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

No. 558, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

POLLOCK'S PRACTICE OF THE COUNTY COURT.

THE PRACTICE of the COUNTY COURTS; with the Decisions of the Superior Courts, and Tables of Fees and Costs; also Appendices, containing all the Statutes, Rules of Practice, and Forms, including those relating to Bankruptcy. In Two Parts, with Tabular Indices. The Fifth Edition. By C. E. POLLOCK, Esq., and H. NICOL, Esq., Barristers at Law. In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 1l. 10s. cloth boards.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE LAW OF LETTERS-PATENT.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 18s., cloth boards.

A TREATISE on the LAW of LETTERS-PATENT for the SOLE USE of INVENTIONS in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, including the Practice connected with the Grant. To which is added, a Summary of the Patent Laws in force in the principal Foreign States; with an Appendix of Statutes, Rules, Practical Forms, &c. By JOHN CORYTON, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

In 1 vol. 12mo., price 7s.

A TREATISE on COMPOSITION DEEDS under the Stat. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 134. By THOMAS ERSKINE HOLLAND, M. A., Fellow of Exeter College, Oxford, and of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY. 68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q. C.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.

Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office. C. B. CLABON, Sec.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS at

PARTRIDGE & COZENS,

WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS in PARCHMENT.

192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 20s.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bond fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual RETAIL charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.

Draft Paper, 6s., 7s., 7s. 9d., and 9s. per ream.
Brief Paper, 13s. 6d., 16s., and 18s. 6d. per ream.
Foolscap Paper, 10s. 6d., 13s. 6d., and 17s. 6d. per ream.
Cream Laid Note, 3s., 4s., and 5s. per ream.
Large Cream Laid Note, 4s., 6s., and 7s. 6d. per ream.
Large Blue Note, 3s., 4s., and 6s. per ream.
Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2s. 9d., 3s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. per 1000.
Foolscap Official Envelopes, 1s. 6d. per 100, or 13s. 6d. per 1000.
Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, Perforators, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 10s.; Good Stand for ditto with two Drawers, 17s.

Parchment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1s. 6d. each, or 17s. per dozen.
Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1s. 4d. each, or 15s. per dozen.
Records or Memorials, Ruled, 5s. per dozen, or 22s. 6d. per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inkstands; Postage Seales; Writing-cases; Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post-free.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

J J

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	353
Judicial Statistics, 1864—Civil Side	362
Statutes passed during the late Session of Parliament

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. MARETT, Barrister at Law.

Curriers Company v. Corbett.—(Ancient Rights—Injunction—Damages—Injury)	719
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

ROLLS COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Dyer v. Dyer.—(Timber cut by the Court—Produce of—Defensible estate in fee-simple)	721
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY'S COURT.

By E. LLOYD, Barrister at Law.

Rewe v. Whitmore.—(Account—Receipts and judgments—Bodience)	722
-------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By T. F. MORSE, Barrister at Law.

Taylor v. Walker.—(Will—Construction—Estate tail)	723
---------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT—(Continued.)

Long v. Kent.—(Will—Construction—Bequests of money and shares—Election—Disclaimer)	724
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Hurlstone v. Ashton.—(Will—General gift—Execution of power—1 Vict. c. 26, s. 27)	725
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By H. RUTHERFORD, Barrister at Law.

Locke v. Furze.—(Damages—Covenant for quiet enjoyment in a reversionary lease—Defect of title—Interests termini—Value of term)	726
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

Hurst v. The Great Western Railway Company.—(Railway company—Passenger over several railways with one ticket—Delay on one line of railway, whereby loss of trains on another—Time bills not put in evidence—Unreasonable delay)	730
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

Thompson and Others v. Haleswill.—(Joint demise by tenants in common—Demesne by tenants "according to their several estates"—Covenant with them and "their respective heirs"—Whether such tenant must join as plaintiff in an action of covenant)	732
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

THE LAWS AFFECTING RAILWAYS, BROUGHT DOWN TO THE PRESENT TIME.

Now ready, in one thick vol. royal 8vo., price 1l. 15s. cloth boards.
SIR W. HODGES'S PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW of RAILWAYS, RAILWAY COMPANIES, and RAILWAY INVESTMENTS. With an Appendix of Statutes, Forms, &c. The Fourth Edition. By CHARLES MANLEY SMITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple and Midland Circuit, Barrister at Law.

"The great and increasing interest in everything relating to Railways now manifested by the public, have created such a demand for this valuable work, that the Publisher has been induced to have a new Edition of it prepared. This Edition comprises the important Statutes passed in the Session of 1864, as well as the Standing Orders for the Session of 1865, in addition to the numerous Decisions of the Courts, both of Law and Equity, since the last Edition was published, and such of the Rules of the London Stock Exchange as are applicable to Railways, as amended up to 1864. The task of preparing and conducting through the press this new Edition has been a really arduous one; but no pains have been spared by the learned Editor (whose work on the Law of Master and Servant is well known, not only in Westminster Hall, but also in Ireland, Scotland, and America), to make the work complete; and the Publisher believes that he can with confidence recommend it to all persons interested in Railways, especially Directors, Secretaries, and shareholders, as the most complete work on Railway Law yet offered to the public.

The English and Irish Railway Clearing Acts have also been added to this Edition.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

DAY'S COMMON-LAW PRACTICE.

The Second Edition, recently published.

THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACTS of 1852, 1854, and 1860. With an Introduction, explanatory of the recent Changes, Notes, Forms of Proceeding, and a copious Index. By J. C. F. S. DAY, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 1 vol. royal 12mo. Price 15s. cloth boards.

This Work comprises a carefully-revised Edition of Mr. Kerr's Procedure Acts of 1852 and 1854, the Cases that have been decided since the publication of these Works being added; the Bills of Exchange Act of 1855, and the Decisions upon it; those portions of the Interpleader Act and Mercantile Law Amendment Act which relate to the Procedure thereon in Court or at Chambers, and all the New Rules: thus constituting a complete Practice of the Superior Courts of Common Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NEW EDITION OF SMITH (C. MANLEY) ON THE LAW OF MASTER AND SERVANT.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 16s. cloth boards.

A TREATISE on the LAW of MASTER and SERVANT, including therein MASTERS and WORKMEN in every Description of Trade and Occupation. With an Appendix of Statutes. The Second Edition. By CHARLES MANLEY SMITH, Esq., Barrister at Law, of the Inner Temple and Midland Circuit.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

SELWYN'S NISI PRIUS.

In 2 vols. royal 8vo., 1859-61, price 2l. 16s. cloth.

SELWYN'S ABRIDGMENT of the LAW of NISI PRIUS. Twelfth Edition, with a Supplement, containing a Summary of the Law of Bankruptcy, with references to Questions that arise in Actions at Law, as amended by the Bankruptcy Act, 1861. By DAVID POWER, Esq., one of her Majesty's Counsel, Recorder of Ipswich.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In royal 8vo., price 21s. cloth.

BOWYER'S COMMENTARIES on UNIVERSAL PUBLIC LAW. By GEORGE BOWYER, Esq., M. P., D. C. L., Author of "Commentaries on the Constitutional Law of England," "Commentaries on the Modern Civil Law," &c.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

EBSWORTH'S LAW OF INFANTS.

In 12mo. (1861), price 3s. cloth.

A HANDY BOOK of the LAW of INFANTS.

By JOHN EBSWORTH, Esq., Solicitor. Treating of—1. Infants, their Parents and Guardians generally.—2. Rights and Liabilities of Infants, Criminals.—3. Infant Labourers.—4. Apprentices.—5. Rights and Liabilities of Infants, Civiliter.

"Mr. Ebsworth's book is therefore likely to be very useful for reference in the first instance. It supplies a want which the voluminous and deeper works on the same subject appear to have only partially filled up.

"We recommend it as a book of first reference to all who desire information on the branch of law of which it treats."—Solicitors' Journal, June 8, 1861.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In one very thick vol. 8vo., price 85s.

A COMPENDIUM of the LAW of REAL and PERSONAL PROPERTY, connected with CONVEYANCING. Designed as a Comprehensive Second Book for Students, and as a Digest of the most useful Learning for Practitioners. By JOSIAH W. SMITH, B.C.L., Q. C. THIRD EDITION. 1865.

"As a refresher to the memory, and a repository of information that is wanted in daily practice, it will be found of great value."—Jurist, April 5, 1856.

"It will be seen from this outline, that the work is extremely well planned; the topics are arranged in the natural order as they flow out of one another, and thus immensely aid the reader's memory. He writes like a man who is master of his theme, clearly and concisely."—Law Times, Dec., 1855.

"A portly, admirable volume. . . . He has given to the student a book which he may read over and over again with profit and pleasure."—Law Times, Jan. 21, 1865.

"The work before us will, we think, be found of very great service to the practitioner."—Solicitors' Journal, Jan. 21, 1865.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, SEPTEMBER 16, 1866.

THE well-known case of Blades v. Higgs and Another (11 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 701), which has recently been argued in the House of Lords, and decided an important question as to the right of property in game, decided in its earlier stage (10 C. B., N. S., 713) another question of less prominence, but of general applicability, viz. as to the right to resume by force possession of a personal chattel wrongfully withheld from the owner. This general question of recaption of personal chattels was not adverted to in the decision of the House of Lords, which was directed solely to the question of property in game. The first point, then, raised in Blades v. Higgs and Another was on the question of the right to resume property in chattels withheld wrongfully; and by the decision of the Court of Common Pleas, the right of the owner of goods was assimilated to the right of the owner of land, giving to the former the right of recaption; as to the latter, there is given the right of re-entry on his property wrongfully withheld. Whether or not such a view is reconcilable with the principle of our law, that discourages the substitution of personal violence for legal remedies, it has for some time past been considered as settled law, that a freeholder may by force enter and take possession of his freehold when wrongfully held from him by another person. The view taken by Baron Parke in Harvey v. Brydges and Others (14 M. & W. 42) having been generally adopted, that even if the freeholder commits a breach of the peace in regaining possession of his land, he incurs no civil liability. Baron Parke observed, that the point had been raised in Newton v. Harland (1 Man. & G. 644), and that if it were necessary to decide it, he should have no difficulty in saying, that where a breach of the peace was committed by a freeholder, who, in order to get possession of his land, assaulted a person wrongfully holding possession of it against his will, although the freeholder might be responsible to the public in the shape of an indictment for a forcible entry, he was not liable to the other party; and that he could not see how it was possible to doubt that it was a perfectly good justification to say that the plaintiff was in possession of the land against the will of the defendant who was owner, and that he entered upon it accordingly, even though, in so doing, a breach of the peace was committed.

With regard to personal chattels, the case of Patrick v. Colerick (3 M. & W. 483) had decided that the owner of goods might enter the land of another person, who had wrongfully taken the goods, and put them there, and might there retake the goods, without incurring any civil liability; and this is now extended even to taking goods out of the actual manual possession of a wrongdoer. The second count of the declaration in Blades v. Higgs (10 C. B., N. S., 901; 7 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 1289) was for assaulting the plaintiff, and taking away his goods; and the third plea was, that the plaintiff was wrongfully possessed of rabbits belonging to the defendants' master, and that the defendants, as his servants, requested the plaintiff not to take them away, and to quit possession thereof to the defendants as such servants, and, upon his refusing to do so, gently took them from him; and to this plea, besides joining issue, the plaintiff also demurred, and thus the question of law was raised, whether the right of recaption of chattels could be exercised when it could not be effected without committing an assault; and the Court held that it could. And Erle, C. J., in delivering the judgment of the Court, said that if the defendants had actual possession, and the plaintiff took them from them against their will, it was not disputed, that the defendants might justify using the force sufficient to defend their right, and retake the chattels; and that there was no substantial distinction between that case and the one before the Court, for if the defendants were the owners of the chattels, and entitled to the possession of them, and the plaintiff wrongfully detained them, the defendants in law would have the possession, and the plaintiff's wrongful detention, against the request of the defendants, would be the same violation of the right of property as the taking of the chattels out of the actual possession of the owner. The judgment then refers to the owner of land having a right to re-enter thereon, and to use force sufficient to remove a wrongdoer therefrom. A passage from Harvey v. Brydges is then cited at length, and the judgment concludes in the following manner:—"In our opinion, all that is so said of the right of property in land applies in principle to a right of property in chattels, and supports the present justification. If the owner was compellable by law to seek redress by action for a violation of his right of property, the remedy would be often worse than the mischief, and the law would aggravate the injury, instead of redressing it." We must here remark, that these views, though they must now be taken to be the law, are in direct conflict with the opinions cited with approval by Tindal, C. J. (8 Bing. 192)—"As the public peace is a superior consideration to any one man's private property, and as, if individuals were once allowed to use private force as a remedy for private injuries, all social justice must cease; the strong would give law to the weak, and every man would resort to a state of nature; for these reasons, it is provided that the natural right of recaption shall never be exerted where such exertion would occasion strife and bodily contention, or endanger the peace of society."

This brings us to the main question decided in Blades v. Higgs, which next appears in 12 C. B., N. S., 501; 8 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 1012. The plaintiff was a licensed dealer in game, and had bought two bags of dead rabbits from some men who had been on the Marquis of Exeter's land, and caught the rabbits and killed them there, and then had carried them away, and forwarded them by rail to the plaintiff at Stamford, who had just loaded them on to his barrow to take them away from the station, when they were claimed and taken from him by the Marquis of Exeter's servants, the defendants, as the Marquis of Exeter's property. The case came on for trial before Mr. Justice Willes, and that learned judge ruled, that if a person goes on the land of another and kills a rabbit, or any number of rabbits, and carries them away and sells them, the servants of the landowner have no right to go to the game dealer and take them from him, and that the property in the rabbits would be in the game dealer, though the taking them was an act of trespass on the part of the persons who supplied him with them. The learned judge, however, while conforming to what he conceived to be the law, dissented from its policy, and said he never could understand why such a law should exist, because if a man had land, and chose to rear pheasants and what not upon it, and incurred the labour and expense of feeding and preserving them (at much more cost than ordinary barn-door fowls), he never could understand why the law as to larceny should not apply to them. He ruled, however, not merely that the rabbits were not the subjects of larceny, but that they had become the property of the men who caught and killed them as soon as that process was complete, though the men were liable to be proceeded against as trespassers, by action or under the game laws. This was overruled by the Court of Common Pleas, and a new trial ordered, Willes, J., concurring, and saying it was impossible to get over the authority of Rigg v. The Earl of Lonsdale (1 H. & Norm. 923); at the same time suggesting that, should the case be argued in the Court of Exchequer Chamber, it would be as well to compare the dictum of Lord Holt in Sutton v. Moody (1 Ld. Raym. 250), (on which it seems all the decisions have ever since proceeded), with the passage in Justinian's Institutes, lib. 2, tit. 1, sect. 12, which he read at length. This celebrated dictum of Lord Holt's was as follows:—If A. starts a hare on the ground of B., and hunts it, and kills it there, the property continues all the while in B. But if A. starts a hare on the ground of B., and hunts it into the ground of C. and kills it there, the property is in A., the hunter, but A. is liable to an action of trespass for hunting in the ground of B. as well as of C. But if A. starts a hare, &c. in the forest or warren of B., and hunts it into the ground of C., and there kills it, the property remains all the while in B., the proprietor of the warren, because the privilege continues. The substance of the passage cited from the Institutes, on the other hand, being, that the person who takes and reduces into possession any wild animal, whether on his own land or on the land of another, acquires the property in it; and such undoubtedly was the Roman law. The rule of the civil law was not, however, recognised either by the Court of Exchequer Chamber or the House of Lords as part of the common law of England; and the Court of Exchequer Chamber affirmed the judgment of the Court of Common Pleas (13 C. B., N. S., 844; 9 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 1040), and the House of Lords affirmed the judgment of the Court of Exchequer Chamber. (See 11 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 701). Lord Holt's dictum seem to have controlled the decisions of the Courts throughout, and to have been followed with something like a blind obedience from the time it was first enunciated. No argument was raised against it in Churchward v. Studdy (14 East, 249); it governed Reg. v. Lonsdale, and forced the decision of Blade v. Higgs, in the Common Pleas, carried it safely through the Exchequer Chamber, and finally landed it in the House of Lords. "All," said Williams, J., in the court below, "who have lectured on and taught the law of England for the last century, have adopted Lord Holt's doctrine on the subject." The Lord Chancellor cited the whole passage, apparently with approval; and Lord Cranworth held, that it was safe and just to adhere to the law as laid down by Lord Holt. Lord Chelmsford alone dared to meddle with some part of this impregnable statement, and ventured to doubt the latter part of it, though he accepted the first part as conclusive on the question before the House of Lords. Now, though there is not much room for any doubt as to the reasonableness of the first part of Lord Holt's dictum, as to the latter part there is very considerable doubt. If A. start a hare on the ground of B., and hunt it into the ground of C., and kill it there, and the laws thereupon vest the property in the hare in A., the hunter, who has trespassed on the land to catch and kill it, then the law could not consistently, as in Blade v. Higgs, prevent the trespasser from acquiring a property in the game, both started and killed on the owner's land. This is very clearly put by Lord Chelmsford, who said, that he had some difficulty in understanding why the wrongdoer was to acquire the property in the game, under the circumstances so supposed, and proceeded to observe, that if the animal had left the land of B., and had passed into the land of C. of its own will, and had been, immediately it crossed the boundary, killed by C., it would unquestionably have been his property; why, then, should not the act of a trespasser, to which C. was no party, have the same effect as to his right to the animal, as if it had voluntarily quitted the neighbouring land? And why not only should B. lose his right to the game, and C. acquire none, but the property, by this accident of the place where it happened to be killed, be transferred to the trespasser? That it would appear to be more in accordance with principle to hold, that if the trespasser deprived the owner of the land where the game was started of his right to claim the property, by unlawfully killing it on the land of another, to which he had driven it, he converted it into a subject of property for that owner, and not for himself. But that the first proposition stated by Lord Holt, with respect to game started and killed on the land of the same owner, was free from all difficulty, and was sufficient to dispose of the question then before the House of Lords.

JUDICIAL STATISTICS, 1864—CIVIL SIDE.

(Continued from p. 348).

A return of the proceedings of the Lord Mayor's Court of London in the year 1864, made by the registrar, shews the proceedings of the court in actions and in foreign attachments in the same form and with the same detail as the returns for preceding years.

The number of actions entered during the year was 4723, shewing an increase of 398, or 9·2 per cent., upon the number for the preceding year. In 1863 there was an increase of 216, or 5·3 per cent., upon the number in 1862, and in 1862 an increase of 179, or 4·5 per cent., upon the number in 1861. There were also eleven ejectments, and ten apprentice petitions, in 1864. The amount for which actions were entered was 123,569*l.*, being an increase of 20,489*l.*, or 19·8 per cent., upon the amount in 1863, the amount for the latter year having exceeded the amount for 1862 by 12,561*l.*, or 13·9 per cent., and the amount for 1862 having been greater than the amount for 1861 by 10,435*l.*, or 13 per cent.

The classification of the actions, according to the amounts for which they were returned, shews that 20 only, or 0·4 per cent. of the whole, were for amounts under 5*l.*; 1363, or 28·8 per cent., were for 5*l.* and under 10*l.*; 2022, or 42·8 per cent., for 10*l.* and under 20*l.*; 1318, or 28 per cent., were for 20*l.* and above.

The return shews further, as given in the tables, the number of orders to stay proceedings under the classified amounts of debts. It shews the number and nature of the judgments, the verdicts, the executions, the cases of certiorari, the number of judgment summonses issued, the number heard, and the number of adjourned hearings, the number of committals issued, and the number of debtors imprisoned.

The number of foreign attachments issued was 884, for a total amount of 741,705*l.* Of these, 328, for a total amount of 207,030*l.*, were withdrawn, being settled by the parties. In the number issued there is an increase of 184, or 26·3 per cent., upon the number in the preceding year. In the amount there is an increase of 287,260*l.*, or 63·2 per cent. The return shews further the number of verdicts and of judgments for the plaintiff and for the garnishee; and under bills of costs the number of verdicts and of judgments for the plaintiff and for the approver respectively. The fees amounted on ordinary proceedings to 3562*l.*, on compensation cases to 394*l.*

The return for 1864, furnished by the registrar of the court of the Vice-Warden of the Stanneries, shews the proceedings of the court in equity and common law, and for the winding up of incorporated and unincorporated companies under the Companies Act, 1862, and proceedings not in any cause.

Under the equity jurisdiction, the proceedings extend to both the counties of Cornwall and Devon; under the common-law jurisdiction to Cornwall only, no causes having been tried in respect of the stannaries of Devon. The proceedings on petitions for winding up extend to both counties. Under proceedings not in any cause, four matters only are recorded in Cornwall. The details of the proceedings, as stated in the return, are given in the table, and shew a decrease of business in the court as compared with the preceding year.

In the statistics of 1864, the proceedings in bankruptcy since the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, came into operation, were given for each of the years ended the 11th October, 1862, and 11th October, 1863, as shewn in the returns framed by the chief registrar of the court for those years respectively, and presented to Parliament pursuant to the 67th section of the act. In continuation, the proceedings during the year ended the 11th October, 1864, as shewn in the chief registrar's return, which was laid before Parliament in February last, are given in the present volume. The return for 1864, which will be found in the tables arranged in the same form as the returns for the preceding years, shews the number of adjudications in bankruptcy during the year, in the London district court, the county district courts, and the county courts acting in bankruptcy, under each form of procedure, to have been as follows:—

Number of Adjudications of Bankruptcy.	London District Court.	County District Courts.	County Courts.	Total.
On petition of a creditor	185	354	56	595
On petition of the debtor	1609	1001	2650	5260
By registrars at the prisons	289	178	437	904
On petitions in formâ pauperis	220	3	233	456
On judgment debtor summonses	8	1	—	9
Total	2311	1537	3376	7224

In the total number of adjudications there is a decrease of 1246, or 14·7 per cent., as compared with the number for the preceding year. As compared with the number in 1862 the decrease is 2439, or 25·3 per cent. The decrease appears as well in the London district court as in the county district courts and the county courts. As compared with the numbers for 1863 the proportionate decrease in 1864 is as follows:—London district court, 21·7 per cent.; county district courts, 8·1 per cent.; county courts, 12·3 per cent. In the number of adjudications on petitions of a creditor the decrease was 79, or 11·8 per cent.; on the petition of a debtor it was 884, or 14·4 per cent.; in the number by registrars at the prisons there was an increase of 37, or 4·2 per cent.; in the number on petitions in formâ pauperis the decrease was greatest, amounting to 324, or 41·6 per cent.; in 1863 there were five cases only on judgment debtor's summonses.

The number of adjudications where the debts exceeded, and the number where they did not exceed, 300*l.*, the former being in the proportion of 41·1, the latter of 58·9 per cent. to the total number of adjudications, were as follows:—

Number of Adjudications.	London District Court.	County District Courts.	County Courts.	Total.
Where the debts of the bankrupt exceeded 300 l.	1301	1504	167	2972
Where they did not exceed 300 l.	1010	33	3209	4252

The total amount of gross produce realised from the several bankrupts' estates, was as follows:—

	London District Court.			County District Courts.			County Courts.			Total.
	£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.
Amount realised by creditors' assignees . . .	178,528	0	4	164,163	17	6	7,810	10	7	350,302	8	4
Amount realised by official assignees . . .	68,607	6	11	212,148	10	9	46,144	14	7	327,233	12	3
	247,135	7	3	376,312	8	3	53,755	5	2	677,536	0	7

The total amount realised was less than the total amount for the preceding year by 21,062*l.* 9*s.* The great decrease was in the country district courts, where the amount realised was less in 1864 than in the preceding year by 81,776*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.* In the county courts also there was a decrease in the amount realised in 1864 of 1,235*l.* 12*s.* 9*d.* In the London district court, on the contrary, the amount realised in 1864 exceeded the amount in 1863 by 61,949*l.* 12*s.* 11*d.*

The number of adjudications and the amounts realised by the official assignees in the several district courts are stated, in a note to the returns, as follows:—

	Number of Adjudications.	Amount realised by Official Assignees.
Birmingham district:
Birmingham	302	£15,242 1 7
Nottingham	63	10,643 11 10
Bristol district	162	6,780 0 0
Exeter district	96	12,085 1 9
Leeds district:
Leeds	246	105,101 15 1
Hull	47	10,893 0 0
Sheffield	23	11,900 0 0
Liverpool district	266	22,203 13 5
Manchester district	234	11,961 14 8
Newcastle district	93	5,702 12 2

The return next shews the number of cases in which a dividend was made, and the number in which there was no dividend. Of the former there were 1586, of which 328 were in the London district court; 680 in the country district courts; and 628 in the county courts. Of the latter there were 5324, of which 2588 were in the London district court; 841 in the country district courts; 1895 in the county courts. The cases in which there was a dividend are in the proportion of less than 30 per cent. to the cases in which there was no dividend. In the preceding year, this proportion was 17·7 per cent. only. The rates in the pound at which dividends were made were as follows, with the proportion per cent. of the number at each rate to the whole number:—

Number of cases under 2 s. 6 d.	848	..	53·5
" " 2 s. 6 d. and under 5 s.	381	..	24·0
" " 5 s. " " 7 s. 6 d.	192	..	12·1
" " 7 s. 6 d. " " 10 s.	53	..	3·3
" " 10 s. " " 15 s.	50	..	3·2
" " 15 s. " " 20 s.	25	..	1·5
" " 20 s.	37	..	2·3

The number of discharges granted, suspended, and refused, as stated in the return, were respectively 5332, 316, and 80.

These numbers are to the number of adjudications of bankruptcy during the year respectively in the proportions of 73·8, 4·3, and 0·1 per cent. These proportions in the preceding year were 80·2, 4·5, and 1·4 per cent. In 1862 they were 62·6, 5·4, and 1·6 per cent., shewing a decreasing ratio in the numbers of discharges suspended or refused.

The number of trust deeds, as stated in the return, registered within the year, in pursuance of the 192nd section of the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, was 3604, the amount of stamp duty upon them being 9505*l.*, and the gross value of the estates and effects affected being 3,802,000*l.* Of these deeds 2208 were deeds of assignment; 1348 deeds of composition; and 48 deeds of inspektorship.

The number of bills taxed in the Master's office, as stated in the return, was 6148, being an increase of 1403, or 29·5 per cent. upon the number in the preceding year. This number exceeds also the number in 1862 by 885, or 16·8 per cent.

The total gross amount of the bills taxed was 87,064*l.* 1*s.* 3*d.*, being less than the amount in the preceding year by 7,198*l.*, or 7·8 per cent., and less than the amount in 1862 by 24,875*l.*, or 22·3 per cent.

The different amounts taxed were:—

	£	s.	d.
Solicitors' bills	65,350	4	10
Messengers' bills	9,552	0	1
Assignees and others for travelling expenses, &c.	232	7	6
Auctioneers' bills	7,607	16	0
Accountants' bills	4,301	12	9

The amount struck off on taxation was 8118*l.* 10*s.* 8*d.*, or upwards of 9 per cent. on the total gross amount, being about the same proportion as for each of the two preceding years.

There were fifty-eight appeals; in eighteen of the cases the judgments were affirmed; in fourteen reversed; in one case the judgment was varied; twenty-five of the cases were pending, abandoned, or arranged.

Under trust deeds there were ten appeals; in eight of which the judgments were affirmed; in one case the judgment was reversed; and one case was pending, abandoned, or arranged.

From the county courts there were two appeals only; in one the judgment was varied; the other case was pending, abandoned, or arranged.

The amount of fees received by the messengers for business under the act was 34,496*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.*, being less by 416*l.* 14*s.* 1*d.* than the amount for the preceding year. The total payments amounted to 26,121*l.* 16*s.* 6*d.*, leaving a surplus of 8374*l.* 18*s.* 7*d.* Of the receipts 13,875*l.* 18*s.* 9*d.*, and of the payments 10,181*l.* 5*s.* 11*d.*, were by the messengers in London; the remainder by the messengers in the country district courts.

The amount of deposits received by the messengers was 16,368*l.*, shewing an increase of 4096*l.*, or 42·8 per cent., on the amount for the preceding year. The amount of the deposits returned or applied to the payment of bills was 10,485*l.*, leaving a balance of 5882*l.* in the hands of the messengers applicable to the payment of costs in cases not concluded, or to be returned to persons making the deposits.

Of the amounts received and returned, 12,565*l.* of the former, and 7864*l.* of the latter, and 4700*l.* of the balance remaining in the hands of the messengers were in the London district court, the remainder in the country district courts. The amount of deposits received by the high bailiffs in the county courts was 7246*l.*, shewing a decrease of 971*l.*, or 11·8 per cent. as compared with the amount for the preceding year; the amount returned by them, or applied to the payment of bills, was 6243*l.*, leaving a balance of 1003*l.* remaining in the hands of the high bailiffs.

The amount of fees in bankruptcy received by the registrars of county courts, as shewn in the return, was 12,177*l.*, being an increase of 1458*l.* or 13·6 per cent. on the amount for the preceding year, and following an increase of 2875*l.*, or 36·6 per cent. in 1863, as compared with the amount in 1862. The payments in 1864 amounted to 1498*l.*, leaving 10,679*l.* as the net remuneration of the registrars. The fees in bankruptcy received by the high bailiffs of the county courts amounted to 12,816*l.*, being less by 2098*l.*, or 14 per cent., than the amount for the preceding year. The payments amount to 7217*l.* The net remuneration remaining was 5607*l.* (The payments in certain of the courts exceeded the receipts).

The total revenue of the Court of Bankruptcy for the year was 176,815*l.*, being an increase of 52,707*l.*, or 42·4 per cent., on the amount for the preceding year. The total expenditure under the different heads shewn in the return was 140,894*l.* An investment of 25,000*l.* in Consols was made to the credit of the chief registrar's account.

The total amount of money received by the Bank of England was 762,968*l.*, being less than the amount shewn in the return for the preceding year by 60,643*l.* The total amount paid by the Bank was 877,471*l.*

The return further gives a statement of the cash and stock balances on the 11th October, 1864, with an appendix shewing the salaries and compensations paid to all officers and persons connected with the court; and all expenses and payments for the year.

The returns furnished by the different officers of the High Court of Chancery for the year ended the 1st November, 1864, shew the nature of the proceedings and the amount of business in the different branches of the court, in the same forms and under the same headings as the returns for preceding years. The details, as shewn in the returns for each branch, are given in the tables. In the following summaries the numbers for 1864 are stated in comparison with the corresponding numbers for the preceding year, and with the average of the numbers for the five years from 1859 to 1863, inclusive, except with regard to the winding-up cases, and to the office of the registrar in lunacy, the returns extending, with regard to the former, only to the year 1861, and with regard to the latter to 1860.

The return made by the registrars shews the proceedings in their office, distinguishing the business in each of the three appellate courts of the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Chancellor and Lords Justices, and the Lords Justices, and in each of the four original courts of the Master of the Rolls, and of each of the three Vice-Chancellors, describing the nature of the proceedings, and shewing the state of the business, as in the following abstract:—

Nature of Proceedings.	For Hearing at the commencement of the Year.	Set down during the Year.	Heard during the Year.	Otherwise disposed of.	Remanet at the end of the Year.
Pleas	—	7	5	—	2
Demurrers	17	69	60	10	16
Exceptions to pleadings	4	20	20	2	2
Motions for decree	236	1140	998	144	294
Causes	71	347	289	36	93
Special cases	1	25	16	2	8
Causes, claims, and causes and matters for further directions and further consideration	96	557	555	24	76
Rehearings and appeals	33	99	94	12	26
Appeal motions	11	82	76	7	10
Appeal petitions	1	16	13	—	4
Total	472	2362	2006	237	531
Total, 1863	396	2042	1820	148	472
Average of totals, 1859-63	422	2131	1952	161	439

The matters for hearing at the commencement of the year shew an increase of 18·6 per cent. on the number for 1863, and of 6·0 per cent. on the average of the five years; the matters set down during the year shew an increase of 15·6 and 10·8 per cent. respectively; the matters heard during the year, an increase of 15·5 and 5·8 per cent.; the matters otherwise disposed of, of 60·1 and 40·2 per cent.; and the remanet at the end of the year, of 12·5 and 20·9 per cent. respectively. The remanet at the end of the year 1863 shewed an increase of 18·6 per cent. as compared with 1862; in each of the years 1861 and 1862 there had been a decrease.

The chief other business in the office of the registrars returned under the following heads shews also a considerable increase, as does also the amount of fees:—

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1859-63.
Orders made on the hearing of petitions under the Winding-up Acts	35	39	16
Orders made on the hearing of petitions of right	1	—	—
Orders made on the hearing of other petitions	2,731	2,485	2,458
Orders made on the hearing of special motions	1,138	1,107	1,059
Orders on summons, drawn up by the registrars	6,886	6,513	6,036
Orders on motions or petitions of course	595	629	533
Certificates for sale or transfer or delivery of stock or other securities	3,122	2,936	2,948
Amount of fees levied by stamps	£13,630	£12,894	£12,814

The cases standing for judgment at the commencement and at the end of the year were respectively 9 and 14. In the preceding year they were 12 and 9.

The sittings of the different judges in court were as follows:—the Lord Chancellor, 60 days; the Lords Justices, 148; the Master of the Rolls, 154; the three Vice-Chancellors, respectively, 167, 166, 169; there were no sittings by the Lord Chancellor and Lords Justices. The total number, viz. 864, exceeds the number for the preceding year by 32.

The number of causes transferred from each judge to other branches of the court was 102. The judge from whom and the judge to whom transferred are shewn in the return.

The causes tried by the court were:—Without a jury, four; with a jury, three. There was one trial with a jury awaiting a hearing at the end of the year. The number of cases referred to the conveyancing counsel of the court was 367, exceeding the number in the preceding year by 51.

THRING'S (T.) CRIMINAL LAW OF THE NAVY, 1861.

In 12mo., price 8s. 6d. cloth.

THE CRIMINAL LAW OF THE NAVY; comprising an Introductory Sketch of the Early State and Discipline of the Navy; the Naval Discipline Act of 1860, with Notes; Criminal Offences and their Punishment; the Constitution and Jurisdiction of Courts-Martial; the Forms of Procedure and Law of Evidence applicable to Trials by Courts-Martial; with the New Regulations of the Admiralty, and a copious Index. By THEODORE THRING, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THRING'S LAND DRAINAGE ACT, 1861.

In 12mo., price 7s. cloth.

THE LAND DRAINAGE ACT, 1861. With an Introduction, Practical Notes, an Appendix of Statutes relating to Drainage, and Forms. By THEODORE THRING, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

Stevens, & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

MORGAN'S CHANCERY ACTS AND ORDERS.

Price 28s. cloth.

THE STATUTES, GENERAL ORDERS, and REGULATIONS relating to the PRACTICE, PLEADING, and JURISDICTION of the COURT of CHANCERY. With copious Notes, containing a Summary of every reported Decision thereon. By GEORGE OSBORNE MORGAN, M.A., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law, late Stewall Fellow of University College, and Eldon Law Scholar in the University of Oxford. Third Edition, considerably enlarged.

"Mr. Morgan's work merits the highest commendation for its usefulness, simplicity, and completeness. . . . The practitioner will find in the pages of this book ample, and at the same time terse and business-like, information upon almost all the questions that arise in the ordinary proceedings in Chancery."—Law Magazine, November, 1862.
"No labour has been spared to make the work as complete and accurate as possible. With its elaborate index and marginal references, it is impossible to over-estimate its value as a manual of general practice."—Law Magazine, May, 1862.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

PARLIAMENTARY COSTS.

Price 12s. 6d. cloth, lettered.

PARLIAMENTARY COSTS. By EDWARD WEBSTER, Esq., of the Taxing Office, House of Commons, and of the Examiners' Office, House of Lords and House of Commons. Second Edition.

London: Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

OLIPHANT'S LAW OF HORSES, GAMING, &c.

Just published, considerably enlarged, price 15s. cloth.

THE LAW OF HORSES; including the Bargain and Sale of Chattle; also the Law of Racing, Wagers, and Gaming. By GEORGE HENRY HEWITT OLIPHANT, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. Third Edition. By GRANVILLE R. RYDER, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3 Chancery-lane.

THE BRITISH CONSTITUTION EXPLAINED.

In 1 thick vol. 8vo., price 12. 4s. cloth.

THE INSTITUTIONS OF ENGLISH GOVERNMENT: being an Account of the Constitution, Powers, and Procedure of its Legislative, Judicial, and Administrative Departments; with copious References to Ancient and Modern Authorities. By HOMERSHAM COX, M.A., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

STAMP'S INDEX TO THE STATUTES.

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 18s. cloth boards.

STAMP'S INDEX TO THE STATUTE LAW OF ENGLAND. By GEORGE STAMP, Esq. The Third Edition, brought down to the close of the Session 24 & 25 Vict. By JAMES EDWARD DAVIS, Esq., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

COURT OF THE VICE-WARDEN OF THE STANNARIES.

Price 1s. 6d. sewed.

GENERAL RULES, FORMS, and COURT FEES on the WINDING UP of MINING COMPANIES within the JURISDICTION of the STANNARIES; also Solicitors' Fees and Charges on the Equity Side of the Court.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

TOULMIN SMITH'S "THE PARISH."

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 18s. cloth bds.

THE PARISH: its Powers and Obligations at Law as regards the Welfare of every Neighbourhood, and in Relation to the State; its Officers and Committees, and the Responsibility of every Parishioner. With Illustrations of the Practical Working of this Institution in all Secular Affairs, and of some modern Attempts at Ecclesiastical Incroachment. By TOULMIN SMITH, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. The Second Edition, with important Additions.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES LAW.

In 12mo., price 7s. 6d. cloth.

A SUPPLEMENT TO THE LAW AND PRACTICE of JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES: containing the Companies Act, 1862; the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1862; and the Rules of the Court of Chancery for regulating the Mode of Proceeding under the Companies Act, 1862. With an Introduction, Practical Notes, and Forms. By HENRY THRING, M.A., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

London: Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Booksellers and Publishers.

THRING'S LAW OF JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES.

THE LAW AND PRACTICE of JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES; including the Statutes of 1860 and 1862, with Notes, and the Forms required in making, administering, and winding up a Company. By HENRY THRING, Esq., Barrister at Law, Parliamentary Counsel to the Home Office. In 2 vols. 12mo. Price 18s. cloth.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

ROSCOE'S CRIMINAL EVIDENCE—Sixth Edition.

In royal 12mo., price 30s. cloth.

ROSCOE'S DIGEST of the LAW of EVIDENCE in CRIMINAL CASES. Sixth Edition, with considerable Additions. By DAVID POWER, Esq., Q.C.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Publishers, London.

GEEVES'S CRIMINAL ACTS.—Second Edition.

In post 8vo., price 16s. cloth.

THE CRIMINAL-LAW CONSOLIDATION and AMENDMENT ACTS of the 24 & 25 VICT. With Notes, Observations, and Forms for Summary Proceedings. By CHARLES SPRENGEL GEEVES, Esq., one of her Majesty's Counsel.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

A TREATISE on BILLS of SALE, with an Appendix, containing the Registration Act, 17 & 18 Vict. c. 26, and Precedents, &c. By F. C. J. MILLAR and J. R. COLLIER, Esqs., Barristers at Law. SECOND EDITION, revised and enlarged. By F. C. J. MILLAR, Esq.

Stevens & Sons; and H. Sweet.

BY AUTHORITY.

Price 9s. cloth boards.

PROCEDURE in the STANNARIES of CORNWALL and DEVON. Containing the New Rules and Orders for Regulating the Practice, both at Equity and Common Law, of the Court of the Vice-Warden of the Stannaries; and the recent Statutes for establishing and extending its Jurisdiction. Preceded by Observations on the Power of the Court in relation to Mining Associations and Partnerships in the Counties of Cornwall and Devon.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street; and Stevens & Sons, No 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

WILDMAN'S INTERNATIONAL LAW.

INSTITUTES of INTERNATIONAL LAW, in Time of Peace and Time of War. By RICHARD WILDMAN, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 2 vols. 8vo. 1849-50. Price 12. 2s. 6d. bds.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

BOOKS of FORMS necessary for CARRYING into OPERATION the NUISANCES REMOVAL ACT for ENGLAND, 1855. Prepared, with Instructions for use, by TOULMIN SMITH, Esq.

I.—PRESENTMENT BOOK, for ENTRY of COMPLAINTS. (100 sheets in each book, price 7s. 6d. bound).

II.—INSPECTOR'S REPORT BOOK. (100 sheets in each book, price 7s. 6d. bound).

III.—ORDER of AUTHORISATION to INSPECTOR. (100 sheets in each book, price 6s. bound).

IV.—NOTICE of APPLICATION for ORDER of ADMISSION. (100 sheets in each book, price 6s. bound).

V.—NOTICES of NUISANCES, and REMEDY. (250 sheets in each book, price 12s. bound).

VI.—NOTICES of COMPULSORY PROCEEDINGS. (100 sheets in each book, price 6s. bound).

VII.—NOTICE to OCCUPIERS FOULING DRAINS. (200 sheets in each book, price 10s. 6d. bound).

VIII.—LICENSE to USE COMMON DRAINS on PAYMENT. 200 sheets in each book, price 10s. 6d. bound).

A complete Set of the above, price 31. 6s.

These Forms may also be had with the title of each Parish or District specially printed, at a small advance.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard; H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; and W. Maxwell, 33, Bell-yard.

* Sent free by post on receipt of a post-office order (payable to either of the publishers) for the above amount.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the Office, No. 33, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, September 16, 1865.

The Jurist

No. 559, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.

No. 1498, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

SEPTEMBER 23, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

LAW.—WANTED, in a Solicitor's Office in the City, a GENTLEMAN to UNDERTAKE the GENERAL SUPERINTENDENCE of the BUSINESS under the Partners. He must be a good Conveyancer, and understand thoroughly the modern Practice of Chancery, Common Law, and Bankruptcy. Apply, stating terms, &c., to J. G. Messrs. Wetherby & Co., Law Stationers, Birch-lane, E. C.

In the press, will be ready in a few days, price 2s. 6d.,
A HANDY-BOOK ON CHANCERY LAW and PRACTICE for SUITORS under the New Equity Jurisdiction in the County Courts. With the Act complete, and Practical Observations thereon: with the authorised Forms and Rules of Court, &c. By G. MANLEY WETHERFIELD, Solicitor.
London: Stannard & Smith, 30, Chancery-lane, W. C.

GLEN'S LAW OF HIGHWAYS.—Second Edition.

This day is published, post 8vo., 20s. cloth,
THE LAW of HIGHWAYS; comprising the Highway Acts, 1835, 1862, and 1864; the South Wales Highway Act; and the Decisions of the Courts on the subject of Highways, Bridges, Ferries, &c.; including the Law of Highways in Local Board of Health Districts; Highways affected by Railways, and Locomotives on Railroads. With an Appendix of Statutes relating to Highways. By W. CUNNINGHAM GLEN, Esq., Barrister at Law.
London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

POWELL'S LAW OF EVIDENCE.—Second Edition.

12mo., 12s. cloth,
THE PRINCIPLES and PRACTICE of the LAW of EVIDENCE. By EDMUND POWELL, Esq., M.A., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law, Author of "A Treatise on the Law of Inland Carriers." Second Edition.
London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

POWELL'S LAW OF CARRIERS.—Second Edition.

8vo., 14s. cloth,
THE LAW of INLAND CARRIERS, especially as regulated by the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854. By EDMUND POWELL, Esq., M.A., Barrister at Law, Author of "Principles and Practice of the Law of Evidence." Second Edition, almost rewritten.
London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

MAUDE & POLLOCK'S LAW OF SHIPPING.

A COMPENDIUM of the LAW of MERCHANT SHIPPING. With an Appendix, containing all the Statutes and Forms of Practical Utility. By FREDERIC PHILIP MAUDE and CHARLES EDWARD POLLOCK, Esqrs., of the Inner Temple, Barristers at Law. The Third Edition, including the Statutes and Decisions to the present time. Royal 8vo., price 1l. 14s. cloth.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

Price 5s. cloth boards,

A HANDY-BOOK of the LAW of COPYRIGHT, comprising Literary, Dramatic, and Musical Copyright, and Copyright in Engravings, Sculpture, and Works of Art. With an Appendix, containing the Statutes, Convention with France, and Forms under the 25 & 26 Vict. c. 68. By F. P. CHAPPELL and JOHN SHOARD, LL.D.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NEW EDITION OF BEST ON EVIDENCE.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 28s. cloth boards,
A TREATISE on the PRINCIPLES of the LAW of EVIDENCE; with Elementary Rules for conducting the Examination and Cross-examination of Witnesses. The Third Edition. By W. M. BEST, A.M., LL.B., of Gray's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

JARMAN on WILLS, by WOLSTENHOLME and VINCENT.

The Third Edition, in 2 vols. royal 8vo., price 3l. 3s.,
A TREATISE on the LAW of WILLS. By THOMAS JARMAN, Esq. The Third Edition. By E. P. WOLSTENHOLME, M.A., and S. VINCENT, B.A., of Lincoln's-inn and the Inner Temple, Barristers at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

No. 559, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

SMITH'S MERCANTILE LAW.

In royal 8vo., cloth boards,

A COMPENDIUM of MERCANTILE LAW. By J. W. SMITH, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law. Seventh Edition. By G. M. DOWDESWELL, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law.

London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn; H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; and W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, in demy 12mo., 1016 pp., price 1l. 12s. cloth,
ROGERS on ELECTIONS, ELECTION COMMITTEES, and REGISTRATION. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Tenth Edition. With the new Registration Statute, and all the Election and Registration Cases to the present time. By F. S. P. WOLFERSTAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 8vo., price 15s. cloth,

A HAND-BOOK of PRECEDENTS in CONVEYANCING. By FRANCIS HOUSMAN, Barrister at Law.

"We know of no work of the kind which contains within the same limited number of pages, and consequently at the same moderate price, so extensive a collection of forms readily applicable to the various exigencies of the draftsman."—Law Magazine, August, 1861.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.
68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.
DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q.C.
Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.
Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.
Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office.
C. B. CLABON, Sec.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS at

PARTRIDGE & COZENS,

WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS in PARCHMENT,

192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 20s.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bond fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unobtainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual RETAIL charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.

Draft Paper, 6s. 7s., 7s. 9d., and 9s. per ream.
Brief Paper, 13s. 6d., 16s., and 18s. 6d. per ream.
Foolscap Paper, 10s. 6d., 13s. 6d., and 17s. 6d. per ream.
Cream Laid Note, 3s., 4s., and 5s. per ream.
Large Cream Laid Note, 4s., 6s., and 7s. 6d. per ream.
Large Blue Note, 3s., 4s., and 6s. per ream.
Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2s. 9d., 3s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. per 1000.
Foolscap Official Envelopes, 1s. 6d. per 100, or 13s. 6d. per 1000.
Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, per Piece, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25s.; Good Stand for ditto with two Drawers, 17s.

Parchment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1s. 6d. each, or 17s. per dozen.
Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1s. 4d. each, or 15s. per dozen.
Records or Memorials, Ruled, 5s. per dozen, or 22s. 6d. per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inkstands; Postage Scales; Writing-cases; Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post-free.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

K K

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	369
Judicial Statistics, 1864—Civil Side	361
Statutes passed during the late Session of Parliament.

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

ROLLS COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Re Fox's Will. —(Will—Time for ascertaining class—“Surviving”)	735
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Wilson v. Hart. —(Notice—Covenant running with the land)	735
-----------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVESHY, Barrister at Law.

Veysey, App., Hoskins, Resp. —Harris, App., Hoskins, Resp.—(Game—“Open and inclosed land”—Highway—9 Geo. 4, c. 60, s. 1)	737
Ward, App., Gray, Resp. —(Floating bridge—Tolls—Mutiny Act, 1864, sect. 72)	738

EXCHEQUER CHAMBER.

By H. RUTHERFORD, Barrister at Law.

Richardson and Another v. Power and Others. —(Will—Codicil—“Vested”)	739
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By E. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

Bilbee v. The London, Brighton, and South-coast Railway Company. —(Railway company—Negligence—Evidence)	745
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

By W. BRANDT, Barrister at Law.

Grindley v. Booth. —(Injunction under the 32nd section of the Common-law Procedure Act, 1854—Costs)	745
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

HOUSE OF LORDS.

By W. W. KNOX, Barrister at Law.

Jones and Others v. The Mersey Docks and Harbour Board. —The Mersey Docks and Harbour Board v. Cameron and Others.—(Poor rate—Docks—Public purposes—Exemption—Occupier—Crown—Trustees—43 Eliz. c. 2)	746
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

N O T I C E.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

DODD AND BROOKE'S PRACTICE OF THE COURT OF PROBATE.

Recently published, in 8vo., price 1l. 11s. 6d. cloth.

THE LAW and PRACTICE of the COURT of PROBATE, Contests and Common Form. With the Rules, Statutes, and Forms. By PHILIP WM. DODD, Solicitor, and GEORGE HENRY BROOKE, Doctors' Commons. Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

HAZLITT and ROCHE'S LAW of MARITIME WARFARE.

A MANUAL of the LAW of MARITIME WARFARE, embodying the Decisions of Lord Stowell and other English Judges, and of the American Courts, and the Opinions of the most eminent Jurists. With an Appendix of the Official Documents and Correspondence in relation to the present War. By WILLIAM HAZLITT and H. P. ROCHE, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. In 12mo. 1854. Price 10s. 6d. cloth. Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

LEVI'S COMMERCIAL LAW.

In 2 vols royal 8vo., price 35s. cloth, lettered.

INTERNATIONAL COMMERCIAL LAW. Being the Principles of Mercantile Law of the following and other Countries—viz. England, Scotland, Ireland, British India, British Colonies,

Austria,	France,	Netherlands,	Spain,
Belgium,	Germany,	Norway,	Sweden,
Brasil,	Greece,	Portugal,	Switzerland,
Buenos Ayres,	Hans Towns,	Prussia,	United States,
Denmark,	Italy,	Russia,	Wurtemberg.

By LEONE LEVI, Esq., F.S.A., F.S.S., of Lincoln's-Inn, Barrister at Law, Professor of the Principles and Practice of Commerce in King's College, London, &c. In 2 vols. royal 8vo. 1863. Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SMITH'S MANUAL OF EQUITY JURISPRUDENCE.

SEVENTH EDITION, 1864.

A MANUAL of EQUITY JURISPRUDENCE, founded on the works of Story, Spence, and other writers, and on the subsequent Cases: comprising the Fundamental Principles and the Points of Equity usually occurring in General Practice. By JOSIAH W. SMITH, B.C.L., Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel. Seventh Edition. In 12mo., 1864, price 12s. cloth. Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SMITH'S REAL AND PERSONAL PROPERTY.

In 1 thick vol. 8vo., price 35s. cloth.

A COMPENDIUM of the LAW of REAL and PERSONAL PROPERTY, connected with Conveyancing; designed as a comprehensive Second Book for Students, and as a Digest of the most useful learning for Practitioners. Third Edition. By JOSIAH W. SMITH, B.C.L., Q.C. Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard Lincoln's-inn.

BYTHEWOOD AND JARMAN'S CONVEYANCING.—

Vol. 8, Part 1.

Price 8s. boards.

A SELECTION of PRECEDENTS from MODERN MANUSCRIPT COLLECTIONS, and DRAFTS of ACTUAL PRACTICE; forming a System of Conveyancing. With Dissertations and Practical Notes. By THOMAS JARMAN, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law. The Third Edition. Vol. 8. By WHITLEY STOKES, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. PART 1.—POWERS of ATTORNEY.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

HAYES'S CONCISE CONVEYANCER

THE CONCISE CONVEYANCER, or SHORT PRECEDENTS of CONVEYANCES. With Practical Remarks, and Summary of the Stamp Laws relating to Conveyances. By WILLIAM HAYES, Esq., Barrister at Law, one of the Six Conveyancing Counsel of the High Court of Chancery. The Second Edition, with considerable Additions; including a Chapter on Composition Deeds, under the New Bankrupt Act. By W. B. COLTMAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. Royal 12mo, price 18s.

* The present Edition contains Conveyances on Sales, Mortgages, Leases, Settlements, and a variety of Miscellaneous Instruments, but no “Wills,” as the work is intended to be a companion volume to the well-known work by Hayes & Jarman of Concise Forms and Wills. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

The Sixth Edition, now ready, price 21s. cloth boards.

HAYES and JARMAN'S CONCISE FORMS OF WILLS, with Practical Notes: a Popular View of the Statute of Wills, and Suggestions to Persons taking Instructions for and preparing Wills; the Decisions on the Wills Acts, and other Testamentary Matters, in the House of Lords and Privy Council, and in the Equity, Common Law, Ecclesiastical, and Probate Courts, down to the Time of Publication; and many additional Forms. Sixth Edition. By THOMAS S. BADGER EASTWOOD, of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, M.A., and of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law, Reader on the Law of Real Property to the Four Inns of Court. London: H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street, Law Bookseller and Publisher.

NEW EDITIONS OF LORD ST. LEONARDS' WORKS.

Price 1l. 18s. cloth, the Fourteenth Edition, much enlarged.

A CONCISE and PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW of VENDORS and PURCHASERS of ESTATE. By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

Also, uniform with the above, in 1 thick vol. royal 8vo., the Eighth Edition, price 1l. 18s. cloth.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE OF POWERS. By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 1l. 5s. cloth.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE on the NEW STATUTES relating to PROPERTY. The Second Edition. By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards). H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, SEPTEMBER 23, 1865.

THE general election of 1865 is over, and the supporters of Lord Palmerston's Government will rejoice at the result. The Government had a working majority in the House of Commons in the last Parliament, and they will have a still larger majority in the new Parliament. It may be a question yet to be determined whether the Liberals of the new Parliament are not, in fact, more Conservative than the Liberals of the old; but with this we have nothing to do. There is, however, a subject which will be uppermost in the minds of many of the elected and rejected, viz. the validity of the returns. It is rumoured that when the new Parliament assembles there will be an unusual number of petitions. It may, therefore, be interesting to consider the law as it now stands for preventing corrupt practices in the election of members to serve in Parliament. Whatever may have been the practice in other countries where free institutions have been established, it is certain that in this country, from very early times, bribery at the election of members to serve in Parliament has been regarded by the Legislature as a high offence. Indeed, at common law, even to offer a bribe was a crime, probably a misdemeanour. See the judgment of Lord Mansfield in Rex v. Vaughan (4 Burr. 2500), and the observations of Lord Eldon in Ward v. Broughton (3 V. & B. 173). Parliament, however, do not appear to have imposed any penalty on the offence of bribery until the 2 Geo. 2, c. 24, s. 7, whereby it was enacted, that if any person, having a right to vote at any election, should ask or receive any money or other reward, by way of gift, loan, or agreement, for the same, to give, or to forbear from giving, his vote at any election, such person should for every such offence forfeit the sum of 500*l.*, and should for ever be disqualified to vote at any election. Several other acts were passed having the same object, viz. purity of election. In 1809 the Legislature, by the 49 Geo. 3, c. 118, imposed a penalty of 500*l.* on any person who should enter into any engagement, for money or reward, to procure the election or return of members to Parliament. This statute aimed at putting an end to the sale of "rotten boroughs," as they were termed by purists. The 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 37, forbade the giving of ribbons and cockades by candidates, and provided, that persons having votes, and employed by candidates, were disqualified to vote. This last provision was an important enactment, because, up to the time of the passing of that act, any candidate whose purse was long enough to employ half a constituency in a borough, had only to do so, and was sure to be returned, provided his opponent's employment was not more lucrative, in which case, of course, the election was lost. These statutes, however, are all now repealed by the Corrupt Practices Prevention Act, 1854, which consolidated most of the previous statutes, and is the act now in force upon the subject. The 2nd and 3rd sections of this statute define "bribery."

The first of these sections provides—First, "that every person who shall, directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, give, lend, or agree to give or lend, or shall offer, promise, or promise to procure, or to endeavour to procure, any money or valuable consideration to or for any voter, or to or for any person on behalf of any voter, or to or for any other person, in order to induce any voter to vote, or to refrain from voting, or shall corruptly do any such act as aforesaid on account of such voter having voted, or refrained from voting, at any election." Secondly, "Every person who shall, directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, give or procure, or agree to give or procure, or offer, promise, or promise to procure, or to endeavour to procure, any office, place, or employment, to or for any voter, or to or for any person on behalf of any voter, or to or for any other person, in order to induce such voter to vote, or refrain from voting, or shall corruptly do any such act as aforesaid, on account of any voter having voted or refrained from voting at any election." Thirdly, "Every person who shall, directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, make any such gift, loan, offer, promise, procurement, or agreement as aforesaid, to or for any person, in order to induce such person to procure, or endeavour to procure, the return of any person to serve in Parliament, or the vote of any voter at any election." Fourthly, "Every person who shall, upon or in consequence of any such gift, loan, offer, promise, procurement, or agreement, procure or engage, promise, or endeavour to procure, the return of any person to serve in Parliament, or the vote of any voter at any election." Fifthly, "Every person who shall advance, or pay, or cause to be paid, any money to or to the use of any other person, with the intent that such money, or any part thereof, shall be expended in bribery at any election, or who shall knowingly pay, or cause to be paid, any money to any person in discharge or repayment of any money wholly or in part expended in bribery at any election." The act provides that any persons so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and shall be liable to forfeit the sum of 100*l.*

Sect. 3 provides, "that every voter who shall before or during any election, directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person in his behalf, receive, agree, or contract for any money, gift, loan, or valuable consideration, office, place, or employment for himself or for any other person, for voting or agreeing to vote, or for refraining or agreeing to refrain from voting, at any election." Secondly, "Every person who shall, after any election, directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, receive any money or valuable consideration on account of any person having voted or refrained from voting, or having induced any other person to vote or refrain from voting, at any election, shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and shall be liable to forfeit 10*l.* to any person who shall sue for the same."

These two sections, if enforced, would, beyond all doubt, put an end to any corruption whatever at elections. The former imposes a heavy penalty on the person who offers, and the latter on the person who receives, a bribe; and as the sections are framed, any person either giving or receiving any valuable consideration whatever for his vote or his interest, would most certainly be caught in the meshes of the statute. But since the penalty is only recoverable by an informer, it would be difficult, except in notorious cases of corruption, to succeed in enforcing the act.

The stat. 4 & 5 Vict. c. 57, however, which is repealed by the act of 1854, after reciting that the laws in being are not sufficient to hinder corrupt and illegal practices in the election of members to serve in Parliament, provided, that whenever any charge of bribery shall be brought before any select committee of the House of Commons, appointed to try and determine the merits of any return or election of a member or members to serve in Parliament, the committee shall receive evidence upon the whole matter whereon it is alleged that bribery has been committed. Neither shall it be necessary to prove agency in the first instance, before giving evidence of those facts whereby the charge of bribery is to be sustained; and the committee, in their report to the House of Commons, shall separately and distinctly report upon the fact or facts of bribery which shall have been proved before them, and also whether or not it shall have been proved that such bribery was committed, to the knowledge and consent of the sitting member or candidate at the election. This statute was a decided step on the road to the suppression of bribery and corruption, because, both under the old statute, 2 Geo. 4, c. 24, and under the new Corrupt Practices Prevention Act, 1854, the proceedings in proof of bribery, and to recover the penalties, are only enforceable at the suit of informers, who may or may not think it fit or worth while to take proceedings; whereas, under this act, it is for the House, on the hearing of a petition, to report on distinct and separate acts of bribery, if proved, and the House will take care to vindicate its own purity, by directing proceedings wherever they discover, on the hearing of the petition, that bribery has been committed.

Sect. 4 of the new act defines "treating" to be, corruptly to give or provide, or cause to be given or provided, or to be accessory to the giving or providing, or to pay wholly or in part, any expense incurred for any meat, drink, or entertainment, or provision to or for any person, in order to be elected, or for being elected, or for the purpose of corruptly influencing such person, or any other person, to give, or to refrain from giving, his vote at such election, or on account of such person having voted, or refrained from voting, or being about to vote, or refrain from voting, at such election; and the section imposes a penalty of 50*l.* on the person treating, and forfeiture of vote to the person treated. If this section be really enforced, elections will become a severe and "dry" reality.

The next section provides for "undue influence." It provides, that "every person who shall, directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, make use of, or threaten to make use of, any force, violence, or restraint, or inflict, or threaten the infliction, by himself, or by or through any other person, of any injury, damage, harm, or loss, or in any other manner practise intimidation upon or against any person, in order to induce or compel such person to vote, or to refrain from voting, or on account of such person having voted, or refrained from voting, at any election, or who shall by abduction, duress, or any fraudulent device or contrivance, impede, prevent, or otherwise interfere with the free exercise of the franchise of any voter, or shall thereby compel, induce, or prevail upon any voter either to give, or to refrain from giving, his vote at any election, shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and liable to forfeit the sum of 50*l.*" The statute provides various other means for suppressing bribery, such as by penalty, on conviction, of the name of the offender being struck out of the register, and forbids, under a penalty, the distribution of ribbons and cockades. It also provides that all the costs and expenses at any election shall be paid by an officer, to be appointed under the act, by the returning officer in each constituency, to be called the "election auditor." This last office has since been abolished, and the election expenses are now paid by the returning officer. Sect. 23 declares, "that the giving, or causing to be given, to any voter on the day of nomination or day of polling, on account of such voter having polled, or being about to poll, any meat, drink, or entertainment, by way of refreshment, or any money or ticket to enable such voter to obtain refreshment, shall be deemed an illegal act." And sect. 36 provides, that if any candidate shall be declared by an election committee guilty, by himself or his agents, of bribery, treating, or undue influence at such election, he shall be incapable of sitting in Parliament for such county, city, or borough during the Parliament then in existence. Sect. 23 ought, and probably has, materially reduced the cost of an election. The custom of giving an entertainment to voters at the election was universal until the passing of this act.

It is clear that the Legislature is determined to put down bribery, and to establish a purity at elections which, if bona fide carried out, will indeed be a glory and honour to the country. Bribery, no doubt, is in many cases difficult to detect, indeed often impossible, when we bear in mind that, both at common law and under the statute, the offence is complete if the bribe be given or offered, even though the voter do not vote for the candidate in whose behalf the bribe was given. Vide Sulston v. Norton (3 Burr. 1236), where Lord Mansfield observes, "The offence was completely committed by the corruption, whether the other party shall perform his promise or not;" and per Patteson and Coleridge, J.J., in Henlow v. Faucett (3 Ad. & El. 51)—"If, in fact, B. never did so intend, A.'s offence was complete by his giving the money for the purpose of inducing B. to vote, and by B. professedly accepting it on those terms."

LEGAL APPOINTMENTS.—William Henry Doyle, Esq., has been appointed Chief Justice of the Bahamas. Mr. Hanson, of the Chancery bar, succeeds Mr. Trevor at the Stamp Office. Mr. Charles P. Phillips has been appointed by the Lord Chief Justice revising barrister for the City of London, in the place of Mr. Hanson. Joseph Henry Wattle, Esq., has been appointed one of her Majesty's Counsel for the island of Nevis.

JUDICIAL STATISTICS, 1864—CIVIL SIDE.

(Continued from p. 355).

The total of the proceedings in the chambers of the Master of the Rolls, and of each of the three Vice-

Chancellors, as shewn in the returns furnished by the respective chief clerks, were as follow for the year ended the 1st November, 1864, in comparison with the proceedings in 1863, and with the average of the totals for 1859-63.

The proceedings in each of the chambers separately for 1864 are given in the table :—

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1859-63.
Summonses to originate proceedings:
For the administration of estates	409	405	410
Under the Charitable Trusts Acts	12	12	36
For appointment of guardians and maintenance of infants	120	136	138
For other purposes	124	148	130
	665	701	714
Other summonses	18,626	17,207	16,481
Orders made:
Of the class drawn up by the registrars	7,061	6,768	6,543
Of the class drawn up in chambers	6,256	5,420	5,231
Orders brought into chambers for prosecution	1,998	1,820	1,931
Number of advertisements issued	1,012	878	905
Debts claimed and adjudicated upon :
Number of debts	4,487	5,248	4,749
Amount of debts proved	£1,056,108	£1,953,259	£1,234,419
Accounts passed (other than receivers' accounts):
Number of accounts	1,075	1,044	1,150
Receipts therein	£5,421,873	£6,637,536	£5,806,536
Disbursements and allowances therein	£4,998,892	£6,082,900	£5,353,671
Receivers' accounts passed :
Number of accounts	515	594	539
Receipts therein	£1,169,727	£1,590,208	£1,295,407
Disbursements and allowances therein	£936,602	£1,237,973	£1,053,277
Sales of estates under orders of court :
Number of sales	494	539	483
Amount realised	£1,947,223	£1,487,569	£1,456,080
Purchases of estates under orders of court :
Number of purchases	92	94	87
Number of contributories :
Included in list of contributories	2,800	2,121	1,854
Excluded from lists of contributories	114	122	119
Orders for winding up companies:
Amount of calls made	£614,153	£462,453	£628,261
Total amount of fees levied by stamps	£9,752	£10,021	£10,129
Number of titles and other matters directed to be investigated by the conveyancing counsel	416	347	355
Number of certificates filed	2,240	2,255	2,312
Number of appointments (by summonses, adjournment, or otherwise) disposed of	43,842	41,300	40,083
Number of orders under which accounts and inquiries were pending at date of return	2,764	2,453	2,417
Number of orders for winding up companies then pending :	113	106	107

Returns have been forwarded for the year ended the 1st November, 1864, by the chief clerks to the Master of the Rolls and of each of the Vice-Chancellors, as furnished to them by the official managers or official liquidators in each case of winding up pending in the respective chambers during the year.

From the abstract of these returns given in the tables, it appears that the number of cases pending was 104.

In fifteen of the number of cases shewn in the returns for 1863, the proceedings appear to have closed. In thirteen of the cases pending in 1864, the official managers or official liquidators appear to have been appointed in that year. The totals of the numbers and amounts shewn in the returns for 1864 are as follow, in comparison with the totals for the preceding year :—

	1864.	1863.
Contributories included in the list of contributories	2,807	2,869
Contributories excluded in the list of contributories	114	159
Debts claimed and adjudicated upon	1,166	1,857
Orders made	577	367
	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
The amount of calls made	614,153 7 3	473,079 18 11
Dividends ordered to be paid to creditors	440,820 5 1	313,183 4 11
Amount ordered to be refunded to contributories	63,998 9 2	31,967 11 6
Realised by sales	129,445 16 4	95,294 5 5

	1864.	1863.
The receipts for the year were,—
On calls or by way of compromise	£115,744 13 9	£158,868 0 8
Assets realised	367,015 13 0	262,920 3 11
The disbursements, including salaries or allowances, clerks' travelling expenses, &c., law expenses, auctioneers' and accountants' charges, and sundries, were	40,292 17 7	44,225 5 7
Dividends paid to creditors	363,276 3 4	253,049 13 7
Amount refunded to contributories	53,894 10 7	28,977 15 0
Other payments	20,578 4 10	21,590 12 11
A balance remained available for future distribution amounting to	156,009 1 1	181,382 13 4

The proceedings in the office of the examiners of the High Court of Chancery for the year ended the 2nd November, 1864, are shewn in a return furnished by the sworn clerks as in former years. The number of witnesses examined was 419; the amount of fees received (by stamps) 2341. 5s. In the preceding year the number of witnesses examined was 338; the amount of fees was 2017. 5s.; the average of the number of witnesses examined for the five years 1859-63, inclusive, is 379; the average of the amount of fees for those years is 2377.

It will be remembered that in proceedings in Chancery the witnesses are not examined orally in court. Their evidence is taken down by the examiners and the examiners' returns shews simply the foregoing facts.

The return made by the Clerks of Records and Writs shews the proceedings in their office from the 2nd November, 1863, to the 1st November, 1864, both days inclusive. The return distinguishes the number of suits instituted in each of the four original courts of the Master of the Rolls and the three Vice-Chancellors, the total numbers under each head of proceedings being as follows for the year in comparison with the numbers for the preceding year, and with the average of the five years 1859-63, inclusive:—

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1859-63.
Suits instituted:
Bills or informations filed	2280	2344	2198
Claims filed under General Order of 1850	—	—	21
Special cases filed under the 14 Vict. c. 35	20	18	26
Administration summonses filed	337	430	416
Carried forward	2637	2792	2661

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1859-63.
In causes	610	654	720
Under acts relating to railways, and other public works	703	507	383
„ the Trustee Acts of 1850 and 1852	220	240	242
„ the Trustee Relief Acts, 1847 and 1849	232	241	234
„ the Leases and Sales of Settled Estates Act	59	48	47
„ the acts relating to charities	1	1	7
„ the Winding-up and Joint-stock Companies Acts	33	23	18
„ the Infants Settlement Act, 1855	15	19	11
In other general matters	276	266	203
	2149	2004	1865

Of the 2149 petitions in 1864, 21 were presented for hearing before the Lord Chancellor; 122 before the Lords Justices; 475 before Vice-Chancellor Kindersley; 790 before Vice-Chancellor Stuart; and 741 before Vice-Chancellor Wood. In 1864 there were also 15 petitions presented to the Lord Chancellor for orders of course; there were 10 letters missive, and 4 warrants. In the preceding year there were 16 petitions for orders of course presented to the Lord Chancellor, there were 10 letters missive, and 4 warrants. The average of the numbers under these heads for the five years 1859-63, inclusive, is respectively 13, 6, and 4. The amount of fees collected in the office

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1859-63.
Brought forward	2637	2792	2661
Other originating summonses filed	269	285	307
	2906	3077	2968

The total number of proceedings under the different classes of suits, and the total amount of fees collected by stamps in the office, were for each of the above years, with the average of five years, as follows:—

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1859-63.
Proceedings in suits by bill or information	12,772	15,061	17,199
Proceedings in suits on claim	—	1	66
Proceedings in suits on summonses	1,007	941	1,054
Proceedings in special cases	25	20	43
General proceedings	54,797	50,740	50,626
	75,601	66,753	66,968

Fees collected in the office by stamps £27,581 £26,186 £24,802

The return of the proceedings in the office of the Lord Chancellor's principal secretary, commencing with the 2nd November, 1863, and ending with the 1st November, 1864, furnished by the principal secretary, shews the number of attendable petitions presented for hearing within the year, with the nature of the proceedings, to have been as follows, the numbers under each description of proceedings for 1863, being added for comparison, with the average of the numbers for the five years 1859-63, inclusive:—

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1859-63.
In causes	610	654	720
Under acts relating to railways, and other public works	703	507	383
„ the Trustee Acts of 1850 and 1852	220	240	242
„ the Trustee Relief Acts, 1847 and 1849	232	241	234
„ the Leases and Sales of Settled Estates Act	59	48	47
„ the acts relating to charities	1	1	7
„ the Winding-up and Joint-stock Companies Acts	33	23	18
„ the Infants Settlement Act, 1855	15	19	11
In other general matters	276	266	203
	2149	2004	1865

by means of stamps, in 1864, was 15987; in the preceding year the amount was 15567. The average of the amounts for the five years is 14947.

The return of proceedings in the office of the secretary of the Rolls, furnished by the secretary of decrees, and commencing and ending at the same dates as the preceding return, shews the number of petitions set down for hearing, and the nature of the proceedings under the following headings. The numbers under each head are added for the preceding year, and the average of the numbers for the five years 1859-63, inclusive, viz.—

	1864.	1863.	Average 1859-63.
In causes	288	308	348
In the acts relating to public charities	5	151	87
In the Trustee Acts	76	61	70
In the Trustee Relief Acts	162	90	93
In the Leases and Sales of Settled Estates Acts	18	45	20
In the acts relating to railways and other public works	237	7	98
In the Winding-up and Joint-stock Companies Acts	42	31	12
In the Infants Settlement Act, 18 & 19 Vict. c. 43	18	6	5
In other matters	51	48	56
	827	756	748

The number of petitions presented for orders of course and orders of course drawn up, was 3645. In the preceding year the number was 2903; the average of the numbers for the five years 1859-63, inclusive, is 3451.

The total amount of fees collected in the office of the secretary at the Rolls, by stamps, as shewn in the return for 1864, the amounts collected at different rates on different proceedings being distinguished, was 2337.; for 1863 the amount was 1503.; the average of the five years is 21267.

The business transacted for which no fees are now payable, as shewn in the return for 1864, was as follows, the numbers under each head being also stated for each of the years 1861-2-3:—

	1864.	1863.	1862.	1861.
Caveats	69	75	59	55
Docquets	21	25	17	25
Recognisances vacated	76	80	82	104
Fiats upon certificates of aliens	333	251	261	271
Fiats upon deeds for inrolment	30	38	33	14
Office copies	157	173	148	137

The Taxing Masters' returns show the proceedings in their respective offices for the year ended the 1st November, 1864, under the same heads as the returns for the preceding year. The following are the totals of the different proceedings, the details of each office being given in the tables:—

	Orders and Re- ferences for Taxation.	Bills Taxed.	Certificates and Allocations made.
General business	2945	6257	2569
Taxation under the 6 & 7 Vict. c. 75, and under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845	174	340	106
Taxations in lunacy	292	509	274
Taxations under requests from officers of other courts	89	104	72
Total proceedings	3510	7210	3021

The total proceedings under each heading in 1863 were respectively, 3301, 7014, and 2852. The averages of the five years 1859-63, are 3335, 7117, and 2916. The total amount of costs taxed in 1864, as shewn in the table, was 756,1307. The amount in 1863 was 720,7397. The average of the five years 1859-63 is 727,7397. The amount of fees was 22,9037., as shewn in the table for 1864; for 1863 it was 21,8177.; the average for the five years is 23,1657.

The statistics of the duties performed in the office of the Masters in Lunacy during the year, from the 2nd November, 1863, to the 1st November, 1864, inclusive, are shewn in a return furnished by the chief clerk to the Masters in Lunacy, in the same form as for preceding years, the following being the numbers of the proceedings under the different heads, with the amounts of cash and stock, as shewn in the return for 1864, with the corresponding numbers and amounts for the preceding year, and the average of the numbers and amounts for the five years, 1859-1863, inclusive:—

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1859-63.
Orders of inquiry in commissions of lunacy, executed by Masters in Lunacy	87	60	63
Reports made to the Lord Chancellor	246	167	166
Bonds and recognisances taken as security for lunatics' estates	107	85	87
Certificates as to such securities	110	87	89
Certificates for investment of cash already in court belonging to lunatics	4	5	6
Certificates for payment of money, transfer of stock into court, investment of cash in court, &c.	145	131	125
Amount of cash included in such certificates	£212,558	£204,253	£181,282
Amount of stock included in such certificates	12,931	15,589	11,990
Amount of cash already in court directed to be invested	1,080	2,050	9,856
Certificates other than above	79	74	79
Accounts and affidavits of committees and receivers of lunatics' estates taken and passed by the Masters	258	255	251
Leases and other deeds settled and approved	119	83	172
Summonses for proceedings before the Masters	4,209	4,010	3,667
Amount of receipts in the accounts and affidavits of committees and receivers in lunacy passed during the year	£470,443	£402,784	£364,535
Amount of disbursements and allowances therein	385,812	344,794	314,137

The reports made to the Lord Chancellor by the Masters in Lunacy are stated in the return to comprise, amongst other matters, reports as to the property, kindred, and maintenance of the lunatics and their families, and the appointment of committees of their persons and estates; reports approving new committees of person or estate; reports fixing anew, or in any way varying, the maintenance or residence of the lunatics; reports as to granting leases and providing for the repair of the lunatics' estates; reports on miscellaneous matters. The certificates, other than as to securities, and the investment and payment of cash, relate to the deposit and delivery out of deeds, wills, and other documents, the approval and allowance of leases, deeds, and various other matters incidental to the management of lunatics' estates. The accounts and affidavits of committees and receivers taken and passed by the Masters are stated to be exclusive of cases in which the Masters have been satisfied as to the due application of the incomes of lunatics by other evidence or explanation.

The Registrar in Lunacy has furnished a return, showing the proceedings in his office during the year ended the 1st November, 1864, in the same form as the returns for preceding years, with the addition of a heading for the number of orders made in pursuance of the Lunacy Regulation Act, 1862.

The proceedings and the amounts of cash and stock shown in the return for 1864 are as follows, with the number of the proceedings under each head (except orders under the act of 1862), and the amounts for 1862; and with the average of the proceedings (except as before), and of the amounts for the years 1860-63, inclusive:—

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1860-63.
Petitions presented for hearing	160	125	161
Orders made for inquiries in lieu of commissions of lunacy	88	64	65
Other orders, including flats confirming Masters' reports	347	289	286
Number of orders made in pursuance of the Lunacy Regulation Act, 1862, for the application of properties of small amount for the maintenance of lunatics	23	—	—
Certificates of costs filed	242	144	147
Certificates of the Masters in Lunacy filed	353	316	290
Affidavits filed	1045	815	869
Writs of supersedeas issued	—	—	—
Amount of cash directed to be paid into court	£37,169	£36,653	£42,908
ditto paid out	27,359	28,236	31,017
Amount of stock directed to be transferred into court	125,077	187,557	500,008
ditto sold and transferred out	288,970	156,964	244,316
Amount of stock directed by orders in lunacy to be transferred otherwise than into court	102,965	98,806	55,908

The registrar appends to his return the observation, that the amount of cash directed to be paid into court by the orders does not include the balances paid in by committees, nor any of the sums of money paid in by debtors, purchasers, and others, when the amounts are not mentioned in the orders, but have to be afterwards ascertained and verified by affidavit; and that the amounts paid out do not include the payments out of the dividends to committees for maintenance, nor the amounts paid for costs, such amounts not being mentioned in the orders.

(To be continued).

CHITTY'S COLLECTION OF STATUTES.

Now ready, in 4 very thick vols., price 12l. 12s. cloth.

A COLLECTION of all the STATUTES of PRACTICAL UTILITY, with Notes thereon; intended as a Circuit and Court Companion. The Third Edition, containing all the Statutes of Practical Utility in the Civil and Criminal Administration of Justice to the present time. By W. N. WELSBY and EDWARD BEAVAN, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

"The principal branches of the Law are arranged alphabetically, and under each is collected all the Statutes relating to it, with explanatory notes. Besides the easy access afforded by the alphabetical arrangement of the subjects, a very copious general Index supplies the means of ready reference to all the subjects of lesser importance to which the various Statutes are directed."

"We could not say more for this great work by any words of approbation than by this short description of it. It is an admirable design admirably executed."—Law Times, May 13, 1855.

"* In the debate on the proposed consolidation of the Statutes, on the 9th February, 1854, Lord Campbell said, 'that the Statutes at large extended to about fifty volumes folio, but all the Statutes which were usually required by lawyers for reference might be found in three octavo volumes, compiled by his learned friend Mr. Welsby. When he (Lord Campbell) was upon the Bench, he always had this work by him, and no Statutes were ever referred to by the Bar which he could not find in it.'"

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SHELFORD'S LAW OF HIGHWAYS IN ENGLAND AND WALES, brought down to 1865.

In 1 vol. 12mo., price 12s. cloth.

THE LAW OF HIGHWAYS IN ENGLAND AND WALES; comprising Highways in Districts under Boards of Health and of Local Government, and as affected by Railways. With additional Forms not contained in the Acts. By LEONARD SHELFORD, Esq. The Third Edition, with a Supplement, containing the Highway Act, 1864, &c. With Notes and a revised Index. By C. MANLEY SMITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

RUSSELL ON ARBITRATION.—Third Edition.

In royal 8vo., price 86s. cloth.

A TREATISE on the POWER and DUTY of an ARBITRATOR, and the Law of Submissions and Awards. With an Appendix of Forms, and of the Statutes relating to Arbitration. Third Edition. By FRANCIS RUSSELL, Esq., Barrister at Law. Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn; and H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

THE LAW OF NUISANCES.

The Third Edition, price 7s. 6d. boards.

TOULMIN SMITH'S PRACTICAL PROCEEDINGS for the REMOVAL of NUISANCES to HEALTH and SAFETY, and for the Execution of Drainage Works in every Parish, Town, and Place in England and Wales. With numerous Forms, and complete Instructions for the Conduct of Parish Committees. The Third Edition, with large Additions.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard; and W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 12mo., price 4s. cloth.

THE LAWYER AND HIS PROFESSION. A Series of Letters to a Solicitor commencing Business. By I. ORTON SMITH.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

CHITTY ON BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 14. 8s.

CHITTY ON BILLS OF EXCHANGE, Promissory Notes, Cheques on Bankers, Bankers' Cash Notes, and Bank Notes; with References to the Law of Scotland, France, and America. The Tenth Edition. By JOHN A. RUSSELL and D. MACLACHLAN, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

FOURTH EDITION OF PALEY ON SUMMARY CONVICTIONS.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 21s. cloth boards.

PALEY ON THE LAW AND PRACTICE OF SUMMARY CONVICTIONS by JUSTICES OF THE PEACE. Including Proceedings preliminary and subsequent to Convictions, and under the 18 & 19 Vict. c. 126, relating to Larceny, &c. With Practical Forms and Precedents of Convictions. The Fourth Edition. By H. T. J. MACNAMARA, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard; W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the Office, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, September 23, 1866.

The Jurist

No. 560, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.

No. 1499, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

SEPTEMBER 30, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

Now ready, price 2s. 6d., post free,
A HANDY-BOOK on CHANCERY LAW and PRACTICE for SUITORS under the New Equity Jurisdiction in the County Courts. With the Act complete, and Practical Observations thereon; with the authorised Forms and Rules of Court, &c. By G. MANLEY WETHERFIELD, Solicitor.
London: Stannard & Smith, 30, Chancery-lane, W. C.

Just published, cloth, price 4s. 6d.,
THE MERCHANT'S FRIEND and LAWYER'S ASSISTANT; or Technical Vocabulary of Five Hundred Mercantile and Legal Expressions in Ten Languages; with an Explanatory Key to the Pronunciation of each Language. Also a Table shewing the relative Value and Proportion which the Coins, Weights, and Measures of one Country bear to those of other Countries. By Dr. K. P. ter REEHORST, Interpreter at the Common-law Courts, Author of "The Mariner's Friend."
London: F. Pitman, 20, Paternoster-row, E. C.

DAY'S COMMON-LAW PRACTICE.

The Second Edition, recently published.

THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACTS of 1852, 1854, and 1860. With an Introduction, explanatory of the recent Changes, Notes, Forms of Proceeding, and a copious Index. By J. C. F. S. DAY, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 1 vol. royal 12mo. Price 15s. cloth boards.

This Work comprises a carefully-revised Edition of Mr. Kerr's Procedure Acts of 1852 and 1854, the Cases that have been decided since the publication of these Works being added; the Bills of Exchange Act of 1855, and the Decisions upon it; those portions of the Interpleader Act and Mercantile Law Amendment Act which relate to the Procedure thereon in Court or at Chambers, and all the New Rules: thus constituting a complete Practice of the Superior Courts of Common Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NICOL'S BANKRUPTCY ACTS.

THE BANKRUPTCY ACTS, 1849, 1854, and 1861, Consolidated on the Arrangement of the Act of 1849; with the Decisions upon the last Act; and the General Orders of 1852, 1853, 1856, 1857, 1861, 1862, and 1863. With Forms and Precedents applicable to Proceedings in the Bankruptcy and County Courts, and a Tabular Index. By HENRY NICOL, Esq., Barrister at Law. The Second Edition, much enlarged. Royal 12mo., price 14s. cloth.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

This day is published, in demy 12mo., 1016 pp., price 17. 12s. cloth,
ROGERS on ELECTIONS, ELECTION COMMITTEES, and REGISTRATION. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Tenth Edition. With the new Registration Statute, and all the Election and Registration Cases to the present time. By F. S. P. WOLFERSTAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SOLICITORS' JOURNAL and WEEKLY REPORTER.—The NEW VOLUMES, X and XIV, commence NOVEMBER 4.—Annual Subscriptions, JOURNAL, 26s., Town; 28s., Country; with the WEEKLY REPORTER, 52s., post-free to the Colonies, when paid in advance.
Office, 59, Carey-street, W. C.

LAW FIRE INSURANCE SOCIETY.

Offices—Chancery-lane, London.
Subscribed Capital, £5,000,000.

TRUSTEES.

The Right Hon. Lord Chelmsford.
The Right Hon. Lord Truro.
The Right Hon. the Lord Chief Baron.
The Right Hon. the Lord Justice Sir J. L. Knight Bruce.
The Right Hon. the Lord Justice Sir G. J. Turner.
The Right Hon. John Robert Mowbray, M.P.
William Brougham, Esq.

Insurances expiring at Michaelmas should be renewed within fifteen days thereafter, at the Offices of the Society, or with any of its Agents throughout the country.

The full and immediate benefit of the reduction of duty to 1s. 6d. per cent. will be given to the insured.

This Society holds itself responsible, under its Fire Policy, for any damage done by explosion of gas.

EDWARD BLAKE SEAL, Secretary.

No. 560, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

SMITH'S MERCANTILE LAW.

In royal 8vo., price 17. 10s. cloth boards.

A COMPENDIUM OF MERCANTILE LAW.

By J. W. SMITH, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law. Seventh Edition. By G. M. DOWDESWELL, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law.

London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn; H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; and W. Maxwell, 22, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.

68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q.C.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.

Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office. C. B. CLABON, Sec.

THE GUARDIAN FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

ESTABLISHED 1821.

No. 11, Lombard-street, London, E. C.

REDUCTION OF FIRE INSURANCE DUTY.

SUBSCRIBED CAPITAL TWO MILLIONS.

Total Invested Funds upwards of £2,750,000

Total Income upwards of 320,000

Notice is hereby given, that FIRE POLICIES which expire at Michaelmas, must be renewed within fifteen days at this Office, or with the Company's Agents throughout the Kingdom, otherwise they become void.

All Insurances now have the benefit of the Reduced Duty of 1s. 6d. per cent.

For Prospectus and other information apply to the Company's Agents, or to T. TALLEMACH, Secretary.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS at

PARTRIDGE & COZENS,

WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS IN PARCHMENT.

192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 20s.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bonâ fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual RETAIL charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.

Draft Paper, 6s., 7s., 7s. 9d., and 9s. per ream.
Brief Paper, 13s. 6d., 16s., and 18s. 6d. per ream.
Poolsap Paper, 10s. 6d., 13s. 6d., and 17s. 6d. per ream.
Cream Laid Note, 3s., 4s., and 5s. per ream.
Large Cream Laid Note, 4s., 6s., and 7s. 6d. per ream.
Large Blue Note, 3s., 4s., and 6s. per ream.
Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. per 1000.
Poolsap Official Envelopes, 1s. 6d. per 100, or 13s. 6d. per 1000.
Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, Pencers, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25s.; Good Stand for ditto with two Drawers, 17s.

Parchment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1s. 6d. each, or 17s. per dozen.

Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1s. 4d. each, or 15s. per dozen.

Records or Memorials, Ruled, 8s. per dozen, or 22s. 6d. per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inkstand Postage Scales; Writing-cases; Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post-free.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

L L

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	367
Infringement of Patent by User	368
County Court Orders and Forms in Equity	369
Judicial Statistics, 1884—Civil Side	377

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCH, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

ROLLS COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Colby v. Gadsden.—(Vendor and purchaser—Specific performance—Waiver of contract)	760
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By T. F. MORSE, Barrister at Law.

Langdon v. Blake.—(Intestacy—Voluntary settlement—Trust for education, &c. until twenty-five—Costs)	762
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Doswell v. Reece.—(Judgment—Docket—Bill for foreclosure or sale—Puisne mortgages—1 & 2 Vict. c. 110—2 & 3 Vict. c. 11)	764
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVSEY, Barrister at Law.

Reg. v. The Proprietors of the Bradford Navigation and Others.—(Nuisance—Exercise of statutory powers)	766
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

THE LAWS AFFECTING RAILWAYS, BROUGHT DOWN TO THE PRESENT TIME.

Now ready, in one thick vol. royal 8vo., price 11. 15s. cloth boards.

SIR W. HODGES'S PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW of RAILWAYS, RAILWAY COMPANIES, and RAILWAY INVESTMENTS. With an Appendix of Statutes, Forms, &c. The Fourth Edition. By CHARLES MANLEY SMITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple and Midland Circuit, Barrister at Law.

* The great and increasing interest in everything relating to Railways now manifested by the public, have created such a demand for this valuable work, that the Publisher has been induced to have a new Edition of it prepared. This Edition comprises the important Statutes passed in the Session of 1884, as well as the Standing Orders for the Session of 1885, in addition to the numerous Decisions of the Courts, both of Law and Equity, since the last Edition was published, and such of the Rules of the London Stock Exchange as are applicable to Railways, as amended up to 1884. The task of preparing and conducting through the press this new Edition has been a really arduous one; but no pains have been spared by the learned Editor (whose work on the Law of Master and Servant is well known, not only in Westminster Hall, but also in Ireland, Scotland, and America), to make the work complete; and the Publisher believes that he can with confidence recommend it to all persons interested in Railways, especially Directors, Secretaries, and shareholders, as the most complete work on Railway Law yet offered to the public.

The English and Irish Railway Clearing Acts have also been added to this Edition.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

PRACTICE OF THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL.

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 16s. cloth boards.

THE PRACTICE OF THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE of Her Majesty's most Honourable PRIVY COUNCIL. By WILLIAM MACPHERSON, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law, Author of "The Procedure of the Civil Courts of British India." H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE DECISIONS of the RIGHT HON. LORD EVERSLEY.

The Second Edition, price 12s.

THE DECISIONS of the Right Honourable Lord EVERSLEY, late Speaker of the House of Commons, on Points of Order, Rules of Debate, and the General Practice of the House. The Second Edition, revised, corrected, and continued to the present time. By the Hon. ROBERT BOURKE, of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

CHITTY'S (JUN.) LAW OF CONTRACTS, BY RUSSELL.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 11. 12s.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW of CONTRACTS, and upon the Defences to Actions thereon. By JOSEPH CHITTY, Jun., Esq. The Sixth Edition. By JOHN A. RUSSELL, LL.B., of Gray's-inn, Barrister at Law, and Professor of English Law in University College, London.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

SIR JOHN BARNARD BYLES ON BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

The Eighth Edition, price 11. 2s. cloth boards.

A TREATISE on the LAW of BILLS of EXCHANGE, PROMISSORY NOTES, BANK NOTES, and CHECKS. By Sir JOHN BARNARD BYLES, Queen's Sergeant (now one of the Judges of her Majesty's Court of Common Pleas). The Eighth Edition, with Notes from the Fourth American Edition.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By T. F. MORSE, Barrister at Law.

Langdon v. Blake.—(Intestacy—Voluntary settlement—Trust for education, &c. until twenty-five—Costs)	762
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Doswell v. Reece.—(Judgment—Docket—Bill for foreclosure or sale—Puisne mortgages—1 & 2 Vict. c. 110—2 & 3 Vict. c. 11)	764
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVSEY, Barrister at Law.

Reg. v. The Proprietors of the Bradford Navigation and Others.—(Nuisance—Exercise of statutory powers)	766
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

ALL THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACTS, AND ALL THE ACTS AND RULES RELATING TO TRIALS OF ISSUES OF FACT.

In 12mo., price 10s. 6d. cloth.

THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACTS of 1852, 1854, and 1860. With Notes, and the Forms and Rules. To which are prefixed or appended all the Acts (or Portions of Acts) relating to Common-law Procedure, or the Trial of Issues of Fact in the Courts of Common Law, Chancery, or Probate, with the Rules of each Court respectively. Adapted to the use of Practitioners in all the Courts, and also to the use of Students. By W. F. FINLASON, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law, Editor of "The Common-law Procedure Acts, 1852 and 1854."

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 12mo., price 7s. cloth.

A BRIEF AND PRACTICAL EXPOSITION of the LAW of CHARITABLE TRUSTS, with special Reference to the Jurisdiction of the Commissioners of Charities: containing also all the Charitable Trusts Acts. With Notes, and the Rules, Minutes, and Orders of the Court of Chancery and the Commissioners of Charities. By W. F. FINLASON, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law, Editor of "The Charitable Trusts Acts of 1853 and 1855."

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SHIPPING LAW.

In 8vo., price 20s. cloth, lettered.

THE SHIPPING LAW MANUAL: a concise Treatise on the Law governing the Interests of Shipowners, Merchants, Masters, Seamen, and other Persons connected with British Ships. Together with the Acts of Parliament, Forms, and Precedents relating to the subject. Being especially intended for popular use in Seaport Towns. By W. T. GREENHOW, of the Middle Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law.

"The 'Shipping Law Manual' by Mr. W. T. Greenhow, brings into a popular shape, and to the latest date, the entire body of legal regulations affecting the shipping trade of the country alike in relation to owners, merchants, masters, and seamen, and is especially adapted for ordinary use by all persons connected with the business of seaport towns."—Times, Jan. 31, 1883.

"The object of the author of this book is to popularise the Law of Merchant Shipping, and to compress within the compass of a single volume all that is necessary to be known by those directly interested in British navigation. It was no easy task to condense and arrange this mass of legislation, so as to make it intelligible to the general reader. But Mr. Greenhow has achieved it, and placed within reach of every one connected with shipping a valuable compendium of the law relating to that branch of industry."—Shipping and Mercantile Gazette.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

GREENWOOD'S CONVEYANCING.

In 8vo., price 15s. cloth.

A MANUAL of the PRACTICE of CONVEYANCING, shewing the present Practice relating to the daily routine of Conveyancing in Solicitors' Offices. To which are added, Concise Common Forms and Precedents in Conveyancing, Conditions of Sale, Conveyances, and all other Assurances in constant use. Third Edition, revised and considerably enlarged. By G. W. GREENWOOD, Solicitor, and HENRY HORWOOD.

London: Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, SEPTEMBER 30, 1868.

WE did not meet one of the county court judges in Switzerland. They were all, we presume, at home, or secluded in some quiet Welsh valley, imbibing the elements of equity. By a merciful dispensation, the Orders and Rules for regulating their equity practice have been kept back until they have had time to gain some notion of what they are to practise.

It will be remembered that the stat. 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99, gives to the county courts concurrent jurisdiction with the Court of Chancery in the following matters, and in those only:—

1. Suits by creditors, legatees, devisees, heirs, or next of kin in respect of an estate real, personal, or mixed, not exceeding 500*l.* in value.
2. Suits for the execution of trusts affecting an estate or fund not exceeding 500*l.* in value.
3. Suits to foreclose, redeem, or enforce a mortgage, charge, or lien for a sum not exceeding 500*l.*
4. Suits for enforcing or setting aside a contract for the sale of property not exceeding 500*l.* in value.
5. Proceedings under the Trustee Act, or the Trustees Relief Acts, in respect of an estate or fund not exceeding 500*l.* in value.
6. Proceedings relating to the advancement or maintenance of an infant, whose property does not exceed 500*l.* in value.
7. Suits for dissolving or winding up a partnership, the whole property, stock, and credits of which do not exceed 500*l.* in value.
8. The granting of relief, by way of injunction, in any of the above matters.

The jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery is not excluded, and the suitor's choice is left unfettered; but if he elect to proceed in a county court, the act lays down rules for ascertaining the particular court he must resort to.

The Orders and Rules have been framed by Messrs. J. B. Dasent, D. D. Heath, J. Worledge, R. A. Kettle, and W. Furner, the county court judges appointed for the purpose, and have been approved by the Lord Chancellor. They are brief and clear.

The principal provisions are as follows:—

The equivalent to a suit in Chancery is to be called a plaint in equity, and forms of plaints in the several matters to which the act extends are given, being, in fact, nearly identical with the common form of bills now used in Chancery practice.

The plaint may be filed by a plaintiff in person or by his attorney. It is not required to be printed, but as many copies as there are defendants to be brought before the Court, must be delivered to the registrar.

The defendants are to be brought before the Court by summons, to be served by the bailiff within seven days, or in the case of a defendant out of the jurisdiction, within such time, and in such manner, as the Court shall direct.

The summons is to be returnable not less than one month, nor more than three months, after the filing of the plaint.

If the defendant, before the return day of the summons, signs an admission of the truth of the allegations in the plaint, and submits to the judgment of the Court, the plaintiff can only claim the costs then already incurred, and the further costs of attending and obtaining the decree or order to be made on such admission.

The defendant may, within eight days after the service of the summons, by writing, disclaim any interest, or deny any statement in the plaint, or raise any question of law on the statements in the plaint, without admitting the truth thereof, or aver new matter. With reference to this period of eight days, it is to be observed, that the Court has, under the 17th rule of the 28th Order, a general power to enlarge or abridge the prescribed term for taking any step.

The defendant may proceed in person, or by attorney.

The 3rd Order contains rules as to evidence, the admission and production of documents. Witnesses are in general to be examined orally, but affidavits may be used, upon notice, if not objected to; and, by order of the Court, witnesses within the jurisdiction of another court may be examined by the registrar of such other court.

It is unnecessary to state the effect of the provisions with respect to the hearing and decree. When the intervention of a conveyancing counsel is required, the Court names the counsel.

In taking accounts and making inquiries, the registrar performs the duties, and has the powers of a chief clerk.

Creditors, after advertisement, are to send in their claims, and any securities held by them, but are not required to attend or prove, unless served with notice so to do; and provision is made for admitting claims after the appointed time.

Provisions are made with respect to absent parties; the registrar's certificate; final decree; revivor and supplement; proceedings under the fifth, sixth, and eighth heads of jurisdiction above mentioned; ex parte applications; amendments; affidavits; rehearing; and enforcement of decrees and orders, which need not be abstracted here.

The 17th Order relates to funds in court. Money ordered to be paid into court is to be received by the treasurer, who is to give a receipt for it; and stock, shares, and other securities, directed to be received in court, are to be transferred into the names of the registrar and treasurer. Investments in Consols may be ordered in the names of the treasurer and registrar, either alone or jointly, with the name of the person immediately entitled to the interest of the fund. Sums under 30*l.* may be invested in the Post-office Savings Bank.

Provision is made for a married woman's equity to a settlement, out of a fund exceeding 200*l.* or 10*l.* per annum.

The 18th Order provides for the transfer of the proceedings to the Court of Chancery, when the value of the subject-matter appears to exceed the prescribed limit.

The 19th Order regulates appeals. Notice of appeal is not to operate as a stay of proceedings, unless the judge from or the judge to whom the appeal is made shall so direct. The case for the appeal is to be prepared by the appellant, and settled by the judge.

The 20th and subsequent Orders relate to the duties of the registrar, of the high bailiff, and of receiver, and to minor points of practice.

The Rules appear to have been judiciously framed; and, so far as regards procedure, there is no reason to suppose that any difficulty will arise in respect of the new jurisdiction, provided the registrars are strict in enforcing the observance of the Rules, and courteous and considerate in explaining them to the suitors. But it is obvious that a suit in equity is a very different matter from a plaint to recover a debt; and in every case where a plaintiff or defendant thinks fit to dispense with the service of a solicitor, the registrar will almost of necessity have to perform the duties of a solicitor, or the proceedings will come to a dead lock; and we shall not be surprised, if in a short time it is found necessary to appoint a court solicitor, answering to the pauper's solicitor in bankruptcy, to advise and act for those suitors who have no other adviser. For though, in the case of a plaint for a debt or damages, it concerns no one but the party himself, whether he conducts the proceeding in a proper manner or not, it may be far otherwise in a matter of equitable jurisdiction, the due prosecution of which, when once it has been brought into court, may be as important to the defendant as to the plaintiff.

We have already pointed out, and need not now enlarge upon, the most important evil which will attend the new jurisdiction, by reason of the incompetence of the judges, and the absence of any efficient control from the Bar—we mean the want of uniformity of decisions, and the consequent impossibility of anticipating the decision of the Court upon any disputed point of law or construction. This is an evil necessarily incident to every jurisdiction limited in amount, and committed to many hands. It is an evil which, in the case of the county courts, has already been much and justly complained of, and which, when they undertake the solution of the many difficult and delicate questions involved in the new equitable jurisdiction, may be expected to increase tenfold. We fear it will be long before the only remedy is recognised and applied.

LEGAL APPOINTMENTS.—The Lord Chancellor has appointed Mr. George Lake Russell, of the equity bar, to be judge of the Bloomsbury County Court of Middlesex, in the place of Mr. D. D. Heath, resigned. The Right Hon. Sir William Erle, Knt., Lord Chief Justice of her Majesty's Court of Common Pleas, at Westminster, has appointed John William Phillips, of the town of Haverfordwest, Gent., to be one of the Perpetual Commissioners for taking the acknowledgments of deeds to be executed by married women, in and for the town and county of the town of Haverfordwest, also in and for the county of Pembroke.

SUDDEN DEATH.—On Tuesday Henry Tennant, Esq., of 2, Blomfield-crescent, Upper Westbourne-place, was found on his couch quite dead. He was seventy years of age, and a Bench of Gray's Inn.

INFRINGEMENT OF PATENT BY USER.

THE grant in letters-patent for an invention is, that the grantee, "his executors, administrators, and assigns, and every of them, by himself and themselves, or by his or their deputy or deputies, servants, or agents, or such others as he the said —, his executors, administrators, or assigns, shall at any time agree with, and no others, from time to time, and at all times hereafter, during the term of years herein expressed, shall and lawfully may make, use, exercise, and vend his said invention within our United Kingdom, &c., in such manner as to him the said —, his executors, administrators, and assigns, shall in their or his discretion seem meet; and that he the said —, his executors, administrators, and assigns, shall and lawfully may have and enjoy the whole profit, benefit, commodity, and advantage from time to time coming, growing, accruing, and arising by reason of the said invention, for and during the term of years herein mentioned."

The validity of this grant depends upon the exception in the Statute of Monopolies, 21 Jac. 1, c. 3, of "letters-patent and grants of privileges for the term of fourteen years or under, hereafter to be made, of the sole working and making of any manner of new manufactures within this realm, to the true and first inventor and inventors of such manufactures, which others, at the time of making such letters-patents and grants, shall not use, so as also they be not contrary to the law, nor mischievous to the State, by raising prices of commodities at home, or hurt of trade, or generally inconvenient."

In Minter v. Williams (4 Ad. & El. 251) the plaintiff, being entitled under letters-patent to the exclusive right to "make, use, exercise, and vend" his invention of an improved chair, brought an action against the defendant, alleging in his declaration that the defendant, without the plaintiff's license, exposed to sale articles in imitation of his invention. It was held, on demurrer, that the declaration was bad, on the ground that exposing to sale was not vending, and that the use of the word "vending" in the grant prevented the words "using and exercising" from including an attempt to vend.

In Caldwell v. Vanderlissingen (9 Hare, 415) the Court granted an injunction to restrain certain subjects of the King of Holland from using within British waters a screw propeller made in Holland according to the plaintiff's patent, which propeller was attached to a ship built and fitted up in Holland by subjects of that kingdom, wholly owned by Dutch subjects, and used in commerce between Holland and England. Sir G. J. Turner, V. C., seemed to have laid some stress on the difference between using an invention for the purposes of trade, and using it for any other purpose. It seems that the decision was affirmed by Lord Truro, but the decision is not reported.

In Betts v. Neilson (13 Weekly Rep. 805, 1028) Sir W. P. Wood, V. C., granted an interlocutory injunction to restrain the defendant from uttering or using in England any capsules (metallic envelopes for the mouths of corked bottles) made according to the plaintiff's patent, the case being that the defendant brought into England, for exportation abroad, bottles with their contents protected by the capsules in question, which bottles had been filled, corked, and covered with the capsules in Scotland, to which country the plaintiff's letters-patent did not extend. On appeal, the injunction was continued, the plaintiff undertaking to abide by any order of the Court as to damages, and to use due diligence in conducting the case to a hearing. Sir J. L. Knight Bruce, L. J., said, "It appears to me that the capsules made according to this invention, though they came from Scotland, do rest for some time within England, and that such benefit as is derived from the invention is enjoyed by the owner of the liquid contained in the bottles in this country, during the time that they are here, although on their way to foreign parts, and not in such manner as to give immediate and practical benefit from the invention in this country. It appears to me that it is a benefit derived in this country from the invention. But I confess I do not come to that conclusion very willingly;" and he added, that but for Mr. Rolfe's and Sir Hugh Cairns' Acts, the course would have been to refrain from granting an injunction until the matter had been decided in an action.

We think that in both these cases the Court went very far beyond the limits of equitable jurisdiction. That in neither case would the plaintiff have succeeded at law seems to be clear, on principle, and on the authority of Minter v. Williams. The privilege granted by the letters-patent cannot extend beyond the scope of the exception in the Statute of Monopolies, for although in Caldwell v. Vanderliessen, the Vice-Chancellor remarked that the statute did not create, but controlled, the power of the Crown in granting of patents, and that "patentees, therefore, have always derived, and still derive, their rights, not from the statute, but from the grant of the Crown," it is too late at the present day to contend that the Crown has any prerogative to restrain the free action of the subject in favour of an inventor, beyond the limits of the exception in the Statute of Monopolies. Now, that exception only speaks of "the sole working or making of any manner of new manufactures within this realm." There is not a word about using the manufactured article, and it is only upon a liberal construction of the exception that the sale within the realm of an article manufactured abroad according to the protected invention, is held to be an infringement. It is an infringement, because it interferes with the monopoly of manufacture for the purpose of sale within the realm, which the statute allows. But the mere use within the realm of an article made abroad cannot be an infringement of a patent right here, because it is not either the working or the making of a manufacture. The use in manufacture of an article made abroad according to the invention, would be an infringement, because the article then is in the nature of a tool; and the Crown may lawfully, within the exception in the statute, grant the exclusive use in manufacture of the tool, as well as the exclusive right to manufacture the tool. Therefore, one may lawfully purchase abroad, and use within the realm, otherwise than in manufacture, a watch, a chair, or any other article made according to an invention for the use of which there is a patent right within the realm; and one may use such an article in trade, provided the article is not itself sold or used in manufacture. Thus, one may use for one's trade a carriage having a patent axle. So, it is conceived, the Dutchmen, who, in the case stated above, used the patent propeller in trade, did not thereby use any process of manufacture, or in any way infringe any rights of manufacture, within the realm. And in the second case, the passive use in England, for the purposes of trade abroad, of an invention applied in Scotland, was in no sense a manufacture of the invention here, or an interference with the plaintiff's exclusive right to manufacture.

The consequences of the doctrine involved in the cases on which we are commenting would be most inconvenient. It very rarely, perhaps never, happens, that the exclusive right to use an invention is exercised by the same person or firm both in England and on the continent. And if a patented article made in one country cannot be used in another, a foreigner visiting England, or an Englishman abroad, may be debarred from the use of half the equipments and articles of personal use that he carries with him.

Of course, we do not assert that a patented article may lawfully be made in this country for private use. The making of it, though not for profit, is a manufacture within the statute, and an injury to the patentee.

G. S.

COUNTY COURT ORDERS AND FORMS IN EQUITY.

WE, JOHN BURY DASENT, DOUGLAS DENON HEATH, JOHN WORLEDGE, RUPERT ALFRED KETTLE, and WILLIAM FURNER, being County Court Judges appointed to frame Rules and Orders for regulating the Practice of the Courts, and Forms of Proceedings therein, under the 32nd section of the 19 & 20 Vict. c. 108, have, under the powers vested in us by the 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99, framed the following Rules, Orders, and Forms, and we do hereby certify the same to the Lord Chancellor accordingly.

ORDER I.—SUITS.

Plaint and Summons.

1. All suits under the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, or 7th clauses of the 1st section of the act shall be commenced by filing a plaint in equity in the county court to which jurisdiction in the matter is given by the 10th section of the act.

2. Every plaint in equity shall state the name, address, and description of the plaintiff, and of the person intended to be brought before the court as defendant: and where any party sues or is sued in a representative character he shall be so described in the plaint; but this rule shall be subject to the 34th rule of the County Court Rules, 1857.

3. Every plaint in equity shall contain a concise statement of the grounds upon which the plaintiff seeks to obtain relief; and shall ask for the specific relief to which he conceives himself entitled, and also for general relief.

4. Where the plaint is filed by an attorney he shall indorse thereon his name or firm and place of business, and that the plaintiff sues by him as attorney; and where there is more than one plaintiff, and the plaint is not filed by an attorney, the plaintiff who actually files the same shall indorse thereon his name and address.

5. Plaints in equity may be in forms similar to those set out in the schedule to these Orders, with such variations as the nature and circumstances of each particular case may require.

6. The plaintiff or his attorney shall deliver at the office of the registrar the plaint, with as many copies thereof as there are persons to be brought before the court as defendants, and the registrar shall forthwith indorse on the plaint a memorandum of the day on which the same was received by him, and when such plaint shall be so indorsed it shall be taken for all purposes to have been duly filed on the date so indorsed thereon.

7. The registrar shall, on the filing of such plaint, make out a summons to the defendant, or to every defendant where there is more than one, to appear, and submit to the judgment of the court thereon.

8. The summons shall be in the form in the schedule, and be dated of the day on which the plaint was filed, and may be returnable at any court to be holden not less than one calendar month nor more than three calendar months from the filing thereof.

9. The summons, with a copy of the plaint annexed thereto, shall be issued by the registrar to the bailiff forthwith, who shall serve the same within seven days, and the service thereof shall be proved, in conformity with the present practice of the county courts; provided always, that the court may, upon facts duly verified by affidavit, allow substituted service where justice requires it.

10. Where a defendant shall be out of England, the judge, or in his absence the registrar, may, upon an affidavit of the fact, direct the service of the plaint and summons to be effected within such time and in such manner as the judge or registrar may think fit.

ORDER II.—SUITS.

Proceedings after Service.

1. Where any defendant desires to admit the truth of the allegations in the plaint, and to submit to the judgment of the court, he may, at any time before the return day of the original summons, in the presence of a registrar of a county court, or in the presence of one of his clerks, or of an attorney of one of the superior courts, sign an admission in the form contained in the schedule to these Orders; and the signature of the defendant thereto shall be verified by affidavit, unless signed in the presence of the registrar of the court in which the suit is, or of one of his clerks.

2. The admission shall be delivered to the registrar, together with a copy thereof for each of the plaintiffs, or, where the plaint is filed by an attorney, with a copy for such attorney only; and the registrar shall forthwith file the same, and transmit a copy by post to each plaintiff, or the attorney, as the case may be, and after the receipt of such copy the plaintiff shall be entitled to the costs then already incurred, and to the further costs of attending the court and obtaining the decree or order to be made upon such admission, but to no other costs.

3. The defendant may, within eight days after the service of the summons, by a statement in writing signed by him, disclaim any interest in the subject-matter of the suit, or admit or deny any of the statements in the plaint, or raise any question of law on such statements without admitting the truth thereof; or he may state concisely any new fact or document upon which he intends to rely as a defence at the hearing, or which he thinks advisable to bring to the notice of the court: provided always, that in exercising his discretion as to costs, the judge shall consider the fact of a defendant having or not having availed himself of the powers given by this rule.

4. The statement under the last foregoing rule shall be delivered to the registrar, together with a copy thereof for each of the plaintiffs, or where the plaint is filed by attorney, with a copy for such attorney only; and the registrar shall forthwith file the same, and transmit a copy by post to each plaintiff or the attorney, as the case may be.

5. Where the statement is filed by an attorney, he shall indorse thereon his name or firm and place of business, and that the defendant defends by him; and where it is not filed by an attorney, the defendant who actually files the same shall indorse thereon his name and address.

6. The plaintiff may at any time before setting down the cause for hearing, by notice in writing delivered at the office of the registrar, require the plaint to be dismissed as against all or any of the defendants, with costs, without prejudice to further proceedings or suits, and such notice shall operate as an order to dismiss accordingly; and the registrar shall forthwith file such notice, and forward a copy thereof by post or otherwise to each of the defendants.

ORDER III.—SUITS.

Evidence.

1. Except where otherwise provided by these Orders, the evidence of witnesses shall be taken vivâ voce, on oath, according to the present practice on the hearing of plaints.

2. Where a party desires to give in evidence any document, he may, not less than five days before the hearing, give notice to any other party in the cause who is competent to make admissions, requiring him to inspect and admit such document; and if such other party shall not within a reasonable time make such admission, any expense of proving the same at the hearing shall be paid by him, whatever be the result of the cause, unless the court shall otherwise order; and no costs of proving any document shall be allowed unless such notice be given, except in cases where, in the opinion of the registrar, the omission to give such notice has been a saving of expense.

3. Where a party desires to inspect any document in the possession or under the control of any other party, he may, five days before the hearing, give notice to such other party that he or his attorney desires to inspect the same at any place to be appointed by such other party; and if such other party shall not appoint a convenient place, or allow the party giving such notice, or his attorney, to inspect such document within three days after receiving such notice, the judge may adjourn the hearing, and make such order as to costs as he shall think fit.

4. Where a party requires the attendance of any other party, or of any witness, either to give evidence or to produce documents, he shall apply to the registrar to issue a summons requiring such other party or witness to attend the court or the registrar, as the case may be, or to attend and produce documents; and such summonses shall respectively be drawn up by the registrar, and be issued by him to the bailiff, who shall serve the same; and in every summons to produce documents the registrar shall insert a description of the documents required.

5. Where a party served with a summons under the last rule shall not at the hearing produce the documents required, the court may, upon admission or proof of the service of such summons within a reasonable time, and that such documents are in the possession of the party so served, and that they relate to the matter then pending before the court, make an order for their production by him, and the court may deal with them, when so produced, and with all costs occasioned by their non-production, as may appear just: provided that nothing herein shall prevent the court from receiving secondary evidence of any document of which notice to produce has been given.

6. Where any documents are produced to the court from proper custody, they shall be read without further proof, if they appear genuine, and if no objection be taken thereto; and if the admission of any document so produced be objected to, the judge may adjourn the hearing, and the party objecting shall pay the costs caused by such objection, in case the same shall afterwards be proved, unless the judge shall otherwise order.

7. Where a party desires to use at the hearing an affidavit by any particular witness, or an affidavit as to particular facts, he may, ten days before the hearing, give a notice, with a copy of such affidavit annexed, to the party against whom such affidavit is to be used; and unless such last-mentioned party shall within five days give notice to the other party that he objects to the use of such affidavit, he shall be taken to have consented to the use thereof.

8. Where it shall be necessary to examine a witness de bene esse, application upon affidavit shall be made to the judge to appoint an examiner for that purpose.

9. Upon the application of a party desirous to examine a witness residing out of the jurisdiction of the court, the judge may, if he thinks fit, appoint the registrar of the court within the district of which such witness resides to take the examination of such witness.

10. Where any witness is examined by a registrar, he shall be examined on oath, and the registrar shall transcribe the answers of such witness, and the deposition shall be subscribed by the witness and the registrar who shall have so examined him, and shall then be transmitted by post to the registrar of the court in which the suit or proceeding is pending.

11. The allowance to be made to witnesses for attendance either before the court or registrar shall in no case exceed the highest rate of the allowances mentioned in the scale in the schedule.

ORDER IV.—SUITS.

Hearing.

1. Upon the day on which the summons is returnable all parties shall come to the court prepared, so far as the nature of the case will admit, with evidence to enable the judge to try the whole matter of the suit upon the merits, and then to determine the same by a final decree, or to make such decretal order, or give such directions for adding parties to the suit, for making inquiries, taking accounts, realising assets, or doing any act which the judge may consider necessary to enable him to make a final decree upon a day to which the hearing may be adjourned.

2. A suit in equity shall be heard in open court, as plaints in the county court are now tried.

3. Affidavits and depositions used at the hearing shall be read as the evidence of the person by whom they are used.

4. Upon the hearing, the court may dismiss the suit, or grant the relief asked by the plaintiff, or any part thereof, or may grant any other relief consistent with the case made by the plaintiff, or make any order giving directions for, or with respect to, the prosecution of the suit, as the circumstances of the case may require, and also make such order as to costs as the court may think fit.

5. Where the court shall order any question of fact, or any question as to the amount of damages, to be tried by a jury, the court shall adjourn the hearing, and appoint a day for the trial of such question by a jury; and thereupon the practice shall be in all respects the same as that under the County Court Acts and rules now in force, in cases where either party has required a jury, including the power to direct a new trial when necessary.

6. Where the court shall order any question of fact, or any question as to the amount of damages, to be tried by a jury, the judge shall reduce the question into writing, and the same shall be called the "record for trial."

ORDER V.—SUITS.

Decretal Orders.

1. Where the court makes any decretal order, the registrar shall, as soon thereafter as conveniently may be, draw up, seal, and file such order.

2. Where a decretal order directs any deed to be prepared and executed, it shall state by what party the said deed shall be prepared, and to whom it shall be submitted for approval.

3. Where, upon the hearing, it appears to the court expedient that a receiver be appointed, such appointment shall be made by the decretal order, whether the same be asked as part of the relief in the plaintiff or not.

4. Where real property is ordered to be sold, the decretal order shall direct who shall have the conduct of the sale, and by whom the conditions and contracts of sale, and the abstract of title, shall be prepared. And where any conditions or contracts are ordered to be settled by a conveyancing counsel, it shall name the counsel to whom they are to be submitted.

5. Where a decretal order directs any personal property to be sold, the same shall be sold, under the superintendence of the high bailiff, by public auction, unless the court shall otherwise order.

6. Where any decretal order directs any accounts or inquiries to be taken or made, or any acts to be done, by the registrar, high bailiff, receiver, or parties, it shall name a day within which all such acts shall be done, and accounts and inquiries completed, and shall also name a day, not less than fourteen days after that day, on which the registrar shall certify the result of the accounts and inquiries, and what has been done under such decretal order, and on which the cause will be further heard, and, if practicable, a final decree made.

ORDER VI.—EXECUTION OF DECRETAL ORDERS.

1. Where a deed is ordered to be prepared, and the parties cannot agree upon the form thereof, the judge may, upon the application of either party, settle the same himself, or name a conveyancing counsel, by whom the same shall be settled, subject to the final approval of the judge.

2. Where a decretal order directs that any account be taken or inquiry made, such account shall be taken and inquiry made by the registrar, and he shall for that purpose have all the powers, and discharge all the duties, of a chief clerk of the Master of the Rolls, or a Vice-Chancellor in the Court of Chancery; and all parties prosecuting any such accounts or inquiries shall have the same power of summoning witnesses, including as witnesses any parties in the cause, and of examining them on such accounts or inquiries, and of compelling the production of documents, as they had on the original hearing; and all rules as to the summoning, swearing, and examining of witnesses, and the production of documents at the hearing, shall be applicable (as far as may be) to such summoning, swearing, examining, and production, on taking any such accounts, or prosecuting any such inquiries.

3. Where a decretal order directs accounts to be taken, any books of account in which the accounts required to be taken, or any of them, have been kept, shall, unless the judge shall otherwise direct, be taken as prima facie evidence of the truth of the matters therein contained, with liberty to the parties interested to take such objections thereto as they may be advised.

4. Every advertisement for creditors or other persons having any claim upon, or interest in, the distribution of any assets to be administered by the court, which shall be issued pursuant to any decretal order, shall direct every such creditor or other person, by a time, to be thereby limited, to send to the registrar his name and address, and the full particulars of his claim or interest, and a statement of his account, and the nature of the security, if any, held by him, and at the time of directing such advertisement a time shall be fixed for adjudicating on the claims.

5. No such creditor or other person need make any affidavit, or attend in support of his claim, unless he is served with a notice requiring him to do so, as hereinafter provided.

6. Every creditor shall produce or transmit to the registrar any security held by him, at such time as shall be specified in the advertisement for that purpose, being the time appointed for adjudicating on the claims; and every creditor shall, if required, by notice in writing to be given by the registrar, produce or transmit to the registrar all other deeds and documents necessary to substantiate his claim before the registrar at his office, at such time as shall be specified in such notice.

7. Every person claiming as heir-at-law, devisee, next of kin, or legatee shall, if required, by notice in writing to be given by the registrar, produce or transmit to the registrar any pedigree or proof mentioned in such notice within such time as shall be therein specified.

8. In case any creditor or other person shall neglect or refuse to comply with the last two preceding rules, he shall not be allowed any costs of proving his claim, unless the registrar shall otherwise direct.

9. At the time appointed for adjudication upon the debts or claims, the registrar shall take the evidence of the executor, administrator, or other accounting party upon such debts or claims, and may thereupon, in his discretion, allow any of such debts or claims without further proof, and may direct such investigation of all or any of the debts or claims not allowed, and require such further particulars, information, or evidence relating thereto as he may think fit, and may, if he so think fit, require any creditor or other person to attend and prove his claim, or any part thereof; and the adjudication on such claims as are not then allowed shall be adjourned to a time to be then fixed.

10. Notice of allowance shall be given by the registrar to every creditor or other person whose claim, or any part thereof, has been allowed, and notice shall also be given by him to every such creditor or other person as he shall think fit, to attend and prove his claim, or such part thereof as is not allowed, by a time to be named in such notice, not being less than seven days after such notice, and to attend at a time to be therein named, being the time to which the adjudication thereon shall have been adjourned; and in case any such creditor or other person shall not comply with such notice, his claim, or such part thereof as aforesaid, shall be disallowed.

11. Any such creditor or other person who has not before sent in the particulars of his claim, pursuant to the advertisement, may do so two days previous to any day to which the adjudication is adjourned.

12. If any claim be sent in after the time fixed by the advertisement (except as before provided in case of an adjournment), the registrar may, upon special application, entertain the same, upon such terms and conditions as to costs and otherwise as he thinks fit.

13. In taking any account directed by any decretal order, all just allowances shall be made, without any directions for that purpose in such order.

14. Where the registrar, high bailiff, receiver, or any party has, by any decretal order, been directed to do any act, for doing which it may be found necessary to have further directions, or an order of the court, the registrar shall apply to the judge for such direction or order, and upon such application the judge may give such direction or make such order as he may think fit, or may appoint a time to hear all parties, upon the application so made by the registrar; and if the judge shall make such appointment for hearing, the same shall operate as a stay of proceedings in the suit until the day so appointed, if he shall so direct.

ORDER VII.—SUITS.

Absent Parties.

1. Where any matter is referred to the registrar by a decretal order, he shall, as soon as conveniently may be, ascertain if there are any parties who, if the decretal order had been made in a suit pending in the Court of Chancery, ought, under the 42nd section of the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, to be served with a notice under rule 8 of such section.

2. Where it shall be necessary to serve any parties with the notice mentioned in the foregoing rule, the same shall be prepared by the registrar, and issued by him to the bailiff, who shall serve the same, and upon such notice the party served therewith may attend the proceedings under the decretal order.

3. Any party who shall be served with a notice under the last foregoing rule, may apply to the court at the next sitting, or, by leave of the judge at any subsequent sitting, to vary or add to the decretal order.

ORDER VIII.—SUITS.

Registrar's Certificate.

1. Where a registrar has been ordered to certify to the court upon any matter, he shall present to the court a certificate in writing signed by him.

2. The registrar shall prepare his certificate seven days before the day appointed for presenting the same, and shall give notice to all parties to the suit that the same lies in his office for the inspection of any party interested therein or affected thereby; and he shall deliver a copy thereof to any person requiring the same, upon payment of the costs of such copy.

3. Where any party interested in, or affected by, the registrar's certificate, desires to have the same varied, he shall apply by himself, his counsel or attorney, at the court on the day appointed for presenting the same, and the judge shall thereupon hear and determine such application, and shall confirm or vary the certificate, and make such further order thereupon as he may think fit.

4. If no application shall be made to vary the certificate, it shall be taken as confirmed, unless the judge shall otherwise order.

ORDER IX.—SUITS.

Final Decree.

1. When the court has determined all the questions raised between the parties, the registrar shall, as soon thereafter as conveniently may be, draw up a final decree in accordance with the judgment of the court, and seal and file the same.

ORDER X.—SUITS.

Revivor and Supplement.

1. Upon any suit becoming abated by death, marriage, or otherwise, or defective in consequence of any change or transmission of interest or liability, the judge shall, on application of any person having a right so to apply, make an order reviving the said suit, or such supplementary decree or order as may have become necessary in consequence of any such matters as aforesaid.

2. An order under the foregoing rule shall be drawn up by the registrar, and sealed with the seal of the court, and issued to the bailiff, who shall serve the same upon such person or persons as the court shall direct.

3. After service of such order, the suit shall, as between the party by whom the order has been obtained and the party on whom it has been served, be in the same plight and condition as it was in before it had become abated or defective as aforesaid; provided that the person so served may move the court at the next sitting, or, by leave of the judge at any subsequent sitting, to discharge such order, and such motion shall be made upon affidavit of the facts relied upon to support the same.

ORDER XI.—PROCEEDINGS UNDER THE 5TH, 6TH, AND 8TH CLAUSES OF THE 1ST SECTION.

1. All proceedings under the 5th and 6th clauses of the 1st section of the act shall be by petition, and such petition need not shew title except so far as is provided by the rules in this Order.

2. Where a trustee petitions under the said 5th clause for an order in any matter relating to the trust, he shall file his petition at the office of the registrar, and leave thereat as many copies thereof as there are persons beneficially interested in the due execution of the trust, and he shall state in such petition his own name, address, and description, and also the names, addresses, and descriptions of the persons beneficially interested, so far as he is able, and the nature of the trust, and how created, the property or money to which the same relates, and the substance of the order which he seeks to obtain.

3. Where any guardian or trustee of any infant petitions for an order relating to the maintenance or advancement of such infant, he shall file his petition at the office of the registrar, and where any person, as next friend of an infant, petitions on behalf of such infant for an order upon or against the guardian or trustee of such infant, he shall file his petition at the office of the registrar, and leave thereat as many copies thereof as there are guardians or trustees. And in such petition shall be stated the names, addresses, and descriptions of the petitioner, and of all the persons to whom such order is intended to relate, and shall also state the nature of the guardianship or trust, and how created, of the property to which the trust relates, and the substance of the order which the petitioner seeks to obtain.

4. Where any person intends to apply under the 8th clause of the 1st section of the act, for an order in the nature of an injunction (except as is provided in Order XII for urgent cases), he shall deliver at the office of the registrar a notice of his intention to apply for the same, together with as many copies thereof as there are persons upon or against whom such order is intended to be obtained, and he shall state in such notice his own name, address, and description, and, so far as he can, the names, addresses, and descriptions of all such persons, and also the substance of the order which the petitioner seeks to obtain.

5. Under this Order petitions shall be filed and notices shall be delivered at the office of the registrar seven days before the sitting of the court at which the petition is to be heard or application made.

6. The registrar, upon receiving any such petition or notice and the copies thereof, shall issue the copies under the seal of the court to the bailiff for service upon the respective persons to whom they are addressed, together with a notice, signed by himself, and under the seal of the court, informing them of the day and hour on which the petition or application will be heard, and that if they do not attend, either in person or by their attorneys, such order will be made and proceedings taken as the judge may think just and expedient.

7. The bailiff of the court shall, four days at least before the hearing, serve all copies of such petitions and notices.

8. Upon the hearing of any petition or application under this Order, unless the judge shall otherwise direct, the facts relied upon in support of or in opposition to such petition or application shall be proved by affidavit.

9. Where the judge makes an order upon such petition or application, the registrar shall, as soon thereafter as conveniently may be, draw up, seal, and file such order.

10. The preceding Orders relating to suits shall, in all cases where they are applicable, be construed as extending to proceedings under this Order.

ORDER XII.—SUITS AND PROCEEDINGS.Ex parte Applications.

1. Wherever in any suit or proceeding it shall become necessary to secure the possession of any property, or to obtain security from any person for any moneys in his possession, or to enforce the deposit or the payment into court thereof pending litigation, or the immediate sale of any goods or chattels, and the deposit or payment into court of the purchase money thereof, or to obtain an order in the nature of an injunction, any party may apply ex parte to the judge, either in or out of court, upon affidavits setting forth the facts rendering such order immediately necessary, and upon such application the judge may either make an order absolute in the first instance, or make an order to be absolute at any time to be ordered by him, unless cause be shewn to the contrary, or may make such other order or give such directions in the matter as the judge may think fit, and may order immediate execution.

2. The draft of all orders under the foregoing rule shall be prepared beforehand by the registrar of the court in which such suit or proceeding is pending, and shall be presented by the party when he makes such application to the judge to settle and sign.

3. The draft so signed shall be transmitted by the applicant to the registrar of the court in which the suit or proceeding is pending, who shall draw up the order in conformity therewith, and seal and file the same, and issue a copy thereof, under the seal of the court, to the bailiff for service, and execution shall be issued thereon, as by the order is directed.

ORDER XIII.—SUITS AND PROCEEDINGS.Amendments.

1. The judge may, at or during the hearing, and before a final decree or order made in any suit or proceeding under the act, exercise all powers of amendment mentioned in the 57th section of the stat. 19 & 20 Vict. c. 108, so far as the same may be applicable to suits and proceedings in equity, and also all the powers and authorities of a judge of the High Court of Chancery; and the County Court Rules, 1857, which are numbered respectively 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, and 100, shall apply, so far as they are applicable, to all suits and proceedings under this act.

ORDER XIV.—SUITS AND PROCEEDINGS.Affidavits.

1. All affidavits shall be expressed in the first person of the deponent.

2. All affidavits shall state the deponent's age, occupation, quality, and place of residence, and also what facts or circumstances deposed to are within deponent's own knowledge, and his means of knowledge, and what facts or circumstances deposed to are known to, or believed by him, by reason of information derived from other sources than his own knowledge, and what such sources are.

3. The costs of affidavits not in conformity with the last two preceding rules shall be disallowed on taxation, unless the court shall otherwise direct.

4. Before any affidavit is used, it shall be filed in the office of the registrar.

5. No affidavit in which there is any knife erasure, or which is blotted so as to obliterate any word, or which is illegibly written, or so altered as to cause it to be illegible, nor any affidavit in which there is any interlineation, unless the person before whom the same is sworn shall have duly authenticated such interlineation with his initials, in such manner as to shew that such interlineation was made before it was sworn, shall be filed or used in any suit or proceeding.

ORDER XV.—SUITS AND PROCEEDINGS.

Rehearing.

1. No decree or order once made shall be reheard, unless in any case in which the judge, on special grounds, shall think such rehearing necessary, and then only on such terms as the judge may think just.

ORDER XVI.—SUITS AND PROCEEDINGS.

Enforcement of Decrees and Orders.

1. On the application of the party entitled to the benefit of the decree or order, the registrar shall issue to the bailiff a copy of such decree or order, under the seal of the court, with a notice to the party to be bound indorsed thereon; and the bailiff shall forthwith serve the same upon the party to whom such notice is addressed.

2. No process shall issue to enforce any decree or order, unless by leave of the judge, until three days after a copy thereof, under the seal of the court, shall have been served upon the party to be bound thereby.

3. Where any decree or order is made for the payment of money into court, or by one party to another, the registrar shall, after the expiration of the time, if any, appointed by the decree or order for the payment thereof, and after the expiration of the time limited by this order, upon application by the person having the conduct of the suit, or by the payee, issue to the bailiff of the court a writ of fieri facias as a warrant of execution, as provided by sect. 94 of the 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95.

4. Where, by a decree or order made in any suit or proceeding for the delivery up to any person of lands or tenements, goods or chattels, either as owner thereof, or to be sold, or to be held in possession until an order is made as to the disposition thereof, the registrar shall, upon the application of the person entitled to such possession, issue to the bailiff either a warrant of possession, or warrant of assistance, as the case may require.

ORDER XVII.—FUNDS IN COURT.

1. All moneys ordered to be paid into court shall be received by the registrar, and the duties of the registrar and the treasurer with respect to such moneys shall be in all respects the same as if the moneys received under the act had been received under the authority of the County Court Acts now in force; and all instructions issued, or to be issued, by the Lords Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, shall apply to moneys received under the act, unless therein otherwise directed.

2. Where money is directed to be paid into court, the party directed shall attend and pay the same into the office of the registrar, and obtain a receipt for the amount; and in case of stock, shares, or other securities, a transfer shall be made into the names of the registrar and treasurer of the court, less the broker's account and charges, and the certificate of transfer, together with such accounts, shall be filed in the office of the registrar, who, with the treasurer, shall hold such moneys, stocks, shares, or securities, in trust to attend the order of the court.

3. Where any party to a suit or proceeding is desirous of having any fund in court in which he is interested, or any part thereof, invested, the court may at any time order the investment thereof; and such funds may be invested in the purchase of 3½ per Cent. Consolidated Annuities, in the names of the treasurer and registrar of the court for the time being, with or without the name of the person (if any) found or declared by the court to be immediately entitled to the interest of the fund, and the court may further order that the person (if any) so entitled shall from time to time receive the dividends thereof.

4. Where the investment is in the names of the treasurer and registrar alone, the registrar shall from time to time receive the dividends of all the funds so standing in their names, and shall reinvest the dividend in the same names, except where and so far as the court shall otherwise direct, and shall apportion the amount so reinvested in his books to the right accounts.

5. Where the sum to be invested in any case in the same interest does not exceed 30£ in one year, the same may, if the judge think fit, be deposited in the Post-office Savings Bank, in the name of the registrar for the time being, in trust for the parties interested therein, and in such case the person (if any) entitled to the interest on such sum shall be allowed to receive the annual addition made to the same by way of interest, on such certificate or authority from the registrar as the Postmaster-General may from time to time require.

6. Where any order has been made upon any person to pay to the Accountant-General in Chancery any sum of money under sect. 5 of the act, such order shall be drawn up by the registrar and issued to the bailiff of the court, by whom the same shall be served personally upon the person ordered to make the payment.

7. Where default shall be made in the production of the certificate of the Accountant-General, the registrar shall give notice in writing to the judge of the fact of such default, and the judge may thereupon direct a warrant of execution to issue in accordance with sect. 5 of the act.

8. Where any married woman is interested in any principal money, stocks, shares, or securities, exceeding in value 200£, or 10£ in annual payments, she shall be examined by the judge, apart from her husband, to ascertain whether the same shall be paid to him or made the subject-matter of a settlement; but if she be under age, the court shall order a proper settlement to be made.

ORDER XVIII.—TRANSFER OF PROCEEDINGS TO COURT OF CHANCERY.

1. If during the progress of any inquiry under order of the court it shall be made to appear that the subject-matter of the suit or proceeding exceeds the amount to which the jurisdiction of the court is limited, the registrar may proceed with the particular account or inquiry which is then before him, unless he thinks it inexpedient so to do; but he shall at the next sitting of the court present a certificate of the state of the suit and proceedings, and if the judge shall be of opinion that such excess exists, he shall make an order for the transfer of the suit or matter to the Court of Chancery; and the registrar shall make and file with the record a copy of such certificate and order, and shall transmit the original, together with the order of the judge thereon, under the seal of the court, by post or otherwise, to the office of the Clerk of Records and Writs in Chancery, or to such other office or officer as the Lord Chancellor may by General Order direct, and shall also send notice, by post or otherwise, of the fact to all parties and persons entitled to be served with a copy of the decree.

ORDER XIX.—APPEAL.

1. Where any party desires to appeal, under sect. 18 of the act, against the determination or direction of a judge of a county court, such appeal shall be had in accordance with the provisions of sect. 15 of the 13 & 14 Vict. c. 61, upon a case to be stated for the opinion of the Vice-Chancellor appointed in that behalf by the Lord Chancellor.

2. The notice of appeal shall be in writing, and shall be signed by the appellant, his counsel or attorney, and such notice shall be sent, together with the statement of the grounds, by post or otherwise, to the registrar, as well as to the successful party.

3. The pendency of an appeal shall not operate as a stay of proceedings, but the Vice-Chancellor to whom such appeal is made, or the judge from whose decree or order the appeal is made, may stay the proceedings pending the appeal, on such terms as to giving security or otherwise as to such Vice-Chancellor or judge may seem fit.

4. The appellant shall prepare the case for appeal, and all cases on appeal shall, unless the judge shall otherwise order, be presented to him for signature at the court held next after the parties shall have agreed upon the same; and if the judge approves thereof, it shall be signed by him, and sealed with the seal of the court; but where the judge does not approve of the case submitted to him, both parties shall be summoned to attend him where and when the judge shall appoint; and at the place and time so appointed both parties shall be heard as to the form of the case, and the judge shall finally settle and sign the same, and it shall then be sealed by the registrar.

5. Where the parties do not agree upon the form of the case to be stated, the appellant shall lodge with the registrar the draft case prepared by him, and the registrar shall give notice to the parties that the same has been so lodged, and will, on a day to be named in the notice, be presented to the judge for his signature, and on such day the parties may appear before the judge, who shall determine the form of the case, and finally settle and sign the same, and it shall then be sealed by the registrar.

6. When the case shall be so signed and sealed, a copy thereof shall be deposited with the registrar, and another sent by post or otherwise by the appellant to the successful party within three clear days next after the time of signing and sealing the same; and if the appellant do not comply with this rule, the successful party may proceed upon the decree or order, unless the judge shall otherwise direct.

7. The appellant shall, within three clear days next after the case has been signed and sealed, transmit the same with a copy thereof under the seal of the court, by post or otherwise, to the office of the Clerks of Records and Writs in Chancery, or to such other office or officer in the court as the Lord Chancellor may by General Order direct, and shall give notice, by post or otherwise, to the successful party that he has done so; in default whereof the successful party may proceed on the decree or order, and shall, on the application to the court, be entitled to such costs as he shall have incurred in consequence of the appellant's proceedings; provided that, instead of proceeding on such decree or order, the respondent, if he think fit, may, within twenty-eight days from the signing and sealing of the case, transmit it in the manner prescribed, and give the like notice to the appellant of such transmission.

8. If, after the case has been transmitted, the appellant do not prosecute his appeal, the Court of Appeal may dismiss the same for want of prosecution, and thereupon the decree or order appealed from may be prosecuted and enforced as if there had been no such appeal, and the respondent in the appeal shall be entitled to all costs he may have incurred by reason of the appeal, to be recovered as costs in the court below.

9. When the Court of Appeal shall have made a decree or order, either party may deposit the same, or an office copy thereof, with the registrar of the county court, and upon being so deposited, such decree or order shall be filed, and may be enforced as if it had been made by the county court.

10. All the rules in this Order shall apply to appeals under sect. 19 of the act to the Court of Chancery of the County Palatine of Lancaster, and the Vice-Chancellor thereof, except that the case when signed and sealed shall be transmitted to the registrar of that court.

ORDER XX.—DUTIES OF REGISTRAR.

1. The registrar shall keep a book, to be called "The Suits and Proceedings in Equity Book," and shall enter and number in such book each suit or proceeding consecutively in the order in which they are entered, and shall also enter therein a note of all documents filed and steps taken in such suit or proceeding.

2. Upon the filing of any document it shall be distinguished by the number of the plaint or petition in respect of which it is filed being indorsed thereon, and it shall be further distinguished from other documents filed in the suit or proceeding by placing after the number a distinctive letter of the alphabet.

3. Where a registrar rejects an affidavit under Order XIV, he shall give notice, by post or otherwise, to the party offering the same for filing, of and the reasons for such rejection; and where any other document is so imperfect upon the face thereof, or by reason of having blanks therein, that it cannot be easily read or understood, the registrar may refuse to file, and may return the same by post, or otherwise, to the party offering the same, to be rewritten, or the blanks filled up.

4. Before any summons, notice, or other document, or any copy thereof, shall be issued by the registrar, the same shall be sealed with the seal of the court.

5. Where the registrar is required by any decretal order to make inquiries or to take accounts, he shall appoint some day, being not less than twenty-one days from the date of such order, to sit in his office or at the court to hear and determine all matters relating to such inquiry and accounts, and he shall forthwith prepare and insert advertisements in conformity with such order, stating the time, place, and purpose of such sitting, and shall insert the same fourteen days previous to such sitting.

6. Upon the day so appointed the registrar shall sit at the time and place appointed, and shall hear all parties interested, their counsel or attorneys.

7. Where a registrar is not prepared to certify to the court on the day mentioned in the order, he shall apply to the judge for an extension of time, and state the reason for making the application, and he shall give notice, by post or otherwise, to the parties of the enlargement of the time and of the day on which he is to certify.

8. Whenever a notice for appeal is given, the registrar shall detain the proceeds of any execution which may then be in, or may come into, his hands pending such appeal, to abide the event of such appeal, unless the judge shall otherwise order.

ORDER XXI.—DUTIES OF HIGH BAILIFF.

1. Where any personal property is directed to be sold by auction, the high bailiff shall superintend the sale; and where the property is to be sold by private contract, he shall carry out the directions of the court in respect of such sale.

2. The high bailiff shall serve all documents issued to him by the registrar for service, and execute all warrants.

3. Where a warrant shall direct the high bailiff to take possession of, without selling or delivering to a party, any goods or chattels, he shall make, or cause to be made, an inventory or appraisalment of the goods or chattels which he may take into his possession, and may, upon receiving as a deposit the amount of such appraisalment, or sufficient security, to be approved by the registrar, for the safe custody, and for the delivery up of possession upon request, of such goods and chattels, relinquish the possession thereof on condition that the same shall be redelivered to him, or held to abide the order of the court.

4. All moneys coming into the hands of the high bailiff shall be paid over by him to the registrar to the credit of the suit or proceeding in which the same was so received by him within twenty-four hours after he shall have received the same.

ORDER XXII.—DUTIES OF RECEIVER.

1. Every receiver appointed by the court, other than the high bailiff, shall give such security by bond to the registrar for the faithful discharge of his duties, and the payment over of money, as the court shall direct.

2. The receiver shall submit to the registrar, and the registrar shall audit, the accounts of the receiver, which need not be in any particular form, as soon as conveniently may be after the receipt or realisation of the assets, and immediately after such audit shall pay over to the registrar the balance found thereby to be in his hands.

3. The registrar may require any receiver to produce any receipt, accounts, and vouchers necessary for verifying the accounts, and may disallow any item not proved to his satisfaction, and may, if he shall think fit, require any receiver to verify such accounts and vouchers upon oath.

4. The receiver shall, at any time before the complete realisation of the assets, produce his accounts to be audited in manner provided by this Order, upon receiving seven days' notice in writing from the registrar so to do, and such notice may be sent by post or otherwise to the address of the receiver.

5. Where the duties of the receiver are continuous, no longer period than one year shall in any case be allowed to intervene between each audit.

6. In no case shall it be necessary for any party to attend at the audit of the receiver's account, but where a party is dissatisfied with a receiver's account, he may apply to the court or registrar for a revision of the registrar's allowances.

7. The court may order the receiver to pay over, at such time, or from time to time, as it shall see fit, to the party entitled to the beneficial interest therein, or to the guardian of any infant, any yearly or other accruing rents or interest, instead of paying the same into court, and to take credit for such payments in his accounts when audited.

ORDER XXIII.—PRACTICE.

1. All complaints, petitions, statements, and documents whatsoever in any suits or matter under the act which are required to be filed shall be on foolscap paper, and may be wholly or partly printed or written, and dates and sums occurring therein may be expressed in figures.

2. All judicial or official documents in any suit or proceeding, and all copies thereof respectively issued by the court, shall be stamped by the registrar with the seal of the court.

3. Every document, the mode of serving which is not specially defined by these Orders, may be served, and the service thereof may be proved, in conformity with the practice that has heretofore prevailed in the county courts as to the service of summonses, excepting so far as the same relates to the time of service.

4. Where any party to a suit or proceeding changes his attorney, he shall give notice in writing of such change to the registrar, stating the name or firm and place of business of the new attorney, and the registrar shall file the notice.

5. No suit or motion for a decree or decretal order shall be heard until the same shall be set down for hearing.

6. The times of the sitting of a county court in matters of equity shall be those appointed for the transaction of the general business of the court, unless the judge shall otherwise order, and shall appoint a special day or days for the sitting of the court in matters of equity.

7. Where any party to any suit or proceeding is unacquainted with the Christian name of any person whose name he desires to insert in any plaint, proceeding, or document, he may describe such person by his surname, or by his surname and the initial of his Christian name, or by such name as he is generally known by.

8. Where any proceedings or documents are filed, an extra copy, in addition to the copies to be delivered under these Orders, shall be left with the registrar for the use of the judge.

9. The registrar shall transmit by post, prepaid, to the judge, five days before the sitting of the court, all copies of proceedings and documents left for his use under these Orders.

10. Copies of all proceedings or documents shall be prepared by the registrar for any person requiring the same, upon payment of the costs of such copies when the order for the same is given.

11. Where, by these Orders, any act is to be, or may be, done by any party to a suit or proceeding, such act may be done either in person or by his attorney.

12. Where a party acts by attorney, service of any proceeding or document upon such attorney, or delivery of the same at his office, or sending the same to him by post, shall be good service upon the party for whom such attorney acts, as upon the day when the same is so served or delivered, or upon which, in the ordinary course of post, it would be delivered, except in cases where, by these Orders, personal service upon a party is required.

13. Any proceeding or document may, by leave of the registrar, be served by the attorney of the party requiring to effect such service; but the costs of such service, and proof thereof, shall not be allowed, except by order of the judge.

14. Where, by reason of the absence of any party, or from any other sufficient cause, the service of any summons, notice, proceeding, or document cannot be made, or ought, in the opinion of the judge, to be dispensed with, the judge may wholly dispense with such service, or may, at his discretion, order any substituted service, or notice by advertisement or otherwise, in lieu of such service.

15. The judge shall order in what newspaper any advertisements which may from time to time be ordered in any suit or proceeding shall be inserted; and when there is no fund in court, the expense of such advertisements shall be paid to the registrar by the party requiring the same, before they are inserted.

16. All advertisements to be inserted in the London Gazette shall be transmitted to the registrar of county court judgments in London, who shall cause them to be classified and inserted in lists, under the direction of the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury.

17. The judge may order what party shall have the conduct of any suit or proceeding, or any part thereof, and may rescind or alter such order, or make new orders in that behalf from time to time, as he shall think fit.

18. The judge may, if he think fit, enlarge or abridge any of the times fixed by these Orders for taking any step, or filing any document, or giving any notice, in any suit or proceeding.

19. Before the name of any person shall be used in any suit or proceeding as next friend of any infant, married woman, or other party, such person shall sign an undertaking, in the form given in the schedule, to be responsible for any costs to which the plaintiff or applicant may become liable in the course of the suit or proceeding, and such undertaking shall be annexed by the registrar to the plaint or petition.

20. Where suits or proceedings shall be commenced in different courts by parties in the same interest, such suits or proceedings shall be transferred to the court in which the first plaint or petition was filed, and shall there be proceeded with, in the same way in all respects, as if they had been commenced in that court.

21. The registrar shall be the taxing officer of the court.

22. Creditors are to be entitled to interest in respect of debts, as to such of them as carry interest, after the rate they respectively carry, and as to all others, after the rate of 4l. per cent. per annum, from the date of the decretal order, and to costs of successfully proving such debts, according to the scale of costs in that behalf.

23. Interest is to be computed on legacies after the rate of 4l. per cent. per annum, from the end of one year from the date of the testator's death, unless otherwise ordered, or a different rate is directed by the will.

24. A note of every decretal order or final decree made in any suit, or of an order made on a petition, shall be transmitted to the registrar of county court judgments in London, who shall register the same under the direction of the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury.

25. All proceedings and documents may be in forms similar to the forms in the schedule to these Orders, where the same are applicable; and in cases where no forms are provided, parties shall frame the proceedings or documents, using as guides those contained in the schedule.

26. The rules and forms and practice heretofore in force in the county courts shall, subject to these Orders, be adopted with reference to suits and proceedings in equity, so far as they shall be respectively applicable.

ORDER XXIV.—INTERPRETATION.

1. In these Orders the following words shall have the several meanings hereby assigned to them, over and above their several ordinary meanings, unless there be something in the subject or context repugnant to such construction; (viz.)

- (1). The words "the act" shall mean the 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99:
- (2). Words importing the masculine gender shall include females:
- (3). Words importing the singular number shall include the plural, and vice versa:
- (4). The word "party" shall mean a party to a suit or proceeding; and "person" shall mean any person, whether a party to the suit or proceeding or not; and the words "person" or "party" shall include a body politic or corporate:
- (5). The word "affidavit" shall include statutable affirmations, and attestations upon honour, and the word "sworn" shall include affirmed according to the statute and attested upon honour:

- (6). Where any number of days is mentioned, it shall mean "clear days:."
- (7). The word "court" shall mean the county court having jurisdiction in the suit or proceeding, and the words "judge" and "registrar" shall respectively mean the judge and registrar of that court:
- (8). The words "high bailiff" shall include any assistant bailiff lawfully appointed by the high bailiff, and the word "bailiff" shall include high bailiff.

J. B. DASENT.
D. D. HEATH.
J. WORLEDGE.
RUPERT A. KETTLE.
WILLIAM FURNER.

I approve of these Orders and Forms to come into force in all county courts on the 1st day of October, 1865.

CRANWORTH, C.

(To be continued).

JUDICIAL STATISTICS, 1864—CIVIL SIDE.

(Continued from p. 364).

The Accountant-General has furnished a return for the year ended the 1st October, 1864, in the same form as his returns for preceding years, shewing the cash, securities, and other effects paid and transferred into court and out of court, and other proceedings in the office.

The total amounts were—

Paid into court	£20,006,892 15 3
Paid out of court	19,542,385 2 11

The following were the amounts for 1863, with the average of the amounts for the five years 1859-63:—

	1863.	Average, 1859-63.
Paid into court	£17,202,895	£16,176,748
Paid out of court	15,072,509	15,006,767

The number of cheques signed was 45,952. The number of powers of attorney issued was 3328. The total number of accounts was 26,215. For the preceding year these numbers were respectively 43,565, 3096, and 25,050. The averages for the years 1859-63 are 42,178, 3304, and 23,543.

The amount of cash, securities, and other effects carried over in the Accountant-General's book was 2,445,571l. 10s. 4d. For the preceding year the amount was 2,157,800l. The average of the five years is 2,117,130l.

The amount of fees collected by stamps was 682l. For the preceding year the amount was 645l. For the five years the average is 677l.

The following statement of the Sutors' Fund and the Sutors' Fee Fund is made from the annual account presented to Parliament by the Accountant-General, under the act 5 Vict. c. 5, s. 63:—

Sutors' Fund.
Balance of cash on the 1st October, 1863	£16,970 5 4
Dividends of 4,112,332l. 2s. 5d. stock	121,502 15 10
Rent of Masters' offices let to Commissioners of Patents	520 0 0
Paid in by solicitor to suitors to recoup costs paid out of this fund in 1859	21 1 8
Total income	139,014 2 10

Brought forward, total income	£139,014	2	10
Payments	£54,241	8	5
Carried over to Sutors' Fee Fund	63,768	5	2
	118,039	13	7

Balance of cash on the 1st October, 1864 . . . £91,004 9 8

Sutors' Fee Fund.

	£	s.	d.
Interest brought over during the year from Sutors' Fund	63,768	5	2
Interest brought over from "moneys arising by sale of the Six Clerks' Office"	44	5	10
Interest brought over from "moneys placed out to provide, &c." (stock purchased with surplus fees)	5,867	10	2
Brokerage paid in by the Accountant-General	7,688	14	3

Carried forward . . . £77,358 15 5

Brought forward	£77,358	15	5
Fees levied on the sutors	98,434	19	3
Paid in by the solicitor to the Sutors' Fund, received by him in respect of rent of chambers	87	1	2

Total income . . . 175,890 15 10
Payments . . . 161,990 9 11

Excess of income over payments for the year ending the 25th November, 1864 . . £13,900 5 11

The balance of cash to the credit of the Sutors' Fee Fund account on the 24th November, 1863 (the beginning of the year for which the return is made), was 99,252l. 9s. 0d., and if to that amount there be added the above excess of income over payments for the year (13,900l. 5s. 11d.), there will result 113,152l. 14s. 11d., which was the balance of cash to the credit of the same account on the 24th November, 1864.

Analysis of the above payments, distinguishing those charged on each of the above two funds:—

Description of Payment.	Total.		Sutors' Fund.		Sutors' Fee Fund.
	£	s. d.	£	s. d.	£	s. d.
Compensation (including terminable salaries) in respect of abolished offices	51,211	11 2	20,920	1 1	30,291	10 1
Salaries of officers	194,772	13 2	18,433	12 3	106,339	0 11
Pensions to retired officers	12,328	17 7	10,514	0 6	18,14	17 1
Rent, &c. of offices	3,005	2 2			3,005	2 2
Expenses of copying in the offices	11,527	8 11			11,527	8 11
Miscellaneous payments	13,386	5 4	4,373	14 7	9,012	10 9
	£216,231	18 4	£54,241	8 5	£161,990	9 11

The Accountant-General further has furnished, in continuation of information given in the report of her Majesty's Commissioners appointed to inquire into the Accountant-General's department of the Court of Chancery, the following statement, shewing the number of accounts in the books of his department, and the balances of stocks, securities, and cash in his name, and of the amount of cash remaining invested on account of the Sutors' Fund, and of the stock thereon, on the 1st October, in each of the years 1862, 1863, and 1864:—

Years.	Number of Accounts.	Balance of Stocks and Securities on the various Accounts.	Balance of Cash on the various Accounts.	Balance of Cash in the Bank.	Investments out of Sutors' Cash on account of Sutors' Fund.	Stock purchased on account of Sutors' Fund.	Total Amount of Cash remaining invested on account of Sutors' Fund.	Total Amount of stock purchased with Sutors' Cash.
		£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
1862	24,252	53,974,614 18 11	2,861,603 6 7	599,859 4 9	200,000	214,477 4 4	2,264,744 1 10	2,584,967 8 9
1863	25,050	55,616,883 10 4	2,952,721 4 8	467,977 2 10	100,000	110,844 16 8	2,464,744 1 10	2,798,444 13 1
1864	26,215	56,907,901 1 6	3,216,211 5 10	651,467 4 0	2,564,744 1 10	2,968,789 9 9

The proceedings in the Chancery Court of Lancashire are shewn in a return furnished by the direction of the Vice-Chancellor of the County Palatine of Lancaster for the year ended the 30th September, 1864, in the same form as for preceding years, the proceedings in each of the three districts of Liverpool,

Manchester, and Preston being distinguished as usual. The totals of the proceedings for the three districts under each head, as shewn in the return for 1864, are as follows, in comparison with the totals for 1863, and with the average of the totals for the five years 1858-62, inclusive:—

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1858-62.
The number of suits and matters originated:—
By bill	108	98	70
By claim	20	23	21
By summons	25	24	20
By special case, petition, &c.	48	51	36
	201	191	147
The number of interrogatories filed	40	38	33
The number of answers and other defences	50	59	38
The number of causes and original matters on motions for decrees, claim, special case, petition, or otherwise:—
Awaiting hearing at the commencement of the year	—	—	—
Set down during the year	131	134	103

Heard during the year	180	182	99
Otherwise disposed of	—	3	5
Awaiting hearing at the end of the year	—	—	—

The number of causes and original matter for further directions were:—

Awaiting hearing at the commencement of the year	—	—	—
Set down during the year	30	40	37
Heard during the year	30	38	37
Otherwise disposed of	—	2	—
Awaiting hearing at the end of the year	—	—	—

Number of appeals:—

Awaiting hearing at the commencement of the year	2	1	1
Set down during the year	—	2	1
Heard during the year	2	—	1

The number of decrees and orders of each class, including those made by the registrar, amounted to	529	534	474
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----	-----	-----

The returns next show:—

The number of affidavits filed	1,872	1,483	1,372
The number of witnesses examined	173	183	123
The number of reports and certificates filed	452	389	418
The number of warrants or summonses issued	1,419	1,266	1,214
The number of advertisements issued	60	78	52

The matters relating to money, bills and costs taxed, and fees, were:—

Amount of debts proved	£8,508	£10,113	£25,649
Amount realised by sales of estates	£28,609	£31,639	£29,801
Number of bills of costs ordered to be taxed	235	224	203
Number of bills taxed	224	208	214
Amount of costs as taxed	£16,847	£14,453	£15,972
Amount paid or transferred into court:—
Of stock	£7,926	£32,150	£8,085
Of cash	£84,355	£100,735	£89,123
Ditto out of court:—
Of stock	£34,922	£35,268	£10,670
Of cash	£80,409	£84,544	£57,101
Amount of fees received:—
For compensation fund	£244	£245	£233
General fees	£3,900	£3,951	£3,590

(To be continued).

In 1 thick vol. royal 8vo., price 1*l.* 18*s.* cloth boards,
WOODFALL'S LAW OF LANDLORD AND TENANT. With a full Collection of Precedents and Forms of Procedure. The Eighth Edition. By W. R. COLE, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's inn; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

In royal 12mo., price 1*l.* 4*s.* cloth,
A TREATISE on the PRINCIPLES and PRACTICE of the COURT for DIVORCE and MATRIMONIAL CAUSES, with the Statutes, Rules, Fees, and Forms relating thereto, and copious Examples of Bills of Costs. By GEORGE BROWNE, Esq., B. A., Barrister at Law, of the Inner Temple.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's inn.

This day is published, price 7*s.* cloth boards,
A TREATISE on ARRANGEMENTS with CREDITORS under the BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861. With Precedents. To which are added, the Sections of the Bankruptcy Acts, 1849 and 1861, and the Rules and Orders relating thereto. With a full Index. By WILLIAM DOWNES GRIFFITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's inn.

WILDMAN'S INTERNATIONAL LAW.
INSTITUTES of INTERNATIONAL LAW, in Time of Peace and Time of War. By RICHARD WILDMAN, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 2 vols. 8vo. 1849-50. Price 1*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.* bds. Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

The Fifteenth Edition, by W. N. WELSHY, Esq., adapted to the New Criminal Statutes of 1861, in 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 1*l.* 6*s.* cloth boards,
ARCHBOLD'S PLEADING and EVIDENCE in CRIMINAL CASES; with the Statutes, Precedents of Indictments, and the Evidence necessary to support them. By JOHN JERVIS, Esq. (late Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas). The Fifteenth Edition. Including the Practice in Criminal Proceedings by Indictment. By W. N. WELSHY, Esq., Barrister at Law, Recorder of Chester.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

PETTY SESSIONS PRACTICE.

In thick 12mo., price 18*s.* cloth, lettered,
STONE'S PRACTICE of PETTY SESSIONS. With the Statutes, a List of Summary Convictions, and an Appendix of Forms. Seventh Edition. By THOMAS BELL and LEWIS W. CAVE, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. With a Supplement, bringing the Statutes and Cases up to 1863. 12mo., price 18*s.* cloth.
"It is remarkable for a rare combination of conciseness and clearness in the composition, which have recommended it to magistrates who have not been educated as lawyers, and to whom, therefore, the books written for the use of lawyers are often obscure by reason of their technicalities. The present editors have preserved this characteristic of Mr. Stone's volume in their own abundant additions to it."—Law Times.
"The Supplement may be had by itself, price 3*s.* boards.
Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Publishers.

In 2 thick vols., price 2*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* cloth,
CHITTY'S ARCHBOLD'S PRACTICE of the COURT of QUEEN'S BENCH in PERSONAL ACTIONS and EJECTMENT. By THOMAS CHITTY, Esq. Including the Practice of the Courts of Common Pleas and Exchequer. The Eleventh Edition. By SAMUEL PRENTICE, Esq., Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's inn.

In 1 thick vol., price 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* cloth,
CHITTY'S FORMS of PRACTICAL PROCEEDINGS in the COURTS of QUEEN'S BENCH, COMMON PLEAS, and EXCHEQUER of PLEAS. With Notes and Observations thereon. The Ninth Edition, enlarged.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's inn.

In 12mo., price 12*s.* 6*d.* cloth,
THE BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861: incorporating so much as remains in force of the Bankrupt-law Consolidation Act, 1849, and of the Bankruptcy Act, 1854. With an Appendix, containing the 7 & 8 Vict. c. 70; the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 33; the 33 & 34 Vict. c. 147; the General Orders under the Bankruptcy Act, 1861; and the General Rules and Orders under the Bankrupt-law Consolidation Act, 1849, With Notes. By WILLIAM HAZLITT, of the Middle Temple, Esq., a Registrar of the Court of Bankruptcy, and HENRY PHILIP ROCHE, of Lincoln's inn, Esq., Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

JUST-PUBLISHED,

THE STATUTE LAW DIGESTED AND ARRANGED ALPHABETICALLY.

In four very thick Royal 8vo. Volumes, Price 12l. 12s. in cloth, the Third Edition, greatly enlarged and brought down to the present time,

CHITTY'S COLLECTION OF ALL THE STATUTES
 OF PRACTICAL UTILITY

IN THE

Civil and Criminal Administration of Justice ;
WITH NOTES THEREON.

INTENDED AS A COURT AND CIRCUIT COMPANION.

THE THIRD EDITION.

BY

W. N. WELSBY AND E. BEAVAN, Esqs.,

BARRISTERS AT LAW.

HENRY SWEET, 3, CHANCERY-LANE ;
 STEVENS & SONS, 26, BELL-YARD, LINCOLN'S-INN.

* * THE LATE LORD CHANCELLOR promised a revised and expurgated edition of the Statutes in ten volumes. The revision, so far as it appears, has not yet been commenced, and cannot be completed to any purpose without the aid of the Legislature and the expenditure of enormous labour. But in this new edition of CHITTY'S STATUTES by the late Mr. Welsby and Mr. E. Beavan, assisted by many gentlemen of acknowledged ability, the Publishers have endeavoured, and they trust with success, to supply by private enterprise an expurgated edition of the Statutes, having the advantage over the Lord Chancellor's of actual existence, with an established reputation, and in a form more practically useful to the Profession than that proposed by the Government. For this assertion they have the authority of the late Lord Campbell, who, in the Debate on the proposed Consolidation of Statutes, on the 9th February, 1854, said, "that the Statutes at large extended to about fifty volumes folio, but that all the Statutes which were usually required by lawyers for reference might be found in four octavo volumes, compiled by his learned friend Mr. Welsby. When he (Lord Campbell) was upon the Bench he always had this work by him, and no Statutes were ever referred to by the Bar which he could not find in it."

The new edition of Chitty's work comprises, in four portly volumes, royal 8vo., all that in actual practice would be sought for in the ten quarterly volumes contemplated by the Lord Chancellor, and it is NOW READY. The Statutes are classified, according to their subject-matter, under titles alphabetically arranged, and they are illustrated by practical notes and references to the decisions, while the whole is furnished with a copious Index, which for extent and minute accuracy may be considered a marvel of industry.

* * An Annual Continuation of the Four Volumes arranged on the same plan is published shortly after the close of each Session, varying in price according to thickness. Five or six years may be bound in one volume, for which a General Index will be supplied, and thus supersede the necessity of buying another Edition of the whole Work for many years.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex, and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the Office, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, September 30, 1865.

The Jurist

No. 561, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.
No. 1500, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

OCTOBER 7, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

WANTED, in a Country Solicitor's Office, a COPYING and GENERAL CLERK, well acquainted with the mode of drawing Bills of Costs. Must write a first-rate hand, and have had experience in the Profession. Apply personally to Messrs. Walker & Son, Solicitors, 13, Swithin's-lane, E. C.

COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION.—The Act to confer on the County Courts a limited Jurisdiction in Equity; with a View of the Principles, and an Outline of the Practice of the Court of Chancery, applicable to each Head of the New Jurisdiction; and the Rules and Orders issued under the Act. By E. C. BATTEN and H. LUDLOW, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. London: William Amer, Law Bookseller, Lincoln's-inn-gate, W. C.

THE PRINCIPLES and PRACTICE of MEDICAL JURISPRUDENCE. By ALFRED S. TAYLOR, M.D., F.R.S. Now ready, with 176 Wood Engravings, 8vo., cloth, 28s.

This volume, consisting of 1240 closely printed pages, has enabled the author to amplify all the subjects treated of in his Manual, and at the same time to add several chapters on important subjects not embraced in the smaller work. It forms the most comprehensive work on Forensic Medicine in the English language.

John Churchill & Sons, New Burlington-street.

A HANDY-BOOK on CHANCERY LAW and PRACTICE for SUITORS under the New Equity Jurisdiction in the County Courts. With the Act complete, and Practical Observations thereon; with the authorised Forms and Rules of Court, &c. By G. MANLEY WETHERFIELD, Solicitor. London: Stannard & Smith, 30, Chancery-lane, W. C.

SMITH'S MERCANTILE LAW. In royal 8vo., price 17. 16s. cloth boards.
A COMPENDIUM of MERCANTILE LAW. By J. W. SMITH, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law. Seventh Edition. By G. M. DOWDESWELL, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law. London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn; H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; and W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

A TREATISE on COSTS in CHANCERY. By G. O. MORGAN, M.A., and HORACE DAVEY, M.A., Barristers at Law. With an Appendix, containing F forms and Precedents of Bills of Costs. Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.
LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY. 68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.
DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q.C.
Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions. Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms. Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office. C. B. CLABON, Sec.

PELICAN LIFE INSURANCE OFFICE. (ESTABLISHED IN 1797). No. 70, Lombard-street, E. C., and 57, Charing-cross, S. W.
DIRECTORS.

Oatavian E. Coope, Esq.	Kirkman D. Hodgson, Esq., M.P.
William Cotton, Esq., D.C.L., F.R.S.	Henry Lancelot Holland, Esq.
Thomas Henry Farquhar, Esq.	William James Lancaster, Esq.
James A. Gordon, Esq., M.D., F.R.S.	Sir John Lubbock, Bart., F.R.S.
Edward Hawkins, jun., Esq.	Benjamin Shaw, Esq.
	Matthew Whiting, Esq.
	Marmaduke Wyvill, jun., Esq.

ROBERT TUCKER, Secretary and Actuary.
NOTICE.—The next distribution of Profit will be made at the end of 1865. All Policies now effected on the "return system" will participate. The last Bonus varied from 25 to 60 per cent. on the Premiums paid. Loans, in connexion with Life Assurance, upon approved security, in sums of not less than 500*l*. For Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal apply to the Secretary, or to any of the Company's Agents.

No. 561, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

EQUITABLE REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY,

10, LANCASTER-PLACE, STRAND,
Established 1835.—Capital £500,000.

DIRECTORS.

Daniel Smith Bockett, Esq.	Francis Bennett Goldney, Esq.
Major C. L. Boileau.	Charles Richard Harford, jun., Esq.
Lieut.-Colonel Chase.	Henry Pigeon, Esq.
William Henry Cole, Esq.	Henry Roberts, Esq.
Thomas Curtis, Esq.	George Roots, Esq.

AUDITORS.

Charles Armstrong Esq. | William Richard Bingley, Esq.
Alfred Langdale, Esq.

SOLICITORS.—Messrs. Clayton & Son.

BANKERS.—Messrs. Coutts & Co.

ACTUARY.—F. Hendriks, Esq.

This Society purchases Reversionary Property, Life Interests, and Life Policies of Assurance, and grants Loans on these Securities.

Forms of Proposal may be obtained at the Office.

JOHN CLAYTON, Joint
FRANCIS CLAYTON, Secretaries.

LAW FIRE INSURANCE SOCIETY.

Offices—Chancery-lane, London.
Subscribed Capital, £5,000,000.

TRUSTEES.

The Right Hon. Lord Chelmsford.
The Right Hon. Lord Truro.
The Right Hon. the Lord Chief Baron.
The Right Hon. the Lord Justice Sir J. L. Knight Bruce.
The Right Hon. the Lord Justice Sir G. J. Turner.
The Right Hon. John Robert Mowbray, M.P.
William Brougham, Esq.

Insurances expiring at Michaelmas should be renewed within fifteen days thereafter, at the Offices of the Society, or with any of its Agents throughout the country.

The full and immediate benefit of the reduction of duty to 1s. 6d. per cent. will be given to the insured.

This Society holds itself responsible, under its Fire Policy, for any damage done by explosion of gas.

EDWARD BLAKE BEAL, Secretary.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS at PARTRIDGE & COZENS,

WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS IN PARCHEMENT.

192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 20*l*.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bona fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual RETAIL charges—as the intermediated profit is saved to the purchaser.

Draft Paper, 6s. 7s., 7s. 9d., and 9s. per ream.
Brief Paper, 13s. 6d., 15s., and 18s. 6d. per ream.
Foolscap Paper, 10s. 6d., 13s. 6d., and 17s. 6d. per ream.
Cream Laid Note, 3s., 4s., and 5s. per ream.
Large Cream Laid Note, 4s., 6s., and 7s. 6d. per ream.
Large Blue Note, 3s., 4s., and 6s. per ream.
Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2s. 9d., 3s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. per 1000.
Foolscap Official Envelopes, 1s. 6d. per 100, or 13s. 6d. per 1000.
Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, Piercers, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25*l*.; Good Stand for ditto with two Drawers, 17*l*.

Parchment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1s. 8d. each, 1*l*. per dozen, or 9*l* 6*s*. per roll.
Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1s. 6d. each, 17*s*. per dozen, or 8*l* 9*s*. per roll.
Records or Memorials, Ruled, 6d. each, 5*s*. 6d. per dozen, or 25*s*. per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an Immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inkstands; Postage Scales; Writing-cases; Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post free.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

MM

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	383
County Court Orders and Forms in Equity	385

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

The Cases reported in the Common-Law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

PRIVY COUNCIL.

By E. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

The Peninsula and Oriental Steam Navigation Company, Apprs., The Hon. Farquhar Shand, Resp.—(Mauritius—Lex loci—Carriers—Old French law—English law)	771
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

ROLLS COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Re Sadd.—(Solicitor and client—Taxation—Retainer—Negligence of solicitor)	774
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY'S COURT.

By E. LLOYD, Barrister at Law.

Ivimey v. Stocker.—(Easement—Watercourse—Prescription—Title of tin-borders)	775
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By T. F. MERRIS, Barrister at Law.

Johnstone v. Hamilton.—(Devise and bequest to executors—Secret trust—Leaseholds—Right of the Crown—11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 48—Practice) ..	777
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Re Gaskell's Trusts.—(Will—Feme covert—Absolute gift—Restraint on alienation)	780
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVESEY, Barrister at Law.

Cowper v. Fletcher.—(Landlord and tenant—Lease by one joint tenant to another—Distress—Ex-toppel)	780
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By E. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

Bird v. The Great Eastern Railway Company.—(Lands Clauses Consolidation Act—Railway company—Compensation—Right of sporting) ..	782
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

By W. BRANDT, Barrister at Law.

Evans and Others v. Jones and Another.—(13 Eliz. c. 5—Fraud of creditors)	784
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

Recently published, vol. 1, price 1*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.* cloth.

THE PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT OF CHANCERY, with some Observations on the Pleadings in that Court. By the late EDMUND ROBERT DANIELL, Barrister at Law. Fourth Edition, with considerable Alterations and Additions, incorporating the Statutes, Orders, and Cases to the present time, and Braithwaite's Record and Writ Practice; together with references to a Companion Volume of Forms and Precedents. By LEONARD FIELD and EDWARD CLENNELL DUNN, Barristers at Law, with the assistance of JOHN BIDDLE, of the Master of the Rolls' Chambers. In 2 vols.

* * Vol. 2, and the Companion Volume of Forms, will be published in Michaelmas Term.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

PHILLIPS'S LAW OF COPYRIGHT.

In 8vo., price 12*s.* cloth.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT IN WORKS OF LITERATURE and ART, and in the Application of Designs. With the Statutes relating thereto. By CHARLES PALMER PHILLIPS, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 8vo. 1863.

"Mr. Phillips has shewn, not only great diligence in collecting cases bearing upon the various topics which he has treated, but considerable judgment in the manner in which he has dealt with them. He has spared no pains to make his work reliable as a legal text-book, and at the same time equally useful to publishers, authors, artists, and other persons who are interested in works of literature, art, or design. In a word, such a book has long been wanted, and Mr. Phillips has given abundant proof of his ability to meet the desideratum."—Solicitors' Journal, Nov. 14, 1863.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

HAZLITT and ROCHE'S LAW OF MARITIME WARFARE.

A MANUAL OF THE LAW OF MARITIME WARFARE, embodying the Decisions of Lord Stowell and other English Judges, and of the American Courts, and the Opinions of the most eminent Jurists. With an Appendix of the Official Documents and Correspondence in relation to the present War. By WILLIAM HAZLITT and H. P. ROCHE, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. In 12mo. 1864. Price 10*s.* 6*d.* cloth.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

BURTON ON REAL PROPERTY.—Eighth Edition.

Price 1*l.* 4*s.* cloth.

A N ELEMENTARY COMPENDIUM OF THE LAW OF REAL PROPERTY. By W. H. BURTON, Esq. With Notes, shewing the Alterations in the Law to the present time. To which is now prefixed an Introductory Chapter, giving a concise Historical Outline of such Parts of the Law as have been the subject of Statutory Alteration. By EDWARD PRIESTLEY COOPER, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

POLLOCK'S PRACTICE OF THE COUNTY COURT.

THE PRACTICE OF THE COUNTY COURTS, with the Decisions of the Superior Courts, and Tables of Fees and Costs; also Appendices, containing all the Statutes, Rules of Practice, and Forms, including those relating to Bankruptcy. In Two Parts, with Tabular Indices. The Fifth Edition. By C. E. POLLOCK, Esq., and H. NICOL, Esq., Barristers at Law. In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 1*l.* 10*s.* cloth boards.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE LAW OF LETTERS-PATENT.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 18*s.*, cloth boards.

A TREATISE ON THE LAW OF LETTERS-PATENT FOR THE SOLE USE OF INVENTIONS in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, including the Practice connected with the Grant. To which is added, a Summary of the Patent Laws in force in the principal Foreign States; with an Appendix of Statutes, Rules, Practical Forms, &c. By JOHN CORYTON, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

In 1 vol. 12mo., price 7*s.*

A TREATISE ON COMPOSITION DEEDS under the Stat. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 134. By THOMAS ERSKINE HOLLAND, M. A., Fellow of Exeter College, Oxford, and of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE BRITISH CONSTITUTION EXPLAINED.

In 1 thick vol. 8vo., price 1*l.* 4*s.* cloth.

THE INSTITUTIONS OF ENGLISH GOVERNMENT: being an Account of the Constitution, Powers, and Procedure of its Legislative, Judicial, and Administrative Departments; with copious References to Ancient and Modern Authorities. By HOMERSHAM COX, M. A., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE CONTRACT OF SALE

A TREATISE ON THE EFFECT OF THE CONTRACT OF SALE ON THE LEGAL RIGHTS OF PROPERTY AND POSSESSION IN GOODS, WARES, and MERCHANDISE. By COLIN BLACKBURN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. 8vo., price 12*s.* boards.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 16*s.*

A TREATISE ON DAMAGES, comprising their Measure, the Mode in which they are Assessed and Reviewed, the Practice of Granting New Trials, and the Law of Set-off and Compensation under the Lands Clauses Act. By JOHN D. MAYNE, Esq., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, OCTOBER 7, 1865.

WHEN should a lis pendens be registered, and when should notice be taken of a suit, the pendency of which is registered? These are questions which often occur in practice, and are often answered in such a manner as to occasion unnecessary trouble and expense. We have known a suit to be registered as a lis pendens, the only subject-matter of which was a fund in court. And the registration of a suit respecting an estate vested in trustees upon an express trust is not unusual. The case of Bull v. Hutchins (9 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 954; 32 Beav. 615) affords a good illustration of the vague terror with which a registered lis pendens is regarded by many half-informed practitioners. In that case some leasehold property had been purchased by Hutchins from Bull on the 11th June, 1862. The purchaser objected to the title, that by an order of the Court of Probate made in 1861, and registered in the Common Pleas, the vendor was ordered to pay an annuity of 25*l.* to A. B. during her life, and that on the 12th September, 1862, the annuitant had filed a bill asking for a declaration, that the annuity was a charge on the leasehold property of the vendor, which suit (Pratt v. Bull) was registered as a lis pendens. Counsel had advised that the stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, which gives to orders of the superior courts for payment of money, the effect of judgments, did not extend to courts such as the Court of Probate, created subsequently to the passing of that act; and the point was so decided by Vice-Chancellor Sir J. Stuart, and on appeal by the Lord Chancellor, before the case of Bull v. Hutchins came to a hearing. (Pratt v. Bull, 9 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 239; 4 Giff. 117; 1 De G., J., & S. 141). It was, therefore, clear that (there being no other available objection to the title) the plaintiff was entitled to specific performance of the contract; and the only question was as to the costs incurred prior to the decision of the point in Pratt v. Bull. The defendant contended that the question as to the effect of the order of the Court of Probate was so doubtful as to entitle him to insist on the objection; and he contended, further, that the registration of the suit of Pratt v. Bull operated in some way to create an incumbrance on the vendor's leasehold property. The Master of the Rolls held that the purchaser was not justified in insisting on the objection founded on the order of the Court of Probate; and as to the other question, he made the following remarks:—

"It has been argued that the lis pendens creates an incumbrance. I am of opinion that the lis pendens is merely notice of some claim made in respect of the property which is the subject of the suit, but that it does not of itself create an incumbrance apart from the equity on which the litigation is founded. If it were otherwise, a lis pendens, having nothing to do with the matter, might create an incumbrance. It was notice of the existence of a suit in Chancery, and required all persons dealing with the property to look at the proceedings to see whether it did affect the property or not. Here the lis pendens was no incumbrance, if Pratt had no right against the property, for it depended on the validity of his claim; and if his claim were idle, it could not create any incumbrance on the property. A man might file a bill claiming property, alleging that sixty years ago his ancestor was seised in fee; and that, although he had sold the property, yet he had no right to do so. The plaintiff might register this as a lis pendens, but could anybody say that this was an incumbrance on the property, or a reason why a purchaser should not complete his purchase? All that the registration of a lis pendens does is to require persons to look into the claims of the plaintiff who registers it."

The rule as to the effect of a lis pendens is commonly stated to be, that (subject to the provisions of the act for registering suits) every one is presumed to have notice of a suit while it is going on, but not after it has terminated; so that a purchaser, after the final decree in a suit, is not deemed to have had any knowledge of the proceedings, though if he had purchased from any of the parties while it was pending, notice of all the equities in question in the suit would have been imputed to him. In Worsley v. The Earl of Scarborough (3 Atk. 392), Lord Hardwicke said—"There is no such doctrine in this court, that a decree made here shall be an implied notice to a purchaser after the cause is ended; but it is the pendency of the suit that creates the notice; for, as it is a transaction in a sovereign court of justice, it is supposed all people are attentive to what passes there, and it is to prevent a greater mischief that would arise by people purchasing a right under litigation, and then in contest; but when it is only a decree to account, and not such a one as puts a conclusion to the matters in question, that is still such a suit as does affect people with notice of what is doing." In the same case his Lordship said, "No case has gone so far, and it would be very inconvenient if where money is secured upon an estate, and there is a question depending in this court upon the right of or about that money, but no question relating to the estate upon which it is secured, but is a wholly collateral matter, that a purchaser of the estate pending that suit should be affected with notice by such implication as the law creates by the pendency of a suit."

There is often a striking contrast between the wisdom of a rule of law or equity, and the insufficiency of the reasons given for it. To suggest that even in Lord Hardwicke's time all persons were attentive to what passed in the Court of Chancery, but suddenly forgot every cause as soon as the final decree was pronounced, is to give a very absurd reason for a very sound rule. The true reason was given by Sir W. Grant, in the case of The Bishop of Winchester v. Paine (11 Ves. 197), where he held that a decree of foreclosure bound a mortgagee of the equity of redemption who had taken his security while the suit was pending. "Ordinarily, it is true, the decree of the Court binds only the parties to the suit; but he who purchases during the pendency of the suit is bound by the decree that may be made against the person from whom he derives title. The litigating parties are exempted from the necessity of taking any notice of a title so acquired. As to them, it is as if no such title existed. Otherwise suits would be interminable; or, which would be the same in effect, it would be in the pleasure of one party at what period the suit should be determined. The rule may sometimes operate with hardship upon those who purchase without notice, yet general convenience requires its adoption. Accordingly, in Bellamy v. Sabine (1 De G. & J. 566), it was held by the Lord Chancellor (Cranworth) and the Lords Justices, reversing an order made by Vice-Chancellor Sir W. P. Wood, that the pendency of a suit did not involve notice to a purchaser from one of the defendants of the equitable title of another defendant, which was disclosed by the proceedings, but was not in question in the suit. Lord Cranworth said, "It is scarcely correct to speak of lis pendens as affecting a purchaser through the doctrine of notice, though undoubtedly the language of the Courts often so describes its operation. It affects him not because it amounts to notice, but because the law does not allow litigant parties to give to others, pending the litigation, rights to the property in dispute, so as to prejudice the opposite party. When a litigation is pending between a plaintiff and a defendant, as to the right to a particular estate, the necessities of mankind require that the decision of the Court on the suit shall be binding, not only on the litigant parties, but also on those who derive title under them by alienation made pending the suit, whether such alienees had or had not notice of the pending proceedings. If this were not so, there could be no certainty that the litigation would ever come to an end. . . . The doctrine is not peculiar to courts of equity. In the old real action the judgment bound the lands, notwithstanding any alienation by the defendant pendente lite; and certainly that did not depend on any principle arising from implied notice*. After all, it would not be material in what form the principle is enunciated, were it not that by treating the question as one of implied or constructive notice, we incur the risk of pushing the doctrine beyond its legitimate limits. This has, I think, been done in the present case." Lord Justice Turner said, "No case, so far as I am aware, has yet occurred in which the doctrine has been applied, so as to affect the title of the alienee of a defendant, by virtue of a claim not interfering with the title of the plaintiff in the pending litigation."

The limitation of the rule to alienation affecting the interest of the plaintiff, was not adopted by the Master of the Rolls in the case of Tyler v. Thomas (25 Beav. 47). In that case, a testator devised an estate called Nantypopty, to T. P. Thomas in fee, and gave all his other freehold and copyhold estates to Judith Parry for life, with limitations to her sons and daughters in tail, with remainder to the right heirs of the testator. The testator died in 1836 without heirs. A creditors' suit of Brown v. Lloyd was instituted, and the testator's executor, and T. P. Thomas, and Judith Parry, and the Attorney-General were made defendants. After a decree for an account, the Crown granted the reversion in trust to sell and pay the debts. The lord of the manor having claimed the reversion in fee by escheat, as well as the copyholds, a supplemental suit of Evans v. Brown was filed by other creditors against the parties to the other suit, and the grantees of the Crown and the lord of the manor, seeking to establish their rights in priority to the titles by escheat. They obtained a decree in their favour, and in 1846, on the hearing of both suits, a sale of all the testator's lands, except Nantypopty, was directed, without prejudice to the rights (if any) of Judith Parry and her issue to have contribution out of Nantypopty. The sale was made, and the creditors were satisfied, so that nothing remained to be done but to adjust the equities of the defendants, and while the first suit (Brown v. Lloyd) was pending for that purpose, it was duly registered. Shortly afterwards, T. P. Thomas conveyed Nantypopty to a mortgagee, who had no notice of the suit. In a suit by Judith Parry (now Judith Tyler) and others against Thomas and his mortgagee, it was held, that the latter was bound by the reservation, in the suit of Brown v. Lloyd, of the rights of Judith Parry and her children. The Court observed, that there were many cases in which the plaintiffs had no interest at all, as in cases of interpleader, and suits instituted by executors or trustees to have the rights of all parties determined.

The stat. 2 & 3 Vict. c. 11, which introduced the practice of registering suits, does not in any way extend the operation of a pending suit as against strangers, but simply enacts (sect. 7), that no lis pendens shall bind a purchaser or mortgagee without express notice thereof, unless and until a memorandum or minute, containing the name and the usual last known place of abode, and the title, trade, or profession of the person whose estate is intended to be affected thereby, and the court of equity, and the title of the cause or information, and the day when the bill or information was filed, shall be left with the senior master of the said Court of Common Pleas,* &c.

From what has been said, it follows that a search in the Common Pleas registry for lis pendens need only be made in the name of the person from whom a conveyance or mortgage is proposed to be taken, or of some previous vendor or mortgagor, and that if a suit is found to be registered in the name of the proposed vendor or purchaser, but upon inspection of the proceedings is not found to involve any question of title to or charge upon the property proposed to be dealt with, it may be disregarded. And, further, that if a suit is found to be registered against a former vendor or mortgagor, but the entry is subsequent in date to the conveyance or mortgage, it may be disregarded, without any inquiry whether it related to the subject-matter or not; for it is clear, that mere notice of the title of and parties to a suit, is not notice of the object of the suit, or of anything stated or done in it.

We may here remark, that by the 17th section of the 13 & 14 Vict. c. 35 (which introduced the procedure in equity by special case), it is enacted, "that the filing of a special case, and the entering of appearance thereto by the persons named as defendants therein, shall be taken to be a lis pendens, and may be registered under the stat. 2 & 3 Vict. c. 11, and until registered shall not bind a purchaser or mortgagee without express notice thereof." This enactment is not very accurately expressed, but the meaning seems to be, that after the appearance of a defendant to a special case, the suit is to be considered as commenced with regard to that defendant; so that after registration of the case in his name, a purchaser from him will be bound by the declaration of the Court.

* See 2 Inst. 375.

COUNTY COURT ORDERS AND FORMS IN EQUITY.

(Continued from p. 377).

LIST OF FORMS.

- 1.—Undertaking by Next Friend of Infant to be responsible for Defendant's Costs.
- 2.—Affidavit in support of Application for substituted Service.
- 3.—Order for substituted Service.
- 4.—Administration.—[Clause 1, of Sect. 1.]
By Creditor.
By Legatees (Specific).
By Legatees (Pecuniary).
By Legatees (Residuary).
Next of Kin.
- 5.—Execution of Trusts.—[Clause 2, of Sect. 1.]
- 6.—Foreclosure.—[Clause 3, of Sect. 1.]
Redemption.
- 7.—Specific Performance.—[Clause 4, of Sect. 1.]
- 8.—Under Trustee Relief Act.—[Clause 5, of Sect. 1.]
- 9.—Under Trustee Acts.
- 10.—Maintenance and Advancement of Infants.—[Clause 6, of Sect. 1.]
- 11.—Partnership.—[Clause 7, of Sect. 1.]
- 12.—Notice of Application for Order in the Nature of Injunction.—[Clause 8, of Sect. 1.]
- 13.—Summons on Plaintiff.
- 14.—Notice to admit and inspect.
- 15.—Application for Summons to produce.
- 16.—Summons to Witness.
- 17.—Defendant's Admission.
- 18.—Affidavit of Signature to Defendant's Admission.
- 19.—Defendant's Statements.
- 20.—Decretal Order.—Administration Suit.
In Creditor's Suit.
In Suits by Legatees.
In Suits by Next of Kin.
- 21.—Form of Order under Order VI, Rule 14, or under Order XII.
- 22.—Form of Order under Order VI, Rule 14, or under Order XII.
- 23.—Decretal Order for Reference in Foreclosure Suit by Legal Mortgagee.
- 24.—Decretal Order of Sale in a Suit by a Legal or Equitable Mortgagee or Person entitled to a Lien.
- 25.—Decretal Order.—Dissolution of Partnership.
- 26.—Final Decree for Foreclosure.
- 27.—Partnership.
Final Decree.
- 28.—Notice of Decretal Order to absent Party.
- 29.—Notice to Creditor to prove his Claim.
- 30.—Notice to Creditor of Allowance of Claim.
- 31.—Registrar's Certificate.
Notices of Decretal Order.
Personal Estate Account.
References to Account.
Variations from Accounts.
Special Allowances in Accounts.
Reference to Transcript of Account.
No Personal Estate received.
Funeral Expenses.
Debts.
Interest on Debts.
Legacies and Annuities.
Interest on Legacies.
Outstanding Estate.
Real Estate.
Incumbrances on Real Estate.
Rents and Profits Account.
No Rents and Profits received.
Next of Kin.
- 32.—Notice that Registrar's Certificate may be inspected.
- 33.—Bond to be given by Receiver.
- 34.—Warrant of Execution on a Decree or Order of the Court for the Payment of Money.
- 35.—Warrant of Assistance.
- 36.—Warrant of Possession.
- 37.—Notice of Change of Attorney.

- 38.—Order of Revivor.
- 39.—Order of Payment of Legacy into Court of Chancery.
- 40.—Order of Transfer of Suit or Matter to Court of Chancery.
- 41.—General Heading for, and Indorsement on, Decretal Order or Decree.
- 42.—Mem. to be placed at Foot of every Summons, Notice, Decree, or Order of Court, or any other Process of the Court.
- 43.—Allowances to Witnesses.

BOOKS.

- A.—Suits and Proceedings in Equity Book.
- B.—Cash Book.
- C.—Ledger.

SCHEDULE OF FORMS.

1.—UNDERTAKING BY NEXT FRIEND OF INFANT TO BE RESPONSIBLE FOR DEFENDANT'S COSTS.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

I, the undersigned —, being the next friend of A. B., who is an infant, and who is desirous of entering a plaint [or of taking proceedings] in this court against C. D., of &c., hereby undertake to be responsible for the costs of the said C. D., of &c., in the cause, and that if the said A. B. fail to pay to the said C. D., when and in such manner as the Court shall order, all such costs of such cause as the Court shall direct him to pay to the said C. D., I will forthwith pay the same.

Dated this — day of —.

(Signed) —.

2.—AFFIDAVIT IN SUPPORT OF APPLICATION FOR SUBSTITUTED SERVICE.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

I, J. S., of [address and description], make oath and say as follows:—

State facts showing that defendant has been within the jurisdiction of the county courts at some time not more than two years before the plaint was filed, and that he is beyond the seas. Or, that upon inquiry at his usual place of abode (if he had any), or at any other place or places where prior to the time when the plaint was filed he might probably have been met with, he could not be found so as to be served, and that in either case there is just ground to believe that he has gone out of the realm or otherwise absconded to avoid being served, and that service on J. N. will be effective to reach C. D.

Then state deponent's means of knowledge of the facts deposed to.

Sworn, &c.

3.—ORDER FOR SUBSTITUTED SERVICE.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

It appearing to me upon the affidavit of —, that it is desirable for the purposes of this suit that service of the plaint be made upon —, at —, and that such service be deemed good service on the defendant C. D., I do order that service of the plaint and summons in this suit be deemed good service upon the said defendant C. D.

Dated this — day of —.

J. S., Judge.

4.—ADMINISTRATION.—[Clause 1, of Sect. 1.]

By Creditor.

Plaint in Equity.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

A. B., of &c. [address and description], Plaintiff,
and

C. D., of &c. [address and description], Defendant.

A. B., the above-named plaintiff, states as follows:—

1. E. F., late of —, was at the time of his death, and his estate still is, indebted to the plaintiff in the sum of [here insert nature of debt and security, if any].

2. The said E. F. duly made his last will, dated the — day of —, and thereof appointed C. D. executor [or devised his estate in trust, &c., or died intestate, as the case may be].

M M 2

3. The said will was duly proved by the said C. D. [or letters of administration were granted, &c.]

4. The defendant has possessed himself of the personal [and real, or the proceeds of the real,] estate of the said E. F., and has not paid the plaintiff his said debt.

5. The said E. F. died on or about the — day of —, and had his last place of abode within the jurisdiction of this Court. [Omit this if C. D. has his place of abode within the jurisdiction of this Court.]

6. The whole of the personal [and real] estate of the said E. F. does not exceed in amount [or value] the sum of 500*l*.

7. The plaintiff prays that an account may be taken of the personal [and real] estate of the said E. F., deceased, and that the same may be duly administered under the decree of the Court, and for such further or other relief as the Court may think fit.

This plaint was filed by —, of —, attorney for the plaintiff, or by —, of —.

By Legatee (Specific).

Omit paragraph 1, and commence paragraph 2, E. F., late of —, duly made his last will, dated the — day of —, and thereof appointed C. D., executor, "and by such will bequeathed to the plaintiff [here state the specific legacy]."

For paragraph 4, substitute—

The defendant is in possession of the personal estate of the said E. F., and inter alia, of the said [here name the subject of the specific bequest].

For the commencement of paragraph 7, substitute—

The plaintiff prays that the defendant may be ordered to deliver to him the said [here name the subject of the specific bequest], or that, &c.

By Legatee (Pecuniary).

Omit paragraph 1, and substitute for paragraph 2, E. F., of —, duly made his last will, dated the — day of —, and thereof appointed C. D. executor, and by such will bequeathed to the plaintiff a legacy of £—.

In paragraph 4, substitute "legacy" for "debt."

By Legatee (Residuary).

Omit paragraph 1, and substitute for paragraph 2, E. F., late of —, duly made his last will, dated the — day of —, and thereof appointed C. D. executor, and by such will bequeathed to the plaintiff the residue [or a part or the residue] of his personal [or and the proceeds of his real] estate.

In paragraph 4, substitute "the residue [or share of residue] so bequeathed" for "said debt."

Next of Kin.

For paragraphs 1, 2, 3, and 4, substitute—

1. E. F., late of —, was at the time of his death possessed and entitled of personal estate.

2. He died on or about the — day of —, intestate.

3. Letters of administration were duly granted to the defendant, and that he has possessed himself of the personal estate of the deceased [leave out "letters of administration were duly granted to the defendant and that" if none have been granted].

4. That the plaintiff is next of kin [or one of the next of kin] of the said E. F.

5.—EXECUTION OF TRUSTS.—[Clause 2, of Sect. 1.]

Plaint in Equity.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

A. B., of &c. [address and description] - - Plaintiff.
and

C. D., of &c. [address and description], the or one of the cestui que trusts (see Rule 6 of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 88, s. 42) - - - Defendant.

A. B., the above-named plaintiff, states as follows:—

1. He is one of the trustees under a deed of settlement bearing date on or about the — day of —, made upon the marriage of the said E. F. and G. H., the father and mother of the defendant [or a deed of assignment of the estate and effects of E. F. for the benefit of C. D. the defendant, and other the creditors of E. F.]

2. The said A. B. has taken upon himself the burthen of the said trust, and is seised of — [or in possession of or of the proceeds of] the lands, tenements, and hereditaments [goods and chattels], conveyed [or assigned] by the before-mentioned deed.

3. The trust estate [or fund] does not exceed in amount [or value] the sum of 500*l*.

4. The said C. D. claims to be entitled to a beneficial interest under the before-mentioned deed.

5. The plaintiff is desirous to account for all the rents and profits of the said lands, tenements, and hereditaments [and the proceeds of the sale of the said or part of the said lands, tenements, and hereditaments, or goods and chattels, or the proceeds of the sale of or part of the said goods and chattels, or the profits accruing to the plaintiff as such trustee in the execution of the said trust]; and he prays that the Court will take the accounts of the said trust, and also that the whole of said trust estate may be administered in the court for the benefit of the said C. D. the defendant, and all other persons who may be interested in such administration, in the presence of the said C. D., and such other persons so interested as the Court may direct, or that the said C. D. may shew good cause to the contrary.

This plaint was filed by —, of —, attorney for the plaintiff, or by —.

[N.B.—Where the suit is by a cestui que trust the plaint may be modelled, mutatis mutandis, on the plaint by a legatee.]

6.—FORECLOSURE.—[Clause 3, of Sect. 1.]

Plaint in Equity.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

A. B., of &c. [address and description], Plaintiff.
and

C. D., of &c. [address and description], Defendant.

A. B., the above named plaintiff, states as follows:—

1. By an indenture of mortgage, bearing date on or about the — day of —, 18—, a freehold [copyhold or leasehold] cottage, with the garden and appurtenances, situated within the jurisdiction of this Court, were conveyed [or assigned] by the defendant to him the plaintiff, his heirs [or executors, administrators,] and assigns, for securing the principal sum of £—, together with interest thereon after the rate of 6*l*. per centum per annum, subject to redemption upon payment by the said defendant of the said principal and interest at a day long since passed.

2. There is now due from the defendant to the plaintiff the sum of £—, for principal and interest on the said mortgage.

3. The plaintiff prays that the Court will order the defendant to pay him the said sum of £—, with such further interest as may accrue between the filing of the plaint and the day of payment, and also the costs of this suit, on some day to be named by the Court, and in default that the equity of redemption of the said mortgaged premises may be foreclosed, or that the said premises may be sold, and the proceeds applied in and towards the payment of the said principal, interest, and costs; and he prays that for that purpose all proper directions may be given and account taken by the Court.

This plaint was filed by —, of —, attorney for the plaintiff, or by —.

REDEMPTION.

Transpose parties and also the facts in paragraph 1.

For paragraph 2, substitute—

2. There is now due from the plaintiff to the defendant, for principal and interest on the said mortgage, the sum of £—, which the plaintiff is ready and willing to pay to the defendant, of which the defendant before filing this plaint had notice.

For paragraph 3, substitute—

The defendant prays that he may redeem the said premises, and that the defendant may be ordered to reconvey [or reassign] the same to him upon payment of the said sum of £—, and interest, with such costs as the Court may order (if any), upon a day to be named by the Court, and that the Court will give all proper directions for the preparation and execution of such reconveyance [or assignment], and doing such other acts as may be necessary to put him into possession of the said premises, freed from the said mortgage.

7.—SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.—[Clause 4, of Sect. 1.]
Plaint in Equity.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

A. B., of &c. [address and description], Plaintiff.
and

C. D., of &c. [address and description], Defendant.

A. B., the above-named plaintiff, states as follows:—

1. By an agreement, dated the — day of —, and signed by the above-named defendant C. D., he the said C. D. contracted to buy of [or sell to] him certain freehold property, therein described and referred to, for the sum of £—.

2. He has applied to the said C. D. specifically to perform the said agreement on his part, but that he has not done so.

3. The said A. B. has been and still is ready and willing specifically to perform the agreement on his part, of which the said C. D. has had notice.

4. The plaintiff prays that the Court will order the said C. D. specifically to perform the said agreement, and to do all acts necessary to put the said A. B. in full possession of the said property [or to accept a conveyance and possession of the said property], and to pay the costs of the suit.

This plaint was filed by —, of —, attorney for the plaintiff, or by —.

[N. B.—In suit for delivery up to be cancelled of any agreement, omit paragraphs 2 and 3, and substitute a paragraph stating generally the grounds for requiring the agreement to be delivered up to be cancelled, such as that the plaintiff signed it by mistake, under distress, or by the fraud of the defendant, and alter the prayer according to the relief sought.]

8.—UNDER TRUSTEE RELIEF ACT.—[Clause 5, of Sect. 1.]
Proceeding in Equity.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Matter of —.

The petition of A. B., of &c. [address and description].
Sheweth,

1. That by a deed of settlement, bearing date the — day of —, made upon the marriage of C. D. with E. F., certain freehold property in the settlement mentioned was conveyed to [or that C. D., deceased, by his will bearing date the — day of —, and proved on the — day of —, by your petitioner and G. H. in the Prerogative Court of the Archbishop of Canterbury, certain freehold property in the will mentioned was devised to] the petitioner, together with G. H., upon certain trusts, inter alia [here set out the clause or portion of the trust deed or will upon which the order of the Court is required].

2. That the said G. H. died on or about the — day of —, leaving the petitioner surviving trustee.

3. That disputes and doubts have arisen under the clause before set out, as to whether [here set out the specific question upon which the opinion, advice, or direction of the Court is required].

4. That the trust estate [or fund] to which this proceeding relates does not exceed in value the sum of 500l.

5. That the persons interested in this application are I. J., of &c. [address and description], K. L., of &c.

6. Your petitioner prays the Court to declare its opinion, advice, or direction whether [here state specific question which the Court is asked to determine].

This petition was filed by —, of —, attorney for the plaintiff, or by —.

[N. B.—By stat. 23 & 24 Vict. c. 38, s. 9, this must be signed by counsel.]

9.—UNDER TRUSTEE ACTS.

Proceeding in Equity.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Matter of —.

The petition of A. B., of &c. [address and description].
Sheweth,

1. That C. D., deceased, by his will, bearing date the — day of —, and proved on the — day of —, by your petitioner and G. H. in the Prerogative Court of the Archbishop of Canterbury, certain freehold property in the will mentioned was devised to [or that by a deed of settlement, bearing date the — day of —, made upon the marriage of C. D. with E. F., certain freehold property in the settlement mentioned was conveyed to] the petitioner, together with G. H., upon certain trusts.

2. That the said G. H. died on or about the — day of —, leaving the petitioner surviving trustee.

3. That the said trusts are still unexecuted, and that the petitioner is unable by reason of having left the neighbourhood [or his bodily infirmity, or any cause for relinquishing trust] further to execute the said trusts; that it is for the advantage of the parties beneficially interested in the due execution of the trust that new trustees be appointed by the Court in the place of the petitioner.

4. That — and —, of &c. [address and description], are proper persons to appoint as such trustees.

5. That I. J., of &c. [address and description], and L. M., of &c. [address and description], are the persons beneficially interested in the said trust.

6. Your petitioner prays that the said — and —, or some other persons to be named by the Court, be appointed trustees in his place and stead, and that the cost of the proceeding be ordered to be paid out of the trust fund, and to give such directions as may be necessary for executing such order.

This petition was filed by —, of —, attorney for the plaintiff, or by —.

10.—MAINTENANCE AND ADVANCEMENT OF INFANTS.—
[Clause 6, of Sect. 1.]

Proceeding in Equity.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Matter of —.

The petition of A. B., of &c. [address and description].
Sheweth,

1. That he is guardian [or trustee] of C. D., an infant, and that by the will of E. F. a sum of £— was bequeathed to the petitioner, upon trust to apply the income thereof to the maintenance and education of the said C. D. during his minority, and to pay the said principal sum of £— to the said C. D. upon his attaining the age of twenty-one years.

2. That the said C. D. is now of the age of fourteen years or thereabouts, and is now resident within the jurisdiction of this Court, and the petitioner has heretofore spent the whole of the accruing interest upon his maintenance and education.

3. That in the opinion of your petitioner it would be greatly to the interest and advancement of the said C. D. if a sum of £—, part of the said principal money of £—, was now expended by the petitioner in payment to G. H., of —, saddler, as a premium to the said G. H. to take and receive the said C. D. as his in-door apprentice.

4. The petitioner prays that he may direct him to use and appropriate the said sum of £—, part of the said principal trust money or sum of £— for the apprenticeship of the said infant accordingly.

This petition was filed by —, of —, attorney for the plaintiff, or by —.

11.—PARTNERSHIP.—[Clause 7, of Sect. 1.]
Plaint in Equity.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

A. B., of &c. [address and description], Plaintiff,
and

C. D., of &c. [address and description], Defendant.

A. B., the above-named plaintiff states as follows:—

1. He and the said C. D., the defendant, have been for the space of — years [or months] last past carrying on business together at —, within the jurisdiction of this Court, under certain articles of partnership in writing, signed by them respectively [or under a certain deed sealed and executed by them respectively, or under a verbal agreement between them, the said plaintiff and defendant].

2. Divers disputes and differences have arisen between the plaintiff and defendant as such partners, whereby it has become impossible to carry on the said business in partnership with advantage to the partners.

3. The whole of the property, stock, and credits of such partnership do not exceed in value the sum of 500l.

4. The plaintiff desired to have the said partnership dissolved, and he is ready and willing to bear his share of the debts and obligations of the partnership according to the terms of the said articles [deed or agreement].

5. The plaintiff prays the Court to decree a dissolution of the said partnership, and that the accounts of the said partnership trading may be taken by the Court, and the assets thereof realised, and that each party may be ordered to pay into court any balance due from him upon such partnership account, and that the debts and liabilities of the said partnership may be paid and discharged, and that the costs of the suit may be paid out of the partnership assets, and that any balance remaining of such assets, after such payment and discharge, and the payment of the said costs, may be divided between the plaintiff and defendant, according to the terms of the said articles [deed or agreement], or that if the said assets shall prove insufficient, he, the plaintiff, and the said defendant may be ordered to contribute in such proportions as shall be just to a fund to be raised for the payment of and discharge of such debts, liabilities, and costs. And to give such other relief as the Court shall think fit.

This plaint was filed by —, of —, attorney for the plaintiff, or by —.

[N. B.—In suits for winding up of any partnership omit the prayer for dissolution; but instead thereof insert a paragraph stating the fact of the partnership having been dissolved.]

12.—NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR ORDER IN THE NATURE OF INJUNCTION.—[Clause 8, of Sect. 1.]

Proceeding in Equity.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

Take notice, that I, A. B., intend to apply at the sitting of the Court at aforesaid, on the — day of — [or to Mr. Judge —, at his sittings at —, or at —, on the — day of —, as the case may be], for an order in the nature of an injunction to restrain C. D. from further prosecuting an action which he has commenced against me in the Exchequer of Pleas to recover damages for the breach of the contract for the specific performance of which this suit was commenced [or to restrain him from receiving and giving discharges for any of the debts due to the partnership in the matter of the partnership between us for the winding up of which the suit was commenced, or from digging the turf from the land which was agreed to be sold by him to me by the agreement, the specific performance of which this suit is commenced to enforce, or as the case may be].

Dated this — day of —, 186—.

A. B.

To C. D.

[N. B.—Where the order in the nature of an injunction is to be applied for against a party whose name and address does not appear upon any proceeding already filed in the suit, it must be stated in full to enable the high bailiff to serve the notice.]

13.—SUMMONS ON PLAINT.

No. of Plaint in Equity.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

(Seal.)

A. B. [address and description], Plaintiff,
and

C. D. [address and description], Defendant.

You are hereby summoned to appear at the county court, to be holden at —, on the — day of —, at the hour of — in the — noon, to shew cause why the relief prayed for in the plaint hereunto annexed should not be granted.

Dated this — day of —, 186—.

—, Registrar.

To C. D., defendant [or one of the defendants].

N. B.—If you do not attend either in person or by your attorney at the time and place above mentioned, such decree or order will be made and proceedings taken as the judge may think just and expedient.

[Indorsement on Summons].

If you desire to lessen the amount of costs which you may be put to, you should follow such of these directions as may apply.

If you desire to admit the truth of the allegations in the plaint, and to submit to the judgment of the Court, you may, at any time before the return day of the original summons, appear before the registrar, and in his presence sign an admission of the truth of the plaint and a consent to abide by and perform any decree or order the Court may make.

If you desire to disclaim any interest in the subject-matter of the suit, or if you intend at the hearing to deny any of the statements in the plaint, or raise any question of law upon such statement without admitting the truth thereof, you may deliver to the registrar, within eight days after the service of the summons upon you, a statement signed by you to that effect.

If you intend to rely on a set-off, infancy, coverture, a Statute of Limitation, or a discharge under a Bankrupt or an Insolvent Act, as a defence, you must give notice of such special defence to the registrar five clear days before the day of hearing, and such notice must contain the particulars required by the County Court Rules, 1857; and you must deliver to the registrar as many copies of such notice as there are plaintiffs, and an additional copy for the use of the Court. If your defence be a set-off, you must, with each notice thereof, deliver to the registrar a statement of the particulars thereof.

Summonses for witnesses and for the production of documents will be issued upon application at the office of the registrar of the Court upon payment of the proper fee.

14.—NOTICE TO ADMIT AND INSPECT.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

Take notice, that the plaintiff [or defendant or petitioner] proposes to adduce in evidence on the trial in this cause [or matter] the several documents hereunder specified, and that the same may be inspected by the defendant [or plaintiff or petitioner], his attorney or agent, at —, on —, between the hours of —; and the defendant [or plaintiff or petitioner] is hereby required, within forty-eight hours from the last-mentioned hour, to admit that such of the said documents as are specified to be originals were respectively written, signed, or executed as they purport respectively to have been; that such as are specified as copies are true copies; and that such documents as are stated to have been served, sent, or delivered, were so served, sent, or delivered respectively, saving all just exceptions to the admissibility of all such document as evidence on such trial.

Dated the — day of —.

G. H., Attorney for —.

To E. F., Attorney for —.

ORIGINALS.

Description of the Documents.	Date.

COPIES.

Description of Documents.	Dates.	Original or Duplicate served, sent, or delivered, when, how, and by whom.

15.—APPLICATION FOR SUMMONS TO PRODUCE.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

To the Registrar of the above Court.

I, A. B. [or C. D.], hereby apply for a summons to issue, calling upon —, of —, to attend the Court upon the — day of —, and then and there to produce the following documents:—

A. B. [or C. D.]

ORIGINALS.

Description of the Documents.	Date.

COPIES.

Description of Documents.	Dates.	Original or Duplicate served, sent, or delivered, when, how, and by whom.

16.—SUMMONS TO WITNESS.

No. of Plaintiff in Equity.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

You are hereby required to attend at [Court House in —] on —, the — day of —, 186—, at the hour of — in the — noon, to give evidence in the above cause on behalf of the [plaintiff or defendant, as the case may be], and then and there to have and produce [the several documents hereunder specified], and all other books, papers, writings, and other documents relating to the said action, which may be in your custody, possession, or power. In default of your attendance, you will be liable to a penalty of 10l.

Dated this — day of —, 186—.

—, Registrar.

To —.

[Here insert list of documents mentioned in the application for the summons.]

17.—DEFENDANT'S ADMISSION.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

I, the undersigned defendant, admit the truth of the allegations in the plaint, and hereby submit to the judgment of the Court thereon.

(Signed) C. D., Defendant.

Signed in the presence of —.

[This paper marked (A.) is the paper referred to in the annexed affidavit.]

18.—AFFIDAVIT OF SIGNATURE TO DEFENDANT'S ADMISSION.

No. of Plaintiff in Equity.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

I, —, of —, gentleman, an attorney of her Majesty's Court of —, at Westminster, make oath and say, that I was present on the — day of —, 186—, and did see the above-named C. D., the defendant, sign the statement hereunto annexed, marked with the letter (A), and that the name set to the said statement is in the handwriting of the defendant, and that the name set to the said statement as the witness attesting the same is in my handwriting.

Sworn at —, in the county of —, this — day of —, 186—, before me.

19.—DEFENDANT'S STATEMENTS.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

I, the undersigned defendant [or one of the defendants], disclaim all interest under the will of the said E. F. in the plaint named [or as heir-at-law, or as next of kin, or one of the next of kin, of E. F., deceased, in the said plaint named.]

Or, I, the undersigned defendant, state, that I admit [or deny] [here repeat, in the language of the plaint, the statements admitted or denied.]

Or, I, the undersigned defendant, submit that, upon the facts stated in the plaint, it does not appear that there is any agreement which can be legally enforced [or, that it appears upon the said plaint that I am jointly liable with one E. F., who is not a party to the suit, and not severally liable, as by the plaint appears; or, that it appears by the said plaint that G. H. should have been a joint plaintiff with the said A. B. in the said suit; or as the case may be.]

Or, that the plaintiff has conveyed [or assigned] his interest in the said mortgage [or equity of redemption] to one I. J. [or, that I have conveyed or assigned to H. L., by way of further charge for securing the sum of £—, the equity of redemption in the property sought by the suit to be foreclosed.]

Or, that since the dissolution of the partnership the plaintiff has executed a deed under seal, whereby the plaintiff covenants to discharge all debts and liabilities of the partnership, and generally to release me from all claims and liabilities, either by or to himself and others, in respect of the said partnership trading, or as the case may be.

(Signed) C. D., Defendant.

Where filed by attorney, add—

This statement was filed by —, of —, attorney for the defendant.

20.—DECRETAL ORDER.—ADMINISTRATION SUIT.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.,

or,

In the Matter of the Petition of A. B.

It is ordered that the following accounts and inquiries be taken and made; that is to say—

In Creditor's Suit.

1. That an account be taken of what is due to the plaintiff and all other the creditors of the deceased.

In Suits by Legatees.

2. An account to be taken of the legacies given by the testator's will.

In Suits by Next of Kin.

An inquiry be made and account taken of what, or of what share, if any, the plaintiff is entitled to as next of kin [or one of the next of kin] of the intestate.

[After the first paragraph, the decretal order will, where necessary, order, in a creditor's suit, inquiry and accounts for legatees, devisees, heirs-at-law, and next of kin. In suits by claimants other than creditors, after the first paragraph in all cases an order to inquire and take an account of creditors will follow the first paragraph, and such of the others as may be necessary will follow, omitting the first formal words. The form is continued as in a creditor's suit.]

3. An account of the funeral and testamentary expenses.

4. An account of the personal estate of the deceased come to the hands of the defendant, or to the hands of any other person by his order, or for his use.

5. An inquiry what part, if any, of the personal estate of the deceased are outstanding and undisposed of.

6. And it is further ordered, that the defendant do, on or before the — day of — next, pay into court all sums of money which shall be found to have come to his hands, or to the hands of any person by his order or to his use.

7. And that if the registrar shall find it necessary for carrying out the objects of the suit, to sell any part of the personal estate of the deceased, that the same be sold accordingly.

8. And that Mr. — be receiver in the suit [or proceeding], and receive and get in all outstanding debts and outstanding personal estate of the deceased, and pay the same into the hands of the registrar [and shall give security by bond for the due performance of his duties to the amount of £—.]

9. And it is further ordered, that if the personal estate of the deceased be found insufficient for carrying out the objects of the suit, then the following further inquiries be made, and accounts taken; that is to say—

10. That an inquiry be made what real estate the deceased was seised of or entitled to at the time of his death.

11. What are the incumbrances (if any) affecting the real estate of the deceased, or any part thereof.

12. An account, so far as possible, of what is due to the several incumbrancers, and to include a statement of the priorities of such of the incumbrancers as shall consent to the sale hereinafter directed.

13. And that the real estate of the deceased, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to make up the fund in court sufficient to carry out the object of the suit, be sold, with the approbation of the judge, free from incumbrances (if any) of such incumbrancers as shall consent to the sale, and subject to the incumbrances of such of them as shall not consent.

14. And it is ordered, that — shall have the conduct of the sale of the real estate, and shall prepare the conditions and contracts of sale, and the abstract of title, subject to the approval of the registrar, and that in case any doubt or difficulty shall arise the papers shall, with the like approval, be submitted to —, Esq., to settle.

15. And it is further ordered that, for the purpose of the inquiries hereinbefore directed, the registrar shall advertise in the newspapers according to the practice of the Court, or shall make such inquiries in any other way which shall appear to the registrar to give the most useful publicity to such inquiries.

16. And it is ordered, that the above inquiries and accounts be made and taken, and that all other acts ordered to be done be completed, before the — day of —, and that the registrar do certify the result of the inquiries, and the accounts, and that all other acts ordered are completed, and have his certificate in that behalf ready for the inspection of the parties on the — day of —.

17. And, lastly, it is ordered that this suit [or matter] stand adjourned for making a final decree to the — day of —.

[Such part only of this decretal order is to be used as is applicable to the particular case.]

21.—FORM OF ORDER UNDER ORDER VI, RULE 14, OR UNDER ORDER XII.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

It appearing to me that it will be for the benefit of the estate that the remaining outstanding debts be sold, I do order that the debts now due to the estate of E. F., the testator [or intestate], in the plaint in this suit mentioned, be sold as soon as conveniently may be by — [the receiver] by private contract [or public auction] for the highest price that can be obtained for the same.

Dated this — day of —.

J. S., Judge.

22.—FORM OF ORDER UNDER ORDER VI, RULE 14, OR UNDER ORDER XII.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

It appearing to me that it is necessary for carrying out the objects of this suit that the real estate [or part of the real estate] of the deceased be sold, I do order that all that freehold [copyhold or leasehold] messuage or tenement, &c. [setting out parcels as in last conveyance], being the real [or part of the real] estate of E. F., late of —, in the county of —, deceased, the testator [or intestate] in the plaint in the suit mentioned, be offered for sale by public auction at the — Hotel, at —, by Mr. —, auctioneer, and be then and there sold [provided the sum bid for the same be not less than £—, or] to the highest bidder without reserve.

Dated this — day of —.

J. S., Judge.

23.—DECRETAL ORDER FOR REFERENCE IN FORECLOSURE SUIT BY LEGAL MORTGAGEE.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

It is ordered, that it be referred to the registrar to take an account of what is due to the plaintiff for principal and interest on the mortgage mentioned in the plaint (making allowance on one side or the other for any rents or profits received by the plaintiff, and for any sums of money lawfully expended by the plaintiff about the mortgaged premises), and to tax the plaintiff's costs of this suit, and that the registrar do certify to the Court on the — day of — what he shall find to be due for principal and interest as aforesaid, and for costs: and upon the defendant paying into court what shall be certified to be due to the plaintiff for principal and interest as aforesaid, together with the said costs, within six months after the registrar shall have presented his certificate, it is ordered that the plaintiff do reconvey the said mortgaged premises, free and clear from all incumbrances done by him, or any claiming by, from, or under him, and do deliver up to the registrar all deeds and writings in his custody or power relating thereto; and that upon such reconveyance being made, and deeds and writings being delivered up, the registrar shall pay out to the plaintiff the said sum so paid in as aforesaid, for principal, interest, and costs; but in default of the defendant paying into court such principal, interest, and costs as aforesaid, then it is ordered that the defendant do stand absolutely debarred and foreclosed of and from all equity of redemption of, in, and to the said premises, and the registrar is to settle the conveyance if the parties differ about the same; and it is further ordered, that after the expiration of the said six months, the plaintiff shall be at liberty to apply to the Court for a final decree for the foreclosure of the said mortgage.

[N. B.—Where the state of the account is ascertained at the first hearing, instead of the order of reference to the registrar, begin, it is declared that the sum of £— is now due to the plaintiff for principal and interest on the mortgage mentioned in the plaint, and it is ordered that the registrar do tax the plaintiff's costs of this suit, and that]

24.—DECRETAL ORDER OF SALE IN A SUIT BY A LEGAL OR EQUITABLE MORTGAGEE OR PERSON ENTITLED TO A LIEN.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

It is ordered, that it be referred to the registrar to take an account of what is due to the plaintiff for principal and interest on the mortgage [or equitable mortgage or lien] mentioned in the plaint, and to tax the plaintiff's costs of this suit, and that the registrar do certify to the Court on the — day of —, what he shall find to be due for principal and interest as aforesaid, and for costs: and upon the defendant paying into court what shall be certified to be due to the plaintiff for principal and interest as aforesaid, together with the said costs, within six months after the registrar shall have presented his certificate, it is ordered that the plaintiff [do reconvey the said mortgaged premises free and clear from all incumbrances done by him, or any claiming by, from, or under him, and] do deliver up to the registrar all deeds and writings in his custody or power relating thereto; and that upon such reconveyance being made, and deeds and writings being delivered up, the registrar shall pay out to the plaintiff the said sum so paid in as aforesaid for principal, interest, and costs; but in default of the defendant paying into court such principal, interest, and costs as aforesaid by the time aforesaid, then it is ordered that the said mortgaged premises [or the premises subject to the said equitable mortgage or lien] be sold with the approbation of the registrar: and it is ordered that the money to arise by such sale be paid into court, to the end that the same may be duly applied in payment of what shall be found due to the plaintiff for principal, interest, and costs as aforesaid, and that the balance (if any) shall be paid to the defendant.

25.—DECRETAL ORDER.—DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

It is declared that the partnership in the plaint mentioned between the plaintiff and defendant ought to stand dissolved as from the — day of —, and it is ordered that the dissolution thereof as from that day be advertised in the London Gazette, &c.

And it is ordered that — be the receiver of the partnership estate and effects in this suit, and do get in all the outstanding book debts and claims of the partnership.

And it is ordered that the following accounts be taken:—

1. An account of the credits, property, and effects now belonging to the said partnership.
2. An account of the debts and liabilities of the said partnership.
3. An account of all dealings and transactions between the plaintiff and defendant from the foot of the settled account exhibited in this suit and marked (A.), and not disturbing any subsequent settled accounts.

And it is ordered that the goodwill of the business heretofore carried on by the plaintiff and defendant as in the plaint mentioned, and the stock-in-trade, be sold on the premises, and that the registrar may, on the application of any of the parties, fix a reserved bidding for all or any of the lots at such sale, and that either of the parties are to be at liberty to bid at the sale.

And it is ordered that the above accounts be taken, and all the other acts required to be done be completed, before the — day of —, and that the registrar do certify the result of the accounts, and that all other acts are completed, and have his certificate in that behalf ready for the inspection of the parties on the — day of —.

And, lastly, it is ordered that this suit stand adjourned for making a final decree to the — day of —.

26.—FINAL DECREE FOR FORECLOSURE.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

Whereas it appears to the Court that the defendant has not paid into court the sum of £—, which was on the — day of — last certified by the registrar to be due to the plaintiff for principal and interest upon the mortgage in the plaint mentioned, and for costs, pursuant to the decretal order made in this suit on the — day of — last, and that the period of six months has elapsed since the said — day of —.

It is ordered that the defendant do stand absolutely debarred and foreclosed of and from all equity of redemption off, in, and to the said mortgaged premises.

27.—PARTNERSHIP.

Final Decree.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

It is ordered that the fund now in court, amounting to the sum of £—, be applied as follows:—

1. In payment of the debts due by the partnership set forth in the registrar's certificate, amounting in the whole to £—.

2. In payment of the costs of all parties in this suit, amounting to £—. [These costs must be ascertained before the decree is drawn up.]

3. In payment of the sum of £— to the plaintiff as his share of the partnership assets, and of the sum of £—, being the residue of the said sum of £— now in court, to the defendant, as his share of the partnership assets.

[Or, and that the remainder of the said sum of £— be paid to the said plaintiff [or defendant] in part payment of the sum of £—, certified to be due to him in respect of the partnership accounts.]

And that the defendant [or plaintiff] do, on or before the — day of —, pay to the plaintiff [or defendant] the sum of £—, being the balance of the said sum of £— due to him which will then remain due.]

28.—NOTICE OF DECRETAL ORDER TO ABSENT PARTY.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

Take notice, that on the — day of —, the decree, of which a copy is herewith annexed, was made in this cause, and that from the service of this notice you will be bound by the proceedings in the above cause, in the same manner as if you had been originally made a party to the suit, and that you may attend the proceedings under the said decretal order, and that you may apply to the Court to add to the decretal order.

To —, —, Registrar.

29.—NOTICE TO CREDITOR TO PROVE HIS CLAIM.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

You are hereby required to prove the claim sent in by you against the estate of A. B., deceased, by filing such affidavit as you may be advised in support thereof, and by giving notice thereof to me, on or before the — day of — next, and by attending at my office on the — day of —, 188—, at — o'clock in the — noon, being the time appointed for adjudicating on the claim.

Dated this — day of —, 186—.

To —, —, Registrar.

30.—NOTICE TO CREDITOR OF ALLOWANCE OF CLAIM.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

The claim sent in by you against the estate of A. B., deceased, has been allowed at the sum of £—, with interest thereon at £— per cent. per annum, from the — day of —, 186—, and £— for costs.

[If part only allowed, add, if you claim to have a larger sum allowed, you are hereby required to prove such further claim, by filing such affidavit as you may be advised in support thereof, and by giving notice thereof to me on or before the — day of — next, and by attending at my office on the — day of —, 186—, at — o'clock in the — noon.]

Dated this — day of —, 186—.

—, Registrar.

31.—REGISTRAR'S CERTIFICATE.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

In obedience to the decretal order of this Court made in the above suit, I hereby certify that the result of the accounts and inquiries [or, of the sale and apportionment] which have been taken and made in pursuance of the — made in this —, dated the — day of —, 186—, is as follows.

The plaintiffs and defendants have attended by themselves or by their respective attorneys.

Notice of Decretal Order.

Notice of the said decretal order of the — day of —, 186—, has been served upon —.

The persons so served include all the — now living, and the personal representatives of such of them as are dead, except such as are parties to this suit, and except —, hereinafter named —.

Service of notice of the said decretal order upon the said —, was dispensed with.

Personal Estate Account.

The defendant —, the executor [or administrator] of —, the testator [or intestate] named in the said —, have received personal estate to the amount of £—, and they have paid, or are entitled to be allowed, on account thereof sums to the amount of £—, leaving a balance due from [or to] them of £— on that account.

References to Account.

The particulars of the above receipts and payments appear in the account marked (A.), verified by the affidavit of the said defendant —, filed the — day of —, and the account marked (B.), verified by the affidavit of —, filed the — day of —, and which accounts are to be filed with this certificate.

Variations from Accounts.

Except that in addition to the sums appearing in such account to have been received, the said defendant [or plaintiff] is [or are] charged with the following sums (that is to say), £—; and except that of the items of disbursement in the said account I have disallowed those numbered —, and I have deducted from the item numbered — the sum of £—, and from the item numbered — the sum of £—, and in addition to the disbursements appearing in such account the said defendant has paid and been allowed the sum of £—.

Special Allowances in Accounts.

The payments allowed to the said defendant [or plaintiff] in the said account include the sum of £— paid into court to the credit of this cause, on the — day of —, 186—.

Reference to Transcript of Account.

The before-mentioned account marked (A.) has been altered, and the account marked (A. B.), and which is also to be filed with the certificate, is a transcript of the said account marked (A.), as altered and passed.

No Personal Estate received.

The defendant —, the executor [or administrator] of the testator [or intestate] named in the said — have not, nor hath any or either of them, or any person or persons by their or any or either of their order, or for their or any or either of their use, received any part of the personal estate of the said testator [or intestate].

Funeral Expenses.

The funeral expenses of the testator [or intestate], amounting to the sum of £—, have been paid and are allowed the defendant [or plaintiff] —, the executor [or administrator] of the said testator [or intestate] in the said account of personal estate [hereinafter mentioned].

Debts.

The debts of the testator [or intestate], including the plaintiffs which have been allowed are set forth in the — schedule hereto, and, with the interest thereon, and costs mentioned in the said schedule, are due to the plaintiff and the other persons therein named, and amount altogether to £—. No other person has been allowed, or come in and proved, any debt against the estate of the said testator [or intestate], and the time fixed by advertisement for that purpose has expired.

Such of the said debts as are specialty are set forth in the first part of the said — schedule, and amount to £—; such as are simple contract are set forth in the second part of the said — schedule, and amount to £—.

Interest on Debts.

The interest on such debts is computed down to the date of this certificate, and after the rate of 4l. per cent. per annum, from the — day of —, 186—, the date of the said decretal order, unless otherwise specified in the said schedule.

Legacies and Annuities.

The legacies given by the testator other than annuities, are set forth in the first part of the — schedule hereto, and, with the interest therein mentioned, remain due to the persons therein named, and amount altogether to £—.

The annuities given by the testator, with the arrears due thereon, are set forth in the second part of the said — schedule. Such arrears amount to £—.

Interest on Legacies.

The interest on such legacies is computed down to the date of this certificate, and after the rate of 4l. per cent. per annum, from the — day of —, 186—, the end of one year after the testator's death, unless otherwise specified in the said schedule.

The arrears of the annuities are computed to the date of this certificate, and from the testator's death, unless otherwise specified in the said schedule.

Outstanding Estate.

The personal estate of the said testator [or intestate] [not specifically bequeathed] outstanding or undisposed of, consists of the particulars set forth in the — schedule hereto.

Real Estate.

The real estate which the said testator [or intestate] was seised of or entitled to consists of the particulars set forth in the — schedule hereto.

Incumbrances on Real Estate.

The incumbrances affecting the said testator's [or intestate's] real estate are specified in the — schedule hereto.

Rents and Profits Account.

The defendants [or plaintiff] —, the trustee named in the said decretal order have received rents and profits of the testator's real estate, —, to the amount of £—, and they have paid or are entitled to be allowed on account thereof sums to the amount of £—, leaving a balance due from [or to] them of £— on that account.

No Rents and Profits received.

The defendants [or plaintiff] —, the trustees named in the said decretal order, have not, nor hath any or either of them, or any person or persons by their or any or either of their order, or for their or any or either of their use, received any sum or sums of money on account of the rents and profits of the testator's [or intestate's] real estate.

Next of Kin.

The next of kin, according to the statutes for the distribution of the effects of intestates, of —, the intestate named in the said —, living at the time of his death were —, of whom the said — have since died.

The legal personal representative of the said —.

The legal personal representative of the said —.

The legal personal representative of the said —.

Dated this — day of —.

—, Registrar.

32.—NOTICE THAT REGISTRAR'S CERTIFICATE MAY BE INSPECTED.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

Take notice, that the certificate of the result of the inquiries made and accounts taken by me under the decretal order of this Court made on the — day of —, in this cause, lies in my office, and can be inspected by you up to and inclusive of the — day of — [here insert the day before the cause is to be further heard].

Dated this — day of —.

—, Registrar.

To —.

33.—BOND TO BE GIVEN BY RECEIVER.

Know all men by these presents, that we, A. B., of &c., and C. D., of &c., and E. F., of &c., are jointly and severally held and firmly bound to G. H., registrar of the county court of —, holden at —, in £—, to be paid to the said G. H., or his certain attorney, executors, administrators, or assigns. For which payment to be made we bind ourselves, and each and every of us, in the whole, our and each of our heirs, executors, and administrators, jointly and severally, firmly by these presents.

Sealed with our seals, and dated this — day of —.

And whereas a plaint in equity has been filed in this court by A. B. against C. D., for the purpose of [here insert object of suit].

And whereas the said A. B. has been appointed, by order of the above-mentioned Court, to receive the rents and profits of the real [or freehold, or copyhold, or leasehold] estate [or estates] [and to get in the outstanding personal estate] of C. D., the testator in the said plaint named.

Now the condition of this obligation is such, that if the above bounden A. B. do and shall duly account for all and every the sum and sums of money which he shall so receive on account of the rents and profits of the real estates, and in respect of the personal estate, of the said C. D. [or as may be] at such periods as the said Court shall appoint, and do and shall duly pay the balances which shall from time to time be certified to be due from him as the said Court hath directed or shall hereafter direct, then this obligation shall be void and of none effect, otherwise shall remain in full force and virtue.

A. B. (L.S.)

C. D. (L.S.)

Signed, sealed, and delivered by the above bounden, in the presence of —.

Note.—If deposit of money be made, the memorandum thereof should follow the terms of the condition of the bond, and will not require a stamp.

34.—WARRANT OF EXECUTION ON A DECREE OR ORDER OF THE COURT FOR THE PAYMENT OF MONEY.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

Whereas on the — day of —, 186—, this Court did, in the matter of this suit, decree [or order] that A. B. [or C. D.] should pay to C. D. [or A. B.] [or should pay into court] the sum of £—: and whereas a copy of such decree [or order] was duly served upon A. B. [or C. D., as the case may be]: and whereas the said A. B. [or C. D.] has not paid the said sum of money according to the said decree [or order]: these are, therefore, to require and order you forthwith to make and levy, by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the said A. B. [or C. D.], wheresoever they may be found within the district of this court (excepting the wearing apparel and bedding of him or his family, and the tools and implements of his trade, if any, to the value of 5l.), the sum stated at the foot of this warrant, being the amount directed to be paid by the said decree [or order], including the costs of this execution; and also to seize and take any money or bank notes (whether of the Bank of England or of any other bank), and any cheques, bills of exchange, promissory notes, bonds, specialties, or securities for money, of A. B. [or C. D.] which may there be found, or such part or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy this execution, and the costs of making and executing the same, and to pay what you shall have so levied to the registrar of this court, and make return of what you have done under this warrant immediately upon the execution thereof.

Given under the seal of the Court this — day of —, 188—.

By the Court,

—, Registrar.

To the high bailiff of the said court,
and others the bailiffs thereof.

Amount ordered to be paid . . .
Costs . . .

Total amount to be levied . . .

35.—WARRANT OF ASSISTANCE.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

Whereas, according to the tenor and true meaning of a decree [or an order] bearing date the — day of —, 188—, made in the matter of this suit, the said defendant C. D. was ordered to deliver up possession to A. B. in the said order named of all that, &c. [as in order]: and whereas a copy of such decree [or order] was duly served upon the said C. D., yet nevertheless he, the said C. D., and other ill-disposed persons, his accomplices, have refused to pay obedience thereto, and detain and keep possession of the said house [or tenement and premises]: these are, therefore, to authorise and require you to forthwith enter into and upon the said messuage [or tenement and premises], and that you do remove, eject, and expel the said C. D., his tenants, servants, and accomplices, each and every of them, out of and from the said messuage [or tenement and premises], and every part and parcel thereof, and that you do place and put the said A. B. and his assigns into the full, peaceable, and quiet possession thereof, and defend and keep him and his said assigns in such peaceable and quiet possession when and as often as any interruption may or shall from time to time be given or offered to them, or any of them, according to the true intent and meaning of the said order; and herein you are not in anywise to fail.

Given under the seal of the Court this — day of —, 188—.

By the Court,

—, Registrar.

To the high bailiff of the said court,
and others the bailiffs thereof.

36.—WARRANT OF POSSESSION.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

Whereas, on the — day of —, 188—, this Court did in the matter of this suit decree [or order] that you, the high bailiff of this court, should [or that A. B. should] take possession of the goods and chattels of E. F., deceased, in the said suit mentioned, and which at the date of the said order were in the possession of the defendant [and sell and convert the same into money, or keep and hold the same to abide the further order of the Court, as the case may be].

These are, therefore, by virtue of the said decree [or order], and the statute in such case made and provided, to will and require, authorise, and empower you, and every one of you to whom this warrant is directed, forthwith to enter into and upon the house and houses of the said C. D., and also in all other place or places belonging to the said C. D., where any of the goods or chattels, part of the estate of the said E. F., deceased, are suspected to be; and there to seize all the goods and chattels whatsoever belonging to the estate of the said E. F., deceased.

And in case of resistance, or of not having the key or keys of any door, or lock of any premises belonging to the said C. D., where any of the goods or chattels, part of the estate of the said E. F., are suspected to be, you shall break open, or cause the same to be broken open, for the better execution of this warrant.

Given under the seal of the Court this — day of —, 188—.

By the Court,

—, Registrar.

To the high bailiff of the said court,
and others the bailiffs thereof.

37.—NOTICE OF CHANGE OF ATTORNEY.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

To the Registrar of the Court,

Take notice, that I, A. B. [or C. D.], have hitherto employed as my attorney G. H., of —, in the above-mentioned cause, but that I have ceased to employ him, and that my present attorney is I. K., of —.

A. B. [or C. D.]

38.—ORDER OF REVIVOR.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.

Upon application of [here state by whom the application is made, and the events which have happened rendering it necessary to apply], I do order that this suit stand revived, and be in the same plight and condition as the same was in at the time of the said abatement.

Dated this — day of —.

J. S., Judge.

39.—ORDER OF PAYMENT OF LEGACY INTO COURT OF CHANCERY.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.,

or,

In the Matter of —.

Whereas it has been found by this Court, by its decree of the — day of —, in this suit [or matter], that K. L., of —, is entitled to the sum of £—, and whereas the said K. L. is an infant [or absent beyond seas], and it appearing to the Court that it is desirable that, under the power given to it by the 5th section of the act of Parliament passed in the 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99, C. D., the defendant in this suit [or matter, or as the case may be], should be ordered to pay such sum of money to the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery, in accordance with the provisions of sect. 32 of an act passed in the session of Parliament held in the 36 Geo. 3, c. 52, it is ordered that the said [—] do pay the same accordingly, and do within — days produce to the registrar of this court the certificate of the said Accountant-General of the payment to him of such money.

By the Court,

—, Registrar.

[INDORSEMENT ON LAST ORDER.]

N.B.—Your attention is drawn to the following provisions of the Act 36 Geo. 3, c. 52, and to the Rule of this Court.

Any legacy or sum of money to which any person who is an infant or absent beyond seas may be found or declared entitled by any county court in any suit or matter under this act, may be ordered by the Court to be paid to the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery, in accordance with the provisions of sect. 32 of an act passed in the session of Parliament held in the 36 Geo. 3, c. 52; and the person ordered to pay the same shall, within such time as the Court shall direct, produce to the registrar of the court the certificate of the Accountant-General of the payment of such money; and if default be made in such payment, the judge may direct a warrant of execution to issue to the high bailiff of the court, who by such warrant shall be empowered to levy or cause to be levied, by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of such person, a sum of money equal in amount to the sum which he was ordered to pay to the said Accountant-General and to the costs incurred by reason of such default, and the sum so levied shall be paid to and be receivable by the said Accountant-General under the direction of the Court.

Rule of Court.—Where default shall be made in the production of the certificate of the Accountant-General, the registrar shall give notice in writing to the judge of the fact of such default, and the judge may thereupon direct a warrant of execution to issue in accordance with sect. 5 of the act.

40.—ORDER OF TRANSFER OF SUIT OR MATTER TO COURT OF CHANCERY.

In the County Court of —, holden at —.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.,

or,

In the Matter of —.

Whereas it appearing that the subject-matter of this suit exceeds in amount the sum of 500*l.*, it is ordered that this suit [or matter] be transferred to the High Court of Chancery, together with the annexed certificate of the registrar of this court, shewing the state of the suit [or matter] and the proceedings that have been had therein in this court.

By the Court,

—, Registrar.

41.—GENERAL HEADING FOR AND INDORSEMENT ON DECRETAL ORDER OR DECREE.

In the County Court of —, holden at —, on the — day of —.

Upon the hearing this day of Mr. —, for the plaintiffs, and upon the hearing of Mr. —, for the defendants [or if some of the defendants do not appear, then for the defendants C. D., &c., and no one appearing for the defendants E. and F., it is ordered]

[INDORSEMENT.]

Take notice, that unless you obey the directions contained in this order, obedience thereto will be enforced in such manner as the law provides.

42.—MEM. TO BE PLACED AT FOOT OF EVERY SUMMONS, NOTICE, DECREE, OR ORDER OF COURT, OR ANY OTHER PROCESS OF THE COURT.

Hours of attendance at the office of the registrar [place of office] from ten till four, except on [here insert the day on which the office will be closed], when the office will be closed at one.

43.—ALLOWANCE TO WITNESSES.

Gentlemen, merchants, bankers, and professional men, per diem, from £0 10 0 to £1 0 0
 Tradesmen, auctioneers, accountants, clerks, and yeomen, per diem, from 0 5 0 to 0 10 0
 Artisans and journeymen, per diem, from 0 3 0 to 0 5 0
 Labourers and the like, per diem, from 0 2 0 to 0 3 0
 Travelling expenses, sum reasonably paid, but no more than 6*d.* per mile one way.

A.—SUITS AND PROCEEDINGS IN EQUITY BOOK.

No. of Plaint or Petition —.

Date of Filing —.

PARTIES' NAMES.

Plaintiffs.	Defendants.
Name and Address of Plaintiffs' Attorney.	Name and Address of Defendants' Attorney.

NATURE OF SUIT OR PROCEEDING.

PROCEEDINGS.

By Plaintiff.			By Defendant.
Letter on filing.		Date.	Letter on filing.		Date.
	Here enter applications for substituted [or other] service of summons, subpoenas, injunctions, &c., or documents filed.			Here enter applications for subpoenas, and filing of admissions, statements, &c.

DECRETAL ORDER MADE ON RETURN DAY OF SUMMONS OR ADJOURNMENT.

Here set forth the Nature of the Decretal Order.	Date of Hearing.	Date of Adjournment.

PROCEEDINGS.

By Plaintiff.			By Defendant.
Letter on filing.		Date.	Letter on filing.		Date.
	Here enter all ex parte applications, or otherwise, and whether made by plaintiff or registrar, documents filed, warrants issued, &c.			Here enter all documents filed, &c.

Letter on filing.	CERTIFICATE.	Date.
	Date on which it was directed to be prepared for Court . . . Application to vary by . . . Application refused [or granted] . . . Date on which it was filed as confirmed [or as varied] . . .

Letter on filing.	FINAL DECREE.	Date of making.
	Here set forth shortly the particulars of the decree, such as the acts to be done, or sums to be paid, &c.

Letter on filing.	APPEAL.	Date.	Letter on filing.	COSTS TAKED.	£ s. d.	Date.
	Here enter proceedings had.			Plaintiff's bill; Defendants' bill; state out of what fund to be paid, &c.

EQUITABLE JURISDICTION.

B.—CASH BOOK.

Receipts.					Payments.
Date.	No. of Plaint or Petition.	Suit or Matter.	Ledger Folio.	Amount.	Date.	No. of Plaint or Petition.	Ledger Folio.	Amount.
		A. B. v. C. D.

EQUITABLE JURISDICTION.

C.—LEDGER.

In the Suit of A. B. v. C. D.
In the Matter of —.

Plaint No. of —.
Petition No. of —.

Folio in Cash Book.	Date when received.	Names of Per- sons from whom received.	On what Ac- count and from what Source re- ceived.	Amount received.	Folio in Cash Book.	Date when paid or allowed.	Names of Per- sons to whom paid or allowed.	For what Purpose paid or allowed.	Amount paid or allowed.

CASES AND CODES.—There is not a case in the books that does not stand, like the Alpine cross, to mark the scene of some fatal event. By right or might these famous rules of our law have become what they are, by the very sweat of the brow. At the making of every one of them there has been a conflict of interests or passions, which are indeed but theoretical interests, conducted on each side by chosen advocates possessed of more than all the virtues under heaven, and an indomitable spirit of contradiction. These come from all parts to fidget and draw out the judge, as the Queen of Sheba did King Solomon, by trying him with hard sayings. Can you not do without them? If the assisted judge sometimes err, shall the unassisted code-maker always keep his path straight? An embryo doubt is often more difficult to manage than a full-grown absurdity. Suppose you had been making your coffin (for what is a code proper of old statutes and reports, but "foenum cophinusque?") in the year 1790, how would you have provided for the case of a devise to sell land, and pay part of the proceeds to a person who should happen to die before the testator? How would you have done this impossible thing? To whom would you have given this share? You must have done something, for you would have undertaken to fix secondary rules. Lord Thurlow, the irascible mid-day Pan of his time, would have done it his own way, and done it wrong, if a certain Mr. John Scott, a young and unknown man, had not stepped forward with maiden blushes, and a mind all conglomerate with fine logic and weekly bills, and the contemptuous incredulity of his client, and the customary amaritudes of Rhadamanthus, and shewn his lordship how to do it in a speech for a crown. And this Mr. Scott you will not see, and if you do see him he will have nothing to say; for the flint gives no fire without the steel, and there can be no steel without hot and cold, and two forces make the world go round, and two doubts make a certainty; and counsel can neither think, say, do, or be anything without an opponent. Be it Tully and Hortensius, or muff and anti-muff, an equal adversary relieves conscience, for the counsel then knows that in the ordinary course of legal disceptations, what he says will be suspected, and what he says not will be disputed and gets affronted by everybody about him in such a variety of ways, that he feels free to retort beforehand, and rushes, shouting, into the jungle to excite, perplex, and madden his lordly judge as best he may. Yet, with all this, a case without a deal of nonsense is a case without discussion, and of infirm authority; unless a conveyancer's case, which, like a crane, often stands firmer and fishes to better purpose on one leg than on two. No one foresaw the Thellusson riot. The unwritten law did not, because it had got entangled with policy, the matrix of written law; but the hit told, a note was made, and a remedy provided. This was because unwritten law appeals to conscience, which in court matters is known on earth as "law in idleness," and is very uneasy and talkative; and thus it came to be said,—Would sound reasoning support the trusts of this will? And so the thing came to be bawdied about a good deal until it dropped into the ink, which is the amber of absurdity and syrup of wisdom, and made a great sensation. But a code article is a spoilt child, and must not be contradicted, and admits of no study; and if there had been such an article protecting this impolitic will, there might have been much derision and misery in by-places; but the force and arms, the wrong and injury of the affair, would never have come to light any more than the real point in Jarndice v. Jarndice, or what there was in Carstone's case that was to be set right in the next world, or why it was reported at all. Rights seemingly unprotected at common law, come out strong and clear at last, after a little adversity, from mere force of character.

The new statute, or code, cannot be intelligibly expressed by any industry, care, learning, judgment, obstinacy, or any means whatever. Construction, like an offended fairy, will be sure to step out from some nook or corner, and throw in a perverse charm to spoil the feast.—Thoughts on Legal Discontent. 1855.

WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY.

PRINCIPLES of the LAW of REAL PROPERTY, intended as a first Book for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law. The Sixth Edition, enlarged. 8vo., price 1l. cloth.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

* * The Publisher respectfully informs the Profession that the above book has been reprinted, and that copies can now be had at all booksellers in town and country.

WILLIAMS (JOSHUA) ON PERSONAL PROPERTY.

The Fifth Edition, price 18s. cloth boards.
PRINCIPLES of the LAW of PERSONAL PROPERTY, intended for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

JOSHUA WILLIAMS ON REAL ASSETS.

Price 6s. cloth boards.
AN ESSAY on REAL ASSETS; or the Payment of the Debts of a deceased Person out of his Real Estate, and the Means by which that Payment ought to be accomplished. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

In 1 thick vol. 8vo., price 1l. 8s. cloth boards.
A PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAWS relating to the CHURCH and the CLERGY. By H. W. CRIFFS, M.A., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law, Recorder of Lichfield. The Third Edition, revised and enlarged, containing the Statutes and Cases to the present time.

* * Since the publication of the first edition, the progress of legislation on the subjects treated of has rendered necessary considerable alterations and additions in this and in the preceding edition, and while much new matter has been introduced, all that has become obsolete has been omitted. In many other matters the law has been materially altered, and doubtful points have been settled by recently-decided cases, all which are now to be found in the present edition.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

LE RICHE'S BOOK of COSTS in the COMMON LAW, PROBATE, and DIVORCE COURTS: with Observations on the Principle of the Allowances, and an Analysis of Decisions upon Costs from the Time of passing the first Common-law Procedure Act. Post 8vo. 1860. Price 5s. cloth.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

COOKE ON INCLOSURE of COMMONS.

In 12mo., price 16s. cloth.
THE ACTS for facilitating the INCLOSURE of COMMONS in ENGLAND and WALES; with a Treatise on the Law of Rights of Commons, in reference to these Acts; and on the Jurisdiction of the Inclosure Commissioners in Exchanges and Partition; under the public and private Moneys Drainage Acts; and under the Companies' Acts relating thereto; with Forms as settled by the Commissioners. By GEORGE WINGROVE COOKE, of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law. Fourth Edition.
Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard Lincoln's-inn.

SETON'S DECREES IN EQUITY.

Now complete, in 2 vols. royal 8vo., price 2l. 18s. cloth, lettered.
SETON'S FORMS of DECREES in EQUITY, and of Orders connected with them. A new Edition, adapted to the present Practice, with Practical Notes. By W. H. HARRISON, Esq., Barrister at Law, and B. H. LEACH, Esq., one of the Registrars of the Court. Third Edition. 2 vols. royal 8vo. 1862.
Vol. 2, part 2, completing the work, may be had separately, price 14s. cloth.
Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

CHITTY'S COLLECTION OF STATUTES.

Now ready, in 4 very thick vols. price 12l. 12s. cloth.
A COLLECTION of all the STATUTES of PRACTICAL UTILITY, with Notes thereon; intended as a Circuit and Court Companion. The Third Edition, containing all the Statutes of Practical Utility in the Civil and Criminal Administration of Justice to the present time. By W. N. WELSBY and EDWARD BEAVAN, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

"The principal branches of the Law are arranged alphabetically, and under each is collected all the Statutes relating to it, with explanatory notes. Besides the easy access afforded by the alphabetical arrangement of the subjects, a very copious general Index supplies the means of ready reference to all the subjects of lesser importance to which the various Statutes are directed."

"We could not say more for this great work by any words of approbation than by this short description of it. It is an admirable design admirably executed."—Law Times, May 13, 1855.

* * In the debate on the proposed consolidation of the Statutes, on the 9th February, 1854, Lord Campbell said, "that the Statutes at large extended to about fifty volumes folio, but all the Statutes which were usually required by lawyers for reference might be found in three octavo volumes, compiled by his learned friend Mr. Welsby. When he (Lord Campbell) was upon the Bench, he always had this work by him, and no Statutes were ever referred to by the Bar which he could not find in it."

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 12mo., price 5s. boards.

THE LEASES AND SALES of SETTLED ESTATES ACT, 19 & 20 VICT. c. 120; and the General Orders and Regulations relating thereto. With an Introduction and Notes, and a Supplement, containing the Amending Act, 21 & 22 VICT. c. 77, and the Cases and Decisions down to the end of Easter Term, 1861. By M. I. FORTESCUE BRICKDALE, of the Middle Temple and Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

GEEVES'S CRIMINAL ACTS.—Second Edition.

In post 8vo., price 16s. cloth.

THE CRIMINAL-LAW CONSOLIDATION and AMENDMENT ACTS of the 24 & 25 VICT. With Notes, Observations, and Forms for Summary Proceedings. By CHARLES SPRENGEL GEEVES, Esq., one of her Majesty's Counsel.
Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

In 12mo., price 9s. cloth.

A TREATISE on BILLS of SALE, with an Appendix, containing the Registration Act, 17 & 18 VICT. c. 34, and Precedents, &c. By F. C. J. MILLAR and J. R. COLLIER, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. SECOND EDITION, revised and enlarged. By F. C. J. MILLAR, Esq.

Stevens & Sons; and H. Sweet.

BY AUTHORITY.

Price 9s. cloth boards.

PROCEDURE in the STANNARIES of CORNWALL and DEVON. Containing the New Rules and Orders for Regulating the Practice, both at Equity and Common Law, of the Court of the Vice-Warden of the Stannaries; and the recent Statutes for establishing and extending its Jurisdiction. Preceded by Observations on the Power of the Court in relation to Mining Associations and Partnerships in the Counties of Cornwall and Devon.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street; and Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SHELFORD'S LAW of HIGHWAYS in ENGLAND and WALES, brought down to 1865.
In 1 vol. 12mo., price 12s. cloth.

THE LAW of HIGHWAYS in ENGLAND and WALES, comprising Highways in Districts under Boards of Health and of Local Government, and as affected by Railways. With additional Forms not contained in the Acts. By LEONARD SHELFORD, Esq. The Third Edition, with a Supplement, containing the Highway Act, 1864, &c. With Notes and a revised Index. By C. MANLEY SMITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

FOURTH EDITION OF PALEY ON SUMMARY CONVICTIONS.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 21s. cloth boards.

PALEY on the LAW and PRACTICE of SUMMARY CONVICTIONS by JUSTICES of the PEACE. Including Proceedings preliminary and subsequent to Convictions, and under the 18 & 19 VICT. c. 126, relating to Larceny, &c. With Practical Forms and Precedents of Convictions. The Fourth Edition. By H. T. J. MACNAMARA, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard; W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of MIDDLESEX; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY-LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL-YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the OFFICE, No. 39, BELL-YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, October 7, 1865.

The Jurist

No. 562, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.
No. 1501, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

OCTOBER 14, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

WANTED, by the Advertiser, admitted in 1865, a SITUATION as CONVEYANCING CLERK, or Assistant Conveyancing Clerk, with or without the superintendence of the Principal. Salary not an object of paramount importance. Apply, by letter, to L. S., care of Messrs. Hooper & Son, 45, Fleet-street, E. C.

COUNTY COURTS IN EQUITY.

In a few days will be published.

THE COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION ACT, ORDERS, FORMS, and COSTS. With copious Notes. By H. M. SLADEN, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

Wildy & Sons, Lincoln's-inn-archway, W. C.

Nearly ready.
COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION.—The Act to confer on the County Courts a limited Jurisdiction in Equity; with a View of the Principles, and an Outline of the Practice, of the Court of Chancery, applicable to each Head of the New Jurisdiction; and the Rules and Orders issued under the Act. By E. C. BATTEN and H. LUDLOW, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.
London: William Amer, Law Bookseller, Lincoln's-inn-gate, W. C.

[Now ready, price 2s. 6d., post free.]
A HANDY-BOOK ON CHANCERY LAW and PRACTICE FOR SUITORS under the New Equity Jurisdiction in the County Courts. With the Act complete, and Practical Observations thereon; with the authorised Forms and Rules of Court, &c. By G. MANLEY WETHERFIELD, Solicitor.
London: Staunard & Smith, 30, Chancery-lane, W. C.

SMITH'S MERCANTILE LAW.

In royal 8vo., price 1l. 16s. cloth boards.

A COMPENDIUM OF MERCANTILE LAW.
By J. W. SMITH, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law.
Seventh Edition. By G. M. DOWDESWELL, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law.
London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn; H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; and W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, in demy 12mo., 1016 pp., price 1l. 12s. cloth.
ROGERS on ELECTIONS, ELECTION COMMITTEES, and REGISTRATION. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Tenth Edition. With the new Registration Statute, and all the Election and Registration Cases to the present time. By F. S. P. WOLFERSTAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

DODD AND BROOKE'S PRACTICE OF THE COURT OF PROBATE.

Recently published, in 8vo., price 1l. 11s. 6d. cloth.

THE LAW and PRACTICE of the COURT of PROBATE, Contentious and Common Form. With the Rules, Statutes, and Forms. By PHILIP WM. DODD, Solicitor, and GEORGE HENRY BROOKE, Doctors Commons.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

BYTHEWOOD and JARMAN'S CONVEYANCING.—Vol. 8, Part I.

Price 8s. boards.

A SELECTION OF PRECEDENTS from MODERN MANUSCRIPT COLLECTIONS, and DRAFTS of ACTUAL PRACTICE; forming a System of Conveyancing. With Disquisitions and Practical Notes. By THOMAS JARMAN, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law. The Third Edition. Vol. 8. By WHITLEY STOKES, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
PART I.—POWERS OF APPOINTMENT.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

OLIPHANT'S LAW OF HORSES, GAMING, &c.

Just published, considerably enlarged, price 15s. cloth.

THE LAW OF HORSES; including the Bargain and Sale of Chatter; also the Law of Racing, Wagers, and Gaming. By GEORGE HENRY HEWITT OLIPHANT, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. Third Edition. By GRANVILLE R. RYDER, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

No. 562, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

Now ready, with 176 Wood Engravings, 8vo., cloth, 28s.,
THE PRINCIPLES and PRACTICE of MEDICAL JURISPRUDENCE. By ALFRED S. TAYLOR, M.D., F.R.S.

This volume, consisting of 1240 closely printed pages, has enabled the author to amplify all the subjects treated of in his Manual, and at the same time to add several chapters on important subjects not embraced in the smaller work. It forms the most comprehensive work on Forensic Medicine in the English language.

John Churchill & Sons, New Burlington-street.

SOLICITORS' JOURNAL and WEEKLY REPORTER.—The NEW VOLUMES, X and XIV, commence NOVEMBER 4.—Annual Subscriptions, JOURNAL, 26s., Town; 28s., Country; with the WEEKLY REPORTER, 52s., post-free to the Colonies, when paid in advance.

Office, 59, Carey-street, W. C.

CURE OF ASTHMATIC COUGH AT THE AGE OF 85, BY DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS.
—"Wm. Taylor, The Cape, Smethwick, aged 85, says, he for many years suffered from a husky, asthmatic cough. To get rest at night was almost out of the question, although he tried many things; but for the last four years, since he commenced taking the Wafers, he can insure a good night's rest, &c.—Witness—R. Brown, Chemist, 55, Spring-hill, Birmingham."—Price 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per box, of all Druggists.

ANNUITIES and REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.
68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.
DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q.C.
Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.
Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office.
C. B. CLABON, Sec.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS at
PARTRIDGE & COZENS,
WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS IN PARCHMENT.

192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 20s.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bonâ fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual RETAIL charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.

Draft Paper, 6s., 7s., 7s. 9d., and 9s. per ream.
Brief Paper, 13s. 6d., 16s., and 18s. 6d. per ream.
Foolscap Paper, 10s. 6d., 13s. 6d., and 17s. 6d. per ream.
Cream Laid Note, 3s., 4s., and 5s. per ream.
Large Cream Laid Note, 4s., 6s., and 7s. 6d. per ream.
Large Blue Note, 3s., 4s., and 6s. per ream.
Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2s. 9d., 3s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. per 1000.
Foolscap Official Envelopes, 1s. 6d. per 100, or 13s. 6d. per 1000.
Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, Piercers, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25s.; Good Stand for ditto with two Drawers, 17s.

Parchment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1s. 6d. each, 19s. per dozen, or 90s. per roll.
Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1s. 6d. each, 17s. per dozen, or 80s. per roll.
Records or Memorials, Ruled, 6d. each, 5s. 6d. per dozen, or 25s. per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inkstands; Postage Scales; Writing-cases; Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post-free.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

N N

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	399
Judicial Statistics, 1864—Civil Side	408
Statutes passed during the late Session of Parliament.

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INOE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

HOUSE OF LORDS.

Ry W. W. KNOX, Barrister at Law.

St. Helen's Smelting Company (Limited) v. Tipping. —(Nuisance—Actionable injury—"Convenient" or "suitable" locality—Copper smelting)	785
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

ROLLS COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Grant v. Grant.—(Husband and wife—Gifts by husband to wife—Separate property—Evidence of) ..	787
Forrer v. Nash.—(Specific performance—Inability to perform contract before bill filed)	789

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By T. F. MORSE, Barrister at Law.

Re The Residuary Trust Estate of George Bulley, and re The 10 & 11 Vict. c. 95.—(Will—Construction —Remoteness)	791
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

The United States of America v. Prioleau.—(International law—Foreign Sovereign—Usurping Government de facto—Public property—Contract—Lien)	792
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVESEY, Barrister at Law.

Fisher v. Marsh.—(Use and occupation—Title—Principal and agent—Contract with agent—Auctioneer)	795
O'Hanlan v. The Great Western Railway Company. —(Carrier—Negligence—Measure of damages) ..	797
Reg. v. The Guardians of the Stourbridge Union. (Pauper—Irremovability—Constructive residence—24 & 25 Vict. c. 55, s. 4)	798

COURT FOR DIVORCE AND MATRIMONIAL CAUSES.

By W. ERNST BROWNING, Barrister at Law.

Power v. Power.—(Wife's petition for dissolution of marriage—Cruelty)	800
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

N O T I C E.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

THE LAWS AFFECTING RAILWAYS, BROUGHT DOWN TO THE PRESENT TIME.

Now ready, in one thick vol. royal 8vo., price 1l. 15s. cloth boards.

SIR W. HODGESS'S PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW OF RAILWAYS, RAILWAY COMPANIES, and RAILWAY INVESTMENTS. With an Appendix of Statutes, Forms, &c. The Fourth Edition. By CHARLES MANLEY SMITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple and Midland Circuit, Barrister at Law.

The great and increasing interest in everything relating to Railways now manifested by the public, have created such a demand for this valuable work, that the Publisher has been induced to have a new Edition of it prepared. This Edition comprises the important Statutes passed in the Session of 1864, as well as the Standing Orders for the Session of 1865, in addition to the numerous Decisions of the Courts, both of Law and Equity, since the last Edition was published, and such of the Rules of the London Stock Exchange as are applicable to Railways, as amended up to 1864. The task of preparing and conducting through the press this new Edition has been a really arduous one; but no pains have been spared by the learned Editor (whose work on the Law of Master and Servant is well known, not only in Westminster Hall, but also in Ireland, Scotland, and America), to make the work complete; and the Publisher believes that he can with confidence recommend it to all persons interested in Railways, especially Directors, Secretaries, and shareholders, as the most complete work on Railway Law yet offered to the public.

The English and Irish Railway Clearing Acts have also been added to this Edition.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NEW EDITION OF SMITH (C. MANLEY) ON THE LAW OF MASTER AND SERVANT.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 16s. cloth boards.

A TREATISE ON THE LAW OF MASTER AND SERVANT, including therein MASTERS and WORKMEN in every Description of Trade and Occupation. With an Appendix of Statutes. The Second Edition. By CHARLES MANLEY SMITH, Esq., Barrister at Law, of the Inner Temple and Midland Circuit.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

DAY'S COMMON-LAW PRACTICE.

The Second Edition, recently published.

THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACTS of 1852, 1854, and 1860. With an Introduction, explanatory of the recent Changes, Notes, Forms of Proceeding, and a copious Index. By J. C. F. S. DAY, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 1 vol. royal 12mo. Price 15s. cloth boards.

This Work comprises a carefully-revised Edition of Mr. Kerr's Procedure Acts of 1852 and 1854, the Cases that have been decided since the publication of these Works being added; the Bills of Exchange Act of 1855, and the Decisions upon it; those portions of the Interpleader Act and Mercantile Law Amendment Act which relate to the Procedure thereon in Court or at Chambers, and all the New Rules: thus constituting a complete Practice of the Superior Courts of Common Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

Recently published, in 1 vol. super royal 8vo., price 40s. cloth.

WHARTON'S LAW LEXICON. Third Edition.

A Dictionary of Jurisprudence, explaining all the Technical Words and Phrases employed in the several Departments of English Law; including also the various Legal Terms used in Commercial Transactions; together with an Explanatory as well as Literal Translation of the Latin Maxims contained in the Writings of the Ancient and Modern Commentators. Greatly improved and enlarged. By J. J. S. WHARTON, Esq., Barrister at Law, assisted by G. H. COOPER and R. SEARLE, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn, W. C.

WHARTON'S ARTICLED CLERKS' MANUAL.

In royal 12mo., price 18s. cloth.

A MANUAL FOR ARTICLED CLERKS; containing Courses of Study, as well in Common Law, Conveyancing, Equity, Bankruptcy, and Criminal Law, as in Constitutional, Roman Civil, Ecclesiastical, Colonial, and International Laws, Medical Jurisprudence, and Bookkeeping. A Digest of all the Examination Questions, with the New Statutes, General Rules, Forms of Articles of Clerkship, Notices, Affidavits, &c., and a List of the proper Stamps and Fees; being a Comprehensive Guide to their successful Examination, Admission, and Practice as Attorneys and Solicitors of the Superior Courts. By J. J. S. WHARTON, Esq., M.A., Oxon., Barrister at Law, Author of "The Law Lexicon," &c. Ninth Edition. Greatly enlarged, and with the Addition of Bookkeeping by Single and Double Entry. By CHARLES HENRY ANDERSON, Solicitor, Editor of "The Legal Examiner."

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's inn.

BY AUTHORITY.

In royal 8vo., price 7s. 6d. cloth.

THE CONSOLIDATED GENERAL ORDERS of the HIGH COURT OF CHANCERY; with Regulations as to certain Fees and Charges.

"The new arrangement of the Orders leaves nothing to be wished for: it is clear, convenient, and admirably adapted for the purposes of practice. Although the language of the old Orders has been adhered to as far as possible, it has been altered whenever it was found necessary for the purpose of adapting them to the present practice, and also for the purpose of removing those doubts and difficulties which so frequently arose under the old Orders."—Jurist, Jan. 21, 1880.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

MOORE'S INSTRUCTIONS FOR PREPARING

ABSTRACTS of TITLES after the most improved System of eminent Conveyancers; to which is added a Collection of Precedents shewing the Method, not only of abstracting every species of Deeds, but also of so connecting them together, by collateral Documents, as to form a complete Title. Second Edition, with considerable Additions. By HENRY MOORE, Esq. 12mo. 1852. Price 6s. cloth.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, OCTOBER 14, 1866.

DISCHARGE OF THE JURY IN CAPITAL CASES.

THE judges, in the ensuing term, will probably have to consider one of the weightiest questions which can arise in criminal procedure; whether, in a capital case, after the evidence has been closed, and the jury have considered of their verdict, they can, without any illness or physical necessity—and merely because they are not agreed—be discharged, with a view to a new trial on a future occasion. We believe we can venture to say, that if it is held that this can be done, it will be the first time it has been so held; although we are all quite aware that it will not be the first time it has been done. Indeed, there is an impression abroad, that it has been decided that it may be done, but this is a mistake; on the contrary, the authority of any decision, so far as it goes, is rather the other way; and the point certainly may have been decided by a Court of Error, the only Court that can possibly settle it. In the case which is supposed to have settled the question, it was not determined at all; all that the Court decided was, that they had no authority to determine it. That case was Reg. v. Newton (13 Jur., part 1, p. 606). The marginal note of that case goes beyond the actual decisions, and may have been misunderstood. It states it as held, that where a prisoner has been put upon his trial for a capital offence, and the jury, after the lapse of a reasonable time, are unable to agree in a verdict, it is in the discretion of the presiding judge to discharge them, if he thinks a case of necessity for so doing is made out. (Reg. v. Newton, 13 Jur., part 1, p. 606; 18 L. J., M. C., 201).

"The fact of a jury having been locked up from two P. M. to eight A. M. on the following morning, and there then being no prospect of their agreeing, and the duty of the judge requiring his presence at the next circuit town on that day, is a sufficient case of necessity to justify the discharge of the jury. (Ib.)

"The propriety of the discharge of the jury cannot be questioned on a habeas corpus; at all events until the lapse of two assizes after the committal of the prisoner, the warrant of commitment being a justification of the detention." (Ib.)

But, in truth, only the third point was in reality determined, viz. that the propriety of the discharge of a jury at the assizes could not be questioned on a habeas corpus issued by one of the Courts at Westminster, which, in effect, had already been decided. (Reg. v. Dunn, 5 C. B. 215). The courts of oyer and terminer and gaol delivery are, as was held in Reg. v. Charlesworth (1 B. & S. 406), superior courts, and cannot be interfered with by the Courts at Westminster. The only Courts to review these decisions are, at common-law a Court of Error, and by statute, the Court for Crown Cases Reserved. The latter Court has no jurisdiction unless the point has been reserved at the trial. And to bring a question before a Court of Error it must be raised on the record; and in a criminal case there must be the fact of the Attorney-General, which, in such a case as the present especially, as the prisoner has already been respited, will no doubt be granted. There are three other recent cases in which a somewhat similar question has been raised; but they none of them settle it, and all leave it still undetermined. Two out of the three, Reg. v. Davison (2 Fost. & F. 250) and Reg. v. Charlesworth (1 B. & S. 460), were cases of misdeemeanour, and the other, Reg. v. Conway (7 Ir. Law Rep. 147), which was a case of felony, was a decision that the discharge of the jury was, at all events, in the particular case, improper; so that anything said in favour of the contrary view was obiter. That case so far resembled the present that there, as in the present, the jury were discharged because they could not agree on the day before the commission had to be opened at the next county, whereas, here, it was two days before. The ground of the discharge in both cases was the same, viz. the nearness of the assizes for the next county; the difference was only in degree, and, of course, would make no distinction in principle. So the learned judge thought in the present case, that if there was power to discharge the jury on any such ground at all, the mere time at which it was done (there being no illness or physical necessity), as it must be a matter for the discretion of the judge, could make no difference in point of law; and we are disposed to agree with him, although certainly, in the present case, the time was as short, and the excuse as slight, as it could possibly be; for the jury had only been locked up four hours. They retired on Saturday evening, and were discharged between eleven and twelve at night, and the whole of Sunday intervened before the commission day for the next county, and, as every one knows, business does not commence until the next day. But, in truth, for different reasons, this does not matter at all in point of law; because the time could only be material in a legal view, as an evidence, or element, or necessity for the discharge; and on neither of those views, in this case, was it material. In point of fact, the jury were not ill or faint, or in any apparent danger of illness; and as to the proximity of the assizes for the next county, it was no reason at all for the discharge of the jury, because it was no reason at all for the departure of the judge. Even if it was so, the judge may receive the verdict in a "foreign" county; but Hawkins lays it down, the commission of gaol delivery is not limited in point of time, and the judge may wait in a county as long as necessary. For that very reason, the commission always includes in it the names of all the serjeants and Queen's counsel, who, with the other judge of assize, can easily discharge the commission in the next county, and constantly do so. The very judge who presided at the first trial in this case, Mr. Baron Channell, sat at Chelmsford a week after the business was finished to try the Rouppell case, and never sat at Lewes at all; so that it cannot be pretended that there was any necessity for the discharge of the jury on that ground. The utmost that could be said is, that there was convenience; but there is not an atom of authority to shew that convenience is a sufficient ground for discharge of the jury in a capital case. On the contrary, it is laid down as clear law in all the authorities, ancient and modern, that it can only be done in cases of necessity; and the only cases in which it has been held lawful to do it have been cases not only of actual physical necessity arising from illness, but of necessity arising in the course of the trial before the jury retired. (Reg. v. Edwards, 4 Taunt. 309). No authority can be found in the whole annals of the English law for the discharge of the jury in a capital case after they have retired, and without physical necessity. All the instances in modern times have been instances of death or illness occurring in the course of a trial. (Reg. v. Talbot, 2 Leach's C. C. 706; Reg. v. Meadows, 1 Fost. & F. 76; 2 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 713; Reg. v. Stevenson, 2 Leach's C. C. 618; Reg. v. Street, 2 Car. & P. 413). That no mere difficulty in the way of a verdict arising from moral, not natural, causes will suffice, is shewn in the strongest way by the case of Reg. v. Wardell (1 Car. & M. 120), where Tindal, C. J., refused to discharge a jury on the ground that one of them was found to be a relative of the prisoner. Of course, in such a case there could be no chance of a conviction, so that it comes, in principle, as near as possible to the present, which is one in which the jury said they could not agree—why, did not appear. If we may judge from what took place at the second trial, the reason was the insufficiency of the evidence; for on the second occasion one of the accused was called as a witness to complete the case against the other. We may fairly suppose that the prosecution thought there was no chance of getting a verdict on the former evidence. Then, if so, that is strong to shew that the former jury were justified in their doubts, and ought to have acquitted, and probably would have done so had they been left alone. At all events, it is possible they may have done so. And that raises the grave and weighty question, whether, in such a case, where the verdict is wanting, not by reason of illness, or any physical cause, but from doubt among the jurors, from the deficiency of the evidence, it is competent to the judge to discharge the jury, with a view to a new trial? To bring this before the mind fully and forcibly, it is necessary to bear in mind two fundamental maxims of criminal procedure—that the accused is entitled to the benefit of a doubt, and that there can be no new trial. No one ever heard a judge sum up in a criminal (at all events a capital) case, without laying down the first rule; and as to the second, every one is aware of it. It results, that if the jury really doubted, they were bound in law to acquit; and that if they had acquitted, the accused could not have been tried again. It is quite consistent with the facts, and rather more probable than the reverse, that on this occasion the doubts of the jury were sound. If so, they were bound in law to acquit. Instead of examining them, to see if their doubts were reasonable, and telling them, if they were so, to acquit, the judge simply discharged them, in order to have the accused tried again. That is, in other words, he deprived the prisoner, it may be, of a verdict of acquittal, to which, possibly, she was entitled in law; and which, at all events, she may have obtained. And, indirectly, the prosecution had the benefit of a new trial, with the additional advantage of having the opportunity, by its being postponed, of shaping the case differently, and calling fresh witnesses. On this occasion, not only was this advantage obtained and acted upon, but the most dangerous of all witnesses (an accomplice) was called to perfect the case against the other prisoner. That this was so in the particular instance does not, of course, help the argument in point of law; but it does help to shew that such may be the consequence in any case, if such a practice is allowed. That is to say, that the mischief which the law so dreads, even in civil cases, that it will not grant a new trial to enable a plaintiff to call evidence he might have called before, may be let in, not only in criminal, but capital cases. The mischief of allowing a party to take his chance of a verdict on certain evidence, and then, on his failing to secure a verdict, trying again on different evidence, what could be more perilous in criminal cases? Yet if the jury may be discharged, and the trial put off, this is what it will come to in every case. So soon as it is seen that a jury hesitate to convict, they may be discharged, and the trial may be put off; the prosecutor can come again with fresh evidence and a new case. It is this postponement of the trial which renders the discharge of the jury more serious; and it is obvious, that if the reason assigned for the discharge is valid, it will equally avail for the postponement; for the only reason assigned was, that there was not time to consider longer of a verdict; and if so, of course, there was not time to try the prisoner again. But, on the other hand, if the reason fails for the discharge, of course it fails for the postponement; and if there was time to consider as long as was necessary, there was time to try the prisoner again at the same assizes. Or again, to reverse the way of putting it, if there was time to try the prisoner again, there certainly was no necessity for the discharge of the jury. But there certainly was time to try the prisoner again, as already has been shewn, for the simple reason, that no time is limited to the discharge of the commission at all. And, indeed, one of the points decided in Reg. v. Charlenworth was (as is laid down in Hawkins), that the commission continues until revoked, and is indefinite in point of time. If, indeed, there was a necessity for the judge to leave the county, that would only shew some default on the part of the clerk of the assize or clerk of the Crown, in not allowing time enough to try the prisoners; and that default could hardly prejudice the prisoner, or deprive her of any right. Her legal right, we conceive, was to be tried at those assizes, if it were possible, or unless she applied to have the trial put off. And the duty of the judge, as we conceive, under his commission, was clear and positive, to deliver the gaol. From that duty, which he had an indefinite time to discharge, only "the act of God or the Queen's enemies" could excuse him. An assize altogether, we are aware, may be put off for necessity; but having a jury panel, a judge cannot legally discharge them, we apprehend, until he has discharged his commission, and delivered the gaol. Even if he could not stay at the time, or if the jurors had departed, that would only justify such delay as was necessary to summon another jury (which the Jury Act affords ample power to do), and he might have come back after the assizes for the next county were on. The idea that because the time has come for opening the commission in the next county, that, therefore, the commission in the previous county must be closed, has not the least shadow of a foundation in law. On the contrary, the law has carefully guarded against, and taken ample precautions to prevent, any difficulty from arising on any such ground. The precautions with which the law has protected the prisoner in capital cases, doubtless, had their origin in practical experience, which has been amply illustrated in the present instance. The consequence of throwing over the trial to another assize, of course, would be, and was, that the case was canvassed and discussed all over the county; and the newspapers spoke of it as an escape of a great criminal, and a sad miscarriage of justice. The result was, that it was hardly possible that the accused at the next assizes should have had a perfectly unprejudiced or unbiased trial. Nor was this all. At the last moment, without any warning, suddenly her fellow-prisoner is taken from the dock to swear away her life to save her own. The idea of such a surprise upon a prisoner in a capital case is really shocking. Very likely in the particular case the prisoner convicted was guilty, though it is impossible to place any reliance on the evidence of an accomplice under such circumstances—swearing in order to liberate herself from the gallows. But that a course should be allowable which admits of such a surprise upon one accused of a capital crime, does strike us not only as a violation of legal principle, but substantial justice. And yet it is the inevitable course given, or of the power claimed, to discharge the jury in such cases, on such a ground, that the trial should be postponed; and it is the necessary consequence of such postponement, that the prosecution should have the power to reshape its case, and get up fresh evidence, spring new witnesses on the accused, and subject her to the most sudden and unexpected surprise; whereas if the trial went on at the same assizes, this could hardly occur. There are differences in criminal procedure between capital cases, or cases of felony, and cases of misdemeanour. The law is tender of human life, and originally all felonies were capital. Hence a jury may not separate in a case of felony; the reason being, that they may possibly be exposed to prejudice or influence from discussion of the case. There can be no doubt that such a separation, in a case of felony, would vitiate a verdict against the prisoner; and if there is power to discharge the jury for disagreement, and postpone the trial, the whole jury panel are allowed to go about for months, discussing the case, and getting prejudiced and influenced. The rules of our criminal procedure were based upon practical experience, and the disregard of them is certain to lead to practical mischiefs and evils. If there is power to discharge the jury in such cases, merely on the ground of the want of time, then in every such case the trial will be postponed, and these practical evils will follow. But the law has pointed out other means of meeting the difficulty of doubt among the jurors. They may desire to hear some of the evidence again, or to propose some question to the Court; or they may require to be guided and directed. And this course is alluded to by all the old writers. (Hale's P. C. 296). Hale lays it down distinctly, "that by the ancient law (as Lord Coke declares it), if the jury had once been charged with a prisoner (that is, as he explains it—on the evidence being closed), they must give their verdict, and cannot be discharged before their verdict given." And although he adds, that "the contrary course hath for a long time obtained," he does not say that it was law; and his learned editor, Mr. Serjt. Wilson, very strongly intimates that it was not, "being unwarranted by ancient usage." (2 Hale's P. C. 294, in notis). Foster takes the same view, and says, "It is not now a question, and I hope will it ever be a question again, whether in a capital case the Court may, in their discretion, discharge a jury, after evidence given and concluded on the part of the Crown, merely for want of sufficient evidence to convict, and in order to bring the prisoner to a second trial, when the Crown may be better prepared. This was done in the case of Whitbread; and it was certainly a most unjustifiable proceeding, but I hope it will never be drawn into example." (Foster's Crown Law, 30).

Since then, the thing has never been done until now, and the strongest case that has occurred in favour of the discharge of a jury in a criminal case is, that if, after indictment, arraignment, the jury charged, and evidence given, on a capital offence, one of the jury becomes incapable through illness of proceeding to verdict, the court of oyer and terminer may discharge the jury, and charge a fresh jury with the prisoner, and convict him. (Reg. v. Edwards, 4 Taunt. 309; 3 Camp. 207).

But that, it will be observed, was on the ground of a natural, actual, physical necessity, amounting to an impossibility of continuing the trial with the same jury, and a necessity occurring in the course of the trial, before the jury had retired to consider their verdict; and, in the next place, the trial was continued at once, at the same sessions, without any further delay than was necessary. And it is well settled, that if a juror be taken ill during the trial of a prisoner for felony, the jury may be discharged, and the remaining eleven, together with a new juror, resworn to try the prisoner. (Reg. v. Scalbert, 2 Leach's C. C. 620).

If a jurymen is taken so ill as to be incapable of attending through the trial, another jurymen returned in the panel may be added to the eleven; but the prisoner should be offered his challenges over again as to the eleven; the eleven should be sworn de novo, and the trial begin again. (Reg. v. Edwards, Russ. & R. C. C. 234; 2 Leach's C. C. 621, note; 3 Camp. 207, note; 4 Taunt. 309).

So as to the illness of a prisoner during trial: if a prisoner indicted for a felony, with whom the jury are charged, be by sudden illness during the trial rendered incapable of remaining at the bar, the jury may be discharged from the trial of that indictment, and the prisoner, on his recovery, tried by another jury. (Reg. v. Stevenson, 2 Leach's C. C. 546). And so, again, if at the assizes a prisoner is tried for a misdemeanour under the commission of gaol delivery, and during the trial becomes ill, and is obliged to be assisted out of court, the judge will discharge the jury; but if the prisoner recovers during the assize, he is to be tried during the same assize, the whole of the proceedings of the trial being commenced de novo. (Reg. v. Street, 2 Car. & P. 413—Park). And there is no authority, even in the case of the necessary discharge of a jury, for the adjournment of the trial, unless that also is equally necessary. If there is a necessity for postponing the trial, arising from any ground known, there must, either in a civil or criminal case, be an application to the Court for the purpose, before the trial commences. And thus, a judge at the assizes may postpone a trial until the next assizes, if he finds the principal witness wholly incompetent to take an oath from ignorance, and order the witness to be instructed in the meantime by a clergyman in the principles of his duty, and the nature and obligation of an oath. (Rex v. White, 1 Leach's C. C. 430). But if the trial cannot be postponed, except on an application on sufficient grounds, before the trial, a fortiori it cannot be adjourned in the course of the trial, without an overwhelming necessity, amounting to absolute impossibility of continuing the trial, which has begun, and ought to be continued to its conclusion.

In the present case, therefore, a two-fold necessity was to be made out—both for discharging the jury and adjourning the trial. In this case they both depend upon the same question, whether the near approach of the assizes in the next county is a sufficient reason for discharging the jury and interrupting the trial. For the mere fact that the jury had deliberated four hours could scarcely be considered sufficient to warrant their discharge. Even if it were, however, still would arise the question, whether there was any necessity for the adjournment of the trial. And this it seems almost impossible to make out in any other case than the illness of the prisoner. The illness of a witness during the trial would not be, for it would not be more than absence; and that was held over and over again not to warrant even an adjournment in a case of felony, unless for some short time, during which the jury might be kept locked up; for it is clear law, that in cases of felony the jury cannot separate; and if they do, it will avoid the verdict. Now, the illness of a juror has been held only to warrant the discharge of the jury and the continuance of the trial. Even in the case of illness of the prisoner, his trial is to be continued at the same assizes, if he recovers.

It is difficult to get over the language of the commission, which imposes on the commissioners a clear and positive duty to deliver the gaol. That is, those commissioners are to do it; and they have hardly a right to decline that duty and throw it on the next commission, if it be possible to discharge it. That it would be possible no one can doubt. Hawkins lays it down that the commissioner is not limited in time; and even if it were necessary that the judge should go, he could return when the other assizes were over. And even if the jury panel had by some mistake gone away, he could, under the Jury Act, direct the summoning of another.

Upon the whole, therefore, there seems strong reason to conclude that the conviction cannot be upheld. As the prisoner has been reprieved, for the very purpose of raising the point, of course, the Attorney-General will grant his fiat for a writ of error; and, among lawyers at all events, no nonsense will be talked about a miscarriage of justice, arising from the release of a prisoner who has been convicted contrary to law, and who, upon the clearest principles of human and legal justice, is entitled to her discharge.

JUDICIAL STATISTICS, 1864—CIVIL SIDE.

(Continued from p. 379.)

The Registrar of the High Court of Admiralty of England has furnished a return shewing the proceedings of the court for the year ending the 31st December, 1864, in the same form as the return for the preceding year, with a separate statement of the proceedings in the office of the Marshal. It having been suggested that a return of the fee fund of the court, similar to that given for the Court of Chancery, might be furnished, the registrar has explained that, owing to the different arrangements in the two courts, it is not possible to make such return. In the Court of Chancery, money paid in by suitors remains in the custody of the court, which invests it, and receives the interest on the investments. On the other hand, in the Court of Admiralty, the registrar is not allowed to retain to the credit of his account at the Bank of England a larger sum at any time than 5000*l.*, and all moneys in excess of that sum are paid over by him to the Paymaster-General, who employs the amounts thus received in the public service. In the Court of Chancery, therefore, it is easy to return the amount realised from the investment of suitors' moneys, while in the Court of Admiralty it is not possible to do so. Again: in the Court of Chancery all moneys paid on account of court stamps are received and retained by the court, and thereout are paid the salaries of the officers and other expenses of the court. In the Court of Admiralty such moneys are paid to the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, and the salaries of the officers and other expenses are annually voted by Parliament.

In the return for 1864, the proceedings are classified under the heads given in the following abstract, in which the number of causes pending at the commencement of the year, the number instituted during the year, and the amount for which the causes were entered, are shewn under each head for 1864, in comparison with the corresponding numbers and amounts for the preceding year. In the number of causes instituted in 1864 it will be seen there is an increase of nine above the number in 1863. The amount at which causes were entered is nearly double, the increase being 98·3 per cent.

	1864.			1863.
	Causes pending at Commencement of Year.	Causes instituted.	Amount at which Causes were instituted.	Causes pending at Commencement of Year.	Causes instituted.	Amount at which Causes were instituted.
Salvage	26	77	£175,975	49	77	£124,751
Damage by collision	64	219	340,030	72	199	391,300
Bottomry	10	24	26,150	12	31	50,800
Actions for necessities supplied to foreign ships	6	51	23,080	5	36	12,140
Towage	1	14	2,020	1	15	2,720
Wages	13	65	29,890	12	59	28,400
Pilotage	—	3	450	—	1	200
Possession	1	1	—	—	2	2,000
Other causes	23	40	757,950	19	65	71,150
Total	144	494		170	485
	638		£1,355,545	655		£268,261

The average of the total numbers for the five years 1859 to 1863, inclusive, exceeds the total for 1864 by 682, or 6·9 per cent. The average of the total amount for those years is less than the total amount for 1864 by 672,284*l.*, or 49·5 per cent.

The number of caveat warrants entered in 1864 was 69; in 1863 the number was 67; in 1862, 59; in 1861, 52; in 1860, 41.

The caveat releases entered, and the appearances, both of which are set out in the return under each of the heads of salvage, &c., numbered in each year:—

In 1864. In 1863. In 1862. In 1861. In 1860.

Caveat re-leases	56	29	26	36	54
Appearances	396	375	358	383	371

The numbers of judgments and decrees are also given under each head. The total numbers, and the terms under which the judgments were made, in each of the years 1864 and 1863, with the average of the numbers for 1859-63, were—

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1859-63.
Final judgments in contested causes:—
For plaintiff	99	115	109
For defendant	3	390	34
Decrees in causes by default
Incidental decrees in contested causes	16	39	46
Decrees "in poenam" causes
	145	193	189

In "in poenam" causes:—

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1859-63.
Proctors' or solicitors' bills submitted	£ 481 6 2	£ 1,064 16 9	£ 1,507 1 7
Amount disallowed	65 14 0	200 1 9	427 8 0
Found due	415 12 2	864 15 0	1,079 13 7
Agents' out-port charges:—
Submitted	97 14 6	255 16 0	153 6 2
Allowed	52 1 1	79 12 6	106 12 2
Plaintiffs' costs in contested causes:—
Proctors' or solicitors' bills submitted	14,932 7 6	13,212 17 7	14,533 8 8
Disallowed	3,272 9 6	2,978 8 0	3,153 15 11
Found due	11,659 18 0	10,236 9 7	11,379 6 9
Agents' out-port charges:—
Submitted	4,643 11 6	4,220 8 6	4,153 12 5
Allowed as against defendants	2,403 4 10	1,869 12 5	2,002 10 2
Defendants' costs in contested causes:—
Proctors' or solicitors' bills submitted	6,050 4 5	4,136 17 4	3,565 0 2
Disallowed	1,528 14 9	1,100 14 6	934 9 6
Found due	4,521 9 8	3,036 2 10	2,630 10 8
Agents' out-port charges:—
Submitted	1,617 4 0	1,734 10 4	1,124 7 2
Allowed as against plaintiffs	846 1 6	908 7 9	539 17 9

The total amount of Admiralty proctors' costs was,—

	In 1864.	In 1863.	In 1862.	In 1861.
Submitted	£558 4 4	£532 1 11	£390 17 8	£130 15 9
Disallowed	5 17 10	26 1 8	1 7 4	0 15 0
Found due	£552 6 6	£506 0 3	£389 10 4	£130 0 9

The total amount of costs and charges in each of the following years was,—

	1864.	1863.	1862.	1861.	1860.
Submitted	£29,380 12 5	£25,157 18 5	£26,656 2 1	£25,046 11 10	£20,511 8 4
Found due	20,450 13 9	17,501 0 4	18,893 5 11	18,551 5 2	15,199 8 2

The total number of instruments prepared in the registry in 1864 was 1206. The numbers of each description of instrument under each of the headings of salvage, damage by collision, &c., are given in the tables. The instruments executed are stated under the return of the proceedings in the office of the Marshal.

The total number of motions and of summonses heard, the number under each head being given in the table for 1864, was for each year:—

	1864.	1863.	1862.	1861.	1860.
Motions in court	108	141	116	107	125
" chambers	298	249	182	129	46
Summonses heard	—	1	24	54	72
	406	391	322	280	243

Under references to registrar and merchants, 53 causes are given, as heard and reported on by the registrar in 1864; in 1863 the number was 38; in 1862 it was 52; in 1861, 37.

The total amount of the accounts submitted for investigation in 1864 was 109,789*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.*, of which 14,683*l.* 6*s.* was disallowed, leaving 95,105*l.* 19*s.* 10*d.*, as the amount found due; in 1863 these amounts were respectively 43,165*l.* 8*s.* 1*d.* submitted; 15,457*l.* 13*s.* 1*d.* disallowed, and 27,707*l.* 15*s.* found due.

The total number of bills taxed in 1864 was 229, the number under each head being distinguished in the table; in 1863 the number was 239; in 1862 it was 202; in 1861, 242; in 1860, 212.

The total amount of costs, the amount under each of the heads of salvage, damage by collision, bottomry, &c., being distinguished in the tables, was as follows for each of the years 1864 and 1863, with the average of the five years, 1859-63:—

The following are the numbers prepared in the registry in 1864, in comparison with the numbers for 1863, and the average of the numbers for the five years, 1859-63:—

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1859-63.
Bail bonds prepared in the registry.	225	234	261
Affidavits of justification	104	119	131
Other instruments prepared	877	977	982

The amounts of the balances of suitors' and other moneys in hand at the beginning and end of the year,

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1859-63.
Balances in hand at the beginning of the year	£22,624 14 8	£23,587 14 10	£27,750 14 1
Received during the year	38,926 8 1	57,179 16 1	57,070 3 11
Paid during the year	48,723 11 8	58,142 16 3	58,534 0 0
Remaining in hand at the end of the year	12,827 11 1	22,624 14 8	26,284 17 8

The total sum realised by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue on account of Admiralty Court stamps during the year 1864 was 8597l. 5s. 7d. The amount in 1863 was 9139l. 4s. 9d. The average of the five years, 1859-1863, is 8771l. 3s. 9d.

Under the head of general business, it is stated that the court sat on 102 days, and that the registrar and merchants sat on 28 days. In 1863, the court sat on 118 days; the registrar and merchants on 27. In 1862, the sittings were, of the court on 89 days; of the registrar and merchants on 23 days. In 1861, the sittings were, respectively, on 87 and on 25 days; in 1860, on 60 and on 27 days.

In 1864, one commission was inrolled in the registry appointing Lords of the Admiralty, and two commissions were appointed to administer oaths.

Eleven claims were investigated by the registrar in respect of seamen volunteering into the Royal Navy, and the amounts received and paid during the year, are shewn under different heads in the table. In the balances the amounts remaining in the hands of the Paymaster-General and in the hands of the registrar are distinguished; in the amount received during the year, the sum received on account of the amount voted by Parliament for salaries and other expenses is shewn, and underpaid during the year; the amount for salaries and other expenses of office is stated separately.

The following were the total amounts for each of the years 1864 and 1863, with the average of the totals for the five years, 1859 to 1863, inclusive:—

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1859-63.
Balances in hand at the beginning of the year	£22,624 14 8	£23,587 14 10	£27,750 14 1
Received during the year	38,926 8 1	57,179 16 1	57,070 3 11
Paid during the year	48,723 11 8	58,142 16 3	58,534 0 0
Remaining in hand at the end of the year	12,827 11 1	22,624 14 8	26,284 17 8

under the 17 & 18 Vict. c. 104. Of these, nine were allowed in full; one was varied or altered; and one was disallowed in toto. In the awards appealed against to the judge, the total amount claimed for compensation was 170l. 3s. 4d., of which 7l. 10s. 4d. was disallowed, leaving 162l. 13s. as the amount found due. Seventeen powers of attorney were registered under the Navy Prize Agents Act, 1863.

(To be continued).

LEGAL APPOINTMENTS.—The Lord Chancellor has appointed Josiah William Smith, Q. C., to be Judge of the County Court, No. 27, in the place of Uvedale Corbett, Esq., who has resigned.—W. M. Hindmarch, Q. C., has been appointed Recorder for the city of York, in the room of C. H. Elsley, Esq., deceased.

FREDERICK CHIFFERIEL,

ESTABLISHED 1819,

Law, Parliamentary, and Public Companies' Stationer,
PRINTER AND LITHOGRAPHER,
34 to 37, CURSITOR-STREET, AND
1 to 6, CHURCH-PASSAGE, CHANCERY-LANE, E. C.

PARLIAMENTARY

PLANS, SECTIONS, AND BOOKS OF REFERENCE LITHO-
GRAPHED WITH EXPEDITION.

Parliamentary Bills, Notices, and every description of Printing, executed with the utmost despatch.

Each Branch executed on the Premises, and a large and efficient Staff in each Department.

Five Copies Lithographed at less than half the cost of writing.

JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES LAW.

In 12mo., price 7s. 6d. cloth,

A SUPPLEMENT to the LAW and PRACTICE
of JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES: containing the Companies Act, 1862; the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1862; and the Rules of the Court of Chancery for regulating the Mode of Proceeding under the Companies Act, 1862. With an Introduction, Practical Notes, and Forms. By HENRY THRING, M.A., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

London: Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Book-sellers and Publishers.

THRING'S LAW OF JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES.

THE LAW and PRACTICE of JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES; including the Statutes of 1860 and 1862, with Notes, and the Forms required in making, administering, and winding up a Company. By HENRY THRING, Esq., Barrister at Law, Parliamentary Counsel to the Home Office. In 2 vols. 12mo. Price 18s. cloth.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

BOSCOE'S CRIMINAL EVIDENCE.—Sixth Edition.

In royal 12mo., price 30s. cloth.

BOSCOE'S DIGEST of the LAW of EVIDENCE in CRIMINAL CASES. Sixth Edition, with considerable Additions. By DAVID POWER, Esq., Q. C.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Publishers, London.

RUSSELL ON ARBITRATION.—Third Edition.

In royal 8vo., price 36s. cloth,

A TREATISE on the POWER and DUTY of an ARBITRATOR, and the Law of Submissions and Awards. With an Appendix of Forms, and of the Statutes relating to Arbitration. Third Edition. By FRANCIS RUSSELL, Esq., Barrister at Law. Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn; and H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

THE LAW OF NUISANCES.

The Third Edition, price 7s. 6d. boards,

TOULMIN SMITH'S PRACTICAL PROCEEDINGS for the REMOVAL of NUISANCES to HEALTH and SAFETY, and for the Execution of Drainage Works in every Parish, Town, and Place in England and Wales. With numerous Forms, and complete Instructions for the Conduct of Parish Committees. The Third Edition, with large Additions.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard; and W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 1 thick vol. royal 8vo., price 1l. 15s. cloth boards,

WOODFALL'S LAW of LANDLORD and TENANT. With a full Collection of Precedents and Forms of Procedure. The Eighth Edition. By W. R. COLE, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's inn; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

In 12mo., price 12s. 6d. cloth,

THE BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861: incorporating so much as remains in force of the Bankruptcy Law Consolidation Act, 1849, and of the Bankruptcy Act, 1854. With an Appendix, containing the 7 & 8 Vict. c. 70; the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 33; the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 147: the General Orders under the Bankruptcy Act, 1861; and the General Rules and Orders under the Bankruptcy Law Consolidation Act, 1849, with Notes. By WILLIAM HAZLITT, of the Middle Temple, Esq., a Registrar of the Court of Bankruptcy, and HENRY PHILIP ROCHE, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the OFFICE, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, October 14, 1863.

The Jurist

No. 563, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.
No. 1502, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

OCTOBER 21, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

SOLICITORS requiring Clerks should apply to ABBOTT, BARTON, & CO., Advertisement Contractors, 203, Strand, W.C., who have opened a FREE Register for Employers and Clerks. "Sittings Papers," "Circuit Papers," and Almanack for 1866, free for Stamp.

An entirely new List of London and Provincial Newspapers, in tabular form, 1s., giving the Counties, Towns, and Days of Publication, with Political Opinions, and price of each.

Advertising Office, 203, Strand.

TILSLEY'S STAMP ACTS,

INCLUDING THE ACTS OF PARLIAMENT FOR THE PRESENT YEAR.

In 8vo., price 12s. 6d. cloth,

A DIGEST OF THE STAMP ACTS and the Judicial Decisions on the Stamp Laws not contained in the Author's Treatise; including the Probate, Legacy, and Succession Duties; with Tables of all the Stamp Duties. By HUGH TILSLEY, Assistant Solicitor of Inland Revenue. Ninth Edition, revised and continued by his Son, EDWARD HUGH TILSLEY, of the Inland Revenue Office.

This Work, completed to the present date (including the Acts of Parliament of the present year), forms a Supplement to the Second Edition of the Treatise on the Stamp Laws by the same Author.

London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

WRONGS AND THEIR REMEDIES: being a Treatise on the Law of Torts. By C. G. ADDISON, Esq., Barrister at Law, Author of "The Law of Contracts." London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

RUSSELL ON CRIMES.

This day is published, in 3 vols. royal 8vo., price 51. 15s. 6d. cloth.

A TREATISE ON CRIMES AND MISDEMEANOURS. By Sir WILLIAM OLDNALL RUSSELL, Knt., late Chief Justice of Bengal. Fourth Edition. By CHARLES SPRENGEL GRAVES, Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel. London: Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard; H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; and W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE STUDY OF THE ENGLISH, ROMAN, HINDU, AND MAHOMMEDAN LEGAL SYSTEMS.

This day is published, price 1s.

ON THE STUDY OF THE ENGLISH, ROMAN, HINDU, AND MAHOMMEDAN LEGAL SYSTEMS, with especial regard to their salient points of Agreement and Difference; being a Lecture delivered at King's College, London. By JOHN CUTLER, B. A., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law, Professor of English Law and Jurisprudence, and Professor of Indian Jurisprudence, at King's College, London.

London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

INCORPORATED LAW SOCIETY, U. K.—LECTURES 1865-66.—THREE COURSES OF LECTURES will be delivered in the Hall of the Society on MONDAY and FRIDAY EVENINGS, in the Months of November, December, January, February, and March next, at half-past Seven o'clock precisely.

CONVEYANCING LECTURES, by RICHARD HORTON SMITH, Esq., Barrister at Law.

This Course of Lectures, which it is proposed to render of as practical a nature as may be, will be devoted to the discussion, at greater or less length as the importance of the several subjects shall seem to demand, and the time at disposal will allow, of some of the points in the Principles and Practice of Conveyancing most frequently occurring in actual business.

Davidson's Precedents and Forms in Conveyancing, amongst other established Text-books, will be most frequently referred to.

EQUITY LECTURES, by EBENEZER CHARLES, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Introductory Lecture—An Historical Sketch of the Judicial Office in Chancery and in Lunacy.

Five Lectures will be delivered upon the Jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery in Matters of Account.

The subjects will be treated under the following heads:—

1. Account as between Persons who stand to each other in the simple relation of Debtor and Creditor.
2. Account as between Principal and Agent, including the cases where a confidential relation subsists between the Parties.
3. Account as between Mortgagor and Mortgagee.
4. Account as between Ceatui que Trust and Trustees.
5. Account as between Partners.
6. Of the Doctrines of the Appropriation of Payments and of Equitable Set-off.

No. 563, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

Five Lectures will be delivered upon the Prohibitive and Protective Jurisdiction exercised by the Court of Chancery, by means of the Writs of Injunction and Ne Exeat Regno.

The subject will be treated under the following heads:—

1. Distinctions between the Cases in which Injunctions will be granted on an Interlocutory Application and at the Hearing of the Cause. Effect of the 82nd Section of the Common-law Procedure Act, 1854, upon the Equitable Remedy by way of Injunction.
2. Injunctions to prevent or stay Proceedings in other Courts, and, herein, of Orders to stay Proceedings in Courts of Equity in concurrent Suits.
3. Injunctions to restrain Breaches of Contract.
4. Injunctions to restrain Breaches of Trust.
5. Injunctions in Cases of Waste, Nuisance, and Trespass.
6. Injunctions in Cases of Railway and other Public Companies.
7. Injunctions in Cases affecting Patent Right, Copyright, and Trade Marks.
8. Injunctions in Cases of Partnership and other Miscellaneous Cases.
9. Orders restraining the Transfer of Funds in the Court of Chancery.
10. Of the writ of Ne Exeat Regno.

Concluding Lecture—The Limited Jurisdiction in Equity conferred on the County Courts by the recent Statute, 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99.

The following Text-books will be referred to in the Lectures:—

Spence's Equitable Jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery.
White and Tudor's Leading Cases on Equity.
Lewin on Trusts (4th Edition).
Lindley on Partnership.
Fisher on Mortgages.
Yool on Waste, Trespass, and Nuisance.
Seton on Decrees.

COMMON LAW AND MERCANTILE LAW LECTURES, by HUGH SHIELD, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Mercantile Contracts:—

I.—II. Contracts of Sale.—The Statute of Frauds.—Vendor's Lien and Stoppage in Transitu.

III. Contracts of Guarantee.—Principal and Surety.

IV.—V. Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes.

VI.—VIII. Contracts of Affranchisement and Insurance.

IX. Contracts of Hypothecation and Pledge.—Bills of Sale.

X.—XII. Law of Evidence.

The Subscription payable—

	For all the	For each
	Three Courses.	Course.
	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
By Clerks of Members	2 0 0	1 0 0
By Clerks of Gentlemen not Members	3 0 0	1 10 0
By all other Persons not being Members	4 0 0	2 0 0

Members of the Society may attend without subscribing.

*. To prevent interruption at the Lectures, Subscribers cannot be admitted to the Hall after the Lecture has commenced.

E. W. WILLIAMSON, Secretary.

Law Society's Hall, October, 1865.

Now ready, price 2s. 6d., post free.

A HANDY-BOOK ON CHANCERY LAW and PRACTICE for SUITORS under the New Equity Jurisdiction in the County Courts. With the Act complete, and Practical Observations thereon; with the authorised Forms and Rules of Court, &c. By G. MANLEY WETHERFIELD, Solicitor.

London: Stannard & Smith, 30, Chancey-lane, W. C.

SOLICITORS' JOURNAL and WEEKLY REPORTER.—The NEW VOLUMES, X and XIV, commence NOVEMBER 4.—Annual Subscriptions, JOURNAL, 26s.; Town; 25s.; Country; with the WEEKLY REPORTER, 52s., post-free to the Colonies, when paid in advance.

Office, 59, Carey-street, W. C.

FREDERICK CHIFFERIEL,

ESTABLISHED 1819,

Law, Parliamentary, and Public Companies' Stationer, PRINTER AND LITHOGRAPHER,

34 to 37, CURSITOR-STREET, AND
1 to 6, CHURCH-PASSAGE, CHANCERY-LANE, E. C.

PARLIAMENTARY PLANS, SECTIONS, AND BOOKS OF REFERENCE LITHOGRAPHED WITH EXPEDITION.

Parliamentary Bills, Notices, Books of Reference, and every description of Printing, executed with the utmost despatch.

Each Branch executed on the Premises.

A large and efficient Staff in each Department.

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	407
Judicial Statistics, 1864—Civil Side	408
Court Papers :—Common-law Sittings in and after Michaelmas Term, 1865	410
Statutes passed during the late Session of Parliament.

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

ROLLS COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Williams v. Glenton.—(Vendor and purchaser—Deed in completion—Payment of interest)	801
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By T. F. MORSE, Barrister at Law.

Rhodes v. Bate and Others.—(Payment by surety of principal's debts—Undue influence—Professional relationship)	808
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Hill v. Hill.—(Will—Specific legacies)	806
----------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVEST, Barrister at Law.

Re Windsor.—(Habeas corpus—United States of America—Extradition of criminals—6 & 7 Vict. c. 76, s. 1)	807
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH—(Continued.)

Reg. v. The Inhabitants of East Stoke.—(Indictment—Removal by certiorari—Recognition—Costs—16 & 17 Vict. c. 30, ss. 5, 6, and 7)	809
Reg. v. The Justices of the West Riding.—The Sheffield United Gas-light Company v. The Overseers of Sheffield.—(Quarter sessions—Appeal—Reference—Costs—12 & 13 Vict. c. 45, s. 13)	810

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By E. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

Ray v. Jones.—(Bankruptcy Act, 1861—Composition deed—Covenant not to sue—Plea in bar)	812
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

By W. BRANDT, Barrister at Law.

Priestly v. Fernie and Others.—(Principal, agent, and creditors—Election—Unsatisfied judgment) .	813
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT FOR DIVORCE AND MATRIMONIAL CAUSES.

By W. ERNST BROWNING, Barrister at Law.

Harding v. Harding and Lance; the Queen's Proctor intervening.—(Intervention of Queen's proctor—Pleas—Collusion—Evidence—20 & 21 Vict. c. 85, s. 43—23 & 24 Vict. c. 144, s. 7)	814
Sidney v. Sidney.—(Wife's petition—Dissolution of marriage—Permanent maintenance)	815

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

SMITH'S MERCANTILE LAW.

In royal 8vo., price 1l. 16s. cloth boards.

A COMPENDIUM OF MERCANTILE LAW. By J. W. SMITH, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law. Seventh Edition. By G. M. DOWDESWELL, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law.

London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn; H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; and W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

HAYES'S CONCISE CONVEYANCER

THE CONCISE CONVEYANCER, or SHORT PRECEDENTS OF CONVEYANCES. With Practical Remarks, and Summary of the Stamp Laws relating to Conveyances. By WILLIAM HAYES, Esq., Barrister at Law, one of the Six Conveyancing Counsel of the High Court of Chancery. The Second Edition, with considerable Additions; including a Chapter on Composition Deeds, under the New Bankrupt Act. By W. B. COLTMAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. Royal 12mo., price 18s.

* * * The present Edition contains Conveyances on Sales, Mortgages, Leases, Settlements, and a variety of Miscellaneous Instruments, but no "Wills," as the work is intended to be a companion volume to the well-known work by Hayes & Jarman of Concise Forms and Wills.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

The Sixth Edition, now ready, price 31s. cloth boards.

HAYES AND JARMAN'S CONCISE FORMS

OF WILLS, with Practical Notes: a Popular View of the Statute of Wills, and Suggestions to Persons taking Instructions for and preparing Wills; the Decisions on the Wills Acts, and other Testamentary Matters, in the House of Lords and Privy Council, and in the Equity, Common Law, Ecclesiastical, and Probate Courts, down to the Time of Publication; and many additional Forms. Sixth Edition. By THOMAS S. BADGER EASTWOOD, of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, M.A., and of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law, Reader on the Law of Real Property to the Four Inns of Court.

London: H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street, Law Bookseller and Publisher.

TOULMIN SMITH'S "THE PARISH."

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 18s. cloth bds.,

THE PARISH: its Powers and Obligations at Law as regards the Welfare of every Neighbourhood, and in Relation to the State; its Officers and Committees, and the Responsibility of every Parishioner. With Illustrations of the Practical Working of this Institution in all Secular Affairs, and of some modern Attempts at Ecclesiastical Incroachment. By TOULMIN SMITH, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. The Second Edition, with Important Additions. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

In 8vo., price 15s. cloth,

A HAND-BOOK OF PRECEDENTS in CONVEYANCING. By FRANCIS HOUSMAN, Barrister at Law. "We know of no work of the kind which contains within the same limited number of pages, and consequently at the same moderate price, so extensive a collection of forms readily applicable to the various exigencies of the draftsman."—Law Magazine, August, 1861.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SMITH'S REAL AND PERSONAL PROPERTY.

In 1 thick vol. 8vo., price 35s. cloth,

A COMPENDIUM of the LAW of REAL and PERSONAL PROPERTY, connected with Conveyancing; designed as a comprehensive Second Book for Students, and as a Digest of the most useful learning for Practitioners. Third Edition. By JOSIAH W. SMITH, B.C.L., Q.C.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard Lincoln's-inn.

SMITH'S MANUAL OF EQUITY JURISPRUDENCE.

SEVENTH EDITION, 1864.

A MANUAL OF EQUITY JURISPRUDENCE, founded on the works of Story, Spence, and other writers, and on the subsequent Cases: comprising the Fundamental Principles and the Points of Equity usually occurring in General Practice. By JOSIAH W. SMITH, B.C.L., Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel. Seventh Edition. In 12mo., 1864, price 12s. cloth.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In one very thick vol. 8vo., price 35s.,

A COMPENDIUM of the LAW of REAL and PERSONAL PROPERTY, connected with CONVEYANCING. Designed as a Comprehensive Second Book for Students, and as a Digest of the most useful Learning for Practitioners. By JOSIAH W. SMITH, B.C.L., Q.C. THIRD EDITION. 1865.

"As a refresher to the memory, and a repository of information that is wanted in daily practice, it will be found of great value."—Jurist, April 5, 1864.

"It will be seen from this outline, that the work is extremely well planned; the topics are arranged in the natural order as they flow out of one another, and thus immensely aid the reader's memory. He writes like a man who is master of his theme, clearly and concisely."—Law Times, Dec., 1855.

"A portly, admirable volume. . . . He has given to the student a book which he may read over and over again with profit and pleasure."—Law Times, Jan. 21, 1865.

"The work before us will, we think, be found of very great service to the practitioner."—Solicitors' Journal, Jan. 21, 1865.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, OCTOBER 21, 1865.

LEARNED men now and then have some very odd vagaries; and the authors of a useful and well-executed treatise^{*} "On the Equitable Jurisdiction of the County Courts," and "The Principles on which such Jurisdiction is exercised, and the Practice by which it is governed," have seriously advanced the proposition, that this new experiment of the Legislature, is not confined to giving jurisdiction to the county courts, but has at once, and without waiting, stripped the Court of Chancery of its powers to the exact extent it has given equitable powers to the county courts. In other words, that the new statute (28 & 29 Vict. c. 99) has taken away from the superior court what it has given to the county courts. Sect. 1 enacts, that the county courts shall have and exercise all the power and authority of the High Court of Chancery in the suits and matters thereinafter mentioned; and then proceeds to enumerate and classify a great number and variety of matters, including, within certain limits there specified, suits by creditors, legatees, &c.; suits for the execution of trusts; suits for foreclosure or redemption; specific performance; proceedings under the Trustees Relief Act, or under the Trustees Acts; proceedings relating to the maintenance of infants; suits for the dissolution or winding up of partnerships; proceedings for orders in the nature of injunctions, &c.; and then follows sect. 2, in these terms:—"In all such suits or matters the judge of a county court shall, in addition to the powers and authorities now possessed by him, have all the powers and authorities, for the purposes of this act, of a judge of the High Court of Chancery; and the treasurer, registrar, and high bailiff shall, in all matters in which the county court has jurisdiction under this act, discharge any duties which an officer of the Court of Chancery can discharge, either under the order of a judge of such court or the practice thereof, and all officers of the county courts shall, in discharging such duties, conform to any rules and orders to be framed as hereinafter provided." Then by sect. 3, any one of the Vice-Chancellors, on application of any party to any suit or matter pending in the county court, shall have power, if he shall think fit, to transfer the same to the Court of Chancery; and by sect. 18 a right of appeal is given.

And in the treatise referred to, it is vehemently argued, that as to all the suits and proceedings enumerated in sect. 1, the suitor has no option (if he proceeds at all) but to commence proceedings in the county court, and that the county court has the sole and exclusive jurisdiction to entertain them, subject only to their being transferred by the order of a Vice-Chancellor under sect. 3, or being made the subject of appeal under sect. 18.

We must, in justice to the learned authors, refer

* By Henry Frederick Gibbons, LL.B., Cantab., Barrister at Law, and William Charles Harvey, B.A., Cantab., Barrister at Law.

our readers to their observations on this point in the treatise itself, as it is not possible within the limits of this article to collect them all and set them out at length. But their argument in the main appears to be, that as the act says it gives "all" the power and authority of the Court of Chancery to the county courts, the Court of Chancery can have none left, because if you take "all" nothing remains. The consequences are to be mitigated by special applications to a Vice-Chancellor under sect. 3, to transfer suits pending. Stress is also laid on sects. 3 and 4 of the 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95, the original County Courts Act, as supporting the construction sought to be put on this last act. Now, the 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95, is intitled "An Act for the Recovery of Small Debts in England and Wales," and sect. 3 says, that every court to be holden under that act shall have all the jurisdiction and powers of the old county court, for the recovery of debts and demands as altered by that act; and sect. 4, that for all the purposes except those which shall be within the jurisdiction of the courts holden under that act, the county court shall be holden as if the act had not passed. But these sections, if they have any application by way of argument at all, make against the view contended for, for they go to shew that when jurisdiction is taken away, negative words are used; for the two sections, read together, contain negative words, shewing what jurisdiction is taken away, and what remains; for greater caution, and to make the whole thing complete, words of preservation being also used. And this brings us to the well-known rule of construction, which has prevailed from the earliest times, that there must be negative words to take away jurisdiction. The rule is stated in 2 Inst. 447. By stat. 13 Edw. 1, c. 39, jurisdiction was given to justices of assize to hear complaints as to the articles mentioned in that act, "et habeant iudiciarii ad assisas capiendas assignati cum in comitatum venerint potestatem audiendi querimonias singulorum conquerentium quoad articulos in isto statuto contentos et iustitiam in forma predicta exhibendi." And justices assigned to take assizes when they come into the shire, shall have power to hear the complaints of all complainants as to the articles mentioned in this statute, and administer justice in form aforesaid. "This clause," says Lord Coke, "is in the affirmative, and, therefore, the party grieved may take his remedy in this act, either before the justices of assize, or in any other court that has cognisance thereof; for justices of assize could not have power in this case, without express words; and, therefore, if the meaning be to exclude other judges than those that be named, there must be words negative. Thus, "and not in any other court, nor before any other judges." (2 Inst. 447). And in the last edition of Story's Equity Jurisprudence, 527, s. 542, is as follows:—"The jurisdiction of courts of equity to superintend the administration of assets, and decree a distribution of the residue after payment of all debts and charges, among the parties entitled either as legatees or as distributees, does not seem to have been thoroughly established until near the close of the reign of Charles II. The objection was then made, that the spiritual courts had full authority under the Statute of Distributions to decree a distribution of the residue. But upon a demurrer filed to a bill for a distribution, it was held by the Lord Chancellor that, there being no negative words in the act of Parliament (the Statute of Distributions), the jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery was not taken away; for the remedy in Chancery was more complete and effectual than that in the spiritual courts; or, to use the language of the Court upon that occasion, the spiritual court in that case had but a lame jurisdiction; referring to Mathews v. Newby (1 Vern. 133); Howard v. Howard (Id. 134); and a number of other cases, English and American. There is then abundance of authority that negative words must be used to take away jurisdiction; and though the term "lame jurisdiction" has no very logical application to the real ground on which Mathews v. Newby was decided; and though such language cannot by any means be applied to the county courts, which are justly acknowledged to be institutions of great utility, dealing with a multiplicity of affairs, yet we may modify the figure, and say that there is an antecedent improbability that the Legislature would at once deprive suitors in equity of all option, and force them to rely exclusively on the county courts in all the matters enumerated in sect. 1, before those courts have had any time for the use and exercise of their new equitable limbs. But leaving conjecture as to what was probable, and recurring to the statute itself, we may observe that, from the beginning to the end of the act, there is not one single word negating the jurisdiction of the superior court.

The declared object of the act is to confer on the county courts a limited jurisdiction in equity, and the manifest intention is that of giving and conferring, and not of taking away from any; and not only are there no negative words, but the frame of the act and its language affirmatively implies the continuing jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery. By sect. 3 the county court judge is to have all the powers and authorities of "a judge" of the Court of Chancery; he is to have the same powers just as the officers of the county court are to have the same powers as the officers of the Court of Chancery; and all this implies continuance. But our readers may exclaim, "Why do you labour so; the point is clear?" And we will conclude with this one observation—that the utility of the treatise in question, as a work of practice and reference, is not in the least interfered with by the perhaps patriotic, but certainly rather extravagant, attempt to give exclusive power to the newly-endowed tribunals.

JUDICIAL STATISTICS, 1864—CIVIL SIDE.

(Concluded from p. 404).

Under the head of naval prize business, it is shewn that there were 87 cases, in which 14 of her Majesty's ships were interested, the total amount paid in on this account having been 48,890*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.*

The number of cases of bounties for the capture and destruction of pirates and proceeds of practical vessels was four, in which four of her Majesty's ships were interested, the amount paid in being 1697*l.* 10*s.* 9*d.*

The amounts ordered for distribution were, in respect of slave vessels, 43,356*l.* 18*s.* 5*d.*, in 69 cases; for salvage services, 284*l.* 15*s.*, in two cases; and for capture and destruction of pirates, &c., 1500*l.* 5*s.* 2*d.*, in three cases.

The amounts ordered for distribution for the naval portion of the Parliamentary grant for stores captured at Kertch and Yenakali in 1855 was 62,501*l.* 1*s.* 9*d.*

The return of the proceedings in the office of the Marshal of the High Court of Admiralty shews, under the different heads of salvage, damage, bottomry, necessities, towage, wages, pilotage, restraint, possession, and other causes, the number of instruments executed, viz. warrants; citation in rem; citations in personam; monitions for different purposes; attachments; subpoenas; decrees of possession; releases; commissions of unlivery of cargo, of appraisement, of appraisement and sale of ships, of appraisement and sale of cargoes; the total number of instruments executed having been 625.

The return shews also the number of arrests made, viz. of ships; of ships and cargoes; of ships and freights; of ships, cargoes, and freights; of cargoes and freights; of cargoes only; of freights only; of rigging, &c.; of proceeds in registry; the total number of arrests made being 268.

There were 175 notices of bail, and 172 reports as to the sufficiency of bail; the total amount of bail reported being 216,297*l.* 1*s.* 5*d.*

The amount of proceeds paid into the registry was, of ships sold, 13,380*l.*; of cargoes sold, 469*l.* 12*s.* 9*d.*

A summary of the proceedings in her Majesty's Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes for the year ended the 31st December, 1864, has been furnished by the senior registrar of the Court in the usual form.

The following table shews the proceedings for 1864, as returned by the chief registrar, in comparison with the proceedings in 1863, and with the average of the numbers under each head for the five years from 1858, the first year of the operation of the court, to 1862, inclusive:—

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1858-62.
Petitions filed:
In formâ pauperis	1	9	3
For nullity of marriage	15	7	5
For dissolution of marriage	231	255	210
For judicial separation	66	43	64
For restitution of conjugal rights	17	9	12
For jactitation of marriage	—	—	—
For declaratory act	2	—	2
	—332	—323	—296
Applications for protection of property
	8	12	24
Petitions for alimony:
Pendente lite	84	85	70
Permanent	1	4	3
Citations issued	488	468	414
Appearances entered	248	216	205
Answers filed	280	237	189
Replies by petitioner	134	124	79
Rejoinders by respondent	10	4	14
Motions	830	816	611
Summonses	755	701	534
Causes tried before full court:
On oral evidence	—	7	—
On affidavit	—	—	—
Causes tried before full court and jury
	—	—	—

Causes tried before the Judge

Ordinary :
On oral evidence . . .	143	172	—
On affidavit . . .	—	—	—
Causes tried before the Judge
Ordinary and jury . . .	48	58	—
Total causes tried . . .	—191	—237	—219

Judgments given :

By the full court . . .	5	7	70
By the Judge Ordinary . . .	143	230	122
Applications for new trial . . .	2	4	3
Appeals to the House of Lords . . .	—	—	—
Appeals from Judge Ordinary to the full court . . .	—	—	—

The total number of petitions filed was higher, it will be seen, than the average. It is higher than the number for any year, with the exception of 1858. The number of petitions for the dissolution of marriage also is higher than the average. It is higher than the number for any year excepting 1863.

The total number of petitions filed since the establishment of the court is 2137; the total number of judgments given is 1207.

The amount of fees received in each year has been :—

1864.	1863.	1862.	1861.	1860.	1859.	1858.
£2968	£2508	£2439	£2561	£2489	£2411	£1549

The Court of Probate, established under a statute of the same year (20 & 21 Vict. c. 77) as the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes, exercises an exclusive jurisdiction in all matters relating to the grant or revocation of probate of wills and letters of administration.

Of the proceedings in this court in the year 1864, the senior registrar has furnished a return similar to the returns for previous years; and in the following table the proceedings are shewn, under the heads given in the return, for each of the years 1864 and 1863, with the average of the numbers under each head for the five years 1858–1863 :—

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1858–62.
Total number of probates granted	9,445	8,496	8,251
„ administrations . . .	4,807	4,383	4,406
„ caveats . . .	1,006	910	926
„ appearances . . .	285	226	235
„ motions . . .	591	534	563
„ petitions . . .	—	2	5
„ causes . . .	483	418	393
Summonses . . .	605	441	451
Trials by special jury . . .	9	11	11
Trials by common jury . . .	7	11	10
Causes heard by judge only . . .	33	25	23
Probates and administrations granted :
On hearing of causes . . .	49	40	41
On motion . . .	245	209	283
On summonses . . .	3	5	19
Causes in progress at the end of the year . . .	102	102	112
Causes ready for hearing and left unheard . . .	10	7	7
Questions referred to courts of law . . .	6	9	8
Notices of appeal to the House of Lords . . .	—	2	—
Revocations of probate or administration . . .	36	50	34
Total amount of fees in court and contentious business . . .	£1,891	£1,614	£2,068
Taxed costs . . .	£7,602	£5,185	£10,019

The majority of the causes, it is stated by the senior registrar, were disposed of by motions in court—3 by orders on summonses, and 92 by final orders on summonses. The total amount of stamps issued in London for probate and administration was 808,1691. for 1864; for the preceding year the amount was 740,8731.

The power of the district registrars extends to the grant of probates and letters of administration in common form, that is, where there is no contention to the grant; in disputed cases the grant can be made only on the decision of the county court. The total of the proceedings in the whole of the forty district registries, and the total amount of fees and of stamps, were as follows for each of the years 1864 and 1863. The average of the five years, 1858–62, is added :—

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1858–62.
Number granted in common form :
Probates . . .	14,882	14,268	13,438
Letters of administration . . .	5,276	5,056	5,023
Letters of administration with will annexed . . .	930	795	717
Number granted under direction of judge :
Probate . . .	17	14	13
Letters of administration . . .	6	3	5
Letters of administration with will annexed . . .	2	1	2
Number of caveats against grants of probate and letters of administration . . .	311	246	301
Number refused under direction of judge . . .	1	3	2
Number granted on decrees of county courts :
Probates . . .	2	2	1
Letters of administration . . .	—	—	—
Number recalled or varied on decrees of county courts . . .	—	—	—
Total amount of fees received . . .	£63,290	£60,122	£52,264
Amount of stamp duty for probate and administration . . .	£567,939	£549,415	£462,898

The number of suits in the Ecclesiastical Courts (exclusive of Faculties) for the year 1864 shews a further decrease. For 1863 the number was 22; for the past year it is only 15. In 1862 there were 31 suits; in 1861, 36; in 1860, 35; and in 1859, 28: the returns extending no further. Of the 15 suits in 1864, six were in the Archdeacon Court of Canterbury, one in the Archdeacon Court of York, four were in the Diocesan Court of Bath and Wells, one in the Diocesan Court of London, one at Rochester, and two at Llandaff.

The proceedings in 1864 were as follows :—

In matters of church rates . . .	9
For becoming a surrogate . . .	2
Against institution to benefice . . .	1
Deprivation of benefice . . .	2
To answer articles, &c. . .	1

The results of the proceedings were—in one suit an interlocutory decree; in two cases the suits were agreed; in one the defendant was admonished; in one suspended; in two cases appointments were made; in seven of the suits the proceedings were still pending, and one was appealed against.

The other proceedings before the Courts were on suits for faculties, of which there were 95, as follows :—

For erecting, altering, restoring, or rebuilding churches . . .	78
For pew seats . . .	1
For building schoolhouses in churchyards . . .	2
For removing buildings on a glebe . . .	1
For tablets, gravestones, or vaults . . .	4
For removal of bodies . . .	5
For other objects . . .	4

In 91 cases faculties were granted; in one case refused; three were in progress.

In 1863 there were proceedings in 82 cases on suits for faculties; in 1862, in 77; in 1861, in 95; in 1860, in 81; in 1859, in 87.

The amount of the court fees in 1864 was 320*l.*; in 1863 and 1862, 300*l.*; in 1861, 294*l.*; in 1860, 288*l.*; in 1859, 281*l.*

A return of all appeals and proceedings before the 1864.	1863.	1862.	1861.	1860.	1859.

Number of appeals entered	75	60	51	78	67	59
Dismissed for non-prosecution	8	8	14	16	6	7
Heard and determined	40	40	48	45	42	32
Judgments affirmed	31	26	23	24	25	16
" varied	1	1	4	6	2	—
" reversed	13	13	21	15	15	16
Appeals (lodged since 1st January, 1860) which remained for hearing	114	90	94	99	81	66

In 10 of the appeals heard and determined in 1864, no costs were given; in 30, costs were given. These numbers were the same in 1863.

The total amount of costs taxed (in 28 appeals in which the costs on one side only were taxed by the registrar) was 6484*l.* 7*s.* 9*d.*, giving an average of 231*l.* 11*s.* 8*d.* in each case. In the preceding year the average was 263*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* for each case.

In 1864 four applications were lodged for the extension or confirming of letters-patent, two of which were granted. The total amount of Council Office fees on patent cases was 38*l.* 5*s.* 0*d.* During the year one matter was specially referred.

The amount of Council Office fees on appeals was 732*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.*; in 1863 the amount was 824*l.* 14*s.* 6*d.*; in 1862 it was 1381*l.* 11*s.* 0*d.*

In addition to the foregoing business, the Lords of the Judicial Committee of Privy Council heard during the year 19 petitions in appeals (interlocutory) argued by counsel.

The return furnished in the usual form by the Clerk of the Parliaments shews the judicial proceedings of the House of Lords during the session of 1864.

In the following abstract, the number of cases from each of the courts named is stated, in comparison with the number for the preceding year, and with the average of the numbers for the five years, 1858 to 1862, inclusive:—

	1864.	1863.	Average, 1858-62.
From the Court of Chancery—
England	11	15	18
Ireland	4	4	7
From the Court of Exchequer—
England	3	—	—
From the Court of Exchequer Chamber—
England	11	5	9
Ireland	—	—	2
From the Court of Session—
Scotland	33	23	26
From the Court of Probate—
England	1	—	2
Ireland	—	—	—
From the Court of Divorce—
England	1	3	2
Total	64	50	66

Of the 64 appeals and causes in error presented in 1864, as above mentioned, 15 were in matters of real property, 32 in matters of personal property, 5 in Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in the year 1864, made in the usual form by the registrar of the Privy Council, shews the number of appeals and proceedings, and the results, under each of the heads of the Admiralty Court, Ecclesiastical Courts, Channel Islands and Isle of Man, Colonies, and India.

The numbers of appeals entered, the numbers dismissed for non-prosecution, and the numbers heard and determined, with the judgments, were as follows in 1864 and in each of the five preceding years:—

matters real and personal, and 12 miscellaneous; 10 cases were withdrawn; 15 were dismissed for want of prosecution; 27 judgments were delivered, including causes heard in the previous session, and standing over for judgment: 10 of the causes were simply affirmed; 5 were affirmed with declaration or variation; 3 were dismissed; 1 was simply reversed; 4 were reversed with declaration, direction, or remit.

The total number of causes heard in 1864 was 36, including causes standing over for judgment, and heard in part.

The number of causes remaining for hearing at the end of the session of 1864 was 42.

In the preceding year the number of causes heard was 25, the number which remained for hearing was 31; in 1862, the number heard was 30, the number which remained for hearing was 35; in 1861, 26; in 1860, 27; in 1859 and 1858, each, 49 causes remained for hearing at the end of the session.

The total amount of fees in 1864 was 1927*l.* 14*s.* 6*d.*; in 1863 the amount was 1449*l.* 2*s.* 0*d.*; the average of the five preceding years is 2114*l.* 13*s.* 8*d.*

Secretary of State's Office, F. S. LESLIE.
Whitehall, 17th May, 1865.

Court Papers.

NISI PRIUS SITTINGS, IN AND AFTER MICHAELMAS TERM, 1865.

Court of Queen's Bench.

In Term.

MIDDLESEX.	LONDON.
1st sitting, Friday . . . Nov. 3	There will not be any sittings during term in London.
2nd sitting, Friday 10
3rd sitting, Friday 17

After Term.

Monday Nov. 27	Saturday Dec. 9
The Court will sit at ten o'clock every day.

The causes in the list for each of the above sitting days in term, if not disposed of on those days, will be tried by adjournment on the days following each of such sitting days.

Court of Common Pleas.

In Term.

MIDDLESEX.	LONDON.
Friday Nov. 3	The Court will not sit in London during term.
Friday 10
Friday 17

After Term.

Monday Nov. 27	Friday Dec. 8
The Court will sit during and after term at ten o'clock.

Exchequer of Pleas.*In Term.MIDDLESEX.

1st sitting, Friday .. Nov. 3
2nd sitting, Friday 10
3rd sitting, Friday 17

LONDON.

There will not be any sittings
during term in London.

After Term.

Monday Nov. 27 | Friday Dec. 8

The Court will sit in and after term at ten o'clock.

The Court will sit in Middlesex, at Nisi Prius, in term, by adjournment from day to day until the causes entered for the respective Middlesex Sittings are disposed of.

REPORTS.—The more accomplished the lawyer, the less he needs, and the less he does, trouble himself with cases in point, for he can draw from his own stores, and reason much better for himself. But the little lawyer, who has no stores of his own, and cannot so reason, and who, like the Flying Dutchman, is always at sea, always running against the wind, and always offering papers perilous to handle, wants reports to hitch himself out of the perilous circle; why not let him have some? The walrus is not unwieldy in his own element. It is only ambition to climb that makes him so, and exposes him to shot at the very moment of finding his voice. The labour of search is not yet quite overwhelming to those who are willing to give their whole time and strength to it. The earlier reports, those conventional old cherubs, all head and dead, νεκρὴν ἀπερνήνα καρπύα, speak the little they do know, with the voice and utterance of the later, and both together find a ready refuge under the wing of that most eydent and benevolent scold, the text writer. Some of the former, indeed, like the Dodo, have nothing of them left but an empty skull, a claw, and an apocryphal picture. Others, no more than a verdict, they talked folly, “ante nos nostra dixerunt,” and perished justly. An old black letter in these days steps forward to state his rights and wrongs, more like a sexton shewing a crypt than a philosopher, and with all the wailing timidity of the mangled Deiphobus, and like him, too, snubbed, rejected, and all forlorn, soon sighs forth his submission, and leaves the field to his more showy successor.

“Ne laudatissime sævi;

Discedam, explebo numerum, reddarque tenebris;
I, decus, i, nostrum, melioribus utere fatis.”

As to the showy successors indeed—but then it is manifest that it must be as easy to talk nothing under one system as under another. Will a code, will anything blunt the graver? Will anything free us from our blue and buff button holders? We perish from anomalous competition, an infinite infinitive scribere. We drag for ever a salt imbelluous sea, in which nothing can sink, nothing can live, over which neither eagle or linnet can fly. We walk through an enchanted wood, with a calling voice from every twig. We tax our memories to the disabling of our judgments, and, of right or by curtesy, are good lawyers now only because there have been good lawyers before us. Our reporters, who, being the sons of Mnemosyne or memory, must be brothers of the Muses, are like the stars in the heavens; the longer you gaze the more of them there are. You may divide the square root of their sum total by any unit you like, and read the riot act effectively to the quotient. And then they are as restless as Œvies, always starting and nibbling at something or another. In fact, they set round ecstatically, like children at a feast, who eat of a thing, not because they like it, but from jealousy, because they see their little playfellows doing so; and we, the tremulous humbugs that we are, press them on, under a certain hidden compulsion, which might be love of the science if it were not something else. Yet do we pine for the luxury of kind regrets, for the days of the Lord Felix, the most uxorious of judges, who had but one reporter, as you may any day see in Hogarth's picture of Drusilla setting her cap at the bar, and even he is not taking it down. Surely, they might be practised upon by promises or something, and got out of the way, except a few for authorised reporters, steady, able, accurate, and judicious fellows—

“Doctos ego quos et amicos

Prudens prætereo, metuens alaspabile bellum—” with vested interests, good pay, inattentive minds, and an inveterate habit of losing their notes. This is only too much of a good thing “mole ruentis suæ,” for if law be a science, unless we are to be left to the shaky notions of the first comer, where somebody is always coming, we must have reporters, only we do not want to have a lot of boys flogging the same top. It seems odd to require the judge to declare the law and its reasons, and not provide for recording such declaration. I think this must have been our Astec worship; we neglected the learning and wisdom of the judge for the stunted little idiot of a postea. However, the reporter came, as a great man always does come, when he was wanted, and did what was wanted; and all he wants in turn, is to be relieved from a competition which tends to no improvement, from all publisher's difficulties, and thus be enabled to do what he so ardently desires, namely, to give us his reports, at cost price, by the weight, at two-pence a pound. Then, is not this a case for obstructive reform?—Thoughts on Legal Discontent. 1855.

PETTY SESSIONS PRACTICE.

In thick 12mo., price 18s. cloth, lettered,

STONE'S PRACTICE OF PETTY SESSIONS.

With the Statutes, a List of Summary Convictions, and an Appendix of Forms. Seventh Edition. By THOMAS BELL and LEWIS W. CAVE, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. With a Supplement, bringing the Statutes and Cases up to 1863. 12mo., price 18s. cloth.

“It is remarkable for a rare combination of conciseness and clearness in the composition, which have recommended it to magistrates who have not been educated as lawyers, and to whom, therefore, the books written for the use of lawyers are often obscure by reason of their technicalities. The present editors have preserved this characteristic of Mr. Stone's volume in their own abundant additions to it.”—Law Times.

*. The Supplement may be had by itself, price 3s. boards.
Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Publishers.

In 2 thick vols., price 21. 12s. 6d. cloth,

CHITTY'S ARCHBOLD'S PRACTICE of the COURT of QUEEN'S BENCH in PERSONAL ACTIONS and EJECTMENT. By THOMAS CHITTY, Esq. Including the Practice of the Courts of Common Pleas and Exchequer. The Eleventh Edition. By SAMUEL PRENTICE, Esq., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

CHITTY ON BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 11. 8s.,

CHITTY ON BILLS OF EXCHANGE, Promissory Notes, Cheques on Bankers, Bankers' Cash Notes, and Bank Notes; with References to the Law of Scotland, France, and America. The Tenth Edition. By JOHN A. RUSSELL and D. MACLACHLAN, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

In 1 thick vol., price 11. 11s. 6d. cloth,

CHITTYS FORMS of PRACTICAL PROCEEDINGS in the COURTS of QUEEN'S BENCH, COMMON PLEAS, and EXCHEQUER of PLEAS. With Notes and Observations thereon. The Ninth Edition, enlarged.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In royal 12mo., price 14s. cloth,

A TREATISE on the PRINCIPLES and PRACTICE of the COURT for DIVORCE and MATRIMONIAL CAUSES, with the Statutes, Rules, Fees, and Forms relating thereto, and copious Examples of Bills of Costs. By GEORGE BROWNE, Esq., B. A., Barrister at Law, of the Inner Temple.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

The Fifteenth Edition, by W. N. Welsby, Esq., adapted to the New Criminal Statutes of 1881, in 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 1s. 6s. cloth boards.

A RCHBOLD'S PLEADING and EVIDENCE in CRIMINAL CASES; with the Statutes, Precedents of Indictments, and the Evidence necessary to support them. By JOHN JERVIS, Esq. (late Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas). The Fifteenth Edition. Including the Practice in Criminal Proceedings by Indictment. By W. N. WELSBY, Esq., Barrister at Law, Recorder of Chester.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

THE CREDIT FONCIER and MOBILIER of ENGLAND (LIMITED).—In answer to the numerous inquiries for Prospectuses and Forms of Application for Shares of the New Issue of Capital of this Company, IT IS HEREBY NOTIFIED, that they will NOT BE READY till TUESDAY NEXT, the 24th inst.

Copies of the Half-yearly Report and Balance-sheet can, however, be had on application at the Company's Office.

ALFRED LOWE, Secretary.

17 and 18, Cornhill, London, Oct. 18, 1885.

THE CREDIT FONCIER and MOBILIER of ENGLAND (LIMITED).—NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that the HALF-YEARLY GENERAL MEETING of this Company will be held at the LONDON TAVERN, Bishopsgate-street, London, on TUESDAY, October 24, at Eleven o'clock a.m. precisely, for the purpose of receiving the Directors' and Auditors' Report and Balance-sheet, and for declaring a Dividend.

The transfer books of the Company will be closed from Saturday, the 21st, to Saturday the 28th October, both days inclusive.

By order of the Court of Directors,

ALFRED LOWE, Secretary.

17 and 18, Cornhill, London, Oct. 6, 1885.

THE CREDIT FONCIER and MOBILIER of ENGLAND (LIMITED).—Capital £4,000,000, in 200,000 shares of £20 each. Capital subscribed, 100,000 shares (first issue), £2,000,000. Capital paid up thereon, £5 per share, £500,000; Reserve Fund, £200,000; Dividend Reserve Fund, £70,000.

DIRECTORS.

The Right Hon. JAMES STUART WORTLEY, Governor.
James Levick, Esq., merchant, King's Arms-yard, } Deputy
James Nugent Daniell, Esq., London, } Governors.
James Childs, Esq., London.

William Dent, sen., Esq., Chairman of the Thames and Mersey Marine Insurance Company (Limited).

Alexander Dunbar, Esq., Old Broad-street, London.

Charles Ellis, Esq., Lloyd's.

Adolphe Hakim, Esq., Cornhill, London.

William Harrison, Esq. (Messrs. Young, Harrison, & Bevan, Director of the Thames and Mersey Insurance Company.

Richard Stuart Lane, Esq., London.

Charles E. Newbon, Esq., London.

Henry Pownall, Esq., J. P., Russell-square, London.

Joseph Mackrill Smith, Esq. (Messrs. Mackrill, Smith, & Co.), Old Broad-street, London.

Edward Warner, Esq., M. P., London.

James White, Esq., M. P.

Albert Grant, Esq., M. P., Managing Director.

Bankers—The Agra and Masterman's Bank (Limited): Messrs. Smith, Payne, & Smiths; the National Bank, London, Dublin, and its Branches in Ireland.

Solicitors—Messrs. Newbon, Evans, & Co., Nicholas-lane, E. C.

Secretary—Alfred Lowe, Esq.

Offices, 17 and 18, Cornhill, London.

DEPOSITS RECEIVED by the CREDIT FONCIER and MOBILIER of ENGLAND (LIMITED).—RATES for MONEY on DEPOSIT.—This Company receives money on deposit, in sums of 10l. and upwards, at the under-mentioned rates, from this day until further notice, viz.:—

At 14 days' notice	6 per cent. per annum.
At 1 month's notice	6½ per cent. per annum.
For fixed periods of not less than 3 months, and up to 6 months	5½ per cent. per annum.
Beyond 6 months, and up to 9 months	6 per cent. per annum.
Beyond 9 months, and up to 12 months	6½ per cent. per annum.
Beyond 12 months, and up to 24 months	6¾ per cent. per annum.

Forms of application can be obtained of the Secretary, to whom all communications must be addressed.

By order of the Court,

ALFRED LOWE, Secretary.

17 and 18, Cornhill, London, Oct. 9, 1885.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.
LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.
68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q.C.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.

Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office.

C. B. CLABON, Sec.

WILDMAN'S INTERNATIONAL LAW.

INSTITUTES of INTERNATIONAL LAW, in Time of Peace and Time of War. By RICHARD WILDMAN, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 2 vols. 8vo. 1849-50. Price 1l. 2s. 6d. bds. Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

On the Banks of the Thames at Teddington.—An exceedingly beautiful, and very valuable Freehold Residential Estate, 17 acres in extent, with most important building capabilities, having an uninterrupted frontage of 700 feet to the river, and of about 1500 feet to the high road.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX & BOUSFIELD beg to announce that the PARTICULARS and CONDITIONS of SALE, together with Plans of the GROVE ESTATE, Teddington, Middlesex, for SALE by AUCTION, on the 25th inst., are now READY for distribution, and may be had on application to the gardener on the estate; at the principal hotels in the locality; of H. PHILLIPS, Esq., Solicitor, 2, Robert-street, Adelphi; at Garraway's; and of the Auctioneers, 24, Gresham-street, Bank, E. C.

City of London.—The noble Premises in Leadenhall-street, so well known as being occupied by Messrs. Mechi & Barin, with possession admirably adapted for a bank, insurance office, or other public company.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX & BOUSFIELD beg to announce the PARTICULARS and CONDITIONS of SALE, with plans of the above, for SALE by AUCTION, at GARRAWAY'S, on the 25th inst., are now READY for distribution, and may be obtained of

Messrs. PAINE & LAYTON, Solicitors, 47, Gresham House, Old Broad-street; of

T. TAYLOR, Esq., Solicitor, 18, Laurence Pountney-hill, Cannon-street; at Garraway's; and of the Auctioneers, 24, Gresham-street, Bank, E. C.

City of London, Gracechurch-street.—About 12,000 feet of Freehold and long Leasehold Ground, with vacant possession of all but a small portion.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX & BOUSFIELD beg to announce that the PARTICULARS, with PLAN, of the above valuable ESTATE, comprising the site of the Spread Eagle Hotel, and of Nos. 86 and 87, Gracechurch-street, with vacant possession, and also the freehold house, No. 85, Gracechurch-street, with possession in about six years, are now READY for distribution, and may be obtained of Messrs. JANSON, COBB, & PEARSON, Solicitors, 41, Finsbury-circus; at Garraway's; and of the Auctioneers, 24, Gresham-street, Bank, E. C. The estate will be offered to auction, at Garraway's, on Wednesday, November 8, instead of on the 25th October, as previously advertised.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS at PARTRIDGE & COZENS,

WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS in PARCHEMENT,

192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 50s.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bonâ fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual RETAIL charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.

Draft Paper, 6s., 7s., 7s. 9d., and 9s. per ream.

Brief Paper, 13s. 6d., 16s., and 18s. 6d. per ream.

Foolscap Paper, 10s. 6d., 13s. 6d., and 17s. 6d. per ream.

Cream Laid Note, 3s., 4s., and 5s. per ream.

Large Cream Laid Note, 4s., 6s., and 7s. 6d. per ream.

Large Blue Note, 3s., 4s., and 6s. per ream.

Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2s. 9d., 3s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. per 1000.

Foolscap Official Envelopes, 1s. 6d. per 100, or 13s. 6d. per 1000.

Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, Piercers, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25s.; Good Stand for ditto with two Drawers, 17s.

Parchment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled: to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1s. 8d. each, 19s. per dozen, or 90s. per roll.

Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1s. 6d. each, 17s. per dozen, or 80s. per roll.

Records or Memorials, Ruled, 6d. each, 5s. 6d. per dozen, or 25s. per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inkstands; Postage Scales; Writing-cases; Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post-free.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the OFFICE, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, October 21, 1885.

The Jurist

No. 564, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.

No. 1803, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

OCTOBER 28, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

SOLICITORS requiring Clerks should apply to ABBOTT, BARTON, & CO., Advertisement Contractors, 203, Strand, W.C., who have opened a FREE Register for Employers and Clerks. "Sittings Papers," "Circuit Papers," and Almanack for 1866, free for postage.

An entirely new List of London and Provincial Newspapers, in tabular form, 1s., giving the Counties, Towns, and Days of Publication, with Political Opinions, and price of each.

ABBOTT, BARTON, & Co., Advertising Office, 203, Strand.

INCORPORATED LAW SOCIETY, U.K.

LAW CLASSES.—For the purpose of facilitating the acquisition of Legal Knowledge amongst the Articled and other Clerks of Solicitors, and guiding them in their studies, Law Classes, in addition to the Lectures annually delivered, will be instituted by and under the control of the Incorporated Law Society, and will commence on the 1st November next.

The Classes will be held during the months of November, December, January, February, and March, subject to a short interval during the Christmas vacation, on the following subjects:—

THE LAW OF REAL PROPERTY: Reader, ALFRED BAILEY, Esq., Barrister-at-Law.

COMMON LAW: Reader, WILLIAM MARKEY, Esq., Barrister-at-Law.

EQUITABLE: Reader, MONTAGUE COOKSON, Esq., Barrister-at-Law.

Each Reader will hold two Classes during the above period, one on the elementary, and the other on the more advanced portion of his particular subject.

The Reader in Real Property will, with the Elementary Class, go through a course of Real Property Law, taking the work of Mr. Joshua Williams as a text-book; and, with the Advanced Class, will examine, comment on, and illustrate the principal forms in Messrs. Davidson & Stappleton's Concise Precedents in Conveyancing, 6th ed., 1865.

The Reader in Equity will take Mr. Josiah Smith's Manual as a text-book of principles with both his Classes, and illustrate it by reference to White & Tudor's Leading Cases in Equity, and the later reported decisions.

For the procedure of the Court, he will use, with his Elementary Class, Hunter's Suit in Equity. With his Advanced Class, he will refer to the larger treatises on the subject, and the Chancery Acts and Orders collected in the 3rd edition of the work of Mr. Osborne Morgan.

The Reader on Common Law will discuss the following subjects:—With the Elementary Class—(1). The Law of Civil Procedure. (2). The Law of Contracts. With the Advanced Class, Mercantile Law, including the Law of Bankruptcy.

The discussions will be founded on Smith's Action at Law, Smith's Law of Contracts, and Smith's Mercantile Law respectively.

The Readers will call attention, as opportunity may serve, to the bearings of their several subjects upon Constitutional Law and Legal History.

The fee payable by each articled or other clerk of any member of the Society, for the privilege of attending all or any number of Classes, will be Three Pounds per annum, and by every other person attending such Classes Four Pounds per annum; but no person will be at liberty to attend an Elementary and Advanced Class on the same subject simultaneously.

Three Classes, one upon each of the subjects above mentioned, will be held, as nearly as possible, in every Eight days. No Classes will be held on Saturdays. The Elementary Class will commence at 4.30, and close at 5.30 P. M.; and the Advanced Class will commence at 5.30, and close at 6.30 P. M.

Applications for Tickets may be made at the Office of the Incorporated Law Society, Chancery-lane.

Rooms will be appropriated for the Classes at the Hall of the Incorporated Law Society.

By Order of the Council,

E. W. WILLIAMSON, Secretary.

Incorporated Law Society's Hall, Chancery-lane,
London, October, 1865.

THE LAW MAGAZINE AND LAW REVIEW

FOR NOVEMBER, being No. 39 of the United New Series, will be published on Tuesday next, price 5s., and contains—1. Legislation of Justinian.—2. Harris's Principia Prima Legum.—3. Law Reform in Last Parliament.—4. Constance Kent, and the Plea of Guilty.—5. Law as a Formal System.—6. The Palace of Justice.—7. Extract from Lord Brougham's Letter to the Earl of Radnor.—8. Scotch Prosecutions.—9. Bankruptcy Law Reform.—Events of the Quarter, Notices of New Books, &c.

London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

COUNTY COURTS IN EQUITY.

This day is published, price 5s. cloth,

THE COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION ACT, 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99. With the Orders, Rules, Forms, Costs, and other Matters relating thereto, and Copious Notes and References. By H. M. SLADEN, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Wildy & Sons, Lincoln's-inn-ardway.

No. 564, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

£20,000.—A Gentleman with this Sum at command can be ADMITTED as a PARTNER, either active or sleeping, into one of the most extensive Wholesale Concerns in the Metropolis.—All particulars can be obtained upon application to E., Messrs. Coleman, Turquand, Youngs, & Co., Tokenhouse-yard.

LEGAL WORKS, including Sets of all the best SERIALS, REPORTS, RARE and other BOOKS, mostly in fine condition, and collected from some of the best Libraries, which are guaranteed perfect, and offered at the under-mentioned prices, by

WILLIAM AMER,

Law Bookseller, Lincoln's-inn-gate, Carey-st., London, W.C.

Law Journal, containing Reports in all the Courts, with Statutes, Digest, &c. complete, a fine uniform copy, half calf, cloth sides, 1823 to 1861	£58 0 0
Law Times from the commencement, 1843 to 1861, half brown calf, cloth sides, uniform copy	17 10 0
Another copy, 1843 to 1859, half calf, fine set	10 10 0
Law Magazine from the commencement, 1828 to 1862, half calf	10 10 0
Jurist, containing Reports in all the Courts, with Statutes and Digest of Cases, from commencement, 1837 to 1861, 40 vols., half calf	25 10 0
Statutes at Large (Ruffhead), Magna Charta to the 27 & 28 Vict., 1864, 4to., calf uniform, only	25 0 0
Statutes at Large, Magna Charta, 27 & 28 Vict., 1864, calf and boards	20 0 0
Beavan's Reports in the Master of the Rolls Court, 32 vols., half calf	38 0 0
Chief Justice Erle's Decisions.—Common Bench Reports, new series (by Scott), 15 vols., in the finest law calf binding, new, 1856-64	15 15 0
Cruise's Digest of the Law of Real Property, best edition, new, half calf, 7 vols., 1835	3 3 0
Clark & Fennell's Reports in the House of Lords, with Continuation by Clark, 22 vols., to 1865, in the very best law calf	50 0 0
De Gex, Macnaghten, & Gordon's Appeal Cases in Chancery, 8 vols., calf	17 0 0
De Gex & Smale's Reports in Vice-Chancellor's Courts, 5 vols.	4 15 0
Hare's Reports in Vice-Chancellor Wigram and Wood's Courts, 11 vols., calf	13 0 0
Meeson & Welsby's Exchequer Reports, 17 vols., calf	10 18 0
Simons' Reports in the Vice-Chancellor's Court, 17 vols., calf	7 15 0
Sugden's (now Lord St. Leonards) Decisions, by Drury, Drury & Warren, and Jones & La Touche, 8 vols., calf, fine copy	6 18 0
Bacon's Abridgment of the Law, by Gwillim, best edition, 1832, half calf	2 12 0

SCARCE REPORTS, TREATISES, &c.

A Treatise on the Rights of Manors, 8vo., 1817	0 14 0
Brooke's New Cases in the time of Henry VIII., 12mo., 1587	0 18 0
Brydall's Law of England relating to the Nobility and Gentry, 12mo., 1675	0 5 6
Burgess' Colonial Law, 4 vols., calf, extremely scarce	19 10 0
Carlle's Border Laws, with several Original Articles and Treatises, 12mo., 1747	0 5 6
Choice Cases in Chancery, with the Practice Unfolded, 12mo., 1652	0 18 0
Comyn's Digest of the Law (by Hammond), 8 vols., best edition, half calf, 1822	2 18 0
Harrison's Digest, 4 vols., with Continuation by Jeremy & Evans to 1862, 10 vols., half-brown calf, fine copy	10 10 0
Cunningham's Reports, 7 to 10 Geo. 2, folio, calf, 1766	5 3 0
Fortescue De Laudibus Legum Angliæ (by Amos), 8vo., 1825	6 10 0
Jerwood on the Rights of the Sea Shores, 1850	0 14 0
Kelham's Norman Dictionary, with the Laws of William the Conqueror, in 8vo., 1768	1 1 0
Kelham's Domesday Book, illustrated, containing an Account of Ancient Record, 1788	1 1 0
Kelham's Britton, containing the Ancient Pleas of the Crown, 1763	0 9 0
Kelham's Translation of Selden's Dissertation on Fleta, with Notes, 8vo., 1771	0 10 8
Morley's Digest of all the Reported Cases decided in the Courts of India, and on Appeal from India, by her Majesty in Council, 3 vols., half morocco, 1852	5 5 0
Reeves' History of the English Law, 5 vols., 1814-29	2 18 0
Schultes on Aquatic Rights, with the Laws relating to Fishing in the Sea and Rivers, 1811	0 12 0
Sommer's Roman Ports and Forts in Kent, by Broms, with fine Portrait, 1693	0 8 6
Tohill's & Carr's Reports in Chancery, 12mo., 1649-56, two vols. in one	0 12 0
Year-Books, in 10 vols., complete, best edition, old calf	12 12 0

*. Licensed (by Authority) to value for Probate, Legacy Duty, &c. &c.

P P

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	415
Correspondence	417
The late Election of Reader on Constitutional Law ..	417
Court Papers:—

Equity Sittings for Michaelmas Term	419
Common-law Cause Lists for Michaelmas Term ..	420
Statutes passed during the late Session of Parliament.

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF CHANCERY.

By W. W. KNOX, Barrister at Law.

Ex parte Halliday, re Hall.—(Bankruptcy—Proof—Breach of contract)	817
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

ROLLS COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Re The Otley and Ilkley Railway Company.—(Will—Devise of house in which “A. now resides”—Wills Act, sect. 24)	818
Scott v. Key.—(Will—Implied trust)	819
Dick v. Munder.—(Practice—Security for costs)....	819

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By T. F. MORSE, Barrister at Law.

Clark v. Clark.—(Administration suit—Specific and residuary devise—Payment of debts rateably) ..	820
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Willmot v. Flewitt .—(Will—Construction—Period of survivorship)	820
------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LAYEST, Barrister at Law.

Reg. v. The Inhabitants of Buckland .—(Highway—Indictment—Costs—25 & 26 Vict. c. 61, s. 19) ..	821
Barber and Another v. Whiteley and Another .—(Fences, liability to repair—Ancient inclosure—Copyhold)	822
Wyatt v. The Great Western Railway Company .—(Railway—Highway—Crossing on a level—Obstruction—Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (8 Vict. c. 20), s. 47)	825

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By E. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

The City of Dublin Steam Packet Company v. Thompson .—(Merchant Shipping Act, 1854—Steam ship—Tonnage—Rules as to—Commissioners of Customs—Powers of)	829
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

By W. BRANDT, Barrister at Law.

Kempson and Others, Assignees, v. Boyle and Others .—(Statute of Frauds—Bought and sold notes—Variance—Evidence to explain—Deposit)	832
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

Now ready, price 2s. 6d., post free.

A HANDY-BOOK ON CHANCERY LAW and PRACTICE for SUITORS under the New Equity Jurisdiction in the County Courts. With the Act complete, and Practical Observations thereon: with the authorised Forms and Rules of Court, &c. By G. MANLEY WETHERFIELD, Solicitor.
London: Stannard & Smith, 30, Chancery-lane, W. C.

DIGEST OF THE IRISH COMMON-LAW REPORTS.

This day is published, 1 large vol. royal 8vo., 2344 pp., price 3l. 13s. 6d.,
A DIGEST of all the REPORTED CASES decided in the Superior and other COURTS of COMMON LAW in IRELAND, and in the COURT of ADMIRALTY; from Sir John Davies' Reports to the present time. With References to the Statutes and General Orders of Court. By THOMAS BRUNKER, A.M., Barrister-at-Law.
Dublin: Hodges, Smith, & Co., Grafton-street.—Sold by all the Law Booksellers in London.

THE WEEKLY REPORTER.—Every Saturday, price 1s. The first Number of the 14th volume will be published next Saturday. Each Number contains, when practicable, Cases decided up to the previous Wednesday. Annual Subscription, 52s., which includes double Numbers, Digest, and postage to the country and colonies when paid in advance.—Solicitors' Journal Office, 59, Carey-street, W. C.

ROSCOE'S CRIMINAL EVIDENCE.—Sixth Edition.

In royal 12mo., price 30s. cloth,

ROSCOE'S DIGEST of the LAW of EVIDENCE in CRIMINAL CASES. Sixth Edition, with considerable Additions. By DAVID POWER, Esq., Q. C.
Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Publishers, London.

FREDERICK CHIFFERIEL,

ESTABLISHED 1819,

Law, Parliamentary, and Public Companies' Stationer,
PRINTER AND LITHOGRAPHER,

34 to 37, CURSITOR-STREET, AND

1 to 6, CHURCH-PASSAGE, CHANCERY-LANE, E. C.

PARLIAMENTARY
PLANS, SECTIONS, AND BOOKS OF REFERENCE LITHO-
GRAPHED WITH EXPEDITION.

Parliamentary Bills, Notices, Books of Reference, and every description of Printing, executed with the utmost despatch.
Each Branch executed on the Premises.
A large and efficient Staff in each Department.

JOSHUA WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY.

Just published, the Seventh Edition, in 1 vol. 8vo., price 30s. cloth.
PRINCIPLES of the LAW of REAL PROPERTY, intended as a first Book for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, one of her Majesty's Counsel.
Henry Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, London.

Price 5s. cloth boards,

A HANDY-BOOK of the LAW of COPYRIGHT, comprising Literary, Dramatic, and Musical Copyright, and Copyright in Engravings, Sculpture, and Works of Art. With an Appendix, containing the Statutes, Convention with France, and Forms under the 25 & 26 Vict. c. 63. By F. P. CHAPPELL and JOHN SHOARD, LL.D.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

MAUDE & POLLOCK'S LAW OF SHIPPING.

A COMPENDIUM of the LAW of MERCHANT SHIPPING. With an Appendix, containing all the Statutes and Forms of Practical Utility. By FREDERICK PHILIP MAUDE and CHARLES EDWARD POLLOCK, Esqrs., of the Inner Temple, Barristers at Law. The Third Edition, including the Statutes and Decisions to the present time. Royal 8vo., price 1l. 14s. cloth.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

TILSLEY'S STAMP ACTS,

INCLUDING THE ACTS OF PARLIAMENT FOR THE PRESENT YEAR.

In 8vo., price 12s. 6d. cloth,

A DIGEST of the STAMP ACTS and the Judicial Decisions on the Stamp Laws not contained in the Author's Treatise; including the Probate, Legacy, and Succession Duties; with Tables of all the Stamp Duties. By HUGH TILSLEY, Assistant Solicitor of Inland Revenue. Ninth Edition, revised and continued by his Son, EDWARD HUGH TILSLEY, of the Inland Revenue Office.
This Work, completed to the present date (including the Acts of Parliament of the present year), forms a Supplement to the Second Edition of the Treatise on the Stamp Laws by the same Author.
London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's Inn.

This day is published, in demy 12mo., 1618 pp., price 1l. 18s. cloth,
ROGERS ON ELECTIONS, ELECTION COMMITTEES, and REGISTRATIONS. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Tenth Edition. With the new Registration Statute, and all the Election and Registration Cases to the present time. By F. S. P. WOLFERSTAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's Inn.

THE JURIST.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

In consequence of recent movements in the Law Reporting world, a rumour has been circulated that THE JURIST would be discontinued at the close of the current volume. The Publishers beg to assure the Profession that there is no foundation for the rumour, and that THE JURIST will be published as heretofore.

LONDON, OCTOBER 28, 1865.

Or late years the old idea of the Marquis of Worcester, of running steam-engines on ordinary roads, has again attracted much attention, and exercised the ingenuity of our engineers. This idea had slumbered for many years, both because of the imperfections of machinery, which rendered it practically a failure, and because of the railroads satisfying the requirements of the public in a great measure. The instituting, however, a system of steam agriculture by means of steam-engines, for thrashing, &c., which, from the engine being much too expensive to be remunerative on one farm, necessitated the transfer of unusually heavy loads from one place to another by the ordinary roads (those very loads themselves containing a locomotive power far exceeding horses, if only properly applied), revived the old first experiments in locomotion by steam power, and set our engineers again at work in devising machinery, by which the steam locomotive might be effectually brought to work over roads not originally intended for or adapted to its use. At last, as might be expected, the want having really accrued, and the engineers being seriously in earnest, the want was supplied, the engineers were successful, and the required engine was produced. Having, however, produced their engine, a fresh difficulty occurred to oppose our now victorious mechanists. They had got their engine, but found practically they had not got their roads. The whole public were up in arms. The notion of any one running a steam-engine without any check as to speed, noise, or other man-endangering or horse-appalling concomitants, but the fears of the owners and drivers of the new monster, and their responsibilities to the injured and frightened public, was not to be borne. And actions and indictments were threatened, and such opposition manifested to such a state of things, as brought all hopes of this use of locomotive power to a standstill. Farther than this, there were such things as general and local turnpike acts, which stood seriously in the way. The general turnpike and highway acts, and many local turnpike acts, contained no regulations for the use of such locomotives, and gave no authority for the levying tolls in respect of them and the waggons which they might draw. Certain other local turnpike acts authorised a levying of tolls which might, in fact, be prohibitory. And the weighing clauses of the general Turnpike Act had not been framed in anticipation of traffic by locomotives, and were ill-adapted to the profitable carrying of goods or levying just tolls on waggons drawn by them. It became both necessary and proper that there should be some general provisions for the safety of the public, for the preservation of the roads from damage, and for the levying of reasonable and proper tolls, provisions on the one hand for the protection of the public, and on the other for the help of the proprietors of locomotives; and in the year 1861 an act was passed with these objects—an act, however, which was so imperfect, that in the last session of Parliament another act was passed in order to put matters on a better footing. The importance of the alterations made by this new act has drawn our attention to the subject, and we propose to give a short sketch of the provisions of these statutes, as there is a very natural anxiety on the part of those in the habit of riding or driving along our roads, with respect to the use of these engines (which at present, at all events, are unusual and startling objects), and it may be a comfort to many persons to know what they may expect when such a machine is driven in accordance with the acts of Parliament, and what they may threaten and require if it is not.

By the first of these statutes, the 24 & 25 Vict. c. 70, the following provisions were made:—

And first, let us take those which relate to tolls and the protection of the roads. They may, in short, be thus stated—All claims of local and general turnpike road or public bridge acts, respecting tolls which might differ from those in the statute, are repealed, and only those mentioned in private road or bridge acts, and the Commercial Roads Continuation Act, 1849, left untouched; and the following system of charging is instituted:—The locomotive itself is to be charged for every two tons, or fractional part thereof, the same toll as would be charged per horse drawing a waggon with wheels of the same width by the acts in force; the width of the wheels, however, is to be immaterial where the acts in force do not take it into account; and if a shoe be used, the width of the shoe is to be the width taken, and the tolls are to be demanded as often as by the acts in force they would be demanded in case of an ordinary waggon. Every waggon drawn by the locomotive is not to be charged per each pair of wheels more than the toll payable for two horses drawing a waggon with the same width of wheels; and there are similar provisions as to fractions of tolls, immateriality of width of wheels, and frequency of payment, as in the case of locomotives; and both in the case of the locomotive and the waggons, if the wheels be cylindrical, within the 3 Geo. 4, c. 126, s. 9, one-half more is to be charged. Every locomotive under three tons' weight, and drawing no waggon, is to have wheels three inches wide, with an increase of an inch per ton, or its fractional part; every locomotive, if drawing a waggon, is to have nine-inch wheels; no locomotive (except as afterwards provided) is to be more than seven feet wide, or twelve tons in weight (this provision is altered by the later act); the wheels of every locomotive are to be cylindrical and smooth-soled, or have shoes nine inches wide; the owner is to be liable to a 5*l.* penalty for infringing these provisions. But on application to the lord mayor, the chief magistrate in Scotch boroughs, corporations, commissioners, trustees, and surveyors of roads, may give leave to use within their districts wider and heavier engines, on such conditions as they think desirable; such permission, however, in case of the surveyor of highways in England, is not to be effectual till approved of by the justices in petty sessions.

Waggons not having cylindrical wheels must not carry more than is authorised by the general Turnpike Act; waggons having such wheels must not carry above their own weight more than one ton and a half per pair of wheels, unless the wheels or shoes are four inches broad; than two tons, unless six inches; than three tons, unless eight inches; half this for a single wheel; and in no case more than four tons per pair of wheels. An allowance of one-sixth more is made if there be springs; and these provisions as to weight are not to apply to waggons carrying one tree, stone, &c.

No locomotive is to go over any suspension bridge at all, nor over any other bridge on which the person liable to repair it puts a notice that it is insufficient, without obtaining his consent; and if a dispute arise as to the sufficiency of the bridge, then an officer may be sent down by one of the Secretaries of State to settle the matter.

If any bridge is damaged by a locomotive, or wagon drawn by it, the persons interested in the bridge, or water, or railway it crosses, are not to be liable to repair it, or to compensate any person for any interruption or delay which may ensue, but the owners or persons in charge of the locomotive are to repair the bridge to the satisfaction of such persons, and reimburse them and those who have been interrupted or delayed by the accident for all damage from the interruption and delay; such damage to be recoverable by action.

The materials carried are to be favoured by the same exemptions as in ordinary cases.

Secondly, as respects the protection partly of the roads, partly of the public, a provision (now repealed) gave power to the Secretaries of State to prohibit the use of locomotives, or any particular kind thereof, in any place, if they thought it too destructive to the roads, or dangerous or inconvenient to the public.

Thirdly, as respects the protection of the public, it is provided, that every locomotive must consume its own smoke, or the person using it becomes liable to a penalty of 5*l.* per day. And there were also provisions (now as we shall see repealed), that there should be two persons to look after the locomotive, and an additional one to look after the waggons, if more than two, and that there should be a light on each side and one in front of the locomotive from an hour after sunset to an hour before sunrise, under a penalty of 5*l.*, and that the speed should never exceed ten miles per hour, and on going through a city, town, or village, be reduced to five, the offender, if not owner, to be liable to a 5*l.*, and, if owner, to a 10*l.* penalty.

Lastly, the name of the owner and weight of the locomotive is to be fixed on the locomotive, or the owner is liable to a penalty of 5*l.*; and if he fraudulently affixes an incorrect notice, he is liable to one of 10*l.*

The provisions of general and local road acts are to apply, as far as practicable, to the case of locomotives; but even if the act be complied with, those using the engine are to be as liable to an action for a private, and an indictment for a public nuisance, as if the act had not passed; and the act (this is now altered) was only to apply to Great Britain.

So the law remained till last session, when the stat. 28 & 29 Vict. c. 83, was passed, and made the following alterations:—

It provides, that engines nine feet wide and fourteen tons in weight may be used, if the wheels were constructed according to the old act, and that such engine is to be used, subject to the provisions in the 3rd section of the old act, as to the use of locomotives seven feet wide and twelve tons in weight.

A fresh provision is made as to the notice (without repealing the old one), which enacts, that the name and residence of the owner shall be affixed to the locomotive, under a penalty of 2*l.*

The different provisions as to the safety of the public then being (as we have already pointed out) repealed, the following are substituted:—Three persons must be employed now to conduct the locomotive, and if there be more than two waggons, an additional man is to be provided to take care of the waggons; one man is to go sixty yards a head on foot with a red flag constantly displayed, to warn all riders and drivers of horses, signal the engine driver to stop when necessary, and assist horses and carriages passing the locomotive; the drivers are to give as much space as possible for other traffic to pass; the whistle must never be sounded, the cylinder taps never opened in sight of any person riding, &c., or in charge of a horse; and in order that no steam may flow off, the steam must never attain a pressure exceeding the limit fixed by the safety valve; the locomotive must be stopped, on the man who precedes, or any person with a horse, or carriage drawn by one, putting up his hand as a signal to do so; the person in charge must have two efficient lights fixed conspicuously on each side of the front of the locomotive, between the hour after sunset and the hour before sunrise; and in the event of non-compliance, the owner is liable to a penalty of 10*l.*, which, however, he may recover summarily from the person in charge, if shewn to have been guilty of negligence or wilful default. The locomotive must never be driven more than four miles an hour; and in passing through a city, town, or village, its speed must be reduced to two miles an hour, and the person infringing this is to be liable to a penalty of 10*l.* But the Lord Mayor of London, the Board of Works in the metropolitan district, the council in any English borough of more than 5000 inhabitants (or where there is no council, but there are trustees or improvement commissioners under act of Parliament, then such persons), and the council, police commissioners, or trustees under act of Parliament, as the case may be, in Scottish boroughs of more than 10,000 inhabitants, may order a less rate than two miles an hour, and specify the times during which the locomotives may pass through their jurisdiction; the above penalty of 10*l*. to be equally applicable to an infringement of these orders, which are to be written, sealed, and signed as directed by the act, and advertised in the local paper, and of which a copy is to be put up in some public place. And as to Ireland, there is a special provision for the license of the county surveyor, with the approval of the justices, and the recovery of damage done to bridges.

Lastly, it is provided, that no clause in any act prohibiting under penalty the erection or use of steam-engines and machinery within twenty-five yards of a road, unless in a house, or behind a screen sufficient to conceal it from the road, shall prevent ploughing by steam within that distance, if a person be placed in the road to signal the driver to stop when necessary, and to assist horses and carriages passing, and if the driver stop in proper time. The Thames Embankment Act, 1862, is not to be affected; the act is not to authorise any person to use a locomotive which is a public nuisance at common law, either from its construction or its use, or to prevent any person recovering damages for injuries received in consequence of the use of the locomotive; and the two acts are to apply to the United Kingdom.

Such are the provisions as they now stand, and it only remains to us, in conclusion, to point out three very patent difficulties which present themselves on the face of the statutes. First, although there is a penalty for the infringement of the regulations as to the wheels of the locomotives, there appears, by some omission, to be none as to the neglect of those as to the wheels of the waggons. Secondly, there will be some trouble in construing together the clauses in the two acts, as to the penalties for the want of a notice on the locomotives; the first of them giving a 5*l*. penalty for not affixing the name and weight, and a 10*l*. penalty for affixing a wrong name and weight; whilst the second of them, without referring to the former, gives a 2*l*. penalty for not affixing the name and residence. Thirdly, the effect of the clauses, as to the construction of the common-law liability for nuisance in cases where the provisions are complied with, but damage ensues, is not very obvious, and is not made more clear by the clauses in the two acts being very differently worded. Many other difficulties, no doubt, will also arise in construing these acts, and present themselves on a more critical perusal; the above, however, lie on the surface, and cannot escape notice, and are of such a nature as to make us pretty sure that it will turn out, that these statutes, short as they are, afford no exception from the curious clumsiness which seems so fatally to attend our legislative enactments.

Correspondence.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE JURIST."

5, Crown Office-row, Temple,
Oct. 26, 1865.

Sir,—It having been stated that all the existing authorised Reporters have joined the new scheme of law reporting, I beg to say that it is not the fact and that Hurlstone and Colman's Reports in the Court of Exchequer will be published as heretofore.

I can also confidently state that Best and Smith's Reports in the Court of Queen's Bench will also be published as heretofore.

For my part, I have no confidence in the management of the council, or the success of the scheme, for one of their earliest steps has been to depart from the scheme as recommended by the committee in one of its most important particulars, namely, that contained in Rule 21, and which the committee have declared "essential for carrying out the scheme."

As the matter must be made the subject of investigation, I make no comment upon it.

I remain your obedient servant,
G. T. HURLSTONE.

THE LATE ELECTION OF READER ON CONSTITUTIONAL LAW.

WE have received from Mr. Homersham Cox the following correspondence for publication:—

(1).

49, Chancery-lane, July 10, 1865.

My dear Sir,—Mr. Davey, the clerk of the Council of Legal Education, has returned to me the majority of the testimonials which I addressed to the council, but not those which I sent to you from Lord Curriehill, Professor Adams, Mr. Todhunter, and Mr. Parkinson.

Mr. Davey states that he is not aware that these testimonials were submitted to the council, and that he cannot give me any information about them. I should feel obliged if you would inform me how I can recover them.

Yours faithfully,
John Bailly, Esq. HOMERSHAM COX.

(2).

2, Stone-buildings, July 11, 1865.

My dear Sir,—I send you the testimonials mentioned in your note, and beg to apologise for their not being returned before.

I gave a general direction to my clerk to return all, but one bundle containing those now sent was overlooked.

Yours faithfully,
JOHN BAILLY.

(3).

July 11, 1865.

My dear Sir,—I have to thank you for returning the remainder of my testimonials, but as you state that they were "overlooked," you leave me in doubt whether they were submitted to the council. You would relieve me from considerable anxiety if you would inform me whether this was the case. As you received these testimonials in due time, I assumed that you undertook to bring them under the consideration of the council.

Yours faithfully,
John Bailly, Esq. HOMERSHAM COX.

(4).

2, Stone-buildings, July 12.

My dear Sir,—I think that all the testimonials I received were on the table of the council. When the election was over I had all brought back to my chambers. They were in different bundles, and in redistributing them my clerk overlooked one of the bundles.

Yours faithfully,
JOHN BAILLY.

(5).

July 12, 1865.

Dear Sir,—In answer to my inquiry whether the testimonials which I sent to you were submitted to the council, you state that you "think" they were laid on the table.
P P 2

From this reply it seems doubtful whether the testimonials were, even in a merely formal manner, laid before the council; and beyond doubt that the attention of that body was not really drawn to them, and that the decision was made in ignorance of them.

I think I was entitled to expect that you would direct attention to these documents, as they were intrusted to you with your express assent, were of the highest possible character, and were given by very distinguished persons.

It was obviously an essential condition of a fair election that all duly presented testimonials should have been considered by the council, and it now appears that this condition was not observed.

Yours faithfully,

HOMERSHAM COX.

(6).

Lincoln's-inn, July 13, 1865.

Dear Sir,—Your book was worth fifty testimonials. I cannot undertake to say that every testimonial was read by each of the council, but I am certain there never was a fairer election.

Yours faithfully,

JOHN BAILY.

(7).

To the Right Hon. Lord Westbury.

49, Chancery-lane, July 15, 1865.

My Lord,—Shortly after the Readership of Constitutional Law became vacant, I offered myself as a candidate for that office, and submitted to the Council of Legal Education testimonials from your Lordship, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Vice-Chancellor Wood, Professor Goldwin Smith, the Lord Justice Knight Bruce, Mr. Giffard, Q. C., and the Master of Trinity College, Cambridge.

Subsequently I received from Mr. Baily a message, to the effect that it was desirable that I should give further information respecting my career at Cambridge, and my experience in tuition. I therefore sent to him additional testimonials from persons of great eminence at Cambridge, namely, the Rev. S. Parkinson, prelector and tutor of St. John's College, Professor Adams, the Lowndean Professor of Astronomy, and Mr. Todhunter, the principal mathematical lecturer of St. John's College; and with these I sent a testimonial from Lord Curriehill.

A letter which I received from Mr. Baily, after the election, led me to fear that he had not submitted to the council, for its consideration, the testimonials which I intrusted to him. I have, in two letters, distinctly asked him whether he really did this. The correspondence, a copy of which I now submit to your Lordship as chairman of the Council of Legal Education, puts it beyond doubt, that my later testimonials were not brought under the consideration of that body.

Mr. Baily observes, in his last letter to me, that my "book was worth fifty testimonials." He thus implies that testimonials were superfluous. But this was not the view which he adopted when he requested me to furnish information respecting my experience in tuition. The principal ground of the complaint which I now address to your Lordship is, that the information which was omitted to be given to the council related to the very point on which information was most needed.

In other respects, the grounds of my candidature were, I think, sufficiently clear. I had written the most elaborate Treatise on Constitutional Law which has been published in modern times. That work was the result of many years of intense application, has been extensively reviewed and commended with a rare unanimity by the press, has been translated into two continental languages, and has been approved by the eminent persons whose testimonials are mentioned at the commencement of this letter. On the other hand, the successful candidate has not published a line on the subject on which he is now appointed to instruct others.

I inclose the testimonials in question, to enable your Lordship to judge whether I have exaggerated their commendatory character.

I have the honour to be,

Your Lordship's faithful servant,
HOMERSHAM COX.

(8).

1, Upper Hyde Park Gardens, W., Oct. 13.

Dear Mr. Cox,—Your letter of July last was sent to me in Italy. If I remember it rightly, it expressed your regret at not being elected Reader on Jurisprudence, and inquired whether your testimonials had all been seen by the council.

Certainly, the council were well aware of all your testimonials, and of my impression in your favour.

I share in your regret, that you were not appointed.

I do not remember any papers of consequence accompanying your letter, which I think must be at my house in Tuscany. I shall return to Italy in a week, and will have a search made for your letter, and the papers to which you refer.

I think you are capable of far better things in your profession than this Readership would have been, and I heartily wish you all success in it.

Believe me, your faithful servant,

WESTBURY.

Homersham Cox, Esq.

(9).

49, Chancery-lane, Oct. 17, 1865.

My Lord,—I have to return my sincere thanks for your Lordship's gratifying letter, conveying the assurance that you supported my application for the office of Reader of Constitutional Law, and felt regret that I was not appointed.

I obtained two sets of testimonials for presentation to the Council of Legal Education. The first set were deposited with the clerk of the council. The second set were intrusted to Mr. Baily, at his own request, conveyed in a message to me. If your Lordship had before you the correspondence, of which I sent you a copy, it would be obvious that Mr. Baily never informed the council of the existence of this second set of testimonials. They were given by persons of the highest authority in the University of Cambridge, and are the original documents which I sent to your Lordship in July.

My candidature was supported by my published works, by a collection of testimonials such as have been rarely presented by a candidate for any public office, and by your Lordship's voice in the council. Mr. Baily's adverse representations prevailed against these influences. As he was active in his opposition to me, it was the more incumbent upon him to apprise the council of the testimonials which I had intrusted to him.

I know that a grievous wrong has been done me, and I am fully determined not to submit to it in silence. The fact of my unsuccessful candidature has been made the subject of public comment, and, if left unexplained, is calculated to do me great injury. I shall, therefore, in self-defence, publish the correspondence of which this letter forms a part, after giving Mr. Baily an opportunity of reply. I shall, of course, treat as confidential your Lordship's letter to me, if you require it; but I trust that I shall not be prohibited from making use of that letter, as it is a reply to one which I addressed to your Lordship, as chairman of the Council of Legal Education, on a matter of public import.

If it do not occasion inconvenience, I should be glad to have the original testimonials, inclosed in my letter of July, returned, as I have not kept any copy of them.

I have the honour to be,
Your Lordship's faithful servant,
HOMERSHAM COX,

(10).

Oct. 17, 1865.

Sir,—It is my intention to publish the correspondence between you and me respecting the late appointment of a Reader of Constitutional Law, and also certain letters which have passed between Lord Westbury and myself on the same subject.

In order to avoid all imputation of unfairness, I now offer to send you, before I take the intended step, a copy of the last-mentioned letters, in order that you may make any observations on them which you think proper.

I am, your obedient servant,
HOMERSHAM COX.

John Bailly, Esq.

(11).

54, Westbourne-terrace, Oct. 17, 1865.

Dear Sir,—Pray publish whatever you please, without further communication with me.

Yours faithfully,
JOHN BAILLY.

Homersham Cox, Esq.

(12).

49, Chancery-lane, Oct. 21, 1865.

Sir,—Notwithstanding your last letter to me, I think that I ought to communicate to you the correspondence between Lord Westbury and myself, before it is published. I therefore inclose a copy, and shall defer the publication for a few days.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
HOMERSHAM COX.

John Bailly, Esq.

(13).

54, Westbourne-terrace, Oct. 21.

Dear Sir,—Excuse my returning the accompanying unopened, as I beg to decline interfering in any way.

I am, dear Sir,
Yours faithfully,
JOHN BAILLY.

[We have already expressed an opinion, that in the recent appointment the council appear to have acted as if they were dispensing patronage, rather than discharging a public duty. The above correspondence concerns one member of the council alone. It appears, that after Mr. Cox had submitted his general testimonials to the council, he, at Mr. Bailly's suggestion, procured further testimonials of his experience and success in academic tuition, and intrusted them to that gentleman for the use of the council. The council were discharging an important public duty, and each member was bound to make himself acquainted with every testimonial of every candidate whose pretensions were plausible. Mr. Bailly—intrusted with testimonials procured at his suggestion, and therefore important in his estimation—could not be ignorant that it was his duty, if not to have them read before the meeting, at least to draw the council's attention to them, as a material supplement to the documents already in their hands. This duty he has been distinctly charged with neglecting, and we do not find that he denies the charge. On the contrary, he appears to have kept them to the end under his own control; so that at last they are returned by his clerk, and not by Mr. Davey, the clerk of the council. Lord Westbury's statement, that the council were well aware of all the testimonials, is of no weight, because a subsequent passage in his letter shews that his Lordship had no recollection of the existence of those in question.]

Court Papers.

EQUITY SITTINGS, MICHAELMAS TERM, 1865.

Before the LORD CHANCELLOR.

At Westminster.

Thursday .. Nov. 2 Appeal Motions and Appeals.

At Lincoln's Inn.

Friday	3	Petitions and Appeals.
Saturday	4	Appeals in Bankruptcy and Appeals.
Monday	6	} Appeals.
Tuesday	7
Wednesday	8	Appeals in Bankruptcy and Appeals.
Thursday	9	Appeal Motions and Appeals.
Friday	10	Appeals.
Saturday	11	Appeals in Bankruptcy and Appeals.
Monday	13	} Appeals.
Tuesday	14
Wednesday	15	Appeals in Bankruptcy and Appeals.
Thursday	16	Appeal Motions and Appeals.
Friday	17	Appeals.
Saturday	18	Appeals in Bankruptcy and Appeals.
Monday	20	} Appeals.
Tuesday	21
Wednesday	22	Appeals in Bankruptcy and Appeals.
Thursday	23	Appeals.
Friday	24	Petitions and Appeals.
Saturday	25	Appeal Motions and Appeals.

Before the LORDS JUSTICES.

At Westminster.

Thursday .. Nov. 2 Appeal Motions.

At Lincoln's Inn.

Friday	3	} Appeal Motions, Petitions in Lunacy, Appeal Petitions, and Appeals.
Saturday	4
Monday	6	} Appeals.
Tuesday	7
Wednesday	8
Thursday	9	Appeal Motions and Appeals.
Friday	10	} Petitions in Lunacy, Appeal Petitions, and Appeals.
Saturday	11
Monday	13	Appeals.
Tuesday	14	} Appeals from the County Palatine of Lancaster and Appeals.
Wednesday	15
Thursday	16	Appeal Motions and Appeals.
Friday	17	} Petitions in Lunacy, Appeal Petitions, and Appeals.
Saturday	18
Monday	20
Tuesday	21	} Appeals.
Wednesday	22
Thursday	23
Friday	24	} Petitions in Lunacy, Appeal Petitions, and Appeals.
Saturday	25

Notices.—The days (if any) on which the Lords Justices shall be engaged in the full Court, or at the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, are excepted.

Before the MASTER OF THE ROLLS.At Westminster.

Thursday .. Nov. 2 Motions.

At Chancery-lane.

Friday 3 General Paper.
 Saturday 4 { Petitions, Short Causes, Adjourned
 Summonses, and General Paper.
 Monday 6 }
 Tuesday 7 } General Paper.
 Wednesday 8 }
 Thursday 9 Motions and General Paper.
 Friday 10 General Paper.
 Saturday 11 { Petitions, Short Causes, Adjourned
 Summonses, and General Paper.
 Monday 13 }
 Tuesday 14 } General Paper.
 Wednesday 15 }
 Thursday 16 Motions and General Paper.
 Friday 17 General Paper.
 Saturday 18 { Petitions, Short Causes, Adjourned
 Summonses, and General Paper.
 Monday 20 }
 Tuesday 21 } General Paper.
 Wednesday 22 }
 Thursday 23 }
 Friday 24 { Petitions, Short Causes, Adjourned
 Summonses, and General Paper.
 Saturday 25 { Motions, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.

N. B.—Unopposed Petitions must be presented, and copies left with the Secretary, on or before the Thursday preceding the Saturday on which it is intended they should be heard; and any Causes intended to be heard as Short Causes must be so marked at least one clear day before the same can be put in the paper to be so heard.

Before the Vice-Chancellor Sir RICHARD T. KINDERSLEY.At Westminster.

Thursday .. Nov. 2 Motions.

At Lincoln's Inn.

Friday 3 { Petitions, Adjourned Summonses, and
 General Paper.
 Saturday 4 { Short Causes, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
 Monday 6 }
 Tuesday 7 } General Paper.
 Wednesday 8 }
 Thursday 9 { Motions, Adjourned Summonses, and
 General Paper.
 Friday 10 { Petitions, Adjourned Summonses, and
 General Paper.
 Saturday 11 { Short Causes, Adjourned Summonses,
 and General Paper.
 Monday 13 }
 Tuesday 14 } General Paper.
 Wednesday 15 }
 Thursday 16 { Motions, Adjourned Summonses, and
 General Paper.
 Friday 17 { Petitions, Adjourned Summonses, and
 General Paper.
 Saturday 18 { Short Causes, Adjourned Summonses,
 and General Paper.
 Monday 20 }
 Tuesday 21 } General Paper.
 Wednesday 22 }
 Thursday 23 }
 Friday 24 { Short Causes, Petitions, Adjourned
 Summonses, and General Paper.
 Saturday 25 { Motions, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.

N. B.—Any Causes intended to be heard as Short Causes must be so marked at least one clear day before the same can be put in the paper to be so heard.

Before the Vice-Chancellor Sir JOHN STUART.At Westminster.

Thursday .. Nov. 2 Motions.

At Lincoln's Inn.

Friday 3 Petitions and Causes.
 Saturday 4 Short Causes and Causes.
 Monday 6 }
 Tuesday 7 } Causes.
 Wednesday 8 }
 Thursday 9 Motions and Causes.
 Friday 10 Petitions and Causes.
 Saturday 11 Short Causes and Causes.
 Monday 13 }
 Tuesday 14 } Causes.
 Wednesday 15 }
 Thursday 16 Motions and Causes.
 Friday 17 Petitions and Causes.
 Saturday 18 Short Causes and Causes.
 Monday 20 }
 Tuesday 21 } Causes.
 Wednesday 22 }
 Thursday 23 }
 Friday 24 Petitions and Causes.
 Saturday 25 Motions, Short Causes, and Causes.

N. B.—Any Causes intended to be heard as Short Causes, must be so marked at least one clear day before the same can be put in the paper to be so heard.

No Cause, Motion for Decree, or Further Consideration, except by order of the Court, may be marked to stand over, if it shall be within twelve of the last cause or matter in the printed paper of the day for hearing.

Before the Vice-Chancellor Sir W. P. WOOD.At Westminster.

Thursday .. Nov. 2 Motions.

At Lincoln's Inn.

Friday 3 General Paper.
 Saturday 4 { Petitions, Short Causes, Adjourned
 Summonses, and General Paper.
 Monday 6 }
 Tuesday 7 } General Paper.
 Wednesday 8 }
 Thursday 9 Motions and General Paper.
 Friday 10 General Paper.
 Saturday 11 { Petitions, Short Causes, Adjourned
 Summonses, and General Paper.
 Monday 13 }
 Tuesday 14 } General Paper.
 Wednesday 15 }
 Thursday 16 Motions and General Paper.
 Friday 17 General Paper.
 Saturday 18 { Petitions, Short Causes, Adjourned
 Summonses, and General Paper.
 Monday 20 }
 Tuesday 21 } General Paper.
 Wednesday 22 }
 Thursday 23 }
 Friday 24 }
 Saturday 25 Motions and General Paper.

N. B.—Any Causes intended to be heard as Short Causes, must be so marked at least one clear day before the same can be put in the paper to be so heard.

COMMON-LAW CAUSE LISTS, MICHAELMAS
TERM 1865.Court of Queen's Bench.

NEW TRIALS.

FOR ARGUMENT.

Moved Easter Term, 1864.

Ches.—Hughes v. Birkenhead
 Improvement Commissioners
 (First action, to be argued with D. To stand over)

Ches.—Same v. Same (Second action, Ditto)

— Davies v. Same (Ditto)

Moved Mich. Term, 1864.

Durham—Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England &
 Peart

Easter Term, 1865.

Bedford—Asher v. Whitelock
 Lancaster—Martin v. Smalley
 (Stands for arrangement)
 Herts.—Crowland v. Allom
 Leeds—Mayne v. Burns
 Stafford—Dumnock v. North
 Staffordshire Railway Co.
 Hereford—Mainwaring v.
 Cheese

Tried during Term.
 Midd.—Edwards v. Parker
 —Dordoy v. Johnson
Moved Trin. Term, 1865.
 Derby—Cartwright & ors. v.
 Forman
 Midd.—Watts & ors. v. Lewis
 —Sullivan v. Hayward
Tried during Term.
 Midd.—Doubble v. Sharp
 —Haslitt v. Templeman.

SPECIAL PAPER.

Those marked thus * are Special Cases, and thus † Demurrers.

FOR JUDGMENT.

*Worthington v. Hulton

FOR ARGUMENT.

†Hughes v. Birkenhead Improvement Commissioners
 (New Trial to be argued with this D., stands over)
 †Same v. Same (Ditto)
 †Davies v. Same (Ditto)
 *Bryant v. Foot
 *Cory & ors. v. Thames Iron Works and Ship Building
 Co. (Limited)
 †Jolwald v. Continental Bank Corporation (Limited) (To stand over till issues in fact tried, &c.)
 Brabant v. Sir T. M. Wilson, in re the Copyhold Acts, &c.
 (Ap. from Copyhold Commissioners)
 †Le Strange v. Rowe (Part heard, stands till issues in fact tried) †Tydeman v. Carne (Stands over)
 †Peakman v. Marsh
 †Simpson v. Haller
 †Fothergill v. London, Chatham, and Dover Railway
 Co.
 †Russell v. Trickett
 †Same v. Same †Hetherington v. Hicks (St. over till issues in fact are tried)

†Haselgrove v. House †Churchward v. Reg. (Petition of right)
 †Bewley v. Rugg
 †Runelot v. Mills
 †Holroyd v. Colston & ors.
 †Hart & ors. v. Stevens
 †Bond & ors. v. Westow
 *Le Leveteur v. London and South-western Railway Co.
 †Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England v. Peart
 Hall v. Master, Wardens, &c. of the Merchant Adventurers, &c. (Appeal from County Court)
 †Keyes & ors. v. Edwards
 †European Central Railway
 Co. (Limited) v. Westall
 †English and Irish Bank (Limited) v. Watson
 †Wood & ors. v. Dunn
 †Donaldson v. Pulley
 *Brand & Wife v. Hammer-and City Railway Co.
 *Piper v. Reg. (Pet. of right)
 *Booth v. Parker
 †Cheeshneman v. London,
 Chatham, and Dover Railway Co.
 *Foster v. Dodd
 *†Taylor v. Shafto
 †Donald v. Suckling
 *Greenwood v. Scragg
 †Wensum Valley Railway Co.
 v. Great Eastern Railway
 Co.

ENLARGED RULES.First Day.

In re Freeman
 In re Ambler
 Hemming v. Parker
 Hawkins & an. v. Carr
 Parsons & an. v. Carr
 Reg. v. Travers Twiss, Judge of Consistory Court
 Reg. v. Toomer
 Reg. v. London, Chatham, and Dover Railway Co.

Reg. v. Ell
 Reg. v. Middle Level Commissioners
 Reg. v. Assessment Committee of Durham Poor Law Union
 Reg. v. Hampton & ors.
 Reg. v. Members of Hearts of Oak Benefit Society
 Reg. v. Magistrates of Bow-street Police Court.

CROWN PAPER.

Tewkesbury Reg. v. Severn Navigation Commissioners.
 Surrey..... Measor. (To stand over till judgment given in the House of Lords in the Mersey Docks case).
 Cornwall..... Looe Harbour Commissioners v. Churchwardens and Overseers of the Borough of East Looe. (To stand over till judgment given in the House of Lords).
 Devonshire Mayor, &c. of South Molton v. Churchwardens of South Molton.

Yorkshire Trustees, Committee, and Officers of Ilkley Hospital v. Churchwardens and Overseers of the Township of Ilkley.
 Buckinghamshire Reg. v. Trustees of the British Orphan Asylum.
 Nottinghamshire — Worksop Local Board of Health
 (Part heard).
 Middlesex Governor of the House of Correction, Coldbath-fields.
 Surrey..... Conservators of the River Thames v.
 Guardians of the Parish of St. Mary, Lambeth. (To stand over till judgment given in the House of Lords in the Mersey Docks case).
 Cheshire Reg. v. Heath & ors.
 Kent Chatham Board of Health v. Rochester
 Road and Improvement Commissioners.
 Middlesex..... Reg. v. Inhabitants of St. Leonard's, Shoreditch.
 Staffordshire.... — Dodd and Southan.
 Middlesex..... Guardians of Hastings Union v. Guardians of St. James's, Clerkenwell.
 Lancashire Dearden v. Townsend.
 Yorkshire..... Wakefield Local Board of Health v. Grimsby Railway Co.
 — .. Reg. v. Ratepayers of Northouram and Clayton.
 Sussex Saunders v. Balby.
 Staffordshire.... Reg. v. Inhabitants of Bilston.
 Norfolk — Spurrell.
 Lancashire..... — Inhabitants of Bolton.
 Cardiff Cousins v. Stockdale.
 Middlesex..... Reg. v. Board of Works of Fulham District.
 Dorsetshire — Farrer.
 Lincolnshire.... Smith v. Smith.
 Liverpool Bates v. Finlay.
 Cumberland Reg. v. Metcalfe.
 Lincolnshire.... — Clark.
 Cornwall Giles v. Glubb.
 Yorkshire..... Wakefield Borough Market Company v.
 Crawshaw.
 Kent Reg. v. The Inhabitants of Lee.
 Birmingham.... The Midland Railway Company v. The
 The Borough Council of Birmingham.
 Middlesex Pemberton v. The Trustees of St. Mary's, Whitechapel.
 Grantham..... Reg. v. Strugnell.
 Devonport..... Ash v. Lynn.
 Lancashire Emmott v. Clayton.
 Nottingham Shelbourne v. Oliver.

Court of Common Pleas.NEW TRIALS.*FOR ARGUMENT.

Moved Mich. Term, 1865.
 Midd.—Packer & an. v. The Great Western Railway Co.
 (To stand over till Beal v.
 South Devon Railway Co. in the House of Lords is disposed of)
 Glamorgan—Jegon v. Vivian

Moved Trinity Term, 1865.
 Midd.—Williams v. Golding
 — Edgell v. Day
Postponed Motions.
 Lond.—Spalding v. Catholic
 Bookselling & Publishing
 Co. (Limited)
 Mallett v. Bateman.

DEMURRER PAPER.SPECIAL ARGUMENTS.*Tuesday, May 30.

Mayor of York v. Churchwardens of All Saints, York (Ap., to stand over till case in House of Lords is disposed of)
 Mainwaring v. Langham Hotel Co. (Limited) (D.)
 Johnson & an. v. Royal Mail Steam-packet Co. (Case at Nisi Prius)

Thursday, June 1.

Arbuthnot v. Streckenisen
 (Case by order)
 Church v. Tame (Case by or.)

Tuesday, June 6.

Goodyear v. Mayor of Weymouth (Sp. C.)

Wednesday, Nov. 8.

Gyde v. Lingwood
 Lingwood v. Gyde (Case under Copyhold Act remitted for amendment)

Arbutnot v. Strachan
(Case by order)
Cutler v. Larchin (Case for arbitration)
Kidston v. The Empire Marine Assurance Co. (D.)
Winter v. Dumerge (Case at Nisi Prius)

Rankin v. Potts (Sp. C.)
Wigan v. Strange (Appeal from magistrate)
Gedwin v. Shaddebottom
(County Court appeal)
Friday, Nov. 10.
Beckett v. Midland Railway
Co. (D.)

REMANET PAPER.

First Day.
In re Tom Taylor and W. S. (Case pending on the same Emden, ex parte Taylor point in the Court of Chancery).

CUR. ADV. VULT.

Henschfeld v. Smith | Johnson v. Chapman
Guppy v. Frith.

Court of Exchequer.

SITTINGS—MICHAELMAS TERM.

Days in Term.		Banc.
Thursday .. Nov. 2	Motions.
Friday	Errors and Motions.
Saturday
Monday
Tuesday
Wednesday	Special Paper.
Thursday	Lord Mayor sworn.
Friday
Saturday	Criminal Appeals.
Monday	Special Paper (Sheriffs nominated).
Tuesday
Wednesday	Special Paper.
Thursday
Friday
Saturday
Monday	Special Paper.
Tuesday
Wednesday
Thursday
Friday
Saturday

Days in Term.		Nisi Prius.
Friday	Nov. 3	Middlesex, first Sitting.
Friday	10	Middlesex, second Sitting.
Friday	17	Middlesex, third Sitting.

NEW TRIALS.

FOR JUDGMENT.

Moved Hilary Term, 1866.

Liverp.—Brabner v. Macnam
(To stand over till special case settled)

Moved Easter Term, 1865.
Manches.—Collier v. Moss
(heard June 5, 1865)
Moved after 4th day of
Trinity Term, 1865.
Midd.—Bouillon v. Valentin.

SPECIAL PAPER.

FOR JUDGMENT.

Richards v. Harper (D.,
heard on the 16th Jan.
1865, ordered to be re-argued)
Drake v. Pywell (D.)
Collier v. Mass (D.)

FOR ARGUMENT.

Cooke v. Mostyn (D., Nov. 14, part heard, ordered to stand over till issues in fact tried)

Goodyear v. Lindsay (D., 1st
May, 1865, part heard) Campbell v. Dufaur (D., part heard Jan. 18, 1865, to stand over till issues in fact tried) Albopp v. Guest (D., to stand over till issues in fact tried) Clark v. Magnus (D., to stand over till issues in fact tried)
Lord Colchester v. Kewney
(Sp. C.)

ERRORS AND APPEALS.

FOR JUDGMENT.

Woods v. De Mathos (Er., heard June 21 and 22)

FOR ARGUMENT.

Morgan v. Gath (Ap.)
Whittaker v. Lowe (Ap.)

THE CREDIT FONCIER AND MOBILIER OF ENGLAND (LIMITED).

It would appear that when Fabrice expatriated to Gil Blas on the manner in which his master, Mannel Ordoñez, in mixing himself up in the affairs of the poor, had contrived to become rich, and announced his intention of following that worthy's example, he was enunciating a piece of practical philosophy which has been left to the limited partnerships and sociétés anonymes of to-day, to "develope" to its "legitimate extent." Every one has heard of that astonishing body on the other side of the water which lent, assisted, negotiated, advanced, and loaned like a corporate Rothschild, to many of the Governments, companies, and speculators of the Continent. Limited liability has since given rise to a Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England, which appears no less active than its continental predecessor in lending, assisting, negotiating, and loaning to all and sundry, apparently with as good a reason for being satisfied with the result of its labours as ever had Master Ordoñez. The Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England (Limited) are now increasing their capital by issuing new shares, and according to the prospectus and report which has been issued with reference to this measure, it would appear that, up to the 30th September last, a dividend at the rate of 40 per cent. per annum has been declared, being the same dividend and bonus as was paid for the previous half-year.

"Besides these unprecedented results" (the quotation is from the prospectus), "the company is in the possession, up to the 30th September, of a general reserve fund of 200,000*l.*, of a dividend reserve fund of 100,000*l.*, and has profits in hand up to the same period, after paying the above-mentioned dividend and bonus, of 50,805*l.* 4*s.* 9*d.*, the paid-up capital being 500,000*l.*; making in all 850,805*l.* 4*s.* 9*d.*, or above 8*l.* 10*s.* per share." With such magnificent results, it would certainly appear that the process of helping the needy is no less profitable now than it was in the days of Le Sage, and that, like the quality of mercy, it blesses both him that gives and him that takes—probably the former in the larger measure of the two.

GREAVES'S CRIMINAL ACTS—Second Edition.

In post 8vo., price 16*s.* cloth.

THE CRIMINAL-LAW CONSOLIDATION AND AMENDMENT ACTS of the 24 & 25 VICT. With Notes, Observations, and Forms for Summary Proceedings. By CHARLES SPRENGEL GREAVES, Esq., one of her Majesty's Counsel. Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

In 12mo., price 9*s.* cloth.

A TREATISE on BILLS of SALE, with an Appendix, containing the Registration Act, 17 & 18 Vict. c. 21, and Precedents, &c. By F. C. J. MILLAR and J. R. COLLIER, Esq., Barristers at Law. Second Edition, revised and enlarged. By F. C. J. MILLAR, Esq.

Stevens & Sons; and H. Sweet.

BY AUTHORITY.

Price 9*s.* cloth boards.

PROCEDURE in the STANNARIES of CORNWALL and DEVON. Containing the New Rules and Orders for Regulating the Practice, both at Equity and Common Law, of the Court of the Vice-Warden of the Stannaries; and the recent Statutes for establishing and extending its Jurisdiction. Preceded by Observations on the Power of the Court in relation to Mining Associations and Partnerships in the Counties of Cornwall and Devon.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street; and Stevens & Sons, No 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 1 thick vol. royal 8vo., price 1*l.* 1*s.* cloth boards.

WOODFALL'S LAW of LANDLORD AND TENANT. With a Full Collection of Precedents and Forms of Procedure. The Eighth Edition. By W. R. COLE, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

In 12mo., price 5s. boards,
THE LEASES AND SALES OF SETTLED ESTATES ACT, 19 & 20 Vict. c. 159; and the General Orders and Regulations relating thereto. With an Introduction and Notes, and a Supplement, containing the Amending Act, 21 & 22 Vict. c. 77, and the Cases and Decisions down to the end of Easter Term, 1861. By M. L. FORBES BRICKDALE, of the Middle Temple and Lincoln's-Inn, Barrister at Law.
 Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

RUSSELL ON CRIMES.

This day is published, in 3 vols. royal 8vo., price 5l. 15s. 6d. cloth.
A TREATISE ON CRIMES AND MISDEMEANOURS. By SIR WILLIAM OLDNALL RUSSELL, Knt., late Chief Justice of Bengal. Fourth Edition. By CHARLES SPRENGEL GREAVES, Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel.
 London: Stevens & Sons, 25, Bell-yard; H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; and W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-Inn.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.
 68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.
 DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q.C.
 Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.
 Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions. Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.
 Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office.
 C. B. CLABON, Sec.

LAW UNION FIRE and LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Chief Office—125, Chancery-lane, W.C.
 Subscribed Capital—ONE MILLION STERLING.
 The Fire and Life Departments are under one Management, but with separate Funds and Accounts.

Chairman—Sir WILLIAM FOSTER, Bart.
 Deputy-Chairman—Mr. Serjeant MANNING, Q.A.S.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Subscribed Capital, £750,000, in addition to the Reserve Fund.
 Business consists of the best classes of risks.
 Insurers will be allowed the full benefit of the Reduction of Duty.
 Claims settled promptly and liberally.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Subscribed Capital £250,000, in addition to the Reserve Fund.
 PREMIUMS MODERATE.

A Bonus every five years. Next Bonus in 1869. At the Division of Profits in 1861, the Reversionary Bonus amounted to from 15 to 50 per cent. per annum on the Premiums paid, varying with the ages of the Insured.

Copies of the Directors' Report and Balance-sheet, and every information, may be obtained at the Chief Office, or of any of the Agents of the Company.
 FRANK McVEDY, Secretary.

CURE OF DISEASE OF THE CHEST BY

DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS.

—From Mr. Thomas Wiles, Market Deeping:—"Your valuable Wafers are very efficient for Chest Diseases. I have tried them myself, and recommended them to several friends, and proved their beneficial effects."—T. WILES." They give instant relief, and rapidly cure asthma, consumption, coughs, and all disorders of the breath and lungs.—Price 1s. 1d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. per box. Sold by all Druggists.

THE CREDIT FONCIER and MOBILIER of ENGLAND (LIMITED).

ISSUE of 100,000 NEW SHARES of 20s. each, on which 5s. per share will be called up by instalments; no further call being contemplated.

The issue will be made as follows.—

50,000 shares will be allotted to the present Shareholders, and 50,000 shares will be allotted to the General Public.

When the above issue is completed,

The Subscribed Capital will consist of 200,000 shares of 20s. each	£4,000,000
The Paid-up Capital	1,000,000
The General Reserve Fund	500,000
The Dividend Reserve Fund	100,000

DIRECTORS.

The Right Hon. JAMES STUART WORTLEY, Governor.
 JAMES LEVICK, Esq., Merchant, King's Arms-yard, } Deputy
 JAMES NUGENT DANIELL, Esq., } Governors.
 James Childs, Esq., London.
 William Dent, sen., Esq., Chairman of the Thames and Mersey Marine Insurance Company.
 Alexander Dunbar, Esq., Old Broad-street, London.
 Charles Ellis, Esq., Lloyds.
 Adolphe Hakim, Esq., Cornhill, London.
 William Harrison, Esq. (Messrs. Young, Harrison, & Bevan), Deputy Chairman of the Thames and Mersey Marine Insurance Company.
 Richard Stuart Lane, Esq., Old Broad-street, London.
 Charles E. Newbon, Esq., London.
 Henry Pownall, Esq., J. P., Russell-square, London.
 Joseph Mackrill Smith, Esq. (Messrs. Mackrill, Smith, & Co.), Old Broad-street, London.
 Edward Warner, Esq., M.P., London.
 James White, Esq., M.P., London.
 Albert Grant, Esq., M.P., Managing Director.

BANKERS.

The Agents and Masterman's Bank (Limited).

Messrs. Smith, Payne, & Smiths.

The National Bank, London, Dublin, and its Branches in Ireland.

The National Bank of Scotland, Edinburgh, and its Branches in Scotland.

SEEDSMEN—Messrs. Newbon, Evans, & Co., Nicholas-lane, E.C.

BROKERS.

Messrs. Laurence, Son, & Pearce, 7, Angel-court, Throgmorton-street, E.C., London.

Messrs. Horsfall & Penny, } Liverpool.

Messrs. Tod & Ashton,

Messrs. Shaw & Kirk, Manchester.

SECRETARY—Alfred Lowe, Esq.

Offices—17 and 18, Cornhill, E.C.

PROSPECTUS.

The marked success which has attended the operations of the Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England (Limited) is almost unexampled in the history of any commercial undertaking.

The results of its operations have been so satisfactory that, as will be seen by the half-yearly report just issued, a dividend and bonus, up to the 30th September, at the rate of 40 per cent. per annum, has been declared, being the same dividend and bonus as was paid for the previous half-year.

Besides these unprecedented results, the Company is in the possession, up to the 30th September, of a general reserve fund of 200,000l., of a dividend reserve fund of 100,000l., and has profits in hand up to the same period, after paying the above-mentioned dividend and bonus, of 50,805l. 4s. 9d., the paid-up capital being 500,000l.: making in all 850,805l. 4s. 9d., or above 8s. 10s. per share.

The following is the business transacted by this Company:—

This Company negotiates Loans for Colonial and Foreign Governments.

Co-operates in the Financial Arrangements of British and other Railways.

Makes advances to Corporations, Town Councils, and other public bodies.

Negotiates Loans for Public Works.

Assists in the introduction of Industrial and Commercial Undertakings.

Makes advances upon approved Stocks, Shares, Bonds, &c.

Makes temporary Loans upon eligible Freehold and Leasehold Securities, and generally transacts such other financial business as is suitable to the capitalist, whether as principal or agent.

The greatly increased and still increasing amount of business offered to this Company, both by eminent private firms, companies, and corporations, has decided the Court of Directors to make their second issue of shares, by allotting the remaining capital of the Company, consisting of 100,000 new shares, on which 5s. per share only is intended to be called up.

These 100,000 new shares the Directors propose to issue as follows, viz. 50,000 shares will be issued to the shareholders in this Company who stand registered on the books of the Company, to be allotted to them at a premium of 2l. 10s. per share, in the proportion of one new share for every two shares now held; and 50,000 shares will be issued to the general public (including such shareholders as may wish to apply for shares in addition to those they are entitled to as shareholders), to be allotted at a premium of 3l. 10s. per share.

The premiums to be received upon this issue will amount to 300,000l., which will be added to the 200,000l. already standing at the credit of the general reserve fund, and will thus increase that fund to 500,000l. The dividend reserve fund being 100,000l., the paid-up capital will then be 1,000,000l.

The new Shares will be paid up as follows, viz.—

On those issued at 2l. 10s. per share premium to the shareholders:—

£1 0 0 per share on application; being on capital account.

1 10 0 per share on allotment; 1l. being on capital account, 10s. on premium account.

2 10 0 per share on 1st January, 1866; 1l. 10s. being on capital account, 1l. on premium account.

2 10 0 per share on 1st March, 1866; 1l. 10s. being on capital account, 1l. on premium account.

£7 10 0 being 5l. capital, 2l. 10s. premium.

On those shares issued at 3l. 10s. per share premium to the general public, the following will be the mode of payment:—

£1 0 0 per share on application; being on capital account.

2 10 0 per share on allotment; 1l. being on capital account, 1l. 10s. on premium account.

2 10 0 per share on 1st January, 1866; 1l. 10s. being on capital account, 1l. on premium account.

2 10 0 per share on 1st March, 1866; 1l. 10s. being on capital account, 1l. on premium account.

£8 10 0 being 5l. capital, 3l. 10s. premium.

These 100,000 new shares will participate in the next distribution of profits, pro rata with the existing shares, according to the amount of capital paid up thereon; the valuable option will be, however, reserved to the holders of these shares of paying upon any of them the whole of the above instalments at any time previous to the date of the last instalment, viz. 1st March, 1866, on paying the Company back interest from the date of such payment to 30th September last, at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum on the 5s. on capital account; the shares so paid up to be then entitled to the same amount of profits next half-year as is declared on the existing shares.

Interest at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum will be charged on all instalments not punctually paid; and any instalment not duly paid will render the previous payments liable to forfeiture.

The Directors are aware that in thus admitting the public to subscribe for shares at a price so much below their real value, they are departing from the practice generally adopted in an issue of new shares, of offering the whole of them to the shareholders; but the Directors are so impressed with the importance of increasing the area of influence of this Company—influence second only in importance to a Company like the Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England—and have had such proofs in the result of the issue of shares a year ago, of the sound policy of admitting the public to a participation in such issue, that they feel confident of obtaining the approval of the shareholders in the course they have adopted.

The following calculation will guide investors in estimating the intrinsic value of the shares, after the dividend and bonus now declared are paid, and when the issue is completed:

The capital paid up will amount to	£1,000,000	0	0
The General Reserve Fund	500,000	0	0
The Dividend Reserve Fund	100,000	0	0
In hand, profits not divided	50,805	4	9

£1,650,805 4 9

Equal to above 8*l.* 5*s.* per share on the whole 200,000 shares. So that the public, on subscribing at 8*l.* 10*s.* per share (being 5*l.* capital and 3*l.* 10*s.* premium), are being admitted partners in this Company by only paying 5*s.* per share premium, as premium; 8*l.* 5*s.* per share being actually represented in value in the assets of the Company. Over and above these advantages, there is the probable enhanced value which will attach to these shares, in the same way that the shares issued to the public at 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* premium in September, 1864, after having received 1*l.* per share in April last as dividend and bonus, are now worth 5*l.* 5*s.* per share premium, making together 6*l.* 5*s.* for what they paid 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* for, being in one year more than 140*l.* per cent. increase in value on the amount paid for premium.

The Directors feel that, with a paid-up capital of 1,000,000*l.*, a general reserve fund of 500,000*l.*, a dividend reserve fund of 100,000*l.*, making a total of 1,600,000*l.*, they will be in a position to meet the exigencies of any business that may be brought before them; it is, however, the intention of the Directors to increase, out of future profits, the dividend reserve fund to 200,000*l.*, being in accordance with the plan announced in the last report, to have always in hand one year's minimum dividend at 20*l.* per cent. per annum, calculated on the amount of the capital paid up for the time being.

The Directors further wish to place on record their deliberate opinion and conviction that this Company is destined in a very short period to take a foremost place among the leading monetary institutions of the country.

Applications for shares may be made in the form annexed, and must be accompanied by the payment of 1*l.* per share. Should a less number be allotted than is applied for, the sum paid for on account of such application will, so far as it will extend, be applied in payment of the sum due on allotment.

Prospectuses, forms of application for shares, and copies of the half-yearly report, just published, may be had on application to the Bankers, Solicitors, Stock Brokers, or of the Secretary at the Offices of the Company, 17 and 18, Cornhill, E. C.

The lists of application for shares will be closed on Thursday, the 2nd November, at 4 o'clock, for London, and on Friday, the 3rd November, at 12 o'clock, for country applications, before the expiration of which time all applications must be made.

London, October 20, 1865.

Form C.—General Public.

FORM OF APPLICATION FOR SHARES.

To be retained by the Banker.

No.

To the Directors of the Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England (Limited).

Gentlemen,—Having paid to your bankers*, the sum of £, being a deposit of 1*l.* per share on New Shares in the Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England (Limited), I hereby request that you will allot me that number, and I agree to accept such shares, or any less number you may allot to me, on the terms of the prospectus, at 3*l.* 10*s.* premium per share, and I agree to pay the amount due on allotment, and the other instalments as they become due, to sign the Articles of Association, if required; and I authorise you to insert my name on the register of members for the number of shares so allotted to me.

Usual signature

Name in full

Residence

Profession

Date

* Insert bankers' names.

THE CREDIT FONCIER and MOBILIER of ENGLAND (LIMITED).

AT a MEETING of the Shareholders of this Company, held THIS DAY (Tuesday), the 24th October, 1865, at 11 o'clock A. M.,

The Right Honourable JAMES STUART WORTLEY, Governor, in the Chair,

It was proposed, seconded, and carried unanimously:—

That the balance-sheet and report be, and are hereby approved, confirmed, and adopted.

It was also proposed, seconded, and carried unanimously:—

That the best thanks of this meeting are due, and are hereby given, to the Governor, Deputy-Governors, and Directors, for the great care and attention they have given to the interests of the shareholders, and for the extremely satisfactory results which have arisen therefrom.

It was also proposed, seconded, and carried unanimously:—

That the cordial thanks of this meeting are eminently due, and are hereby offered, to Albert Grant, Esq., M. P., the managing director, for the talent displayed by him in the administration of the affairs of the Company.

It was further proposed, seconded, and carried unanimously:—

That the thanks of this meeting be given to Alfred Lowe, Esq., Secretary, for his unvarying attention; and to him and the other officers of the Company for their industry and zeal during the past half-year.—By order of the Court of Directors,

J. STUART WORTLEY, Governor.

ALFRED LOWE, Secretary.

17 and 18, Cornhill, London, Oct. 24, 1865.

THE CREDIT FONCIER and MOBILIER of ENGLAND (LIMITED).

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that the LISTS of APPLICATION for the NEW SHARES in this Company will be CLOSED on THURSDAY, the 2nd November, at 4 o'clock, for London, and on FRIDAY, the 3rd November, at 12 o'clock, for country applications, before the expiration of which time all applications must be made.—By order,

ALFRED LOWE, Secretary.

17 and 18, Cornhill, London, Oct. 24, 1865.

THE CREDIT FONCIER and MOBILIER of ENGLAND (LIMITED).

THE PROSPECTUSES and FORMS of APPLICATION for the SHARES of the NEW ISSUE of CAPITAL of this Company are NOW READY, and, as well as copies of the Half-yearly Report and Balance-sheet, can be obtained at the Company's Office.

ALFRED LOWE, Secretary.

17 and 18, Cornhill, London, Oct. 24, 1865.

City of London, Gracechurch-street. About 12,600 feet of Freehold and long Leasehold Ground, with vacant possession of all but a small portion.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD are honoured with instructions to announce for SALE by AUCTION, at Garraway's, Change-alley, Cornhill, on Wednesday, Nov. 8, at 12, in one lot, a remarkably important and valuable FREEHOLD and LONG LEASEHOLD ESTATE, in the most central position within the City of London, and unequalled in the facilities it presents for judicious development. It comprises the site of the Spread Eagle Hotel, in Gracechurch-street, and its very large yards and premises in the rear, extending through into Leadenhall-market, and of the premises, Nos. 66 and 87, Gracechurch-street, with vacant possession; also the Freehold House, No. 88, Gracechurch-street, with possession in about six years. The estate occupies the singularly extensive area of about 12,600 feet, having a frontage of about 63 feet, a mean depth of about 152 feet, and is almost uncontrolled by ancient lights; its extreme availability for the prosecution of a well-devised building scheme is thus apparent, and the success thereof is guaranteed by the centrality of the location, standing, as it does, in the very heart of the City, equidistant from all its markets and principal resorts of commerce, and in the main artery from north to south. The tenure is as follows:—About 7000 feet of the land are freehold, and the remainder (about 5600 feet) are held from the Skinners' Company for a term of 80 years, at only 1100*l.* per annum ground rent. No. 85, Gracechurch-street is let on lease for a term, of which six years are unexpired. Vacant possession of the whole of the remainder will be given on completion.

Particulars, with plans, are now ready, and may be had of Messrs. Jamson, Cobb, & Pearson, solicitors, 41, Finsbury-circus; at Garraway's; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox & Bousfield, 24, Gresham-street, Bank, E. C., corner of Coleman-street.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS at

PARTRIDGE & COZENS,

WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS in PARCHMENT.

192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 20*s.*

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bonâ fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual RETAIL charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.

Draft Paper, 6*s.*, 7*s.*, 7*s.* 9*d.*, and 9*s.* per ream.

Brief Paper, 13*s.* 6*d.*, 16*s.*, and 18*s.* 6*d.* per ream.

Foolscap Paper, 10*s.* 6*d.*, 13*s.* 6*d.*, and 17*s.* 6*d.* per ream.

Cream Laid Note, 3*s.*, 4*s.*, and 5*s.* per ream.

Large Cream Laid Note, 4*s.*, 6*s.*, and 7*s.* 6*d.* per ream.

Large Blue Note, 3*s.*, 4*s.*, and 6*s.* per ream.

Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2*s.* 9*d.*, 3*s.* 6*d.*, and 4*s.* 6*d.* per 1000.

Foolscap Official Envelopes, 1*s.* 6*d.* per 100, or 13*s.* 6*d.* per 1000.

Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, Piercers, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25*s.*; Good Stand for ditto with two Drawers, 17*s.*

Parchment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Pained and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1*s.* 8*d.* each, 19*s.* per dozen, or 9*s.* per roll.

Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1*s.* 6*d.* each, 17*s.* per dozen, or 8*s.* per roll.

Records or Memorials, Ruled, 6*d.* each, 5*s.* 6*d.* per dozen, or 2*s.* per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inkstands; Postage Scales; Writing-cases;

Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post-free.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the Office, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, October 28, 1865.

The Jurist

No. 565, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.

No. 1504, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

NOVEMBER 4, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

SOLICITORS requiring Clerks, should apply to ABBOTT, BARTON, & CO., Advertisement Contractors, 203, Strand, W.C., who have opened a FREE Register for Employers and Clerks. "Sittings Papers," "Circuit Papers," and Almanack for 1866, free for postage.

An entirely new List of London and Provincial Newspapers, in tabular form, 1s., giving the Counties, Towns, and Days of Publication, with Political Opinions, and price of each.

ABBOTT, BARTON, & Co., Advertising Office, 203, Strand.

TO TRUSTEES, CAPITALISTS, and OTHERS.

—Well-secured FREEHOLD and LEASEHOLD GROUNDS.—For SALE, FREEHOLD GROUNDS, amounting to 220l. 15s. per annum, amply secured upon 43 well-built Houses at Dakin, producing a rack-rental of about 1200l. per annum. LEASEHOLD GROUNDS, amounting to about 690l. per annum, amply secured upon 129 Houses and Shops near Shoreditch Church, producing a rack-rental of nearly 4000l. per annum.

For price, and further particulars, apply to Mr. G. CLARKSON, 34, Great James-street, Bedford-row, W. C.

Just published, price 12s. cloth,

WINDING-UP and FORMATION of COMPANIES, with Costs, &c., and all the most recent Cases.

By J. S. TAYLOR.

London: William Amer, Law Bookseller, Lincoln's-inn-gate, Carey-street, W. C.

In 2 vols., Third Edition, 40s. cloth, pp. 1732.

DEACON'S LAW and PRACTICE of BANKRUPTCY.

By A. G. LANGLEY, Esq., Barrister at Law. This work contains upwards of Four Thousand Cases, the Statutes, General Orders, Forms in Bankruptcy, and the County Court Bankruptcy Orders, 1863.

London: Shaw & Sons, Fetter-lane.

STEVENS and HAYNES' LAW CATALOGUE, 1865.

Lately published in 32mo., 230 pages, price 2s. cloth,

A CATALOGUE of MODERN LAW BOOKS, including all the Reports in England, Scotland, and Ireland. By H. G. STEVENS and R. W. HAYNES, Law Booksellers and Publishers.

HANSON'S (A.) SUCCESSION DUTY ACT, 1865.

Lately published, in 12mo., price 6s. cloth,

THE SUCCESSION DUTY ACT, 1853 (16 & 17

Vict. c. 51). With the Decisions to 1865, and Notes. By ALFRED HANSON, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law, Stevens & Haynes, 11, Bell-yard, Temple-bar.

COUNTY COURTS in EQUITY.

This day is published, price 5s. cloth,

THE COUNTY-COURTS EQUITABLE JURIS-

DICTION ACT, 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99. With the Orders, Rules, Forms, Costs, and other Matters relating thereto, and Copious Notes and References. By H. M. SLADEN, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. Wildy & Sons, Lincoln's-inn-archway.

SOLICITORS' JOURNAL, Vol. 10, No. 1, 6d.,

Nov. 4. WEEKLY REPORTER, Vol. 14, No. 1, 1s. Nov. 4. Annual Subscriptions, including postage and Double Numbers, Digest, and postage to the country and colonies, 52s., when paid in advance.—Office, 59, Carey-street, W. C.

FREDERICK CHIFFERIEL,

ESTABLISHED 1849,

Law, Parliamentary, and Public Companies' Stationer,

PRINTER and LITHOGRAPHER,

34 to 37, CURSITOR-STREET, AND

1 to 6, CHURCH-PASSAGE, CHANCERY-LANE, E. C.

PARLIAMENTARY

PLANS, SECTIONS, AND BOOKS OF REFERENCE LITHO-

GRAPHED WITH EXPEDITION.

Parliamentary Bills; Notices; Books of Reference, and every description of Printing, executed with the utmost despatch. Each Branch executed on the Premises.

A large and efficient Staff in each Department.

No. 565, VOL. XI, NEW SERIES.

VALUABLE LAW BOOKS.—TWO DAYS' SALE.

MR. HODGSON will SELL by AUCTION, at his Rooms, 115, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street end, on TUESDAY, Nov. 7, and following day, at 1 o'clock precisely, valuable LAW BOOKS, being a portion of the Library of a Gentleman, deceased, and several smaller Collections—comprising the Year Books, by Maynard, 11 parts, 7 vols.; Law Journal, 1823 to 1846, 55 vols.; Statutes at Large, from Magna Charta to the 26 & 27 Vict.; Justice of the Peace, from 1837 to 1864, 28 vols.; Chitty's Statutes, by Welsby & Beavan, 6 vols.; Another copy, 4 vols.; Bythwood & Jarman's Conveyancing, 9 vols. and 1 part; Another copy, 9 vols.; Public General Statutes, 35 vols.; Harrison & Fisher's Digest, 6 vols.; Martin's Conveyancing, by Davidson; and many other useful Practical Works. Also, three Series of the Reports in the various Courts of Common Law and Equity; House of Lords Cases, by Brown, Bligh, Bligh (New Series), Dow, Dow & Clark, West, Clark & Finnely, &c. About 5 cwt. of Modern Blue Paper Parliamentary Reports, &c.

To be viewed, and Catalogues had.

EQUITABLE REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY,

10, LANCASTER-PLACE, STRAND,

Established 1835.—Capital £500,000.

DIRECTORS.

Daniel Smith Bockett, Esq.
Major C. L. Boileau.
Lieut.-Colonel Chase.
William Henry Cole, Esq.
Thomas Curtis, Esq.

Francis Bennett Goldney, Esq.
Charles Richard Harford, Jun., Esq.
Henry Pigeon, Esq.
Henry Roberts, Esq.
George Roots, Esq.

AUDITORS.

Charles Armstrong Esq. | William Richard Bingley, Esq.
Alfred Langdale, Esq.

SOLICITORS.—Messrs. Clayton & Son.

BANKERS.—Messrs. Coutts & Co.

ACTUARY.—F. Hendrika, Esq.

This Society purchases Reversionary Property, Life Interests, and Life Policies of Assurance, and grants Loans on the Securities.

Forms of Proposal may be obtained at the Office.

JOHN CLAYTON, Joint
FRANCIS CLAYTON, Secretaries.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHIL-

LINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their Office Papers at

PARTRIDGE & COZENS,

WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS in PARCHEMENT.

192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 30s.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bona fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual wholesale charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.

Draft Paper, 6s., 7s., 7s. 6d., and 9s. per ream.
Brief Paper, 13s. 6d., 16s., and 18s. 6d. per ream.
Foolscap Paper, 10s. 6d., 13s. 6d., and 17s. 6d. per ream.
Cream Laid Note, 3s., 4s., and 5s. per ream.
Large Cream Laid Note, 4s., 6s., and 7s. 6d. per ream.
Large Blue Note, 3s., 4s., and 6s. per ream.
Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2s. 9d., 3s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. per 1000.
Foolscap Official Envelopes, 1s. 6d. per 100, or 13s. 6d. per 1000.
Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, Placers, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25s.; Good Stand for ditto with two Drawers, 17s.

Parchment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1s. 8d. each, 19s. per dozen, or 90s. per roll.
Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1s. 6d. each, 17s. per dozen, or 80s. per roll.
Records or Memorials, Ruled, 6d. each, 6s. 6d. per dozen, or 25s. per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inkstands; Postage Scales; Writing-cases; Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post-free.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

Q Q

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	427
Judgment—Execution—Power of Appointment	429
Betts v. Menzies.—Prior Publication of an Invention.	430
Court Papers.—Equity Cause Lists for Michaelmas Term	430
New Trials entered for Michaelmas Term	438

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INGH, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF CHANCERY.

By W. W. KNOX, Barrister at Law.
Jopp v. Wood.—(Settlement—Vesting—Infant—“Entitled”).....	838
Ex parte M'Kerrow, re M'Kerrow.—(Bankruptcy—Act of 1861, sects. 110, 159—Right to order of discharge).....	834

ROLLS COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.
Re Mason's Will.—(Wills Act, sect. 33—“Moneys and securities”).....	835

ROLLS COURT—(Continued).

Hayden v. Kirkpatrick.—(Mortgage—Merger—Priority).....	836
VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY'S COURT.
By E. LLOYD, Barrister at Law.
Langhler v. Buck.—(Will—“Issue”—Gifts, original and substitutory—Survivorship—Joint tenancy).....	837
VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.
By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.
Pepper v. Henzell.—(Pleading—Defendant in adversary position—Plea of bankruptcy—Discovery).....	840
COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.
By H. RUTHERFORD, Barrister at Law.
Shuttleworth v. Le Fleming.—(Prescription—Free fishery—Prest & prendre in gross—2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 71).....	841
EXCHEQUER CHAMBER.
By E. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.
Williams v. Jones.—(Master and servant—Negligence of servant—Liability of master—Licence to use a shed).....	843

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

DIGEST OF THE IRISH COMMON-LAW REPORTS.

This day is published, 1 large vol. royal 8vo., 2344 pp., price 3*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.*,
A DIGEST of all the REPORTED CASES decided in the Superior and other COURTS of COMMON LAW in IRELAND, and in the COURT of ADMIRALTY; from Sir John Davies' Reports to the present time. With References to the Statutes and General Orders of Court. By THOMAS BRUNKER, A.M., Barrister-at-Law.
Dublin: Hodges, Smith, & Co., Grafton-street.—Sold by all the Law Booksellers in London.

JOSHUA WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY.

Just published. The Seventh Edition, in 1 vol. 8vo., price 2*s.* cloth.
P RINCIPLES of the LAW of REAL PROPERTY, intended as a first Book for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-Inn, one of her Majesty's Counsel.
Henry Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, London.

THE LAWS AFFECTING RAILWAYS, BROUGHT DOWN TO THE PRESENT TIME.

Now ready, in one thick vol. royal 8vo., price 1*l.* 1*s.* cloth boards,
S IR W. HODGES'S PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW of RAILWAYS, RAILWAY COMPANIES, and RAILWAY INVESTMENTS. With an Appendix of Statutes, Forms, &c. The Fourth Edition. By CHARLES MANLEY SMITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple and Midland Circuit, Barrister at Law.
“The great and increasing interest in everything relating to Railways now manifested by the public, have created such a demand for this valuable work, that the Publisher has been induced to have a new Edition of it prepared. This Edition comprises the important Statutes passed in the Session of 1864, as well as the Standing Orders for the Session of 1865, in addition to the numerous Decisions of the Courts, both of Law and Equity, since the last Edition was published, and such of the Rules of the London Stock Exchange as are applicable to Railways, as amended up to 1864. The task of preparing and conducting through the press this new Edition has been a really arduous one; but no pains have been spared by the learned Editor (whose work on the Law of Master and Servant is well known, not only in Westminster Hall, but also in Ireland, Scotland, and America), to make the work complete; and the Publisher believes that he can with confidence recommend it to all persons interested in Railways, especially Directors, Secretaries, and shareholders, as the most complete work on Railway Law yet offered to the public.
The English and Irish Railway Clearing Acts have also been added to this Edition.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NEW EDITION OF BEST ON EVIDENCE.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 2*s.* cloth boards.
A TREATISE on the PRINCIPLES of the LAW of EVIDENCE; with Elementary Rules for conducting the Examination and Cross-examination of Witnesses. The Third Edition. By W. M. BEST, A.M., LL.B., of Gray's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

Now ready, price 2*s.* 6*d.*, post free.

A HANDY-BOOK ON CHANCERY LAW and PRACTICE for SUITORS under the New Equity Jurisdiction in the County Courts. With the Act complete, and Practical Observations thereon; with the authorised Forms and Rules of Court, &c. By G. MANLEY WETHERFIELD, Solicitor.
London: Stannard & Smith, 30, Chancery-lane, W. C.

RUSSELL ON CRIMES.

This day is published, in 3 vols. royal 8vo., price 5*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.* cloth.
A TREATISE ON CRIMES and MISDEMEANOURS. By Sir WILLIAM OLDNALL RUSSELL, Knt., late Chief Justice of Bengal. Fourth Edition. By CHARLES SPRENGEL GREAVES, Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel.
London: Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard; H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; and W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

TILSLEY'S STAMP ACTS,

INCLUDING THE ACTS OF PARLIAMENT FOR THE PRESENT YEAR.

In 8vo., price 1*l.* 6*d.* cloth,
A DIGEST of the STAMP ACTS and the Judicial Decisions on the Stamp Laws not contained in the Author's Treatise; including the Probate, Legacy, and Succession Duties; with Tables of all the Stamp Duties. By HUGH TILSLEY, Assistant Solicitor of Inland Revenue. Ninth Edition, revised and continued by his Son, EDWARD HUGH TILSLEY, of the Inland Revenue Office.
This Work, completed to the present date (including the Acts of Parliament of the present year), forms a Supplement to the Second Edition of the Treatise on the Stamp Laws by the same Author.
London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, in demy 12mo., 1016 pp., price 1*l.* 1*s.* cloth,
R ROGERS on ELECTIONS, ELECTION COMMITTEES, and REGISTRATION. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Tenth Edition. With the new Registration Statute, and all the Election and Registration Cases to the present time. By F. S. P. WOLFERSTAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

Recently published, vol. 1, price 1*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.* cloth.

THE PRACTICE of the HIGH COURT of CHANCERY, with some Observations on the Pleadings in that Court. By the late EDMUND ROBERT DANIELL, Barrister at Law. Fourth Edition, with considerable Alterations and Additions, incorporating the Statutes, Orders, and Cases to the present time, and Braithwaite's Record and Writ Practices; together with references to a Companion Volume of Forms and Precedents. By LEONARD FIELD and EDWARD CLENNELL DUNN, Barristers at Law, with the assistance of JOHN BIDDLE, of the Master of the Rolls' Chambers. In 2 vols.
“Vol. 2, and the Companion Volume of Forms, will be published in Michaelmas Term.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, NOVEMBER 4, 1866.

OFTEN as the rule in Shelley's case has been discussed, it appears to be still unsettled by direct decision, whether the rule extends to a legal limitation by way of springing use or executory devise—whether, for instance, in the case of a settlement or devise to the use of A., during his life, and after his decease to the use of his children, as tenants in common in fee, and in case he should have no child who should attain the age of twenty-one years, to the use of his right heirs, A. would take an estate in fee under the ultimate limitation, as he clearly would have done if the limitation to the use of the children had been confined to such as should attain the age of twenty-one years.

In the case of Lloyd v. Carew (Pre. Ch. 72; Show. P. O. 137), on the marriage of Penelope T. with Richard Carew, she and one of her two sisters and coheirs conveyed their two-third parts of certain descended estates to the use of Richard and Penelope successively for life; remainder to their sons and daughters in tail; with remainder to Richard Carew in fee, subject to this proviso—that if it should happen that no issue of Richard and Penelope should be living at the death of the survivor of them, and the heir of Penelope should, within twelve months after the death of the survivor, pay 4000*l.* to the heirs or assigns of Richard, the remainder in fee limited to Richard should cease, and the premises should remain to the use of the right heirs of Penelope. After the marriage, Susan, the other sister, and her husband, covenanted to complete the partition, by levying a fine of her third in the settled lands to such uses as Carew and his wife should appoint. Carew and his wife then levied a fine of the settled estate; and, by deed, declared that that fine and the fine to be levied by Susan should enure to the use of Carew and his wife successively for life, with remainder to Carew in fee, to the end that all the estate and possibility of Penelope and her heirs, on payment of the 4000*l.*, might be extinct. After the death of Carew and his wife, without issue, the heirs of Mrs. Carew claimed to have the estate on payment of 4000*l.* The bill was dismissed in Chancery, on the ground that the shifting use, not being limited to take effect within a life in being, was too remote; but the dismissal was reversed by the House of Lords, who thus took a step towards the establishing the rule which was finally settled in Cadell v. Palmer (7 Bligh, N. S., 202), and at the same time affirmed the doctrine, that a fine cannot affect executory uses. (See Whitfield v. Faussett, 1 Ves. sen. 387; Romilly v. James, 6 Taunt. 262). The case, therefore, is no authority as to the application of the rule in Shelley's case, further than that it seems to have been admitted that the executory use was in Mrs. Carew. Fearn, however, in commenting on the case, observes, that “the new use in this case to the heir of Penelope was not a limitation which could unite with that to the ancestor, according to the rule in Shelley's case, for it was not a remainder to arise upon the determination of the preceding estate, but was a conditional limitation of a future use, whereas that rule applies only to remainders; therefore the land vested in Penelope's heir by purchase and not by descent.” (C. R., p. 276). So Mr. Watkins, in the Essay on Descents, says, that the rule “applies only to those cases in which the estate to the heir is limited by way or remainder, and does not extend to those in which the estate to the heir is a conditional limitation” (p. 166, or 4th ed. 210); citing Fearn, and giving the very inconclusive reason, that “a remainder is to commence when the particular estate is from its very nature to determine it, as it were a continuance of the same estate; it is a part of the same, while a conditional limitation is not to continue of the estate first limited, but is entirely a different use; it is not to commence on the determination of the first, but the first is to determine when the latter commences.” So, Mr. Hayes says, “it is clear that, to an executory devise or springing use, the rule does not apply.” (Hayes's Principles, p. 52).

The point was raised but not decided in Coape v. Arnold (2 Sm. & Gif. 311; 4 De G., Mac., & J. 574). There, a testator by his will devised real estates to G. H., his eldest son, for ninety-nine years, if he should so long live, and subject thereto, to trustees and their heirs during the life of G. H., “in trust only to support contingent remainders;” with remainder to the heirs of the body of G. H.; with remainder over. If the will had stood alone, it is clear that G. H. would not have taken an estate tail, because he had only an equitable freehold, and the legal estate was devised to his heirs. But the testator, by a codicil, devised the estates to trustees in fee, upon trusts for payment of debts and a jointure, which did not exhaust the beneficial interest. It was held that they were bound to convey the residue to the uses limited by the will, and that G. H. therefore did not take an estate tail. Sir J. Stuart, V. C., decided the case mainly on the ground that the express limitation of a term of years to the son excluded any resulting trust; but on appeal, the present Lord Chancellor relied rather on the obligation of the trustees to convey to the exact uses limited in the will. (See some remarks by a distinguished conveyancer on this case, 7 Jur., part 2, p. 264). The question before us did not call for decision, but the Lord Chancellor said that his understanding of the rule had always been, “that it applied only to the case of remainders created by the same instrument which creates a particular estate of freehold.”

On the other hand, Mr. Preston says, that the rule requires that the heirs shall be named to take “by way of remainder, or at least so that the estate to arise from the limitation to the heirs and the estate of freehold in the ancestor shall both owe their effect to the same deed, will, or writing” (1 Prest. Estates, 266); and he refers to Venables v. Norris (7 T. R. 342, 438), where, although it was argued that the rule could not apply to an executory limitation, the Court was prepared to certify to the contrary, in the event of their holding that the executory limitation was a use executed by the statute. Burton, a very accurate writer, and well versed in the old learning, refers to the doubt, and decides, that if there is nothing peculiar in the case to make "heirs" a word of purchase, the rule applies to an executory limitation. (Comp., § 346). Indeed, the discussion in the cases, considered by Fearn (C. R. 71), whether the rule could apply to limitations in different instruments otherwise than by way of appointment, could not have arisen if the rule had been understood to apply to remainders only.

The rule, as stated by the defendant's counsel, in Shelley's case (1 Rep. 936) is, that when the ancestor, by any gift or conveyance, takes an estate of freehold, and in the same gift or conveyance an estate is limited either mediately or immediately to his heir, in fee or in tail, that always in such cases the "heirs" are words of limitation of the estate [to the ancestor], and not words of purchase; citing the Provost of Beverley's case (38 Edw. 2, fol. 31 b., in which reign the rule appears to have been settled; for the argument and decision in Abel's case, 18 Edw. 2, fol. 577, which is commonly cited as an instance of the application of the rule, clearly shew that it was not established at that time). The statement of the rule in other authorities is equally general; the only conditions being—an estate of freehold in the ancestor, and a limitation by the same instrument to the heirs.

The rule is in the main a sound rule of construction. Heirs are persons who are to take by descent; and when the fee is broken up into particular estates, a limitation to the heirs of a person who takes a prior estate of freehold, is the most obvious and sufficient mode of expressing the intention, that after the determination or defeasance of the interposed estates, the inheritance shall revert to him; and the word must have the same meaning whether the heirs are to take by way of remainder on the expiration of the intervening estate, or are to come in under a springing use or executory devise. The reason for converting this rule of construction into an inflexible rule of law, which is well stated by Hargrave to have been "to guard against the creation of estates of inheritance, with qualities, incidents, and restrictions foreign to their nature" (Law Tracts, 565), clearly extends to executory limitations equally with remainders. The law favoured descent for very obvious reasons. When the heir came in by descent, and was under age, the lord of the fee was entitled to those grand fruits of military tenure, wardship and marriage; but if the heir took by purchase, only the trifling acknowledgment for a relief was due to the lord; and at the time when the rule became established—namely, in the reign of Edward III—the heir taking by descent was bound by his ancestor's specialty debts.

An estate of freehold in the ancestor, and a limitation in the same instrument to the heirs.—The decision in Pibus v. Miford (1 Vent. 372) requires a larger statement, so as to include the case of an estate of freehold not limited to the ancestor by the instrument which contains the limitation to the heirs, but left in the ancestor, out of whose fee the limitation to the heirs is to take effect; and the estate of freehold may be an estate for life in tail or in fee. In Pibus v. Miford, the ancestor having issue, Robert by his first wife, and Ralph by his second wife, covenanted to stand seised of some of his lands to the use of himself for life, with remainder to trustees for several purposes, with remainder to his wife for life, with remainder to Ralph and the heirs male of his body; and as to other lands, being those in question, he covenanted to stand seised to the use of his heirs male by his second wife. The great difficulty in the case was one which no longer exists, namely, to maintain the validity of a springing use to the heirs of a living person; and the Court got over the difficulty by implying an estate for life in the father, which, with the remainder in tail to the heirs of his body by his second wife, made a present estate tail in him. Twisden, J., dissented, because there could be no implication of an estate in a deed, and because Ralph, not being heir general as well as heir male, could not take by purchase. But if the rule extends to every case in which an estate of freehold is limited to the ancestor, or is left in him by the assurance which carves out the limitation to his heirs, there was no necessity for implying any estate; by the terms of the deed the fee remained in the covenantor, subject to the executory use raised by his covenant; and then, by force of the rule, and independently of the settlor's intention, the limitation to his heirs special took effect in himself. Penhay v. Hurrell (2 Vern. 370, Raithby's ed.) is a clear authority to the same effect; for, with deference to Mr. Hayes, we conceive that his construction of the limitation to A. for seventy years, if he should so long live, and after the death of A., to B. in tail, as a limitation to B. on the determination of the term, is as untenable as that of Mr. Fearn's, which it was intended to replace. The authorities, which establish the application of the rule to equitable limitations, and even to trusts of personality, conclusively shew that it is independent of the distinctions between remainders and executory limitations. (See the judgment of Sir J. Wigram, V. C., in Harvey v. Lovell (17 L. J., Ch., 218)).

The moral to be drawn from this discussion, and from the case of Rhodes v. Whitehead (13 Weekly Rep. 800) (in which a testator's children, who attained twenty-one after the death of the devisee for life, were disappointed because the limitation to the children was a contingent remainder), is, that the law might be beneficially amended by a judicious abolition of the technical distinctions between remainders and executory limitations.

Mr. Justice Crompton died, at his residence in Hyde Park-square, on Monday morning, Oct. 30. He was promoted from the outer bar to the Bench in 1862.

Mr. R. Lush, Q. C., has been appointed one of the judges of the Court of Queen's Bench, in the place of the late Mr. Justice Crompton.

THE BIRMINGHAM MAGISTRACY.—The Lord Chancellor has added the names of ten gentlemen to the commission of the peace for the borough of Birmingham. The list includes the present mayor (Mr. Henry Wigin).

JUDGMENT—EXECUTION—POWER OF APPOINTMENT.

(From a Correspondent).

A POWER of appointment is given to B. over certain freehold lands which are limited to C. and his heirs in default of appointment. B. fails to exercise his power, and dies insolvent, and owing certain debts on judgments entered up after the 29th July, 1864.

Query.—Are the lands so limited to C. in default of appointment by B. liable to the judgment debts of B.? Has not the stat. 27 & 28 Vict. c. 112, taken away the liability which previously existed?

The 27 & 28 Vict. c. 112, was intended to assimilate the law of real property to that of personal property in respect to judgment debts. The law as regards powers of appointment over personal property is, that in such a case as the one in question, C.'s estate would be entirely free from the debts, judgments, or otherwise, of B.

It is conceived that the provisions of the 11th and 13th sections of the stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, which enact that judgment debts shall be binding on all lands over which the debtor shall at the time of the judgment, or at any time afterwards, have any disposing power which he may, without the assent of any other person, exercise for his own benefit, are repealed by the 27 & 28 Vict. 112, s. 1, which provides that no judgment, &c., to be entered up after the passing of that act, shall affect any land (of whatever tenure) until such land shall have been actually delivered in execution by virtue of a writ of elegit, or other lawful authority. C.

[The enactment, that no judgment shall affect any land until such land shall have been delivered in execution in pursuance of such judgment, literally means that the judgment shall not create any lien on the estate or interest of the debtor, but that the execution alone shall bind such estate or interest as the debtor has at the time of execution; so that a voluntary alienation by the debtor, a devise, or a descent, before execution, would remove the land from the reach of the creditor under the judgment, leaving to him, in the case of a devise or descent, the remedy of action against the devisee or heir. This construction of the act would have been free from doubt, and would have carried the expressed object of the Legislature into full effect, if the framer or some ingenious meddler had not thought it necessary to make matters clearer by inserting an interpretation clause, which declares that "the term 'debtor' shall be taken to include husbands of married women, assignees of bankrupts, committees of lunatics, and the heirs or devisees of deceased persons." This is mere raving, unless it means that when a judgment has been obtained against a person who afterwards becomes a feme covert, a bankrupt, or a lunatic, or transmits his real estate by descent or devise, the husband, assignee in bankruptcy, committee, heir, or devisee shall, for the purposes of the act, be deemed to be identical with the original judgment debtor; from which, in some obscure way, it may be inferred that the land of the original debtor in the hands of such husband, &c., be taken in execution under the judgment. If that is so, the judgment does affect the land before execution, and places it in a very different position from that occupied by the goods of the debtor, which, of course, after passing into the ownership of a husband, assignee in bankruptcy, executor, or legatee, could not be taken in execution under the judgment.

That the lien of a judgment on land was not intended to be wholly destroyed may also be inferred from the 4th and 5th sections of the act, which give to the execution creditor the remedy of a sale, and direct that if, upon inquiry, it is found "that any other debt due on any judgment, statute, or recognisance, is a charge on the land, the creditor entitled to the benefit of such charge, whether prior or subsequent to the charge of the petitioner, shall be served with notice of the order for sale." If this had been intended to refer only to a charge created by execution under the act, the word "execution" would have been used rather than "judgment."

On the whole, the conclusion seems to be inevitable, that the act contemplates the execution of a judgment lien on the debtor's land as against the title of a husband, an assignee in bankruptcy, an heir, or a devisee. The case put by our correspondent is not provided for; neither is that of a grantee without consideration; and it remains to be seen whether the Courts will carry out the preamble of the act (which states, that "it is desirable to assimilate the law affecting freehold, copyhold, and leasehold estates, to that affecting purely personal estate, in respect of future judgment statutes and recognisances"), as far as the interpretation clause will permit, by refusing to give any effect to a judgment as against a person claiming land by voluntary grant from the debtor, or in default of appointment by him.

It is to be observed, that the act dispenses with any registration of the judgment, but requires registration of the execution, without imposing the condition of re-registration every five years; yet, in the 4th section, it speaks of the time "while the registry of such a process shall continue in force."—Ed.]

BETTS v. MENZIES.—PRIOR PUBLICATION OF AN INVENTION.

THE point decided, after great litigation, in the case of Betts v. Menzies (5 Jur., N.S., part 1, p. 1164; 6 Jur., N.S., part 1, p. 1290; 9 Jur., N.S., part 1, p. 29; 1 El. & Bl. 990, 1022; 10 H. L. C. 117) is, that when a patent is alleged to be void on the ground of a prior publication of the invention, and the process or invention so previously described is not identical with that described in the patent, it is not for the Court to determine whether the differences are material or not; but the question must be submitted to the jury upon the evidence before them. In that case it appeared that in 1804 Dobbs obtained a patent for making a combination of lead and tin, which he called Albion metal; the process of making it being described to be the passing of two ingots or plates, one of lead and the other of tin, of equal or unequal thickness, in contact, with clean surfaces, between rollers, once or oftener, until they cohered; the compound sheet thus obtained being then workable by the usual processes of rolling, hammering, or pressing. In 1849 Betts took out a patent for making a material to be employed in the manufacture of capsules and for other purposes, and the process specified by him consisted in rolling lead and tin into sheets, the tin being "about one-twentieth part of the thickness of the lead," placing the tin upon the lead, free from wrinkles, and rolling the two together until they cohere, and are reduced to the desired thickness; and he claimed as his invention "the manufacture of lead combined with tin, by rolling or other mechanical pressure, as herein described." To an action by Betts for an infringement of his patent, the defence set up was the prior publication of the invention by Dobbs; but there was no evidence that any one had used the process described by Dobbs, or that it could be worked with plates of lead and tin of equal thicknesses, or of other relative thicknesses than those specified by Betts. The jury found for the plaintiff; but the Court of Queen's Bench directed judgment to be entered for the defendant, on the ground that the plaintiff's patent was void by reason of the prior publication in the specification of 1804. This decision, after being affirmed by the Court of Exchequer Chamber, was reversed in the House of Lords, because there was no evidence, and the Court had no right to assume, that the proportions stated by Betts were not material. If the proportions were material, the discovery and statement of them made a new invention, for which a patent might be sustained. The defendants, therefore, failed solely in consequence of their neglect to procure evidence (which they might easily have done) that the proportions were wholly immaterial, and the process described by Dobbs was practicable.

The case is further noteworthy as deciding this point of construction—that if a specification describes a particular method of procedure—stating, for example, certain dimensions or proportions—and the claim is for the process "as before described," it must be taken that the inventor claims the particular method or particular proportions stated, and nothing more. Therefore it would have been no invasion of the patent granted to Betts to make the material, by uniting sheets of tin and lead in any other ratio of thickness than "about 1 to 20."

Court Papers.

EQUITY CAUSE LISTS, MICHAELMAS TERM, 1865.

* * The following abbreviations have been adopted to abridge the space the Cause Papers would otherwise have occupied:—A. Abated—Adj. Adjourned—A. T. After Term—Ap. Appeal—C. D. Cause Day—Cl. Claim—C. Costs—D. Demurrer—E. Exceptions—F. C. Further Consideration—F. D. Further Directions—M. Motion—M. D. Motion for Decree—P. C. Pro Confesso—Pl. Plea—Ptn. Petition—R. Rehearing—Sp. C. Special Case—S. O. Stand Over—Sh. Short.

Before the LORD CHANCELLOR and the LORDS JUSTICES.

APPEALS.

Green v. Crockett } (S., Mar.
Crockett v. Green } 27) S. O.
Nunn v. Fabain (R., May 29)
Mortimer v. Bell (R., May 29)
Robinson v. Clarke (R., May 30)
Robinson v. Clarke (R., May 31)
Davies v. Shepherd (W., June 8) Full court
Blackett v. Bates (W., June 9)
Revett v. Southampton, Isle of Wight, and Portsmouth Improved Steam-boat Co. (Limited) (R., June 23)
Rhodes v. Bate (S., June 26)
Cochrane v. Willis (R., June 27)
Lawrence v. Austin (R., June 28)
Harrison v. Collinson (R., June 28)

Seixo v. Provesende (W., June 29)
Moss v. Anglo-Egyptian Navigation Co. (Limited) (S., June 30)
Durell v. Pritchard (R., June 30)
Gladholm v. Barker (R., July 7)
Caton v. Caton (S., July 15)
Clutton v. Strode (R., July 17)
Greatrex v. Banton (R., July 18)
Moss v. Anglo-Egyptian Navigation Co. (Limited) (S., July 20)
M'Intosh v. Great Western Railway Co. (S., July 24)
Jefferys v. Dickson (W., July 26)
Williams v. Williams (K., July 27)
Clarke v. Clark (W., July 31)
Jones v. Lock (S., July 31)

Smith v. Edwards (S., Aug. 1)
Collier v. M'Bean (R., Aug. 2)
Landon v. Tucker (S., Aug. 7)
Nevinson v. Lennard (R., Aug. 7)
Moore v. Marrable (R., Aug. 8)
Southern v. Harriman (W., Aug. 9)
Yates v. Jack (W., July 10)

Before the Right Hon. the MASTER OF THE ROLLS.

CAUSES, &c.

Partridge v. Wilahin (R. to ans.)
Kelson v. Egyptian Commercial and Trading Co. (Limited) (D)
Hodson v. Fielden (M D)
Butler v. Grave (M D)
Ballie v. M'Kewan (M D)
Rucker v. Seymour (M D)
Whitwell v. Arthy (M D)
Greenhow v. Price (M D)
Kemp v. Nowell (M D)
Beck v. Palmer (M D)
Tweedie v. Phelps (M D)
Clarke v. Eversfield (M D)
Ormerod v. Rostrom (F C)
Howard v. Earl of Shrewsbury (Cause)
Beresford v. Conyers (M D)
Cheesman v. Price (M D) Nov. 6
Thomas v. Chorley (M D)
Summers v. Griffiths (M D)
Goldamid v. Tunbridge Wells Improvement Commissioners (M D)
Stourton v. Burrell (M D)
Ibbott v. Burrell (M D)
Bloxsome v. Chichester (Cau.)
Dickenson v. Burrell (M D)
Branford v. Howard (M D)
Dickenson v. Burrell (M D)
Barrow v. Tyrer (M D)
Richardson v. Lancaster and Carlisle Railway Co. (M D)
Goodyear v. Bruton (M D)
Verelst v. Midland Railway Co. (M D)
Windor v. Campbell (M D)
Vestry of the Parish of Bermondsey v. Brown (M D)
Williams v. Williams (Cause, Witnesses) Nov. 7
Adams v. Dudley and West Bromwich Banking Co. (Cause)
Wycombe Railway Co. v. Donington Hospital (M D)
Graham v. Morris (M D)
Schotman v. Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Co. (M D)
Fox v. Willis (M D)
Taylor v. Taylor (Cause, Witnesses) Nov. 14
Reay v. Woolley (Cause) Nov. 14
Evans v. Thomas (M D)
Bostock v. Floyer (M D)
Offen v. Munn (Cause)
Western v. M'Dermot (Cause)
Ward v. Carttar (Cause)
Hancock v. Reeves (M D)

CAUSES.
Baxendale v. West Midland Railway Co. (M D) L. C.
Baxendale v. Great Western Railway Co. (M D) L. C.
Low v. Routledge (M D) L. J.
Att-Gen. v. St. John's Hospital, Bath (M D, Ptn) L. J.
Att-Gen. v. St. John's Hospital, Bath (M D) L. J.
Wood v. Scoles (F C) L. J.

Ryland v. Richardson (M D)
Wayman v. Marking (M D)
Down v. Ellis (M D)
Price v. Cheesman (Cause, Witnesses) Nov. 6
Weller v. Aldridge (M D)
Sydney v. Clarkson (M D)
De Houghton, Bart., v. Money (Cause, Witnesses)
Lee v. Lee (Cause)
Tregar v. Williams (M D)
Howes v. Poole (Cause, Witnesses) Nov. 10
Howes v. Poole (Cause, Witnesses) Nov. 10
Tomlinson v. Leigh (M D)
Sharp v. Gibbs (M D)
Hole v. Hole (Cause)
M'Dermott v. Seymour (Cau.)
Walker v. Ware, Hadlam, and Buntingford Railway Co. (M D)
Lambard v. South-eastern Railway Co. (M D)
Dodsworth v. Marshall (Cau.)
Stephens v. Sullivan (Cause, Evidence vivâ voce) Nov. 6
Montefiore, Bart., v. Behrens (M D)
Freeman v. Bowen (M D)
Fryer v. Davies (M D)
Ladlow v. Bunbury (M D)
Turquand v. Bennett (Cause)
Jones v. Jones (M D)
Clements v. Welles (M D)
Chapple v. London, Chatham, and Dover Railway Co. (M D)
Whitelock v. Bunnnett (M D)
Rowden v. Yeoman (M D)
Peel v. Todd (M D)
Bradley v. Fourness (M D)
Windley v. Forman (M D)
Adnult v. Wright (Sp C)
Evans v. Jonas (M D)
Armitage v. Coates (Sp C)
Lord v. Jeffkins (Cause)
Burmester v. Moxon (M D)
Cave v. Ellis (M D)
Crawshaw v. Allaway (Cause)
Reay v. Rawlinson (F C)
Percy v. Percy (F C)
Bonville v. Lewis (F C)
Hampton v. Holman (F C)
Hammond v. Whitla (M D)
Carr v. Livingston (M D)
Fowke v. Briggs (Cause)
Rose v. Munk (M D)
Tait v. Lathbury (M D)
Chubb v. Griffiths (M D)
Garrod v. Garrod (Cause, Witnesses)
Cosens v. Griffiths (M D)
Tanner v. Tanner (Sp C)

Harrison v. Chapman (M D)
Ellies v. North American Colonial Association of Ireland (M D)
Curtiss v. Grant (F C)
Laing v. Campbell (Cause)
Viscountess d'Adhemar v. Bertrand (M D)
Eden v. Mackenzie (M D)
Bonfield v. Grant (F C)
In re Thurkle's } (F C,
Estate } from Saunders v. Pigott } Chamb.)
Grah v. Thurkle }
Wright v. Lowe (Cause)
Lyster v. Jerrard (F C)
In re Hawke } (F C, from Hawke v. Hawke } Chamb.)
Wells v. Templeman (Cause)
Swinger v. Reidy (Cause)
Straughton v. Tate } (F C)
Tate v. Straughton }
Richardson v. Goodson (F C)
Lord Lilford v. Keck (F C)
Byre v. Britt (Cause)
Ibbotson v. Elam (Sp C)
Wilson v. Watchorn (M D)
Harris v. Cumming (M D)
Moss v. Barton (M D)
Griffiths v. Bracewell (M D)
Yeomans v. Adams (M D)
Hennessey v. Bray (F C)
Lovejoy v. Crafter (M D)

Clark v. Wallis (M D)
Carr v. Lister (M D)
Simmonds v. Cock (F C)
In re Saunders' } (F C,
Estate } from
Saunders v. Pigott } Chamb.)
In re Hales } (F C)
Hales v. Cox }
Quinn v. Fowler Butler (M D)
Crane v. Wynn (F C)
Morgan v. Davies (F C)
Jarvis v. Hooper (F C)
Brookes v. Davidson (F C)
Lesingham v. Haggard (M D)
Gee v. Liddell (F C, Summons to vary)
Delves v. Strother (Cause)
Corrigan v. Lea (M D)
Markwell v. Bull } (F C)
Markwell v. Markwell }
Young v. Steel (M D)
Wright v. Blake (Cause)
Raphael v. Thames Valley Railway Co. (M D)
Bracewell v. Griffiths (M D)
Wood v. Joynson (M D)
Miles v. Miles (M D)
Rhodes v. Dewhurst (Cause)
Gore v. Gore (M D)
Davies v. Williams (M D)
The Consolidated Assurance Co. v. Buckley (M D).

Reeve v. Jones (F C)
Dabbs v. Nugent (M D)
Heath v. Kerrick (M D)
Thomas v. Jenkins (Cause)
Lawes v. Gibson (M D)
Martin v. Royle (M D)
Alton v. Harrison (M D)
Alexandra Park Co. v. Wood (M D)
Bateman v. Holmes (M D)
Lee v. Bullen (Cause)
Lovett v. Hankins (M D)
Wood v. Barker (Cause)
St. Paul v. Heath (M D)
Duly v. Nalder (M D)
Hutchison v. Hastie (Cause)
Shepherdson v. Dale (F C)
Greenberg v. Lambert (Cau.)
Sears v. Hatswell (Cause)
Homan v. Davis (M D)
Eaton v. Frances (Cause)
Lethbridge v. Lethbridge, Bart. (M D)
Thorpe v. Mattinson (F C)
Cutler v. Cutler (M D)
Dowling v. Dowling (F C)
Gabriel v. Purdue (F C)
Williams v. Neath and Brecon Railway Co. (M D)
Forbes v. Preston (Cause)

Ferrand v. Townend (M D)
Burdon v. Barkus (M D)
Wareing v. Buckley (F C)
Sullivan v. Terrill (Cause)
Enaley v. Enaley (F C)
Graham v. Idle (M D)
Bradfield v. Balls (M D)
Phillips v. Jones (M D)
Elwes v. Barnard (Cause)
Hill v. Challinor (M D)
Grant v. Norris (F C)
Wells v. Simmonett (M D)
Jones v. Dixon (F C, 2 Summons)
Day v. Day (F C)
Brown v. Thompson } (F C)
Brown v. Dewick }
Brown v. Dewick (F C)
Kent v. Birchley (F C)
Hayward v. Kersey (Cause)
Lyster v. Benett (M D)
Jenkinson v. Jenkinson (M D)
Smith v. Maxfield (F C)
Pettitt v. London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway Co. (M D)
Swain v. Fulford (M D)
Cooper v. Wells (F C)
Peart v. Fenwick (M D).

Before the Vice-Chancellor Sir RICHARD T. KINDERSLEY.

CAUSES, &c.

Pearse v. Dobinson (D)
Smart v. Hawksworth (M D)
Millard v. Elyett (M D)
Earl of Eglinton v. Lamb, Bart. (M D)
Earl of Eglinton v. Lamb, Bart. (M D)
Marquis of Downshire v. Smith (M D)
Towns v. Wentworth (M D)
Walsh v. Jupp (M D)
Ransome v. Burgess (M D)
Scott v. Harrison (M D, part heard) Nov. 3
Painter v. Ford (Cause)
Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot v. North Staffordshire Railway Co. (Cause)
Att.-Gen. v. Poynder (M D)
Lambe v. Orton } (F C)
Lambe v. Orton }
Coope v. Crosswell (M D) Nov. 6
Sandilands v. Gilchrist (Cause, Witnesses) Nov. 6
Gilchrist v. Sandilands (Cau.)
Wilkinson v. Eykyn (M D)
Johnson v. Hodgson (Cause)
Butt v. Imperial Gas-light & Coke Co. (M D)

Parsons v. Howkins (M D)
Martin v. Headon (M D)
Churton v. Frewen (M D)
Jupp v. Nicholas (Cause)
Boursot v. Stone (Cause)
Boursot v. Savage (Cause)
Allison v. Lord (M D)
Poynder v. Hulbert (M D)
Sedgefield v. Sedgefield (Sp C)
Gimlett v. Gimlett (F C, and Sums. to vary certificate)
Wakefield v. Duke of Buccleugh (M D)
Ormerod v. Ryley (Sp C)
Watt v. Watt (F C)
Hubbard v. Latham (F C)
Courtis v. Watts (M D)
Estate Co (Limited) v. Sharpe (M D)
Sweeting v. Sweeting (F C)
Lees v. Whiteley (Cause)
Hart v. Young (Cause)
Webb v. Hunt (M D)
Letton v. Goodden (M D)
Diamond v. Edgell (M D)
Hocken v. Battle (F C)
Cooke v. Ricketts (M D)
Brooke v. Harling (M D)
Holmer v. Shew (M D.)

Before the Vice-Chancellor Sir JOHN STUART.

CAUSES, &c.

Newton v. Hume (Cause)
Peter v. Jones (M D)
Martin v. London, Chatham, and Dover Railway Co. (M D)
Harris v. Rees (M D)
May v. Ramsey (F C)
Hume v. Pocock (M D)
Hollings v. Bevan (M D)
Balmforth v. Chambers (Ca.)

Armstrong v. Scruton (F C)
Ramsay v. Shelmerdine (M D)
Edwards v. Martin (M D)
Ackroyd v. Briggs (M D)
Burd v. Burd (F C, Sums)
Brutton v. Jewell (M D)
Roberts v. Roberts (Cause)
Cooke v. Cooke (F C, 2 Summons)

Before the Vice-Chancellor Sir W. P. WOOD.

CAUSES, &c.

Betts v. Rimmell (E to ans)
Hindley v. Emery (M D)
Gray v. Batt (M D)
Hopwood v. Ernest (F C)
Stables v. Powell (F C)
Beard v. Turner (M D)
Williams v. Osborne (M D)
Wedderburne v. Thomas (Cau. P C)
Forbes v. Mackenzie (Cause)
Featherstonhaugh v. Lee Moor Porcelain Co. (M D)
Savin v. Oswestry and Newtown Railway Co. (M D)
Tate v. Williamson (M D)
Duke of Portland v. Hill (M D)
Wyld v. Parker (M D)
Cade v. Wheatcroft (M D)
May v. May (M D)
Miles v. Miles, Bart. (M D)
Davenport v. Rylands (M D)
Darell v. Willis (Cause)
Lucas v. Jones (M D)
Stormont v. Thickens (M D)
Stanier v. Evans (M D)
Reading v. Atkins (M D)
Knox v. Gye (M D)

Roberts v. Pollard } (F C,
Turner v. Wilson } Sums. to vary certificate, pt hd)
Hallworth v. Foster (Cause)
Hill v. Curtis (Cause, Witnesses)
Ledward v. Mersey Docks and Harbour Board (M D)
Campbell v. Campbell (M D)
Cocks v. Cocks (M D)
Birt v. Gainey (M D)
Hinde v. Morton (Cause)
Jenner v. Jenner (M D)
Buckham v. Buckham (Cau.)
Millard v. Bailey (M D)

Earl de la Warr v. Lord Cavendish (M D)
Ainsworth v. Walmsley (M D)
Earl of Stamford and Warrington v. Dawson (M D)
Woods v. Lamb (M D)
Ewen v. Candler (M D)
Caulfield v. Caulfield (M D)
Alliance Bank v. Motion (M D)
Pennell v. Davison (M D)
Davies v. Tatham (M D)
Steele v. Stuart (M D)
Martin v. Martin (Sp C)
Tetley v. Brown (Cause)
White v. Chitty (M D)
Lewer v. Earl of Shaftesbury (Cause)
Kelsey v. Fowler (Cause)
Dear v. Webster (M D)
Denham v. Cox (M D)
Walker v. Brettell (M D)
Watkins v. Neath and Brecon Railway Co. (M D)
Goode v. Winkles (Trial by jury)
Richardson v. Stones (M D)
Smith v. Owen (M D)
Hensley v. Willis (M D)
Sturges v. Sturges (M D)
Turner v. Elkins (Sp C)
Singleton v. Selwyn (Cause, part heard) Nov. 20
Wiltshire v. Marshall (Cause)
Trinder v. Trinder (M D)
Daw v. Eley (M D) Nov. 6
Tyrer v. Llewellyn (M D)
Hollamby v. Oldrieve (Cau.)
Moore v. Harper (M D)
Harris v. Glynn (F C)
Graham v. Parsons (F C)
Carkledge v. Radbourne (M D)
Duke of Bedford v. Nine Navigation Commissioners (M D) Nov. 20
Gaskin v. Rogers (F C)

Bowyer v. Woodman (F C)
Walter v. Platt (M D)
Wickham v. Webster (M D)
Middle Level Commissioners
v. Commissioners of the
Nene Wash Lands (M D)
Clarke v. Cock (M D)
Sparrow v. Ewing (Cause)
Romans v. Mitchell (M D)
Binns v. Nichols (F C, Summons to vary)
Salvin v. Weston (M D)
Fuller v. Chamier (Rehearing)
Bevor v. Tuck (Cause)
Ord v. Ord (M D)
Derby v. Swansea Harbour
Trustees (M D)
Mendham v. Williams (F C)
Farrer v. Mould (F C)
Hansom v. Pugin (M D)
In re Gibson { (F C,
Mathews v. Foulsham { from Ch.)
Sherman v. Horrell (F C)
Abraham v. Pearse (M D)
Worship v. Clarke (M D)

Wedderburne v. Thomas (Cause)
Levitt v. Levitt (F C)
Harbin v. Masterman (M D)
Drake v. Boxill (Cause)
Howarth v. Mills (F C)
Fleetwood, Bart., v. Forshaw
(M D)
French v. Burden (F C)
Tipping v. St. Helen's Smelting Co. (Limited) (M D)
Bazalgette v. Gregory (M D)
Mackenzie v. Forbes (Cause)
Wickham v. Scarfe (Cause)
McKewan v. Dawes (M D)
Morley v. Mendham (M D)
Barnes v. Jennings (F C)
Rodgers v. Kohn (Cause)
Martin v. Martin (Sp C)
Forbes v. Steven (Cause)
Lambert v. Rendle (F C)
Jeffries v. Agra and Master-man's Bank (Limited) (M D)
Tangye v. Stott (M D)
Hick v. Hick (F C).

NEW CAUSES ENTERED FOR MICHAELMAS TERM.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

CROWN PAPER.

Gloucestershire.. Morris v. Jeffries.
Metropolitan Po- } Triggs, App., Lester, Resp. lice District.. }

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

DEMURRER PAPER.

Friday, Nov. 10.

SPECIAL ARGUMENT.

Bolton v. Lancashire & Yorkshire Railway Co. (Case at Nisi Prius)
Short v. Simpson & ors. (D.)
Sage v. Bates (Sp. C. by ord.)

Jenkinson v. Fletcher & ors.
(Error from Court of Record, Manchester)
Seymour v. London and Provincial Marine Insurance
Co.

EXCHEQUER CHAMBER.

ERRORS AND APPEALS.

Roberts & an. v. Rose (Ap.) | Wright v. Hunt (Error).

BROWNING'S DIVORCE PRACTICE.

THE PRACTICE and PROCEDURE of the COURT for DIVORCE and MATRIMONIAL CAUSES, with FORMS of PLEADINGS, &c.; the Acts, Rules, and Orders; TABLES of FEES and BILLS of COSTS. By ERNST BROWNING, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street.

SMITH'S MERCANTILE LAW.

In royal 8vo., price 11. 16s. cloth boards.

A COMPENDIUM of MERCANTILE LAW.
By J. W. SMITH, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law.
Seventh Edition. By G. M. DOWDESWELL, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law.

London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn; H. Sweet,
3, Chancery-lane; and W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, price 7s. cloth boards,

A TREATISE on ARRANGEMENTS with CRE-DITORS under the BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861. With Precedents. To which are added, the Sections of the Bankruptcy Acts, 1849 and 1861, and the Rules and Orders relating thereto. With a full Index. By WILLIAM DOWNES GRIFFITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

NEW EDITION of ELMER'S PRACTICE in
LUNACY, with Notes of Cases, Forms, Costs, Statutes, General
Orders, and a Copious Index. Price 16s. 6d. cloth.
Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

City of London, Gracechurch-street. About 15,600 feet of Freehold and long Leasehold Ground, with vacant possession of all but a small portion.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD are honoured with instructions to announce for SALE by AUCTION, at Garraway's, Change-alley, Cornhill, on Wednesday, Nov. 8, at 12, in one lot, a remarkably important and valuable FREEHOLD and LONG LEASEHOLD ESTATE, in the most central position within the City of London, and unequalled in the facilities it presents for judicious development. It comprises the site of the Spread Eagle Hotel, in Gracechurch-street, and its very large yards and premises in the rear, extending through into Leadenhall-market, and of the premises, Nos. 86 and 87, Gracechurch-street, with vacant possession; also the Freehold House, No. 85, Gracechurch-street, with possession in about six years.
The estate occupies the singularly extensive area of about 12,600 feet, having a frontage of about 63 feet, a mean depth of about 125 feet, and is almost uncontrolled by ancient lights; its extreme availability for the prosecution of a well-devised building scheme is thus apparent, and the success thereof is guaranteed by the centrality of the location, standing, as it does, in the very heart of the City, equidistant from all its markets and principal resorts of commerce, and in the main artery from north to south. The tenure is as follows:—About 7000 feet of the land are freehold, and the remainder (about 5600 feet) are held from the Skinners'
Company for a term of 80 years, at only 1100l. per annum ground rent.
No. 85, Gracechurch-street is let on lease for a term, of which six years are unexpired. Vacant possession of the whole of the remainder will be given on completion.

Particulars, with plans, are now ready, and may be had of Messrs.
Janson, Cobb, & Pearson, solicitors, 41, Finsbury-circus; at Garraway's; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox & Bousfield, 24, Gresham-street, Bank, E.C., corner of Coleman-street.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.

69, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.
DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q. C.
Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred
Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.
Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office. C. B. CLABON, Sec.

LAW UNION FIRE and LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Chief Offices—126, Chancery-lane, W.C.

Subscribed Capital—ONE MILLION STERLING.
The Fire and Life Departments are under one Management, but with separate Funds and Accounts.

Chairman—Sir WILLIAM FOSTER, Bart.
Deputy-Chairman—Mr. Serjeant MANNING, Q.A.S.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Subscribed Capital, £750,000, in addition to the Reserve Fund.
Business consists of the best classes of risks.
Insurants will be allowed the full benefit of the Reduction of Duty.
Claims settled promptly and liberally.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Subscribed Capital £250,000, in addition to the Reserve Fund.
PREMIUMS MODERATE.

A Bonus every five years. Next Bonus in 1869. At the Division of Profits in 1864, the Reversionary Bonus amounted to from 15 to 50 per cent. per annum on the Premiums paid, varying with the ages of the Insured.

Copies of the Directors' Report and Balance-sheet, and every information, may be obtained at the Chief Office, or of any of the Agents of the Company. FRANK MCGEDY, Secretary.

PELICAN LIFE INSURANCE OFFICE.

(ESTABLISHED IN 1797).

No. 70, Lombard-street, E. C., and 57, Charing-cross, S. W.

DIRECTORS.

Octavius E. Coope, Esq.	Kirkman D. Hodgson, Esq., M.P.
William Cotton, Esq., D.C.L.,	Henry Lancelot Holland, Esq.
F.R.S.	William James Lancaster, Esq.
Thomas Henry Farquhar, Esq.	Sir John Lubbock, Bart., F.R.S.
James A. Gordon, Esq., M.D.,	Benjamin Shaw, Esq.
F.R.S.	Matthew Whiting, Esq.
Edward Hawkins, jun., Esq.	Marmaduke Wyvill, jun., Esq.

ROBERT TUCKER, Secretary and Actuary.

NOTICE.—The next distribution of Profit will be made at the end of 1868. All Policies now effected on the "return system" will participate.
The last Bonus varied from 28 to 60 per cent. on the Premiums paid.
Loans, in connexion with Life Assurance, upon approved security, in sums of not less than 500l.

For Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal apply to the Secretary, or to any of the Company's Agents.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY
LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the OFFICE, No. 89, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, November 4, 1865.

The Jurist

No. 566, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.

No. 1505, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

NOVEMBER 11, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

CHANCERY CLERK.—WANTED, an experienced CHANCERY CLERK, capable of taking the Management of a large Business under the superintendence of the Principal. Address, with particulars and salary, A. W. Messrs. Britten & Son, Mitre-court, Fleet-street. Articled clerks need not apply.

SOLICITORS requiring Clerks should apply to ABBOTT, BARTON, & CO., Advertisement Contractors, 203, Strand, W.C., who have opened a FREE Register for Employers and Clerks. "Sittings Papers," "Circuit Papers," and Almanack for 1866, free for postage.

An entirely new List of London and Provincial Newspapers, in tabular form, 1s., giving the Counties, Towns, and Days of Publication, with Political Opinions, and price of each.

ABBOTT, BARTON, & Co., Advertising Office, 203, Strand.

TO TRUSTEES, CAPITALISTS, and OTHERS.

—Well-secured FREEHOLD and LEASEHOLD GROUND-RENTS.—For SALE, FREEHOLD GROUND-RENTS, amounting to £201. 15s. per annum, amply secured upon 43 well-built Houses at Dalston, producing a rack-rental of about 1200l. per annum. LEASEHOLD GROUND-RENTS, amounting to about 690l. per annum, amply secured upon 129 Houses and Shops near Shoreditch Church, producing a rack-rental of nearly 4000l. per annum.

For price, and further particulars, apply to Mr. G. CLARKSON, 33, Great James-street, Bedford-row, W.C.

In 2 vols., Third Edition, 40s. cloth, pp. 1732.

DEACON'S LAW and PRACTICE of BANKRUPTCY. By A. G. LANGLEY, Esq., Barrister at Law. This work contains upwards of Four Thousand Cases, the Statutes, General Orders, Forms in Bankruptcy, and the County Court Bankruptcy Orders, 1863.

London: Shaw & Sons, Fetter-lane.

STEVENS and HAYNES' LAW CATALOGUE, 1865.

Lately published in 32mo., 230 pages, price 2s. cloth.

A CATALOGUE of MODERN LAW BOOKS, including all the Reports in England, Scotland, and Ireland. By H. G. STEVENS and R. W. HAYNES, Law Booksellers and Publishers.

HANSON'S (A.) SUCCESSION DUTY ACT, 1865.

Lately published, in 12mo., price 6s. cloth.

THE SUCCESSION DUTY ACT, 1853 (16 & 17 Vict. c. 51). With the Decisions to 1865, and Notes. By ALFRED HANSON, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law. Stevens & Haynes, 11, Bell-yard, Temple-bar.

Just published, price 13s. cloth,
WINDING UP and FORMATION of COMPANIES, with Costs, &c., and all the most recent Cases. By J. B. TAYLOR.

London: William Amer, Law Bookseller, Lincoln's-lane-gate, Carey-street, W.C.

Now ready, price 2s. 6d., post free.

A HANDY-BOOK on CHANCERY LAW and PRACTICE for SUITORS under the New Equity Jurisdiction in the County Courts. With the Act complete, and Practical Observations thereon; with the authorised Forms and Rules of Court, &c. By G. MANLEY WETHERFIELD, Solicitor.

London: Stannard & Smith, 30, Chancery-lane, W.C.

FREDERICK CHIFFERIEL,

ESTABLISHED 1819,

Lab., Parliamentary, and Public Companies' Stationer,
PRINTER and LITHOGRAPHER,

34 to 37, CURSITOR-STREET, AND

1 to 6, CHURCH-PASSAGE, CHANCERY-LANE, E. C.

PARLIAMENTARY PLANS, SECTIONS, and BOOKS of REFERENCE LITHOGRAPHED WITH EXPEDITION.

Parliamentary Bills, Notices, Books of Reference, and every description of Printing, executed with the utmost despatch. Each Branch executed on the Premises.

A large and efficient Staff in each Department.

No. 566, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

NEW EDITION of ELMER'S PRACTICE in LUNACY, with Notes of Cases, Forms, Costs, Statutes, General Orders, and a Copious Index. Price 16s. 6d. cloth. Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-lane.

COUNTY COURTS IN EQUITY.

This day is published, price 5s. cloth,

THE COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION ACT, 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99. With the Orders, Rules, Forms, Costs, and other Matters relating thereto, and Copious Notes and References. By H. M. SLADEN, of Lincoln's-lane, Esq., Barrister at Law. Wildy & Sons, Lincoln's-lane-archway.

DAVIS'S COUNTY COURTS—EQUITABLE JURISDICTION.

This day is published, royal 12mo., 5s. cloth,

THE COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION ACT (28 & 29 Vict. c. 99): with the Orders and Rules for regulating the Practice of the Courts, and the Forms and Costs of Proceedings. With Notes and Introductory Chapters. By JAMES EDWARD DAVIS, Esq., Barrister at Law.

London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

DAVIS'S COUNTY COURTS—PRACTICE AND EVIDENCE.

Third Edition.

Just published, one thick vol., royal 12mo., 23s. cloth.

A MANUAL of the PRACTICE and EVIDENCE in ACTIONS and other PROCEEDINGS in the COUNTY COURTS, including the Practice in Bankruptcy. With an Appendix of Statutes and Rules. By JAMES EDWARD DAVIS, of the Middle Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law. Third Edition, considerably enlarged. London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

LEWIS'S EQUITY DRAFTING.

Just published, post 8vo., 12s. cloth.

PRINCIPLES of EQUITY DRAFTING. With an Appendix of Forms. By HUBERT LEWIS, B.A., of the Middle Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law, Author of "Principles of Conveyancing Explained and Illustrated."

This Work, intended to explain the general principles of equity drafting, as well as to exemplify the pleadings of the Court of Chancery, will, it is hoped, be useful to lawyers resorting to the new equity jurisdiction of the county courts.

London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

HUNTER'S SUIT IN EQUITY.—Third Edition.

Just published, post 8vo., 9s. cloth,

AN ELEMENTARY VIEW of the PROCEEDINGS in a SUIT IN EQUITY. With an Appendix of Forms. By SYLVESTER J. HUNTER, B.A., of Lincoln's-lane, Barrister at Law. Third Edition. By G. W. LAWRENCE, M.A., of Lincoln's-lane, Barrister at Law.

London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

DREWRY'S EQUITY PLEADER.

12mo., Gs. boards,

A CONCISE TREATISE on the PRINCIPLES of EQUITY PLEADING. With Precedents. By C. STEWART DREWRY, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

BROWNING'S DIVORCE PRACTICE.

THE PRACTICE and PROCEDURE of the COURT for DIVORCE and MATRIMONIAL CAUSES, With Forms of Pleadings; the Act, Rules, and Orders; Tables of Fees, and Bills of Costs. By ERNST BROWNING, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

THE WEEKLY REPORTER, established 1852,

(published every Saturday), contains the Cases decided in all the Courts of Law and Equity, Probate, Ecclesiastical, Bankruptcy, and Admiralty. Each number contains, when practicable, Cases decided up to, and inclusive of, the previous Wednesday. Editors.—A. E. MILLER and S. G. GRADY, Barristers at Law. Annual Subscription, 52s., which includes Digest, double numbers, and postage to the country and colonies, when paid in advance. The first Number of Vol. 14 was published last Saturday.—Office of the "Solicitor's Journal," 59, Carey-street, W.C.

R R

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	435
Days of Grace on Promissory Notes	437
The Council of Law Reporting	438
Causes entered after the Fourth Day of Michaelmas Term	443

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF CHANCERY.

By W. W. KNOX, Barrister at Law.

Mathers v. Green.—(Patent—Joint grantee)	845
------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Re Bulley's Estate.—(Will—Remoteness)	847
---------------------------------------------	-----

ROLLS COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Greetham v. Colton.—(Will—Charge of debts upon real estate—Condition that personal estate proved insufficient—Power of sale)	848
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

By M. BROWNE, Barrister at Law.

Rowe v. Tonkin.—(Practice—Pleading—Time—Demurrer to part of bill)	849
-------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY'S COURT.

By E. LLOYD, Barrister at Law.

Hutton v. Scarborough Cliff Hotel Company.—(Joint-stock company—Increase of capital—Reserved shares—Preferential dividend—Alteration of articles of association—Companies Act, 1862, sects. 12, 14, 50)	849
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY.—(Continued). Clements v. Clifford.—(Practice—Dismissal of bill as to plaintiff disclaiming—Costs)	851
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Clarke v. Green.—(Husband and wife—Settlement—Reversionary interest—Malins' Act (20 & 21 Vict. c. 57))	851
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVESY, Barrister at Law.

Kemp v. Halliday.—(Marine insurance—Constructive total loss—General average)	852
Re Pyke.—(Attorney, misconduct of—Readmission)	853

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By E. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

Irwin v. Sir George Grey.—(Error—Jury process—Special jury—Tales)	860
-------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT FOR DIVORCE AND MATRIMONIAL CAUSES.

By W. ERNST BROWNING, Barrister at Law.

Manton v. Manton and Stevens.—(Dissolution of marriage—Damages—Costs)	863
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF PROBATE.

By DR. MIDDLETON.

Argent v. Argent and Others.—(Administration—Widow—Deceased's previous marriage dissolved in a colonial court)	864
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

EQUITABLE JURISDICTION OF THE COUNTY COURTS.

Just published, price 5s. boards.

A SUPPLEMENT to POLLOCK & NICOL'S COUNTY COURT PRACTICE: containing the Equitable Jurisdiction Act (28 & 29 Vict. c. 99). With Orders, Forms, Costs, Fees, and the Trustee Acts, &c. By C. E. POLLOCK & H. NICOL, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

TWENTIETH ANNUAL ISSUE.

This day is published,

THE LAWYER'S COMPANION, DIARY, and LONDON and PROVINCIAL LAW DIRECTORY for 1866; containing The Companies Act, 1862, with an Introduction, Analysis, and Index; an Abstract of the most important Acts of the Session of 1865; and the New Orders and Rules for regulating the Practice of the County Courts, 1865. With a Scale of Costs and Charges to be paid to Counsel and Attorneys in the County Courts under the Provisions of the Statute 28 & 29 Vict. c. 29. Edited by FREDERICK LAWRENCE, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

The Work is bound in cloth, lettered on back and side, and may be had as under:—

No.		s.	d.
1.	Plain, two days on a page	5	0
2.	The above, interleaved	7	0
3.	Ruled with or without money columns	5	6
4.	The above, interleaved	8	0
5.	Plain, whole page to a day	7	6
6.	The above, interleaved	9	6
7.	Whole page to a day, ruled with or without money columns	8	6
8.	The above, interleaved	10	6
9.	Ruled blue lines, without money columns, three days on a page	5	0

London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, in medium 8vo., price 1l. 5s. cloth,
A MANUAL of CIVIL LAW; containing a Translation of, and Commentary on the Fragments of, the XII Tables and the Institutes of Justinian; the Text of the Institutes of Gaius and Justinian. Arranged in parallel columns; and the Text of the Fragments of Ulpian, and of Selections from Paul's Recepta Sententia. By PATRICK CUMIN, M.A., Balliol College, Oxford, Barrister at Law. Second Edition, enlarged.
London: Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn. Oxford: J. H. & J. Parker. Cambridge: Deighton, Bell, & Co. Edinburgh: T. & T. Clark. Dublin: Hodges, Smith, & Co.

DEDICATED, BY EXPRESS PERMISSION, TO THE LORD CHANCELLOR.

This day is published, in 1 vol. 8vo., price 10s. 6d. cloth, Part I of PRINCIPIA PRIMA LEGUM; or, An Enumeration and Analysis of the Elementary Principles of Law in its several Departments; illustrated by Select Passages from Leading Judgments of Lords Hardwicke, Mansfield, Eldon, Ellenborough, Stowell, Thurlow, Kenyon, Tenterden, Brougham, Cottenham, Campbell, St. Leonards, Wensleydale, Westbury, and other eminent Judges. By GEORGE HARRIS, Esq., F.S.A., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law, one of the Registrars of the Court of Bankruptcy, and Author of "The Life of Lord Chancellor Hardwicke."
London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

TILSLEY'S STAMP ACTS,

INCLUDING THE ACTS OF PARLIAMENT FOR THE PRESENT YEAR.

In 8vo., price 12s. 6d. cloth.

A DIGEST of the STAMP ACTS and the Judicial Decisions on the Stamp Laws not contained in the Author's Treatise; including the Probate, Legacy, and Succession Duties; with Tables of all the Stamp Duties. By HUGH TILSLEY, Assistant Solicitor of Inland Revenue. Ninth Edition, revised and continued by his Son, EDWARD HUGH TILSLEY, of the Inland Revenue Office. This Work, completed to the present date (including the Acts of Parliament of the present year), forms a Supplement to the Second Edition of the Treatise on the Stamp Laws by the same Author.
London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

DIGEST OF THE IRISH COMMON-LAW REPORTS.

This day is published, 1 large vol. royal 8vo., 2344 pp., price 3l. 13s. 6d.,
A DIGEST of all the REPORTED CASES decided in the Superior and other COURTS of COMMON LAW in IRELAND, and in the COURT of ADMIRALTY; from Sir John Davies' Reports to the present time. With References to the Statutes and General Orders of Court. By THOMAS BRUNKER, A.M., Barrister-at-Law.
Dublin: Hodges, Smith, & Co., Grafton-street.—Sold by all the Law Booksellers in London.

CURES OF ASTHMA AND COUGHS, BY

DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS.
—From Mr. Leith, Chemist, 95, Baker-street, Stirling:—"I find your Wafers give great satisfaction, and I can recommend them with greater faith than ever." They give instant relief, and a rapid cure of asthma, consumption, coughs, colds, and all disorders of the throat and lungs. They have a pleasant taste. 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d., per box, by all Druggists.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, NOVEMBER 11, 1865.

THE liability of persons who keep wild beasts, or, with a knowledge of their propensities, animals not feræ naturæ, but accustomed to attack or bite mankind, or commit other injuries, has been fully treated of, and is well defined. But there is a recent case which deserves to be noticed, rather nicely separated from the class of cases alluded to, where the owner of the animal, causing mischief by an act of a vicious character, was held liable, although the animal was neither wild by nature nor proved to be habitually vicious, or, if habitually vicious, was not known to be so by the owner. This was the case of Lee v. Riley (11 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 527), being a case carried on appeal from the county court to the Court of Common Pleas. In that case the defendant's mare, a large powerful animal, got out of the defendant's farm, through the defect of a gate which the defendant was bound to repair, and had strayed into the plaintiff's field, where it kicked and injured a horse of the plaintiff's so severely that it had to be killed. It was held not to be necessary, for the maintenance of the action, to prove that the defendant's mare was vicious, and that the defendant knew it. It was also held that the damage the plaintiff had sustained by the injuries to his horse was not too remote, but was sufficiently the consequence of the defendant's neglect, to be recoverable in such action. Now, a previous case of Cox v. Burbidge (9 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 970), which may appear to some irreconcilable with the more recent case, was brought forward in Lee v. Riley, as an authority that the defendant could not be made liable unless the scienter was proved. In Cox v. Burbidge the facts which appeared in evidence were these:—A horse belonging to the defendant was grazing on a newly-made road which led to some houses. The plaintiff, a little boy five years old, was playing in the road, when the horse, which was on the footpath, struck out and kicked him in the face, injuring him very severely. There was no evidence to shew how the horse got to the spot, or that the owner knew he was there, or that the animal was habitually vicious, or that the child had done anything to irritate it. The declaration charged negligence, and the jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff. On a rule nisi to enter a nonsuit, it was argued, on shewing cause for the plaintiff, that it was negligence, leaving the horse unattended on the highway, and that also its being on the highway unattended, constituted a nuisance; and that, therefore, the injury and damage sustained had its origin in, and proceeded from, a wrongful act on the part of the defendant, and that he must be held liable for it. For the defendant it was contended, on the other hand, that the animal not being one of a ferocious nature, the defendant could only be liable for negligence, and for such damages as might be fairly considered as the immediate consequence of his negligence; and that there was no evidence at all of negligence which ought to have been submitted to the jury; and that with regard to the point as to obstructing the highway, the horse was not wrongfully there as against the person injured. The Court made the rule absolute to enter a nonsuit, and the judges all concurred in this decision, though they did not all agree upon all points. Chief Justice Erle took the view, that, as between the owner of the horse and the owner of the soil on the highway, or of the herbage growing thereon, it might be assumed that the horse was trespassing; and if the horse had done any damage to the soil, the owner of the soil might have had a right of action against the owner of the horse, but that that had nothing to do with the case of the plaintiff. That there was no evidence of negligence, the simple fact found being that the horse was in the highway; he might have been there without any negligence of the owner; he might have been put there by a stranger; or might have escaped from some inclosed place without the owner's knowledge; that to enable the plaintiff to recover, there must be some affirmative proof of negligence in the defendant in respect of a duty owing to the plaintiff. But even if there was any negligence on the part of the owner of the horse, it was not at all connected with the damage complained of: that it appeared that the horse was on the highway, and that, without anything to account for it, he struck at and injured the plaintiff: that the well-known distinction applied there, that the owner of an animal is answerable for any damage done by it, provided it be of such a nature as is likely to arise from such an animal, and the owner knows it: that thus, in the case of a dog, if he bites a man or worries^o sheep, and his owner knows that he is accustomed to bite men or to worry sheep, the owner is responsible; but the party injured has no remedy, unless the scienter can be proved. That that was familiar doctrine, and that it seemed to him that there was a much stronger reason for applying that rule in respect of the damage done there. That the owner of a horse must be taken to know that the animal will stray, if not properly secured, and may find its way into his neighbour's corn or pasture. For a trespass of that kind the owner is, of course, responsible; "but," said the Chief Justice, "if the horse does something which is quite contrary to his ordinary nature, something which his owner has no reason to expect that he will do, he has the same sort of protection that the owner of a dog has; and everybody knows that it is not at all the ordinary habit of a horse to kick a child on a highway. I think the ground on which the plaintiff's counsel rests his case fails. It reduces itself to the question, whether the owner of a horse is liable for a sudden act of a fierce and violent nature, which is altogether contrary to the usual habits of the horse, without more. Mr. Justice Williams, on the other hand, whilst he concurred in making the rule absolute for a nonsuit, did not take the same view as the Chief Justice

* Though it does not affect the illustration, we may remind our readers that there is now a statute—28 & 29 Vict. c. 70—to render owners of dogs liable for injuries to cattle and sheep.

did as to the necessity of proof of actual negligence. He said, the question of negligence was immaterial, and that the general rule of law was perfectly plain, "If," said he, "I am the owner of an animal, in which, by law, the right of property can exist, I am bound to take care that it does not stray into the land of my neighbour, and I am liable for any trespass it may commit, and for the ordinary consequences of that trespass; whether or not the escape is due to my negligence is altogether immaterial. I am clearly liable for the trespass, and for all the ordinary consequences of that trespass, subject to a distinction which is taken very early in the books—that the animal is such that the owner of it may have a property in it which is recognisable by law. For instance, if a man's cattle, or sheep, or poultry stray into his neighbour's land or garden, and do such damage as might ordinarily be expected to be done by things of that sort, the owner is liable to his neighbour for the consequences." We think it may be fairly inferred, from the tenor of these observations, that if Mr. Justice Williams had thought the injury inflicted to be an ordinary consequence of the horse having been left at large, he would have held the plaintiff liable; and he proceeds with the rest of his judgment, to hold the defendant not liable, because the act of the horse was an extraordinary one, inasmuch as the injury to the plaintiff was caused by the horse having viciously kicked him, as a horse of ordinary temper would not have done; and that, taking that to be so, the plaintiff could not maintain the action, because he had not shewn that the defendant knew that the horse was subject to that infirmity of temper. Mr. Justice Willes dwelt on the distinction between animals of a fierce nature, and animals of a wild nature, which do not ordinarily do mischief like that in question; and proceeded to comment upon some of the earlier authorities, and the distinction made between animals in which a man has valuable property, and those in which he has not, expressing himself unable to concur in such distinction; concluding his judgment as follows:—"The important circumstance in this case is, that the act was not in accordance with the ordinary instinct of the animal, which was not shewn to be of a mischievous disposition. Does, then, the fact of the horse being in the highway make any difference? No doubt if the horse was trespassing there, the owner of the highway might have an action against the owner of the horse. So, possibly, the owner of the horse might be liable to an indictment for obstructing the highway, or to a fine. But that was not the cause of the mischief here. It comes round, therefore, to the question, whether the owner is liable for an act of this sort, done by an animal not naturally of a vicious character, and which is not found to have been accustomed to commit such mischief. I think the rule must be made absolute to enter a nonsuit." Neither Mr. Justice Williams nor Mr. Justice Willes took part in the decision of Lee v. Riley, which followed this case.

The one point in which all the judges were agreed in Cox v. Burbidge was, that the defendant could only be made liable for the ordinary consequences of a horse straying abroad. And it would almost seem that the view the Court took of ordinary consequences was, that they must be confined to injuries to the soil, damage to corn, herbage, breaking fences, and other damage of the like nature, which an animal mansuetæ naturæ might be expected to commit, and for which the owner of the soil would have a right to recover; but that for any act of ferocity, the vicious habit and the scienter must be proved before the owner could be held liable. If this view were the view, and had been adhered to in both the cases referred to, both would have had the same result, and would have stood consistently on the same grounds, and a well defined boundary line of liability would have been drawn. But once let in any act of a vicious character, such as fighting or killing another horse, or kicking a child, and the difficulty at once springs up, how to make out any satisfactory legal distinction between such acts. The two decisions referred to both rest on the doctrine of ordinary consequences. It is true, that in Lee v. Riley there was a trespass on the land of the plaintiff to whom the horse that was injured belonged; but this would not have given any right of action for the injury complained of, unless it had been held that the kicking and destroying of one horse by the other was an ordinary consequence of the trespass committed. And the governing point in Lee v. Riley was, that it was an ordinary consequence that one horse should kick and destroy the horse of the owner of the field into which it had trespassed, just as much as the governing point in Cox v. Burbidge was, that it was not an ordinary consequence of the horse straying on the highway that it should kick and severely injure a child there. The two cases can only coexist as authorities by a contrast and comparison of consequences; and this shews the difficulty that is encountered when the boundary line adverted to is once passed, and the exposition by the learned judges of the habits of horses, can be met by observations such as these. Horses are constantly taken into agistment, and put with other horses, without any fear of the consequences, unless a horse has some particular vice or tendency which renders it unsafe with others. That horses are naturally gentle, and like company. That, on the other hand, a horse straying on the high road, and enjoying his liberty there, is more disposed to kick if approached too closely than on most other occasions; and that passengers on the road generally take care to avoid him—an exercise of caution not to be expected from a child five years old. We would be understood by this as endeavouring to shew on what uncertain grounds any effort to distinguish between one act of ferocity and another must necessarily rest, and that the distinctions made by the two cases referred to present no certain bounds, and no safe rule for future guidance.

In conclusion, we would observe, that, assuming that the decision of Lee v. Riley is adhered to, as consistent with Cox v. Burbidge, still, as precisely the same facts rarely ever occur twice, the probability is, that in every case that may hereafter arise, as to trespasses committed by animals mansuetæ naturæ, left at large or straying abroad, the question, whether the particular injury complained of is or is not an ordinary consequence of the trespass, will be an open one, to be dealt with according to the particular facts of each case.

DAYS OF GRACE ON PROMISSORY NOTES.

It is the custom of the judges of the common-law courts to be tolerably facile in granting rules nisi, whenever prima facie meritorious and fairly arguable cases are submitted for their consideration. At the same time it is their duty firmly to discountenance all attempts to set up objections which have been distinctly overruled on former occasions, or are clearly untenable in principle, and are, therefore, vexatious and frivolous. These remarks are suggested by a motion made in the Court of Exchequer on the 3rd November, in the case of Miller v. Biddell and Another. It was an action upon a promissory note, tried before the Recorder of London, in the Lord Mayor's Court, when a verdict was entered for the defendants, with leave to the plaintiff to move to enter a verdict for him, on the ground that, as the note was not payable to bearer or to order, but simply promised to pay a sum of money by instalments to the plaintiff, it was not a negotiable instrument, and it was not open to the defendants to claim the three days of grace allowed in the case of promissory notes as in the case of bills of exchange, since the passing of the statute 3 & 4 Ann. c. 9. The note in question was payable by instalments, and if the first instalment were not paid on the day named in the note, the defendants were to pay the whole sum at once. It appears that the first instalment was tendered within three days after it became due, but was refused by the plaintiff; and the question to be decided was, whether such tender was a good legal tender. The Court thought that there was room for argument, and granted the rule.

It is settled by the case of Oridge v. Sherborne (11 M. & W. 374) and other authorities, that the maker of a negotiable promissory note, payable by instalments, is entitled to the three days' grace, upon the falling due of each instalment, and the only question in the case under consideration was, whether the maker of a promissory note can claim the three days' grace if the note is not negotiable.

Now, it has certainly been the universal custom of merchants to allow the days of grace to promissory notes which are not transferable by indorsement or delivery; and it has also been laid down, without qualification, by learned text-writers, that promissory notes, as well as bills of exchange, are allowed the days of grace.

Thus, in Bayley on Bills, 244, 5th ed., "a bill or note, purporting to be payable within a limited time after a certain event, or on a given future day, or at sight, is not, in fact, payable until two days after the expiration of that time; nor, unless the third day be a day of public rest, until three." So, in Smith's Merc. Law, 246, 7th ed., "a bill or note, importing in its terms to be payable within a limited time after a certain event, e. g. after sight, or on a particular day, or at sight, is not really payable till three days afterwards, unless the third day be a day of public rest," &c. Again: in Byles on Bills, 191, 8th ed., "days of grace are allowed on promissory notes as well as on bills. They are allowed, whether the bill or note be made payable on a certain event, or at a certain day, or at a certain number of years, months, weeks, or days after date, or after sight, or at usance, or by instalments."

Having, so far, had the benefit of the leading text-writers on the subject, we will now refer to one or two of the principal cases which establish, that promissory notes made payable to A. B. (without the words or "to bearer" or "to order") are within the stat. 3 & 4 Ann. c. 9. There is a case on this subject so far back as 1728, namely, Burchell, Administrator of William Burchell, v. Blocock (2 Ld. Raym. 1545). There, the defendant and one Thomas Williford, on the 24th March, 1725, "federunt quendam notam suam in scriptis vocatam, 'a promissory note,' manibus suis propriis adiude subscriptis;" by which note the said makers, "conjunctim et divisim promiserunt solvere, to the said William Burchell, 1011. 12s., in three months after the date of the said note, 'valore recepto, ratione quorum quidem promissorum, necnon vigore statuti,' &c. To this the defendant demurred, and shewed for cause, that the note set out was not a promissory note within the statute. But the Court held it clearly to be a promissory note, within the stat. 3 & 4 Ann. c. 9, and gave judgment accordingly for the plaintiff. Again: in the case of Erskin v. Harraden (4 T. R. 148), the Court of Queen's Bench decided, that the stat. 3 & 4 Ann. c. 9, placed promissory notes on the same footing as bills of exchange; and Lord Kenyon, in the course of an elaborate judgment, said, "that the operative part of the statute of Anne proceeds to say, that the holders may maintain actions on promissory notes, in such manner as they might upon inland bills of exchange; in short, they were wholly to assume the shape of inland bills of exchange;" and Ashurst, J., said, "I confess it is a matter of astonishment to me that this question could ever have admitted a doubt, since the statute of Anne, which was passed in order to put promissory notes on the same footing with bills of exchange in all respects." And Grose, J., gave his judgment to a similar effect. Lastly, in the case of Smith v. Kendall, Executor of Askew (6 T. R. 123; 1 Esp. 230), the note was as follows:—"Three months after date I promise to pay Mr. Smith, currier, 40*l.*, value received, in trust for Mrs. E. Thompson; as witness my hand, L. Askew, 25th June, 1787."

Lord Kenyon, in the course of his judgment said, "It was decided in a case in Lord Raymond" (Burchell v. Blocock, 2 Ld. Raym. 1545, above cited), "on demurrer, that a note payable to B, without adding 'or to his order or to bearer,' was a legal note within the act of Parliament (3 & 4 Ann. c. 9). It is also said in Marins, that a note may be made payable either to A. or bearer, A. or order, or to A. only. In addition to these authorities, I have made inquiries among different merchants respecting the practice in allowing the three days' grace; the result of which is, that the Bank of England and the merchants in London allow the three days' grace on notes like the present. The opinion of merchants, indeed, would not govern this Court in a question of law; but I am glad to find that the practice of the commercial world coincides with the decision of a court of law. Therefore, I think that it would be dangerous now to shake that practice (which is warranted by a solemn decision of this Court) by any speculative reasoning upon the subject."

Here we have a distinct and solemn decision on the very point which is now treated as open to discussion, and a decision which, down to the present time, has uniformly governed the opinion of lawyers, and the usage of the mercantile community; and it might have been expected that the Court, instead of granting a rule nisi, would have made some forcible observations on the impropriety of bringing an action which could be expected to be fruitful only to the attorneys and counsel engaged in it. No one can entertain any doubt as to the ultimate result; but there was a time when the Court of Exchequer felt itself strong enough to dispose of speculative actions and speculative objections, without assistance, in a very summary manner.

As the Court of Exchequer thinks this subject worthy of argument, no apology need be offered to our readers for discussing it here.

THE COUNCIL OF LAW REPORTING.

IN order to make intelligible the following remarks on the proceedings of the Council of Law Reporting, we must reprint the material provisions of the scheme of reporting recommended by the Bar Committee, and adopted at the meeting of the Bar, held on the 28th November, 1864:—

"1. The reports recommended by this committee shall be placed under the general management and control of a council composed of members to be appointed as follows:—Two by Lincoln's Inn; two by the Middle Temple; two by the Inner Temple; one by Gray's Inn; one by Serjeant's Inn; and two by the Incorporated Law Society; and in the event hereinafter mentioned, two more to be appointed by the Lord Chancellor. The council shall include also the Attorney and Solicitor General and the Queen's Advocate for the time being as ex officio members.

"4. It is desirable that the council be incorporated by act of Parliament or charter. The council shall have the assistance of a paid secretary, and the Inns of Court shall be requested to guarantee the payment of such secretary's salary, and the office and other expenses of the council (not exceeding together 500*l.* per annum), in the proportions following; viz.—

Lincoln's Inn . . .	Two-sevenths.
Inner Temple . . .	Two-sevenths.
Middle Temple . . .	Two-sevenths.
Gray's Inn . . .	One-seventh.

"7. The Common Law and Equity Reports shall be published in monthly parts respectively, and the Appellate Reports as often as shall be found convenient. The November parts shall comprise, as far as practicable, every decision not before reported up to the rising of the Courts for the long vacation.

"8. The council shall have power, if they should find it desirable, to establish, in connexion with the permanent reports above mentioned, a weekly set of reports.

"9. The staff of editors and reporters, and their salaries, shall be as follows:—

Two editors, at 600 l. each . . .	£1,200
Reporters:—
2 House of Lords.
1 Privy Council.
3 Lord Chancellor and Lords Justices (including Bankruptcy and Lunacy).
2 Queen's Bench (including appeals therefrom to Exchequer Chamber).
8 . . at 500 l. each . . .	4,000
2 Rolls.
2 Vice-Chancellor Kindersley.
2 Vice-Chancellor Stuart.
2 Vice-Chancellor Wood.
2 Common Pleas (including appeals therefrom to Exchequer Chamber).
2 Exchequer do. do.
12 . . at 400 l. each . . .	4,800
1 Crown Cases Reserved . . .	100
1 Admiralty and Ecclesiastical . . .	100
2 Probate and Matrimonial, at 250 l. each . . .	500

2) £10,700

First moiety (see rule 10) . . . £5,350

"10. One moiety of these salaries (hereinafter referred to as the 'first moiety') shall be paid, in all events, by equal quarterly payments to the editors and reporters; and the other, or 'second moiety,' at the end of each year out of the profits of that year, so far as the same may be sufficient for that purpose: provided that the salaries or emoluments received by the House of Lords reporters from the House shall be brought into account, and taken in part payment of the salaries hereinbefore provided for them.

"11. The editors and reporters shall be barristers, and shall be appointed and removable by the council; but the appointment of the reporters in each court shall be subject to the approval of the chief or presiding judge.

"12. The existing authorised reporters shall have the offer of the first appointments in their respective courts, and in other appointments of reporters a preference may, if the council think fit, be given to the reporters of any publication which may be discontinued in consequence of the issue of the reports recommended by the committee.

"15. Subject to rule 11, the editors and reporters shall be appointed for a term of five years, and they shall be eligible for reappointment; but this limit of time shall not extend to such of the present authorised reporters as may accept appointments as reporters under this scheme.

"20. The profession shall be invited to subscribe to the reports at the following scale of prices, payable in advance, viz.—

	Per Annum.
For the entire set . . .	£5 5 0
For the common-law series . . .	3 3 0
For the equity series . . .	3 3 0
For the appellate series . . .	2 2 0

and for any sub-divisions which the council may think fit to make, at such prices as the council shall determine.

"21. Such invitations shall contain an announcement that it is considered essential for carrying out the scheme that the aggregate amount of subscriptions, inclusive of any advance from the Consolidated or Sutors' Fund, in respect of the first moiety of the salaries or otherwise, shall reach 10,000*l.* at the least.

"22. If such subscriptions, inclusive as aforesaid, shall fall short of 10,000*l.*, the subscription list may be cancelled, and fresh invitations issued for subscriptions at increased prices, not exceeding double the above scale.

"23. The prices to non-subscribers shall be one-third more than those charged to subscribers.

"25. Authority shall, if possible, be obtained for the payment out of the Consolidated or the Sutors' Fund of the first moiety of the salaries of the editors and reporters, the same to be repaid out of the price of the copies supplied to the Government, and, so far as that may be insufficient, out of the proceeds of the sale of the reports as hereinafter mentioned. In case such authority is obtained, the Lord Chancellor shall have the appointment of two additional members of the council, as mentioned in rule 1.

"26. The council shall have the power to make such arrangements as will lead to the discontinuance of any set of existing reports, and for discharging the consideration of the same by payments, during a limited period, out of profits, but not in priority to the payment directed to be made by articles 1, 2, 3, of rule 29.

"27. The council shall contract with one or more publishers or printers, who shall undertake all the trouble and risk of the publication, sale, and distribution of the reports, receive the subscriptions, pay all expenses, and account to the council quarterly; such accounts to be examined and audited by the council, with such assistance as they may require.

"28. In case payment of the first moiety of the salaries shall not be obtained out of the Consolidated or Sutors' Fund, it shall be made a term of the contract with the publishers or printers, that they shall pay such moiety by equal quarterly payments, and be reimbursed the same out of the proceeds of the sale of reports, as hereinafter mentioned.

"29. The proceeds of the sale of reports, and other profits therefrom, shall be applied as follows:—

1. In defraying the expenses of the publication, sale, and distribution, including the commission or other remuneration agreed to be given to the publishers or printers, and the first moiety of the salaries, if paid by them;
2. In payment or (if previously paid under the guarantee) in reimbursement to the Inns of Court of the secretary's salary, and other expenses of the council;
3. In making good to the Consolidated or Sutors' fund (if paid thereout) so much of the first moiety of the salaries of the editors and reporters as shall not be covered by the price of the copies of reports supplied to the Government;
4. In payment of the second moiety of the salaries of the editors and reporters; and of the consideration, if any, agreed to be given for the discontinuance of any existing reports, under rule 26, in such order and priority as the council shall have arranged:

Lastly. In augmenting the salaries of the editors and reporters, or such of them (if any) as the council shall consider proper to be augmented, or in constituting a reserve fund to meet future contingencies, or in such other way as the council in their discretion shall consider best calculated to improve the system of reporting.

"31. The accounts shall be audited yearly by an auditor to be appointed by the editors and reporters, and, subject to such audit, the council shall ascertain and settle the amount payable to the editors and reporters in respect of their salaries.

"32. The council shall prepare and publish annually a financial statement and report of the results of the working of the system."

The exact carrying out of the scheme has become impossible, by the refusal of Gray's Inn and Serjeant's Inn to appoint members of the council. The proportion of the guarantee of the council expenses, which was to have been contributed by Gray's Inn, have been more than made up by the guarantee of the Law Institution, to the extent of 125*l.* per annum.

The Government has refused to lend any assistance to the scheme.

The representatives of the Inns of Court and of the Incorporated Law Society, in conjunction with the Attorney-General, the Solicitor-General, and the Queen's Advocate, assuming (as we think, properly) to act on behalf of the profession as the council contemplated by the scheme, issued in March last a preliminary address to both branches of the profession, inviting subscriptions. On the 5th August the council announced that their series of reports would be commenced as from the first day of Michaelmas Term, 1865. They have since completed their staff of reporters, and have submitted to the judges an address requesting their approval of the reporters, and their assistance in carrying out the scheme. A copy of this address will be found at the end of these remarks. Four of the law publishers had previously sent to the council an address, which we also reprint. The judges of the Courts of Queen's Bench and Exchequer have, we understand, declined to make any alteration in their relations or behaviour to the reporters, regular and irregular; so that Messrs. Best and Smith in the Queen's Bench, and Messrs. Hurlstone and Coltman in the Exchequer, who have not come to an agreement with the council, will continue to be the recognised reporters of those courts, and the new reporters will have no further privileges than those already accorded to the gentlemen who report for the Law Journal, The Jurist, &c.

The Bar Committee scheme contemplates a subscription to the extent of 10,000*l.* per annum as a condition precedent to the commencement of operations. By the address of March subscriptions are invited on the footing of a minimum of 10,500*l.* It is understood that little more than half that amount has been subscribed. All that the council have said on the subject is contained in the following passage in their address to the judges;—"The council have invited subscriptions for that purpose, and obtained them to an amount which would have considerably exceeded 10,000*l.*, if the Government guarantee contemplated by that clause had been obtained;" and in the subsequent statement, that the subscriptions exceed the first moiety of the salaries, viz. 5350*l.* The Government guarantee contemplated was a guarantee to the full extent of the first moiety of the salaries.

The subscriptions are eked out by a guarantee, signed by members of the profession. "This fund," it is stated, "now reaches 2000*l.* per annum." We do not understand the statement. We have ourselves subscribed to the fund in question, but it was under the impression that we had signed for a fixed sum, not for an annual guarantee. There is, moreover, an obvious and essential difference between a guarantee subscription and the subscriptions of customers. Thus, we have at present subscriptions for value and guarantee subscriptions together, to an amount exceeding 7350*l.* per annum; and upon this, contrary to the express provisions of the scheme, they are about to commence operations, instead of cancelling the subscription list, and commencing anew on a higher scale of prices, as the 22nd clause requires them to do. They say, indeed, that "the printers have engaged to make up the full subscription to 10,000*l.*, and to look exclusively to the surplus subscriptions for payment of their charges for printing and paper." What making up the full subscription to 10,000*l.* means, we do not understand. By the 28th article, the publishers are to guarantee the first moiety of the salaries, and the subscriptions already exceed that amount. We think the committee would have been justified in thus departing from their instructions, if they had obtained the concurrence of all the regular reporters, or of all except Mr. Beavan, and the support of the principal law publishers, or, indeed, of any influential firm of law publishers. But they are now exposed to the formidable opposition of those able and experienced reporters, Messrs. Best and Smith, and Hurlstone and Coltman, and of the entire law publishing trade, who, we hear, are likely to promote the establishment of a combined series of regular and authorised reports in all the common-law courts.

The 11th clause of the scheme provides that the reporters shall be removable by the council. And Messrs. Best and Smith and Hurlstone and Coltman properly decline changing their present position for one dependent on the pleasure of the council. They have, we understand, offered to concede the power of dismissal with the approval of the judges or of the presiding judge of their respective courts; and they have even offered to refer the question in dispute to the arbitration of the judges. But the council reject both proposals, on the ground that they have no authority to depart from the terms of the scheme. This might have justified them in convening a meeting of the Bar to sanction the waiver of a condition which was, doubtless, never intended to apply to the present authorised reporters; but it is simply ridiculous on the part of a council, which is not the council contemplated by the scheme, and which is acting in direct defiance of one of the most important provisions in the scheme—a provision intended to guard against the very evil which the obstinacy of the council is now likely to occasion—in addition to the present number of competing reporters. We think in this dispute the council are entirely in the wrong. If the want of authority really weighs with them, it can be readily supplied by calling a meeting of the Bar for that special purpose.

The complaint of the law publishers is, that the terms which have been concluded with Messrs. Clowes were never offered to them, and that an arrangement has been made by which the trade in law reports, hitherto enjoyed by them, is intended to be given over to strangers. In this matter also, if our information is correct, the council appear to be in the wrong. It was clearly both their duty and their policy to interfere, with existing arrangements and vested interests as little as possible, and, in particular, to make every effort to conciliate and secure the co-operation of the booksellers. Instead of doing that, they made, as we are told, in an informal and indirect way, a proposal of terms wholly different from those given to Messrs. Clowes, and inadequate; thus effectually preventing the offer the want of which they now profess to regret.

In this exciting opposition, where they might have secured material support, the council appear to have acted unreasonably and unwisely; and if the present position of their undertaking is not very hopeful, the fault is not in the scheme so much as in their conduct of it.

To the Right Honourable and Honourable the LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR and the several JUDGES of Her Majesty's Courts of Law and Equity at Westminster, the following Address of the COUNCIL OF LAW REPORTING is respectfully submitted:—

THE Council of Law Reporting, as the judges are no doubt aware, owe their existence to a scheme for the amendment of the present system of law reporting, which was approved and adopted by the bar at a general meeting convened for the purpose by the Attorney-General, and held under his presidency on the 28th November, 1864.

The scheme itself was the result of the labours of a committee of barristers appointed at a meeting of the bar, convened and held under the same authority on the 2nd December, 1863, for the purpose of considering and preparing a plan for the amendment of the present system; and that system had, by a previous resolution of the same meeting, been pronounced to be unsatisfactory, and to require amendment.

The committee thus appointed consisted of twenty-two members of the bar—ten of them members of the inner bar, and twelve of the outer bar. Of the ten members of the inner bar, six, including the Queen's Advocate, represented the common-law bar, and the remaining four the equity bar. Of the twelve members of the outer bar, two represented the body of practising conveyancers, five the common-law bar, and five the equity bar. The professional position of the several members of the committee was such as to place its character beyond the reach of objection, or even cavil.

The meeting which appointed this committee was convened by the present Attorney-General, upon a requisition signed by 382 members of the bar, including, with only three exceptions, all the leaders of the Chancery Bar, and about twenty-five leaders of the Common-law Bar. And the meeting itself was attended by upwards of 700 members of the bar.

The scheme of amendment recommended by the committee, and afterwards approved by a general meeting of the bar, was the result of six months' assiduous and gratuitous labour on the part of the committee.

These facts are referred to for the purpose of shewing that the Council of Law Reporting has its origin in a deliberate and sustained effort of the bar to discover and carry into effect a remedy for a very great evil, involving much public mischief arising from the uncontrolled use of one of the important exclusive privileges of the bar, namely, the privilege of reporting the decisions of our superior courts of justice for citation as authority. The proceedings which followed originated and were conducted under the auspices of the Attorney-General, as the proper leader of the bar, and conducted throughout in a manner becoming their importance, and solely with the view of helping to accomplish a public object which has been long desired, but hitherto deemed impracticable.

The scheme, thus prepared and approved, contemplated the co-operation, in the Council of Law Reporting, of the four Inns of Court, Serjeants' Inn, and the Incorporated Law Society.

The benchers of Gray's Inn declined to co-operate, stating as their reason that they had not sufficient confidence in the scheme to give it their support.

Serjeants' Inn declined to send a member to the council, the judges, members of that inn, considering, as it is believed, that in the then stage of the matter it would not be desirable to adopt any proceeding which might be regarded as a premature interference on their part.

The other three Inns of Court and the Incorporated Law Society appointed members of the council, as proposed by the scheme; and these members, so appointed, with the concurrence of the Attorney-General, the Solicitor-General, and the Queen's Advocate, as ex officio members, have undertaken the duty of endeavouring to give effect to the public improvement contemplated by the scheme.

It is proposed that the reports shall be placed under the management and control of the council; that they shall be prepared by reporters, under the supervision of editors, all being barristers of reputation and experience; that they be published in monthly parts, with regularity and promptitude; and so that, as far as practicable, there be no arrears; and that the remuneration of the editors and reporters be by salaries, with provision for future increase to an amount, as it is hoped, commensurate with the value of their professional services, and so as to leave them no longer exposed to the risks, uncertainties, and exactions which have been found to be inherent in every system which makes law reporting a commercial adventure, involving a trade profit.

The council have been enabled to make financial arrangements for the establishment of the proposed reports, which place the interests of all those members of the bar, whose services will be engaged as editors and reporters, beyond the reach of any commercial risk.

For special reasons, the council feel it due to themselves, and right to the profession, to state the general nature of these financial arrangements. The council have always considered themselves bound to give effect to the provisions of the bar scheme, according to their true intent and meaning, with the view of accomplishing (if practicable) the prime object of the scheme, namely, the establishment of one complete set of reports under professional control. By the 21st clause of the scheme, it is contemplated that, for the establishment of the reports, a subscription of 10,000*l.* is essential. The council have invited subscriptions for that purpose, and obtained them to an amount which would have considerably exceeded 10,000*l.*, if the Government guarantee contemplated by that clause had been obtained. It was, however, found impossible to obtain that guarantee; and that being so, the council might, had they been so minded, under the terms of the 22nd clause, have cancelled the list, and abandoned all further proceedings; but with the full concurrence, or rather at the urgent request, of many members of the bar, they have not done so. They have resorted to the authority given to them by the 27th and 28th clauses of the scheme. And having, to their great regret, received no offer of assistance from any of the London law publishers, they have entered into arrangements with a firm of printers, of large capital, skill, and experience (Messrs. W. Clowes & Sons, of Duke-street, Stamford-street), under which the publication, sale, and distribution of the reports are undertaken, at the entire risk of the printers, for an agreed commission of moderate amount. The receipt of the subscriptions is retained by the council, in order that the moneys may be applied by them, and not the printers, to the payment to the editors and reporters of the first moiety of the salaries which by the scheme is proposed to be guaranteed. The sum already subscribed for exceeds the amount of this first moiety; but in order that there may be no risk or uncertainty whatever in this payment to the editors and reporters, a guarantee fund has been formed, by the voluntary subscription of members of the profession. This fund now reaches 2000*l.* per annum, and is exclusively devoted to the editors and reporters. It was first signed by the Attorney-General (Sir Roundell Palmer), afterwards by the Lord Justice Turner, Vice-Chancellor Kindersley, and Vice-Chancellor Wood; and after having been also signed by many leading members of the bar, has been since signed by the Lord Chancellor, for a larger amount than any other individual guarantee. The printers have engaged to make up the full subscription to 10,000*l.*, and to look exclusively to the surplus subscriptions for payment of their charges for printing and paper. These charges have been settled at fixed rates of moderate amount. These arrangements the council confidently represent as amply sufficient to place the establishment of the proposed reports upon a firm financial basis, and one perfectly satisfactory to the editors and reporters appointed.

Having thus completed their financial arrangements, the council, on the 1st August last, resolved that the proposed reports should commence upon the first day of Michaelmas Term next; and, in pursuance of that resolution, have selected the following gentlemen as editors and reporters, subject to the approval of the judges, as proposed by the bar scheme:—

Editor, Common Law.

J. R. Bulwer, Esq., Q. C.

Editor, Equity.

G. W. Hemming, Esq.

House of Lords.—English and Irish Appeals.

Charles Clark, Esq.

Scotch Appeals.

J. F. Macqueen, Esq.

Privy Council.—(This appointment is under consideration).

Courts of the Lord Chancellor and Lords Justices.

Cadman Jones, Esq., Martin Ware, Esq., and R. Horton Smith, Esq.

Court of Queen's Bench, including Appeals therefrom to Exchequer Chamber.

William Mills, Esq., and Henry Holroyd, Esq.

Court of the Master of the Rolls.

Charles Maret, Esq., J. H. Fordham, Esq., and James Stirling, Esq.

Court of the Vice-Chancellor Kindersley.

T. W. Gunning, Esq., and J. J. Smale, Esq.

Court of the Vice-Chancellor Stuart.

J. W. De Longueville Giffard, Esq., and T. F. Morse, Esq.

Court of the Vice-Chancellor Wood.

J. B. Davidson, Esq., F. G. A. Williams, Esq., and W. D. Griffiths, Esq.

Court of Common Pleas, including Appeals to Exchequer Chamber.

John Scott, Esq., and H. W. Bompas, Esq.

Court of Exchequer, including Appeals to Exchequer Chamber.

James Anstie, Esq., and Arthur Charles, Esq.

Crown Cases Reserved.

L. W. Cave, Esq., and Hon. E. Chandos Leigh.

Admiralty and Ecclesiastical.

W. Ernst Browning, Esq.

Probate, Matrimonial, and Divorce.

Dr. Tristram and R. Searle, Esq.

In the selection of these gentlemen, the council have been guided wholly and exclusively by the directions of the scheme, and the merits and fitness of the gentlemen chosen. The existing authorised reporters for the several courts have, therefore, been invariably preferred wherever they have consented to accept the appointment; and the council have every confidence in the ability and competence of all the selected, faithfully and satisfactorily to discharge their duties.

The council have to regret that, after every possible effort within the authority with which they are invested to secure the services of the present authorised reporters for the Courts of Queen's Bench, and Exchequer, and the Rolls Court, they have been unable to prevail upon those gentlemen to accept the appointment.

The judges will, no doubt, recognise the important result which will at once be realised from the acceptance of the appointments by so many of the authorised reporters, namely, the discontinuance, from the first day of Michaelmas Term next, of ten sets of reports, which have been hitherto published separately, each independently of the other, at irregular and sometimes long-protracted intervals, and at an immoderate cost.

The object of the bar scheme being the careful preparation of one complete set of reports, by the most able and experienced reporters, under independent professional control, to be published with expedition, regularity, and uniformity, and at the moderate cost of five guineas a year for the entire work, the council venture, on behalf of the profession, to present it to the judges as a matter of public interest and importance, and calculated to uphold the real interests of the bar, by subjecting the exercise of one of its most important privileges to those restrictions which the public good, the true consideration for the privilege, requires; to facilitate the administration of justice, by simplifying and purifying the sources of the law, and thus ultimately to lead to important amendments in the law itself.

For the furtherance of this object, and upon public grounds alone, the council, by this address, respectfully and earnestly request the sanction and support of the judges, for the following purposes:—

1. That the judges will approve of the appointment of the several gentlemen named as reporters to the several courts for which they have been selected.

2. That the judges will be pleased to permit the editors and reporters to have access to, and the use of, their written judgments, and all such papers as the judges can control; and will also, so far as convenient and agreeable to the judges themselves, revise their unwritten judgments before publication.

And 3dly. That the judges will recognise the editors and reporters, as members of the bar exercising a professional privilege for a public object, under responsibility, through the council, to the judges, the bar, and the profession at large.

By order of the Council,
(Signed) FITZROY KEELY,
Chairman.

The following Communication has been addressed to the Council for Law Reporting.

GENTLEMEN,—When some members of the Chancery bar first agitated the question of a New Series of Law Reports, to be based upon the ruin of all existing ones, and procured the appointment of a committee to inquire into the means by which the idea could be carried into effect, the law publishers were applied to, to furnish the necessary information. The statistics required by the secretary of the committee involved a statement of private business matters, which the law publishers did not think it expedient to render, the more especially as the avowed object of the inquiry implied the annihilation of a considerable portion of their incomes. The scheme at the time appeared too crude ever to ripen into success, wanting, as it seemed to do, the most material element—the countenance of the bench—feebly, if at all, supported by the common-law bar, and threatening merely to add another series to the already over-stocked market. The publishers, therefore, as prudent men of business, could not be expected to adopt or encourage an enterprise which seemed to be deficient in the elements of financial success. But even in its original crude form, and before the sanction of any of the judges or of the law reporters had been obtained, no distinct or formal proposition was made to the law publishers; and the terms which have been offered to a stranger to the business have never been submitted to them.

To the law publishers the profession owe the first publication of regular reports; their subsequent decline, arising from protracted appearance and lengthiness, must be placed to the credit of the reporters themselves. The unprofitable increase in the number of series is also due to the members of the profession, as the following statement will shew:—The Law Journal belongs to a select coterie of barristers; The Jurist was promoted and started by the late Sir John Jervis; the Law Times is the property of a barrister; the Solicitors' Journal was launched by a professional company; and the New Reports were commenced by the co-operation of a body of young barristers. With these preliminary observations, rendered necessary in order to absolve the law publishers from the imputation of having caused the existing evils, they beg respectfully to point out to the council the injustice which will be done by the announced system of publication, and to pray them to reconsider the effect and policy of their plans.

First, the council have withdrawn nearly all the regular reporters from their long-standing engagements with the law publishers, and induced them to terminate abruptly a connexion which has existed for very many years. These gentlemen are to form the staff of the New Reports.

Secondly, the council have made arrangements with a printer, totally ignorant of, and unconnected with, the law trade, for printing and issuing direct to the subscribers the New Reports, upon terms which must utterly exclude the law publishers, and all others, from the usual trade allowance, but which may not necessarily secure a corresponding economy in the expenses of printing and publishing the reports.

The first of these measures does not shew a very close regard for existing interests, as the law publishers, who are the only parties prejudicially affected, are utterly lost sight of; but it is different with the second measure—from that (if the scheme succeeds), a wider injustice is impending. The retailers' profit is an institution of great antiquity; in the law trade it is older than the Year Books, and has always been respected by monopolist as well as freetrader. From the Statutes at Large down to the penny papers, the dealer has always been allowed his profit; and the law publishers cannot think it politic on the part of the council, to shut out the whole trading community in favour of one house, and thus create a feeling of antagonism, which may prove fatal to their undertaking, and it certainly is not acting with that due regard to existing interests which is promised in their circular.

The law publishers have long felt the objections to the existing system of reporting, and many years ago they sent a deputation to the late Lord Campbell, with a view to obtain the concurrence of the judges in some scheme for its amendment; but they received no encouragement. On another occasion, they attempted to effect a combination of the regular reporters; and they think they are not well used in being passed over, when some of the obstacles to success have been removed.

The publishers whose names are appended to this address respectfully submit, that they are willing to become, as a united body, the publishers of the New Law Reports upon fair and equitable terms, open to arrangement; and they propose, as no contemptible element of success in establishing the scheme, to place all the powers of their respective establishments, long accustomed to the trade, in the colonies, in the country, and in town, at the service of the council, for securing the widest possible circulation for the new publication, and discouraging whatever opposition may exist now and hereafter.

WM. MAXWELL, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

RICHARD STEVENS & SONS, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

HENRY SWEET, 3, Chancery-lane.

H. BUTTERWORTH & Co., 7, Fleet-street.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR THE PROMOTION OF SOCIAL SCIENCE, AND THE SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING THE AMENDMENT OF THE LAW.—The opening meeting of the Department of Jurisprudence and Amendment of the Law will be held at 1, Adam-street, Adelphi, on Monday next, the 13th instant. An address will be delivered by Mr. G. W. Hastings, General Secretary of the Association. The chair will be taken at eight o'clock, P.M.

CAUSES ENTERED AFTER THE FOURTH DAY OF MICHAELMAS TERM.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

NEW TRIALS.

Midd.—Springett v. Balls	Surrey—Jeffs v. Day
— Filtham v. England	Derby — Brough v. Lord
Lond.—London, Brighton, & South Coast Railway Co. v. Williams	Scarredale
— Sandeman & ora. v. Scurr & ora.	Carmarthen—Williams & ora. v. Evans
— Cleveland Iron Co. (Li- mited) v. Stephenson	Cambridge—Kemp v. Wad- dingham & an.
— Morgan v. Chetwynd	Newcastle—Henderson & ora. v. Whitfield
— Hibbs v. Ross	Lancaster — Bainbridge v. Dobson
— Double v. Reynell	Manchester—Micklenberg v. Gloyer
— Strong v. Berry	— Kelly v. Sherlock
— Nash v. Hay	Liverpool—Bates v. Hewitt
Surrey—Castrique v. Fraisse	— Lunt v. London & North- western Railway Co.
— County Gas Co. v. Mare
— Chambers v. Reid

CROWN PAPER.

Durham	Overseers of Hilton and Wakefield, Apprs., Overseers, &c. of the Township of Bowes, Resps.
Derbyshire	Reg. v. Guardians of Glossop Union.
Essex	Flowers, App., Raine, Resp.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

DEMURRER PAPER.

Wednesday, Nov. 15.	Great Western Railway Co., Apprs., Redmayne, Resp. (Ap. from County Court)
Anglo African Co. (Limited) v. Lamzed & ora. (D.)	Skellett v. Fletcher (D.)
Ray & an. v. Wheeler & an. (Sp. C. by order)
Albert, App., Pritchard, Resp. (Ap. from Justices)	Friday, Nov. 17.
Great Western Railway Co., Apprs., Willis, Resp. (Ap. from County Court)	Garrett v. Davis
	Union Marine Insurance Co. v. Martin (Sp. C. by order).

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

NEW TRIALS.

Ryder v. Hads (D.)	Ball v. Nash (D.)
Kershaw v. Oldham (Ap. from County Court)	Gordon & an. v. Vestry of St. James, Westminster (Sp. C. by order)
Smith v. Grandridge (Ap. from County Court)	Johnson v. Barrett (D.)
Lowe v. Howarth (D.)	Poole v. Bradshaw (D.)
Savin v. Hoylelake Railway Co. (D.)	Chapman v. Hardy (D.)
Stanger & an. v. Miller (D.)	Lucas v. Newman (D.)

Days appointed for Errors and Appeals after Michaelmas
Term, 1865.

QUEEN'S BENCH.

Monday Nov. 27 | Tuesday Nov. 28

COMMON PLEAS.

Monday Nov. 29.

EXCHEQUER.

Thursday Nov. 30 | Friday Dec. 1

THE LATE MR. JUSTICE CROMPTON.—For several reasons, it would be almost a matter of regret if the name of the deceased judge were to be allowed to pass away without any further notice of his character and career. It was a name not unknown in the law, and it is a curious thing how certain well-known names have from the most ancient times reappeared in our legal history. One may meet, for instance, the names of Erle, Wilde, Martin, and Willes again and again in our law reports, even back to the age of the Year-Books. The name of Crompton, perhaps, does not go back so far as that, but it became associated with legal learning at least as long ago as the middle of the last century—that is, a hundred years ago—by means of "Crompton's Practice"—a book of profound legal erudition, the basis of all subsequent works on the subject; and written, we believe, by an ancestor of the deceased judge. The judge himself had been known in Westminster Hall for forty years. More than thirty years ago he had already distinguished himself by a series of law reports, in which he was associated with the late Sir John Jervis and the late learned Mr. Roscoe. He soon, however, got into such large practice as a pleader and consulting counsel that he had to give up reporting. He was not only a learned lawyer, but a man of sound sense and judgment, and his professional assistance and advice were always highly valued. He had not those more showy qualities which fit a man for forensic triumphs, and so he never had a silk gown. But although he was never Queen's counsel, he was constantly engaged as counsel for the Crown; and for a long course of years his legal reputation was equal to that of any man at the bar. He belonged to the same class of practitioners as Wightman, Cowling, and Williams, men remarkable for legal knowledge and for sound judgment, rather than for brilliant abilities. They had abilities, but such as rather suited them for counsel than for advocacy; and, in short, were more judicial than forensic. For this very reason they were deemed fit men to be made judges; and so many of them, and among these Mr. Crompton, were elevated to the bench by Chancellors who had the sense to see and to value their high judicial qualities. It is to the credit of the present Lord Chancellor that so many of the judges of his appointment (indeed, we believe, with scarcely an exception, all of them), have been of this class. And so it was with the Chancellor who appointed the subject of this notice. Mr. Justice Crompton was appointed to the Queen's Bench some fifteen years ago, and sat there, we believe, some time with Lord Denman, and during the whole time Lord Campbell was Lord Chief Justice, and since then under the presidency of Sir A. Cockburn. His colleagues comprised some of the best judges we have ever had—Erle, Wightman, Coleridge, Blackburn, and Hill—all men of eminence, ability, and of great learning and experience, and it is of itself sufficient proof of Mr. Justice Crompton's judicial ability, that by all of them he was most highly respected, and that among such eminent judges his judicial authority was very highly regarded. After Sir A. Cockburn's elevation to the office of Lord Chief Justice, the deceased judge for some time previous to his death filled the important position of senior puisne judge, and in that position he was looked up to both by his colleagues and the Bar as a main pillar of the court. The chief and his colleagues always paid the greatest respect to his opinion, and his judgments were some of the best that were delivered. "They were singularly full of matter and of meaning; and were almost always delivered off-hand, for the deceased judge rarely wrote out his judgments; and there were none which had more matter in them." He was comparatively careless as to style and form of expression, but he was terse, idiomatic, and vigorous in his language, and often very happy in his illustrations. He was in his character eminently real and genuine; and as, in his own nature he was utterly free from all affectation, formality, and conventionality, and was thoroughly natural and sensible, so he was an enemy to all self display or unreality in others, and was apt to be a little curt and caustic to those who shared anything of it; and he could be at times crabbed in his manner and severely sarcastic in his tone. But even when he was crabbed there was a dash of quaint humour which made it more amusing than annoying; and the Bar were so well aware of the sound qualities of the judge, and the genuine and genial qualities of the man, that these little traits did not at all detract from the general respect and regard which they entertained for him. He was a lawyer of the old school; a little tenacious of forms, and a little averse to innovations, even although proposed as improvements; and he would at times indulge in some amusing sarcasms on modern changes in our system of justice; but he had so much sound sense and such good practical judgment, and such thorough mastery of legal principles, that he hardly ever was wrong in the result; and probably there are few judges whose rulings were less often reversed. He was, however, so cautious, that he would never rule anything if he could avoid it, and was a little adroit in evading the necessity of doing so. When, however, compelled to consider and decide, there was no judge more likely to be right. His distinguishing qualities were a certain union of shrewd good sense with dry humour and genial feeling. These qualities, especially the latter, made him warmly beloved by all who knew him; and as of course all the judges and most of the leading men at the Bar were personally acquainted with him, his death was more deeply regretted, and his loss more deeply deplored in the Profession than in any other instance that has occurred for a long period. Hence the unusual honour paid to his memory by the judges attending his funeral, and adjourning their Courts for the purpose—an honour, we believe, without precedent within living memory. Perhaps the best tribute that could be paid to his memory would be conveyed in those familiar and affectionate words in which his brother judges were in the habit of speaking of him, and which most significantly expressed the affection and esteem they felt for him: "Dear old Charley Crompton." Men do not thus speak of others whom they do not dearly love; and the love of a body of men, such as our judges happily are, is of itself the highest eulogy, and the most precious tribute to his memory.

W. F. F.

JOSHUA WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY.

Just published, the Seventh Edition, in 1 vol. 8vo., price 20s. cloth.
PRINCIPLES OF THE LAW OF REAL PROPERTY,
intended as a first Book for the Use of Students in Conveyancing.
By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, one of her Majesty's Counsel.

Henry Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, London.

DAY'S COMMON-LAW PRACTICE.

The Second Edition, recently published.

THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACTS OF 1852, 1854, and 1860. With an Introduction, explanatory of the recent Changes, Notes, Forms of Pleading, and a copious Index. By J. C. F. S. DAY, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 1 vol. royal 12mo. Price 15s. cloth boards.

This Work comprises a carefully-revised Edition of Mr. Kerr's Procedure Acts of 1852 and 1854, the Cases that have been decided since the publication of these Works being added; the Bills of Exchange Act of 1855, and the Decisions upon it; those portions of the Interpleader Act and Mercantile Law Amendment Act which relate to the Procedure thereon in Court or at Chambers, and all the New Rules: thus constituting a complete Practice of the Superior Courts of Common Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

MAUDE & POLLOCK'S LAW OF SHIPPING.

A COMPENDIUM OF THE LAW OF MERCHANT SHIPPING. With an Appendix, containing all the Statutes and Forms of Practical Utility. By FREDERIC PHILIP MAUDE and CHARLES EDWARD POLLOCK, Esqrs., of the Inner Temple, Barristers at Law. The Third Edition, including the Statutes and Decisions to the present time. Royal 8vo., price 1l. 14s. cloth.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

HAYES'S CONCISE CONVEYANCER.

THE CONCISE CONVEYANCER, or SHORT PRECEDENTS OF CONVEYANCES. With Practical Remarks, and Summary of the Stamp Laws relating to Conveyances. By WILLIAM HAYES, Esq., Barrister at Law, one of the Six Conveyancing Counsel of the High Court of Chancery. The Second Edition, with considerable Additions; including a Chapter on Composition Deeds, under the New Bankrupt Act. By W. B. COLTMAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. Royal 12mo., price 18s.

* * The present Edition contains Conveyances on Sales, Mortgages, Leases, Settlements, and a variety of Miscellaneous Instruments, but no "Wills," as the work is intended to be a companion volume to the well-known work by Hayes & Jarman of Concise Forms and Wills.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.
68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q.C.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.

Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office.
C. B. CLABON, Sec.

LAW UNION FIRE and LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Chief Offices—126, Chancery-lane, W.C.

Subscribed Capital—ONE MILLION STERLING.

The Fire and Life Departments are under one Management, but with separate Funds and Accounts.

Chairman—Sir WILLIAM FOSTER, Bart.

Deputy-Chairman—Mr. Sergeant MANNING, Q.A.S.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Subscribed Capital, £750,000, in addition to the Reserve Fund.

Business consists of the best classes of risks.

Insurers will be allowed the full benefit of the Reduction of Duty.

Claims settled promptly and liberally.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Subscribed Capital £250,000, in addition to the Reserve Fund.

PREMIUMS MODERATE.

A Bonus every five years. Next Bonus in 1869. At the Division of Profits in 1864, the Reversionary Bonus amounted to from 15 to 50 per cent. per annum on the Premiums paid, varying with the ages of the Insured.

Copies of the Directors' Report and Balance-sheet, and every information, may be obtained at the Chief Office, or of any of the Agents of the Company.
FRANK MCGEDY, Secretary.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS atPATRIDGE & COZENS,

WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS in PARCHMENT.

192, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E. C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 30s.

PATRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bona fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual RETAIL charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.

Draft Paper, 6s., 7s., 9s., and 9s. per ream.

Brief Paper, 13s. 6d., 16s., and 18s. 6d. per ream.

Foolscap Paper, 10s. 6d., 13s. 6d., and 17s. 6d. per ream.

Cream Laid Note, 3s., 4s., and 5s. per ream.

Large Cream Laid Note, 4s., 6s., and 7s. 6d. per ream.

Large Blue Note, 3s., 4s., and 6s. per ream.

Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2s. 9d., 3s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. per 1000.

Foolscap Official Envelopes, 1s. 6d. per 100, or 13s. 6d. per 1000.

Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, Piercers, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25s.; Good Stand for ditto with two Drawers, 17s.

Parchment, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1s. 8d. each, 19s. per dozen, or 90s. per roll.

Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1s. 6d. each, 17s. per dozen, or 80s. per roll.

Records or Memorials, Ruled, 6d. each, 5s. 6d. per dozen, or 25s. per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inkstands; Postage Scales; Writing-cases; Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post-free.

PATRIDGE & COZENS, 192, Fleet-street, E. C.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the OFFICE, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, November 11, 1865.

The Jurist

No. 567, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.
No. 1506, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

NOVEMBER 18, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

SOLICITORS requiring Clerks should apply to ABBOTT, BARTON, & CO., Advertisement Contractors, 203, Strand, W.C., who have opened a FREE Register for Employers and Clerks. "Sittings Papers," "Circuit Papers," and Almanack for 1866, free for postage.

An entirely new List of London and Provincial Newspapers, in tabular form, 1s., giving the Counties, Towns, and Days of Publication, with Political Opinions, and price of each.

ABBOTT, BARTON, & Co., Advertising Office, 203, Strand.

TO TRUSTEES, CAPITALISTS, AND OTHERS.

—Well-secured FREEHOLD and LEASEHOLD GROUND-RENTS.—For SALE, FREEHOLD GROUND-RENTS, amounting to 220l. 15s. per annum, amply secured upon 43 well-built Houses at Dalston, producing a rack-rental of about 1200l. per annum. LEASEHOLD GROUND-RENTS, amounting to about 690l. per annum, amply secured upon 129 Houses and Shops near Shoreditch Church, producing a rack-rental of nearly 4000l. per annum.

For price, and further particulars, apply to Mr. G. CLARKSON, 33, Great James-street, Bedford-row, W.C.

BROWNING'S DIVORCE PRACTICE.

THE PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE of the COURT FOR DIVORCE and MATRIMONIAL CAUSES. With Forms of Pleadings; the Act, Rules, and Orders; Tables of Fees, and Bills of Costs. By ERNEST BROWNING, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

DAVIS'S COUNTY COURTS—EQUITABLE JURISDICTION.

This day is published, royal 12mo., 6s. cloth.

THE COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION ACT (23 & 25 Vict. c. 99): with the Orders and Rules for regulating the Practice of the Courts, and the Forms and Costs of Proceedings. With Notes and Introductory Chapters. By JAMES EDWARD DAVIS, Esq., Barrister at Law.

London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

DAVIS'S COUNTY COURTS—PRACTICE AND EVIDENCE.

Third Edition.

Just published, one thick vol., royal 12mo., 28s. cloth.

A MANUAL OF THE PRACTICE AND EVIDENCE in ACTIONS and other PROCEEDINGS in the COUNTY COURTS, including the Practice in Bankruptcy. With an Appendix of Statutes and Rules. By JAMES EDWARD DAVIS, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law. Third Edition, considerably enlarged.

London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

LEWIS'S EQUITY DRAFTING.

Just published, post 8vo., 12s. cloth.

PRINCIPLES OF EQUITY DRAFTING. With an Appendix of Forms. By HUBERT LEWIS, B.A., of the Middle Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law, Author of "Principles of Conveyancing Explained and Illustrated."

This Work, intended to explain the general principles of equity drafting, as well as to exemplify the pleadings of the Court of Chancery, will, it is hoped, be useful to lawyers resorting to the new equity jurisdiction of the county courts.

London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

HUNTER'S SUIT IN EQUITY.—Third Edition.

Just published, post 8vo., 3s. cloth.

AN ELEMENTARY VIEW OF THE PROCEEDINGS IN A SUIT IN EQUITY. With an Appendix of Forms. By SYLVESTER J. HUNTER, B.A., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law. Third Edition. By G. W. LAWRENCE, M.A., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

DREWRY'S EQUITY PLEADER.

12mo., 6s. boards.

A CONCISE TREATISE on the PRINCIPLES OF EQUITY PLEADING. With Precedents. By G. STEWART DREWRY, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

THE SOLICITOR'S JOURNAL of THIS DAY contains the QUESTIONS and ANSWERS of THIS TERM'S FINAL EXAMINATION. Price 6d.—Office, 59, Carey-street, W.C.

No. 567, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

This day is published, NOTANDA, No. VI for 1865, price 1s. 6d. plain; 2s. adhesive. No. VII will be published the First Week in December. Yearly subscription 14s. The two back years of the Digest are supplied to Subscribers of this year at 1l. 1s. Post-office orders to be made payable to THOMAS DART, and crossed "London and Westminster Bank."—T. F. A. Day, 13, Carey-street, London, W.C.

In 2 vols. Third Edition, 40s. cloth, pp. 1732.

DEACONS LAW and PRACTICE of BANKRUPTCY. By A. G. LANGLEY, Esq., Barrister at Law. This work contains upwards of Four Thousand Cases, the Statutes, General Orders, Forms in Bankruptcy, and the County Court Bankruptcy Orders, 1863.

London: Shaw & Sons, Fetter-lane.

600 Vols. of LAW BOOKS, and a MISCELLANEOUS LIBRARY of 800 Vols.

MESSERS. HAMMOND & ELOART will SELL by AUCTION, at their Rooms, 28, Chancery-lane, on THURSDAY, Nov. 23, at 12, a LAW LIBRARY, comprising most of the best Reports in Equity, Common Law, &c.; a Collection of the best Works of Reference and Practice. Also a Miscellaneous Library, comprising Works on History, Travels, Theology, Botany, &c., numerous Novels, and a quantity of Music.

On view on Wednesday.

FREDERICK CHIFFERIEL,

ESTABLISHED 1819,

Lab., Parliamentary, and Public Companies' Stationer, PRINTER AND LITHOGRAPHER,

34 to 37, CURSITOR-STREET, AND
1 to 6, CHURCH-PASSAGE, CHANCERY-LANE, E.C.

PARLIAMENTARY PLANS, SECTIONS, AND BOOKS OF REFERENCE LITHOGRAPHED WITH EXPEDITION.

Parliamentary Bills, Notices, Books of Reference, and every description of Printing, executed with the utmost despatch. Each Branch executed on the Premises.

A large and efficient Staff in each Department.

THE PROFESSION MAY SAVE SIX SHILLINGS IN THE POUND by purchasing their OFFICE PAPERS at

PARTRIDGE & COZENS,

WHOLESALE STATIONERS, ACCOUNT BOOK MAKERS, and DEALERS IN PARCHEMENT.

102, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, London, E.C.

Carriage paid to the Country on Orders exceeding 20s.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, as well as being bona fide Manufacturers of many of the best qualities of Writing Papers, are the Sole Agents in London for some of the Largest Paper Makers in the Kingdom, therefore beg to impress upon their patrons the advantages they are enabled to offer them (unattainable by other houses), viz. supplying the public with "papers direct from the mills" at one profit only—being at least 30 per cent. under the usual market charges—as the intermediate profit is saved to the purchaser.

Draft Paper, 6s., 7s., 7s. 6d., and 8s. per ream.

Brief Paper, 13s. 6d., 16s., and 18s. 6d. per ream.

Tealcap Paper, 10s. 6d., 12s. 6d., and 17s. 6d. per ream.

Cream Laid Note, 3s., 4s., and 5s. per ream.

Large Cream Laid Note, 4s., 6s., and 7s. 6d. per ream.

Large Blue Note, 3s., 4s., and 6s. per ream.

Envelopes, Cream, Blue, or Buff, 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. per 1000.

Postpaid Official Envelopes, 1s. 6d. per 100, or 12s. 6d. per 1000.

Blottings, Browns, Cartridges, Tapes, Piercers, Runners, &c.

Letter Copying Press (warranted), 25s.; Good Stand for ditto with two Drawers, 17s.

Parliament, best Quality.

Indenture Skins, Printed and Machine-ruled to hold twenty or thirty folios, 1s. 6d. each; 10s. per dozen, or 90s. per roll.

Seconds or Followers, Ruled, 1s. 6d. each, 17s. per dozen, or 90s. per roll.

Records or Memorials, Ruled, 6d. each, 5s. 6d. per dozen, or 25s. per roll.

Ledgers, Day-books, Cash-books, Letter or Minute-books, an immense stock in various bindings.

An Illustrated Price List of Inhabited; Postage Scales; Writing-cases;

Despatch Boxes; Oak and Walnut Stationery Cabinets; and other useful articles adapted for Library or Office, post-free.

PARTRIDGE & COZENS, 102, Fleet-street, E.C.

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	447
Specific Description in Residuary Bequests	449
General Examination of Students	450
List of Sheriffs, nominated by the Lords of the Council, for 1866	450
Books Received	461

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF CHANCERY.

By W. W. KNOX, Barrister at Law.

Gould v. The Great Western Deep Coal Company (Limited).—The Great Western Deep Coal Company (Limited) v. Gould.—(Mine—Forest of Dean Act (1 & 2 Vict. c. 43)—Grant—Reservation—Rights of gales of underlying seams)	865
Nunn v. Fabian.—(Specific performance—Parol agreement—Part performance—Statute of Frauds)	868

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Cochrane v. Willis.—(Agreement—Mistake of fact—Insufficient consideration)	870
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

ROLLS COURT.

By M. BROWN, Barrister at Law.

Re The Agricultural Cattle Insurance Company.—Stanhope's Case.—(Company—Contributory—Arrangement with directors—Notice—Lapse of time)	873
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY'S COURT.

By E. LLOYD, Barrister at Law.

Re The Inventors' Association (Limited).—(Joint-stock company—Voluntary winding up—Action for debt by creditor—Petition for winding up) ..	872
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By A. RUMSEY, Barrister at Law.

Lawes v. Gibson.—(Specific performance "Out-goings"—Costs)	873
------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Hindley v. Emery.—(Jurisdiction—Injunction—Damages—Cairns' Act—21 & 22 Vict. c. 27)	874
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVESEY, Barrister at Law.

Austin v. Bunyard.—(Postdated cheque, validity of—Innocent holder)	874
--------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By E. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

Hughes v. Palmer.—(Bankruptcy Act, 1861—Composition deed—Condition—"Void"—"Voidable") ..	876
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

By W. BRANDT, Barrister at Law.

The Queensbury Industrial Society v. Pickles and Others.—(Companies Acts, 1852, 1862—"Property vesting"—Right of action)	877
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

Finney v. Forward and Others.—(What interrogatories allowed in trover)	878
------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT FOR DIVORCE and MATRIMONIAL CAUSES.

By W. ERNST BROWNING, Barrister at Law.

In the Matter of the Petition of Lavinia Janetta Horton Ryves and William Henry Ryves v. Her Majesty's Attorney-General.—(Legitimacy Declaration Act—Answer by Attorney-General)	878
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

EXCHEQUER CHAMBER.

By H. RUTHERFORD, Barrister at Law.

Sutton v. The Great Western Railway Company.—Sutton v. The South-eastern Railway Company.—(Railway company—Packed parcels—Equality clause—Evidence—Bill of exceptions)	879
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. O., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

Now ready, price 2s. 6d., post free.

A HANDY-BOOK ON CHANCERY LAW and PRACTICE for SUITORS under the New Equity Jurisdiction in the County Courts. With the Act complete, and Practical Observations thereon; with the authorised Forms and Rules of Court, &c. By G. MANLEY WETHERFIELD, Solicitor.
London: Stannard & Smith, 30, Chancery-lane, W. C.

EQUITABLE JURISDICTION OF THE COUNTY COURTS.

Just published, price 5s. boards.

A SUPPLEMENT to POLLOCK & NICOL'S COUNTY COURT PRACTICE, containing the Equitable Jurisdiction Act (28 & 29 Vict. c. 99). With Orders, Forms, Costs, Fees, and the Trustee Acts, &c. By C. E. POLLOCK & H. NICOL, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

JOSHUA WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY.

Just published, the Seventh Edition, in 1 vol. 8vo., price 30s. cloth.

PRINCIPLES of the LAW of REAL PROPERTY, intended as a first Book for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-Inn, one of her Majesty's Counsel.

Henry Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, London.

In 1 vol. 12mo., price 7s.

A TREATISE on COMPOSITION DEEDS under the Stat. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 134. By THOMAS ERSKINE HOLLAND, M. A., Fellow of Exeter College, Oxford, and of Lincoln's-Inn, Esq., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE BRITISH CONSTITUTION EXPLAINED.

In 1 thick vol. 8vo., price 1l. 4s. cloth.

THE INSTITUTIONS of ENGLISH GOVERNMENT: being an Account of the Constitution, Powers, and Procedure of its Legislative, Judicial, and Administrative Departments; with copious References to Ancient and Modern Authorities. By HOMERESHAM COX, M. A., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NEW EDITION of ELMER'S PRACTICE in LUNACY, with Notes of Cases, Forms, Costs, Statutes, General Orders, and a Copious Index. Price 16s. 6d. cloth.
Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-lane.

TWENTIETH ANNUAL ISSUE.

This day is published,

THE LAWYER'S COMPANION, DIARY, and LONDON and PROVINCIAL LAW DIRECTORY for 1866, containing The Companies Act, 1862, with an Introduction, Analysis, and Index; an Abstract of the most important Acts of the Session of 1865; and the New Orders and Rules for regulating the Practice of the County Courts, 1865. With a Scale of Costs and Charges to be paid to Counsel and Attorneys in the County Courts under the Provisions of the Statute 28 & 29 Vict. c. 29. Edited by FREDERICK LAWRENCE, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

The Work is bound in cloth, lettered on back and side, and may be had as under:

No. 1. Plain, two days on a page	5 0
2. The above, interleaved	7 0
3. Ruled with or without money columns	5 6
4. The above, interleaved	8 0
5. Plain, whole page to a day	7 6
6. The above, interleaved	9 6
7. Whole page to a day, ruled with or without money columns ..	8 6
8. The above, interleaved	10 6
9. Ruled blue lines, without money columns, three days on a page	5 0

London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-lane.

This day is published, in medium 8vo., price 1l. 5s. cloth,

A MANUAL of CIVIL LAW: containing a Translation of, and Commentary on the Fragments of the XII Tables and the Institutes of Justinian; the Text of the Institutes of Gaius and Justinian. Arranged in parallel columns; and the Text of the Fragments of Ulpian, and of Selections from Paul's Rescript Sententiae. By PATRICK CUMIN, M.A., Balliol College, Oxford, Barrister at Law. Second Edition, enlarged.

London: Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-lane. Oxford: J. E. & J. Parker. Cambridge: Deighton, Bell, & Co. Edinburgh: T. & T. Clark. Dublin: Hodges, Smith, & Co.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, NOVEMBER 18, 1865.

THE NEW SCHEME OF LAW REPORTING.

OUR readers are well aware, that we have never been blind to the scope for improvement in our law reports. Nearly twenty years ago, for instance, we expressed our opinion on the subject as follows:—

"No doubt the law reports of the present time are, with few creditable exceptions, not what such reports should be. Some are a mere statement of the nature of the case, too widely set out to shew the points of it; followed by the names of the counsel, a list of the cases, and the judgment verbatim. Others are a recapitulation of the pleadings and of the arguments at great length, and a statement of the judgments with great shortness. Others are a little more altogether than marginal notes should be. No one can read the reports, and not see that there is much to reform in the whole system. But the question is, on whom lies the burthen of the duty?"

That was written in 1848, and next year the Bar conceived it was their duty to attempt a reform, and a committee of the Society for promoting the Amendment of the Law was appointed to consider of it; but nothing practical came of it. Three or four years afterwards, Messrs. Spottiswoode, the eminent printers, established a set of "Common Law and Equity Reports" in all the courts, which was kept up for three years with all the resources of their energy, enterprise, and experience, but which succumbed at last, apparently because the reports were not so much better than the others as to induce the profession to break their sets of reports by taking in new ones. Then the matter went to rest until, about two years ago, the Bar again bestirred themselves, and again appointed a committee, which resulted in a "Scheme of Law Reporting," the essence of which was, that there should be one standard set of reports, not excluding, indeed, but recognising the necessity for a weekly publication of reports for more speedy information of the profession as to points decided in the courts. On that account, and also because of our position as a legal journal, and a medium for legal discussion, it was not likely that "The Jurist" would be materially affected by the success of the new "scheme;" and, therefore, we were in a position to regard and consider it with perfect impartiality. Indeed, one of the main promoters of the new "scheme," Mr. Osborne Morgan, was one of the editors of the "New Reports," a weekly publication, conducted with some ability, but which has just fallen, simply because it was not wanted; which shews that the promoters of the new scheme did not consider that it would at all interfere with a weekly publication like ours; and also shews, that another such publication was not required. We are anxious to point out this, because it shews that we have no sort of interest adverse to the new scheme. But its very essence was the establishment of one standard set of reports for permanent use and reference. Indeed, so much so, that some of the most energetic of the original promoters of the movement stipulated for the privilege of exclusive citation, and when it was found impracticable to obtain it, at once withdrew.

It is strange that any members of the profession should have supposed that such a privilege could be secured to any set of reports. Nothing short of an act of Parliament could have secured it, and our readers may judge of the probability in our day of a revival of the old system of monopoly. Mr. Justice Montague Smith, who proposed the system of official reports, never suggested any such exclusive privilege of citation. Still it was of the essence of the scheme that there should be one set of standard reports, inasmuch that this was made one of the main grounds of opposition to it on the part of some eminent members of the profession, who objected to it because, if successful, it would abolish competition, secure a virtual monopoly, and confer upon "the council" an arbitrary and dangerous power of suppression of reports. The exercise of some such power, beyond a doubt, formed one most material feature of the scheme, as clause 5 expressly provided that the cases should be carefully selected. If this meant no more than that cases not useful as precedents should be rejected, it meant nothing, for it meant no more than what every law reporter worthy of the name, or every editor of law reports, takes care to carry out. But read by the light of the ideas and objects avowed by leading promoters of the scheme, it is to be inferred that it meant more than this, and implied a power of suppression on other and more questionable grounds; and it was urged with great force, that if the object could be attained by establishing one set of standard reports under the control of a "council," having such a power of "selection" or suppression, it would be most dangerous and mischievous. We are bound, however, in candour, to admit that there is not the least chance of such a danger arising; for even if the scheme had succeeded, we have already shewn that it would not interfere with a publication like "The Jurist;" and thus the healthy element of free competition could be continued in the system. The scheme, however, did not succeed, and broke down in its name and original object; for the only mode in which it could be attained was by the getting the whole body of the profession to take in the new reports, which, of course, ipso facto, would have put them in the desired position. This failed, when, after the lapse of a year, it was announced, about this time last year, that only a few hundreds of subscribers had been obtained. It was then vigorously contended, even by some of the most prominent of the original promoters, that the scheme had failed, and that the only effect of going on would be to introduce one more commercial speculation into the field, and thus to enhance and aggravate the evil alleged as the chief reason for the scheme, viz. the multiplicity of the reports. This alleged evil was to a great extent imaginary, for, after all, there were not more than one or two publications of reports for the same kind of purpose, or the same class of readers, and all of them are more or less different in their plan, purpose, and circulation.

However, the object was to get rid of this evil, and to do so in the only practicable mode, by getting the whole profession to take in the proposed reports. When that design utterly failed, some of the principal promoters of the scheme declared that it had altogether broken down, and that it must necessarily result merely in a new commercial speculation. Accordingly, after the lapse of another year, such has been the result. Unable to obtain anything like the amount of subscriptions which would enable them to start, the council have been compelled, in effect, to resort to private capital and enterprise, and place the scheme in the hands of an eminent printer, who, taking the subscriptions obtained, supplies the deficiency out of his own capital, and starts the reports. It may be a question (as we have already pointed out in a former article), whether the great bulk of the subscriptions were not given on the implied condition, that the required amount was subscribed, and we have learned that some subscribers take that view. But waiving that point, it is manifest, that the scheme as originally propounded has entirely broken down, and that all that has been done is to start a new commercial speculation—whatever its merits may be. In short, the result is only to revive the scheme of Messrs. Spottiswoode, and to substitute for them the name of Mr. Clowes. It is really the self-same scheme: the very name is in substance the same; and so is the plan—the subscription, and, in fact, all the main features of the scheme. There is no greater reason why it should succeed than the former. No doubt, there may be some degree of improvement; but then, whatever it may be, it will be the result of competition, and will probably more or less be distributed and extend to all the reports. All of them will be put upon their mettle, so to speak, and the result will be, that all will be improved. The question is, therefore, whether the degree of improvement in the new reports will be so much greater than in any other as to induce the profession to take them in preference to the others. As to which, it is to be observed, that there is but little new blood in the system, and the reporters are almost all taken from the old reporters of the present reports. So that we see no great reason to suppose that the new reports will be very much better than the present ones. As to that, however, we shall see; only what is to be observed is, that it remains to be seen; and that until it is seen and shewn, the profession in all probability will suspend their judgment. This is, no doubt, the real reason why the list of subscriptions was so inadequate. Though the promoters appear to ignore the previous scheme, the profession have not forgotten it, and are a little distrustful of new projects which may not succeed.

Hence it is that in some of the most important courts the old reporters have refused, after the greatest pressure, to come in under the new system. We believe that the House of Lords reporter only does so nominally, and that the Privy Council declines to do so. It is well known that Beavan's reports in the Rolls, and the regular reports in the Queen's Bench and Exchequer continue; and it is believed that the regular reports in the Common Pleas are also to be continued in new hands. As we have already observed, to all this, as far as our own interests are concerned, we are indifferent, and it cannot affect our position. But we are not indifferent to anything which concerns the interests of the profession; and particularly as to the efficiency of its law reports. We wish well to any scheme which may really elevate and improve the system which exists; and if the new scheme has that effect it will have our support. But our own attitude towards it, at present, is that which appears to be that of the profession—one of impartial expectation. We suspend our judgment. We wait to see what is now actually achieved and performed. If a better series of reports than at present exists is produced, it does not necessarily follow that the new scheme will succeed; for it may be that other reports will improve in the same proportion. But if a better series of reports is produced than any other which is published, then, beyond all doubt, the new reports will succeed; that is, provided they are kept up for a sufficient time to test their merits and stability; for the profession have always been a little slow to subscribe to new reports. Time and their own merits will test the new reports, as in the case of any other commercial speculation. But the fact must be fairly faced, that it is a commercial speculation, neither more nor less; and, of course, it has in it all the vices and infirmities, whatever they may be, which attach to a commercial speculation. Some of the most distinguished of the promoters of the movement emphatically declared that the commercial element was incompatible with the existence of a proper system, and that the publication of standard law reports was far too important a matter to be left to commercial speculation. This view has been supported by men as eminent as Mr. Justice Smith, and was enforced by an elaborate article in the "Law Review." If it is valid, then, of course, the new scheme, even if it succeeds commercially, can never satisfy the profession, nor attain its original objects. And on that conviction, some of the main promoters of the movement abandoned it. Upon this point we will not now enter; but we desire to point out, that, on the avowal of some of the principal promoters of the movement, the new scheme is merely a commercial speculation, and should so be considered. If we are rightly informed, it is so considered by the judges, who, at all events where the "regular reports" are not abated, have declined to extend to the new reports any privileges or distinctions beyond those which are accorded to our own, or any others, viz. the privilege of fair citation, according to their merits.

That in this field of fair competition we ourselves have no reason to fear; we could afford abundant proof from the pages of the law reports themselves. Over and over again has it happened (as in instances mentioned in the "Law Review") that the report of a case in "The Jurist" has been cited, and referred to by the Court as more copious or correct than any other. So long as our reports remain as good as they are (and we hope that if they alter it will be for the better), this and the advantage of weekly publication will relieve us from any fears as to the future; and our existence will be a guarantee to the profession that cases likely to be useful will not be suppressed.

That being so, we can afford to look with entire impartiality on the new scheme; for its success cannot affect us, and its failure will either establish the necessity for some other system, or shew that there is no ineradicable evil in our present system, and that all that was wanted was that degree of practical improvement which time, and competition, and professional opinion, are sure in the long run to bring.

SPECIFIC DESCRIPTION IN RESIDUARY BEQUESTS.

In the learned notes to the Concise Forms of Wills by Messrs. Hayes and Jarman, are some judicious remarks on the distinction between a specific and a pecuniary bequest. "Thus," we are told, "the bequest of a debt, or a sum of money or stock, or a watch, ascertained and distinguished from the mass of the personal estate, as a bequest of 500*l.* now due to me from A., or 500*l.* now in my desk, or 500*l.* Consols now standing in my name, or the watch which I now wear, is a specific legacy; but a bequest of money or value merely, as of 500*l.* sterling, or 500*l.* Consols, or a gold watch, is a pecuniary or general legacy. The specific legatee, who (subject of course to the paramount claims of creditors) can at once fasten upon the particular thing, as being identified and appropriated by the testator himself, is preferred to the pecuniary legatee, who can only claim satisfaction in amount or value out of the personal estate at large." (p. 112 in the 6th edition, 1863, ably edited by Mr. Badger Eastwood). Again: "It is common in residuary clauses in wills to find, in addition to the general words here used, a long enumeration of particulars, of which the personal estate then actually did, or might be supposed to, consist. Of all kinds of verbosity, this seems to be the most inexpedient, if not pernicious; for, if these words are not absolutely nugatory (which they generally are), their effect is to restrict the more comprehensive words by which they are usually succeeded. Such particularity also sometimes gives rise to another question, namely, whether the residuary legatee is not to stand in the favoured position of a specific legatee in regard to the enumerated articles; and such question becomes especially important, when there is a deficiency of assets to pay all the debts and legacies. It ought always to be prevented by an unequivocal expression of intention, where the residuary legatee is to take any of the personal property in the character of a specific legatee, and by framing the residuary bequest in the ordinary, general, and comprehensive language, where he is not." (Id. 373).

The question here suggested by the late Mr. Jarman occasionally arises in practice; but though the advice as to the mode of framing residuary bequests is most judicious, we think there can be no reasonable doubt as to the construction to be put upon the specification of particulars which such bequests very frequently contain. Thus, under a bequest in the following form, "I give my leasehold house in the New-road, and all other my leasehold hereditaments, and all the residue of my goods, chattels, and personal estate, unto A. B.," there can, we conceive, be no doubt that the leasehold house specifically indicated is given as part of the residue, and may be sold by the executor, if the personal estate is defendant, for the payment of pecuniary legacies. Thus, in Fielding v. Preston (1 De G. & J. 444), Lord Cranworth, C., said, "Where there is a gift of the residue, and the testator unnecessarily chooses to enumerate some particular things in the residuary gift, it would be dangerous to hold that such a circumstance is sufficient to constitute the things so enumerated specific gifts. It rarely happens that in the gift of a residue something is not mentioned specifically." In that case a gift by a testator of "all his funded property, and all other his personal estate not thereinbefore bequeathed," was held not to be a specific gift of the funded property. If the rule of construction were different, and everything given by words of specific description in connexion with a general residuary gift were held to be a specific legacy, it would be necessary to apply a strict verbal criticism to all residuary gifts—gifts which are almost always framed in the loosest and most careless manner—with the effect, in almost every case, of exempting the greater part of the testator's estate from the payment of the pecuniary legacies given by his will; so that a gift of all the testator's money and funded property, and all other his personal estate not otherwise disposed of (where the words "not otherwise disposed of" strictly refer to the words immediately antecedent), would carry away the very money and funded property out of which the pecuniary legacies were intended to be paid. A gift of the testator's leasehold house in the New-road, standing alone, is specific; a gift of all his leasehold houses, standing alone, is specific; but if a gift of his real and leasehold and personal estate, or of his freehold house at Croydon, and other real estate, and his leasehold house in the New-road and other leaseholds, and his personal estate, is specific as to the leaseholds, so as to exempt the house specifically indicated and the other leaseholds from contribution to the pecuniary legacies, then a gift of his furniture, stock in the funds, and personal estate is specific as to the furniture and stock, and exempts them from liability to pecuniary legacies, contrary to the authority we have cited, and to the intention, where any intention existed.

But a gift may be residuary for the purpose of the present question, and yet be partially specific for another purpose, as appears by the class of cases to which Fitzwilliam v. Kelly (10 Hare, 275) belongs. There the question between a tenant for life of the residuary personal estate and those entitled to the reversion of it, was, whether the tenant for life could claim the enjoyment of the leasehold property in specie, and it was held, that, during the continuance of the life estate, the leaseholds were to be enjoyed specifically. From which case, taken in connexion with the doctrine in Fielding v. Preston, it follows that an express direction in a will that the rents of leaseholds mentioned in a residuary gift for life, shall be specifically enjoyed by the legatee for life will not make the gift of the leaseholds specific, as against pecuniary legatees. The converse case of a gift, residuary during a life and specific afterwards, occurred in Fielding v. Preston. Clark v. Butler (1 Mer. 304), which has been sometimes cited as an authority for exempting articles specifically described from liability as part of the residue with which they are given, was merely a striking instance of the application of the rule that a codicil and a will are to be read together, and reconciled with as little alteration of the will as possible; so that a will giving certain things specifically, and the residue, was held not to be revoked, as to the specified articles, by a codicil which made a different disposition of the residue. (See Sargent v. Roberts, 12 Jur. 429).

Mr. John Lenton Pulling, Gent., of 3, Adelaide-place, London Bridge, has been appointed by the Lord Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench, the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and the Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, a London Commissioner to administer oaths at common law.

GENERAL EXAMINATION OF STUDENTS.

MICHAELMAS TERM, 1865.

At the General Examination of Students of the Inns of Court, held at Lincoln's Inn Hall, on the 30th and 31st October, and the 1st November, 1865, the Council of Legal Education have awarded to—

Hugh Holmes, Esq., student of the Middle Temple, a studentship of fifty guineas per annum, to continue for a period of three years.

Charles Royle, Esq., student of Lincoln's-inn, an exhibition of twenty-five guineas per annum, to continue for a period of three years.

Lindsey M. Aspland, Esq., student of the Middle Temple; Robert Swan, Esq., student of the Middle Temple; and Herbert Newman Mosley, Esq., student of Lincoln's-inn, certificates of honour of the first class.

Edward Brodie Cooper, Esq., student of Lincoln's-inn; Henry Francis Purcell, Esq., student of Lincoln's-inn; Thomas Charles Jarvis, Esq., student of the Middle Temple; William Jardine, Esq., student of the Middle Temple; Denis M. O'Connor, Esq., student of the Middle Temple; John Lascelles, Esq., student of the Middle Temple; William Wheeler Smith, Esq., student of the Inner Temple; George Curtis Price, Esq., student of Lincoln's-inn; Louis Diston Powles, Esq., student of the Inner Temple; Joseph Devey, Esq., student of the Inner Temple; Wooms Chunder Bonnerjee, Esq., student of the Middle Temple; William Morris, Esq., student of Gray's-inn; David Francis Aherne, Esq., student of Lincoln's-inn; Gerald Dyson Branson, Esq., student of the Middle Temple; James Thomson Erskine Rogan, Esq., student of the Inner Temple; Patrick D. Shaw, Esq., student of the Middle Temple; Charles Cave Orme, Esq., student of the Middle Temple; and Patrick Keon, Esq., student of Middle Temple, certificates that they have satisfactorily passed a public examination.

By order of the Council,
(Signed) EDWARD RYAN, Chairman, pro tem.

Council Chamber, Lincoln's-inn,
Nov. 9, 1865.

LIST OF SHERIFFS, NOMINATED BY THE LORDS OF THE COUNCIL, FOR 1866.

Bedfordshire—Chas. Siviur Grimshawe, Esq., Apsley Guise.
William Cooper Cooper, Esq., Toddington.
Sir John Montagu Burgoyne, Bart., Sutton.

Berkshire—John Blandy Jenkins, Esq., Kingston House, near Abingdon.

Thomas Hargreaves, Esq., Aborfield Hall.
William Merry, Esq., Highlands Skinfield.

Buckinghamshire—Henry Arthur Hoare, Esq., Wavendon House.

John Lee, Esq., Hartwell House.
Richard Henry Richard Howard-Vyse, Esq., Stoke-place.

Camb. & Hunt.—The Hon. Octavius Duncombe, Warceley.
William Wells, Esq., Holme.
George Thornhill, Esq., Diddington.

Cheshire—Robert Barbour, Esq., Bolesworth Castle.
Thomas Henry Lyon, Esq., Appleton Hall, near Warrington.

William John Legh, Esq., Lyme Park, Disley, Stockport.

Cumberland—Sir Fred. Ulrick Graham, Bart., Netherby.
William Edward James, Esq., Barrock Park.
Sir Robert Brisco, Bart., Crofton Hall.

Derbyshire—Sir William Fitzherbert, Bart., Tinsington.
Edward Sacheverell Chandos Pole, Esq., Radborne.
Francis Westbye Bagshawe, Esq., The Oaks, near Sheffield.

Dorsetshire—St. John Coventry, Esq., Knowle Wimborne.
John Hales Calcraft, Esq., Rempstone Hall.
Charles Joseph Park, Esq., Hanbury.

Durham—William Edward Surtess, Esq., Seaton Carew.
William Scuffell Grey, Esq., Norton.
John Gregson, Esq., Burdon.

Essex—Arthur Pryor, Esq., Highlands.
Sir Richard Digby Neave, Bart., Dagenham Park, Dagenham.
Richard Baker Wingfield Baker, Esq., Orset Hall.

Gloucestershire—Sir John Maxwell Steele Graves, Bart., Mickleton Manor, near Broadway.
Edward Sampson, Esq., Henbury, near Bristol.
Hattel Poll, Esq., Beckford Hall, near Tewkesbury.

Herefordshire—Thomas Reaveley, Esq., Kinneraley Castle, near Kington.
Sir Edward Cludde Cockburn, Bart., Pennoxton.
Tomkyns Dew, Esq., Whitney Court, near Hereford.

Hertfordshire—Henry Heyman Toulmin, Esq., Childwick-bury, St. Albans.
Charles Booth, Esq., Stanstead Abbots.
Robert Pryor, Esq., High Elms, Watford.

Kent—Thomas Farmer Bailey, Esq., Hall Place, Leigh.
William Moore, Esq., Wiverton.
Stephen Musgrave Hilton, Esq., Bramling House, Ickham.

Leicestershire—Charles Hay Frewer, Esq., Cold Overton.
Ambrose Lisle March Philipps de Lisle, Esq., Gracedieu Manor, Leicester.
Edward Finch Dawson, Esq., Launde Abbey.

Lincolnshire—Henry Robert Boucherett, Esq., North Willingham, Market Rasen.
Henry Chaplin, Esq., Blankney.
Sir Henry Hicman Bacon, Bart., Thonoch.

Monmouthshire—Frederick Cotton Finch, Esq., Baccarvos, near Pontypool.
George Ralph Greenhow Ralph, Esq., Beech Hill.
Frank Johnstone Mitchell, Esq., Llanvorchra Grange, near Newport.

Norfolk—William Amhurst Tyssen Amhurst, Esq., Dilling-ton Hall.
Albemarle Cator, Esq., Woodbastwick.
Sir Thomas William Brograve Proctor Branchamp, Bart., Langley Park.

Northamptonshire—The Hon. George Wentworth Fitzwilliam, Milton, near Peterborough.
William Somerset Rose, Esq., Cranley.
John Berlace Tibbitts, Esq., Barton Seagrave.

Northumberland—Sir John Swinbourne, Bart., Capheaton.
George Culley, Esq., Fowberry.
Thomas Leyland, Esq., Haggerston Castle.

Nottinghamshire—Sir Edward Samuel Walker, Knt., Bury Hill.

Sir John Sutton, Bart., Norwood Park.
John Bagshaw Taylor, Esq., Radcliffe-upon-Trent.

Oxfordshire—Sir Henry William Dashwood, Bart., Kirklington Park.
Alexander Clark Forbes, Esq., Whitchurch.
Alexander William Hall, Esq., Dunston.

Rutland—William Wing, Esq., Market Overton.
Edward Nathaniel Conant, Esq., Lyndon.
Robert Heatheote, Esq., North Luffham.

Shropshire—Thomas Hugh Sandford, Esq., Sandford.
Sir Charles Frederick Smythe, Bart., Acton Burnell.
Charles Spencer Lloyd, Esq., Seaton Knolla.

Somersetshire—George Bullock, Esq., East Coker House.
Richard Thomas Combe, Esq., Barnskell.
Inigo Williams Jones, Esq., Kelston Park.

Southampton (County)—Hon. John Thomas Dutton, Hinton House, near Alresford.

William Hans Sloane Stanley, Esq., Paultons, near Romsey.
Sir Edward Hulse, Bart., Breamore House, near Salisbury.

- Staffordshire—Ralph Thomas Adderley, Esq., Barlaston Hall, Stone.
Walter Peter Giffard, Esq., Chillington.
Henry Charles Vernon, Esq., Hilton Park.
- Suffolk—William Gelstrap the younger, Esq., Fornham, St. Geneveve.
Sir William Parker, Bart., Molford Hall.
Francis Cupper Brook, Esq., Ufford-place.
- Surrey—John Fred. Bateman, Esq., Moor Park, Farnham.
Edward Richards Adams, Esq., Roshampton Lodge, Putney.
William Gilpin, Esq., Pelewell Lodge, East Sheen.
- Sussex—John Alexander Hankey, Esq., Balcombe.
Colonel Francis Vernon Harcourt, Buxted.
Henry Peter Croft, Esq., Abbots Sompting.
- Warwickshire—Sir Robert North Collie Hamilton, Bart., K. C. B., Alveston.
James Dugdale, Esq., Wroxhall Abbey.
Henry Townshend Boultes, Esq., Springfield.
Edward Wood, Esq., Newbold Revel, near Rugby.
- Westmorland—Joseph Gibson, Esq., Whelprigg, near Kirkby Lonsdale.
Hugh Rigg, Esq., Crossrig Hall, Morland, Penrith.
Thomas Taylor (commonly called Lord Kenlis), Underley Hall, Kirkby Lonsdale.
- Wiltshire—Ambrose Denis Hussey Freke, Esq., Hannington Hall, Highworth.
Henry Calley, Esq., Burderop Park.
Charles John Thomas Conolly, Esq., Cottles House, near Melksham.
- Worcestershire—John Vincent Hornoyld, Esq., Blackmore Park, Great Malvern.
Edward Charles Rudge, Esq., Abbey Manor, Evesham.
Sir Henry Edward Francis Lambert, Bart., The Lodge, Great Malvern.
- Yorkshire—Chas. Sabine Augustus Thellusson, Esq., Brodsworth.
William Harrison Broadley, Esq., Welton.
Sir John William Ramaden, Bart., Byrom.

WALES.

- Anglesey—The Hon. Henry Warrender Fitzmaurice, Tregerof.
Evan Garnons Lloyd, Esq., Plas Coedna.
John Bodychen Sparrow, Esq., Gwyndly.
- Breconshire—William Fuller Maitland, Esq., Garth House.
John Williams Morgan, Esq., Bolgold House.
Hugh Powell Price, Esq., Castle Madoc.
- Cardiganshire—John George William Bonsall, Esq., Fronfraith.
James Loxdale, Esq., Castle Hill, near Aberystwith.
William Birch, Esq., Stradmore, near Newcastle Emlyn.
- Carmarthenshire—Thomas Charles Morris, Esq., Bryn Merddin.
John Lennox Griffiths Poyer Lewis, Esq., Henllan.
Sir James Williams Drummond, Bart., Edwinstford.
- Carnarvonshire—Abram Jones Williams, Esq., Gethwig.
Edward Windus Mathew, Esq., Wern.
John Dicken Whitehead, Esq., Glangwna.
- Denbighshire—Robert Bamford Hespath, Esq., Gwryola Castle, Abergelle.
Sir Robert Alfred Cunliffe, Bart., Acton Park, near Wrexham.
Sir Whitehall Dod, Bart., Llanerch Park, near St. Asaph.
- Flintshire—John Carstairs Jones, Esq., Rhyddyn.
Thomas Hanner Wynne, Esq., Marquis Hall.
Edmund Peel, Esq., Bryn-y-Pys.
- Glamorganshire—William Graham Vivian, Esq., Singleton, near Swansea.
Thomas Penrice, Esq., Kilborough House, near Swansea.
John Whitlock Nickoll Carne, Esq., Dimlands Castle, near Cowbridge.
- Merionethshire—William Watkin Edward Wynne, Esq., Peniarth.
John Corbet, Esq., Guysywaengwyn.
Edmund Buckley, jun., Esq., Plas-y-Dinas.

- Montgomeryshire—Edward Hilton, Esq., Rhiwhirlleth.
Major Joseph Davis, Brynglas.
William Fisher, Esq., Maenffron.
- Pembrokeshire—William Walters, Esq., Haverfordwest.
Thomas Meyrick, Esq., Bush.
Mark Anthony Saurin, Esq., Orielton.
- Radnorshire—James Vaughan, Esq., Llansaintfraild, Elval Bulth.
Edward Coates, Esq., Whitton.
William Powell, Esq., Llanfared, Radnorshire, and Chapel House, Bulth, Breconshire.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Principia Prima Legum; or an Enunciation and Analysis of the Elementary Principles of Law in its several Departments. By George Harris, Esq., F.S.A., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law, one of the Registrars of the Court of Bankruptcy, and author of "The Life of Lord Chancellor Hardwicke," "The true Theory of Representation in a State," and "Civilization considered as a Science." Part 1, royal 8vo., pp. 271.—Stevens & Sons.

Legal Forms, compiled for the use of Attorneys and Solicitors. By William Champaign Hall, Attorney-at-Law. 12mo., pp. 188.—H. Cox.

Legal Forms for Common Use; being 200 Precedents, with Introduction and Notes. By James Walter Smith, Esq., LL.D., of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 12mo., pp. 231.—E. Wilson.

A Guide to the Law, for General Use. By Edward Reynolds, B.A., Oxon, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law. Square 8vo., pp. 184.—Stevens & Sons.

On the Study of English, Roman, Hindu, and Mahomedan Legal Systems, with especial regard to their Salient Points of Agreement and Difference; being a Lecture delivered at King's College, London. By John Outler, B.A., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister-at-Law, Professor of English Law and Jurisprudence, and Professor of Indian Jurisprudence at King's College, London.—Butterworths.

Equitable Jurisdiction of the County Courts.—Supplement to Pollock's County Court Practice, containing the Act 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99, Orders, Forms, and Tables of Costs and Fees, with the Trustee Acts, &c. By Charles Edward Pollock and Henry Nicol, Esqrs., Barristers-at-Law.—H. Sweet.

The County Courts Equitable Jurisdiction Act, 28 & 29 Vict. c. 29, with the Orders, Rules, Forms, and other Matters relating thereto, and copious Notes and References. By Henry Mainwaring Sladen, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister-at-Law.—Wildy.

The Law Magazine and Law Review; or Quarterly Journal of Jurisprudence, for November, 1865, being No. 39 of the New Series, and No. 149 of the Law Magazine. Edited by C. Harry Palmer, M.A., Barrister-at-Law.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

MICHAELMAS TERM, 29 VICTORIAE.—Nov. 15.

This Court will, on Monday, the 27th, and Tuesday, the 28th days of November, instant, hold sittings, and will proceed in disposing of the cases in the New Trials, Special, and Crown Papers, and any other matters then pending, and will also give judgment in cases then standing for judgment.

BY THE COURT.

This day is published, price 10s. 6d.,

A SUCCINCT TREATISE ON THE COPYHOLD ACTS,

The Practical Working and Effect thereof, and the Mode of Procedure under the same for effecting Enfranchisement.

By JAMES CUDDON, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

CONTENTS.

THE INTRODUCTION contains a short history of the progress of legislation on the subject of Copyhold Enfranchisement, and an explanation of the alterations in copyhold practice consequent on the Copyhold Act of 1841, and how the Copyhold Acts have affected the marketable value of manors and copyholds.

The subject is then discussed in twenty-six chapters, the heads of which are shortly here stated.

Chap. I.—On the powers, generally, of any lord or tenant to compel enfranchisement, and whether of a portion only of the lands of a tenant; and on the right of a tenant holding separate properties to a division of the rent-charge if required by him at the time of enfranchisement.

Chap. II.—As to heriots.

Chap. III.—As to the cases in which tenants may expect to obtain exemption by an appeal to the Copyhold Commissioners, from the compulsory powers of the Acts being put in force; and suggestions for commutation as to fine arbitrary building ground.

Chap. IV.—As to how proceedings ought to be taken by lord or tenant for compelling enfranchisement; and as to the advantage of appointing an attorney under the Copyhold Acts.

Chap. V.—As to the appointment of valuers; notice thereof; and as to who may be appointed as valuer.

Chap. VI.—As to the service of all notices required by the Acts.

Chap. VII.—As to the appointment of a sole valuer at Petty Sessions in cases where the annual value of the property to be enfranchised is under 20*l*.

Chap. VIII.—How the valuers ought to be instructed by the tenant's solicitor and by the steward.

Chap. IX.—As to the identification of copyholds; the great importance of the question of identity; and as to the Copyhold Commissioners' powers not extending to settling out lands in lieu of lands which it is impossible to identify, and the means of having copyhold lands effectually set out in such cases.

Chap. X.—As to the price of enfranchisement, and the principle on which it is calculated; and as to the lord's right in certain cases to object to the exact application of the life-tables.

Chap. XI.—As to the power to agree for enfranchisement in consideration of the conveyance to the lord of a portion of the copyhold land of the tenant.

Chap. XII.—As to the steward's compensation, his rights, and his duties.

Chap. XIII.—As to the costs and expenses attending enfranchisement, and how they are to be borne.

Chap. XIV.—As to the effect and consequences of the reservation of the lord's rights to mines, minerals, &c.

Chap. XV.—How the lord's title ought to be proved; and as to the advantages of completing voluntary enfranchisements under the Copyhold Acts.

Chap. XVI.—As to the deed of enfranchisement or award when the consideration is a gross sum.

Chap. XVII.—As to the award where the consideration is an annual rent-charge redeemable, under the powers of the Copyhold Acts, at a price to be fixed by the Copyhold Commissioners at the time of application to redeem.

Chap. XVIII.—As to how an enfranchisement for a rent-charge should be carried out where lord and tenant desire to fix and determine the price for any future redemption, at the tenant's option, of the rent-charge.

Chap. XIX.—As to customs respecting descent in certain cases affecting land enfranchised under the Acts prior to the Copyhold Act of 1853.

Chap. XX.—As to the remedies for a rent-charge, the tenant's power of redemption, and the consequences, on redemption, of not obtaining a certificate of such redemption from the Copyhold Commissioners.

Chap. XXI.—As to charges for gross sums, and the necessity, on paying off the same, of shewing the dealings with such charges, as in the case of ordinary mortgages.

Chap. XXII.—As to the necessity, in dealing with lands which have been enfranchised, of searching the court-rolls as to previous incumbrances, and the propriety of giving notice on the face of a deed of enfranchisement of any mortgages affecting the land enfranchised at the time of such enfranchisement.

Chap. XXIII.—As to the effect upon the title and security of a mortgage of copyhold land of the enfranchisement being made to the mortgagor, the tenant on the roll; and as to the responsibility incurred by trustees in taking mortgages of enfranchised land subject to prior charges under the Copyhold Acts.

Chap. XXIV.—As to divers general provisions of the Copyhold Acts affecting the tenant, and also the lord's rights and interests.

Chap. XXV.—As to the powers of partition of copyholds given to Courts of Equity under the Copyhold Acts; and as to the effect of enfranchisement of undivided shares of copyhold land on the remaining shares.

Concluding Chapter.—How far the power of the tenant on the roll to demand enfranchisement affects the marketable value of copyholds; and as to the conditions of sale of copyholds which in consequence of the Copyhold Acts are now sometimes desirable; and as to the consideration required in the selection of a trustee of copyholds.

There is an Appendix, in which the Copyhold Acts are set out in extenso, with divers annotations and a copious Index, shewing, amongst other things, the portions of the Copyhold Acts which have been repealed or have become of no effect.

The forms of notices, deeds of enfranchisement, awards, &c., are also set out.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

RUSSELL ON CRIMES.

This day is published, in 3 vols. royal 8vo., price 5*l*. 15*s*. 6*d*. cloth.

A TREATISE ON CRIMES AND MISDEMEANOURS. By Sir WILLIAM OLDNALL RUSSELL, Knt., late Chief Justice of Bengal. Fourth Edition. By CHARLES SPRENGEL GREAVES, Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel.

London: Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard; H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; and W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, price 7*s*. cloth boards,

A TREATISE ON ARRANGEMENTS with CREDITORS under the BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861. With Precedents. To which are added, the Sections of the Bankruptcy Acts, 1849 and 1861, and the Rules and Orders relating thereto. With a full Index. By WILLIAM DOWNES GRIFFITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

PETTY SESSIONS PRACTICE.

In thick 12mo., price 1*s*. cloth, lettered,

STONE'S PRACTICE OF PETTY SESSIONS.

With the Statutes, a List of Summary Convictions, and an Appendix of Forms. Seventh Edition. By THOMAS BELL and LEWIS W. CAVE, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. With a Supplement, bringing the Statutes and Cases up to 1863. 12mo., price 1*s*. cloth.

"It is remarkable for a rare combination of conciseness and clearness in the composition, which have recommended it to magistrates who have not been educated as lawyers, and to whom, therefore, the books written for the use of lawyers are often obscure by reason of their technicalities. The present editors have preserved this characteristic of Mr. Stone's volume in their own abundant additions to it."—Law Times.

* The Supplement may be had by itself, price 3*s*. boards.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Publishers.

READ THE FOLLOWING 20 YEARS' EXPERIENCE OF

D. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS in Diseases of the Chest and Lungs.—From Mr. W. Ireland, Chemist, Egremont, Cumberland. Nov. 8, 1865:—"For twenty years I have recommended them as very excellent for coughs, colds, and all disorders of the chest and lungs. I take them myself," &c. They are invaluable for clearing and strengthening the voice. They have a pleasant taste. Sold at 1*s*. 1*d*. per box, by all Chemists.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.

68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q.C.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.

Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office. C. B. CLABON, Sec.

LAW UNION FIRE and LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Chief Office—126, Chancery-lane, W.C.

Subscribed Capital—ONE MILLION STERLING.

The Fire and Life Departments are under one Management, but with separate Funds and Accounts.

Chairman—Sir WILLIAM FOSTER, Bart.

Deputy-Chairman—Mr. Sergeant MANNING, Q.A.S.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Subscribed Capital, £750,000, in addition to the Reserve Fund.

Business consists of the best classes of risks.

Insurants will be allowed the full benefit of the Reduction of Duty.

Claims settled promptly and liberally.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Subscribed Capital £350,000, in addition to the Reserve Fund.

PREMIUMS MODERATE.

A Bonus every five years. Next Bonus in 1869. At the Division of Profits in 1864, the Reversionary Bonus amounted to from 15 to 50 per cent. per annum on the Premiums paid, varying with the ages of the Insured.

Copies of the Directors' Report and Balance-sheet, and every information, may be obtained at the Chief Office, or of any of the Agents of the Company. FRANK MCGEDY, Secretary.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Park Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the OFFICE, No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, November 18, 1866.

The Jurist

No. 568, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.

No. 1507, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

NOVEMBER 25, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

SOLICITORS requiring Clerks should apply to ABBOTT, BARTON, & CO., Advertisement Contractors, 203, Strand, W.C., who have opened a FREE Register for Employers and Clerks. "Sittings Papers," "Circuit Papers," and Almanack for 1866, free for postage.

An entirely new List of London and Provincial Newspapers, in tabular form, 1s., giving the Counties, Towns, and Days of Publication, with Political Opinions, and price of each.

ABBOTT, BARTON, & CO., Advertising Office, 203, Strand.

TO TRUSTEES, CAPITALISTS, and OTHERS.

—Well-secured FREEHOLD and LEASEHOLD GROUND-RENTS.—For SALE, FREEHOLD GROUND-RENTS, amounting to 220l. 15s. per annum, amply secured upon 43 well-built Houses at Dalston, producing a rack-rental of about 1200l. per annum. LEASEHOLD GROUND-RENTS, amounting to about 690l. per annum, amply secured upon 129 Houses and Shops near Shoreditch Church, producing a rack-rental of nearly 4000l. per annum.

For price, and further particulars, apply to Mr. G. CLARKSON, 33, Great James-street, Bedford-row, W.C.

Now ready, price 2s. 6d., post free.
A HANDY-BOOK ON CHANCERY LAW and PRACTICE for SUITORS under the New Equity Jurisdiction in the County Courts. With the Act complete, and Practical Observations thereon; with the authorised Forms and Rules of Court, &c. By G. MANLEY WETHERFIELD, Solicitor.
London: Stannard & Smith, 30, Chancery-lane, W. C.

In 2 vols., Third Edition, 40s. cloth, pp. 1732.
DEACON'S LAW and PRACTICE of BANKRUPTCY. By A. G. LANGLEY, Esq., Barrister at Law. This work contains upwards of Four Thousand Cases, the Statutes, General Orders, Forms in Bankruptcy, and the County Court Bankruptcy Orders, 1863.

London: Shaw & Sons, Fetter-lane.

NEW EDITION of ELMER'S PRACTICE in LUNACY, with Notes of Cases, Forms, Costs, Statutes, General Orders, and a Copious Index. Price 16s. 6d. cloth.

Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

TWENTIETH ANNUAL ISSUE.

This day is published,

THE LAWYER'S COMPANION, DIARY, and LONDON and PROVINCIAL LAW DIRECTORY for 1866; containing The Companies Act, 1862, with an Introduction, Analysis, and Index; an Abstract of the most important Acts of the Session of 1865; and the New Orders and Rules for regulating the Practice of the County Courts, 1865. With a Scale of Costs and Charges to be paid to Counsel and Attorneys in the County Courts under the Provisions of the Statute 28 & 29 Vict. c. 29. Edited by FREDERICK LAWRENCE, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

The Work is bound in cloth, lettered on back and side, and may be had as under:—

No. 1. Plain, two days on a page	5	0
2. The above, interleaved	7	0
3. Ruled with or without money columns	5	6
4. The above, interleaved	8	0
5. Plain, whole page to a day	7	6
6. The above, interleaved	9	6
7. Whole page to a day, ruled with or without money columns	8	6
8. The above, interleaved	10	6
9. Ruled blue lines, without money columns, three days on a page	5	0

London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

FREDERICK CHIFFERIEL,

ESTABLISHED 1819,

Lab, Parliamentary, and Public Companies' Stationer, PRINTER and LITHOGRAPHER,

34 to 37, CURSITOR-STREET, AND
1 to 6, CHURCH-PASSAGE, CHANCERY-LANE, E. C.

PARLIAMENTARY PLANS, SECTIONS, and BOOKS of REFERENCE LITHOGRAPHED WITH EXPEDITION.

Parliamentary Bills, Notices, Books of Reference, and every description of Printing, executed with the utmost despatch.

Each Branch executed on the Premises.

A large and efficient Staff in each Department.

No. 568, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

BROWNING'S DIVORCE PRACTICE.

THE PRACTICE and PROCEDURE of the COURT for DIVORCE and MATRIMONIAL CAUSES. With Forms of Pleadings; the Act, Rules, and Orders; Tables of Fees, and Bills of Costs. By ERNST BROWNING, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
London: Butterworths, 7, Fleet-street, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.

EQUITABLE JURISDICTION OF THE COUNTY COURTS.

Just published, price 5s. boards,

A SUPPLEMENT to POLLOCK & NICOL'S A COUNTY COURT PRACTICE: containing the Equitable Jurisdiction Act (28 & 29 Vict. c. 99). With Orders, Forms, Costs, Fees, and the Trustee Acts, &c. By C. E. POLLOCK & H. NICOL, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

JOSHUA WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY.

Just published, the Seventh Edition, in 1 vol. 8vo., price 30s. cloth.
PRINCIPLES of the LAW of REAL PROPERTY, intended as a first Book for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, one of her Majesty's Counsel.

Henry Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, London.

JOSHUA WILLIAMS ON REAL ASSETS.

Price 6s. cloth boards,

AN ESSAY on REAL ASSETS; or the Payment of the Debts of a deceased Person out of his Real Estate, and the Means by which that Payment ought to be accomplished. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

This day is published, in medium 8vo., price 1l. 4s. cloth,
A MANUAL of CIVIL LAW; containing a Translation of, and Commentary on the Fragments of, the XII Tables and the Institutes of Justinian; the Text of the Institutes of Gaius and Justinian. Arranged in parallel columns; and the Text of the Fragments of Ulpian, and of Selections from Paul's Receipte Sententiae. By PATRICK CUMIN, M.A., Balliol College, Oxford, Barrister at Law. Second Edition, enlarged.

London: Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn. Oxford: J. H. & J. Parker. Cambridge: Deighton, Bell, & Co. Edinburgh: T. & T. Clark. Dublin: Hodges, Smith, & Co.

ANNUITIES and REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.
68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q. C.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.

Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office.

C. B. CLABON, Sec.

LAW UNION FIRE and LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Chief Offices—126, Chancery-lane, W.C.

Subscribed Capital—ONE MILLION STERLING.

The Fire and Life Departments are under one Management, but with separate Funds and Accounts.

Chairman—Sir WILLIAM FOSTER, Bart.

Deputy-Chairman—Mr. Sergeant MANNING, Q.A.S.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Subscribed Capital, £750,000, in addition to the Reserve Fund.

Business consists of the best classes of risks.

Insurants will be allowed the full benefit of the Reduction of Duty.

Claims settled promptly and liberally.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Subscribed Capital £250,000, in addition to the Reserve Fund.

PREMIUMS MODERATE.

A Bonus every five years. Next Bonus in 1869. At the Division of Profits in 1864, the Reversionary Bonus amounted to from 15 to 50 per cent. per annum on the Premiums paid, varying with the ages of the Insured.

Copies of the Directors' Report and Balance-sheet, and every information, may be obtained at the Chief Office, or of any of the Agents of the Company.

FRANK MCGEDY, Secretary.

T T

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	456
The Council of Law Reporting	457
Correspondence	459
Court Papers.—Equity Sittings after Michaelmas Term	459

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCH, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

PRIVY COUNCIL.

By R. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.
The Norway.—(Charterparty, construction of—Delivery of cargo—Tender of freight—Waiver)....	892

COURT OF CHANCERY.

By W. W. KNOX, Barrister at Law.
Ex parte Perkins, re Perkins.—(Bankruptcy—Insolvency—Right of appeal—Provisional assignees—Costs)	895
Ex parte Edwards, re Pytherch.—(Bankruptcy—Debt incurred before certificate—Promissory note—Bankruptcy Act of 1849, sect. 204—Act of 1861, sect. 164)	896
Mortimer v. Bell.—(Vendor and purchaser—Auction—Puffers)	897

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.
John v. Lloyd.—(Practice—Reprint of bill—Discretion of officer—Consolidated Order IX, rule 18)	898

ROLLS COURT.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.
Re King.—Gilbert v. Lee.—(Executor—Costs—Improper conduct)	899
By M. BROWN, Barrister at Law.
Re Llanharry Hermitage Company (Limited).—Tot-bill's Case.—(Company—Contributory—Notice—Director)	899
Ex parte The Haytor Granite Company.—(Company—Winding up—Claim on a "contingency"—25 & 26 Vict. c. 89, s. 158)	899
Bovill v. Goodier.—(Practice—Patent—Particulars of objections)	900

VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY'S COURT.

By E. LLOYD, Barrister at Law.
Talbot v. Marshfield.—(Practice—Production of documents—Solicitor's letter-book—Protection of matter not relevant)	901

VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY.—(Continued).
Hitchin v. Hughes.—(Practice—Taking bill pro confesso—Computation of time—Vacations—Cons. Ord. XXII, rule 1, XXXVII, rule 13).....	902

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By A. RUMSEY, Barrister at Law.
Feaver v. Williams.—(Production of documents by solicitor—Production of deceased client's documents)	902
Crowther v. Evans.—(Construction—"Surviving daughters")	903
St. Paul v. Heath.—(Accumulations—Thellusson Act—Exception in sect. 2)	903
Ramsay v. Shalmerdine.—(Class—Revocation of share by codicil—Intestacy as to share—Scotch estate conveyed to be held on trusts of will—Conversion)	903
Wood v. Barker.—(Composition deed—Creditor—Undue advantage)	905

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.
Re Havelock's Trusts.—(Practice—Trustee Acts—Date of order—Death of person directed to transfer—Supplemental order)	906

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By E. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.
The Vestry of Marylebone, Apps., Viret, Resp.—(Metropolis Local Management Act, 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 120, ss. 69, 73)—Vestry, powers of—Drains, sufficiency of)	907

CROWN CASES RESERVED.

By G. FRANCIS, Barrister at Law.
Reg. v. Francis Naylor.—(Falsæ pretences—Intent to defraud)	910

COURT OF PROBATE.

By DR. MIDDLETON.
In the Goods of Edward Hampson, Deceased.—(Administration during the absence of the executor—38 Geo. 3, c. 87—20 & 21 Vict. c. 77, s. 74—21 & 22 Vict. c. 95, s. 18)	911
Edmonds v. Lower.—(Testamentary paper—Written by party interested—Improper custody—Re-hearing)	911

N O T I C E.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

RUSSELL ON CRIMES.

This day is published, in 3 vols. royal 8vo., price 5l. 15s. 6d. cloth.
A TREATISE ON CRIMES AND MISDEMEANOURS. By Sir WILLIAM OLDNALL RUSSELL, Knt., late Chief Justice of Bengal. Fourth Edition. By CHARLES SPRENGEL GREAVES, Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel.
London: Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard; H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; and W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

WILDMAN'S INTERNATIONAL LAW.

INSTITUTES OF INTERNATIONAL LAW, in Time of Peace and Time of War. By RICHARD WILDMAN, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 2 vols. 8vo. 1849-50. Price 1l. 2s. 6d. bds.
Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

In 12mo., price 12s. 6d. cloth.
THE BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861: incorporating so much as remains in force of the Bankrupt-law Consolidation Act, 1849, and of the Bankruptcy Act, 1854. With an Appendix, containing the 7 & 8 Vict. c. 70; the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 33; the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 147; the General Orders under the Bankruptcy Act, 1861; and the General Rules and Orders under the Bankrupt-law Consolidation Act, 1849, With Notes. By WILLIAM HAZLITT, of the Middle Temple, Esq., a Registrar of the Court of Bankruptcy, and HENRY PHILIP ROCHE, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

ROSCOE'S CRIMINAL EVIDENCE.—Sixth Edition.

In royal 12mo., price 30s. cloth.
ROSCOE'S DIGEST of the LAW of EVIDENCE in CRIMINAL CASES. Sixth Edition, with considerable Additions. By DAVID POWER, Esq., Q.C.
Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Publishers, London.

JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES LAW.

In 12mo., price 7s. 6d. cloth.
A SUPPLEMENT to the LAW and PRACTICE of JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES: containing the Companies Act, 1862; the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1862; and the Rules of the Court of Chancery for regulating the Mode of Proceeding under the Companies Act, 1862. With an Introduction, Practical Notes and Forms. By HENRY THRING, M.A., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
London: Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Book-sellers and Publishers.

THRING'S LAW OF JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES.

THE LAW and PRACTICE of JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES: including the Statutes of 1860 and 1862, with Notes, and the Forms required in making, administering, and winding up a Company. By HENRY THRING, Esq., Barrister at Law, Parliamentary Counsel to the Home Office. In 2 vols. 12mo. Price 15s. cloth.
Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, NOVEMBER 25, 1865.

THE CASE OF WINSOR v. THE QUEEN IN ERROR.

THIS case is so far advanced, that, though it cannot come on for argument until next term, it can be seen what will be the course of the argument on each side, and what are the points on the decision of which the result must depend. It was not without some trouble that the record was settled, and its ultimate settlement was not quite satisfactory. That which really took place, it appears (upon affidavit), was, that the jury, after four or five hours' deliberation, late on Saturday night, were sent for by the judge, and asked if they were likely to agree; to which they answered that they were not. Upon this the judge told them, that if locked up then, they would have to remain locked up all night, all Sunday, and all Sunday night—at all events, up to twelve o'clock on that night; and he then asked them if they would prefer to be locked up or to be discharged. One is not surprised to learn that at this there was a laugh, and that they at once said they desired to be discharged. Upon this they were discharged. The entry upon the record was, that the jury unanimously declared that it was impossible that they should agree. When the prisoner's counsel objected to this as by no means accurate, he was told by Mr. Justice Mellor that it could not matter, for that even if the jury had said it was impossible they could agree, they might have agreed in the next minute. This is true enough, and it immensely helps the argument for the prisoner, for it may be that they were about to agree to a verdict in her favour when interrupted by the judge. But the prisoner's counsel might have replied, that if it did not matter, why did the judge so state it? And if it was material to be stated at all, it was material to be stated correctly. However, the whole argument in favour of the prisoner upon the primary point, as to the discharge of the jury, is put in a nutshell in those words of Mr. Justice Mellor, that the jury "might have agreed to a verdict the next moment," or in the next half hour. However, the record, as it has been finally settled, states, that, on the first trial, both prisoners (Winsor and Harris) having been arraigned, and pleaded, their trial proceeded, until, at the close of the case, they were given in charge to the jury, and they retired to consider their verdict; that a few minutes before twelve o'clock on Saturday night they stated that they were wholly unable to agree; and that then the justices, "the next day being the Lord's-day, and it being necessary that on Monday they should proceed to open the commission in Cornwall, adjudged that it was necessary to, and did accordingly, discharge the jury."

It is too late now to consider how far this record is correct or consistent with the facts. The Court, when applied to upon an affidavit to amend it, said that they had no power to do so, and referred the parties to the learned judge, who declined to do so in any material respect. It is more material to deduce, from the points on which each side strove to amend the record, what will be the main arguments relied on. The prisoner's counsel chiefly objected to the statement, that the jury stated it was impossible that they should agree; and to the statement, that it was necessary that the justices (i. e. both of them) should proceed on Monday into Cornwall to open the commission there. On the other hand, the Crown counsel succeeded in introducing the statement, that the justices adjudged it to be necessary that the jury should be discharged. There will, it is obvious, be two main grounds of error assigned (or rather there have been, for the assignment of errors was to take place yesterday—Friday), viz. that the jury were unlawfully discharged, and that the trial was unlawfully postponed. Upon the first point it is pretty plain, from the way in which the record is drawn up, what are the grounds on which the Crown counsel intend to rely. It will be contended that, even assuming that as a general rule a jury cannot be discharged without necessity, it is for the judge to decide, according to his discretion, what is a case of necessity. Hence it is that they induced the judge to put upon the record the statement, that he adjudged that it was necessary to discharge the jury. If it is intended to insist that the necessity is a mere matter of discretion and practice, the Court, to affirm that, will have to overrule the case of Conway v. Reg. (7 Ir. Law Rep.), where it was held that it is necessary that the grounds of the necessity should appear on the record. For if it is matter of discretion and practice, not only it is not necessary that it should be on the record, but it is not legal or regular that it should be so, since mere matter of practice and discretion cannot be reviewed by a court of error.

If it is matter of practice, therefore, it is plain that the Crown must have judgment upon this writ of error. But, on the other hand, it cannot be matter of practice, unless the practice might vary on different assizes—that is, unless, on the assizes for one county, the practice might be in such cases to discharge the jury, and try the prisoner over again; and in another county, not to discharge the jury; or to discharge both the jury and the prisoner. This of itself seems like a reductio ad absurdum; and yet it is a strictly logical consequence of the view, that the matter is one of mere practice or discretion. For it has been laid down by a court of error, that the practice of a court is entirely under its own control, and that this is so of all matters of mere discretion. (Richardson v. Mellish, 9 Bing. 125). Hence, of necessity, it must vary in different courts; and it has lately been held that the courts of assize are separate superior courts. (Reg. v. Charlesworth, 1 B. & S. 460). The very distinction between matter of practice and matter of record and of error is, that the latter is, in the course and order of the common law, a custom of the realm, binding on all the courts; whereas the former is only the "custom of the court," and varies in different courts. In the language of pleading, in short, practice is the custom of the court; the course of the common law is the custom of the realm. If the discharge of a jury, after the case is closed, and they have final charge of the prisoner, is mere matter of discretion, then it is mere matter of practice; it might vary in different assizes; if it could not so vary, it must be because it touches the course of the common law, which any statute could alter. And the very fact that the judges of assize in this case have put on the record certain supposed grounds of necessity, shews that they could not venture to treat it as a mere matter of discretion and practice; for otherwise the mere statement, that they had adjudged a necessity, would have sufficed. Instead of this, certain grounds of necessity are carefully set forth. One is, that it was within a few minutes of Sunday. Another is, that the jury said they were not able to agree. As to the first point, it may be surmised that the counsel for the Crown intend to shape their case thus:—That Sunday is dies non juridicus, and a day on which no judicial act could be done. That the taking of a verdict, or the discharge of a jury, would be judicial acts, which could not be done on a Sunday. That the taking of a verdict is an act which, in a capital case of felony, where there cannot be a privy (i. e. a secret) verdict, must be done in open court, and so, as the Court could not sit on Sunday, could not be done on a Sunday. That, therefore, if the jury were locked up, then they would have to remain locked up all Sunday, and that as in that time there was a great probability that some of them would become ill, there was a case of impending immediate necessity, which would justify the discharge of the jury. To sustain the argument for the Crown on this point, it must, of course, be contended, not merely that Sunday is not a day on which courts of assize ordinarily sit, but that it is not competent to them, in point of law, so to sit; and that any judicial act done on that day is void. Now, even if this applies to any acts judicial, in the proper sense of the term, does it apply to acts rather ministerial, and such as could be done by the officer, as the reception of a verdict? Is a verdict void if received on a Sunday? Is it law, that if in this case the jury, at a minute after twelve o'clock on Saturday night, had returned a verdict of not guilty, it could not have been received and recorded, even although the Court remained sitting, and yet that the jury could not be discharged, but must have been kept locked up all Sunday, and discharged on Monday, and the prisoner afterwards tried again? And so of a verdict of guilty. But if the case had not closed on Saturday night, it is clear that the jury must (as in Palmer's case) have been locked up, or, at all events, kept closely together all Sunday. And in this very case it appears, that the learned judge at the trial did not consider that he could not have locked up the jury, but that he ought not to do so. But is not the Court, in contemplation of law, to be deemed to be sitting all the while the jury are locked up? And if so, then what becomes of the view that a court of gaol delivery cannot sit on a Sunday? For if the jury may be locked up on Sunday (which is admitted), and the Court, in point of law, is sitting while they are locked up, then the Court may sit on Sunday. And if, as appears not to have been doubted, the learned judge could have had the jury locked up on Sunday, is it to be seriously contended that the verdict could not have been received and recorded on a Sunday? The reception and record of a verdict is not, in the ordinary and proper sense of the term, a judicial act; for it may be done by the officer in the absence of the judge. (Bentley v. Fleming, 1 C. B. 1).

It undoubtedly is true, that ordinarily the Courts do not sit upon Sunday; and in 3 Shep. Ab. 181, it is laid down, that if any part of the proceedings in a suit of law be entered and recorded to be done on Sunday, it makes the whole void. And it has been held, that if an original writ bore date on Sunday, even the appearance of the party would not help it. (Vin. Ab., tit. "Sunday," (C.)). And it has been held in our own time, that a writ of summons dated on a Sunday is irregular. (Hanson v. Sharpleton, 4 Dowl. 48). But, then, that was apparently on the ground, that as the offices of the court were not open on a Sunday, it was impossible that the writ could have been issued on a Sunday; and that, therefore, it was in contravention of the statute, which expressly requires that the writ should bear date on the day it is issued.

In a recent case (Rouberry v. Morgan, 9 Exch. 730), where it was held that Sunday was to be reckoned in the computation of the number of days to be allowed to a defendant before the plaintiff could sign judgment, and issue execution, Mr. Justice Willes, then at the bar, thus cited the authorities on the subject:—"Sunday cannot be treated as a dies non juridicus, except it be made so by express enactment. (Com. Dig., 'Tempe.') In ancient times, this Court sat on Sunday. (2 Mad. Hist. of the Exch. 5). Formerly, where bail had eight days to render a defendant, Sunday, although the last of such days, was taken into account. (1 Tidd's Prac. 284). And in the case of the duration of term, which was provided for by the 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 70, s. 6, the event of the last day of term falling upon Sunday was expressly provided for by the 1 Will. 4, c. 3, s. 3."

Now, although it is quite true, that in a case of felony there cannot be what is called a "privy verdict"—that is, a verdict taken in secret—at the judge's lodgings, but must be in court, it may well be, that the Court may sit for the ministerial purpose of receiving the verdict, and discharging the jury, postponing the record of it until Monday. So much, however, may suffice for the first of the two main grounds of error, the discharging of the jury. As to the other, the postponement, or rather discontinuance, of the trial, it is observable, that there is no statement on the record, that the justices adjudged it to be necessary; but in order to shew that it was so, it is stated, that it was necessary that they should proceed upon the Monday into Cornwall to open the commission for that county. This was objected to by the prisoner's counsel, and with great reason; for if it was a conclusion of law, it was, even if correct, unnecessary, but in reality unfounded; if a conclusion of fact, it was equally incorrect.

Every one knows, that neither in fact nor in law is it necessary that both the judges, nor indeed that either of them, should go to the next county to open the commission. We all know, that, on the contrary, it is constantly done by one of the Queen's counsel on the commission. Nor would it be necessary that both of the judges should go into the next county at all; for it constantly happens that one of them does not go; and it so happened with this very judge, Baron Channell, when he sat a whole week at Chelmsford, after his brother judge had left.

In no sense, then, was it necessary that both judges should leave the place before the prisoners were all tried, and it is, at least, doubtful whether it was lawful to do so, the Queen's commission being to deliver the gaols, i. e. to try all the prisoners. The due discharge of the commission required that the prisoners should all be tried, and that above all, a trial once commenced would be concluded. Even assuming that the jury were rightly discharged, there was no reason, at least none stated on the record, for not proceeding with the trial on the Monday morning, or as soon as convenient; and even if it were necessary that the judge should leave, he could have returned when the Cornwall assizes were concluded. We have reason to believe that there is a general impression, that on this point, at all events, the writ of error is well founded, and that there was no sufficient reason for putting off the conclusion of the trial. It is, certainly, the most serious point of the two, for it gave the prosecution a large interval to get up a new case against the prisoner, and, in substance, gave a new trial in a capital case. The result was, that without any previous notice, one of the fellow-prisoners was called against the other. This, indeed, may be found to raise a third ground of error; the accomplice not having been acquitted, and being still a party to the record. There is a well-known rule of law which excludes evidence of the statement of one of two prisoners as against the other, unless coming within the general rule, which allows evidence of any statement made in the presence of a prisoner. The principle of that exception, however, will not apply to admit the evidence of one prisoner against the other. For the reason why any statement made before trial, in the presence of a prisoner, is admissible against that prisoner, is, that being made in his presence at a time when he may be expected to deny it if untrue—he did not deny it; and so, by implication, admitted it. But when a prisoner is on his trial, no implication of that sort is admissible; for he is not expected to say anything as to what is testified against him; and in law, his statement would not be evidence against him, as it is, when made before trial.

And, on the other hand, the evidence of a fellow-prisoner upon her trial—therefore neither acquitted nor convicted—is open to the most obvious exception on the ground of interest, and there is no statute which admits the evidence of parties to the record in criminal cases. On the contrary, the statutes on the subject (see the 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100) expressly except criminal cases. Unless, therefore, the evidence of parties to the record is admissible at common law against fellow-prisoners—as it appears upon the record that Harris, the fellow-prisoner, was examined against Winsor without being acquitted, and while both remained parties to the record—upon this ground alone, if not upon the others, the judgment may probably be reversed. We never yet heard of such a thing as calling one prisoner, while yet upon his trial, against another prisoner in a case of felony; and if it be indeed admissible, it will work a startling alteration in our criminal procedure. In a civil case, before the statute making parties to the record witnesses, it is well known that a defendant would not be admitted as a witness before acquittal, and a verdict of acquittal was always taken before the evidence was received. The principle was, of course, that the interest would be so great as to render the evidence untrustworthy. That objection has been got rid of in civil cases, but only a statute could get rid of it; and it remains unaltered in criminal cases, which are expressly excepted from the operation of the statute. The reason of the objection is a hundred thousand times stronger, of course, in a criminal case, and, above all, in a capital case. The temptation is terrible, while the rope is over the head of a criminal, to throw the guilt upon another. In this instance, the case against Winsor was mainly based upon the evidence of Harris, who saved herself by convicting her fellow-prisoner. Had she been acquitted she would have had no interest. As it is, upon legal principles, probable that her evidence may have been a tissue of perjuries, this probability is the reason why the evidence of forgers is not admissible. The law deems the temptations to perjury so irresistible as to render the evidence worthless. But if worthless for exculpation, it is obviously worse than worthless for inculpation. If unsafe to acquit, it is surely perilous to convict upon such evidence. This, perhaps, may turn out to be the real and substantial ground of error, though it is, as we have seen, closely connected with the other, as the putting off of the trial.

THE COUNCIL OF LAW REPORTING.

In some remarks on the proceedings of the council, which appeared in our number for the 11th November, we urged that they could not allege the terms of the bar scheme as an excuse for their refusal to make the very reasonable concession required by the authorised reporters in the Queen's Bench and Exchequer, while they were actually deviating from the scheme in much more important particulars. They have now issued a defence, which is equally uncandid and insufficient. It runs thus:—

"The council did not obtain the names of 2000 subscribers, or a subscription of 10,500*l.*, by the 15th day of June last, as contemplated by Sir Fitzroy Kelly's preliminary address, issued to the profession, and dated the 11th day of March, 1865. The opposition of existing interests, having two, at least, of the weekly legal periodicals at their command, sufficiently accounted for the fact. Instead, however, of proposing an increased subscription, as authorised by the 22nd clause of the bar scheme, the council, at the urgent request of several subscribers and leading members of the profession, resolved to act upon the 27th clause of the scheme, which sanctioned a contract 'with one or more publishers or printers, who should undertake all the trouble and risk of the publication, sale, and distribution of the reports, receive the subscriptions, pay all expenses, and account to the council quarterly,' if any publisher or printer would come forward with an offer for that purpose.

"The council, as representing the profession in a matter of public concern, were anxious to receive, and hoped that they might have received, some offer from the London law publishers. They, however, decided for themselves, that their interests required them to oppose rather than assist the council, and that (using their own words, in an address recently issued by them, and extensively circulated, and now published in 'The Jurist' of the 11th November instant), 'as prudent men of business, they could not be expected to adopt or encourage an enterprise which seemed to be deficient in the elements of financial success.' The council very much regretted, and still very much regret, this decision; but they had no power to influence or change it.

"In July last, the council received a proposal from Messrs. W. Clowes & Sons, of Stamford-street, printers, offering to undertake, for the period of three years, from the 1st November instant, the publication, sale, and distribution of the reports, for a commission of moderate amount, and further offering (provided the council were in a position, out of the subscriptions, to pay the commission and the first moiety of the salaries of the editors and reporters, which, by the bar scheme, was proposed to be guaranteed) to take upon themselves the entire risk of the subscriptions being sufficient, over and above such commission and first moiety of salaries, to pay the charges for paper and printing, such charges being fixed beforehand at agreed prices. This proposal was carefully considered, and the council, having received from the profession offers of subscription to an amount exceeding the sums required for such commission and the first moiety of the salaries, the proposal was ultimately accepted.

"As a further security to the editors and reporters, a private guarantee fund, amounting now to upwards of 2000*l.* per annum, for the same period of three years, has been raised by members of the profession, in which the Lord Chancellor, Lord Justice Turner, Vice-Chancellor Kindersley, Vice-Chancellor Wood, the Attorney-General, and many of the leading members of the bar, have concurred. These financial arrangements have given entire satisfaction to all parties directly interested, and are, beyond all cavil, within the authority given to the council by the 27th and 28th clauses of the scheme."

After stating that the greater part of the authorised reporters have joined them, and that the arrangements with Mr. Moore are still pending, the address proceeds:—

"With reference to the remaining three of the fourteen sets of authorised reports, namely, those of Mr. Beavan at the Rolls, Messrs. Best and Smith in the Queen's Bench, and Messrs. Hurlstone and Coltman in the Exchequer, these gentlemen have declined to accept appointments under the council, though strongly solicited to do so, and prefer to continue their reports as separate publications. The council have, therefore, appointed other gentlemen reporters in those several courts."

Now, the point of the difficulty with Messrs. Best and Smith, and Hurlstone and Coltman, was, that those gentlemen declined to surrender their independent position for one dependent on the caprice of a council, which already appears to be capable of acting unfairly, while the council insisted that they had no authority to deviate one tittle from the letter of the scheme of the bar committee. We shewed, that in launching the reports with an insufficient subscription list, the council were departing far more widely from the terms of their authority. Their answer is, that on the failure of the subscription, "instead of proposing an increased subscription, as authorised by the 22nd clause of the bar scheme, they resolved to act upon the 27th clause of the scheme,"—as if the 22nd and the 27th clauses were alternative. The 22nd clause is imperative,—that if the subscriptions, inclusive of any advance that may be obtained from Government, fall short of 10,000*l.*, an increased subscription shall be proposed. And the 27th clause is equally imperative,—that if the first moiety of the salaries is not advanced by Government, it shall be made part of the contract with the publishers of the reports that they shall make the advance, and be reimbursed out of the proceeds of the sale in priority to all other claims, according to the provisions of the 28th clause respecting the application of the proceeds of sales; whereas advances by the Government were to be postponed to the expenses of publication and sale, and to the secretary's salary and council expenses; and the Government were to be looked to as customers, taking a considerable number of copies. "These financial arrangements are, beyond all cavil, within the authority given to the council by the 27th and 28th clauses of the scheme." To assert that, "beyond all cavil," the council have not infringed clauses 27 and 28, is no answer to the charge that they are acting in defiance of clauses 21 and 22—which, after all, is no charge at all, but only a refutation of the excuse uncandidly put forward for their unfair and impolitic behaviour to the outstanding reporters. If they were acting fairly and wisely in the spirit of the scheme, no one would insist on the observance of the letter. The council, so religiously observant of the text where it gives them arbitrary power, are yet prepared to apply the subscriptions and guarantees towards supporting a speculation for publishing acts of Parliament, of which the bar scheme makes no mention.

With respect to the complaint of the booksellers, the defence of the council is not merely uncandid, it is positively untrue:—"The council, as representing the profession in a matter of public concern, were anxious to receive, and hoped that they might have received, some offer from the London law publishers. They, however, decided for themselves, that their interests required them to oppose rather than to assist the council, and that (using their own words, in an address recently issued by them, and extensively circulated, and now published in the 'The Jurist' of the 11th November instant), 'as prudent men of business, they could not be expected to adopt or encourage an enterprise which seemed to be deficient in the elements of financial success.' The council very much regretted, and still very much regret, this decision; but they had no power to influence or change it." On reference to the booksellers' address, it will be seen that the words quoted from it by the council refer to a transaction completed before the council existed—before even the outline was sketched of the scheme to which it owes its being—an application by the bar committee, during their preliminary inquiries, for a return by the publishers of their profit and loss accounts in relation to the authorised reports, the Jurist, &c. Perhaps, the bar committee, being appointed to inquire, could not do otherwise than ask for that information; but assuredly they never expected, or were entitled to expect, that it would be given to them. If before July last, when the contract was concluded with Messrs. Clowes, the council expected to receive "some offer" from the law publishers, they had strange notions of business. Under any circumstances the offer must have come from the council. The publishers were to throw overboard the reports, authorised and unauthorised, in the printing, publishing, and selling of which they were interested, either as proprietors or as agents or tradesmen. If it was incumbent on them to volunteer to do this, as the council suggest, at least they could not stir until the 10,000*l.* was subscribed, and the council were authorised to act. According to the terms of the bar scheme, by which the council profess to be bound, the time has not yet arrived at which the publishers could properly make an offer. But the council took very good care that no offer should ever be made, by proposing, through one of their members, terms, which were indirectly obviously inadmissible, and were entirely different from those given immediately afterwards, and long before the result of the proposals for subscriptions could be ascertained, to Messrs. Clowes. It is for the council to explain the cause of their hostility to the law publishers, who certainly never set themselves in opposition to the bar scheme, nor to the council, until they were at once affronted and threatened by the improvident contract with Messrs. Clowes. On the contrary, of the four firms who signed the address to the council, two were the absolute proprietors of "The Jurist" which warmly advocated the object of the bar scheme, and was ever open, and was the only weekly legal periodical open, as a medium of communication between the council and the profession—the other weekly law periodicals refusing even to admit their advertisements on payment. The proprietors of "The Jurist" had the power to silence that advocate, and to close that convenient avenue. But they felt that the question was one which concerned the interests of the profession, and, little expecting that those interests would be committed to such incompetent hands, they were prepared to withdraw "The Jurist" from the field without seeking compensation, as soon as the bar scheme came into operation. Of the other two firms, one has been neutral, and the other owns the "Law Magazine," from which also the bar scheme and the council have received material support.

The profession have been congratulated on the extinction of the "New Reports," as a consequence of the council's operations. We believe that the suggested cause was not guilty of the small effect. The series was well known to be moribund, and the feeble attack on "The Jurist" was regarded as its dying kick. But, the "New Reports" being dead, the council promise a substitute, in the form of a weekly series, at 2l. per annum. They were called into existence in order to take the best means for suppressing the nuisance of six competing series of reports, and the result is, that we are still to have six series, competing more vigorously than ever, and a seventh series of common-law reports! The council's weekly set of reports are "not intended for citation as authority." Alas! the privilege of non-citation is as unattainable as that of exclusive citation; the judges declare that they cannot refuse to listen to any report that appears to have been prepared by a barrister.

Correspondence.

THE NEW SCHEME OF LAW REPORTING.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE JURIST."

Sir,—An impression prevails that the new scheme of law reporting has received the approval of the judges of the superior courts of common law; and the council have within the last few days published a circular, without date, containing a statement that the judges of the Courts of Queen's Bench and Exchequer "have not expressed any formal approval of the appointments made by the council, but at the same time have not intimated any disapproval or objection to them; and the council feel themselves justified in assuming that the appointments are free from all possible objection."

This statement is scarcely candid; and it is important that the profession should be made acquainted with the truth.

The address of the council to the Lord Chancellor and Judges concludes as follows:—"The council, by this address, respectfully and earnestly request the sanction and support of the judges, for the following purposes:—

"1st. That the judges will approve of the appointment of the several gentlemen named as reporters to the several courts for which they have been selected.

"2ndly. That the judges will be pleased to permit the editors and reporters to have access to, and the use of, their written judgments, and all such papers as the judges can control; and will also, so far as convenient and agreeable to the judges themselves, revise their unwritten judgments before publication.

"And 3rdly, that the judges will recognise the editors and reporters as members of the bar exercising a professional privilege for a public object, under responsibility, through the council, to the judges, the bar, and the profession at large." (See The Jurist, Nov. 11, p. 440).

In answer to this request, the Court of Queen's Bench, in the plainest terms, declare their determination not to interfere, directly or indirectly, in the matter, or withdraw from Messrs. Best and Smith the privilege they have hitherto enjoyed as the authorised reporters of the court; and a precisely similar course has been adopted by the Court of Exchequer, with respect to my colleague, Mr. Coltman, and myself.

In the circular to which I have alluded, the council give a list of authorised reporters whose reports will cease to exist, as separate publications, from the commencement of the present Michaelmas Term. Amongst these are the Common Bench Reports, by Scott. This might lead the profession to suppose that the long-established series of authorised reports in that court had ceased. Such, however, is not the fact; and that series will, with the approbation of the Court, be continued by Messrs. O. B. C. Harrison and H. Rutherford, the first part of whose reports will appear early in the ensuing year.

I remain your obedient servant,

E. T. HURLSTONE.

5, Crown-office-row, Temple,
Nov. 23, 1865.

Court Papers.

EQUITY SITTINGS, AFTER MICHAELMAS TERM, 1865.

Before the LORD CHANCELLOR.

At Lincoln's Inn.

Monday	Dec. 4	{ First Seal.—Appeal Motions and Appeals.
Tuesday	5	{ Appeals.
Wednesday	6	{ Petitions, Appeals in Bankruptcy, and Appeals.
Thursday	7	{ Appeals.
Friday	8
Saturday	9
Monday	11
Tuesday	12	{ Appeals in Bankruptcy and Appeals.
Wednesday	13
Thursday	14	{ Second Seal.—Appeal Motions and Appeals.
Friday	15	{ Appeals.
Saturday	16
Monday	18
Tuesday	19
Wednesday	20	{ Appeals in Bankruptcy and Appeals.
Thursday	21	{ Third Seal.—Appeal Motions and Appeals.
Friday	22	{ Appeals.
Saturday	23	{ Petitions and Appeals.

Before the LORDS JUSTICES.

At Lincoln's Inn.

Monday	Dec. 4	{ First Seal.—Appeal Motions and Appeals.
Tuesday	5	{ Appeals.
Wednesday	6
Thursday	7
Friday	8
		{ Petitions in Lunacy, Appeal Petitions, and Appeals.

Saturday	9	} Appeals.
Monday	11
Tuesday	12
Wednesday	13	} Second Seal.—Appeal Motions and Appeals.
Thursday	14
Friday	15
Saturday	16	} Appeals.
Monday	18
Tuesday	19
Wednesday	20	} Third Seal.—Appeal Motions and Appeals.
Thursday	21
Friday	22
Saturday	23	} Petitions in Lunacy, Appeal Petitions, and Appeals.
Monday	24
Tuesday	25

Notice.—The days (if any) on which the Lords Justices shall be engaged in the full Court, or at the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, are excepted.

Before the MASTER OF THE ROLLS.

At Chancery-lane.

Monday Dec. 4	} First Seal.—Motions and General Paper.
Tuesday
Wednesday 6
Thursday	} General Paper.
Friday
Saturday
Monday	} Petitions, Short Causes, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Tuesday
Wednesday 13
Thursday	} Second Seal.—Motions and General Paper.
Friday
Saturday
Monday	} General Paper.
Tuesday
Wednesday 20
Thursday	} Third Seal.—Motions and General Paper.
Friday
Saturday

N. B.—Unopposed Petitions must be presented, and copies left with the Secretary, on or before the Thursday preceding the Saturday on which it is intended they should be heard; and any Causes intended to be heard as Short Causes must be so marked at least one clear day before the same can be put in the paper to be so heard.

Before the Vice-Chancellor Sir RICHARD T. KINDERSLEY.

At Lincoln's Inn.

Monday Dec. 4	} First Seal.—Motions, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Tuesday
Wednesday 6
Thursday	} General Paper.
Friday
Saturday
Monday	} Petitions, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Tuesday
Wednesday 13
Thursday	} Second Seal.—Motions, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Friday
Saturday
Monday	} General Paper.
Tuesday
Wednesday 20
Thursday	} Third Seal.—Motions and General Paper.
Friday
Saturday

Monday.....	18	} General Paper.
Tuesday.....	19
Wednesday ...	20
Thursday	21	} Third Seal.—Motions, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper. Petitions, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Friday	22
Saturday	23

N. B.—Any Causes intended to be heard as Short Causes must be so marked at least one clear day before the same can be put in the paper to be so heard.

Before the Vice-Chancellor Sir JOHN STUART.

At Lincoln's Inn.

Monday Dec. 4	} First Seal.—Motions and Causes.
Tuesday
Wednesday 6
Thursday	} Causes.
Friday
Saturday
Monday	} Petitions and Causes.
Tuesday
Wednesday 13
Thursday	} Short Causes and Causes.
Friday
Saturday
Monday	} Causes.
Tuesday
Wednesday 20
Thursday	} Second Seal.—Motions and Causes.
Friday
Saturday
Monday	} Petitions and Causes.
Tuesday
Wednesday 27
Thursday	} Short Causes and Causes.
Friday
Saturday

N. B.—Any Causes intended to be heard as Short Causes, must be so marked at least one clear day before the same can be put in the paper to be so heard.

No Cause, Motion for Decree, or Further Consideration, except by order of the Court, may be marked to stand over, if it shall be within twelve of the last cause or matter in the printed paper of the day for hearing.

Before the Vice-Chancellor Sir W. P. WOOD.

At Lincoln's Inn.

Monday Dec. 4	} First Seal.—Motions and General Paper.
Tuesday
Wednesday 6
Thursday	} General Paper.
Friday
Saturday
Monday	} Petitions, Short Causes, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Tuesday
Wednesday 13
Thursday	} General Paper.
Friday
Saturday
Monday	} Second Seal.—Motions and General Paper.
Tuesday
Wednesday 20
Thursday	} General Paper.
Friday
Saturday
Monday	} Third Seal.—Motions and General Paper.
Tuesday
Wednesday 27
Thursday	} General Paper.
Friday
Saturday

N. B.—Any Causes intended to be heard as Short Causes, must be so marked at least one clear day before the same can be put in the paper to be so heard.

The Jurist

No. 569, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.
No. 1508, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

DECEMBER 2, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

LAW.—A Gentleman, admitted in 1860, wishes to take the MANAGEMENT of a small London or Country Business, with a view to buying a Share of the Business. Address, Lex, care of Messrs. Oxford & Co., 8, Craig's-court, Charing-cross.

LAW.—WANTED, by a Gentleman (admitted), an ENGAGEMENT to MANAGE the CONVEYANCING DEPARTMENT of an established Office. Good references. Address, A. B., care of Mr. Maclaren, 13, Serle-street, Lincoln's-inn, W. C.

LAW PARTNERSHIP.—In consequence of the Senior Partner retiring, a very eligible opportunity for a PARTNERSHIP in a large Commercial Town, in a highly-respectable Practice of twenty-five years' standing, is offered. The Business consists of Conveyancing, Common Law, and Chancery. No one need apply who is not thoroughly competent to manage business without any supervision whatever, and it is indispensable that he should be a person of gentlemanly address. To such the opening may be considered very advantageous. The strictest references, testimonials, &c. will be required. Letters will not be answered in cases where the application is not entertained.

Address, Lex, care of Messrs. Hawkins & Co., 2, New Bowtell-court, Lincoln's-inn.

LAW EXAMINATIONS.—A Solicitor of ability eight of whose Pupils obtained Honours at one Final Examination, has CLASSES READING for HILARY and EASTER TERMS NEXT. Private Guides for Intermediate Pupils.—For particulars apply to Wm. AMER, Lincoln's-inn-gate, W. C.

FOUR-AND-A-HALF TERMINABLE STOCK.—THE BRISTOL AND EXETER RAILWAY COMPANY is issuing the remainder of its TERMINABLE PREFERENCE STOCK, bearing Interest, payable half-yearly, at 4½ per cent. per annum, till the 31st December, 1870, when the Stock is to be paid off at par, unless otherwise agreed, at the option of the holder. Applications to be made to the Secretary, Bristol, from whom further particulars may be obtained.

A. MOORE, Secretary.

THE TELEGRAM, No. 28, price 1s., post-free, just published, containing an Epitome of the County Court Equity Jurisdiction Act, and Answers to the Questions at this Term's Final Examination. By H. WAKEHAM PURKIS, Esq.

Wm. Amer, Law Publisher, Lincoln's-inn-gate, W. C.

Just published, in 1 vol. crown 8vo., price 6s. 6d. cloth, QUESTIONS FOUNDED ON LORD ST. LEONARDS' TREATISE ON THE LAW OF VENDORS AND PURCHASERS. Designed and prepared principally for the Use of Students for the Bar, and Articled Clerks preparing for Admission as Solicitors. By T. BAKER MAY, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

NEW EDITION OF ELMER'S PRACTICE in LUNACY, with Notes of Cases, Forms, Costs, Statutes, General Orders, and a Copious Index. Price 16s. 6d. cloth.

Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

TWENTIETH ANNUAL ISSUE.

This day is published,

THE LAWYER'S COMPANION, DIARY, and LONDON AND PROVINCIAL LAW DIRECTORY for 1866; containing The Companies Act, 1862, with an Introduction, Analysis, and Index; an Abstract of the most important Acts of the Session of 1865; and the New Orders and Rules for regulating the Practice of the County Courts, 1865. With a Scale of Costs and Charges to be paid to Counsel and Attorneys in the County Courts under the Provisions of the Statute 28 & 29 Vict. c. 29. Edited by FREDERICK LAWRENCE, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

The Work is bound in cloth, lettered on back and side, and may be had as under:—

No. 1. Plain, two days on a page	5 0
2. The above, interleaved	7 0
3. Ruled with or without money columns	5 6
4. The above, interleaved	8 0
5. Plain, whole page to a day	7 6
6. The above, interleaved	9 6
7. Whole page to a day, ruled with or without money columns	8 6
8. The above, interleaved	10 6
9. Ruled blue lines, without money columns, three days on a page	5 0

London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

No. 569, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

Preparing for Publication,

FOR THE USE OF STUDENTS,

QUESTIONS ON the SEVENTH EDITION of WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY. By the AUTHOR.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

EQUITABLE JURISDICTION OF THE COUNTY COURTS.

Just published, price 5s. boards,

A SUPPLEMENT to POLLOCK & NICOL'S COUNTY COURT PRACTICE: containing the Equitable Jurisdiction Act (28 & 29 Vict. c. 99). With Orders, Forms, Costs, Fees, and the Trustee Acts, &c. By C. E. POLLOCK & H. NICOL, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

JOSHUA WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY.

Just published, the Seventh Edition, in 1 vol. 8vo., price 20s. cloth.

PRINCIPLES of the LAW of REAL PROPERTY, intended as a first Book for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, one of her Majesty's Counsel.

Henry Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, London.

Price 5s. cloth boards,

A HANDY-BOOK of the LAW of COPYRIGHT, comprising Literary, Dramatic, and Musical Copyright, and Copyright in Engravings, Sculpture, and Works of Art. With an Appendix, containing the Statutes, Convention with France, and Forms under the 25 & 26 Vict. c. 68. By F. P. CHAPPELL and JOHN SHOARD, LL.D.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

The Sixth Edition, now ready, price 21s. cloth boards,

HAYES AND JARMAN'S CONCISE FORMS OF WILLS, with Practical Notes: a Popular View of the Statute of Wills, and Suggestions to Persons taking Instructions for and preparing Wills; the Decisions on the Wills Acts, and other Testamentary Matters, in the House of Lords and Privy Council; and in the Equity, Common Law, Ecclesiastical, and Probate Courts, down to the Time of Publication; and many additional Forms. Sixth Edition. By THOMAS S. BADGER EASTWOOD, of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, M.A., and of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law, Reader on the Law of Real Property to the Four Inns of Court.

London: H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street, Law Bookseller and Publisher.

Just published, price 13s. cloth,

WINDING UP, FORMATION, INCORPORATION, and REGISTRATION of JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES. With Costs, Table of Cases, &c. By J. S. TAYLOR, Esq.

Wm. Amer, Lincoln's-inn-gate, Carey-street, W. C.

This day is published, in crown 8vo., pp. 177, price 4s. 6d. cloth, lettered,

ROUSE'S MANUAL of the COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION (under the 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99); comprising a Summary of the Act; a Short Treatise on each Subject of Jurisdiction; a Summary of the Trustees Relief Acts, and Trustee Acts, and the Decisions thereon; and Appendices, containing the County Courts Equitable Jurisdiction Act, the Trustees Relief Acts, the Trustee Acts, &c.; County Court Orders and Forms in Equity; and a Scale of Costs and Charges.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, in medium 8vo., price 11. 5s. cloth,

A MANUAL of CIVIL LAW; containing a Translation of, and Commentary on the Fragments of the XII Tables and the Institutes of Justinian; the Text of the Institutes of Gaius and Justinian. Arranged in parallel columns; and the Text of the Fragments of Ulpian, and of Selections from Paul's Recipient Sententiae. By PATRICK CUMIN, M.A., Balliol College, Oxford, Barrister at Law. Second Edition, enlarged.

London: Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn. Oxford: J. H. & J. Parker. Cambridge: Deighton, Bell, & Co. Edinburgh: T. & T. Clark. Dublin: Hodges, Smith, & Co.

In 1 vol. large 8vo., price 35s., the Fifth Edition of

THE LAW of CONTRACTS. By C. G. ADDISON, Esq., Barrister at Law, Author of "The Law of Torts."

London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

U U

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	468
Correspondence	465
Review	468
Calls to the Bar	468

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INGH, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF CHANCERY.

By W. W. KNOX, Barrister at Law.

Jones v. Lock.—(Imperfect gift—Trust—Parol declaration—Volunteer).....	918
------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

Clarke v. Clark.—(Injunction—Light and air—Building obstruction).....	914
-----------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Re The Bank of Gibraltar and Malta (Limited).—(Company—Winding up—Voluntary winding up—Winding up under supervision).....	916
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

ROLLS COURT.

By M. BROWNE, Barrister at Law.

Henniker v. Chafy.—(Practice—Petition—Lands Clauses Act, 1845—Costs of trustees' appearance).....	919
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

Re Gratwick.—(Power of appointment—Bequest not referring to power).....	919
-------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY'S COURT.

By E. LLOYD, Barrister at Law.

Re The Leeds Banking Company, ex parte Prange.—(Bill of exchange—Notice of dishonour to indorser—Agency by reference "in case of need"—Time).....	920
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By A. RUMERY, Barrister at Law.

Daly v. Nalder.—(Sale of equity of redemption—Mortgagee).....	921
---------------------------------------------------------------	-----

Campbell v. The Attorney-General.—(Practice—Examination de bene esse—Aged witnesses out of the jurisdiction).....	922
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

Brown v. Thompson.—Brown v. Dewick.—Brown v. Dewick.—(Construction—Decree of several persons "respectively"—Gift over to "their" children).....	922
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.—(Continued.)

Cooper v. Wells.—(Construction—"Receipt sufficient discharge").....	923
---------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Daw v. Eley.—(Practice—Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852—15 & 16 Vict. c. 83—Particulars of objections—Evidence—Vivd voce examination of witnesses—Address of counsel).....	923
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

Smith v. Barnes.—(Practice—Production of documents—Mortgages—Release of equity of redemption—Trustees).....	924
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVETT, Barrister at Law.

Asher and Wife v. Whitlock.—(Waste land, enclosure of—Devisable interest).....	926
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By H. RUTHERFORD, Barrister at Law.

Tamvaco v. Simpson.—(Charterparty—Advance of freight by bill of exchange—Bankruptcy of acceptor before delivery of cargo, and before maturity of bill—Stoppage in transitu—Damages—Trove).....	926
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

Pettitward v. The Metropolitan Board of Works.—(Commissioners of Sewers—Metropolitan Board of Works—Transfer of liabilities—11 & 12 Vict. c. 112—18 & 19 Vict. c. 120, ss. 145, 146, 148, and 181).....	928
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

By W. BRANDT, Barrister at Law.

Savin v. The Hoyalake Railway Company.—(Gratuitous service—Claim under private act).....	934
Sutton v. The South-eastern Railway Company.—(Injunction—Charges for packed parcels).....	935

COURT OF PROBATE.

By DR. MIDDLETON.

In the Goods of Augusta Jane Hay, Deceased.—(Administration—Deceased's marriage dissolved—Infant child—Guardian).....	936
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. O., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

RUSSELL ON CRIMES.

This day is published, in 8 vols. royal 8vo., price 51. 10s. 6d. cloth.
A TREATISE ON CRIMES AND MISDEMEANOURS. By Sir WILLIAM OLDNALL RUSSELL, Knt., late Chief Justice of Bengal. Fourth Edition. By CHARLES SPENCER GREAVES, Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel.
London: Stevens & Sons, 25, Bell-yard; H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; and W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, price 7s. cloth boards.

A TREATISE ON ARRANGEMENTS WITH CREDITORS under the BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1861. With Precedents. To which are added, the Sections of the Bankruptcy Acts, 1849 and 1861, and the Rules and Orders relating thereto. With a full Index. By WILLIAM DOWNS GRIFFITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 25, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

BY AUTHORITY.

Price 8s. cloth boards.

PROCEDURE in the STANNARIES of CORNWALL and DEVON. Containing the New Rules and Orders for Regulating the Practice, both at Equity and Common Law, of the Court of the Vice-Warden of the Stannaries; and the recent Statutes for establishing and extending its Jurisdiction. Preceded by Observations on the Power of the Court in relation to Mining Associations and Partnerships in the Counties of Cornwall and Devon.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street; and Stevens & Sons, 25, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

PETTY SESSIONS PRACTICE.

In thick 12mo., price 10s. cloth, lettered.

STONE'S PRACTICE OF PETTY SESSIONS. With the Statutes, a List of Summary Convictions, and an Appendix of Forms. Seventh Edition. By THOMAS BELL and EDWIN W. CAVE, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. With a Supplement, bringing the Statutes and Cases up to 1885. 12mo., price 15s. cloth.

"It is remarkable for a rare combination of conciseness and clearness in the composition, which have recommended it to magistrates who have not been educated as lawyers, and to whom, therefore, the books written for the use of lawyers are often obscure by reason of their technicalities. The present edition have preserved this characteristic of Mr. Stone's volume in their own abundant additions to it."—Law Times.

"The Supplement may be had by itself, price 5s. boards.
Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Publishers.

ROSCOE'S CRIMINAL EVIDENCE—SIXTH EDITION.

In royal 12mo., price 30s. cloth.

ROSCOE'S DIGEST OF THE LAW OF EVIDENCE in CRIMINAL CASES. Sixth Edition, with considerable Additions. By DAVID POWER, Esq., Q.C.
Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Publishers, London.

SMITH'S MERCANTILE LAW.

In royal 8vo., price 11. 10s. cloth boards.

A COMPENDIUM OF MERCANTILE LAW. By J. W. SMITH, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law. Seventh Edition. By G. M. DOWDSEWELL, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law.
London: Stevens & Sons, No. 25, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn; H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; and W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, DECEMBER 2, 1865.

THE goodwill of a partnership business is a partnership asset, to be sold in case of a dissolution, so far as that can be done without imposing restrictions upon any of the late partners. Lord Rosslyn's decision to the contrary in Hammond v. Douglas (5 Ves. 536) is clearly not law; and Burfield v. Rouch (31 Beav. 241) seems to be also wrong. (See 15 Ves. 227). But as a retiring partner, or, in case of a dissolution, the late partners, cannot be prevented from carrying on the same business in the same neighbourhood, and soliciting the custom of those who dealt with the late firm, the goodwill is practically valueless, save so far as it may be attached to, and sold with, the house or place in which the business was carried on, or the right to use the partnership firm. Thus, where the business of tobacco brokers was carried on by two brothers, under the firm of A. & W. Grant, A. Grant being either the principal, or a partner with W. Grant, who assisted him either as clerk or as partner in the management of the business, and was ostensibly a partner, and after A. Grant's death continued to carry on the business in the same house, and it was proved that the business could not have been sold as annexed to the house or otherwise, unless W. Grant would covenant not to carry on business in the neighbourhood, it was held, that W. Grant, although he had acted as executor of his brother, and had employed part of the assets in the business, was not accountable to the estate for the value of the goodwill. (Davies v. Hodgson, 25 Beav. 177; see Cook v. Collingridge, Jac. 607; Coll. Part. 174; 27 Beav. 456). And in another case, where a partnership, carried on by W. Johnson and J. Johnson, under the firm of S. Johnson & Sons, had been dissolved by the death of one of the partners, it was held, that it would be wrong, in putting up the partnership property and business for sale as a going concern, to add the words, "with the exclusive right in the purchaser to hold himself out as the successor to the firm," because the survivor might set up in the same street, and call himself the surviving partner. (Johnson v. Hellely, 10 Jur. N. S.; part 1, p. 1041: 34 L. J., Ch., 35).

In the last-cited case it seems to have been assumed, that the Court could sell the right to use the late partnership firm as a partnership asset; and for this there is some authority. The ground for the establishment of the doctrine was in some measure cleared by the decision in Webster v. Webster (3 Swanst. 491; note); where John Webster, an executor of James Webster, applied for an injunction to restrain David Webster and James Wedderburn, his co-executors, from using the name of the testator in the trade carried on by the defendants, and the injunction was refused, on the ground that no injury could, from such use, accrue to the testator's estate or representative; and that the plaintiff has no right to interfere on behalf of the public. In Lewis v. Langdon (7 Sim. 421),

T. Brookman and J. Langdon had carried on business as lead pencil makers, at No. 28, Great Russell-street, under the firm of Brookman & Langdon. After the deaths of the original partners, W. Langdon, the executor and residuary legatee of the surviving partner, carried on the business at the same place and under the same firm. After his death, intestate, F. Langdon, his widow and administratrix, and James Lewis, as his sole next of kin, carried on the business at the same place, and under the same firm. On the death of the widow, James Lewis and another carried on the business, at No. 58, Great Russell-street, under the firm of James Lewis & Co., successors to Brookman & Langdon, and Augustus Langdon, one of the executors of the widow, commenced business as a pencil maker at No. 27, Great Russell-street, under the firm of Brookman & Langdon. The Vice-Chancellor restrained him from using that firm, and expressed his approval of Lord Rosslyn's decree in Hammond v. Douglas, observing, that if the goodwill is to be considered as a saleable article, which belongs to the partnership, then it must follow that the surviving partner is under an obligation to carry on the trade for some time after his partner's death, in order that the thing which is said to be saleable may be preserved until it can be sold*. If the surviving partner discontinued the business, and announced that it was at an end, the goodwill would cease to exist; and as the Court could not compel him to continue it, the goodwill is practically in his power, and therefore must be his. It was, therefore, the right of the surviving partner to continue the business, and the use of the partnership name; and his doing so was no fraud upon the public.

In Churton v. Douglas (Johns. 174), the defendant John Douglas, and the plaintiffs Churton and Bankart, had carried on business as stuff merchants at Bradford, under the firm of John Douglas & Co. The defendant retired, in order to carry on business at Manchester, and sold his share and interest in the business, and the goodwill thereof, to Churton & Bankart, and Hirst, and notice of the dissolution of the old partnership, and that the business would be carried on under the firm of "Churton, Bankart, & Hirst (late John Douglas & Co.)." Subsequently the defendant commenced business in partnership with three persons, who left the service of the plaintiffs to join him, under the firm of John Douglas & Co., and carried on the business at a warehouse adjoining that of the plaintiffs. Sir W. P. Wood, V. C., granted an injunction to restrain the defendant from carrying on the business of a stuff merchant under the firm of John Douglas & Co. His Honor said, "Goodwill, I apprehend, must mean every advantage; every positive advantage, if I may so express it, as contrasted with the negative advantage of the late partner not carrying on the business himself; that has been acquired by the old firm in carrying on its business, whether connected with the premises in which the business was previously carried on, or with the name of the late firm, or with any other matter carrying with it the benefit of the business. . . . The name of a firm is a very important part of the goodwill of the business carried on by the firm. A person says, 'I have always bought good articles at such a house of business; I know it by that name, and I send to the house of business identified by that name for that purpose.' There are cases every day in this court with regard to the use of the name of a particular firm, connected generally, no doubt, with the question of trade-mark. But the question of trade-mark is, in fact, the same question. The firm stamps its name on the articles. . . . That the name is an important part of the goodwill of a business is obvious, when we consider that there are at this moment large banking firms, and brewing firms, and others in this metropolis which do not contain a single member of the individual name exposed in the firm." His Honor, then advertising to the argument, that the plaintiffs could not, by purchasing the goodwill, acquire the right of using the firm of John Douglas & Co. simpliciter, as that might inconvenience the defendant, said, "That argument may be very true, but the answer is, that the plaintiffs have never asserted any such right. They have never claimed the right to call themselves John Douglas & Co. simpliciter. They applied to the defendant for leave so to call themselves, and he declined to give them such leave." The judgment was rested partly on the conduct of the defendant in withdrawing the plaintiffs' servants, and on his circular, from which it was inferred that he represented himself as continuing the old business; and, as his Honor expressly stated in his judgment, that he did not rely on the fact of the use of the firm as the only ingredient in the case, the case can only be classed with those in which the Court gives relief against misrepresentation, and cannot be relied on as establishing the proposition, that the sale of the goodwill of a firm without more disables the vendor or a stranger from carrying on a similar business under the same firm, although it is exactly descriptive of the person or persons so carrying on the business. As it has been settled that the mere sale by John Smith of the goodwill of his business does not prevent him from setting up in the same business, in the same street, under the name of John Smith, it would seem that such a sale would imply no other restriction upon the vendor's right to carry on business in the same manner as he might have done if he had never sold a business—leaving him only bound, in common with all other persons, to abstain from misrepresentations injurious to the vendee. For, as Sir J. L. Knight Bruce said, in the famous case of Burgess's essence of anchovies (Burgess v. Burgess, 17 Jur. 292), "All the Queen's subjects have a right, if they will, to manufacture and sell pickles and sauce, and not the less that their fathers have done so before them. All the Queen's subjects have a right to sell them in their own name, and not the less so that they bear the same name as their father."

* See Turner v. Major (3 Giff. 442).

In Smith v. Everett (27 Beav. 446), C. W. Everett and W. Smith carried on business as bankers at Salisbury, under the style of Everett & Smith, their notes bearing the name of the firm, and also the title, "The New Sarum Bank." After the death of Smith the business was continued by Everett alone, under the same firm and title, and subsequently he admitted Messrs. Pinkney into partnership with him, and they continued the business under the firm of Everett & Pinkney, and the title of The New Sarum Bank. The bank being a bank of issue, a large sum was paid by Messrs. Pinkney to Everett for their admission into the business. It was held that a share of that consideration belonged to the executors of Smith, as part of the partnership assets. The Master of the Rolls, in his judgment, said, that if the whole business had been sold, Everett might after the sale have carried on the very same business, on the very same premises (which belonged to him), and though he might not have been entitled to use the words "The New Sarum Bank," he might have changed the word "new" into "old."

In Robertson v. Quiddington (28 Beav. 529), Morgan and Quiddington had carried on business as tailors in Albemarle-street, under the firm of Morgan & Co., the capital belonging to Morgan. Morgan bequeathed two-thirds of his interest in the goodwill to Robertson, and the remaining third to Aubin. The executor assented to the bequest to Robertson, and sold the testator's share in the business premises to Quiddington, who continued the business, and as it seems, under the firm of Morgan & Co. A demurrer to a bill by Robertson, asking for a sale of the entire goodwill, and an account of the profits in the meantime, was allowed. The Master of the Rolls said—"The case of Lewis v. Langdon appears to me to establish very clearly that the firm's name (whatever its value may be) survives to the remaining partner, and that, consequently, it could not be sold; and it is obvious that without this it would produce no value at all."

The last case to which we shall refer is Banks v. Gibson (11 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 680), where the business of pencil makers had been carried on by R. Gibson and Joseph Banks, and, after the death of Banks, by Gibson and the administratrix of Banks, under the firm of Banks & Co., at the Greta Works in Keswick, which were the sole property of Gibson. The latter partnership was dissolved by agreement in 1864, no provision being made as to the goodwill. After the separation, Gibson continued the business at the Greta Works, and issued trade bills, headed "Established 1832: Banks & Co., black lead pencil manufacturers to her late Majesty Queen Adelaide," &c., and stamped "Banks & Co.," on his pencils. The plaintiff established himself in business as a pencil manufacturer, using the firm "Banks & Co.," and sought to restrain Gibson from using that firm. But the Master of the Rolls refused to interfere, holding that the firm was an asset of the partnership, and, if the concern had been sold, would have been sold with it. As it was not sold, each of the late partners was entitled to use it as before.

The cases do not appear to be satisfactory, or easily reconcilable. If it be true, that the goodwill of a partnership business includes the right to use the firm under which it has been carried on, and is an asset, the opinion of the late Vice-Chancellor of England in Lewis v. Langdon, and of the Master of the Rolls in Robertson v. Quiddington, that on the death of a partner the right to use the firm belongs in equity to the survivor, without liability to account, cannot be maintained. On the other hand, there is great inconvenience in the doctrine, that independently of contract, each partner may, after dissolution, use the firm of the late partnership; for it must not be forgotten, that the firm, though it may be a trade-mark, may also be an indication of the persons carrying on the business. If John Smith and James Brown carry on the business in partnership under the firm of John Smith, it would be hard upon Smith if, after dissolution of the partnership, Brown could continue the business under the firm of John Smith; and the addition of the words "and Co." does not seem to make any material difference. There can, of course, be no such objection to the use of the firm, preceded by the word "late;" and it is submitted, that the Courts have gone too far in protecting, as a right of property, the use of a firm or trade-mark which misleads the public as to the persons by whom the business is really carried on. (See Hall v. Barrows, 9 Jur., N. S., part 1, p. 483; 10 Id. 55; and Bury v. Bedford, 9 Id. 956; 10 Id. 503).

WE find that the statement in our last number, that the advertisements of the Council of Law Reporting were rejected by the other weekly law periodicals is incorrect, so far as the "Solicitors' Journal" is concerned. We regret the unintentional misstatement.

Correspondence.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE JURIST."

Sir,—In the circular recently issued by the Council of Law Reporting it is said, Mr. Beavan at the Rolls, Messrs. Best & Smith in the Queen's Bench, and Messrs. Hurlstone & Colman in the Exchequer, "have declined to accept appointments under the council, though strongly solicited so to do, and prefer to continue their reports as separate publications. The council have therefore appointed other gentlemen reporters in their several courts." This statement, together with the frequent mention of our names in connexion with this subject, impose on us the duty alike to the profession and ourselves, to lay before it a full statement of our negotiations with the council of law reporting.

On the 3rd August, just one week before the commencement of the long vacation, the proposal was made to us by the council to take office under them. However objectionable the scheme appeared to us in many respects, still with the view of putting an end to the present unsatisfactory state of the reporting system, and preventing the unseemly spectacle of the introduction of a SEVENTH set of reports, we thought it right to listen to their overtures for amalgamation.

The 11th rule of the scheme provides, that "The editors and reporters shall be barristers, and shall be appointed and removable by the council; but the appointment of the reporters in each court shall be subject to the approval of the chief or presiding judge." We pointed the attention of the council to what we supposed to be an oversight, namely, that according to the language of this rule, any reporter might be removed at the pleasure of the council. To this the council having replied that there was no oversight, for such was intended, we answered, as the fact was, that we were invited to throw up our valuable reports, and take office as reporters under them, liable to be dismissed at their pleasure, without control from the court or any other quarter, and without giving us any compensation whatever: that rule 11, in its present form, was meant to meet the case of future reporters was intelligible, but that it was very difficult to suppose it was ever intended to apply to persons like ourselves who abandoned vested interests to join in the scheme. Moreover, that the council were a fluctuating body, so that however high our confidence in the fairness and honour of its present members, they might at any moment, especially if incorporated as the scheme suggests, be replaced by others of a wholly different description. The council however peremptorily refused to make any alteration in the scheme in this respect, and a subsequent offer made by us to refer the matter to the judges of the Queen's Bench, and accept the proposal in its existing form if they thought we ought to do so, having met with the same fate, we felt compelled, in common justice to ourselves, to reject the proposal of the council as unreasonable.

The council rested their refusal on the ground that they could not modify the scheme without calling a meeting of the bar. Assuming this excuse to have been made bona fide, it affords no answer to our objection; but we cannot help observing that the council have not always shewn the same coyness. In the course of our correspondence with them, we expressed our dislike to the system of editors with undefined powers, as calculated to introduce a divided responsibility into reports, and supply a means of unconstitutional interference with the decisions of the judges. The council on this, without calling any meeting of the bar, offered to allow any difficulty that might arise about the duties of the editors "to be referred either to the judge or the council;" on which concession (utterly nugatory as we felt it would be if the council had an uncontrolled power of dismissing the reporters at their pleasure) we abandoned that objection. Again, rule 21 provides that the invitations for subscribers "shall contain an announcement that it is considered essential for carrying out the scheme that the aggregate amount of subscriptions, inclusive of any advance from the Consolidated or Suits' Fund, in respect of the first moiety of the salaries or otherwise, shall reach 10,000*l.* at the least." By the confession of the council their subscriptions have fallen considerably short of this sum, yet, without calling any meeting of the bar, they have proceeded to launch the scheme. They contend that rules 27 and 28 authorise this proceeding, but the point is at least debatable.

It has been pressed upon us by some that as other regular reporters have accepted the scheme, we ought to follow their example. How those gentlemen are situated with regard to the property in their reports we are ignorant, and with respect to many of them, we fearlessly assert that the mode in which they have conducted their reports of late years is not a light to guide but a beacon to warn.

The circular in question announces that the reports issued by the council are to be called "The Law Reports." This expression is unfortunate, for of the three common-law courts, two (the Queen's Bench and Exchequer) expressly refuse to recognise the council, or grant their reporters any official status whatever; and the third (the Common Pleas) has given its sanction to a new series of reports in continuation of the long-established reports in that court.

We are, Sir, your obedient servants,

W. M. BEST.

G. J. PHILIP SMITH.

London, Nov. 30, 1865.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE JURIST."

Sir,—I have seen with some surprise a letter, signed "E. T. Hurlstone," in your publication of Saturday last, and also in the Solicitors' Journal, in which my name is mentioned in a manner which is wholly unwarranted, and not in accordance with the fact.

It is not true that "the long-established series of authorised reports in the Court of Common Pleas," published by me has ceased, or that that series will, "with the approbation of the Court," be continued by the gentlemen named in that letter.

It is true that Mr. Smith, the Queen's Bench reporter, did attempt to induce the Court of Common Pleas to believe that I had, by acceding to the new scheme of law reporting, abandoned the position of "authorised" (as the writer of the letter is pleased to call it) reporter of the court, which I have filled for nearly forty years, and to recognise others in my stead. I did not condescend to offer any opposition to this unhandsome attempt, because I knew that it could not succeed. It has failed.

I still continue, "with the approbation of the Court"—expressed not in words only, but in acts—the senior reporter of the Common Pleas; and so long as I fill that office, I will afford Messrs. Harrison & Rutherford (as I have invariably done to every gentleman who had a right to ask it) access to the written judgments, which are handed to me alone; but nevertheless so as not to interfere with interests already vested. As to the approval of the judges generally, it does not become me to speak. Of the determination of the Court of Queen's Bench, with respect to the new scheme, I know nothing more than what I glean from Mr. Hurlstone's extraordinary and uncalled-for letter. Of the Common Pleas, knowing a little more, I may venture to say, that the judges do not disapprove of the step which I have taken, though they have not thought fit collectively to express any opinion. Individually I know that they view the scheme with favour. As regards the Exchequer, I will only say, that I have before me the May number of the Law Magazine, at p. 1046, which appears an extract from a letter addressed by the Lord Chief Baron to the Attorney-General, officially acknowledging the receipt of the Bar Report, in which his Lordship writes—"The report which you have done me the honour to send has 'my approval,' and will have 'my support,' as far as I have any to give." "Reporting," adds his Lordship—I insert this with some reluctance—"has become a nuisance; and, like sewage, it has become very difficult to know what to do with it."

The true sentiments of the judges on the subject (that is, of reporting) will, I believe, be found in the following note addressed by Chief Justice Erle to Sir Fitzroy Kelly on the 3rd instant:—"The judges collectively find it to be their duty not to interfere actively in respect of the proposed system for reporting, as conflicting interests are concerned. The same answer applies in degree to the judges of the Court of Common Pleas collectively—subject to the observation, that we approve of the appointment of Messrs. Scott and Bompas, and hope that their reports will succeed." His Lordship did me the honour to express himself in similar kind terms, in a note addressed to myself shortly before the term.

The respected judge of the Probate and Divorce Courts has also signified to Sir Fitzroy his full recognition of the scheme, with his hearty wishes for its success.

It may not, perhaps, be out of place, if I here acknowledge the motives which induced me to abandon my "separate existence" as a reporter. When I found the voice of the profession so loudly expressed in favour of a change, I thought it would not become me to shut my ears to the call, or accord with my interest to close my eyes to the consequences of disregarding it. And, when I found that more than one-half of my supporters had become subscribers to "The Reports," I thought it wise to save what I could from the wreck, before it was too late. I wish my estimable friends of the other two common-law courts could have been induced to take the same common-sense view of their own interest—to say nothing of that of the profession.

To any other journal, I should have apologised for the length of this letter; but from you I have a sort of prescriptive right to a column, seeing that I am the sole survivor of the three to whom "The Jurist" owed its being.

Yours faithfully,

Temple, Nov. 30, 1865.

JOHN SCOTT.

[If Mr. Scott were one of our progenitors, we would be a crucial instance of the transmutation of species by natural selection. We were brought up by hand, and Mr. Scott held the spoon from which we first imbibed Common Pleas law—that was all. We can just remember that we thought that pabulum washy.]

Review.

Principia Prima Legum; or an Enunciation and Analysis of the Elementary Principles of Law in its several Departments. By GEORGE HARRIS, Esq., F.S.A., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law, one of the Registrars of the Court of Bankruptcy, and Author of "The Life of Lord Chancellor Hardwicke," "The True Theory of Representation in a State," and "Civilization considered as a Science." Part 1. 8vo., pp. 235. [Stevens & Sons.]

In the title of the work the word "law" may mean positive law in general—the subject-matter of jurisprudence, or it may mean the laws of England. If the former, we may expect to find in the book an enunciation of the principles of jurisprudence, that is to say, an indication of the main and subordinate divisions of the subject, and of the conclusions which have been reached regarding them by observation and reasoning; the main divisions being—1, the sources of positive law, and the mode of its genesis; 2, the various subject-matters to which it relates; and, 3, its objects or ends. But if English law is the subject of the book, then we may look to find in it a collection of the general rules of that law, in orderly arrangement. What an analysis of the elementary principles of law is likely to be we cannot pretend to say. Failing, then, to gather from the title or description of the book a distinct notion of its nature, we take a sample from the bulk; and opening the book by chance at p. 193, we find—

"Tit. XXXIII.—6. Executors and Administrators.

"1. Executors and administrators are persons who are by law authorised and empowered to stand in the place of, and to represent, as far as the management and disposal of their property is concerned, certain deceased persons, who have either by will delegated to them this trust, or on whom it has been imposed by the authority of the law.

"2. The law requires, that as far as possible the intentions of persons deceased shall be carried out to the full in all respects by the parties representing them, and for that purpose it confers upon the parties last named all the necessary authority and power for carrying such presumed desire and intention into effect."

Then follow paragraphs relating to the presumed intentions of deceased persons; the care required of executors; the origin of the authority of executors and administrators respectively; the leading duties of an executor; persons capable of being executors; joint responsibility of executors and administrators; power of executors to act separately; remuneration; liability for loss; transmission of representation; difference between executors and administrators; executors may not purchase any part of the assets; devastavit; more as to joint liability; responsibility of executors for acts of testator; the executor must pay interest for assets not properly employed; when gifts to executors are beneficial; difference of powers of executors and administrators; effect of sale of assets for benefit of executor; the subjects following each other in the order or disorder in which we have stated them;—and then we come to the title of Trustees. All the references under the title of executors and administrators are to authorities on English law; but for the proposition in sect. 1, that the law sometimes imposes on deceased persons the trust to stand in the place of and represent themselves so far as the management and disposal of their property is concerned, no authority is cited.

Turning back to "Tit. XXXI.—4. Husbands, in relation to their wives, and marriage generally" (which follows "Tit. XXX.—Parents in relation to their children," and is followed by "Tit. XXXII.—5. Guardians in relation to their wards"), we find the following principles:—

"1. The leading principle of law, in regard to the relationship between husband and wife is, that by the act of marriage the husband and wife at once become, and are thenceforth considered as, blended into one person, having an entire community of feeling and of interest, with which the law will on no account interfere."

[3. As to children.]

"4. As a consequence of this union, the property belonging to either party becomes common to both, vesting in the husband as the protector and manager of it on behalf of his wife as well as himself. Neither party can, therefore, give or convey his or her property to the other.

"5. Nevertheless, through the intervention of third parties, who may hold property as trustees for them, property may be received, and held separately for either the husband or the wife, independent of the other, and made use of by him or her as though they were unmarried."

Then follow some "principles" extracted from the civil law and from Grotius; then "Lord Thurlow's and Lord Mansfield's principles regarding conditions in restraint of marriage;" "Lord Ellenborough's principle regarding wages in restraint of marriage;" the nature of the marriage contract; then "Lord Brougham's principle regarding evidence of marriage contracts" [marriage contracts here, meaning contracts creating the status of marriage]; next "Lord Campbell's principle regarding contracts of marriage" [meaning promises to marry at a future time]; then "De Grey's principle regarding jurisdiction of courts in relation to marriage;" then some odds and ends as to the common law and statutory requisites to the validity of the marriage contract; then more about promises to marry at a future time; then as to clandestine marriages; then more as to marriage ceremonies; then as to the wife's right to maintenance; the liability of a wife to be sued; separate estate; evidence of husband against wife, and vice versa; dissolution of marriage and collusion; Lord Stowell on divorce; principle in Code Napoleon regarding causes of divorce; Lord Campbell on validity of foreign marriages; proof of marriage; and then "Tit. XXXII.—Guardians."

Failing to discover the "principle" of the book by sampling, we turn to the Preface, which fills nineteen pages; of the contents of the first three of which the following may be taken to be a sufficiently correct summary:—Jurisprudence is the loftiest of sciences as regards its aim, and the noblest as regards the mental faculties engaged in its cultivation. It must necessarily be regulated by certain determinate and unerring principles, and its being so is what entitles it to its high rank among those means which have occupied the study of the learned—[its place among those sciences which have not occupied the study of the learned being left unsettled].—For these reasons, the main object of the present work "is to trace to its root each principle of law, and to exhibit, as far as possible, the origin of every rule that has been adopted as our guide in the science of jurisprudence. These principles, when thus deduced, have been illustrated by the quotation of select passages from the judgments of those distinguished men who have long been regarded as the oracles of jurisprudential wisdom." These principles should be kept in view if we wish to avoid error, but they are commonly neglected, as every experienced practitioner knows. "A digest of principles" will be as serviceable to the student as a record or decisions or a compendium of statutes. "In many cases"—(we will not wrong this passage by epitomising it)—"the inquiry into first principles is the only correct and absolutely certain mode of applying the rule of law to the point to be decided. Indeed, this process ought in no instance to be departed from, except where a precisely analogous determination can be shown to have been previously effected. In all cases the decision by rule and by recurrence to primary legal principles, is the course which nature and common sense dictate, and which alone reason is acknowledged and appealed to, as the real authority by which the matter is determined. When, however, the exact point at issue has already been solved by a competent tribunal, reference is had to such prior decision, in order to avoid an unsettling and questioning of the judgment so pronounced." Principles ought to be kept in view in judgment and in argument, and the more rational a legal axiom is, the more correct it must be. It is strange, that while there are so many elaborate digests of decisions, there is no complete analysis of the first principles of law. The great attention now paid to cases, renders the inquiry into elementary principles the more essential. In the deduction of principles here attempted to be made, recourse has been had, not only to elementary works, but also to leading judgments, and occasionally to forensic arguments. In most instances, references are made to authorities. "When an authority is quoted, the author is of course himself responsible for the correctness of the principle enunciated" (e. g. the principle, cited above, that on marriage the husband's property becomes common to himself and his wife).

The work is intended to be divided into five parts:—1. Constitutional and General Law. 2. Rights of Persons. 3. Property of Persons. 4. Crimes & Mode of enforcing the Operation of the Law.

Part I, which forms the present volume, is divided into the following titles:—1. Primary principles as regards the essence and constitution of law in general; 2. The object and intent of law; 3. The province of law; 4. The origin of civil government; 5. Different kinds of government; 6. Authority and prerogative of the sovereign; 7. Allegiance of to the sovereign; 8. The right to make laws; 9. Constitution and power of legislative bodies; 10. The mode of operation of laws of each kind; 11. Variety and classification of laws; 12. Laws domestic and international; 13. Laws of peace and war; 14. Piracy and privateering; 15. Civil and canon law; 16. Common law; 17. Statute law; 18. Prohibitory laws in general; 19. Civil liberty; 20. Civil rank; 21. Civil rulers; 22. Obligation to obey laws; 23. Exemptions from legal jurisdiction, aliens, infants, lunatics, and persons under duress; 24. Conflict of laws; 25. Corporations; 26. Partnerships; 27. Officers of justice; 28. Professional men; 29. Tradesmen; 30. Parents; 31. Husbands; 32. Guardians; 33. Executors and administrators; 34. Trustees; 35. Masters and servants; and 36. Principals and agents.

We have preferred to display, perhaps at two great a sacrifice of space, rather than to describe, the hopeless confusion and inaccuracy of the author's ideas as to the object and details of his work, and we have only to add, for the guidance of inexperienced students, that no one seeking information on jurisprudence, or on English law, from any point of view, or for any purpose, can derive the slightest assistance from this ridiculous book.

CALLS TO THE BAR.

THE undermentioned gentlemen have been called to the Bar:—

LINCOLN'S INN.—Charles Royle, Esq. (holder of the Exhibition of Michaelmas Term, 1865); Matthew Ingle Joyce, Esq., M.A. (certificate of honour, first class); D'Oyly Ramsay Jefferson, Esq., M.A.; John Bridson Callister, Esq., B.A.; William Rolle Malcom, Esq., M.A.; William Edward Frere, jun., Esq., B.A.; Henry Pepys, Esq.; William Stevenson McCance, Esq., B.A.; Walter Samuel Parry Crooke, Esq.; Charles Isaac Elton, Esq., B.A.; Henry Pritchard, jun., Esq., M.A.; Charles Dalrymple, Esq., M.A.; Charles James Manning, Esq., B.A.; John Charles Thynne, Esq., M.A.; Francis John Sidebottom Venner, Esq.; and Reginald Floyer Saunders, Esq.

INNER TEMPLE.—Ralph Wardlaw McLeod Fullerton, Esq., B.A.; Augustus Andrews Mitchell, Esq.; Joseph Devey, Esq., B.A.; Robert Jamieson, Esq., M.A.; Victor Alexander Williamson, Esq., M.A.; Sanderson Tennant, jun., Esq., B.A.; Thomas Snow, Esq., M.A.; Hon. Edward Lyulph Stanley, M.A.; Christopher John Foyle Fawcett, Esq., B.A.; John Corrie Carter, Esq., LL.B.; Ralph Richardson, Esq., B.A.; James Robert Mallor, Esq., LL.B.; William Dickason Botch, Esq.; Francis Parker, Esq., LL.B.; Americo Palfrey de Lamiliere Marras, Esq., B.A.; John Scott, Esq., B.A.; John Freeman Norris, Esq.; Edward Carrier Smith Tompson, Esq., M.A.; Henry Brewer Chapman, Esq., LL.B.; George Barbour, Esq., B.A.; Richard Loveland Loveland, Esq.; Arthur Ruscombe Poole, Esq., B.A.; Lewis Joseph Sturge, Esq., B.A.; Arthur Henry Woodham Lamb, Esq.; John Robert Wright, Esq.; Albert Reginald Graves, Esq., B.A.; Edward Cooper Willis, Esq., M.B.; Frederick Robert Ellis, Esq., M.A.; and John Henry de Villiers, Esq.

MIDDLE TEMPLE.—James Graham, Esq.; Alexander Henry, Esq. (certificate of honour awarded by the Council of Legal Education, 1865), M.A., LL.B.; Samuel Poynter, Esq. (Exhibition in Constitutional Law and Legal History, 1865); Thomas Charles Jarvis, Esq. (Exhibition in Jurisprudence, Civil and International Law, 1864), B.A., LL.B.; Frederick James Roberts, Esq.; Charles Cave Orme, Esq.; Douglas Straight, Esq.; Andries Stokenström, Esq., B.A.; Edward Arthur Tillett, Esq.; Robert Gordon Junner, Esq.; Augustus Thorne, Esq.; Harold Slingsby Duncombe Richardson, Esq.; Edward Grame Gibson, Esq., M.A.; Robert Norton, Esq.; Henry Lionnet, Esq.; and William Mason Scharlieb, Esq.

GRAY'S INN.—Charles Forbes, Esq.; John Romilly, Esq.; and Robert Christopher Lush, Esq.

EQUITABLE REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY,

10, LANCASTER-PLACE, STRAND,
Established 1835.—Capital £500,000.

DIRECTORS.

Daniel Smith Bockett, Esq.	Francis Bennett Goldney, Esq.
Major C. L. Boileau.	Charles Richard Harford, jun., Esq.
Lieut.-Colonel Chase.	Henry Pigeon, Esq.
William Henry Cole, Esq.	Henry Roberts, Esq.
Thomas Curtis, Esq.	George Roots, Esq.

AUDITORS.

Charles Armstrong Esq.	William Richard Bingley, Esq.
Alfred Langdale, Esq.

SOLICITORS.—Messrs. Clayton & Son.

BANKERS.—Messrs. Coutts & Co.

ACTUARY.—F. Hendrika, Esq.

This Society purchases Reversionary Property, Life Interests, and Life Policies of Assurance, and grants Loans on these Securities.

Forms of Proposal may be obtained at the Office.

JOHN CLAYTON, } Joint
FRANCIS S. CLAYTON, } Secretaries.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.

68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN.—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN.—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q.C.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions. Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office. C. B. CLABON, Sec.

PELICAN LIFE INSURANCE OFFICE.

(ESTABLISHED IN 1797).

No. 70, Lombard-street, E. C., and 57, Charing-cross, S. W.

DIRECTORS.

Octavius E. Coope, Esq.	Kirkman D. Hodgson, Esq., M.P.
William Cotton, Esq., D.C.L., F.R.S.	Henry Lancelot Holland, Esq.
Thomas Henry Farquhar, Esq.	William James Lancaster, Esq.
James A. Gordon, Esq., M.D., F.R.S.	Sir John Lubbock, Bart., F.R.S.
Edward Hawkins, jun., Esq.	Benjamin Shaw, Esq.
	Matthew Whiting, Esq.
	Marmaduke Wyvill, jun., Esq.

ROBERT TUCKER, Secretary and Actuary.

NOTICE.—The next distribution of Profit will be made at the end of 1868. All Policies now effected on the "return system" will participate. The last Bonus varied from 28 to 60 per cent. on the Premiums paid. Loans, in connexion with Life Assurance, upon approved security, in sums of not less than 500l.

For Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal apply to the Secretary, or to any of the Company's Agents.

LAW UNION FIRE and LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Chief Offices—125, Chancery-lane, W.C.

Subscribed Capital—ONE MILLION STERLING.

The Fire and Life Departments are under one Management, but with separate Funds and Accounts.

Chairman.—Sir WILLIAM FOSTER, Bart.

Deputy-Chairman.—Mr. Benjamin MANNING, Q.A.S.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Subscribed Capital, £750,000, in addition to the Reserve Fund.

Business consists of the best classes of risks.

Insurants will be allowed the full benefit of the Reduction of Duty.

Claims settled promptly and liberally.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Subscribed Capital £250,000, in addition to the Reserve Fund.

PREMIUMS MODERATE.

A Bonus every five years. Next Bonus in 1869. At the Division of Profits in 1864, the Reversionary Bonus amounted to from 15 to 50 per cent. per annum on the Premiums paid, varying with the ages of the Insured.

Copies of the Directors' Report and Balance-sheet, and every information, may be obtained at the Chief Office, or of any of the Agents of the Company. FRANK MCGEDY, Secretary.

COUGHS AND COLDS.—ANOTHER TESTIMONIAL IN FAVOUR OF

DR. LOOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS.—

From Mr. Loder, 224, Stonebow, Lincoln:—"From my own experience as a large dealer in medicines, I can safely say that your wafers never fail to effect a speedy cure of the most distressing cough. They are truly an invaluable medicine." Price 1s. 1/2d., 2s. 2d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. Sold by all Chemists.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the Office, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, December 2, 1865.

The Jurist

No. 570, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.

No. 1509, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

DECEMBER 9, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

SOLICITORS' BOOKKEEPING (Three Methods).

By G. J. KAIN, F.R.S.

Kain's Triple Column System, 7th Edition, 6s.

Kain's Single and Double Column Systems (in one volume), First Issue, 7s. 6d. (Just published).

Kain's Rental System (bound up with each of the above).

KAIN, SPARROW, & CO., 69, Chancery-lane, W. C.; WATERLOW & SONS, London-wall; and through all Booksellers.

Just published, in 1 vol. crown 8vo., price 6s. 6d. cloth,
QUESTIONS FOUNDED ON LORD ST. LEONARDS' TREATISE ON THE LAW OF VENDORS AND PURCHASERS. Designed and prepared principally for the Use of Students for the Bar, and Articled Clerks preparing for Admission as Solicitors. By T. BAKER MAY, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

Preparing for Publication,

FOR THE USE OF STUDENTS,

QUESTIONS ON THE SEVENTH EDITION OF WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY. By the AUTHOR.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

JOSHUA WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY.

Just published, the Seventh Edition, in 1 vol. 8vo., price 20s. cloth.
PRINCIPLES OF THE LAW OF REAL PROPERTY, intended as a first Book for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, one of her Majesty's Counsel.
Henry Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, London.

WILLIAMS (JOSHUA) ON PERSONAL PROPERTY.

The Fifth Edition, price 18s. cloth boards.

PRINCIPLES OF THE LAW OF PERSONAL PROPERTY, intended for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

EQUITABLE JURISDICTION OF THE COUNTY COURTS.

Just published, price 5s. boards.

A SUPPLEMENT TO POLLOCK & NICOL'S COUNTY COURT PRACTICE: containing the Equitable Jurisdiction Act (28 & 29 Vict. c. 99). With Orders, Forms, Costs, Fees, and the Trustee Acts, &c. By C. E. POLLOCK & H. NICOL, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

POLLOCK'S PRACTICE OF THE COUNTY COURT.

THE PRACTICE OF THE COUNTY COURTS; with the Decisions of the Superior Courts, and Tables of Fees and Costs; also Appendices, containing all the Statutes, Rules of Practice, and Forms, including those relating to Bankruptcy. In Two Parts, with Tabular Indices. The Fifth Edition. By C. E. POLLOCK, Esq., and H. NICOL, Esq., Barristers at Law. In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 17s. 10s. cloth boards.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

DAY'S COMMON-LAW PRACTICE.

The Second Edition, recently published.

THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACTS OF 1852, 1854, and 1860. With an Introduction, explanatory of the recent Changes, Notes, Forms of Proceeding, and a copious Index. By J. C. F. S. DAY, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 1 vol. royal 12mo. Price 15s. cloth boards.

This Work comprises a carefully-revised Edition of Mr. Kerr's Procedure Acts of 1852 and 1854, the Cases that have been decided since the publication of these Works being added; the Bills of Exchange Act of 1855, and the Decisions upon it; those portions of the Interpleader Act and Mercantile Law Amendment Act which relate to the Procedure thereon in Court or at Chambers, and all the New Rules: thus constituting a complete Practice of the Superior Courts of Common Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE SOLICITORS' JOURNAL and WEEKLY REPORTER.—The First Numbers of the current Volumes (X and XIV) were published Nov. 4. Annual Subscription—Journal, 26s.; with the Weekly Reporter, 6s. Each Number contains, when practicable, the Cases down to the previous Wednesday.—Office, 59, Carey-street, W. C.

No. 570, Vol. XI., New Series.

NEW EDITION of ELMER'S PRACTICE in LUNACY, with Notes of Cases, Forms, Costs, Statutes, General Orders, and a Copious Index. Price 18s. 6d. cloth.
Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, in crown 8vo., pp. 177, price 4s. 6d. cloth lettered.

ROUSE'S MANUAL OF THE COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION (under the 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99); comprising a Summary of the Act; a Short Treatise on each Subject of Jurisdiction; a Summary of the Trustees Relief Acts, and Trustee Acts, and the Decisions thereon; and Appendices, containing the County Courts Equitable Jurisdiction Act, the Trustees Relief Acts, the Trustee Acts, &c.; County Court Orders and Forms in Equity; and a Scale of Costs and Charges.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, in medium 8vo., price 17s. 5s. cloth,
A MANUAL OF CIVIL LAW; containing a Translation of, and Commentary on the Fragments of, the XII Tables and the Institutes of Justinian; the Text of the Institutes of Gaius and Justinian. Arranged in parallel columns; and the Text of the Fragments of Ulpian, and of Selections from Paul's Receipts Sententiae. By PATRICK CUMIN, M.A., Balliol College, Oxford, Barrister at Law. Second Edition, enlarged.
London: Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn. Oxford: J. H. & J. Parker. Cambridge: Deighton, Bell, & Co. Edinburgh: T. & T. Clark. Dublin: Hodges, Smith, & Co.

TWENTIETH ANNUAL ISSUE.

This day is published.

THE LAWYER'S COMPANION. DIARY, and LONDON AND PROVINCIAL LAW DIRECTORY for 1866; containing The Companies Act, 1862, with an Introduction, Analysis, and Index; an Abstract of the most important Acts of the Session of 1865; and the New Orders and Rules for regulating the Practice of the County Courts, 1865. With a Scale of Costs and Charges to be paid to Counsel and Attorneys in the County Courts under the Provisions of the Statute 28 & 29 Vict. c. 29. Edited by FREDERICK LAWRENCE Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

The Work is bound in cloth, lettered on back and side, and may be had as under:—

No.		s.	d.
1.	Plain, two days on a page	5	0
2.	The above, interleaved	7	0
3.	Ruled with or without money columns	5	6
4.	The above, interleaved	8	0
5.	Plain, whole page to a day	7	6
6.	The above, interleaved	9	6
7.	Whole page to a day, ruled with or without money columns	8	6
8.	The above, interleaved	10	6
9.	Ruled blue lines, without money columns, three days on a page	5	0

London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, in demy 12mo., 1016 pp., price 17s. 12s. cloth,
ROGERS on ELECTIONS, ELECTION COMMITTEES, and REGISTRATION. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Tenth Edition. With the new Registration Statute, and all the Election and Registration Cases to the present time. By F. S. P. WOLFFERSTAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

United States Documentary and other State Papers, the Property of the Hon. S. SLIDELL; American Law Books; the Law Library of a Barrister, &c.

MR. HODGSON will SELL by AUCTION, at his Rooms, 115, Chancery-lane, W. C., on TUESDAY the 12th December, at 1, DOCUMENTARY and other STATE PAPERS, the property of the Hon. S. SLIDELL, comprising United States Public Documents and State Papers, 310 vols., 1853-6; American Archives, 9 vols., 1837-53; American State Papers, 21 vols., 1835-6; United States Statutes at Large, 11 vols. and 1 part; United States Debates in Congress (the American Hansard), 126 vols.; Jefferson's Works, 9 vols.; Adams's Works, 10 vols.; Copies of Kent's Commentaries; Story's Commentaries; Bancroft's United States, 8 vols., &c. Also, the Law Library of a Barrister retiring, containing Law Journal, 1833 to 1863, 75 vols.; Public General Statutes, 34 vols.; Modern Practical Books; and Sets of Reports in the various Courts.

To be viewed, and Catalogues had.

V V

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	471
Correspondence	472
Examinations at the Incorporated Law Society	472
Court Papers.—Equity Cause Lists after Michaelmas Term	473
Books Received	475

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF CHANCERY.

By W. W. KNOX, Barrister at Law.

Wallace v. The Attorney-General.—Jeyes v. Shadwell.—(Succession duty—Domicil)	987
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Low v. Routledge.—(Copyright—Alien friend—Temporary residence in colony—Registration—4 & 5 Vict. c. 45)	930
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY'S COURT.

By E. LLOYD, Barrister at Law.

Re The British and Foreign Cork Company (Limited).—Leitch's case.—(Joint-stock company (limited)—Winding up—Fully-paid shares—Non-liability to contribute—Proof of consideration not expressed in deed)	941
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By A. RUMSEY, Barrister at Law.

Dabbs v. Nugent.—(Account—Building contract—Architect's certificate—Actions at law)	943
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Re The Manchester Free Grammar School.—(Charity—Free grammar school—Diminished income—Capitation fee—Boarders)	946
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVEST, Barrister at Law.

Cowles v. Potts.—(Slender—Privileged communication—Malice)	949
Richardson v. Locklin.—(Venus—Local action—Pleading—Non-suited)	951

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By H. RUTHERFORD, Barrister at Law.

Williams v. Golding.—(Metropolitan Building Act (18 & 19 Vict. c. 122, s. 106)—Notice of action—Builder and building owners—"District surveyor or other person")	952
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

By W. BRANDT, Barrister at Law.

Re The Claim of Wraithby.—(Master of court—Reviewing taxation by—Private Act)	954
Stapley v. The London, Brighton, and South-coast Railway Company.—Stubley v. The Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company.—(Accidents at level crossings—Duties of railway companies) ..	954

COURT FOR DIVORCE AND MATRIMONIAL CAUSES.

By W. ERNST BROWNING, Barrister at Law.

Chetwynd v. Chetwynd.—(Custody of children—20 & 21 Vict. c. 85, s. 35—23 & 23 Vict. c. 61, s. 4—Intervention—20 & 21 Vict. c. 85, s. 32—22 & 23 Vict. c. 61, s. 5—Permanent alimony)	958
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF PROBATE.

By DR. MIDDLETON.

In the Goods of Andrew Thomson, Deceased.—(Will—Three codicils revoked by a fourth—A fifth codicil confirming four previous ones—Parol evidence) ..	960
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

CROWN CASES RESERVED.

By G. FRANCIS, Barrister at Law.

Reg. v. Henry Redman.—(Threats with intent to extort money—24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 47)	960
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

THE LAWS AFFECTING RAILWAYS, BROUGHT DOWN TO THE PRESENT TIME.

Now ready, in one thick vol. royal 8vo., price 1l. 15s. cloth boards.

SIR W. HODGES'S PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW of RAILWAYS, RAILWAY COMPANIES, and RAILWAY INVESTMENTS. With an Appendix of Statutes, Forms, &c. The Fourth Edition. By CHARLES MANLEY SMITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple and Midland Circuit, Barrister at Law.

"The great and increasing interest in everything relating to Railways now manifested by the public, have created such a demand for this valuable work, that the Publisher has been induced to have a new Edition of it prepared. This Edition comprises the important Statutes passed in the Session of 1864, as well as the Standing Orders for the Session of 1865, in addition to the numerous Decisions of the Courts, both of Law and Equity, since the last Edition was published, and such of the Rules of the London Stock Exchange as are applicable to Railways, as amended up to 1864. The task of preparing and conducting through the press this new Edition has been a really arduous one; but no pains have been spared by the learned Editor (whose work on the Law of Master and Servant is well known, not only in Westminster Hall, but also in Ireland, Scotland, and America), to make the work complete; and the Publisher believes that he can with confidence recommend it to all persons interested in Railways, especially Directors, Secretaries, and shareholders, as the most complete work on Railway Law yet offered to the public.

The English and Irish Railway Clearing Acts have also been added to this Edition.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

BYTHEWOOD AND JARMAN'S CONVEYANCING.—

Vol. 8, Part 1.

Price 8s. boards.

A SELECTION OF PRECEDENTS from MODERN MANUSCRIPT COLLECTIONS, and DRAFTS of ACTUAL PRACTICE; forming a System of Conveyancing. With Dissertations and Practical Notes. By THOMAS JARMAN, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law. The Third Edition. Vol. 8. By WHITLEY STOKES, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

PART I.—POWERS OF APPOINTMENT.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

SETON'S DECREES IN EQUITY.

Now complete, in 2 vols. royal 8vo., price 2l. 18s. cloth, lettered.

SETON'S FORMS OF DECREES in EQUITY, and of Orders connected with them. A new Edition, adapted to the present Practice, with Practical Notes. By W. H. HARRISON, Esq., Barrister at Law, and R. H. LEACH, Esq., one of the Registrars of the Court. Third Edition. 2 vols. royal 8vo. 1862.

Vol. 2, part 2, completing the work, may be had separately, price 14s. cloth.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

PHILLIPS'S LAW OF COPYRIGHT.

In 8vo., price 12s. cloth.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT in WORKS of LITERATURE and ART, and in the Application of Designs. With the Statutes relating thereto. By CHARLES PALMER PHILLIPS, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 8vo. 1863.

"Mr. Phillips has shewn, not only great diligence in collecting cases bearing upon the various topics which he has treated, but considerable judgment in the manner in which he has dealt with them. He has spared no pains to make his work reliable as a legal text-book, and at the same time equally useful to publishers, authors, artists, and other persons who are interested in works of literature, art, or design. In a word, such a book has long been wanted, and Mr. Phillips has given abundant proof of his ability to meet the desideratum."—Solicitors' Journal, Nov. 14, 1863.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 8vo., price 15s. cloth.

A HAND-BOOK OF PRECEDENTS in CONVEYANCING. By FRANCIS HOSUSMAN, Barrister at Law.

"We know of no work of the kind which contains within the same limited number of pages, and consequently at the same moderate price, so extensive a collection of forms readily applicable to the various exigencies of the draftsman."—Law Magazine, August, 1861.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, DECEMBER 9, 1865.

SOME cases which have been decided on appeal this year both in the House of Lords and in the Exchequer Chamber, present features of so much interest, that it is worth while to draw specific attention to them for the benefit of those who may have been precluded from paying a close attention to the course of the late decisions.

The first we would draw attention to is that of Blades v. Higgs (34 L. J., C. P., 286), in the House of Lords, as to the property in game. As far back as the time of Lord Holt, it had been laid down, that if A. shoots game on B.'s ground and kills it there, the property in the dead game is in B., but that if he hunts it out into C.'s land and kills it there, it is his own, unless B. claimed proper privilege, in which case it would still be B.'s. And from that time these propositions have been accepted, and quoted as indubitable law. In this case, however, we have been presented with the curious spectacle of a proposition of law laid down by so great an authority as Lord Holt, and quoted with approbation ever since, being contested up to the highest court of appeal, in the face of the unanimous decisions of the different tribunals, and finally settled only there. The point absolutely decided was, that if A. kills game on B.'s land, it is B.'s property; but the decisions of the Lord Chancellor, Lords Cranworth and Chelmsford, are worthy of attention, particularly that of the Lord Chancellor, as giving a very succinct and lucid exposition of the law of the subject, which agrees with the generally received doctrines and the above propositions of Lord Holt, except that Lord Chelmsford expresses a doubt as to A.'s right, even when he chases it from B.'s land and kills it in C.'s.

A second case is that of Rickets v. The Metropolitan Railway Company (34 L. J., Q. B., 267). The Court of Queen's Bench held, that if a railway company, during the execution of their works under their act of Parliament, temporarily place a bridge on a highway, which renders access to a public-house more difficult, and consequently causes fewer people to use it, the publican can claim compensation under the Lands Clauses Act. But Erle, C. J., Pollock, C. B., Channell and Pigott, BB., constituting the majority in the Exchequer Chamber, overruled this decision and the two cases of Senior v. The Metropolitan Railway Company and Cameron v. The Charing-cross Railway Company, on the ground that no action would have lain if the company had not been authorised by their act, and that, even if it would, yet the damage was personal, and not to the land, and therefore not within the Lands Clauses Act; whilst Byles and Keating, JJ., thought exactly the reverse. The effect of this decision just at present, whilst the numerous metropolitan railways are being made, is most important, and the aggregate amount of money which it will save the railways from paying is enormous; the aggregate amount of irremediable loss to private persons will, on the other hand, be very grievous, and add to the grievance that they already complain of, viz. the liability they are under of being turned out summarily from their houses, to the destruction of their business connexion, without adequate compensation. It is a grave question how far the law on this subject should not be made the subject of legislative interference, for it seems only just that some stop should be put to the terrible amount of private ruin and loss that is often entailed by the exercise of the arbitrary powers of railways in large towns under these acts of Parliament.

The next case is the important one of Tapling v. Jones (34 L. J., C. P., 342), setting at rest the very curious litigation which has been going on for some years respecting the right of a man to stop his neighbour's lights. In this case A. was the owner and occupier of a house of three stories, with an ancient window in each; he altered the windows on the two lower floors, left that on the third untouched, and put two additional stories with new windows. B., the owner of the adjoining premises, could not obstruct the new windows without also obstructing the old ones; and he, therefore, claimed a right to build a wall, which, in stopping the one set also stopped the other. A. acting, no doubt, under advice, and according to what was considered the then state of the legal authorities, did not contest this right, but blocked up his new windows, and claimed then to have a right to demand that B. should now pull down his wall. This claim B. denied to be a good one, and he refused to do so, whereupon A. brought an action against him. The Court of Common Pleas holding themselves to be bound by the decisions of Renshaw v. Bean and Hutchinson v. Copestake, held unanimously that B. was entitled to block up the old windows if he could not otherwise block up the new ones, though Erle, C. J., and Williams, J., intimated a disapproval of those cases. But while Erle, C. J., and Williams, J., held, that on the stopping up of the new windows the wall ought to be pulled down, Byles and Keating, JJ., held, that what had been done amounted to an abandonment of the old lights, and that, therefore, the wall might stand. In the Exchequer Chamber, Wightman and Crompton, JJ., held that, assuming the wall was originally put up rightly, yet now it ought to come down. Bramwell, B., and Blackburn, J., held that Renshaw v. Bean was bad law, and that there never was a right to stop the old windows in order to stop the new ones; and Pollock, C. B., and Martin, B., held that Renshaw v. Bean was good law, and that the wall ought to stand.

In the House of Lords, the Lord Chancellor and Lords Cranworth and Chelmsford were unanimous in holding that there never was any right to put up the wall, and thus finally decided the law on the subject. Anything more masterly than the short and clear way in which the matter is put by the Lord Chancellor can hardly be imagined, particularly after reading the judgments of the different learned judges. The matter is made so clear, and his argument is so conclusive, that one really wonders, on reading it, how there could have been doubt. And one has to turn back to the judgments in the Exchequer Chamber again to realise the fact.

The next case is Scott v. The London Dock Company (34 L. J., Ex., 220), where the Court laid down the rule as to the presumption of negligence arising from the mere happening of the accident itself—a doctrine which, our readers will recollect, became of some importance some time back in railway cases, where in one case it was broadly laid down, that an accident happening, was itself evidence of negligence, but which had been remarked on in a desultory way from time to time, till the state of the law was become very uncertain. The majority of the Court (Crompton, Byles, Blackburn, and Keating, J.J.), held, that there must be reasonable evidence of negligence; that where a machine, causing an accident, is solely under the management of a man, or his servants, and the accident is such as, in the ordinary course of things, does not happen to those who have the management of machinery, and use proper care, this affords reasonable evidence, in the absence of an explanation, that the accident arose from want of due care; and that such reasonable evidence existed, where a bag of sugar fell from a crane on a man who was passing, and no explanation was offered of the cause of its fall. Erle, C. J., and Mellor, J., dissented, and could not see that there was such reasonable evidence.

The last case to which we wish to draw attention, is Hall v. Johnson (34 L. J., Ex., 220), in which the Court of Exchequer Chamber decided, that an overlooker in a mine was a fellow servant with the miners, so that the master was not liable for his negligence causing injury to them. And we do it for the sake of the observations of Erle, C. J., in delivering the judgment, in which the other judges concurred. He says, "We take the principle to be clearly established, from a series of decisions in this Empire and in America, that where a labourer is damaged by the negligence of a fellow labourer, the master is not responsible. Whether they are fellow labourers, is sometimes matter of doubt. My Brother Williams brought this idea into prominent relief by saying, that sometimes a person called a fellow labourer should rather be considered to stand in the position of deputy master; and if an act of negligence, causing injury to a workman, was clearly brought home to one in the position of deputy master, it might be a question whether the real master was not responsible. We wish to reserve our opinion in respect to this question to the time when the facts of the case may give rise to it."

Such are the more generally important cases which have been lately decided, though only a small portion of the actual appeal cases; as we observe, that from June twelvemonth till the beginning of the late sittings, there have been thirteen appeals from the Queen's Bench, four from the Common Pleas, and nine from the Exchequer, decided in the Exchequer Chamber, which only reversed four decisions of the first, two of the second, and one of the third, of these Courts; and looking to the character of many of the cases, it is questionable whether the facility of appeal is advantageous to any but the lawyers.

Correspondence.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE JURIST."

SIR,—We are compelled to trouble you with another communication in consequence of Mr. Scott's letter in "THE JURIST" of last week, in which he charges one of us with "unhandsome" conduct towards him.

Mr. Scott wholly misconceives his position. He labours under the delusion, that because he has abandoned the ancient and honourable post held by him as the acknowledged and independent reporter of the Court of Common Pleas, and taken service under a body which can mutilate his reports at pleasure, and dismiss him at any moment without notice, reason, or compensation, the office he has thus vacated has ceased to exist. It is far otherwise. Messrs. Harrison & Rutherford, with the concurrence of the Court, have assumed it. We, with others, advised that course, and see nothing in our having done so "unhandsome" to Mr. Scott or any one.

Mr. Scott concludes his letter thus:—

"It may not, perhaps, be out of place, if I here acknowledge the motives which induced me to abandon my 'separate existence' as a reporter. When I found the voice of the profession so loudly expressed in favour of a change, I thought it would not become me to shut my ears to the call, or accord with my interest to close my eyes to the consequences of disregarding it. And, when I found that more than one-half of my supporters had become subscribers to 'The Reports,' I thought it wise to save what I could from the wreck, before it was too late. I wish my estimable friends of the other two common-law courts could have been induced to take the same common-sense view of their own interest—to say nothing of that of the profession."

When we require advice we seek it, and this certainly shall never be from a gentleman who, while tendering us his advice as to the mode of conducting our reports, avows in the same breath that he has just made shipwreck of his own.

We are, Sir,

Your obedient servants,

W. M. BEST,

G. J. PHILIP SMITH.

London, Dec. 7, 1865.

EXAMINATIONS AT THE INCORPORATED LAW SOCIETY.

MICHAELMAS TERM, 1865.

FINAL EXAMINATION.

At the examination of candidates for admission on the roll of attorneys and solicitors of the Superior Courts, the Examiners recommended the following gentlemen, under the age of twenty-six, as being entitled to honorary distinction:—

1. Jon Scott the younger, who served his clerkship to Mr. John Scott, of King William-street, London; and Mr. John Richard Tindale, of London.

2. Thomas William Eastwood, who served his clerkship to Mr. Abraham Greenwood Eastwood, of Todmorden, near Halifax; and Messrs. Tor, Janeway, & Tagart, of London.

3. Thomas Rowland Hargreaves, who served his clerkship to Messrs. Swainson & Son, of Lancaster.

4. John Daniel Banks, who served his clerkship to Mr. George Webster, of Liverpool; and Messrs. Gregory & Rowcliffes, of London.

4. Owen Sidney Goody, who served his clerkship to Messrs. Smythies, Goody, & Son, of Colchester; and Messrs. N. C. & C. Milne, of London.

4. Thomas Green, who served his clerkship to Messrs. Becke & Son, of Northampton; and Mr. Robert Metcalfe, of London.

The Council of the Incorporated Law Society have accordingly awarded the following Prizes of Books;—

To Mr. Scott, the prize of the Honorable Society of Clifford's Inn.

To Mr. Eastwood, the prize of the Honorable Society of Clement's Inn.

To Mr. Hargreaves, one of the prizes of the Incorporated Law Society.

To Mr. Banks, one of the prizes of the Incorporated Law Society.

To Mr. Goody, one of the prizes of the Incorporated Law Society.

To Mr. Green, one of the prizes of the Incorporated Law Society.

The Examiners have also certified that the following candidates, under the age of twenty-six, whose names are placed in alphabetical order, passed examinations which entitle them to commendation:—

Alban Gardner Buller, who served his clerkship to Mr. Thomas Pain, of Banbury; and Messrs. Mackeson & Goldring, of London.

William Hawkins Herbert, who served his clerkship to Messrs. Mullings & Co., of Cirencester; Messrs. Eyre & Lawson, of London; and Messrs. Flux & Arles, of London.

Francis Hodding, who served his clerkship to Messrs. Hoddings, Townsend, Lee, & Houseman, of Salisbury and London; and Messrs. Clarke, Son, & Rawlins, of London.

Robert Lunn the younger, who served his clerkship to Messrs. New, France, & Garrard, of Evesham; and Messrs. Vizard & Anstie, of London.

Edward Frederick Mammatt, who served his clerkship to Messrs. Green & Smith, of Ashby-de-la-Zouch; and Messrs. Austen, De Gex, & Harding, of London.

The Council have accordingly awarded them certificates of merit.

The Examiners have further announced to the following candidate, that his answers to the questions at the examination were highly satisfactory, and would have entitled him to a prize if he had not been above the age of twenty-six:—

Francis Kerridge Munton.

PRIZE FOR LIVERPOOL LAW STUDENTS.

The Examiners have also reported to the Council that, among the candidates from Liverpool in the year 1865, Mr. John Daniel Banks passed the best examination, and was in their opinion entitled to honorary distinction.

The Council have therefore awarded to Mr. Banks the prize, consisting of a gold medal, founded by Mr. Timpron Martin, of Liverpool.

The number of candidates examined in this term was 120; of these 106 were passed, and 16 postponed.

By order of the Council,

E. W. WILLIAMSON, Secretary.

Law Society's Hall, Chancery-lane,
London, Nov. 24, 1865.

Court Papers.

EQUITY CAUSE LISTS, AFTER MICHAELMAS TERM, 1865.

* * The following abbreviations have been adopted to abridge the space the Cause Papers would otherwise have occupied:—A. Abated—Adj. Adjourned—A. T. After Term—Ap. Appeal—C. D. Cause Day—Cl. Claim—C. Costs—D. Demurrer—E. Exceptions—F. C. Further Consideration—F. D. Further Directions—M. Motion—M. D. Motion for Decree—P. C. Pro Confesso—Pl. Plea—Ptn. Petition—R. Rehearing—Sp. C. Special Case—S. O. Stand Over—Sh. Short.

Before the LORD CHANCELLOR and the LORDS JUSTICES.

APPEALS.

Davies v. Shepherd (W., June 3) Full court
Blackett v. Bates (W., June 9) L. C.
Durrell v. Pritchard (pt. heard) (R., June 30) L. J.
Gladholm v. Barker (R., July 7) L. J.
Caton v. Caton (part heard) (S., July 15) L. C.
Clutton v. Strode (R., July 17) L. J.
Greatrex v. Banton (R., July 18) L. J.
M'Intosh v. Great Western Railway Co. (S., July 24) L. C., Hil. Term
Jefferys v. Dickson (W., July 28) L. C.
Williams v. Williams (K., July 27) L. J.
Cellier v. M'Bean (R., Aug. 7) L. J.
Nevinson v. Lennard (R., Aug. 7) L. J.
Moore v. Marable (R., Aug. 8) L. J.
Southern v. Harriman (W., Aug. 9) L. C.
Yates v. Jack (W., July 10) L. C.
Horsfield v. Ashton (W., Nov. 1) L. C.

Chadwick v. Turner (R., Nov. 2)
Soady v. Turnbull (S., Nov. 3) L. C.
Williams v. Glenon (R., Nov. 3)
Robson v. Whittingham (K., Nov. 4)
Wilson v. Hart (W., Nov. 4) L. C.
White v. Morland (W., Nov. 6) L. C.
De Beauvoir v. Benyon (R., Nov. 6)
Townsend v. Toker (R., Nov. 7)
Hooper v. Gumm (W., Nov. 10) L. C.
M'Lellan v. Gumm (W., Nov. 15) L. C.
In re Mellor's Estate } (R., Nov. 16)
Mellor v. Mellor }
M'Intosh v. Great Western Railway Co. (S., Nov. 20) L. C., Hil. Term
Jenkins v. Parry (S., Nov. 21) L. C.

CAUSES.

Baxendale v. West Midland Railway Co. (M D) L. C.
Baxendale v. Great Western Railway Co. (M D) L. C.
Wood v. Seales (F C) L. J.

Before the Right Hon. the MASTER OF THE ROLLS.

CAUSES, &c.

Kelson v. Egyptian Commercial and Trading Co. (Limited) (D)
Lee v. Lee (Cause)
Tregar v. Williams (M D)
Tomlinson v. Leigh (M D)
M'Dermott v. Seymour (Cau.)
Walker v. Ware, Hadlam, and Buntingford Railway Co. (M D)
Lambarde v. South-eastern Railway Co. (M D)
Dodsworth v. Marshall (Cau.)
Montefiore, Bart., v. Behrens (M D)
Ormerod v. Roston (F C)
Howard v. Earl of Shrewsbury (Cause)
Thomas v. Chorley (M D)
Stourton v. Burrell (M D)
Ibbott v. Burrell (M D)
Bloxsome v. Chichester (Cau.)
Bloxsome v. Chichester (Cau.)
Dickenson v. Burrell (M D)
Dickenson v. Burrell (M D)
Barrow v. Tyrer (M D)
Richardson v. Lancaster and Carlisle Railway Co. (M D)
Craggs v. Gray } (F C)
Webb v. Gray }
Goodyear v. Bruton (M D)
Verehat v. Midland Railway Co. (M D)
Windsor v. Campbell (M D)
Weston v. M'Dermot (Cause) Dec. 5
Freeman v. Bowen (M D)
Fryer v. Davies (M D)
Ludlow v. Bunbury (M D)
Turquand v. Bennett (Cause)
Jones v. Jones (M D)
Clements v. Welles (M D)
Chapple v. London, Chatham, and Dover Railway Co. (M D)
Whitlock v. Bunnett (M D)

Rowden v. Yeoman (M D)
 Peel v. Todd (M D)
 Bradley v. Fourness (M D)
 Windley v. Forman (M D)
 Adnutt v. Wright (Sp C)
 Armitage v. Coates (Sp C)
 Lord v. Jeffkins (Cause)
 Burmester v. Moxon (M D)
 Cave v. Ellis (M D)
 Crawshaw v. Allaway (Cause)
 Reay v. Rawlinson (F C)
 Percy v. Percy (F C)
 Bouville v. Lewis (F C)
 Hampton v. Holman (F C)
 Hammond v. Whitley (M D)
 Carr v. Livingston (M D)
 Powke v. Briggs (Cause)
 Rose v. Munk (M D)
 Tait v. Lathbury (M D)
 Chubb v. Griffiths (M D)
 Cosens v. Griffiths (M D)
 Tanner v. Tanner (Sp C)
 Harrison v. Chapman (M D)
 Ellice v. North American Colonial Association of Ireland (M D)
 Curtiss v. Grant (F C)
 Laing v. Campbell (Cause, Witnesses) Dec. 5
 Viscountess d'Adhemar v. Bertrand (M D)
 Bonfield v. Grant (F C)
 In re Tharkle's } (F C, Estate from Grah v. Tharkle } Chamb.)
 Wright v. Lowe (Cause)
 Lyster v. Jerrard (F C)
 In re Hawke } (F C, from Hawke v. Hawke } Chamb.)
 Wells v. Templeman (Cause)
 Swingle v. Reddy (Cause) Dec. 19
 Straughton v. Tate } (F C)
 Tate v. Straughton }
 Richardson v. Goodson (F C)
 Lord Lilford v. Keck (F C)
 Eyre v. Britt (Cause)
 Ibbotson v. Eiam (Sp C)
 Harris v. Cumling (M D)
 Moss v. Barton (M D)
 Griffiths v. Bracewell (M D)
 Yeomans v. Williams (M D)
 Hennessy v. Bray (F C)
 Lovejoy v. Crafter (M D)
 Clark v. Wallis (M D)
 Carr v. Lister (M D)
 Simmonds v. Cock (F C)
 Quain v. Fowler Butler (M D)
 Crane v. Wynn (F C)
 Morgan v. Davies (F C)
 Brookes v. Davidson (F C)
 Leasingham v. Haggard (M D)
 Gee v. Liddell (F C, Summons to vary)
 Delves v. Strother (Cause)

Corrigan v. Lea (M D)
 Markwell v. Bull } (F C)
 Markwell v. Markwell }
 Young v. Steel (M D)
 Wright v. Blake (Cause)
 Raphael v. Thames Valley Railway Co. (M D)
 Bracewell v. Griffiths (M D)
 Wood v. Joynson (M D)
 Miles v. Miles (M D)
 The Consolidated Assurance Co. v. Buckley (M D)
 Martin v. Ridley (F C)
 Solomon v. Davis (M D)
 Lawton v. Ownsworth (F C)
 Johnson v. Foulds (M D)
 Green v. Green (F C)
 Harvey v. Clarke (M D)
 Jones v. Martin (Cause)
 Boyd v. Hoggins (M D)
 Pettinger v. Ambler (M D)
 Wright v. Jackson (Cause)
 Shaw v. Griffiths (M D)
 Warren v. Watson (M D)
 Hardwick v. Hardwick (M D)
 In re Hayward's } (F C, Estate from Copestake v. Hayward } Chambers)
 Hopkins v. Boardman (F C)
 Pewtress v. Rix (M D)
 Baker v. Newman (M D)
 Markham v. Hutt (M D)
 England v. Lord Tredegar (M D)
 Ridgway v. Woodhouse (F C)
 Loosmore v. Davey (M D)
 In re Waite's Estate } (F C, from Waite v. Waite } Ch.)
 Mac Gillivray v. Lowden (M D)
 White v. Webb (M D)
 Hawkins v. Stanfield (M D)
 Proctor v. Robinson (Cause)
 Smith v. Edwards (M D)
 Masters v. Vickery (M D)
 Jones v. Vallance (M D)
 Banks v. Parsons (F C, and Summons to vary certif.)
 Pilling v. Pilling (F C) Dec. 8
 Bunn v. Pettinger (M D)
 Mellalieu v. Booth (M D)
 Lock v. London and Lancashire Insurance Co. (M D)
 Andrews v. Bohannon (M D)
 Brown v. Nash (F C)
 Rowe v. Tonkin (M D)
 Cameron v. Marquis of Cholmondeley (M D)
 Anstey v. Newman (Cause, In re Sansom's Estate) } (F C, from Sansom v. Hammond } Ch.)
 Slade v. Birkley (M D).

Sandilands v. Gilchrist } (Cause part hd.
 Gilchrist v. Sandilands } (Cause) Dec. 5
 Johnson v. Hodgson (Cause)
 Hansom v. Pugin (M D)
 Nicholas v. Walsh (M D)
 Butt v. Imperial Gas-light & Coke Co. (M D)
 Parsons v. Howkins (M D)
 Martin v. Headon (M D)
 Churton v. Frowen (M D)
 Jupp v. Nicholas (Cause)
 Boursot v. Stone (Cause)
 Boursot v. Savage (Cause)
 Poynder v. Hulbert (M D)
 Sedgfield v. Sedgfield (Sp C)
 Gimlett v. Gimlett (F C, and Sum. to vary certificate)
 Wakefield v. Duke of Buccleugh (M D)
 Ormerod v. Riley (Sp C)
 Watt v. Watt (F C)
 Hubbard v. Latham (F C)
 Courtis v. Watts (M D)
 Lees v. Whiteley (Cause)

Estate Co (Limited) v. Sharpe (M D)
 Hart v. Young (Cause)
 Webb v. Hunt (M D)
 Letton v. Goodden (M D)
 Dimond v. Edgell (M D)
 Cooke v. Ricketts (M D)
 Brooke v. Harling (M D)
 Warden v. Gunning (M D)
 Mac Lachlan v. Lord (Cause)
 Bowman v. Clark (F C)
 Dickson v. Wason (M D)
 Morrison v. Travis (M D)
 Clay v. Arrowsmith (M D)
 Bennett v. Bennett (Cause)
 North v. Att.-Gen. (M D)
 Leaton v. Armstrong (F C)
 Latham v. Latham (F C)
 Pennington v. Pennington (F C)
 Bridges v. Hinxman (F C)
 Dunn v. Aggs (Cause)
 North Stafford Steel, Iron, & Coal Co. (Burslem) (Limited) v. Lord Camoys (M D).

Before the Vice-Chancellor Sir JOHN STUART.

CAUSES, &c.

Harries v. Rees (M D)
 Hume v. Pocock (M D)
 Cookes v. Cookes (F C, 2 Summons)
 Lee v. Bullen (Cause, pt. hd.)
 Lovett v. Hankins (M D)
 Forbes v. Preston (Cause) S O
 Ferrand v. Townend (M D)
 Sullivan v. Terrell (Cause, 3 Summons)
 Elwes v. Barnard (Cause)
 Jones v. Dixon (F C, Summons)
 Day v. Day (F C)
 Pettitt v. London, Brighton, and South-coast Railway Co. (M D)
 Swain v. Fulford (M D)
 Pearl v. Fenwick (M D)
 Holberton v. Clement (F C)
 Backhouse v. Paddon (M D)
 Evans v. Williams (Cause)
 Brindley v. Turner (M D)
 Phillips v. Francis (M D)
 Minton v. Kirwood (M D)
 Morris v. Rathbone (Cause)
 Mackmin v. Matthews (M D)
 Green v. Stapleton (Cause)
 Thompson v. Marquis of Northampton (M D)
 Caldwell v. Caldwell (M D)
 Steedman v. Silvester (F C)
 Gordon v. Gordon (M D)

Silver v. Coote (M D)
 Wood v. Wadhams (F C)
 Mullock v. Matthews (M D)
 Wietlesbach v. Scott (M D)
 Woodhouse v. Woodhouse (M D)
 Matthews v. Matthews (Can.)
 Shepherdson v. Dale (F C)
 Forman v. Harvey (F C)
 Penrice v. Sharplin (Cause)
 Hume v. Pocock (F C)
 Cook v. Glass (M D)
 Frankerd v. Baker (Sp C)
 Alexandra Park Co. (Limited) v. Wood (M D)
 Homfray v. Fothergill (M D)
 Evans v. Stanier (M D)
 Duddell v. Simpson (M D)
 Patch v. Ward (M D)
 Waters v. Earl of Shaftesbury (M D)
 Lovegrove v. Downs (F C)
 Danell v. Hayling Railway Co. (M D)
 Baines v. Baines (F C)
 Lawton v. Ford (Cause)
 Morgan v. Howell (M D)
 Day v. Jones (M D)
 Rowe v. Langley (M D)
 Jupp v. Evans (M D)
 Crowther v. Crowther (M D)
 Kendall v. Watson (M D).

Before the Vice-Chancellor Sir W. P. WOOD.

CAUSES, &c.

Davenport v. Rylands (M D)
 Betts v. Rimmell (E to ans.)
 Williams v. Osborne (M D)
 Smith v. Moffatt (D)
 Moseley v. Cressey's London & Burton Steam-cooperage Co. (Limited) (D)
 Righton v. Grissell (E to ans.)
 Warren v. Cutts (D)
 Smith v. Natal Investment Co. (Limited) (E to ans.)
 Lucas v. Jones (M D)

Duke of Portland v. Hill (M D)
 Wedderburne v. Thomas (Can. P C)
 Darall v. Willis (Cause)
 Stormont v. Thickens (M D)
 Stanier v. Evans (M D)
 Stables v. Powell (F C)
 Reading v. Atkins (M D)
 Knox v. Gye (M D)
 Hallworth v. Foster (Cause)
 Campbell v. Campbell (M D)

Before the Vice-Chancellor Sir RICHARD T. KINDERSLEY.

CAUSES, &c.

Pearse v. Dobinson (3) (Pl) part heard
 Smart v. Hawsworth (M D)
 Millard v. Elyett (M D)
 Earl of Eglinton v. Lamb, Bart. (M D)
 Earl of Eglinton v. Lamb, Bart. (M D)
 Towns v. Wentworth (M D)
 Walsh v. Jupp (M D)
 Ransome v. Burgess (M D)

Painter v. Ford (Cause)
 Binney v. Ince Hall Coal and Cannel Co. (M D)
 Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot v. North Staffordshire Railway Co. (Can.) Dec. 11
 Att.-Gen. v. Poynder (M D)
 Lambe v. Orton } (F C)
 Lambe v. Orton }
 Coope v. Cresswell (M D)
 Wilkinson v. Eykyn (M D)

Cocks v. Cocks (M D)
 Hinde v. Morton (Cause)
 Jenner v. Jenner (M D)
 Earl de la Warr v. Lord Cavendish (M D)
 Millard v. Bailey (M D)
 Ainsworth v. Walmsley (M D)
 Earl of Stamford and Warrington v. Dawson (M D)
 Woods v. Lamb (M D)
 Ewen v. Candler (M D)
 Caulfield v. Caulfield (M D)
 Alliance Bank v. Motion (M D)
 Pennell v. Davison (M D)
 Davies v. Tatham (M D)
 Steele v. Stuart (M D)
 Martin v. Martin (Sp C)
 Tetley v. Brown (Cause)
 White v. Chitty (M D)
 Lower v. Earl of Shaftesbury (Cause, Witnesses)
 Kelsey v. Fowler (Cause)
 Dear v. Webster (M D)
 Denham v. Cox (M D)
 Walker v. Brettell (M D)
 Watkins v. Neath and Brecon Railway Co. (M D)
 Smith v. Owen (M D)
 Hensley v. Wills (M D)
 Sturges v. Sturges (M D)
 Turner v. Elkins (Sp C)
 Wiltshire v. Marshall (Cause)
 Trinder v. Trinder (M D)
 Tyrer v. Llewellyn (M D)
 Hollamby v. Oldrieve (Cau.)
 Moore v. Harper (M D)
 Harris v. Glyn (F C)
 Graham v. Parsons (F C)
 Cartledge v. Radbourne (M D)
 Gaskin v. Rogers (F C)
 Bowyer v. Woodman (F C)
 Middle Level Commissioners v. Commissioners of the Nene Wash Lands (M D)
 Clarke v. Cock (M D)
 Sparrow v. Ewing (Cause)
 Romans v. Mitchell (M D)
 Binns v. Nichols (F C, Summons to vary)
 Salvin v. Weston (M D)
 Fuller v. Chamier (Rehearing)
 Beaver v. Tuck (Cause)
 Ord v. Ord (M D)
 Darby v. Swansea Harbour Trustees (M D)
 Mendham v. Williams (F C)
 Farrer v. Mould (F C)
 In re Gibson { (F C, from Matthews v. Foulsham (Ch.)
 Sherman v. Horrell (F C)
 Abraham v. Pearce (M D)
 Worship v. Clarke (M D)
 Wedderburne v. Thomas (Cause)
 Levitt v. Levitt (F C)
 Harbin v. Masterman (M D)
 Drake v. Boxill (Cause, Summons)
 Howath v. Mills (F C)
 Fleetwood, Bart., v. Forshaw (M D)
 Tipping v. St. Helen's Smelting Co. (Limited) (M D)

Finch v. Burden (F C)
 Bazalgette v. Gregory (M D)
 Wickham v. Scarfe (Cause)
 M'Kewan v. Dawes (M D)
 Morley v. Mendham (M D)
 Barnes v. Jennings (F C)
 Rodgers v. Kohn (Cause)
 Martin v. Martin (Sp C)
 Forbes v. Steven (Cause)
 Jeffries v. Agra and Masterman's Bank (Limited) (M D)
 Tangye v. Stott (M D) Dec. 5
 Hick v. Hick (F C)
 Phillips v. Nock (M D)
 Thain v. Riches (M D)
 Crundell v. Cox (F C)
 Tangye v. Stott (Trial without a jury) Dec. 5
 Dawson v. Medhurst (M D)
 Hale v. David (M D)
 Chapple v. Bibby (Cause)
 Goodwin v. Lee (F C)
 Wilson v. Wilson (M D)
 Solomon v. Dadson (Cause)
 Neville v. Andrews (F C)
 Helron v. Alexander (Cause)
 Otway Cave v. Otway (Cau.)
 Prankerd v. Whitehead (M D)
 Snowball v. Wrightson (M D)
 Allin v. Archer (M D)
 Batterbee v. Dyer (M D)
 Kernode v. Macdonald } (M D)
 Kermode v. Macdonald }
 Langford v. Samson (F C)
 Puxley v. Puxley (M D)
 Cross v. Wilkes (M D)
 Prince v. Prince (M D)
 Armitage v. Armitage (M D)
 Johnson v. Edgware, Highgate, and London Railway Co. (M D)
 Tunaley v. Robertson (Cause)
 Timewell v. West London Wharves and Warehouses Co. (M D)
 Ashton v. Hurlstone (M D)
 Hynam v. Dunn (M D)
 Lawlor v. Norris (M D)
 Brownjohn v. Gale (M D)
 Brown v. West London Wharves and Warehouses Co. (M D)
 In re Osborne's Estate } (F C, from Osborne v. Osborne } Cham.)
 Carr v. Buchanan (M D)
 Glover v. Wilson (M D)
 Dudley and West Bromwich Banking Co. v. Silvester (M D)
 Swain v. Salmon (F C)
 Hill v. Hill (F C)
 Paris v. Cooke (Cause)
 Woodhouse v. Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Railway Co. (M D)
 Jewan v. Whitworth (M D)
 Aspinall v. Duckworth (M D)
 Townshend v. Johnson (M D)
 Wilkinson v. Gibson (M D)
 Cromack v. Cromack (M D)
 George v. Symons (M D)
 Leavens v. Atkinson (M D)
 Weall v. Weall (Cause).

Court of Chancery under the Act and Rules of 1862. With the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1862, and Forms of Proceedings, Costs, Statutes, and copious Table of Cases. Also containing an Introductory Chapter on the Formation, Incorporation, and Registration of Joint-stock Companies. By Joseph S. Taylor, Solicitor. 12mo., pp. 508.—Amer.

Questions founded on Lord St. Leonards' Treatise on the Law of Vendors and Purchasers, designed and prepared principally for the Use of Students for the Bar, and Articled Clerks preparing for admission as Solicitors. Dedicated (by permission) to the Right Honourable the Lord St. Leonards. By T. Barber May, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. Post 8vo., pp. 268.—Maxwell. [The questions and index appear to have been compiled with great care.]

The Fifteenth Edition, by W. N. Welsby, Esq., adapted to the New Criminal Statutes of 1861, in 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 12. 6s. cloth boards.

ARCHBOLD'S PLEADING and EVIDENCE in CRIMINAL CASES; with the Statutes, Precedents of Indictments, and the Evidence necessary to support them. By JOHN JERVIS, Esq. (late Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas). The Fifteenth Edition. Including the Practice in Criminal Proceedings by Indictment. By W. N. WELSBY, Esq., Barrister at Law, Recorder of Chester.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

In 2 thick vols., price 2l. 12s. 6d. cloth.

CHITTY'S PRACTICE of the COURT of QUEEN'S BENCH in PERSONAL ACTIONS and EJECTMENT. By THOMAS CHITTY, Esq. Including the Practice of the Courts of Common Pleas and Exchequer. The Eleventh Edition. By SAMUEL PRENTICE, Esq., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 1 thick vol., price 1l. 11s. 6d. cloth.

CHITTY'S FORMS of PRACTICAL PROCEEDINGS in the COURTS of QUEEN'S BENCH, COMMON PLEAS, and EXCHEQUER of PLEAS. With Notes and Observations thereon. The Ninth Edition, enlarged.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

CHITTY ON BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 1l. 8s.

CHITTY on BILLS of EXCHANGE, Promissory Notes, Cheques on Bankers, Bankers' Cash Notes, and Bank Notes; with References to the Law of Scotland, France, and America. The Tenth Edition. By JOHN A. RUSSELL and D. MACLACHLAN, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

SHELFORD'S LAW of HIGHWAYS in ENGLAND and WALES, brought down to 1866.

In 1 vol. 12mo., price 12s. cloth.

THE LAW of HIGHWAYS in ENGLAND and WALES; comprising Highways in Districts under Boards of Health and of Local Government, and as affected by Railways. With additional Forms not contained in the Acts. By LEONARD SHELFORD, Esq. The Third Edition, with a Supplement, containing the Highway Act, 1864, &c. With Notes and a revised Index. By C. MANLEY SMITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

In royal 12mo., price 14s. cloth.

A TREATISE on the PRINCIPLES and PRACTICE of the COURT for DIVORCE and MATRIMONIAL CAUSES, with the Statutes, Rules, Fees, and Forms relating thereto, and copious Examples of Bills of Costs. By GEORGE BROWNE, Esq., B. A., Barrister at Law, of the Inner Temple.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

FOURTH EDITION OF PALEY ON SUMMARY CONVICTIONS.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 21s. cloth boards.

PALEY on the LAW and PRACTICE of SUMMARY CONVICTIONS by JUSTICES of the PEACE. Including Proceedings preliminary and subsequent to Convictions, and under the 18 & 19 Vict. c. 126, relating to Larceny, &c. With Practical Forms and Precedents of Convictions. The Fourth Edition. By H. T. J. MACNAMARA, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard; W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

A Manual on the Winding-up of Companies by the

TILSLEY'S STAMP ACTS,

INCLUDING THE ACTS OF PARLIAMENT FOR THE PRESENT YEAR.

In 8vo., price 12s. 6d. cloth.

A DIGEST OF THE STAMP ACTS and the Judicial Decisions on the Stamp Laws not contained in the Author's Treatise; including the Probate, Legacy, and Succession Duties; with Tables of all the Stamp Duties. By HUGH TILSLEY, Assistant Solicitor of Inland Revenue. Ninth Edition, revised and continued by his Son, EDWARD HUGH TILSLEY, of the Inland Revenue Office.

This Work, completed to the present date (including the Acts of Parliament of the present year), forms a Supplement to the Second Edition of the Treatise on the Stamp Laws by the same Author.

London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SHIPPING LAW.

In 8vo., price 20s. cloth, lettered.

THE SHIPPING LAW MANUAL: a concise Treatise on the Law governing the Interests of Shipowners, Merchants, Masters, Seamen, and other Persons connected with British Ships. Together with the Acts of Parliament, Forms, and Precedents relating to the subject. Being especially intended for popular use in Seaport Towns. By W. T. GREENHOW, of the Middle Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law.

"The 'Shipping Law Manual,' by Mr. W. T. Greenhow, brings into a popular shape, and to the latest date, the entire body of legal regulations affecting the shipping trade of the country alike in relation to owners, merchants, masters, and seamen, and is especially adapted for ordinary use by all persons connected with the business of seaport towns."—Times, Jan. 31, 1885.

"The object of the author of this book is to popularise the Law of Merchant Shipping, and to compress within the compass of a single volume all that is necessary to be known by those directly interested in British navigation. It was no easy task to condense and arrange this mass of legislation, so as to make it intelligible to the general reader. But Mr. Greenhow has achieved it, and placed within reach of every one connected with shipping a valuable compendium of the law relating to that branch of industry."—Shipping and Mercantile Gazette.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

LEVI'S COMMERCIAL LAW.

In 2 vols royal 8vo., price 35s. cloth, lettered.

INTERNATIONAL COMMERCIAL LAW. Being the Principles of Mercantile Law of the following and other Countries—viz. England, Scotland, Ireland, British India, British Colonies.

Austria,	France,	Netherlands,	Spain,
Belgium,	Germany,	Norway,	Sweden,
Brazil,	Greece,	Portugal,	Switzerland,
Buenos Ayres,	Hans Towns,	Prussia,	United States,
Denmark,	Italy,	Russia,	Wurtemberg,

By LEONE LEVI, Esq., F.S.A., F.S.S., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law, Professor of the Principles and Practice of Commerce in King's College, London, &c. In 2 vols. royal 8vo. 1883.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

NEW EDITIONS OF LORD ST. LEONARDS' WORKS.

Price 11. 18s. cloth, the Fourteenth Edition, much enlarged.

A CONCISE and PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW of VENDORS and PURCHASERS of ESTATES. By SIR EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

Also, uniform with the above, in 1 thick vol. royal 8vo., the Eighth Edition, price 11. 18s. cloth.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE OF POWERS. By SIR EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 14. 5s. cloth.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE on the NEW STATUTES relating to PROPERTY. The Second Edition. By SIR EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

STAMP'S INDEX TO THE STATUTES.

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 18s. cloth boards.

STAMP'S INDEX to the STATUTE LAW of ENGLAND. By GEORGE STAMP, Esq. The Third Edition, brought down to the close of the Session 24 & 25 Vict. By JAMES EDWARD DAVIS, Esq., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

COURT OF THE VICE-WARDEN OF THE STANNARIES.

Price 1s. 6d. sewed.

GENERAL RULES, FORMS, and COURT FEES on the WINDING UP of MINING COMPANIES within the JURISDICTION of the STANNARIES; also Solicitors' Fees and Charges on the Equity Side of the Court.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE CONTRACT OF SALE

A TREATISE on the EFFECT of the CONTRACT of SALE on the LEGAL RIGHTS of PROPERTY and POSSESSION in GOODS, WARES, and MERCHANDISE. By COLIN BLACKBURN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

RUSSELL ON CRIMES.

This day is published, in 3 vols. royal 8vo., price 51. 15s. 6d. cloth.
A TREATISE ON CRIMES and MISDEMEANOURS. By SIR WILLIAM OLDNALL RUSSELL, Knt., late Chief Justice of Bengal. Fourth Edition. By CHARLES SPRENGEL GRAEVES, Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel.
London: Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard; H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; and W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 12mo., price 4s. boards.

THE LEASES AND SALES OF SETTLED

ESTATES ACT, 19 & 20 Vict. c. 120; and the General Orders and Regulations relating thereto. With an Introduction and Notes, and a Supplement, containing the Amending Act, 21 & 22 Vict. c. 77, and the Cases and Decisions down to the end of Easter Term, 1861. By M. I. FORTESCUE BRICKDALE, of the Middle Temple and Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

GRAEVES'S CRIMINAL ACTS.—Second Edition.

In post 8vo., price 16s. cloth.

THE CRIMINAL-LAW CONSOLIDATION and AMENDMENT ACTS of the 24 & 25 VICT. With Notes, Observations, and Forms for Summary Proceedings. By CHARLES SPRENGEL GRAEVES, Esq., one of her Majesty's Counsel.
Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

CHITTY'S COLLECTION OF STATUTES.

Now ready, in 4 very thick vols., price 127. 12s. cloth.

A COLLECTION of all the STATUTES of PRACTICAL UTILITY, with Notes thereon; intended as a Circuit and Court Companion. The Third Edition, containing all the Statutes of Practical Utility in the Civil and Criminal Administration of Justice to the present time. By W. N. WELSBY and EDWARD BEAVAN, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

"The principal branches of the Law are arranged alphabetically, and under each is collected all the Statutes relating to it, with explanatory notes. Besides the easy access afforded by the alphabetical arrangement of the subjects, a very copious general Index supplies the means of ready reference to all the subjects of lesser importance to which the various Statutes are directed."

"We could not say more for this great work by any words of approbation than by this short description of it. It is an admirable design admirably executed."—Law Times, May 13, 1855.

"In the debate on the proposed consolidation of the Statutes, on the 9th February, 1854, Lord Campbell said, 'that the Statutes at large extended to about fifty volumes folio, but all the Statutes which were usually required by lawyers for reference might be found in three octavo volumes, compiled by his learned friend Mr. Welsby. When he (Lord Campbell) was upon the Bench, he always had this work by him, and no Statutes were ever referred to by the Bar which he could not find in it.'"

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.

68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q.C.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions. Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office. C. B. CLABON, Sec.

LAW UNION FIRE and LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Chief Office—126, Chancery-lane, W.C.

Subscribed Capital—ONE MILLION STERLING.

The Fire and Life Departments are under one Management, but with separate Funds and Accounts.

Chairman—Sir WILLIAM FOSTER, Bart.

Deputy-Chairman—Mr. Sergeant MANNING, Q.A.S.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Subscribed Capital; £750,000, in addition to the Reserve Fund.

Business consists of the best classes of risks.

Insurers will be allowed the full benefit of the Reduction of Duty.

Claims settled promptly and liberally.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Subscribed Capital £250,000, in addition to the Reserve Fund.

PREMIUMS MODERATE.

A Bonus every five years. Next Bonus in 1869. At the Division of Profits in 1864, the Reversionary Bonus amounted to from 15 to 50 per cent. per annum on the Premiums paid, varying with the age of the Insured.

Copies of the Directors' Report and Balance-sheet, and every information, may be obtained at the Chief Office, or of any of the Agents of the Company. FRANK MCGEDY, Secretary.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parbet Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN; at the OFFICE, No. 59, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, December 9, 1886.

The Jurist

No. 571, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.

No. 1510, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

DECEMBER 16, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

SOLICITORS' BOOKKEEPING (Three Methods).

By G. J. KAIN, F.R.S.

Kain's Triple Column System, 7th Edition, 6s.
Kain's Single and Double Column Systems (in one volume), First Issue, 7s. 6d. (just published).
Kain's Rental System (bound up with each of the above).
KAIN, SPARROW, & Co., 69, Chancery-lane, W. C.; WATERLOW & SONS, London-wall; and through all Booksellers.

Just published, in 1 vol. crown 8vo., price 6s. 6d. cloth,
QUESTIONS FOUNDED ON LORD ST. LEONARDS' TREATISE on the LAW of VENDORS and PURCHASERS. Designed and prepared principally for the Use of Students for the Bar, and Articled Clerks preparing for Admission as Solicitors. By T. BAKER MAY, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.
W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

Preparing for Publication,
FOR THE USE OF STUDENTS,

QUESTIONS ON THE SEVENTH EDITION OF WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY. By the AUTHOR.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

JOSHUA WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY.

Just published, the Seventh Edition, in 1 vol. 8vo., price 30s. cloth.
PRINCIPLES OF THE LAW OF REAL PROPERTY, intended as a first Book for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, one of her Majesty's Counsel.

Henry Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, London.

In 1 vol. 12mo., price 7s.,
A TREATISE ON COMPOSITION DEEDS under the Stat. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 134. By THOMAS ERSKINE HOLLAND, M. A., Fellow of Exeter College, Oxford, and of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NEW EDITIONS OF LORD ST. LEONARDS' WORKS.

Price 11. 18s. cloth, the Fourteenth Edition, much enlarged.

A CONCISE AND PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW of VENDORS and PURCHASERS of ESTATES. By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

Also, uniform with the above, in 1 thick vol. royal 8vo., the Eighth Edition, price 11. 15s. cloth.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE OF POWERS. By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 11. 5s. cloth.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON THE NEW STATUTES relating to PROPERTY. The Second Edition. By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NEW EDITION OF SMITH (C. MANLEY) ON THE LAW OF MASTER AND SERVANT.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 16s. cloth boards.

A TREATISE ON THE LAW OF MASTER AND SERVANT, including therein MASTERS and WORKMEN in every Description of Trade and Occupation. With an Appendix of Statutes. The Second Edition. By CHARLES MANLEY SMITH, Esq., Barrister at Law, of the Inner Temple and Midland Circuit.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NEW EDITION OF BEST ON EVIDENCE.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 28s. cloth boards.

A TREATISE ON THE PRINCIPLES OF THE LAW OF EVIDENCE; with Elementary Rules for conducting the Examination and Cross-examination of Witnesses. The Third Edition. By W. M. BEST, A.M., LL.B., of Gray's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 18s.,
A TREATISE ON DAMAGES, comprising their Measure, the Mode in which they are Assessed and Reviewed, the Practice of Granting New Trials, and the Law of Set-off and Compensation under the Lands Clauses Act. By JOHN D. MAYNE, Esq., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

No. 571, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

NEW EDITION of ELMER'S PRACTICE in LUNACY, with Notes of Cases, Forms, Costs, Statutes, General Orders, and a Copious Index. Price 16s. 6d. cloth.
Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, in crown 8vo., pp. 177, price 4s. 6d. cloth lettered,

ROUSE'S MANUAL OF THE COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION (under the 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99); comprising a Summary of the Act; a Short Treatise on each Subject of Jurisdiction; a Summary of the Trustees Relief Acts, and Trustee Acts, and the Decisions thereon; and Appendices, containing the County Courts Equitable Jurisdiction Act, the Trustees Relief Acts, the Trustee Acts, &c.; County Court Orders and Forms in Equity; and a Scale of Costs and Charges.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

This day is published, in medium 8vo., price 11. 5s. cloth,
A MANUAL OF CIVIL LAW; containing a Translation of, and Commentary on the Fragments of, the XII Tables and the Institutes of Justinian; the Text of the Institutes of Gaius and Justinian. Arranged in parallel columns; and the Text of the Fragments of Ulpian, and of Selections from Paul's Receipte Sententiae. By PATRICK CUMIN, M.A., Balliol College, Oxford, Barrister at Law. Second Edition, enlarged.

London: Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn. Oxford: J. H. & J. Parker. Cambridge: Deighton, Bell, & Co. Edinburgh: T. & T. Clark. Dublin: Hodges, Smith, & Co.

TWENTIETH ANNUAL ISSUE.

This day is published,

THE LAWYER'S COMPANION, DIARY, and LONDON AND PROVINCIAL LAW DIRECTORY for 1866; containing The Companies Act, 1862, with an Introduction, Analysis, and Index; an Abstract of the most important Acts of the Session of 1865; and the New Orders and Rules for regulating the Practice of the County Courts, 1865. With a Scale of Costs and Charges to be paid to Counsel and Attorneys in the County Courts under the Provisions of the Statute 28 & 29 Vict. c. 29. Edited by FREDERICK LAWRENCE Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

The Work is bound in cloth, lettered on back and side, and may be had as under:—

No.		s.	d.
No. 1.	Plain, two days on a page	5	0
2.	The above, interleaved	7	0
3.	Ruled with or without money columns	5	6
4.	The above, interleaved	8	0
5.	Plain, whole page to a day	7	6
6.	The above, interleaved	9	6
7.	Whole page to a day, ruled with or without money columns	8	6
8.	The above, interleaved	10	6
9.	Ruled blue lines, without money columns, three days on a page	5	0

London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

COOKE ON INCLOSURE OF COMMONS.

In 12mo., price 16s. cloth.

THE ACTS for facilitating the INCLOSURE of COMMONS in ENGLAND and WALES; with a Treatise on the Law of Rights of Commons, in reference to these Acts; and on the Jurisdiction of the Inclosure Commissioners in Exchanges and Partition; under the public and private Money Drainage Acts; and under the Companies' Acts relating thereto; with Forms as settled by the Commissioners. By GEORGE WINGROVE COOKE, of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law. Fourth Edition.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers. No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.

68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, G.C., M.P., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q. C.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.

Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office.

C. B. CLABON, Sec.

W W

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	479
The Master of the Rolls on Law Reporting	480
Reviews	481
Friendly Societies	483

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCH, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Re Adam's Trusts. —(Will—Gift over “in the event of death”)	961
--------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

ROLLS COURT.

By M. BROWN, Barrister at Law.

Bostock v. Floyer. —(Liability of trustees—Loss by fraud of solicitor)	962
Tomlinson v. Leigh. —(Practice—Rectification of settlement—Evidence)	962
Re The London Armoury Company (Limited). —(Winding-up petition—Paid-up shares—Companies Act, 1863)	963
Young v. Smith. —(Recitals—Covenant to settle after-acquired property)	963

VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY'S COURT.

By E. LLOYD, Barrister at Law.

Glenny v. Smith. —(Injunction—Style of firm—Principles of the law of trade-marks)	964
Re The Leeds Banking Company. —Addinell's Case.—Dobson's Case.—Fearnside and Dean's Case.—(Joint-stock company—Winding-up—Contributory—Introduction of new term into contract—Liabilities of executors)	965
Re The Warwick and Worcester Railway Company. —De Beauvoir's Case.—(Practice in chambers—Winding up—Joint-stock Companies Winding-up Act, 1848, sect. 92—Charges of misfeasance against directors)	967
Nottley v. Palmer. — Nottley v. Nottley. —(Administration—Fund in court—Petition of tenant-in-tail—Disentailing deed—Advances out of capital)	968

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By A. RUMSEY, Barrister at Law.

Re Comber's Settlement. —(Will—Power of appointment partially exercised—Subsequent residuary bequest)	968
Morrall v. Prichard. —(Practice—Motion intitled in non-existing suit)	969

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT—(Continued.)
Dodd v. Holbrook. —(Unlawful arrest of solicitor—Costs)	969

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVSEY, Barrister at Law.

Reg. v. The Governor of the Debtors Prison for London and Middlesex, in Whitecross-street, in the City of London. —(Poor rate—Defaulter—Commitment—Civil process—12 § 13 Vict. c. 14, s. 2—4 Geo. 4, c. 64—52 Geo. 3, c. aciz)	970
Williams v. Reynolds and Another. —(Contract for sale of goods—Non-delivery—Measure of damages)	973
Mainprice v. Westley. —(Sale by auction—Contract with auctioneer)	975
The Guardians of Hastings Union, Apprs., The Guardians of St. James, Clerkenwell, Respns. —(Settlement—Renting a tenement—Hiring for a year—Quarterly hiring—Weekly hiring—6 Geo. 4, c. 57, s. 2)	977

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By E. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

Hadley v. Taylor and Others. —(Nuisance—Ware-house—Temporary occupation—Liability of occupier)	979
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

By W. BRANDT, Barrister at Law.

Miller v. Biddle and Another. —(Non-transferable promissory note—Instalments—Default—Days of grace)	980
Parker v. Tootal. —(Error—Costs below—Substitute plaintiff)	980
Booth v. Taylor. —(Procedure in injunction—Pleading)	981

COURT OF PROBATE.

By DR. MIDDLETON.

In the Goods of Josiah Williams, Deceased. —(Will—Foot or end—15 Vict. c. 24)	982
Powell v. Powell. —(Testamentary suit—Pleadings—Intestacy)	982
In the Goods of J. G. Bevan, Deceased. —(Administration to a seaman in her Majesty's service—Pay—Crown applying—11 Geo. 4, c. 20)	983

CROWN CASES RESERVED.

By G. FRANCIS, Barrister at Law.

Reg. v. William Fisher. —(Malicious injury to property—Destroying machines—24 § 25 Vict. c. 37, s. 15)	983
Reg. v. Curgerwen. —(Bigamy—Seven years' absence—Knowledge—Onus of proof)	984

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

POLLOCK'S PRACTICE OF THE COUNTY COURT.

THE PRACTICE OF THE COUNTY COURTS; with the Decisions of the Superior Courts, and Tables of Fees and Costs; also Appendices, containing all the Statutes, Rules of Practice, and Forms, including those relating to Bankruptcy. In Two Parts, with Tabular Indices. The Fifth Edition. By C. E. POLLOCK, Esq., and H. NICOL, Esq., Barristers at Law. In 1 vol. royal 18mo., price 1l. 10s. cloth boards.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

TOULMIN SMITH'S "THE PARISH."

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 18s. cloth bds.,

THE PARISH: its Powers and Obligations at Law as regards the Welfare of every Neighbourhood, and in Relation to the State; its Officers and Committees, and the Responsibility of every Parishioner. With Illustrations of the Practical Working of this Institution in all Secular Affairs, and of some modern Attempts at Ecclesiastical Incroachment. By TOULMIN SMITH, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. The Second Edition, with important Additions. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

In 6vs., price 15s. cloth.

A HAND-BOOK OF PRECEDENTS IN CONVEYANCING. By FRANCIS HOUSMAN, Barrister at Law. "We know of no work of the kind which contains within the same limited number of pages, and consequently at the same moderate price, so extensive a collection of forms readily applicable to the various exigencies of the draftsman."—Law Magazine, August, 1861.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SETON'S DECREES IN EQUITY.

Now complete, in 2 vols. royal 8vo., price 2l. 18s. cloth, lettered. SETON'S FORMS OF DECREES IN EQUITY, and of Orders connected with them. A new Edition, adapted to the present Practice, with Practical Notes. By W. H. HARRISON, Esq., Barrister at Law, and R. H. LEACH, Esq., one of the Registrars of the Court. Third Edition. 2 vols. royal 8vo. 1862. Vol. 2, part 2, completing the work, may be had separately, price 14s. cloth. Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, DECEMBER 16, 1865.

THANKS to the Legislature and to the decision of the House of Lords in Peck v. The North Staffordshire Railway Company (10 H. L. C. 473), the public have obtained satisfactory protection against the railway companies, considered as carriers of goods. As carriers of passengers, however, the railway companies would seem to have the power of dictating whatever terms they may think proper to their passengers.

In order more clearly to apprehend the state of the law, with regard to the carriage of passengers, it is necessary that we should take a short review of the law affecting railway companies as common carriers of goods. At common law, a common carrier of goods was bound to receive goods of the nature of those that he usually carried, and was responsible for all losses till delivery, except those caused by the King's enemies, or by the act of God, or by the default of the owner; and as to the time of delivery, he was bound to use due diligence. More than 100 years ago, the carriers tried to limit their liability by notices. It was at first doubted whether they could do so; it being argued that, like innkeepers, they held a public employment, and had no power to alter their common-law rights and duties. However, they gradually established the power, and it was settled beyond any doubt before the Carriers Act, 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 68, that they could make qualified acceptances of goods, although, according to Mr. Justice Story, they could not, by any special agreement, exempt themselves from all responsibility, so as to evade altogether the salutary policy of the common law. There is a difference of opinion as to whether these notices acted by way of contract, or as restrictions on the public profession of a carrier. It was decided in Kerr v. Willen (6 Mau. & S. 150), that in order to bind the owner of goods by the notice, actual knowledge of it must be brought home to him. Previously, then, to the passing of the Carriers Act, carriers could, by notice, made known to the sender of goods, protect themselves from unforeseen losses, but not against losses caused by the fraud or negligence of themselves or their servants. And this state of things ensued. Bankers and others were in the habit of sending valuable packages by carriers, and paying the same rate as for other goods, and the carriers, often being unable to prove actual knowledge in their customers of their notices, became subject to great losses until the Legislature interfered to protect them by means of the Carriers Act, which enacted, that a carrier might, by a notice affixed in his office, state an increased rate of charge for the safe conveyance of certain goods specified in the act when their value exceeded 10*l.*; and unless the value of such goods was declared, and the increased rate paid, the carrier should not be liable for loss or injury, except it arose from the felonious act of his servants. It also enacted that, with regard to the specified goods under the value of 10*l.*, and all other goods, no public notice or declaration should affect the liability of the carrier, but that he should be liable as at common law; but the act also provided, that nothing therein should extend to annul or in any way affect a special contract between the carrier and the customer for the conveyance of goods. Hinton v. Dibdin (2 Q. B. 646) decided that the words of the Carriers Act, "not to be liable for the loss or injury to," are to be taken in their natural sense as exempting the carrier from all loss, whether caused by negligence or accident. The railway companies, when they came into use, at once availed themselves of the power of making special contracts to impose such conditions on their customers as almost entirely removed their liability. Carr v. The Lancashire Railway Company, decided in 1852, was the culminating case. The defendants there received a horse to be carried for hire in a horse box. On the ticket it was stated that it was issued subject to the owners taking all risks of conveyance whatsoever, as the company would not be responsible for any injury, however caused. It was found that a collision had been caused by the gross negligence of the defendants' servants, whereby the plaintiff's horse was killed; yet the Court held that there was a special contract by which the plaintiff had taken upon himself all risk, and had agreed that the defendants should not be responsible for any injury, however caused. These cases seem to us to have an important bearing on the present law with regard to passengers, and we shall notice them again. Of the soundness of the interpretation of such a contract as that last adverted to, we do not think there can be much doubt; but it might, perhaps, be open to remark, that the Courts have been somewhat harsh as against customers, in, as it were, taking it at once for granted, that because a man takes a ticket with certain conditions printed upon it, that therefore he contracts on the terms of those conditions. The element of a contract is, that there should be two consenting minds; and when a man is obliged to send a parcel, and there is but one means of doing so, he is under a species of duress; and he would seem to say, "This being the only mode of sending my parcel, I send it on such of your conditions as with reference to your duty as carriers the law will hold to be valid—i. e. on such terms as are reasonable, for you, being common carriers, are bound to take my goods, and cannot indirectly get rid of that duty by imposing terms so unreasonable that you refuse to incur any obligation or risk whatever, and in substance, therefore, refuse to carry." However, from Walker v. The York and North Midland Railway Company (2 El. & Bl. 750), it would seem that even in the case of notices personally served, the jury would be bound to infer from the receipt of the notice, and the subsequent sending of the goods, that a special contract on the terms of the notice had been made, unless the sender had in the interim unambiguously refused to deliver the goods to the carriers on the terms of the notice, and the carriers had acquiesced in such refusal. In the case last referred to, the plaintiff actually considered he had protested against the notice. This was the last feather that broke the camel's back, and the Legislature came to the rescue in the next session of Parliament, and passed the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854. Unfortunately the principal section of that act, the 7th, was very clumsily worded, and gave rise to great difference of opinion, but it has now been settled in the House of Lords, in Peck's case. The Lord Chancellor there adopts the interpretation of Lord Chief Justice Jervis in the case of Simons v. The Great Western Railway Company, that it is equivalent to a simple enactment that no general notice (i. e. relating to cattle or goods) given by a railway company shall be valid in law for the purposes of limiting the common-law liability of the companies, though such common-law liability may be limited by such conditions as the court or judge shall determine to be just and reasonable, but with this proviso, that any such condition so limiting the liability of the company shall be embodied in a special contract in writing between the company and the owner or person delivering the goods to the company, and which contract in writing shall be signed by such owner or person. The liabilities and privileges, with respect to the particular goods provided for by the Carriers Act, are reserved. The 2nd section of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act enacts, that railway companies shall afford reasonable facilities for receiving, forwarding, and delivering their said traffic without preference; and also that companies forming part of a continuous line shall afford reasonable facilities for receiving and forwarding all traffic arriving by one, by the other, without any unreasonable delay, and without preference. By the interpretation clause "traffic" was to include passengers, goods, animals, &c. By one of the provisos of the 7th section, the company are not to be liable beyond a limited amount in certain cases, unless the value is declared at the time of delivery, when the company might demand an extra payment.

Thus we see that, as the law now stands, every company is bound to afford reasonable facilities for receiving, forwarding, and delivering traffic without undue preference; and in the case of continuous traffic, to forward it without unreasonable delay. They are also, when no signed contract is entered into, insurers for the due delivery of all goods except the particular sorts of goods specified by the Carriers Act, for which they are not at all liable unless their value is declared by the sender, excepting also that they are insurers only to a limited amount for certain animals specified by the Traffic Act, unless their value be declared at the time by the sender. Further: although special contracts may be made, providing they are in writing and signed, still the companies cannot impose any conditions they choose on their customers—since a customer is not bound by the conditions unless they are reasonable; and the companies are also liable for negligence in not delivering within a reasonable time.

In the case, therefore, of railway carriage of goods, the public have every protection they can reasonably desire; and in our next number we will proceed to consider whether or no any protection is extended to passengers.

THE MASTER OF THE ROLLS ON LAW REPORTING.

MR. BEAVAN commences the thirty-fourth volume of his reports with a postscript of eight pages, containing a correspondence with the council of law reporting. The following is Mr. Beavan's answer to the invitation of the council to join their set:—

"Stone-buildings, Lincoln's-inn,
Aug. 4, 1865.

"Dear Sir,—In answer to your letter of yesterday, stating that it had been resolved that the proposed New Reports should be commenced in Michaelmas Term next, and asking me, at the request of the sub-committee, consisting of Sir Fitzroy Kelly, Mr. Daniel, and Mr. Greene, whether I was willing to accept a reportership in the court of the Master of the Rolls, upon the terms of the scheme of the bar committee, as applicable to reporters, I have to state that I altogether decline the proposal.

"I consider the offer of 200*l.* per annum for a three years' speculation, made to one of the oldest members of the Chancery bar, and the senior authorised reporter, in return for a year's laborious duty, as a simple insult, and one more fitting to be made to my clerk than to myself.

"I have already stated to Mr. Daniel, on his recent application to me, that I will not enter into any speculation unless the payment of my income as an authorised reporter is assured to me, and to that I still firmly adhere.

"Observe! the committee offer me, a barrister of thirty-five years' standing, a contingent income amounting to one-tenth of the salary of a Taxing Master, one-seventh of that of a chief clerk, one-sixth of a registrar in bankruptcy (an office which I have myself declined), and, in truth, a sum which is below the average of the salaries of the tipstaff, ushers, and trainbearers of the court. Is this what, in the preliminary address of the council of the 1st March, 1865, they call the establishment of a set of reports 'upon the basis of a fair regard for existing interests?' Most men would blush in making me such a proposal.

"In addition to this, it appears to me that the committee are neither in a position to commence this great undertaking nor to make me this proposal. I understand from Mr. Daniel that the 10,000*l.*, 'considered essential' by the 21st article of the scheme, has not yet been subscribed, and that the guarantee of half the reporters' salaries (5000*l.*), referred to in article 25, has not been provided. But he states that some arrangements have been entered into with Messrs. Clowes & Co. to undertake the printing and management of the reports for three years, on having one-half the reporters' salaries guaranteed during that period from some other quarter. He informs me that some steps are being taken for obtaining this guarantee from members of the profession, but that the attempt was recent. The sums he named as already subscribed appeared to me very trivial compared with the amount required (5350*l.* a year). I have not much confidence in, or respect for, such a charitable appeal to the bar, and I have certainly too much self-respect to be dependent on it.

"Again, it is publicly stated that the number of subscribers already obtained does not exceed 1200. This would produce at the end of the year, when received, 6000*l.* instead of 10,000*l.*, 'considered essential'; and thus, in starting, there would be both a deficiency of 4000*l.* a year and an absence of the requisite guarantee. It appears to me, therefore, that the committee contemplate a serious deviation from the plan they are authorised to carry into effect, and that the result would probably be, that the subscriptions, being exhausted, or nearly so, by the printers, managers, &c., the authors' incomes, already halved, would have again to undergo a similar operation.

"I look at the proposed proceeding as a rash, reckless, and unauthorised attempt to establish, without a shilling of capital, a concern requiring an annual outlay of at least 15,000*l.*, the only hope of its success being in the amount of spoil to be acquired from the destruction of existing interests.

"I cannot refrain from adding, that it is lamentable to find in print, and to hear in conversation, the threat of 'annihilation,' and similar expressions used in regard to those authorised reporters who may not choose to submit to any terms attempted to be imposed upon them. It expresses, no doubt, what is intended; but it shews an ill will, an absence of the usual amenities which ordinarily regulate the intercourse between members of the bar, and a want of sensibility in inflicting serious loss and injury on members of the same profession.

"But my course is plain and decided. I have been an authorised reporter twenty-seven years, and have survived the attacks of six new sets of opposition reports; I have no fear of the seventh. The only authorised reports of the Rolls decisions will, therefore, be continued to be published as heretofore.

"I am, dear Sir, yours faithfully,
"C. BEAVAN.

"To James T. Hopwood, Esq."

In a letter acknowledging the receipt of the above Mr. Hopwood made the following remark:—

"The salary of 200*l.* a year, which you speak of so contemptuously, you must be aware is a caricature, and not a correct representation; what the council offered in your case would have been 800*l.* a year, 300*l.* guaranteed." (See clause 13 of the Bar Scheme).

For the conclusion of the correspondence we must refer the curious to the part of Mr. Beavan's Reports which has just appeared. He appends to it the following statement:—

"Three months later the author accidentally discovered, from a passage in the 'Law Times' of the 25th November, that the council had made some appeal to the judges. On inquiry, it appeared that Sir Fitzroy Kelly, as chairman of the council, had addressed a letter to the Master of the Rolls on the subject.

"The author has no copy of that letter, but he presumes that it was to the effect of the printed address of the council, which appeared in 'The Jurist' of the 11th November, 1865, the effect of which was substantially to deprive the author of his office. Of the propriety and taste of this course, behind the back of the author, the profession must judge.

"The secretary of the council, at the request of the Master of the Rolls, has this day furnished the author with a copy of his Honor's reply, which important document is as follows:—

"14, Hyde Park-terrace, W., Nov. 2, 1865.

"Sir,—In answer to your letter of yesterday, I have to express my deep regret that the council of law reporting have not been able to make any arrangement with Mr. Beavan respecting the reporting cases in the Rolls Court. It is now fourteen and a half years since, following the arrangement which I found had been adopted by Lord Langdale, I have supplied to Mr. Beavan copies of my written judgments, and have corrected the notes of those which are taken from my oral delivery, and I have done this, as Lord Langdale did, to the exclusion of every other applicant. I cannot abandon this arrangement unless with the consent of Mr. Beavan. As long as he requires to have the exclusive use of my written judgments, and of my corrections of the notes of the judgments delivered by me orally, I consider myself bound to accede to his wishes. I say this in order that the gentlemen selected by the council of law reporting as reporters in the Rolls Court, whom I respect highly, and one of whom is a personal friend of mine, may not attribute to any want of courtesy on my part that course of conduct which I consider myself bound to adopt as a matter of justice to Mr. Beavan.

"I am, Sir,

"Your obedient servant,

(Signed) "JOHN BOMILLY.

"Sir Fitzroy Kelly, M.P., &c., &c."

Mr. Beavan's irritation seems to us unreasonable. There is nothing so sacred in himself, his court, or his reports, as to make competition a sin; and in seeking the alternative of his concurrence, the council could not do more than offer him the highest terms within their authority—terms, it may be, preferable to those which competition would bring him to. Nor, in applying to the judges, in pursuance of the express directions of a scheme familiar to every member of the bar, can it be said that the council have done anything behind that back which Mr. Beavan had so decidedly set up against them. But, as we have already pointed out, by exceeding their authority in launching the undertaking before they had obtained that support which would have justified and compelled the concurrence of all the regular reporters, by rejecting the reasonable demands of the authorised reporters, and by making an improvident bargain "behind the backs" of the booksellers, they have excited and justified an opposition, which it will require more prudence and fairness than they have yet exhibited to overcome.

It is to be regretted, that the views of the Master of the Rolls on the subject of reporting are so peculiar; but it is in some degree consolatory, that he does not attempt to give any reason for them.

Rebuts.

Legal Forms for Common Use, being 200 Precedents.

With Introduction and Notes, arranged under the following heads:—1. Negotiable Instrument. 2. Securities. 3. Receipts and Acknowledgments. 4. Partnership. 5. Master and Servant. 6. Landlord and Tenant. 7. Arbitration. 8. County Court Forms. 9. Conveyancing. 10. Marriage Articles and Settlements. 11. Wills. 12. Miscellaneous Forms. With a Chapter on Stamps. By JAMES WALTER SMITH, LL.D., of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 12mo., pp. 230. [E. Wilson.]

Legal Forms, compiled for the Use of Attorneys and Solicitors. By WILLIAM CHAMPAIN HULL, Attorney-at-Law. 12mo., pp. 188. [H. Coe.]

A Guide to the Law, for General Use. By EDWARD REYNOLDS, B.A., Oxon., of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law. Post 8vo., pp. 182. [Stevens & Sons.]

THERE is scarcely a subject which any one can expound with effect in an elementary or popular manner, unless he has first studied exhaustively both its principles and its details. The observation applies even to the mathematics; and he who attempts to improve upon the definitions and axioms in Euclid's first book will fail, if he has not previously enlarged and corrected his views by the study of the higher geometry. A writer on natural philosophy incurs the risk of too much generality in expounding the most familiar law of nature, unless he is well aware of the history of its discovery, and the limits of the proofs by which it has been established; while in dealing with positive law, which is always more or less arbitrary, imperfect, and inconsistent, compendiousness and accuracy are almost incompatible. Knowing this, and knowing also a little of the quality of the handy-books which Dr. Smith has had the confidence to publish on more subjects than any one accomplished lawyer would profess to have mastered, we do not expect to find much utility or accuracy in his attempt to provide 200 forms of legal instruments, with introductions and notes, for the use of unprofessional persons, as well as of lawyers. By professing to give, in the compass of about 200 duodecimo pages, a collection of forms and instruction applicable to the multifarious subjects indicated in the title-page, and sufficient to replace in the lawyer's chambers the much larger and still imperfect collections now in use, and by proposing to enable unprofessional persons to draw articles of partnership, leases, conveyances, marriage settlements, wills, &c., Dr. Smith has betrayed his incapacity and temerity. We are not surprised, therefore, to find the following statement of the law as to bills of sale:—

"Bill of sale is the name given to a deed or instrument under seal, by which personal chattels are transferred without delivery, for the delivery of the deed does instead of the delivery of the chattel. Thus, if I put my hand and seal to a paper containing the words, 'I give all my furniture to C. D.,' this will pass the furniture to C. D. without my giving him possession. But though this would be good between C. D. and me, and he could claim the goods from me at any time, yet, if I kept possession of the goods and became bankrupt, or had an execution issued against my goods, C. D. could not claim the goods from my assignees, or from any creditor who obtained execution against my goods. To enable him, C. D., to maintain such a claim, an act passed in 1854, for preventing frauds upon creditors by secret bills of sale, requires him to file the bill of sale, &c." We are then told, that even after filing the bill of sale, the title of the purchaser may be defeated if the seller became bankrupt while he is in possession of the goods. Not a word of the effect of a valuable consideration in making a seal unnecessary to the validity of the transfer, or of the necessity of the delivery of possession in conformity with the terms of the transfer to protect the goods from being taken in execution by the creditors of the transferor. Accordingly, in the form of a bill of sale by way of mortgage, we have a transfer by an hotel keeper of all the goods and chattels in his hotel, without any provision that he shall retain possession until default in payment of the debt—thus leaving the goods subject to execution.

Under the head of "deposits of goods," we find this sentence:—"It is not necessary to be a licensed pawnbroker in order to take this sort of security for money due, nor unless money is actually advanced on the security." Dr. Smith does not seem to be aware of the exemption from the provisions of the Pawnbrokers Acts of loans at interest not exceeding 51. per cent.

Curious as the present condition of the law of partnership is, it is not quite so curious as it would be if the following statement were correct:—"When I have lent money to a man in trade, on the agreement that I am not to be concerned in the business, nor my name to appear, but I am to have a share in the profits, this does not make us partners between one another. It does not even make us partners to the world till I have taken a share of the profits as such, and then only during such time as I may do so (p. 50)." The italics are the doctor's. Such a law would be highly acceptable to speculators—exempting them from liability while the trade was carried on at a loss, and rendering them liable only when the concern was so abundantly solvent as to yield a profit.

We know what kind of difficulties a man may get into who, without the advice of his lawyer, enters into a written contract to sell an estate. Dr. Smith gives him a form for the purpose—the only provision relative to title being the following:—"The conditions of sale shall be settled to meet the interests of both parties, at their joint expense, by Mr. E. F., of —, solicitor, or some counsel, to be consulted by him." To the purchaser he kindly recommends the use of those wonderful short forms, saying one thing and meaning another, which were given by the stat. 8 & 9 Vict. c. 118.

The following is the form of a marriage settlement, at p. 141:—"The sum of £—, 31. per cent. Consolidated Bank Annuities, and the lease of —, shall be vested in trustees, upon trust, &c." No intimation being given as to the source from which the Consols are to be derived. Dr. Smith prudently omits to append to each form a statement of the stamp duty chargeable upon the instrument. But he has a chapter on stamps, and on turning to it to ascertain the stamp on the settlement we have just looked at, we find a statement that settlements, or agreements for settlement of any property, whether real or personal, are liable to a duty of 5s. per 100*l.* on the value of the property. In the same article we are told, that in criminal cases all documents are admissible without a stamp; and this is illustrated in another place by the case of a person who has received money, against whose oath, denying the receipt, his letter acknowledging the receipt, but unstamped, would not be admissible, "but the witness may be subsequently charged with perjury, and then the letter, which is an unstamped receipt, may be given in evidence against him." Evidently Dr. Smith has not read the case of Rex v. Hall (3 Stark. 67).

Mr. Hall's book has been compiled with less ambition, and more capacity. But we cannot see the utility to a solicitor, who must necessarily possess Chitty's Archbold, and some collection of conveyancing forms, of a little book containing only a few forms of process, and a few precedents of leases, mortgages, conveyances, and other common instruments.

Mr. Reynold's Guide to the Law is a little dictionary or encyclopædia of definitions and explanations of legal terms, principles and rules, under heads alphabetically arranged. We gather from the author's Preface, his opinion that the book contains "a vast amount of general legal information," and must be most welcome and useful to the laity, and also to legal students and practitioners. To lawyers, we conceive it can be of little use, because it has no reference to authorities, or even to acts of Parliament; but to those unprofessional persons who seek legal information, without desiring to act as their own lawyers, it may be safely recommended as a convenient book of reference. It has been carefully compiled, and clearly written, and appears to be generally accurate. The statement, however, under the title "copyright," that "a foreigner residing abroad is entitled to the copyright of any work composed and first published by him in this country," however well founded on principle, is not supported by any authority, and is not likely to be established, in opposition to the well-known case of Jeffreys v. Boosey—a decision on the repealed Copyright Acts.

FRIENDLY SOCIETIES.

Suggestions for the Establishment of Friendly Societies, on Sound Principles. By John Tidd Pratt, Esq., the Registrar of Friendly Societies in England.

THE object of the following instructions is to promote the general welfare of the working classes, by enabling them to make provision, upon sound principles, against the natural evils and exigencies of sickness, old age, and death, and to act on those principles of mutual assurance and support which are now so generally adopted by the more opulent members of society, and to guard them against the many plausible but ruinous schemes by which they are too often deceived.

In a society founded on the following tables, it is as certain, as it is possible to be, that the benefits subscribed for by the members will be received by them. The sickness tables cease at sixty, sixty-five, or seventy years of age, up to which period the data upon which they are founded are well tested. The annuities, or old age pay, commencing at sixty, sixty-five, or seventy, and the sums payable at death, will be guaranteed by the Government. No further certainty in these respects is attainable.

Every member should be at liberty to subscribe to one or all of the objects, according to his ability or inclination, with the exception, that persons insuring against sickness must also insure for medical attendance as long as they reside within the limits of the society; and females, as well as males, may subscribe for any of the benefits, except relief in sickness.

At page 8, &c., will be found examples from the tables from which persons may select such benefits as they may think fit to subscribe for.

All money received for sick pay, endowments, and expenses of management should be invested in a savings bank, on Government security, or on the securities authorised by the Friendly Society Act.

The management of the society should be vested in a committee, consisting of honorary and benefit members, or of benefit members only; and there should be trustees, a treasurer, visitors, secretary, and auditors.

The accounts should be kept so as to shew the contributions paid to, and benefits paid out of, the fund subscribed for each particular insurance, as well as for expenses of management.

The society should be self-supporting, for which purpose each member should be required to pay a small sum per month for the expenses of management, and the place of meeting should, if possible, be at some public institution or school-room. If that cannot be obtained, and there is no other place except an inn or a public-house, a certain fixed payment should be made for the use of the room, lights, and fire, with a stipulation that no beer, &c. should be brought into the room until all business is concluded, when each member should pay for any refreshment he may require. When an anniversary or annual feast is held, the contribution thereto, and attendance thereat, should be voluntary, though there seems no objection to a rule, that every member, who lives within a given distance, should have a ticket sent him, which, if not returned at a certain time, say a week before the day of the feast, he should be required to pay for.

In a society formed on these principles, every member will have to pay only such contributions as may be required by the rules and tables for the benefits he wishes to receive, and there will be no compulsory charges for beer, feasts, useless paraphernalia, or other extras.

The benefits assured to male members should be,—

1st. Medical attendance.

2nd. Weekly allowance in sickness until sixty, sixty-five, or seventy.

A small monthly payment must be made to defray the necessary expenses of management.

Immediate annuities or deferred annuities, from 1*l*. to 50*l*. per annum, commencing at sixty, sixty-five, or seventy, and sums payable at death from 20*l*. to 100*l*., may be secured as hereafter mentioned.

Care should be taken to admit as members insuring against sickness such persons only as are of good health and good moral character, and certificates to that effect should be produced before a person is admitted a member.

No entrance fees should be required, nor should any fines be incurred for non-attendance, or not serving office, except that of visitor.

The tables for relief in sickness have been approved by experienced actuaries, and the premiums required are the lowest compatible with safety to the insured. Each member will pay according to his age at the time of admission, and will, therefore, bear his own burthen, so that the young will not have to pay for the increased risk of the aged.

The accounts should be kept in such a way, as to enable the annual statement to be made out in the manner directed by the registrar, pursuant to the 18 & 19 Vict. c. 63, and should be audited quarterly by persons not members of the society.

Medical Attendance.

The contribution for medical attendance, as agreed with the medical practitioner (which is generally 4*s*. per annum, or 4*d*. a month), should be paid when the member is admitted, quarterly in advance. This benefit is claimable from the time of admission.

Sickness Benefit.

Every industrious and provident person should, immediately he begins to seek a livelihood, insure against sickness.

Savings' banks afford no provision against sickness; for suppose a man to have saved 1*s*. per week for one year, and then to be assailed by accident or ill health, he will, at the rate of 10*s*. per week, consume his savings in little more than a month.

On the other hand, a member entering a society between the ages of sixteen and twenty-three, may, by a payment of 1*s*. per month only, secure to himself an allowance in sickness of 10*s*. per week, according to the rules and tables.

The society's allowances in sickness are assured, subject to its rules and tables. Allowances of 10*s*., 15*s*., or 20*s*. per week may be assured for, the rates of payment for which are equitably adjusted according to the age of each member on admission; and the period to which the benefits are insured for—until sixty, sixty-five, or seventy years age, but should in no case exceed two-thirds of what he can earn in good health, and no member should be allowed to belong at the same time to another society for the same benefits.

Male members can only be admitted to insure in this fund between the ages of sixteen and forty. Members free six (or twelve) months after admission. Every member insuring for sick pay must also insure for medical attendance.

The payments in case of sickness to be made in full for twenty-six successive weeks; half the amount for the next twenty-six weeks; and if the sickness shall continue, the member shall be reduced to quarter pay; and when any member has had full pay for a less period than twenty-six weeks, or half pay for a less period than twenty-six weeks, he shall not be allowed to begin his full or half pay over again on the renewal of sickness until he shall have ceased to receive any pay whatever on account of sickness for six calendar months, and returned to his usual employment, or some other by which he shall gain a livelihood; but if he fall ill within that time, he shall be placed in the same situation as when he ceased to receive any relief, and shall receive such relief, and no other, as he would have received had no cessation of his sickness occurred.

Table of Monthly Contributions for a Weekly Allowance of 10s. in Sickness to Males, the Monthly Contributions and Benefit ceasing at 60, 65, or 70 Years of Age.

Age.	60	65	70
	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.
16 and not exceeding 23	1 0	1 1	1 2
24 " "	1 1	1 2½	1 3½
31 " "	1 2	1 3½	1 5
35 " "	1 3	1 5	1 6½
39 " "	1 4	1 5½	1 7½

Table of Monthly Contributions for a Weekly Allowance of 10s. in Sickness to Persons of the Occupations under mentioned, the Monthly Contribution and Benefit ceasing in each case at the Age of 65 Years.

Age.	Mariners.	Painters.	Railway Servants.	Miners and Colliers.
	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.
23	1 2½	1 3½	1 3½	1 7½
30	1 5	1 6	1 4½	1 10
34	1 6½	1 8½	1 5½	2 0
38	1 8½	1 11	1 6½	2 2
40	1 9½	2 0½	1 7½	2 3½

Expenses of Management of the Society.

A payment of 2d. per month, in advance, is required from each member.

Accounts.

A separate book, a clear and distinct debtor and creditor account, and a separate fund should be kept for each benefit. The books, receipts, investments, and accounts of every kind, ought to be thoroughly examined, by some competent disinterested person, once a quarter. Instructions in book-keeping for Friendly Societies may be had on application to the registrar.

Annuities and Sums payable at Death.

The Postmaster General is empowered, under the act 27 & 28 Vict. c. 43, to insure the lives of persons of either sex, between the ages of sixteen and sixty, for not less than 20l. or more than 100l. He is also empowered under the same act to grant immediate or deferred annuities of not more than 50l. on the lives of persons of either sex, and of the age of ten years and upwards. The persons whose lives are insured, or to whom annuities are granted, by the Postmaster-General, have direct Government security for the payment of the money at the proper time.

Certain post-offices (the names of which may be obtained at any post-office) have been opened for the receipt of proposals for the insurance of lives and the purchase of annuities, and forms of proposal, with full instructions for filling up and delivering these forms, may be obtained at these post-offices.

Tables of the premiums to be charged for the insurance of lives; for the grant of immediate annuities; for the grant of deferred annuities, or deferred monthly allowances, without return of purchase money; and for the grant of deferred annuities, or deferred monthly allowances, with return of purchase money, have been printed, and may be seen at the post-offices which have been opened for the receipt of proposals. These tables may also be obtained of Messrs. Eyre & Spottiswoode, London. The price of the tables for the insurance of lives and the grant of annuities without return of purchase money is 3d. The price of the tables for the grant of annuities with return of purchase money is 2d. If sent by post, 5d. is charged in the one case, and 3d. in the other.

(To be continued).

FOURTH EDITION OF PALEY ON SUMMARY CONVICTIONS.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 21s. cloth boards.

PALEY on the LAW and PRACTICE of SUMMARY CONVICTIONS by JUSTICES OF THE PEACE. Including Proceedings preliminary and subsequent to Convictions, and under the 18 & 19 Vict. c. 126, relating to Larceny, &c. With Practical Forms and Precedents of Convictions. The Fourth Edition. By H. T. J. MACNAMARA, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard; W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard.

In 12mo., price 5s. boards.

THE LEASES AND SALES OF SETTLED ESTATES ACT, 19 & 20 Vict. c. 120; and the General Orders and Regulations relating thereto. With an Introduction and Notes, and a Supplement, containing the Amending Act, 21 & 22 Vict. c. 77, and the Cases and Decisions down to the end of Easter Term, 1861. By M. I. FORTESCUE BRICKDALE, of the Middle Temple and Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

GREEVE'S CRIMINAL ACTS.—Second Edition.

In post 8vo., price 16s. cloth.

THE CRIMINAL-LAW CONSOLIDATION and AMENDMENT ACTS of the 24 & 25 VICT. With Notes, Observations, and Forms for Summary Proceedings. By CHARLES SPRENGEL GREEVES, Esq., one of her Majesty's Counsel. Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

CHITTY'S COLLECTION OF STATUTES.

Now ready, in 4 very thick vols., price 12s. 12s. cloth.

A COLLECTION of all the STATUTES of PRACTICAL UTILITY, with Notes thereon; intended as a Circuit and Court Companion. The Third Edition, containing all the Statutes of Practical Utility in the Civil and Criminal Administration of Justice to the present time. By W. N. WELSBY and EDWARD BEAVAN, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

"The principal branches of the Law are arranged alphabetically, and under each is collected all the Statutes relating to it, with explanatory notes. Besides the easy access afforded by the alphabetical arrangement of the subjects, a very copious general Index supplies the means of ready reference to all the subjects of lesser importance to which the various Statutes are directed."

"We could not say more for this great work by any words of approbation than by this short description of it. It is an admirable design admirably executed."—Law Times, May 13, 1855.

"In the debate on the proposed consolidation of the Statutes, on the 9th February, 1854, Lord Campbell said, 'that the Statutes at large extended to about fifty volumes folio, but all the Statutes which were usually required by lawyers for reference might be found in three octavo volumes, compiled by his learned friend Mr. Welsby. When he (Lord Campbell) was upon the Bench, he always had this work by him, and no Statutes were ever referred to by the Bar which he could not find in it.'"

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In royal 12mo., price 14s. cloth.

A TREATISE on the PRINCIPLES and PRACTICE of the COURT for DIVORCE and MATRIMONIAL CAUSES, with the Statutes, Rules, Fees, and Forms relating thereto, and copious Examples of Bills of Costs. By GEORGE BROWNE, Esq., B. A., Barrister at Law, of the Inner Temple. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

MORE CURES OF ASTHMA AND COUGHS THIS WEEK BY DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS.—

From Mr. C. Collins, Chemist, Brettell-lane, Stourbridge, Dec. 11, 1865:—"Several have taken them for asthma, coughs, &c., and in every case they have had the desired effect. In my opinion, they surpass anything that has been offered to the public."—They give instant relief of asthma, consumption, coughs, colds, and all disorders of the breath and lungs. Price 1s. 1½d. per box. Sold by all Druggists.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the OFFICE, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, December 16, 1865.

The Jurist

No. 572, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.
No. 1511, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

DECEMBER 23, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

TO COUNTRY SOLICITORS.—TRUST DEED FORMS.—In registering Trust Deeds in Bankruptcy it is very desirable that proper and correct Forms should be used, as Deeds are very often rejected in consequence of an incorrect Form being presented. This delay is avoided by obtaining the Forms direct from GEORGE DOWNING (late Sackett & Ruscoe), Stationer to the Office for Trust Deeds in Bankruptcy, 8, Quality-court, Chancery-lane, London, W. C.

SOLICITORS' BOOKKEEPING (Three Methods).

By G. J. KAIN, F.E.S.
Kain's Triple Column System, 7th Edition, 6s.
Kain's Single and Double Column Systems (in one volume), First Issue, 7s. 6d. (just published).
Kain's Rental System (bound up with each of the above).
KAIN, SPARROW, & CO., 69, Chancery-lane, W. C.; WATERLOW & SONS, London-wall; and through all Booksellers.

ANNUAL CONTINUATION OF THE NEW EDITION OF
CHITTY'S STATUTES, by WELSBY & BEAVAN.—4 Vols.
Just published, price 6s. sewed, Part 1.

THE STATUTES OF PRACTICAL UTILITY
in the CIVIL and CRIMINAL ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE (passed 28 & 29 Vict., 1865), alphabetically arranged; with Notes thereon, and a copious Index. By HOBATIO LLOYD, Esq., Barrister at Law.

* This Part will form the Second Part of Vol. 3, if taken as the Annual continuation of the Second Edition, and the First Part of Vol. 1 in continuation of the Third Edition, of Chitty's Statutes by Welsby & Beavan.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

HAYES'S CONCISE CONVEYANCER

THE CONCISE CONVEYANCER, or SHORT PRECEDENTS OF CONVEYANCES. With Practical Remarks, and Summary of the Stamp Laws relating to Conveyances. By WILLIAM HAYES, Esq., Barrister at Law, one of the Six Conveyancing Counsel of the High Court of Chancery. The Second Edition, with considerable Additions; including a Chapter on Composition Deeds, under the New Bankrupt Act. By W. B. COLTMAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. Royal 12mo, price 18s.

* The present Edition contains Conveyances on Sales, Mortgages, Leases, Settlements, and a variety of Miscellaneous Instruments, but no "Wills," as the work is intended to be a companion volume to the well-known work by Hayes & Jarman of Concise Forms and Wills.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

MAUDE & POLLOCK'S LAW OF SHIPPING.

A COMPENDIUM of the LAW of MERCHANT SHIPPING. With an Appendix, containing all the Statutes and Forms of Practical Utility. By FREDERIC PHILIP MAUDE and CHARLES EDWARD POLLOCK, Esqrs., of the Inner Temple, Barristers at Law. The Third Edition, including the Statutes and Decisions to the present time. Royal 8vo., price 11. 14s. cloth.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE BRITISH CONSTITUTION EXPLAINED.

In 1 thick vol. 8vo., price 17. 4s. cloth.

THE INSTITUTIONS OF ENGLISH GOVERNMENT: being an Account of the Constitution, Powers, and Procedure of its Legislative, Judicial, and Administrative Departments; with copious References to Ancient and Modern Authorities. By HOMERSHAM COX, M. A., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

WILLIAMS (JOSHUA) ON PERSONAL PROPERTY.

The Fifth Edition, price 18s. cloth boards.

PRINCIPLES of the LAW of PERSONAL PROPERTY, intended for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

JOSHUA WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY.

The Seventh Edition, in 1 vol. 8vo., price 20s. cloth.

PRINCIPLES of the LAW of REAL PROPERTY, intended as a first Book for the Use of Students in Conveyancing. By JOSHUA WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, one of her Majesty's Counsel.

Henry Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, London.

No. 572, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

NEW EDITION of ELMER'S PRACTICE in LUNACY, with Notes of Cases, Forms, Costs, Statutes, General Orders, and a Copious Index. Price 16s. 6d. cloth.
Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In crown 8vo., pp. 177, price 4s. 6d. cloth lettered.

ROUSE'S MANUAL of the COUNTY COURTS
EQUITABLE JURISDICTION (under the 28 & 29 Vict., c. 99); comprising a Summary of the Act; a Short Treatise on each Subject of Jurisdiction; a Summary of the Trustees Relief Acts, and Trustee Acts, and the Decisions thereon; and Appendices, containing the County Courts Equitable Jurisdiction Act, the Trustees Relief Acts, the Trustee Acts, &c.; County Court Orders and Forms in Equity; and a Scale of Costs and Charges.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In medium 8vo., price 17. 5s. cloth.

A MANUAL of CIVIL LAW; containing a Translation of, and Commentary on the Fragments of, the XII Tables and the Institutes of Justinian; the Text of the Institutes of Gaius and Justinian. Arranged in parallel columns; and the Text of the Fragments of Ulpian, and of Selections from Paul's Receipt Sententiae. By PATRICK CUMIN, M.A., Balliol College, Oxford, Barrister at Law. Second Edition, enlarged.

London: Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn. Oxford: J. H. & J. Parker. Cambridge: Deighton, Bell, & Co. Edinburgh: T. & T. Clark. Dublin: Hodges, Smith, & Co.

TWENTIETH ANNUAL ISSUE.

This day is published,

THE LAWYER'S COMPANION, DIARY, and LONDON and PROVINCIAL LAW DIRECTORY for 1866; containing The Companies Act, 1862, with an Introduction, Analysis, and Index; an Abstract of the most important Acts of the Session of 1865; and the New Orders and Rules for regulating the Practice of the County Courts, 1865. With a Scale of Costs and Charges to be paid to Counsel and Attorneys in the County Courts under the Provisions of the Statute 28 & 29 Vict., c. 29. Edited by FREDERICK LAWRENCE Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

The Work is bound in cloth, lettered on back and side, and may be had as under:—

No.	1.	2.	3.	4.	5.	6.	7.	8.	9.
1.	Plain, two days on a page	5	0
2.	The above, interleafed	7	0
3.	Ruled with or without money columns	5	6
4.	The above, interleafed	8	0
5.	Plain, whole page to a day	7	6
6.	The above, interleafed	9	6
7.	Whole page to a day, ruled with or without money columns	8	6
8.	The above, interleafed	10	6
9.	Ruled blue lines, without money columns, three days on a page	5	0

London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE GUARDIAN FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

Established 1821.—No. 11, Lombard-street, London, E. C.

REDUCTION OF FIRE INSURANCE DUTY.

SUBSCRIBED CAPITAL TWO MILLIONS.

Total Invested Funds upwards of £2,750,000

Total Income upwards of 320,000

NOTICE is hereby given, that FIRE POLICIES which expire at Christmas, must be renewed within fifteen days at this Office, or with the Company's Agents throughout the Kingdom, otherwise they become void.

All Insurances now have the benefit of the Reduced Duty of 1s. 6d. per cent.

For Prospectus and other information apply to the Company's Agents, or to T. TALLEMACH, Secretary.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.
68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q.C.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.

Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office.

C. B. CLABON, Sec.

X X

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	487
The Readership on Constitutional Law	488
Regulæ Generales	489
Court Papers—Equity Sittings, Hilary Term, 1866 ..	490

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF CHANCERY.

By W. W. KNOX, Barrister at Law.

Re Power .—(Bankruptcy Act of 1861, sect. 192—Trust deed—Registration—Time)	985
Re Lovell .—(Bankruptcy—Allowance to bankrupt—Act of 1861, sect. 174—Act of 1849, sect. 195) ..	985

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Taylor v. Manners .—(Debt—Relinquishment of—Consideration)	986
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

ROLLS COURT.

By M. BROWNE, Barrister at Law.

Wickham v. The Marquis of Bath .—(Mortmain Act, 9 Geo. 2, c. 36—Reservation of interest—Attestation)	988
Clements v. Welles .—(Covenant in lease not to exercise a particular trade—Underlease without notice of the covenant)	991
Tait v. Lathbury .—(Settlement—Power of sale—Declaration that realty is to be considered personally)	991

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By A. RUMSEY, Barrister at Law.

Roberts v. Roberts .—(Intended parol gift of money—Memorandum in form of cheque—Failure of gift in consequence of uncertainty of objects) ..	992
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Lingwood v. The Stowmarket Paper Company .—(Practice—Nuisance—Injunction)	993
Featherstonhaugh v. The Lee Moor Porcelain Clay Company .—(Company—Ultra vires)	994

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVESY, Barrister at Law.

Hossack, App., Gray, Resp. .—(Pilots, license of—Corporations of London and Leith Trinity Houses)	996
The Board of Guardians of the Kettering Union, App., The Committee and Directors of the Northampton General Lunatic Asylum, Resp. .—(Pauper lunatic—Order of maintenance—Appeal—16 & 17 Vict. c. 97, ss. 96, 108, 128)	999

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By E. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

The Earl of Shrewsbury and Others v. Keightley and Others .—(Lease—Leasing power—Private act—Construction)	1003
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	------

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

By W. BRANDT, Barrister at Law.

Stanger and Others v. Miller .—(Trust deed—Execution—Set-off)	1005
Boulois v. Mann .—(Bankruptcy Act, 1861—Composition deed—Unreasonableness)	1006

COURT OF ADMIRALTY.

By W. ERNST BROWNING, Barrister at Law.

The Bahia .—(Witness—Costs)	1006
---------------------------------------------------	------

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

ALL THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACTS, AND ALL THE ACTS AND RULES RELATING TO TRIALS OF ISSUES OF FACT.

In 12mo., price 10s. 6d. cloth.

THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACTS of 1852, 1854, and 1860. With Notes, and the Forms and Rules. To which are prefixed or appended all the Acts (or Portions of Acts) relating to Common-law Procedure, or the Trial of Issues of Fact in the Courts of Common Law, Chancery, or Probate, with the Rules of each Court respectively. Adapted to the use of Practitioners in all the Courts, and also to the use of Students. By W. F. FINLASON, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law, Editor of "The Common-law Procedure Acts, 1853 and 1854."

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 12mo., price 7s. cloth.

A BRIEF and PRACTICAL EXPOSITION of the LAW of CHARITABLE TRUSTS, with special Reference to the Jurisdiction of the Commissioners of Charities; containing also all the Charitable Trusts Acts. With Notes, and the Rules, Minutes, and Orders of the Court of Chancery and the Commissioners of Charities. By W. F. FINLASON, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law, Editor of "The Charitable Trusts Acts of 1853 and 1855."

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

GREENWOOD'S CONVEYANCING.

In 8vo., price 15s. cloth.

A MANUAL of the PRACTICE of CONVEYANCING, shewing the present Practice relating to the daily routine of Conveyancing in Solicitors' Offices. To which are added, Concise Common Forms and Precedents in Conveyancing, Conditions of Sale, Conveyances, and all other Assurances in constant use. Third Edition, revised and considerably enlarged. By G. W. GREENWOOD, Solicitor, and HENRY HORWOOD.

London: Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

CHITTY'S (JUN.) LAW OF CONTRACTS, BY RUSSELL.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 11. 12s.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW of CONTRACTS, and upon the Defences to Actions thereon. By JOSEPH CHITTY, Jun., Esq. The Sixth Edition. By JOHN A. RUSSELL, LL.B., of Gray's-inn, Barrister at Law, and Professor of English Law in University College, London.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

SIR JOHN BARNARD BYLES ON BILLS OF EXCHANGE

The Eighth Edition, price 11. 2s. cloth boards.

A TREATISE on the LAW of BILLS of EXCHANGE, PROMISSORY NOTES, BANK NOTES, and CHECKS. By Sir JOHN BARNARD BYLES, Queen's Serjeant (now one of the Judges of her Majesty's Court of Common Pleas). The Eighth Edition, with Notes from the Fourth American Edition.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

PRACTICE OF THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL.

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 14s. cloth boards.

THE PRACTICE of the JUDICIAL COMMITTEE of Her Majesty's most Honourable PRIVY COUNCIL. By WILLIAM MACPHERSON, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law, Author of "The Procedure of the Civil Courts of British India."

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE LAW OF LETTERS-PATENT.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 18s., cloth boards.

A TREATISE on the LAW of LETTERS-PATENT for the SOLE USE of INVENTIONS in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, including the Practice connected with the Grant. To which is added, a Summary of the Patent Laws in force in the principal Foreign States; with an Appendix of Statutes, Rules, Practical Forms, &c. By JOHN COYNTON, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, DECEMBER 23, 1865.

In continuation of the subject treated of in our last number, and proceeding from goods to passengers, and the degree of protection extended to the latter, we would just observe, that carriers of passengers for hire are subject at common law to the same responsibility as carriers of goods, so far as regards the passengers' luggage; but this must be ordinary luggage, articles of personal convenience and use, and not merchandise or valuables, although carried in a trunk. Carriers of passengers are not common carriers (see Bac. Ab., A.), i. e. they are not under the same liabilities at common law as carriers of goods: they are not insurers. They are not responsible for mere accidents happening to the persons of passengers without any default on the carriers' part, but they are bound to carry passengers upon their tendering their fare, provided there be room in the conveyance; and having received them, they are bound to carry them safely, as far as human care and foresight will go, and use due care and diligence to carry them without delay. It would seem to be doubtful as to whether a carrier of passengers absolutely warrants that the conveyance is sufficiently secure to undertake a journey. This state of things, where there is no special contract between the carrier and the passenger, is equally applicable to railway companies as to other carriers, as, practically, passenger traffic is unaffected by the Carriers or the Traffic Act, except as to their being obliged to afford facilities for receiving and forwarding traffic.

The liability of railway companies, therefore, as to the conveyance of passengers, stands simply on the common law, and the duties to be implied by law from their undertaking to carry and convey, capable, however, of being modified by special conditions, that may be stipulated for on a special contract with the passenger; and, inasmuch as with regard to goods prior to the Traffic Act, it was held, that a common carrier of goods might lawfully make a special contract with the sender of them, by which they might relieve themselves from all responsibility—all liability for losses from whatever cause arising (Carr v. The Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company, 17 Jur. 397)—it would seem that, a fortiori, they may in a similar way (i. e. by special contract) exempt themselves from the obligations the law implies from the ordinary contract to carry and convey a passenger. Now, in the case of Hurst v. The Great Western Railway Company (19 C. B. 311), which was a case in which the plaintiff sought to recover compensation for delay and detention on a journey, it was held, that the contract was contained in the time bill, and that, as that was not put in, it was not shewn what the contract was; but, further, the judges held, that if it had been put in, it would have put the plaintiff out of Court, as there was a stipulation at the bottom of the time bill, that the company would do their best to assure the arrival of the trains, but would not be responsible for their non-arrival. It would seem that upon such a condition it would still be open to a passenger to sue a company for negligence in not taking due care to procure the punctual arrival of a train; but then comes the question, how is the negligence to be proved? There would seem to be much good sense in Lord Denman's observations on this subject in Carpus v. The London and Brighton Railway Company (5 Q. B. 751; 8 Jur. 464):—"It having been shewn that the exclusive management both of the machinery and the railway was in the hands of the defendants, it was presumable that the accident arose from their want of care, unless they gave some explanation of the cause by which it was produced, which explanation the plaintiff, not having the same means of knowledge, could not reasonably be expected to give." We do not think that the law is quite accurately stated in Hodges on Railways, p. 531, who says, "Although in one case it was ruled otherwise by Lord Denman, it seems now clearly established, that in order to render the company liable for negligence, it is necessary to give affirmative proof of negligence on their part, and it is not sufficient merely to prove the occurrence of an accident, and rely upon that as prima facie evidence of negligence." It is true, that the two next passages rather tend to qualify this, but we think that Lord Denman's judgment was not only good sense, but good law. No general rule can be laid down one way or the other, that the mere happening of an accident is or is not prima facie evidence of negligence. It depends entirely upon the nature and character of the accident. Of course, in most cases, there must be some affirmative proof of negligence, and the mere happening of the accident may not be prima facie evidence; but, on the other hand, it may be prima facie evidence where it happens under such conditions, that unless the company are able to satisfactorily explain it, negligence on their part may be fairly presumed against them; whether it is called affirmative evidence or prima facie evidence of negligence, matters little. There is the absence of any direct evidence as to the actual cause of the accident, and from the mere happening of the accident under the circumstances that occur, negligence is presumed to have been the cause. In the case of a collision of two trains belonging to the same railway company, there can be no doubt that the fact of the collision mentioned would be reasonable evidence of negligence on the part of the defendants; and for the same reason, there should be no doubt, that if a train, which is entirely under the control of a company, should be some hours late, the mere fact of its being some hours behind its time would, unexplained, be reasonable evidence of negligence in an action against the company—evidence of their not having taken reasonable care to insure the due arrival of the train. In a late case in the Exchequer Chamber (Scott v. The London Dock Company, 3 H. & C. 599, affirming the judgment of the Court of Exchequer), the rule is laid down, "that when the thing causing the accident is shewn to be under the management of the defendant or his servants, and the accident is such as in the ordinary course of things does not happen, if those who have the management use proper care, it affords reasonable evidence; in the absence of explanation by the defendants, that the accident arose from want of care," and we think, that if a time bill merely says that the company does not guarantee the punctual arrival of a train, still that if, in point of fact, a train arrived some hours late, that would be sufficient prima facie evidence of negligence to support a declaration for negligence, and that it would be for the company to shew that the delay arose from no default of theirs. Still the public would be left without any real protection, as the companies would only have to put in their time bills that they would not be responsible for the delay of the trains, however caused, and then, no matter what the negligence was, the passenger would have no remedy. In one respect Hurst v. The Great Western Railway Company seems to have gone further than any of the cases. The old cases as to goods shewed that a carrier's notice, to be effective, must be brought home to the mind of the sender, but none of them furnish any authority for saying that a man who reads a time table, to see what time a train starts must be taken to have read all the little notes printed on the bills, and to have specially contracted on those terms. And as the law now stands, we do not see what is to prevent a railway company from giving notice on their tickets and bills that they will not be responsible for any accident to a passenger, however caused, and so entirely to evade all responsibility for his personal safety, and, even in case of his death, leaving his family without any redress. Lord Campbell's Act makes the right of action in the passenger, if he had survived, the test of the right of action where death results; enacting, "that whensoever the death of a person shall be caused by wrongful act, neglect, or default, and the act, neglect, or default is such as would (if death had not ensued) have entitled the party injured to maintain an action, and recover damages in respect thereof, then and in every such case the person who would have been liable if death had not ensued, shall be liable to an action for damages, notwithstanding the death of a person injured, although the death shall have been caused under such circumstances as amount in law to felony." This gives no new right; and with regard to felony, it only removes a technical objection to the civil remedy, in case the act complained of amounts to felony. But a company, as a company, is only liable for civil injuries, and as to such the public is left entirely at the mercy of the railway companies, who may make their own terms, and that too in the easiest possible manner, by any little note on a ticket or bill; and, if they choose, exonerate themselves from any, even the grossest, negligence on the part of their servants, and leave the passenger to take his chance of even mortal injuries without any redress, either for himself or his family.

In conclusion, hoping that Parliament may soon enact, that no railway company shall impose conditions upon passengers that may not appear to the court or a judge reasonable, we beg leave to cite a few observations from a very elaborate American judgment in Cole v. Godwin (19 Wendell, 281):—"There are no principles in the law better settled, than that whatever has an obvious tendency to encourage guilty negligence, fraud, or crime, is contrary to public policy. Such, in the very nature of things, is the consequence of allowing the common carrier to throw off, or in any way restrict, his legal liability. The traveller and bailor is under a sort of moral duress—a necessity of employing the common carrier under those legal arrangements which allow any number of persons to assume that character, and then discourage and supersede other modes of conveyance. My conclusion is, that he shall not be allowed in any form to higgie with his customer, and extort one exception and another, not even by express promise or special acceptance, any more than by notice. He shall not be privileged to make himself a common carrier for his own benefit, and a mandatory or less to his employer. He is a public servant, with certain duties defined by law, and he is bound to perform those duties."

THE READERSHIP OF CONSTITUTIONAL LAW.

It is high time that the history of the late appointment of a Reader of Constitutional Law were completed. It cannot be completed without an inquiry, and with a view to that inquiry, we will recapitulate what has become known beyond the walls of the council chamber. When Mr. Maine resigned the chair of jurisprudence and civil law, Mr. Sanders, having edited the Institutes, offered himself as a tolerably square man for a square niche, and his candidature was, we believe, warmly supported by Mr. Bailly, a most active member of the Council of Legal Education. He failed, and it is not now material to inquire whether the council's choice fell upon a round man. The death of Mr. Phillimore left a vacancy in another readership—that of constitutional law—for which Mr. Sanders had not shewn any fitness. He was thrust into it—to console him, it may be, for his former disappointment. No one could have complained of the transaction, if it had been a purely private arrangement or job. But the appointment was to an important public office, for which there were several candidates, and the public were entitled to have the best man appointed, and each candidate was entitled to have his pretensions fairly considered and adjudicated upon. When the result of the election was announced, we observed in these columns (ante, p. 265), that the council had chosen a candidate who had given no public evidence of fitness, and we contrasted his claims with those of Mr. Homersham Cox, the author of "The Institutions of the English Government," and observed, that the latter, while certainly as well qualified as Mr. Sanders in general attainments, character, and experience in academic tuition, "had also established his claim to this particular appointment, by long and laborious study of English constitutional law and legal history." We have since published a correspondence between Mr. Cox, Lord Westbury, the chairman of the council, and Mr. Bailly, which throws some light on the conduct of the election (ante, p. 417). It appears that Mr. Cox intrusted certain valuable testimonials to Mr. Baily at his own express request; that for some unexplained reason the latter, instead of distinctly bringing them to the notice of the council, retained them in his own possession until the election was over, and then, when they had become useless, returned them to the owner.

We have refrained from speculating on the motives which prompted this conduct, but it manifestly involved a breach of duty towards the council, and a breach of confidence towards Mr. Cox. It was Mr. Baily's duty to make the council aware of the existence of the important documents which had been intrusted to him for that purpose. It was principally by his instrumentality that the election was determined, and his influence outweighed that of Lord Westbury, who, in a letter which we have published, states that he supported Mr. Cox's candidature, and openly avows regret at the result of the election. Mr. Cox's claims were actively opposed by Mr. Baily, and it was, therefore, the more incumbent on him to fulfil the trust which he had solicited and accepted, whether he had or had not an honest conviction that Mr. Sanders was better qualified than any other man to fill any readership, on any subject, that might be vacant. It is possible that the testimonials of the rival candidate were laid aside simply from a belief that it was unnecessary to distract the attention or perplex the judgment of the council by superfluous reference to conflicting claims. But if this was Mr. Baily's view, it is to be regretted that he did not impart it to Mr. Cox in time to allow him to seek other means of presenting his testimonials.

Although Mr. Baily thinks it inexpedient to throw a light on these transactions, the Council of Legal Education cannot, without peril to its own reputation, suffer them to remain unexplained. The result has been, we are bound to say, without intending any disrespect to the successful candidate, that the appointment has failed to gain that general approbation and confidence on which the influence of a professor's teaching in great measure depends. Constitutional law is a very special study; it demands familiarity with state trials, parliamentary precedents, state papers, legal antiquities, and ancient treatises which are not within any ordinary course of reading. The "Institutions of the English Government" could not have been produced by any one who was not deeply versed in that learning; whereas there is nothing—absolutely nothing, before the world to shew that the present reader had paid the slightest attention to it prior to his appointment. We regret to observe, that, with very few exceptions, the chairs of legal education, unlike the professorships in the universities, have been assigned to gentlemen who have not acquired a reputation for profound and mature knowledge of the subjects they profess to teach. One of the immediate effects of appointment upon other grounds than personal merit is, that the standard of legal education is seriously lowered; another is, that the students have little confidence in their teachers, and despise their instructions; a third, still more disastrous consequence, is, that a suspicion of favouritism is engendered, not merely with respect to the appointments by the council, but also with respect to the scholarships and other rewards at its disposal. We think that no apology is required for reverting to the very painful circumstances attending the late appointment; for unless the council can maintain an unblemished reputation for impartiality, and, we must add, can raise the character of its chairs far above the present average, the sooner it ceases to preside over legal education the better.

REGULÆ GENERALES.

PAYMENT OF COMMON-LAW FEES BY STAMPS.— 28 VICT. c. 45.

Michaelmas Vacation, 1865.

WHEREAS by an act passed in the session of Parliament held in the 28 Vict. c. 45, intituled "An Act to provide for the Collection by means of Stamps of Fees payable in the Superior Courts of Law at Westminster, and in the Offices belonging thereto," it is provided, by the 3rd section thereof, that the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, with the concurrence of the Lord Chief Justices and of the Lord Chief Baron, may from time to time make such rules as seem fit for regulating the use of the stamps under this act, and particularly for prescribing the application thereof to documents from time to time in use or required to be used for the purposes of such stamps, and for insuring the proper cancellation of adhesive stamps, and keeping account of such stamps: now we, being two of the Lords Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, with the concurrence of the Lord Chief Justices and of the Lord Chief Baron, do hereby order and direct that the following rules be observed in respect to stamps used in the superior courts of common law, and in the several offices connected therewith; the Crown Office, Queen's Bench; the office of registration of certificates, &c., of acknowledgments of deeds of married women, Court of Common Pleas; the office of registrar of judgments, &c., Common Pleas; the Queen's Bench Remembrancer's Office, Court of Exchequer; and in the judges' chambers; to take effect on and after the 1st January, 1866:—

1. The stamps to be used for collecting the fees payable in the several offices in the courts of common law at Westminster, and in the judges' chambers, by virtue of the above act, shall, subject to the provisions of the seventh and eighth of these rules, be stamped or affixed, at the expense of the parties liable to pay such fees, on or to the vellum, parchment, or paper on which the proceedings, in respect whereof such fees are payable, are written or printed, or which may be otherwise used in reference to such proceedings.

2. Where any of such fees are payable in respect of any matter or thing to be done by any officer or in any office of the said courts, or at the judges' chambers, and it shall not have been customary to use any written or printed document or paper in reference to such matter or thing whereon the stamp could be stamped or affixed, the party or his attorney requiring such matter or thing to be done, or permitted to be done, shall make application for the same by a præcipe or short note in writing or print, and a stamp denoting the amount of the fee so payable shall be stamped or affixed to such præcipe or note.

3. All adhesive stamps affixed to any paper or document presented to or kept in the possession of any of the officers of the said courts, or of the clerks to the judges, shall, before the act is done or permitted to be done, in respect of which the fee denoted by such stamp is payable, be effectually cancelled by some officer of the said courts, or by one of the said clerks to the judges, by obliterating the same by means of a hand stamp and printing ink, shewing the date of the cancellation, and no such document shall be filed or delivered out until the stamp thereon shall have been cancelled or defaced in manner aforesaid.

4. That when any summons, order, or other document, has been issued by mistake, and the stamp thereon has been cancelled without having been legitimately used, the Master, associate, or other proper officer of the department to which the fee is payable, or the judge's clerk, shall certify that such stamps are fit subjects for allowance, and it shall be competent to the Board of Inland Revenue, upon the presentation of such certificate, to allow the amount thereof.

5. That distributors of stamps, and all persons licensed to sell stamps in England and Wales, shall be permitted to sell the stamps above referred to; and that an office be provided in, or attached to, the judges' chambers for the sale of stamps.

6. The several officers of the said courts, and the clerks to the several judges, shall, on or before the 30th April in each year, make out an account of all stamps cancelled in their respective offices, specifying the number of each denomination, and shall render such account to the Lords Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury; and the first of such accounts shall be for the three months ended the 31st March, 1866, and the second of such accounts for the year ended the 31st March, 1867, and so forth.

7. And we do hereby order and direct, that the stamps to be used for collecting the fees payable in the offices of the several Masters of the courts of common law, shall be stamped or affixed at the expense of the parties liable to pay such fees on the several documents mentioned in the second column of the subjoined table:—

Fees taken in the Offices of the Masters of the Courts of Queen's Bench, Common Pleas, and Exchequer, in respect of		Stamps to be affixed upon
Every writ	Præcipe.
Every appearance	Appearance piece, which shall be of linen paper of the same size and shape as the parchment appearance pieces heretofore used.
Filing every document	Document filed.
Amending any proceeding	Order to amend.
Every rule	Rule.
Every judgment	Entry in Masters' book.
Taxing bill of costs	Bill taxed.
Reference to, or examinations by, Masters	Certificate, examination, or report.
Payment of money into court	Entry in Masters' book.
Every certificate	Certificate.
Office copies of documents	Office copy.
Searches	Præcipe or note filed.
Every affidavit or affirmation	Affidavit, &c.
Allowance and justification of bail, taking special bail as commissioners	Bail piece.
Filing affidavit and inrolling articles of clerkship	Entry in Masters' book.
Every re-admission of an attorney	Rule for re-admission.

8. And we do further order and direct, that a book or books be kept in the offices of the associates of the Courts of Queen's Bench, Common Pleas, and Exchequer, in which book or books shall be entered the names of the several causes, against which shall be placed adhesive stamps of the value required during the different stages; and it shall be the duty of the associate, or of such one of his clerks as he shall direct to do it, to cancel such stamps in the manner hereinbefore provided, immediately after they are placed in such books.

Given under our hands at the Treasury Chambers, Whitehall, this 15th day of December, 1865.

RUSSELL.

E. H. KNATCHBULL-HUGESSEN.

We do hereby signify our concurrence in the before-mentioned rules and regulations:—

A. E. COCKBURN,

Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Queen's Bench.

W. ERLE,

Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas.

FRED. POLLOCK,

Lord Chief Baron of the Court of Exchequer.

16th December, 1865.

Court Papers.

EQUITY SITTINGS, HILARY TERM, 1866.

Before the LORD CHANCELLOR.

At Lincoln's Inn.

Thursday .. Jan. 11	Appeal Motions and Appeals.
Friday	12 Petitions and Appeals.
Saturday	13
Monday	15 } Appeals.
Tuesday	16
Wednesday	17 Appeals in Bankruptcy and Appeals.
Thursday	18 Appeal Motions and Appeals.
Friday	19
Saturday	20 } Appeals.
Monday	22
Tuesday	23
Wednesday	24 Appeals in Bankruptcy and Appeals.
Thursday	25 Appeal Motions and Appeals.
Friday	26
Saturday	27 } Appeals.
Monday	29
Tuesday	30 Petitions and Appeals.
Wednesday	31 Appeal Motions and Appeals.

Before the LORDS JUSTICES.

At Lincoln's Inn.

Thursday .. Jan. 11	Appeal Motions and Appeals.
Friday	12 } Petitions in Lunacy, Appeal Petitions, and Appeals.
Saturday	13
Monday	15 } Appeals.
Tuesday	16
Wednesday	17
Thursday	18 Appeal Motions and Appeals.
Friday	19 } Petitions in Lunacy, Appeal Petitions, and Appeals.
Saturday	20 } Appeals.
Monday	22
Tuesday	23 } Appeals from the County Palatine of Lancaster and Appeals.
Wednesday	24 Appeals.
Thursday	25 Appeal Motions and Appeals.
Friday	26 } Petitions in Lunacy, Appeal Petitions, and Appeals.
Saturday	27
Monday	29 } Appeals.
Tuesday	30
Wednesday	31 Appeal Motions and Appeals.

Notice.—The days (if any) on which the Lords Justices shall be engaged in the full Court, or at the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, are excepted.

Before the MASTER OF THE ROLLS.At Chancery-lane.

Thursday .. Jan. 11	Motions and General Paper.
Friday	General Paper.
Saturday	Petitions, Short Causes, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Monday	General Paper.
Tuesday	General Paper.
Wednesday	General Paper.
Thursday	Motions and General Paper.
Friday	General Paper.
Saturday	Petitions, Short Causes, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Monday	General Paper.
Tuesday	General Paper.
Wednesday	General Paper.
Thursday	Motions and General Paper.
Friday	General Paper.
Saturday	Petitions, Short Causes, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Monday	General Paper.
Tuesday	General Paper.
Wednesday	Motions and General Paper.

N. B.—Unopposed Petitions must be presented, and copies left with the Secretary, on or before the Thursday preceding the Saturday on which it is intended they should be heard; and any Causes intended to be heard as Short Causes must be so marked at least one clear day before the same can be put in the paper to be so heard.

Before the Vice-Chancellor Sir RICHARD T. KINDERSLEY.At Lincoln's Inn.

Thursday .. Jan. 11	Motions, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Friday	Petitions, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Saturday	Short Causes, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Monday	General Paper.
Tuesday	General Paper.
Wednesday	General Paper.
Thursday	Motions, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Friday	Petitions, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Saturday	Short Causes, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Monday	General Paper.
Tuesday	General Paper.
Wednesday	General Paper.
Thursday	Motions, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Friday	Petitions, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Saturday	Short Causes, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Monday	General Paper.
Tuesday	General Paper.
Wednesday	Motions, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.

N. B.—Any Causes intended to be heard as Short Causes must be so marked at least one clear day before the same can be put in the paper to be so heard.

Before the Vice-Chancellor Sir JOHN STUART.At Lincoln's Inn.

Thursday .. Jan. 11	Motions and Causes.
Friday	Petitions and Causes.
Saturday	Short Causes and Causes.
Monday	Causes.
Tuesday	Causes.
Wednesday	Causes.
Thursday	Motions and Causes.
Friday	Petitions and Causes.
Saturday	Short Causes and Causes.

Monday	23	} Causes.
Tuesday	23
Wednesday	24
Thursday	25	Motions and Causes.
Friday	26	Petitions and Causes.
Saturday	27	Short Causes and Causes.
Monday	29	} Causes.
Tuesday	30
Wednesday	31	Motions and Causes.

N. B.—Any Causes intended to be heard as Short Causes, must be so marked at least one clear day before the same can be put in the paper to be so heard.

No Cause, Motion for Decree, or Further Consideration, except by order of the Court, may be marked to stand over, if it shall be within twelve of the last cause or matter in the printed paper of the day for hearing.

Before the Vice-Chancellor Sir W. P. WOOD.At Lincoln's Inn.

Thursday .. Jan. 11	Motions and General Paper.
Friday	General Paper.
Saturday	Petitions, Short Causes, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Monday	General Paper.
Tuesday	General Paper.
Wednesday	General Paper.
Thursday	Motions and General Paper.
Friday	General Paper.
Saturday	Petitions, Short Causes, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Monday	General Paper.
Tuesday	General Paper.
Wednesday	General Paper.
Thursday	Motions and General Paper.
Friday	General Paper.
Saturday	Petitions, Short Causes, Adjourned Summonses, and General Paper.
Monday	General Paper.
Tuesday	General Paper.
Wednesday	Motions and General Paper.

N. B.—Any Causes intended to be heard as Short Causes, must be so marked at least one clear day before the same can be put in the paper to be so heard.

PETTY SESSIONS PRACTICE.

In thick 12mo., price 18s. cloth, lettered.

STONE'S PRACTICE of PETTY SESSIONS.

With the Statutes, a List of Summary Convictions, and an Appendix of Forms. Seventh Edition. By THOMAS BELL and LEWIS W. CAVE, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. With a Supplement, bringing the Statutes and Cases up to 1863. 12mo., price 18s. cloth.

"It is remarkable for a rare combination of conciseness and clearness in the composition, which have recommended it to magistrates who have not been educated as lawyers, and to whom, therefore, the books written for the use of lawyers are often obscure by reason of their technicalities. The present editors have preserved this characteristic of Mr. Stone's volume in their own abundant additions to it."—Law Times.

* The Supplement may be had by itself, price 3s. boards.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Publishers.

JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES LAW.

In 12mo., price 7s. 6d. cloth.

A SUPPLEMENT to the LAW and PRACTICE of JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES: containing the Companies Act, 1862; the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1862; and the Rules of the Court of Chancery for regulating the Mode of Proceeding under the Companies Act, 1862. With an Introduction, Practical Notes, and Forms. By HENRY THRING, M.A., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

London: Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell, Law Book-sellers and Publishers.

THRING'S LAW OF JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES.

THE LAW and PRACTICE of JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES: including the Statutes of 1860 and 1862, with Notes, and the Forms required in making, administering, and winding up a Company. By HENRY THRING, Esq., Barrister at Law, Parliamentary Counsel to the Home Office. In 2 vols. 12mo. Price 18s. cloth.

Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

WILDMAN'S INTERNATIONAL LAW.

INSTITUTES of INTERNATIONAL LAW, in Time of Peace and Time of War. By RICHARD WILDMAN, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 2 vols. 8vo. 1844-50. Price 11s. 6d. bds. Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

The Sixth Edition, now ready, price 21s. cloth boards,
HAYES AND JARMAN'S CONCISE FORMS
 OF WILLS, with Practical Notes: a Popular View of the Statute of Wills, and Suggestions to Persons taking Instructions for and preparing Wills; the Decisions on the Wills Acts, and other Testamentary Matters, in the House of Lords and Privy Council, and in the Equity, Common Law, Ecclesiastical, and Probate Courts, down to the Time of Publication; and many additional Forms. Sixth Edition. By THOMAS S. BADGER EASTWOOD, of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, M.A., and of Lincoln's-Inn, Esq., Barrister at Law, Reader on the Law of Real Property to the Four Inns of Court.
 London: H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street, Law Bookseller and Publisher.

BYTHEWOOD AND JARMAN'S CONVEYANCING.—
 Vol. 8, Part 1.

Price 3s. boards,
A SELECTION OF PRECEDENTS from MODERN MANUSCRIPT COLLECTIONS, and DRAFTS of ACTUAL PRACTICE; forming a System of Conveyancing. With Dissertations and Practical Notes. By THOMAS JARMAN, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law. The Third Edition. Vol. 8. By WHITLEY STOKES, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. PART 1.—POWERS OF ATTORNEY.
 H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE LAWS AFFECTING RAILWAYS, BROUGHT DOWN TO THE PRESENT TIME.

Now ready, in one thick vol. royal 8vo., price 1l. 15s. cloth boards,
SIR W. HODGES'S PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW of RAILWAYS, RAILWAY COMPANIES, and RAILWAY INVESTMENTS. With an Appendix of Statutes, Forms, &c. The Fourth Edition. By CHARLES MANLEY SMITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple and Midland Circuit, Barrister at Law.
 "The great and increasing interest in everything relating to Railways now manifested by the public, have created such a demand for this valuable work, that the Publisher has been induced to have a new Edition of it prepared. This Edition comprises the important Statutes passed in the Session of 1864, as well as the Standing Orders for the Session of 1865, in addition to the numerous Decisions of the Courts, both of Law and Equity, since the last Edition was published, and such of the Rules of the London Stock Exchange as are applicable to Railways, as amended up to 1864. The task of preparing and conducting through the press this new Edition has been a really arduous one; but no pains have been spared by the learned Editor (whose work on the Law of Master and Servant is well known, not only in Westminster Hall, but also in Ireland, Scotland, and America), to make the work complete; and the Publisher believes that he can with confidence recommend it to all persons interested in Railways, especially Directors, Secretaries, and shareholders, as the most complete work on Railway Law yet offered to the public.

The English and Irish Railway Clearing Acts have also been added to this Edition.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

DAY'S COMMON-LAW PRACTICE.

The Second Edition, recently published.
THE COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACTS of 1852, 1854, and 1860. With an Introduction, explanatory of the recent Changes, Notes, Forms of Proceeding, and a copious Index. By J. C. F. S. DAY, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 1 vol. royal 12mo. Price 15s. cloth boards.

This Work comprises a carefully-revised Edition of Mr. Kerr's Procedure Acts of 1852 and 1854, the Cases that have been decided since the publication of these Works being added; the Bills of Exchange Act of 1855, and the Decisions upon it; those portions of the Interpleader Act and Mercantile Law Amendment Act which relate to the Procedure thereon in Court or at Chambers, and all the New Rules: thus constituting a complete Practice of the Superior Courts of Common Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

EQUITABLE JURISDICTION OF THE COUNTY COURTS.

Just published, price 5s. boards,
A SUPPLEMENT TO POLLOCK & NICOL'S
 COUNTY COURT PRACTICE: containing the Equitable Jurisdiction Act (28 & 29 Vict. c. 99). With Orders, Forms, Costs, Fees, and the Trustee Acts, &c. By C. E. POLLOCK & H. NICOL, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane.

POLLOCK'S PRACTICE OF THE COUNTY COURT.

THE PRACTICE OF THE COUNTY COURTS;
 with the Decisions of the Superior Courts, and Tables of Fees and Costs; also Appendices, containing all the Statutes, Rules of Practice, and Forms, including those relating to Bankruptcy. In Two Parts, with Tabular Indices. The Fifth Edition. By C. E. POLLOCK, Esq., and H. NICOL, Esq., Barristers at Law. In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 1l. 10s. cloth boards.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

COURT OF THE VICE-WARDEN OF THE STANNARIES.

Price 1s. 6d. sewed,
GENERAL RULES, FORMS, and COURT FEES
 on the WINDING UP of MINING COMPANIES within the JURISDICTION of the STANNARIES; also Solicitors' Fees and Charges on the Equity Side of the Court.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

HAZLITT and ROCHE'S LAW of MARITIME WARFARE.

A MANUAL of the LAW of MARITIME WARFARE, embodying the Decisions of Lord Stowell and other English Judges, and of the American Courts, and the Opinions of the most eminent Jurists. With an Appendix of the Official Documents and Correspondence in relation to the present War. By WILLIAM HAZLITT and H. P. ROCHE, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. In 12mo. 1854. Price 10s. 6d. cloth.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

BURTON ON REAL PROPERTY.—Eighth Edition.

Price 1l. 4s. cloth.
A N ELEMENTARY COMPENDIUM of the LAW of REAL PROPERTY. By W. H. BURTON, Esq., With Notes, showing the Alterations in the Law to the present time. To which is now prefixed an Introductory Chapter, giving a concise Historical Outline of such Parts of the Law as have been the subject of Statutory Alteration. By EDWARD PRIESTLEY COOPER, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SIMON'S LAW RELATING TO RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.

In 12mo., price 3s. cloth,
THE LAW relating to RAILWAY ACCIDENTS, including an Outline of the Liabilities of Railway Companies as Carriers generally, concisely discussed and explained. By HENRY A. SIMON, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

PHILLIPS'S LAW OF COPYRIGHT.

In 8vo., price 12s. cloth,
THE LAW of COPYRIGHT in WORKS of LITERATURE and ART, and in the Application of Designs. With the Statutes relating thereto. By CHARLES PALMER PHILLIPS, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. In 8vo. 1863.
 "Mr. Phillips has shewn, not only great diligence in collecting cases bearing upon the various topics which he has treated, but considerable judgment in the manner in which he has dealt with them. He has spared no pains to make his work reliable as a legal text-book, and at the same time equally useful to publishers, authors, artists, and other persons who are interested in works of literature, art, or design. In a word, such a book has long been wanted, and Mr. Phillips has given abundant proof of his ability to meet the desideratum."—Solicitors' Journal, Nov. 14, 1863.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

LEVI'S COMMERCIAL LAW.

In 2 vols royal 8vo., price 35s. cloth, lettered,
INTERNATIONAL COMMERCIAL LAW.
 Being the Principles of Mercantile Law of the following and other Countries—viz. England, Scotland, Ireland, British India, British Colonies,
 Austria, France, Netherlands, Spain,
 Belgium, Germany, Norway, Sweden,
 Brazil, Greece, Portugal, Switzerland,
 Buenos Ayres, Hans Towns, Prussia, United States,
 Denmark, Italy, Russia, Wurtemberg.
 By LEONE LEVI, Esq., F.S.A., F.S.S., of Lincoln's-Inn, Barrister at Law, Professor of the Principles and Practice of Commerce in King's College, London, &c. In 2 vols. royal 8vo. 1863.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

SHIPPING LAW.

In 8vo., price 20s. cloth, lettered,
THE SHIPPING LAW MANUAL: a CONCISE
 Treatise on the Law governing the Interests of Shipowners, Merchants, Masters, Seamen, and other Persons connected with British Ships. Together with the Acts of Parliament, Forms, and Precedents relating to the subject. Being especially intended for popular use in Seaport Towns. By W. T. GREENHOW, of the Middle Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law.
 "The 'Shipping Law Manual,' by Mr. W. T. Greenhow, brings into a popular shape, and to the latest date, the entire body of legal regulations affecting the shipping trade of the country alike in relation to owners, merchants, masters, and seamen, and is especially adapted for ordinary use by all persons connected with the business of seaport towns."—Times, Jan. 31, 1863.

"The object of the author of this book is to popularise the Law of Merchant Shipping, and to compress within the compass of a single volume all that is necessary to be known by those directly interested in British navigation. It was no easy task to condense and arrange this mass of legislation, so as to make it intelligible to the general reader. But Mr. Greenhow has achieved it, and placed within reach of every one connected with shipping a valuable compendium of the law relating to that branch of industry."—Shipping and Mercantile Gazette.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the OFFICE, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, December 23, 1865.

The Jurist

No. 573, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.
No. 1512, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXXIX.

DECEMBER 30, 1865.

PRICE 1s.

TO COUNTRY SOLICITORS.—TRUST DEED FORMS.—In registering Trust Deeds in Bankruptcy it is very desirable that proper and correct Forms should be used, as Deeds are very often rejected in consequence of an incorrect Form being presented. This delay is avoided by obtaining the Forms direct from GEORGE DOWNING (late Sackett & Ruscoe), Stationer to the Office for Trust Deeds in Bankruptcy, 8, Quality-court, Chancery-lane, London, W. C.

SOLICITORS' BOOKKEEPING (Three Methods).
By G. J. KAIN, F.S.S.
Kain's Triple Column System, 7th Edition, 6s.
Kain's Single and Double Column Systems (in one volume), First Issue, 7s. 6d. (just published).
Kain's Rental System (bound up with each of the above).
KAIN, SPARROW, & Co., 60, Chancery-lane, W. C.; WATERLOW & Sons, London-wall; and through all Booksellers.

ANNUAL CONTINUATION OF THE NEW EDITION OF CHITTY'S STATUTES, by WELSBY & BEAVAN.—4 Vols.
Just published, price 6s. sewed, Part 1.

THE STATUTES OF PRACTICAL UTILITY in the CIVIL and CRIMINAL ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE (passed 28 & 29 Vict., 1865), alphabetically arranged; with Notes thereon, and a copious Index. By HORATIO LLOYD, Esq., Barrister at Law.

* This Part will form the Second Part of Vol. 3, if taken as the Annual continuation of the Second Edition, and the First Part of Vol. 1 in continuation of the Third Edition, of Chitty's Statutes by Welsby & Beavan.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

A TREATISE ON COMPOSITION DEEDS under the Stat. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 134. By THOMAS ERSKINE HOLLAND, M. A., Fellow of Exeter College, Oxford, and of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NEW EDITIONS OF LORD ST. LEONARDS' WORKS.

Price 11. 18s. cloth, the Fourteenth Edition, much enlarged.
A CONCISE AND PRACTICAL TREATISE ON the LAW OF VENDORS AND PURCHASERS OF ESTATES. By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).
Also, uniform with the above, in 1 thick vol. royal 8vo., the Eighth Edition, price 11. 15s. cloth.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE OF POWERS. By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 11. 5s. cloth.
A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON the NEW STATUTES relating to PROPERTY. The Second Edition. By Sir EDWARD SUGDEN (now Lord St. Leonards).
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

NEW EDITION OF SMITH (C. MANLEY) ON THE LAW OF MASTER AND SERVANT.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 16s. cloth boards.
A TREATISE ON the LAW OF MASTER AND SERVANT, including therein MASTERS and WORKMEN in every Description of Trade and Occupation. With an Appendix of Statutes. The Second Edition. By CHARLES MANLEY SMITH, Esq., Barrister at Law, of the Inner Temple and Midland Circuit.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

In 1 thick vol. 8vo., price 11. 8s. cloth boards.
A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON the LAWS relating to the CHURCH and the CLERGY. By H. W. CRIPPS, M. A., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law, Recorder of Lichfield. The Third Edition, revised and enlarged, containing the Statutes and Cases to the present time.

* Since the publication of the first edition, the progress of legislation on the subjects treated of has rendered necessary considerable alterations and additions in this and in the preceding edition, and while much new matter has been introduced, all that has become obsolete has been omitted. In many other matters the law has been materially altered, and doubtful points have been settled by recently-decided cases, all which are now to be found in the present edition.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

No. 573, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

In crown 8vo., pp. 177, price 4s. 6d. cloth lettered.
ROUSE'S MANUAL OF the COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION (under the 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99); comprising a Summary of the Act; a Short Treatise on each Subject of Jurisdiction; a Summary of the Trustees Relief Acts, and Trustee Acts, with the Decisions thereon; and Appendices, containing the County Courts Equitable Jurisdiction Act, the Trustees Relief Acts, the Trustee Acts, &c.; County Court Orders and Forms in Equity; and a Scale of Costs and Charges.
Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In medium 8vo., price 17. 5s. cloth,
A MANUAL OF CIVIL LAW; containing a Translation of, and Commentary on the Fragments of, the XII Tables and the Institutes of Justinian; the Text of the Institutes of Gaius and Justinian. Arranged in parallel columns; and the Text of the Fragments of Ulpian, and of Selections from Paul's Receipts Sententiæ. By PATRICK CUMIN, M.A., Balliol College, Oxford, Barrister at Law. Second Edition, enlarged.
London: Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn. Oxford: J. H. & J. Parker. Cambridge: Deighton, Bell, & Co. Edinburgh: T. & T. Clark. Dublin: Hodges, Smith, & Co.

TWENTIETH ANNUAL ISSUE.

This day is published,

THE LAWYER'S COMPANION, DIARY, and LONDON and PROVINCIAL LAW DIRECTORY for 1866; containing The Companies Act, 1862, with an Introduction, Analysis, and Index; an Abstract of the most important Acts of the Session of 1865; and the New Orders and Rules for regulating the Practice of the County Courts, 1865. With a Scale of Costs and Charges to be paid to Counsel and Attorneys in the County Courts under the Provisions of the Statute 28 & 29 Vict. c. 29. Edited by FREDERICK LAWRENCE Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

The Work is bound in cloth, lettered on back and side, and may be had as under:—

	s.	d.
No. 1. Plain, two days on a page	5	0
2. The above, interleaved	7	0
3. Ruled with or without money columns	5	6
4. The above, interleaved	8	0
5. Plain, whole page to a day	7	6
6. The above, interleaved	9	6
7. Whole page to a day, ruled with or without money columns	8	6
8. The above, interleaved	10	6
9. Ruled blue lines, without money columns, three days on a page	5	0

London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

LAW FIRE INSURANCE SOCIETY.

Offices—Chancery-lane, London.
Subscribed Capital, £5,000,000.

TRUSTEES.

The Right Hon. Lord Chelmsford.
The Right Hon. Lord Truro.
The Right Hon. the Lord Chief Baron.
The Right Hon. the Lord Justice Sir J. L. Knight Bruce.
The Right Hon. the Lord Justice Sir G. J. Turner.
The Right Hon. John Robert Mowbray, M.P.
William Brougham, Esq.

Insurances expiring at Christmas should be renewed within fifteen days thereafter, at the Offices of the Society, or with any of its Agents throughout the country.

The full and immediate benefit of the reduction of duty to 1s. 6d. per cent. will be given to the insured.

This Society holds itself responsible, under its Fire Policy, for any damage done by explosion of gas.

EDWARD BLAKE BEAL, Secretary.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.

68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Q.C.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions.

Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office.

C. B. CLABON, Sec.

Y Y

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	495
On the present System of summoning Special Juries in London and Middlesex	497
Friendly Societies	499
Prospectus of Lectures for Hilary Term	502
Books Received	508

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF APPEAL IN CHANCERY.

By C. W. CROUCH, Barrister at Law.

Re Llanharry Hemetite Iron Ore Company (Limited).—Tethill's case.—(Company—Contributory)	1009
Spokes v. The Banbury Local Board of Health. —(Public body—Nuisance—Contempt—Sequestration)	1010

ROLLS COURT.

By M. BROWNE, Barrister at Law.

Re The Trusts of the Will of George Insole.—(Mortgage of wife's personal property in reversion—Judicial separation—20 & 21 Vict. c. 85—21 & 23 Vict. c. 108)	1011
Lake v. Peisly. —(Practice—Order for leave to use depositions taken in another court—Consolidated Order XIX, rule 4)	1012

VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY'S COURT.

By E. LLOYD, Barrister at Law.

Carroll v. Graham. —(Pleading—Demurrer—Appointment by tenant for life in fraud of power—Bill by reversioner—15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 50) ..	1012
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	------

VICE-CHANCELLOR WOOD'S COURT.

By J. HOWARD, Barrister at Law.

Mair v. The Himalayan Tea Company (Limited). —(Jurisdiction—Specific performance—Agency) ..	1013
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	------

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVETT, Barrister at Law.

Reg. v. The Local Board of Health of Workop. —(Public Health Act, 1848 (11 & 12 Vict. c. 63), sects. 89 and 149—General district rate—Seal of board and signature of members, when necessary)	1015
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	------

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By H. RUTHERFURD, Barrister at Law.

Gaved v. Martyn. —(Right of water—Easement—Prescription Acts)	1017
Gibson and Another v. Holland. —(Statute of Frauds, sect. 17—Memorandum or note of a bargain—Letters between person to be charged and his own agent—Vendor and vendee)	1023

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

By W. BRANDT, Barrister at Law.

Johnson v. Barrett. —(Bankruptcy Act, 1861—Deed of composition)	1023
------------------------------------------------------------------------------	------

COURT OF ADMIRALTY.

By W. ERNST BROWNING, Barrister at Law.

The Helen. —(Wages—Breach of blockade)	1025
-----------------------------------------------------	------

COURT FOR DIVORCE AND MATRIMONIAL CAUSES.

By W. ERNST BROWNING, Barrister at Law.

Brown v. Brown. —(Cruelty—Wifely communication of loathsome disease)	1027
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------	------

COURT OF PROBATE.

By DR. MIDDLETON.

In the Goods of Daniel Saunders, Deceased. —(Seaman's will—Surgeon—Invalid—Died on his voyage home—Executor according to the tenor) ..	1027
In the Goods of Henry Baylis, Deceased. —(Will—Executor according to its tenor)	1028

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. C., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

Price 5s. cloth boards.
A HANDY-BOOK of the LAW of COPYRIGHT, comprising Literary, Dramatic, and Musical Copyright, and Copyright in Engravings, Sculpture, and Works of Art. With an Appendix, containing the Statutes, Convention with France, and Forms under the 25 & 26 Vict. c. 68. By F. P. CHAPPELL and JOHN SHOARD, LL.D.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

JARMAN on WILLS, by WOLSTENHOLME and VINCENT.

The Third Edition, in 2 vols. royal 8vo., price 3l. 3s.

A TREATISE on the LAW of WILLS. By THOMAS JARMAN, Esq. The Third Edition. By E. P. WOLSTENHOLME, M.A., and S. VINCENT, B.A., of Lincoln's-inn and the Inner Temple, Barristers at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE DECISIONS of the RIGHT HON. LORD EVERSELY.

The Second Edition, price 12s.

THE DECISIONS of the Right Honourable Lord EVERSELY, late Speaker of the House of Commons, on Points of Order, Rules of Debate, and the General Practice of the House. The Second Edition, revised, corrected, and continued to the present time. By the Hon. ROBERT BOURKE, of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE CONTRACT OF SALE

A TREATISE on the EFFECT of the CONTRACT of SALE on the LEGAL RIGHTS of PROPERTY and POSSESSION in GOODS, WARES, and MERCHANDISE. By COLIN BLACKBURN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. 8vo., price 1s. boards.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

In demy 12mo., 1016 pp., price 1l. 12s. cloth.
ROGERS on ELECTIONS, ELECTION COMMITTEES, and REGISTRATION. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Tenth Edition. With the new Registration Statute, and all the Election and Registration Cases to the present time. By F. S. P. WOLFERTAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

DODD AND BROOKE'S PRACTICE OF THE COURT OF PROBATE.

Recently published, in 8vo., price 1l. 11s. 6d. cloth.

THE LAW and PRACTICE of the COURT of PROBATE, Contentions and Common Form. With the Rules, Statutes, and Forms. By PHILIP WM. DODD, Solicitor, and GEORGE HENRY BROOKE, Doctors' Commons.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 8vo., price 15s. cloth.
A HAND-BOOK of PRECEDENTS in CONVEYANCING. By FRANCIS HOUSMAN, Barrister at Law. "We know of no work of the kind which contains within the same limited number of pages, and consequently at the same moderate price, so extensive a collection of forms readily applicable to the various exigencies of the draftsman."—Law Magazine, August, 1861.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In 12mo., price 2s. 6d. cloth, lettered.
COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION, or the New Act, 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99, conferring further Equitable Jurisdiction on the County Courts. With Notes. By JAMES J. ASTON, Esq., Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, DECEMBER 30, 1865.

THE present staff of county court judges, consisting mainly of lawyers trained exclusively in the practice of the common law, with a sprinkling of equity barristers, and having before the 1st October, 1865, a jurisdiction carefully limited (with a few trifling exceptions) to claims enforceable at law, either for debt or damage not exceeding 50*l.*, or for recovering possession of tenements not exceeding 50*l.* in annual value, upon an undisputed title, have not given satisfaction; or rather, we should say, have occasioned great dissatisfaction. Yet many of the appointments have been given to the best men that could be expected to accept them, and the business has been of a simple and familiar character. The principal reasons of the failure of the system were explained, more than ten years ago, in that part of the Report of the County Court Commission in which the commissioners compared the procedure in the superior courts with that of the county courts. "In the former, the means adopted for separating questions of law from those of fact, the exertions of skilled advocates accustomed to practise in the central tribunals of the country, the attendance of a learned and enlightened bar, in whose presence each judge is required to fulfil the functions of his office, the facility for reviewing the opinion and direction, and for appealing from the decision of the full court, are calculated to insure the satisfactory administration of justice. On the other hand, considerable delay and expense necessarily result from bringing the machinery of those courts into full activity. In the county courts, the absence of any pre-appointed means of separating questions of law from those of fact, the non-employment generally of legal advocates, the non-attendance of a bar, the rapidity of the proceedings, and the power of the judge finally to decide on all questions of law and fact, except where the claim exceeds 20*l.*, render the judgment of the court less secure against miscarriage. On the other hand, the county court is near to the residence of the suitors, and the proceedings are simple, cheap, speedy, and final."

The Commissioners add:—

"In claims of considerable amount, we are of opinion that the inconveniences incident to the administration of justice in the superior courts are counterbalanced by the greater certainty in the application of the rules of law than can be expected in a tribunal so constituted as the county court. In claims of small amount, we think that the evils caused by an occasional miscarriage are more than counterbalanced by the advantages presented by a local tribunal, the proceedings of which are simple, cheap, speedy, and final. It may, perhaps, be difficult satisfactorily to define the word 'small,' as it is a word of relation; but we think it may be conveniently treated, for the purposes of jurisdiction, as embracing claims not exceeding 20*l.* With regard to claims exceeding 20*l.*, but not exceeding 50*l.* in amount, we think the jurisdiction should remain concurrent as at present, but that such claims should be subject to removal by the defendant, on certain conditions hereafter specified; and we are of opinion that claims of a greater amount, or such as involve questions otherwise excluded from the jurisdiction, should be decided by the county courts only where consent has been given for that purpose by both parties, or a superior tribunal has directed the matter to be disposed of in the county court."—(First Report of Commissioners, the 31st March, 1855).

The names appended to the Report are—"John Romilly, William Erle, Charles Crompton, Henry Fitzroy, Henry S. Keating, John Herbert Koe, A. S. Dowling, J. Pitt Taylor, and J. R. Mullings."

After the above necessarily reserved criticism of the county courts, we may cite some more free—but, we think, scarcely too free—remarks from a correspondent, which appeared in our columns in the year 1854. After condemning the practice of giving judgment for weekly payments almost as a matter of course, our correspondent proceeds thus:—

"What I have said in qualification of your praise of the convenience of these tribunals will also tell against the attribute of expedition. I believe it is well known that they are not always exemplary on the score of cheapness; but I will pass that, and come to the important question of their efficiency. And, first, of the flagrant cases of prejudice and corruption which must have occurred to the observation of all who have had much experience in a variety of the courts. I do not at present refer to any case of pecuniary corruption, but to cases of prandial, choreal, comital, ecclesiastical, and such like interests or predilections. That the spes coenaticæ often suffices to disturb the balance of justice in the hands of a man supposed to possess an educated soul (not to mention his income, for non constat that it is not more than effaced by his outgoings), is a sad truth, which it is of no use to ignore. Then there are the opinions which, in a country district, every man who is not a hermit forms as to the character, habits, and means of most of the people about him, including the labourers—opinions picked up for the most part in the college of Rumour. Add all those sources of prejudice suggested by Scott's story of the defeated chess-player, who ultimately enjoyed the satisfaction of check-mating his opponent by condemning him to death from the judgment-seat. The remedy is obviously that which you suggest. No judge must administer justice in the district where he permanently resides, unless he be a notorious hermit, i. e., live in London. The judges must be itinerant over every part of the country except their own neighbourhood."

The complaints as to the average or exceptional characters of the county court judges which were just ten years ago, will be equally just ten or a hundred years hence, if the system of localising the judges is continued. The offices are scarcely worth the acceptance of men fit to be appointed, and public opinion cannot be efficiently brought to bear upon the choice or the conduct of judges who are scattered over the country—for the most part buried in rural districts, unwatched by any bar, safe from the criticism of any influential press. A few respectable nominations to the main foci of manufactures and commerce, will always be sufficient to cover a multitude of sins in other places; and it will be well if all even of those cloaks are kept tolerably decent.

The disadvantages of the superior courts, in respect of small claims are, according to the Commissioners, delay and expense; those of the county courts are the want of a system of pleading sufficient to separate questions of fact from questions of law, the non-employment generally of legal advocates, and the consequent non-attendance of a bar, the rapidity, and, in cases not exceeding 20*l.*, the finality of the proceedings—tending to miscarriage. The advantages being the same simplicity, rapidity, and finality of the proceedings, from another point of view, and the propinquity of the court to the residence of the suitors.

In cases not exceeding 20*l.*, the Commissioners thought, that the rough and ready way of the county courts was preferable. It may be so. But it can easily be shewn, that economy and dispatch, greater than the county courts afford, can be reconciled with the superintendence of judges equal in ability and dignity to those of the superior courts, while, with respect to causes of greater magnitude, and above all, with respect to the new equitable jurisdiction to the extent of 500*l.*, to be administered by men, who, for the most part, do not know the difference between tacking and foreclosing, it is certain that the county courts are, and under anything like the present system, always will be, with rare exceptions, utterly inefficient. But, in this, as in other matters, the mischief done by Lord Wesbury's rash and clumsy interference, may not be without compensation.

The county courts have been growing in public disfavour, and the last enormous extension of their jurisdiction will speedily bring the discontent to a head. We may then hope for a revision of the system of local jurisdiction, and for sounder views and safer measures with respect to the functions of courts of law and equity.

There can be no doubt that the existing distinction between legal and equitable rights and remedies, and the courts in which they can respectively be enforced, are in many particulars unsatisfactory. It is, however, far from true, that there is in no case any reason or convenience in the separation of equitable from legal rights, or in the option which is now given between a legal and an equitable remedy. That there is a real and not a merely technical importance in the separation which our laws permit of the legal from the equitable ownership of property, is proved by the practice of making settlements and wills, in which, for the most part under no compulsion of technical rules, but purely for the sake of the convenience or security which can be derived from such a separation of rights, legal rights are deliberately and carefully withheld from the beneficiaries and vested in trustees. But though it is convenient and expedient that the law should allow one and the same thing to be, at one and the same time, subject to certain rights of ownership and dominion in A., and to other rights of ownership and dominion in B., partly subordinate and partly paramount to those in A., it does not follow that those two sets of rights should not in some cases, if not in every case, be allowed and enforced in the same court. As a mere matter of law, there is no reason why the legal title of a trustee of property, and the equitable title of the person for whose benefit he holds the property, should not be admitted, and, if necessary, enforced, in the Court of Queen's Bench as freely as in the Court of Chancery; and when the only thing required of the Court is to pronounce judgment as to the right, and, if necessary, either to enforce specific performance of the corresponding duty, or to give damages for the breach of duty, there can seldom be any reason for making a distinction between legal and equitable jurisdiction. On the other hand, when the Court is asked to undertake the guardianship of a person under disability, or the administration or management of an estate or fund, or to deal with any other difficulty which cannot be solved by a single judgment or execution, there may be, and doubtless often is, a necessity for a different machinery from that which is required for the settlement of ordinary disputes as to law or fact. But as the principles and rules which must govern in suits and proceedings of an administrative character are part of the system of law applicable to contentious suits, the same judge who is competent to decide the latter ought to be equal to the superintendence and control of the former. And it will probably be found that, while the establishment of the county courts has been a gross blunder, the union of almost every kind of civil jurisdiction in the same court, which they alone exhibit, involves the germ of an important and necessary reform in the jurisdiction and practice of the superior courts. If the existing distinctions between legal and equitable rights and remedies were revised, and purged by the abolition of all those that have become merely formal and superfluous—if the existing staff of judges of the superior courts were considerably increased—if all distinctions of courts as to jurisdiction and procedure were abolished; the course of procedure in each case, whether civil or criminal, being regulated solely by the nature of the subject-matter and the object of the proceeding—if the judges were assisted in the administration of the business of their courts by subordinate officers, distributed over the country, with judicial authority in minor cases, subject to revision by their superiors, and with administrative functions similar to those now exercised by the Masters of the courts of law and the Chief Clerks in equity—the principles and practice of the law might be greatly simplified, and the enormous and expensive nuisance of the county courts abolished. There is no reason to doubt, that, if the rules of law and equity were judiciously harmonised and combined, the reports carefully expurgated and digested, the modern statute law and the rules of procedure revised and codified, every lawyer qualified by capacity and industry for a seat on the bench, would find it easy to master the principles and practice of the law in every department, the laws would generally be better understood, and the great consequential improvement in the certainty and uniformity of the course of justice, would vastly diminish litigation, and lighten the expenses of the judicial establishment.

ON THE PRESENT SYSTEM OF SUMMONING SPECIAL JURIES IN LONDON AND MIDDLESEX.

THE present system, it is submitted, causes the maximum of inconvenience to jurors, is disadvantageous to suitors, and unsatisfactory to all concerned either in the conduct of litigation or the administration of justice. These evils are all avoidable, and by a simple and easy reformation could be entirely removed. The proposed alteration is in the three following respects:—

- (1). The assimilation of the mode of summoning special jurors in London and Middlesex to that which prevails throughout the whole of the rest of England, by striking one or more general panels to try all the special jury causes entered for any sittings.
- (2). A more careful revision of the list of persons liable to serve on special juries; and
- (3). The adoption of arrangements by which the labour of serving may be made to fall more equally on those liable to it.

The present system causes the maximum of inconvenience to jurors.

For, taking as an example the case of one of the superior courts only, the average number of causes in each day's list is four. There being twenty-four jurors on each panel, ninety-six are thus brought to the court every morning; and taking an average (which could be shewn, however, to be a too favourable one) throughout the day, the number of jurors constantly kept in attendance is forty-eight. If a general panel were summoned, this average (taken on the most unfavourable estimate) would be eighteen.

But the compulsory attendance every morning of the unnecessary number of ninety-six jurors, and the detention of an average proportion of more than half their body throughout the day, represents only the labour imposed upon the particular jurors who are summoned for the causes in the day's list. Much inconvenience is suffered by an indefinite number of other jurors beyond these ninety-six. For, in distributing the whole number of causes entered for trial at any sittings over the separate days allotted for such sittings, the associate must appoint, in the first instance, as many as seven or eight causes for each day, to allow for the large proportion which are afterwards in various ways withdrawn from the list. And even after making this allowance, it is necessary to have rather a larger number of causes left standing for trial on each day than can be expected to be then disposed of, to preclude the possibility of the time of the Court being wasted through the abrupt terminations of trials, postponements, or settlements at the last moment, and the like; any such waste of time representing a very heavy cost to the suitors. Consequently, the supply of causes which should be made available for being put into the day's list, in case of need, by having been appointed and provided with juries, ought slightly to exceed the consuming powers of the court, and there should, therefore, always be a small accumulation of causes ready for trial.

But the result of this plan, as it affects the jurors, may be shewn by example. Taking the most usual circumstances, namely, that about eight causes are originally appointed for the first day of the sittings, and that four of these are disposed of without coming to trial, it is probable that juries will have been summoned for two of these four causes. Forty-eight jurors are thus brought to the court, in many cases from long distances, merely to hear that they will not be wanted at all, or that they will have to attend again at some future date, which may or may not be then fixed. The same thing will occur on every succeeding day of the sittings, and when, as constantly happens, through the unforeseen protraction of some trial or trials, the arrear of causes not tried on the dates for which they were appointed becomes considerable, a multitude of jurors, causing a crowd and disturbance, are brought to the court to ask for explanations as to what has become of the causes on which they have been respectively summoned, and to get what information they can as to the time when they will be likely to be actually wanted. Were the system of general panels adopted, none of these inconveniences could arise. It has been tried how far it might be possible to mitigate these evils by deferring the appointments of causes until the very latest moment which would admit of the panel in each case being summoned for the expected time of trial, so that the dates at which the several sets of jurors would be actually wanted might be better foreseen; but this only produced equal inconvenience in another form, since the notices of summons were then so much the shorter.

A large proportion of the hardship suffered by jurors arises from the absolute uncertainty as to the date when, and for what period, they will be required; so much so, that one who is summoned for the first day of the sittings can hardly make any engagement for the week or ten days following with any security of being able to fulfil it. He is summoned, for example, for a Monday. On attending then, he may find that the case is deferred to the following Monday, and when that day arrives there may be other causes which, for one reason or another, may have priority to his. He thus, in fact, is put to as much inconvenience as if he had been on the panels of two or three cases. This uncertainty affects not only the particular individuals who happen for the moment to be selected as jurors, but the whole of the community which is liable to serve, since no one can tell that his engagements may not be dislocated by a sudden summons.

Another grievance is the multiplicity of summonses to which special jurors are liable. The same juror may be summoned to all the three Superior Common Law Courts, the Chancery Courts, the Divorce Court, and several other courts, at the same time, and for every special jury cause entered for trial at any of those courts, his liability to serve being subject to no limitation whatever. In the confusion which hence very frequently results, it is quite possible, that, with the sincere intention of fulfilling his duty, he may, while waiting fruitlessly in one court, miss serving, when much wanted, in another, and he is not unfrequently, to escape a fine, put to the trouble of making an affidavit, or obtaining a certificate from the associate, to prove that he was serving or waiting in one court when called in another. The suitors also suffer from this confusion, the effect of it being that even jurors who wish to serve are not forthcoming at the proper place and time, while, on the other hand, it gives opportunities to those whose object is only to make a pretence of being in attendance, to do so without incurring a penalty. The receipt, too, of a multiplicity of summonses seems, not unreasonably, to the juror an irritating form of persecution and injustice, especially when he sees that many of his neighbours are never called upon to serve at all. It can hardly be wondered that allegations of favouritism and bribery are constantly and openly made against the sheriff's officers.

There are frequent instances in which the same juror is summoned both on special and common juries in London and Middlesex. This, though in accordance with the law, is at variance with the practice which has been substituted for the law, and is, therefore, undoubtedly, a wrong.

Lastly, as to the payment of jurors. At present it is the established practice to hold that each special juror who has been actually sworn is entitled to one guinea, whatever the length of the trial may have been. Under this system, the payments may be said to bear scarcely any relation to the duty done. For, in the first place, in a large number of cases, those, namely, which are not actually tried, many of the jurors have been put to much inconvenience by being brought to the court, and, perhaps, kept waiting there for several days, and these get absolutely nothing. For example, a plaintiff will often keep a cause standing in the paper until it is actually called on, without ever having had any real intention of trying it, but taking advantage, up to the last moment, of the chance that the defendant, however conclusive his answer may be, may prefer to pay something by way of compromise rather than encounter the uncertainties of a trial. The converse case is still more frequent, of a defendant fully aware of the certainty of an adverse verdict, and never intending to proceed to trial, yet refusing a settlement till the last moment, with a view to deferring payment as long as possible, or hoping to obtain better terms from his adversary. In these cases the jurors receive nothing, however protracted their attendance at the court may have been. Also, in the common event of there being more than twelve jurors on a panel ready to answer to their names when called, those who are not wanted receive nothing. It is unnecessary to refer to the familiar grievance of jurors being kept in the box many days, and at last receiving one guinea a piece for their services. It is sufficient to say, that if a general panel were summoned, the fair payment of jurors, in proportion to their services, could easily be adjusted.

The present system is very disadvantageous to the suitors.

It should be remembered that the question of the rights of suitors is one not merely of abstract justice, but of personal interest to the whole community, every one being liable to become a litigant.

The present system, in the first place, is a most expensive one to suitors. For a panel of twenty-four jurors being now summoned for each cause, and there being, on an average, at least a hundred special jury causes for each of the three superior courts to try at a London sittings, on about three-fourths of which panels are struck, the aggregate number of summonses for which the suitors have to pay in one court alone is 1800. Were two or three general panels to be summoned for each court, to divide the labour of the sittings between them, fifty jurors on each of such panels would form an ample supply. But this total of 1800 summonses does not, after all, represent the whole expense to the suitors, since trials have frequently, for various reasons, to stand over for a short time; and when the date to which they are deferred cannot be fixed at once, fresh summonses, at renewed cost, have to be served upon all the jurors. Other expenses which, though inconsiderable, should be removed, as being quite unnecessary, arise from the arrangements which now have to be made for providing juries. Such are the letters between the associate and the attorneys, in the first instance, to settle the appointment of a cause for a particular date, and then the communication between the attorneys and the sheriff's officers, and their subsequent meeting to reduce a panel.

It cannot be alleged that quite as eligible jurors would not be obtained from a general panel as from the smaller list now specially settled between the attorneys. For so many of the jurors nominated under the present system prove, in the result, to be dead, or in some manner disqualified, that it is plain that the attorneys can often know but little of the names which they select. Owing to the imperfect manner in which the jury lists are kept, the short notice of summonses which is given, and the natural disinclination of jurors, under the present conditions of service, to attend, a full special jury is not, in the majority of cases, obtained, and the parties, if they wish the trial to proceed, must either make up the requisite number by talesmen called from the common jury panel, or else agree that the cause shall be tried by such special jurors as are available. But a mixed jury has been found to be an unsatisfactory tribunal, for reasons which need not be dwelt on here. It should also be observed, that the talesmen called to make up a full jury belong to a lower class than was contemplated by the law. By the Jury Acts, speaking generally, all persons liable to serve as jurors are summonable on common juries; and of these, such as possess certain stated qualifications are made also subject to be called on special juries. In practice, these directions of the law are disregarded, and the whole body of persons liable to serve on juries is divided into the two classes of special and common jurors. Through this arrangement, common jurors are, as a body, of a lower class than was designed by the law, and consequently fewer talesmen can be obtained from them capable of taking the place of special jurors in cases of any difficulty, where educated intelligence and readiness of apprehension are indispensable.

The practice of bringing a separate panel to court to serve for one particular trial only, is another of the causes why full special juries are seldom obtained. For when nine or ten jurors have entered the box, the others, having ascertained themselves to be now secure from a fine, frequently go away, some doing so even after they have openly answered to their names. Hence the usual number of special jurors which is obtained is from eight to ten. Were a general panel of jurors bound to be in attendance for a certain period, whether called or not, the temptation to evade going into the box would be removed.

A trial is also sometimes less satisfactorily conducted, through the circumstance, that the jury are to be altogether free at its termination. They urge the Court, if they have any opportunity of doing so, to sit to almost any hour, however late, rather than bring them together again on the following day. This desire is natural enough, but, if acceded to, does not conduce to the deliberate administration of justice.

Suitors are now always liable to the alternative of being compelled, for want of a sufficient number of special jurors, either to have their cause submitted to a tribunal which experience has shewn to be unsatisfactory, or else to let the trial be put off till a future date, when the same difficulty may very probably recur. It is disheartening to a suitor to have to submit a case, on the result of which, as often happens, his whole credit and position may depend, to an incompetent tribunal, or at any rate to one of less capacity than has been designed for him by the law. Even this evil, however, is usually preferred to that of incurring the very heavy expenses caused by delay, by preparing for trial a second time, and bringing witnesses again to the court, with, perhaps, no better result. And even if it be agreed to pray a tales, it is not always possible to get talesmen, especially after the common jury cases have been finished, and the common jurors discharged. For, under the existing practice of dividing jurors into two classes, it is unjust to common jurors to compel them to remain in attendance after the common jury cases have been all tried, since to do so is to impose a double duty upon them. It may be remarked, that the probability of getting special jurors is now actually less, in proportion to the importance of the cause to be tried. For when a cause is understood to be important, it is usually suspected as likely to be long, and the risk of a fine is preferred to a protracted confinement in the jury box. The probability which hence ensues, of heavy causes going off for want of jurors, often compels the associate to provide against such contingencies by a larger day's list, at an augmented cost to suitors. If a general panel were summoned, it would be easy for the associate to contrive that no set of jurors should be detained for more than a prescribed period, and the reluctance to try long causes would thus be removed.

The present system is unsatisfactory to all concerned, either in the conduct of litigation or the administration of justice.

For attorneys are scarcely less anxious than their clients, that their causes should be tried by a fit tribunal; and from what has been said, it should appear that this cannot, under the present system, be secured. The Court, too, suffers from being constantly beset by irritated and impatient jurymen, often loud in their complaints of the hardships which they undoubtedly suffer.

The alterations required in the system are, it is submitted, as follows:—

Whether or no the practice of dividing jurors into two separate classes should be altered or confirmed by legislative authority, the special jury panels summoned should be general, to serve for a certain number of days, and not for one particular cause only. It would appear also, that common jurors may justly claim the relief of shortened periods of service. The list of persons liable to serve as jurors should be carefully corrected from time to time, either in the mode suggested by Mr. Serjeant Pulling in a recent paper published in the "Law Review," or in some other efficient manner. At present, the list in Middlesex is incumbered by the catalogue of a multitude of people who long since died, or left the abodes in respect of which their names were returned to the sheriff; and in the city, members of firms residing abroad, or in the country, and who never come to London at all, are treated as available jurors. It is reasonable, on the other hand, to suppose that there must be a number of duly qualified persons whose names are omitted from the lists furnished to the sheriff. In whatever way a general panel may be struck, it should be carefully revised, so as to ascertain that it will actually produce a sufficient supply of jurors, while the useless trouble and expense of summoning persons who are certain to be excused is avoided. Care should also be taken to inflict no unnecessary inconvenience on jurors. For example, more than one member of a firm should not be selected for the same period of service. Some system should also be adopted, under which the whole body of persons qualified as jurors may take the duty in turn. A corrected panel of a sufficient number of names should be made up, and the list published some time before the sittings, so as to enable those nominated on it to make provision for their absence from business. The jurors on a general panel would enjoy the advantage, which they do not now possess, of being able to arrange among themselves for the temporary absences of individuals of their body for unforeseen exigencies, a proportion of their number, sufficient for the purposes of the court, remaining always in attendance. The applications, now so constant, to the officers of the courts for remission from service on the ground of urgent private business, could not, under circumstances of attendance thus altered, be made; and no exemptions, such as that of over-age, which could have been claimed at the sheriff's office, should afterwards be recognised at the courts. An effective panel having been thus obtained, and having served for some fixed period, the persons on it should be entitled to receive from the associate certificates protecting them from being called upon again for a certain time, or until after the discharge of similar duty by all the other persons on the same jury list. Although it can scarcely, perhaps, be expected that to serve as a juror can ever be regarded as a privilege, still it is certain that the duty might, under proper arrangements, be rendered far less onerous than it now is, so as to be acquiesced in without irritation or complaint.

T. W. ERLE,
Associate, Court of Common Pleas.

FRIENDLY SOCIETIES.

Suggestions for the Establishment of Friendly Societies, on Sound Principles. By John Tidd Pratt, Esq., the Registrar of Friendly Societies in England.

(Concluded from p. 484).

TABLE NO. I.

Per Act 6 & 7 Vict. c. 45.

IMMEDIATE LIFE ANNUITIES.—MONEY NOT RETURNABLE.

Table shewing the Sum to be paid for an Immediate Life Annuity of 1*l.*, according to the Age and Sex of the Person upon whose Life the Annuity is to depend. The first Half-yearly Payment of the said Annuity will in all cases become due and be payable on the Second Quarterly Day of Payment next following the Day of Purchase.

Age of the Person at the Time of Purchase upon whose Life the Annuity is to depend.	Males.		Females.
	Money to be paid down in one Sum at the Time of Purchase.		Money to be paid down in one Sum at the Time of Purchase.
If 10 and under 11	£	s. d.	£	s. d.
11	21	11 0	22	15 4
12	21	7 5	22	12 1
13	21	3 8	22	8 8
14	20	19 8	22	5 3
15	20	15 7	22	1 10
16	20	11 4	21	18 7
17	20	7 2	21	15 11
18	20	3 2	21	13 5
19	19	19 7	21	11 0
20	19	16 4	21	8 8
21	19	13 5	21	6 5
22	19	10 11	21	3 11
23	19	9 0	21	1 4
24	19	7 2	20	18 9
25	19	5 4	20	16 0
26	19	3 6	20	13 2
27	19	1 5	20	10 3
28	18	18 10	20	7 3

Age of the Person at the Time of Purchase upon whose Life the Annuity is to depend.	Males.			Females.
	Money to be paid down in one Sum at the Time of the Purchase.			Money to be paid down in one Sum at the Time of Purchase.
	£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.
If 28 and under 29			18 16 2			20 4 2
29 " 30			18 13 3			20 1 0
30 " 31			18 10 2			19 17 9
31 " 32			18 6 11			19 14 5
32 " 33			18 3 7			19 11 0
33 " 34			18 0 1			19 7 6
34 " 35			17 16 4			19 4 0
35 " 36			17 12 5			19 0 5
36 " 37			17 8 8			18 16 11
37 " 38			17 4 1			18 13 4
38 " 39			16 19 9			18 9 7
39 " 40			16 15 3			18 5 9
40 " 41			16 10 9			18 1 10
41 " 42			16 6 0			17 17 8
42 " 43			16 1 0			17 13 5
43 " 44			15 15 10			17 9 0
44 " 45			15 10 5			17 4 5
45 " 46			15 4 9			16 19 7
46 " 47			14 18 11			16 14 8
47 " 48			14 12 8			16 9 6
48 " 49			14 6 2			16 4 1
49 " 50			13 19 7			15 18 7
50 " 51			13 12 11			15 12 9
51 " 52			13 6 2			15 6 9
52 " 53			12 19 9			15 0 5
53 " 54			12 13 4			14 14 0
54 " 55			12 7 2			14 7 4
55 " 56			12 1 0			14 0 7
56 " 57			11 15 0			13 13 9
57 " 58			11 9 1			13 6 10
58 " 59			11 3 3			12 19 9
59 " 60			10 17 3			12 12 8
60 " 61			10 11 2			12 5 6
61 " 62			10 4 10			11 18 1
62 " 63			9 18 3			11 10 6
63 " 64			9 11 5			11 2 11
64 " 65			9 4 7			10 15 4
65 " 66			8 17 10			10 7 8
66 " 67			8 11 1			10 0 1
67 " 68			8 4 9			9 12 6
68 " 69			7 18 7			9 5 0
69 " 70			7 12 5			8 17 5
70 " 71			7 6 4			8 9 11
71 " 72			7 0 6			8 2 8
72 " 73			6 14 10			7 15 7
73 " 74			6 9 1			7 8 7
74 " 75			6 3 1			7 1 11
75 " 76			5 17 0			6 15 5
76 " 77			5 10 8			6 8 11
77 " 78			5 3 7			6 2 9
78 " 79			4 16 6			5 17 1
79 " 80			4 9 10			5 11 10
80 or any greater age.			4 3 3			5 7 0

EXTRACT from TABLE NO. II.

Shewing the Monthly Contributions required at the Time of Purchase to secure 12l. a Year for Life, according to the Age and Sex of the Person upon whose Life the Annuity is to depend. The first Half-yearly Payment of the said Annuity will in all cases become due and be payable on the Second Quarterly Day of Payment next following any one of the undermentioned Periods, reckoning such Periods from the Day of Purchase. In this Class of Annuities the Purchase Money will be returned, on application of the Party, if the Annuity shall not have commenced, or on the Death of the Party.

Age of the Person at the Time of Purchase upon whose Life the Annuity is to depend.	Annuity to commence at 60.
	Males.	Females.
	Monthly Sum required.	Monthly Sum required.
	s. d.	s. d.
20	2 7	3 0
25	3 3	3 9
30	4 1	4 9
35	5 4	6 2

Age of the Person at the Time of Purchase upon whose Life the Annuity is to depend.	Annuity to commence at 65.
	Males.	Females.
	Monthly Sum required.	Monthly Sum required.
	s. d.	s. d.
20	1 9	2 1
25	2 2	2 6
30	2 9	3 2
35	3 5	4 0

Age of the Person at the Time of Purchase upon whose Life the Annuity is to depend.	Annuity to commence at 70.
	Males.	Females.
	Monthly Sum required.	Monthly Sum required.
	s. d.	s. d.
20	1 2	1 5
25	1 6	1 8
30	1 10	2 1
35	2 3	2 7

EXAMPLES in Deferred Life Annuities.

On the 20th May, 1861, a male, aged twenty-five, and under twenty-six, contracts, by annual payments, for an annuity of 1l. a year, to be enjoyed by him, during the rest of his life after the expiration of a period of thirty-five years, reckoning such period from the time of purchase. Under that contract, the party would receive the first half-yearly payment of the said annuity on the 10th October, 1896, that being the second quarterly day of payment next following the expiration of the term for which the annuity was agreed to be deferred.

In this case the party would be required—first, to pay down 3s. 3d. on entering into the contract on the 20th May, 1861; and, secondly, to continue to make the same payment of 3s. 3d. annually on the 5th April in each of the succeeding thirty-five years, the last annual payment being to be made on the 5th April, 1896.

EXTRACT from TABLE NO. III.

Shewing the Monthly Contributions required at the Time of Purchase to secure 12l. a Year for Life, according to the Age and Sex of the Person upon whose Life the Annuity is to depend. The first Half-yearly Payment of the said Annuity will in all cases become due and be payable on the Second Quarterly Day of Payment next following any one of the undermentioned Periods, reckoning such Periods from the Day of Purchase. In this Class of Annuities the Purchase Money will not be returned in any event.

Age of the Person at the Time of Purchase upon whose Life the Annuity is to depend.	Annuity to commence at 60.
	Males.	Females.
	Monthly Sum required.	Monthly Sum required.
20	s. d. 1 8	s. d. 2 2
25	2 2	2 10
30	2 10	3 9
35	3 11	5 0

Age of the Person at the Time of Purchase upon whose Life the Annuity is to depend.	Annuity to commence at 65.
	Males.	Females.
	Monthly Sum required.	Monthly Sum required.
20	s. d. 1 0	s. d. 1 4
25	1 3	1 9
30	1 8	2 3
35	2 3	3 0

EXAMPLES from the TABLES.

[These examples do not apply to mariners, painters, railway servants, miners, nor colliers.]

Male, aged

Doctor . . . 0 4	} 20.—By paying 4s. 8½d. per month may secure medical attendance, 10s. a week in sickness until sixty, and 20l. a year for life after sixty, and 20l. at death. All the money paid for the annuity being returnable if the annuity shall not have commenced, or on the death of the party before sixty.
Sickness . . . 1 0
Management 0 2
Annuity . . . 2 7
Death . . . 0 7½
4 8½

Doctor . . . 0 4	} 25.—May secure the same benefits, on payment of 5s. 6½d. monthly.
Sickness . . . 1 1
Management 0 2
Annuity . . . 3 3
Death . . . 0 8½
5 6½

Doctor . . . 0 4	} 30.—May secure the same benefits, on payment of 6s. 5½d. monthly.
Sickness . . . 1 2
Management 0 2
Annuity . . . 4 1
Death . . . 0 9½
6 5½

Doctor . . . 0 4	} 35.—May secure the same benefits, on payment of 8s. monthly.
Sickness . . . 1 3
Management 9 2
Annuity . . . 5 4
Death . . . 0 11
8 0

Doctor . . . 0 4	} 20.—By paying 3s. 9½d. per month may secure medical attendance, 10s. a week in sickness until sixty, and 20l. at death; no money being returnable.
Sickness . . . 1 0
Management 0 2
Annuity . . . 1 8
Death . . . 0 7½
3 9½

Male aged

Doctor . . . 0 4	} 25.—May secure the same benefits, on payment of 4s. 5½d. monthly.
Sickness . . . 1 1
Management 0 2
Annuity . . . 2 2
Death . . . 0 8½
4 5½

Doctor . . . 0 4	} 30.—May secure the same benefits, on payment of 5s. 3½d. monthly.
Sickness . . . 1 2
Management 0 2
Annuity . . . 2 10
Death . . . 0 9½
5 3½

Doctor . . . 0 4	} 35.—May secure the same benefits, on payment of 6s. 7d. monthly.
Sickness . . . 1 3
Management 0 2
Annuity . . . 3 11
Death . . . 0 11
6 7

Doctor . . . 0 4	} 20.—By paying 3s. 11½d. per month may secure medical attendance, 10s. a week in sickness until sixty-five, 12l. a year for life after sixty-five, and 20l. at death. All the money paid for the annuity being returnable if the annuity shall not have commenced, or on the death of the party before sixty-five.
Sickness . . . 1 1
Management 0 2
Annuity . . . 1 9
Death . . . 0 7½
3 11½

Doctor . . . 0 4	} 25.—May secure the same benefits, on payment of 4s. 7d. monthly.
Sickness . . . 1 2½
Management 0 2
Annuity . . . 2 9
Death . . . 0 8½
4 7

Doctor . . . 0 4	} 30.—May secure the same benefits, on payment of 5s. 4d. monthly.
Sickness . . . 1 3½
Management 0 2
Annuity . . . 2 9
Death . . . 0 9½
5 4

Doctor . . . 0 4	} 35.—May secure the same benefits, on payment of 6s. 3d. monthly.
Sickness . . . 1 5
Management 0 2
Annuity . . . 3 5
Death . . . 0 11
6 3

Doctor . . . 0 4	} 20.—By paying 3s. 2½d. per month may secure medical attendance, 10s. a week in sickness until sixty-five, 12l. a year for life after sixty-five, and 20l. at death; no money being returnable.
Sickness . . . 1 1
Management 0 2
Annuity . . . 1 0
Death . . . 0 7½
3 2½

Doctor . . . 0 4	} 25.—May secure the same benefits, on payment of 3s. 8d. monthly.
Sickness . . . 1 2½
Management 0 2
Annuity . . . 1 3
Death . . . 0 8½
3 8

Doctor . . . 0 4	} 30.—May secure the same benefits, on payment of 4s. 3d. monthly.
Sickness . . . 1 3½
Management 0 2
Annuity . . . 1 8
Death . . . 0 9½
4 3

Male aged

	s.	d.
Doctor . . .	0	4
Sickness . . .	1	5
Management 0	2
Annuity . . .	2	3
Death . . .	0	11
	5	1

35.—May secure the same benefits, on payment of 5s. 1d. monthly.

Doctor . . .	0	4
Sickness . . .	1	2
Management 0	2
Annuity . . .	1	2
Death . . .	0	7½
	3	5½

20.—By paying 3s. 5½d. per month may secure medical attendance, 10s. a week in sickness until seventy, 12l. a year for life after seventy, and 90l. at death. All the money paid for the annuity being returnable if the annuity shall not have commenced, or on the death of the party before seventy.

Doctor . . .	0	4
Sickness . . .	1	3½
Management 0	2
Annuity . . .	1	6
Death . . .	0	8½
	4	0

25.—May secure the same benefits, on payment of 4s. monthly.

Doctor . . .	0	4
Sickness . . .	1	5
Management 0	2
Annuity . . .	1	10
Death . . .	0	9½
	4	6½

30.—May secure the same benefits, on payment of 4s. 6½d. monthly.

Doctor . . .	0	4
Sickness . . .	1	6½
Management 0	2
Annuity . . .	2	8
Death . . .	0	11
	5	2½

35.—May secure the same benefits, on payment of 5s. 2½d. monthly.

CAUTION.—Persons desirous of providing for relief in sickness or old age, or of securing a sum of money payable at death, should, before they become members of any society on the application of agents, obtain a copy of the rules, and should not be satisfied with a card on which payments only are entered. They should also ascertain whether the rules have been duly certified, and particularly in what manner they, or persons claiming on their death, are to proceed in case of dispute; as in societies established in London, Bristol, Liverpool, or Manchester, &c., disputes are by the rules of the greater part of these to be decided by arbitration, in the place where the society is established; that is, a claimant living in Manchester having insured in a society established in London would, in case of dispute, have to attend an arbitration in London. In addition to which, the parties insuring should ascertain the names of the trustees and officers of the society, their residence and business, as well as their respectability.

By the 27 & 28 Vict. c. 56, ss. 4, 5, no stamp duty is chargeable on any probate of a will, or letters of administration, with or without a will annexed, granted in England or Ireland, or inventory to be exhibited and recorded in any commissary court in Scotland, of the estate and effects of any person deceased, in any case where the whole estate and effects of the deceased person dying after the 25th July, 1864 (exclusive of what he shall have been possessed of or entitled to as a trustee for any other person or persons, and not beneficially), shall be sworn not to exceed, and shall not actually exceed, in value the sum of 100l. This provision will be found of great benefit to depositors in savings banks, and members of friendly societies, particularly with reference to the easy and comparatively inexpensive mode of now obtaining, by personal application at 12, Great Knight Rider-street, Doctor's Commons, London, or at the office of the district registrar in the country, a probate or letters of administration.

It should be distinctly understood that the certificate of the registrar is confined to the fact that the rules are in conformity with law, and does not apply to the sufficiency of the contributions to meet the payments. This is the province of an actuary. If the rates of contributions and payments have been prepared by an actuary, that fact is stated in the registrar's certificate.

Friendly Societies Office,
28, Abingdon-street, Westminster.
Dec. 1865.

PROSPECTUS OF THE LECTURES

To be delivered during the ensuing Hilary Educational Term, by the several Readers appointed by the Inns of Court.

CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND LEGAL HISTORY.

The Reader on Constitutional Law and Legal History proposes to deliver, during the ensuing Educational Term, Six Public Lectures on

THE HISTORY OF ENGLISH LAW, FROM THE MEETING OF THE LONG PARLIAMENT TO THE RESTORATION.

With his Private Class, the Reader proposes to go through the principal Statutes, Trials, Cases, and State Documents, which illustrate the History of the English Constitution and the History of English Law from the Meeting of the Long Parliament to the Death of Charles II. He will use Hallam's Constitutional History as his principal Text-book.

EQUITY.

The Reader on Equity proposes to deliver, during the ensuing Educational Term, Two Courses of Public Lectures (there being Six Lectures in each Course), on the following subjects:—

An Elementary Course.

1. On Trusts in General—Uses in Land—Statute of Uses—Trusts of Land.
2. Creation of Express Trusts—Statute of Frauds—Performance of Trusts—Trusts for Creditors.
3. Incidents of Trust Estates.
4. On the Duties and Liabilities of Trustees—Remedies for Breaches of Trust.
5. On Charitable Trusts—Statute of Charitable Uses.
6. On Superstitious Uses.

An Advanced Course.

1. On Constructive Frauds.
 2. On the Administration of Personal Assets.
 3. On the Administration of Real Assets.
- In the Elementary Private Class, the subjects discussed will be—The Rights and Liabilities of Married Women recognised in a Court of Equity only.
- In the Advanced Private Class, the Lectures will comprehend—The Validity of Voluntary Settlements and Donations Mortis Causa: Pleadings and Evidence in Courts of Equity.

THE LAW OF REAL PROPERTY, &c.

The Reader on the Law of Real Property, &c. proposes to deliver, in the ensuing Educational Term, Two Courses of Public Lectures (there being Six Lectures in each Course), on the following subjects:—

Elementary Course.

1. The Doctrine of Election.
2. The Doctrine of Equitable Conversion.
3. Trusts and Powers of Sale.

Advanced Course.

1. The Law of Domicil.
2. The Effect of a Testamentary Charge of Debts.

In his Private Classes, the Reader will, with the Elementary Class, continue his Course of Real Property Law, using the Work of Mr. Joshua Williams as a Text-book; and with the Advanced Class, the Reader will go through Cases to be selected from Tador's Leading Cases in Conveyancing.

JURISPRUDENCE, CIVIL, AND INTERNATIONAL LAW.

The Reader on Jurisprudence, Civil, and International Law proposes, in the ensuing Educational Term, to deliver Six Lectures on the following subjects:—

1. The Historical Development of the Doctrines of International Law with respect to the Right of Search.
2. The Roman Idea of Dominium, and the Origin of the Distinction between Legal and Equitable Ownership.
3. The Modes of Acquisition of Property by the Roman and English Law.
4. The Comparison of the Roman and French Law respecting the Transfer of Property, with the English Law upon the same Subject.

In his Private Class, the Reader will consider the Roman Law of Mandate Quasi Contracts, Delicts and Quasi Delicts, using Sandars's edition of the Institutes of Justinian and the Systema Juris Romani of Mackeldey as Text-books, and contrast it with the English and French Law upon the same head.

The Reader, in his Private Class, will also discuss points of International Law with respect to the International Rights of States in their Hostile Relations, using the work of Wheaton as the Text-book, and referring to the works of the principal modern Jurists; the decisions of the Admiralty and Prize Courts of England and America; the Debates in Parliament; and State Papers relating to the matters under discussion.

COMMON LAW.

The Reader on Common Law proposes to deliver, during the ensuing Educational Term, Two Courses of Six Public Lectures each, on the following subjects:—

Elementary Course.

1. The Science of Pleading will be considered, and the Leading Principles observed by the Pleader will be stated and explained.
2. The Mode of shaping and adapting Proofs to the Issues raised by the Pleadings will be noticed.
3. The Proceedings on a Trial at Nisi Prius will be specified, the functions of the Judge and Jury respectively being indicated.

Advanced Course.

1. A general view of our Law Merchant will be taken.
2. Mercantile Contracts, and the Admissibility of Evidence to explain them, will be considered.
3. Mercantile Remedies will be enumerated, and the Method of applying them will be exemplified.

With his Private Classes, the Reader will proceed according to the plan above set forth; he will examine Selected Cases, explain the Pleadings therein, and points connected with the Law of Evidence arising thereupon.

The following books will be used for reference:—

Elementary Class:—Stephen on Pleading; Precedents of Pleadings, by Messrs. Bullen & Leake; and Roscoe on Evidence at Nisi Prius.

Advanced Class:—Smith's Mercantile Law, by Dowdeswell; Smith's Leading Cases (last edition); and Taylor on Evidence.

By order of the Council,

(Signed) EDW. RYAN, Chairman, pro tem.

Council Chamber, Lincoln's-inn,

Dec. 21, 1865.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Solicitors' Bookkeeping, by two methods, single column and double column, with Forms and practical Illustrations of the working of each; together with directions for balancing the past accounts prior to the substitution of either of the above systems; and also directions for commencing new books at once, without previously balancing. By George James Kain, F.S.S., author of the Triple Column System. 8vo., pp. 94.

The Re-arrangement or Codification of the English Laws. An Introductory Lecture. By Piers Francis White, Barrister-at-Law, Professor of the Law of Personal Property to the Hon. Society of the King's Inn, Dublin. 8vo., pp. 35.—Hodges, Smith, & Co.

The Fifteenth Edition, by W. N. Welsby, Esq., adapted to the New Criminal Statutes of 1861, in 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 12. 6s. cloth boards.

ARCHBOLD'S PLEADING AND EVIDENCE IN CRIMINAL CASES; with the Statutes, Precedents of Indictments, and the Evidence necessary to support them. By JOHN JERVIS, Esq. (late Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas). The Fifteenth Edition. Including the Practice in Criminal Proceedings by Indictment. By W. N. WELSBY, Esq., Barrister at Law, Recorder of Chester.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

CHITTY ON BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 14. 8s.

CHITTY ON BILLS OF EXCHANGE, Promissory Notes, Cheques on Bankers, Bankers' Cash Notes, and Bank Notes; with References to the Law of Scotland, France, and America. The Tenth Edition. By JOHN A. RUSSELL and D. MACLAHLAN, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

SHELFORD'S LAW OF HIGHWAYS IN ENGLAND AND WALES, brought down to 1866.

In 1 vol. 12mo., price 12s. cloth.

THE LAW OF HIGHWAYS IN ENGLAND AND WALES; comprising Highways in Districts under Boards of Health and of Local Government, and as affected by Railways. With additional Forms not contained in the Acts. By LEONARD SHELFORD, Esq. The Third Edition, with a Supplement, containing the Highway Act, 1864, &c. With Notes and a revised Index. By C. MANLEY SMITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard.

SMITH'S REAL AND PERSONAL PROPERTY.

In 1 thick vol. 8vo., price 35s. cloth.

A COMPENDIUM OF THE LAW OF REAL AND PERSONAL PROPERTY, connected with Conveyancing; designed as a comprehensive Second Book for Students, and as a Digest of the most useful learning for Practitioners. Third Edition. By JOSIAH W. SMITH, B.C.L., Q.C.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard Lincoln's-inn.

BY AUTHORITY.

Price 9s. cloth boards.

PROCEDURE in the STANNARIES OF CORNWALL AND DEVON. Containing the New Rules and Orders for Regulating the Practice, both at Equity and Common Law, of the Court of the Vice-Warden of the Stannaries; and the recent Statutes for establishing and extending its Jurisdiction. Preceded by Observations on the Power of the Court in relation to Mining Associations and Partnerships in the Counties of Cornwall and Devon.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street; and Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

WHARTON'S ARTICLED CLERKS' MANUAL.

In royal 12mo., price 18s. cloth.

A MANUAL for ARTICLED CLERKS; containing Courses of Study, as well in Common Law, Conveyancing, Equity, Bankruptcy, and Criminal Law, as in Constitutional, Roman Civil, Ecclesiastical, Colonial, and International Laws, Medical Jurisprudence, and Bookkeeping. A Digest of all the Examination Questions, with the New Statutes, General Rules, Forms of Articles of Clerkship, Notices, Affidavits, &c., and a List of the proper Stamps and Fees; being a Comprehensive Guide to their successful Examination, Admission, and Practice as Attorneys and Solicitors of the Superior Courts. By J. J. S. WHARTON, Esq., M.A., Oxon., Barrister at Law, Author of "The Law Lexicon," &c. Ninth Edition. Greatly enlarged, and with the Addition of Bookkeeping by Single and Double Entry. By CHARLES HENRY ANDERSON, Solicitor, Editor of "The Legal Examiner."

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's inn.

Recently published, in 1 vol. super royal 8vo., price 40s. cloth.

WHARTON'S LAW LEXICON. Third Edition.

A Dictionary of Jurisprudence, explaining all the Technical Words and Phrases employed in the several Departments of English Law; including also the various Legal Terms used in Commercial Transactions; together with an Explanatory as well as Literal Translation of the Latin Maxims contained in the Writings of the Ancient and Modern Commentators. Greatly improved and enlarged. By J. J. S. WHARTON, Esq., Barrister at Law, assisted by G. H. COOPER and R. SEARLE, Esqrs., Barristers at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn, W. C.

MORGAN'S CHANCERY ACTS AND ORDERS.

Price 28s. cloth.

THE STATUTES, GENERAL ORDERS, and REGULATIONS relating to the PRACTICE, PLEADING, and JURISDICTION of the COURT of CHANCERY. With copious Notes, containing a Summary of every reported Decision thereon. By GEORGE OSBORNE MORGAN, M.A., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law, late Stowell Fellow of University College, and Eldon Law Scholar in the University of Oxford. Third Edition, considerably enlarged.

"Mr. Morgan's work merits the highest commendation for its usefulness, simplicity, and completeness. . . . The practitioner will find in the pages of this book ample, and at the same time terse and business-like, information upon almost all the questions that arise in the ordinary proceedings in Chancery."—Law Magazine, November, 1862.

"No labour has been spared to make the work as complete and accurate as possible. With its elaborate index and marginal references, it is impossible to over-estimate its value as a manual of general practice."—Law Magazine, May, 1862.

Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

STARKIE'S LAW OF EVIDENCE.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW of EVIDENCE. By THOMAS STARKIE, Esq. Fourth Edition, with very considerable alterations and additions; incorporating the Statutes and reported Cases to the time of publication. By G. M. DOWDESWELL and J. G. MALCOLM, Esqrs., Barristers at Law. In 1 vol. royal 8vo., 1853, price 17. 16s. cloth.

In the parliamentary debate on disqualified witnesses (House of Commons, Feb. 12, 1861), referring to the case of Maden v. Catnach, Sir G. C. Lewis said, "He would read from Starkie on Evidence, which was known to be a standard work upon the subject, a statement of the law as applicable to the case (vice Examination as to Religious Belief, pp. 115, 116). That is a clear statement of the rule of law upon the subject."

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

PARLIAMENTARY COSTS.

Price 12s. 6d. cloth, lettered.

PARLIAMENTARY COSTS. By EDWARD WEBSTER, Esq., of the Taxing Office, House of Commons, and of the Examiners' Office, House of Lords and House of Commons. Second Edition.

London: Stevens & Sons, Law Booksellers and Publishers, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THING'S (T.) CRIMINAL LAW OF THE NAVY, 1861.

In 12mo., price 8s. 6d. cloth.

THE CRIMINAL LAW of the NAVY; comprising an Introductory Sketch of the Early State and Discipline of the Navy; the Naval Discipline Act of 1860, with Notes; Criminal Offences and their Punishment; the Constitution and Jurisdiction of Courts-Martial; the Forms of Procedure and Law of Evidence applicable to Trials by Courts-Martial; with the New Regulations of the Admiralty, and a copious Index. By THEODORE THING, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

THING'S LAND DRAINAGE ACT, 1861.

In 12mo., price 7s. cloth.

THE LAND DRAINAGE ACT, 1861. With an Introduction, Practical Notes, an Appendix of Statutes relating to Drainage, and Forms. By THEODORE THING, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

STAMP'S INDEX TO THE STATUTES.

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 18s. cloth boards.

STAMP'S INDEX to the STATUTE LAW of ENGLAND. By GEORGE STAMP, Esq. The Third Edition, brought down to the close of the Session 24 & 25 Vict. By JAMES EDWARD DAVIS, Esq., Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

TOULMIN SMITH'S "THE PARISH."

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 18s. cloth bds.

THE PARISH: its Powers and Obligations at Law as regards the Welfare of every Neighbourhood, and in Relation to the State; its Officers and Committees, and the Responsibility of every Parishioner. With Illustrations of the Practical Working of this Institution in all Secular Affairs, and of some modern Attempts at Ecclesiastical Incroachment. By TOULMIN SMITH, of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law. The Second Edition, with important Additions.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

CHITTY'S (JUN.) LAW OF CONTRACTS, BY RUSSELL.

In 1 vol. royal 8vo., price 17. 12s.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW of CONTRACTS, and upon the Defences to Actions thereon. By JOSEPH CHITTY, Jun., Esq. The Sixth Edition. By JOHN A. RUSSELL, LL.B., of Gray's-inn, Barrister at Law, and Professor of English Law in University College, London.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

SIR JOHN BARNARD BYLES ON BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

The Eighth Edition, price 17. 2s. cloth boards.

A TREATISE on the LAW of BILLS of EXCHANGE, PROMISSORY NOTES, BANK NOTES, and CHECKS. By SIR JOHN BARNARD BYLES, Queen's Sergeant (now one of the Judges of her Majesty's Court of Common Pleas). The Eighth Edition, with Notes from the Fourth American Edition.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

PRACTICE OF THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL.

In 1 vol. royal 12mo., price 16s. cloth boards.

THE PRACTICE of the JUDICIAL COMMITTEE of Her Majesty's most Honourable PRIVY COUNCIL. By WILLIAM MACPHERSON, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law, Author of "The Procedure of the Civil Courts of British India."

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE LAW OF LETTERS-PATENT.

In 1 vol. 8vo., price 18s. cloth boards.

A TREATISE on the LAW of LETTERS-PATENT for the SOLE USE of INVENTIONS in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, including the Practice connected with the Grant. To which is added, a Summary of the Patent Laws in force in the principal Foreign States; with an Appendix of Statutes, Rules, Practical Forms, &c. By JOHN CORYTON, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

MAUDE & POLLOCK'S LAW OF SHIPPING.

A COMPENDIUM of the LAW of MERCHANT SHIPPING. With an Appendix, containing all the Statutes and Forms of Practical Utility. By FREDERIC PHILIP MAUDE and CHARLES EDWARD POLLOCK, Esqrs., of the Inner Temple, Barristers at Law. The Third Edition, including the Statutes and Decisions to the present time. Royal 8vo., price 17. 14s. cloth.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

HAYES'S CONCISE CONVEYANCER

THE CONCISE CONVEYANCER, or SHORT PRECEDENTS of CONVEYANCES. With Practical Remarks, and Summary of the Stamp Laws relating to Conveyances. By WILLIAM HAYES, Esq., Barrister at Law, one of the Six Conveyancing Counsel of the High Court of Chancery. The Second Edition, with considerable Additions; including a Chapter on Composition Deeds, under the New Bankrupt Act. By W. B. COLTMAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. Royal 12mo, price 18s.

"The present Edition contains Conveyances on Sales, Mortgages, Leases, Settlements, and a variety of Miscellaneous Instruments, but no "Wills," as the work is intended to be a companion volume to the well-known work by Hayes & Jarman of Concise Forms and Wills.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

COURT OF THE VICE-WARDEN OF THE STANNARIES.

Price 1s. 6d. sewed.

GENERAL RULES, FORMS, and COURT FEES on the WINDING UP of MINING COMPANIES within the JURISDICTION of the STANNARIES; also Solicitors' Fees and Charges on the Equity Side of the Court.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the Office, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, December 30, 1865.

The Jurist

No. 574, NEW SERIES.—Vol. XI.
No. 1513, OLD SERIES.—Vol. XXIX.

JANUARY 6, 1866. Price, with Supplement, 1s. 6d.

LAW LECTURES at the INCORPORATED LAW SOCIETY.—The LECTURES will be RESUMED by—
Mr. R. HORTON SMITH, on CONVEYANCING, Monday, Jan. 8.
Mr. E. CHARLES, on EQUITY, Friday, Jan. 12.
Mr. HUGH SHIELD, on COMMON LAW, Monday, Jan. 15.
E. W. WILLIAMSON, Secretary.
Law Society's Hall, Chancery-lane,
London, Jan. 1, 1866.

LAW CLASSES at the INCORPORATED LAW SOCIETY.—The CLASSES will be RESUMED by—
Mr. A. BAILEY, on CONVEYANCING, Tuesday, Jan. 9.
Mr. W. MARBY, on COMMON LAW, Wednesday, Jan. 10.
Mr. M. H. COOKSON, on EQUITY, Thursday, Jan. 11.
E. W. WILLIAMSON, Secretary.
Law Society's Hall, Chancery-lane,
London, Jan. 1, 1866.

SOLICITORS' BOOKKEEPING (Three Methods).
By G. J. KAIN, F.S.S.
Kain's Triple Column System, 7th Edition, 6s.
Kain's Single and Double Column Systems (in one volume), First Issue, 7s. 6d. (just published).
Kain's Rental System (bound up with each of the above).
KAIN, SPARROW, & Co., 69, Chancery-lane, W. C.; WATERLOW &
Sons, London-wall; and through all Booksellers.

TO COUNTRY SOLICITORS.—TRUST DEED
FORMS.—In registering Trust Deeds in Bankruptcy it is very desirable that proper and correct Forms should be used, as Deeds are very often rejected in consequence of an incorrect Form being presented.
This delay is avoided by obtaining the Forms direct from GEORGE
DOWDING (late Sackett & Ruscoe), Stationer to the Office for Trust
Deeds in Bankruptcy, 8, Quality-court, Chancery-lane, London, W. C.

This day is published, in 12mo., price 12s. cloth.
AN ELEMENTARY VIEW of the PROCEED-
INGS in an ACTION at LAW. By JOHN WILLIAM SMITH, Esq., late of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law, Author of "Leading Cases," "A Compendium of Mercantile Law," &c. Ninth Edition, adapted to the present Practice, by SAMUEL PRENTICE, Esq., Barrister at Law, Editor of "Chitty's Archbold's Practice."
London: Stevens & Sons; H. Sweet; and W. Maxwell.

In 1 vol. large 8vo., price 34s., the Second Edition of WRONGS AND THEIR REMEDIES: being a Treatise on the Law of Torts. By C. G. ADDISON, Esq.,
Barrister at Law, Author of "The Law of Contracts."
London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

ANNUAL CONTINUATION of the NEW EDITION of
CHITTY'S STATUTES, by WELSBY & BEAVAN.—4 Vols.
Just published, price 6s. sewed, Part 1.

THE STATUTES of PRACTICAL UTILITY in the CIVIL and CRIMINAL ADMINISTRATION of JUST-TICE (passed 28 & 29 Vict., 1865), alphabetically arranged; with Notes thereon, and a copious Index. By HORATIO LLOYD, Esq., Barrister at Law.

* * This Part will form the Second Part of Vol. 3, if taken as the Annual continuation of the Second Edition, and the First Part of Vol. 1 in continuation of the Third Edition, of Chitty's Statutes by Welsby & Beavan.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

23, Lincoln's-inn-fields.—A capacious Freehold Professional Residence and Business Premises, with large Board-room suitable for a Public Company, a Solicitor in extensive Practice, or for Investment.

MESSRS. HAMMOND & SON are instructed by the Directors of the Norwich Union Reversionary Interest Company to SELL by AUCTION, at the public Sale-rooms, 28, Chancerylane, on Wednesday, Jan. 10, at 12 o'clock, the above important FREE- HOLD PROPERTY, which is yearly increasing in value, being eligibly situate in the neighbourhood of the Inns of Court and Site selected for the New Law Courts. A sum of 2500l. has been expended within a few years in addition and improvements, and will form a first-class well secured purchase for investment or occupation.

Particulars and conditions of sale, with cards to view, may be had of Messrs. Hook & Street, Solicitors, 27, Lincoln's-inn-fields, and at the Auction Offices, 28, Chancery-lane, W. C.

No. 574, VOL. XI., NEW SERIES.

BROOM'S (DR. HERBERT) CONSTITUTIONAL LAW.

On the 70th instant will be published, in 1 vol. 8vo.,
CONSTITUTIONAL LAW viewed in RELATION to COMMON LAW, and exemplified by Cases. By HERBERT BROOM, LL.D., Barrister at Law, Reader on Common Law to the Inns of Court, Author of "A Selection of Legal Maxims," "Commentaries on the Common Law," &c.
W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

JOSHUA WILLIAMS ON REAL ASSETS.

Price 6s. cloth boards.
AN ESSAY on REAL ASSETS; or the Payment of the Debts of a deceased Person out of his Real Estate, and the Means by which that Payment ought to be accomplished. By JOSHUA
WILLIAMS, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister at Law.
H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

In demy 12mo., 1016 pp., price 17. 12s. cloth,
ROGERS on ELECTIONS, ELECTION COM-MITTEES, and REGISTRATION. With an Appendix of Statutes and Forms. Tenth Edition. With the new Registration Statute, and all the Election and Registration Cases to the present time.
By F. S. P. WOLFERSTAN, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law.

Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

EQUITABLE REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY,

10, LANCASTER-PLACE, STRAND.

Established 1835.—Capital £500,000.

DIRECTORS.

Daniel Smith Bockett, Esq.	Francis Bennett Goldney, Esq.
Major C. L. Boileau	Charles Richard Harford, jun., Esq.
Lieut.-Colonel Chase.	Henry Pigeon, Esq.
William Henry Cole, Esq.	Henry Roberts, Esq.
Thomas Curtis, Esq.	George Roots, Esq.

AUDITORS.

Charles Armstrong Esq.	William Richard Bingley, Esq.
Alfred Langdale, Esq.

SOLICITORS.—Messrs. Clayton & Son.

BANKERS.—Messrs. Coutts & Co.

ACTUARY.—F. Hendrick, Esq.

This Society purchases Reversionary Property, Life Interests, and Life
Policies of Assurance, and grants Loans on these Securities.

Forms of Proposal may be obtained at the Office.

JOHN CLAYTON, } Joint
FRANCISS CLAYTON, } Secretaries.

LAW FIRE INSURANCE SOCIETY.

Offices—Chancery-lane, London.
Subscribed Capital, £5,000,000.

TRUSTEES.

The Right Hon. Lord Chelmsford.
The Right Hon. Lord Truro.
The Right Hon. the Lord Chief Baron.
The Right Hon. the Lord Justice Sir J. L. Knight Bruce.
The Right Hon. the Lord Justice Sir G. J. Turner.
The Right Hon. John Robert Mowbray, M.P.
William Brougham, Esq.

Insurances expiring at Christmas should be renewed within fifteen days thereafter, at the Offices of the Society, or with any of its Agents throughout the country.

The full and immediate benefit of the reduction of duty to 1s. 6d.
per cent. will be given to the insured.

This Society holds itself responsible, under its Fire Policy, for any damage done by explosion of gas.

EDWARD BLAKE, Esq., Secretary.

ANNUITIES AND REVERSIONS.

LAW REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY.
68, CHANCERY-LANE, LONDON.

CHAIRMAN—Russell Gurney, Esq., M.P., Recorder of London.

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Sir W. J. Alexander, Bart., Esq.

Reversions and Life Interests purchased. Immediate and Deferred Annuities granted in exchange for Reversionary and Contingent Interests.

Loans may also be obtained on the security of Reversions,
Annuities, Immediate, Deferred, and Contingent, and also Endowments, granted on favourable terms.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal, and all further information, may be had at the Office.

C. B. CLABON, Sec.

Z Z

CONTENTS.

Leading Article	507
Regula Generalis	511
Court Papers:—

Common-law Sittings, Hilary Term, 1866	512
Case Lists, Hilary Term, 1866 ..	512

NAMES OF THE CASES REPORTED.

[The Cases reported in the Common-law Courts are under the Editorship of R. E. TURNER, Esq., and the Equity Cases under H. B. INCE, Esq., Barristers at Law.]

COURT OF CHANCERY.

By W. W. KNOX, Barrister at Law.

Re parte Somerville, re Treasldder.—(Bankruptcy Act, 1861, sects. 192, 198—Composition deed—Invalid clauses—Leave to issue execution)	1029
Re Drew.—(Practice—Land Transfer Act)	1030

ROLLS COURT.

By M. BROWNE, Barrister at Law.

Vestry of Bermondsey v. Brown.—(Right of way—Presumption from user—Parish—Parties—Metropolis Local Management Acts (25 & 26 Vict. c. 102, &c.)	1031
Mayes v. Mayes.—(Practice—Evidence—Time for filing affidavits)	1033

VICE-CHANCELLOR STUART'S COURT.

By A. RUMSEY, Barrister at Law.

Dowling v. Dowling.—(Construction—Gift to issue by implication—Gift of interest—A Share?)	1033
Elwes v. Barnard.—(Deceased trustee—Bill against surviving trustee—Liability of trustee, though not charged)	1035

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

By C. W. LOVESEY, Barrister at Law.

Harter, App., The Overseers of the Township of Salford, Resps.—(Poor rate—Disused mill—Rateability of)	1036
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	------

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

By E. BULLOCK, Barrister at Law.

Trickett v. Greene.—(Compulsory reference—Matter of account—Issue of fraud—Common-law Procedure Act, 1854, sects. 3 and 4)	1037
Re Rogers.—(Feme covert—Personal estate—S & 4 Will. 4, c. 74, s. 91—20 & 21 Vict. c. 57, s. 1) ..	1038

COURT OF PROBATE.

By DR. MIDDLETON.

Hastlow v. Stobie.—(Testamentary suit—Pleading—Contents of will not known and approved by deceased—Demurrer)	1039
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	------

NOTICE.

The Office of THE JURIST is removed to No. 39, BELL YARD, TEMPLE BAR, W. O., where all communications for the Editor are requested to be addressed.

Orders for Advertisements, and Letters on business matters, to be addressed to the Publisher as above.

NEW EDITION OF ELMER'S PRACTICE in LUNACY, with Notes of Cases, Forms, Costs, Statutes, General Orders, and a Copious Index. Price 16s. 6d. cloth. Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In crown 8vo., pp. 177, price 4s. 6d. cloth lettered, ROUSE'S MANUAL OF THE COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION (under the 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99); comprising a Summary of the Act; a Short Treatise on each Subject of Jurisdiction; a Summary of the Trustees Relief Acts, and Trustee Acts, and the Decisions thereon; and Appendices, containing the County Courts Equitable Jurisdiction Act, the Trustees Relief Acts, the Trustee Acts, &c.; County Court Orders and Forms in Equity; and a Scale of Costs and Charges. Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

In medium 8vo., price 1l. 5s. cloth, A MANUAL OF CIVIL LAW; containing a Translation of, and Commentary on the Fragments of, the XII Tables and the Institutes of Justinian; the Text of the Institutes of Gaius and Justinian. Arranged in parallel columns; and the Text of the Fragments of Ulpian, and of Selections from Paul's Receipts Sententiae. By PATRICK CUMIN, M.A., Balliol College, Oxford, Barrister at Law. Second Edition, enlarged. London: Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn. Oxford: J. H. & J. Parker. Cambridge: Deighton, Bell, & Co. Edinburgh: T. & T. Clark. Dublin: Hodges, Smith, & Co.

TWENTIETH ANNUAL ISSUE.

This day is published,

THE LAWYER'S COMPANION, DIARY, and LONDON and PROVINCIAL LAW DIRECTORY for 1866; containing The Companies Act, 1862, with an Introduction, Analysis, and Index; an Abstract of the most important Acts of the Session of 1865; and the New Orders and Rules for regulating the Practice of the County Courts, 1865. With a Scale of Costs and Charges to be paid to Counsel and Attorneys in the County Courts under the Provisions of the Statute 28 & 29 Vict. c. 29. Edited by FREDERICK LAWRENCE Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law.

The Work is bound in cloth, lettered on back and side, and may be had as under:—

No.	d.
1. Plain, two days on a page	5 0
2. The above, interleaved	7 0
3. Ruled with or without money columns	5 6
4. The above, interleaved	8 0
5. Plain, whole page to a day	7 6
6. The above, interleaved	9 6
7. Whole page to a day, ruled with or without money columns	8 6
8. The above, interleaved	10 6
9. Ruled blue lines, without money columns, three days on a page	5 0

London: Stevens & Sons, No. 26, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

BYTHEWOOD AND JARMAN'S CONVEYANCING.—

Vol. 8, Part 1.

Price 2s. boards.

A SELECTION OF PRECEDENTS from MODERN MANUSCRIPT COLLECTIONS, and DRAFTS of ACTUAL PRACTICE; forming a System of Conveyancing. With Dissertations and Practical Notes. By THOMAS JARMAN, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law. The Third Edition. Vol. 8. By WHITLEY STOKES, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. PART I.—POWERS OF ATTORNEY. H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

The Sixth Edition, now ready, price 21s. cloth boards.

HAYES AND JARMAN'S CONCISE FORMS OF WILLS, with Practical Notes: a Popular View of the Statute of Wills, and Suggestions to Persons taking Instructions for and preparing Wills; the Decisions on the Wills Acts, and other Testamentary Matters, in the House of Lords and Privy Council, and in the Equity, Common Law, Ecclesiastical, and Probate Courts, down to the Time of Publication; and many additional Forms. Sixth Edition. By THOMAS S. BADGER EASTWOOD, of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. M.A., and of Lincoln's-inn, Esq., Barrister at Law, Reader on the Law of Real Property to the Four Inns of Court. London: H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street, Law Bookseller and Publisher.

THE LAWS AFFECTING RAILWAYS, BROUGHT DOWN TO THE PRESENT TIME.

Now ready, in one thick vol. royal 8vo., price 1l. 15s. cloth boards.

SIR W. HODGES'S PRACTICAL TREATISE on the LAW OF RAILWAYS, RAILWAY COMPANIES, and RAILWAY INVESTMENTS. With an Appendix of Statutes, Forms, &c. The Fourth Edition. By CHARLES MANLEY SMITH, Esq., of the Inner Temple and Midland Circuit, Barrister at Law. * * * The great and increasing interest in everything relating to Railways now manifested by the public, have created such a demand for this valuable work, that the Publisher has been induced to have a new Edition of it prepared. This Edition comprises the important Statutes passed in the Session of 1864, as well as the Standing Orders for the Session of 1865, in addition to the numerous Decisions of the Courts, both of Law and Equity, since the last Edition was published, and such of the Rules of the London Stock Exchange as are applicable to Railways, as amended up to 1864. The task of preparing and conducting through the press this new Edition has been a really arduous one; but no pains have been spared by the learned Editor (whose work on the Law of Master and Servant is well known, not only in Westminster Hall, but also in Ireland, Scotland, and America), to make the work complete; and the Publisher believes that he can with confidence recommend it to all persons interested in Railways, especially Directors, Secretaries, and shareholders, as the most complete work on Railway Law yet offered to the public.

The English and Irish Railway Clearing Acts have also been added to this Edition.

H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane, Fleet-street.

THE JURIST.

LONDON, JANUARY 6, 1866.

MARTIAL LAW IN JAMAICA.

It often happens that occurrences in our dominions or possessions abroad awaken attention to questions which, in our own times, are not likely to arise here at home. And this has been the case with recent lamentable occurrences in Jamaica, which have directed attention to a subject little likely to present itself in England—the subject of martial law. Perhaps, from the very circumstance that it has not arisen here for ages, it is hardly understood, and certainly there are errors in our recent text-books about it.

It is a natural notion in the minds of most men, even of lawyers, that the ordinary law of the land is its only law, and that what is not in accordance with it must be contrary to law and illegal, yet the very phrase “common law” might be deemed to imply that it is the law for common times and times of peace, when it can be carried out and enforced; not for extraordinary times and times of war, when the ordinary authorities are unable to enforce it. And in every age of the history of our law it has been recognised that in such times the Crown has authority to proclaim martial or military law, by virtue of its prerogative to declare a state of war; and that then the ordinary law of the realm is for the time suspended. As this is recognised by the common law, it is as much part of the law of the realm as the common law itself. Nor is this the only instance in which our common law recognises a procedure different from its own. Thus it was long ago laid down:—“Sont deux powers et process; s. potencia ordinata, et absoluta: ordinata est come ley positive, come certain ordre; sed lex nature non habet certum ordinem, sed per quemquemque modum veritas scire poteret; et ideo dicitur processus absolutus; et a lege nature requiritur que les parties sont presents (ou que ils sont absente per contumacy); et examinatio veritatis.” (Year Book, 9 Edw. 4, c. 15). So, in Bracton (temp. Hen. 2), it is laid down “that all that is necessary to justice is reasonable services and diligent examination of the truth.” (De Legibus, lib. iii). And a long series of authorities attest, that in numerous classes of cases, where the common-law procedure does not apply, all that the common law (which controls all inferior jurisdictions) requires is, that the rules of natural justice should be observed, which require that the party accused should be heard, and that there shall be a fair and diligent examination of the truth. (Vide Bagg's case, 11 Co. 93; Rex v. Chalk, 1 Ld. Raym. 225; Reg. v. Dyer, 6 Mod. 41; Rex v. Gregg, 8 Mod. 3; The Chancellor of Cambridge University, 2 Ld. Raym. 1334). This is the law as regards all inferior jurisdictions not bound by the rules of the common law, and one of them is the law military, which applies where a state of law has been proclaimed by the Crown or its Viceroy. For the law military or martial law is no more nor less than the application of the rules of natural justice to a state of war lawfully proclaimed and declared; that is, it is a law not bound by any formal rules, but only by the great and fundamental rules of natural justice. It is the undoubted prerogative of the Crown to declare a state of war, and our common law of treason, of which one of the overt acts is levying of war against the Crown, acknowledges that there may be a state of war between subjects and their Sovereigns; which is the case wherever there is an armed insurrection or rebellion, as distinct from mere personal injury or private robbery. Nothing can be more clear, than if a body of subjects assemble in arms, with a design, by their combined force, and by means of felonious violence and outrage, to upset and destroy lawful rule and the existing authorities of the State, it is a “levying of war” against the Crown; and if it be with such a force that the ordinary authorities of the country are not able to cope with it, the Crown may declare a state of war, and, as its consequence, proclaim martial law, until the rebellion is suppressed, and the ordinary power of the law restored in peace. Happily, for ages we have not known any instance of martial law proclaimed (the last case for it being that of the rebellion of 1745), and though there have been several instances even in our own times, when it was on the very eve of being required, yet happily it has not been actually required, and the ordinary authorities, aided by the military, have been enabled to preserve the peace. But in ancient times, before the authority of the law was so well established, the Sovereign often had to resort to arms in order to reduce to obedience proud and powerful subjects, who resisted the law and levied war against him, and who were dealt with summarily by martial law. Contemporary history contains records of such cases occurring in the age of the Great Charters, and it is curious, that although the first Charter had a clause—evidently drawn rather in the interest of the barons—directed to repress or restrict this stern but necessary prerogative of the Crown, the very clause drawn with that view, is drawn in terms which involve an implied recognition of the existence of the power in time of war; and all subsequent statutes so recognise it, and denounce and prohibit it only in times of peace.

One of the main articles of the Great Charter is—“Nullus liber homo capratur vel imprisonetur; aut aliquo modo destratur, nec super eum ibimus nec super eum mittemus, nisi per legale iudicium parium suorum, vel per legem terræ.” The latter words of the clause clearly allude to some law by which men might lose their lives without trial by jury; and this is further shewn by the only sensible interpretation to be put upon the previous words, “Nec super eum ibimus,” &c., which have, indeed, perplexed legal antiquarians, but only from a want of attention to contemporary history, which makes the true sense clear and obvious enough; for we find, from the early English Chronicles, that about the time of the Charters, the King had constantly to levy war against proud and refractory barons, like Faulk, for instance, who seized and put to death some of the King's judges, and then fortified himself in a castle against the royal authority

(Roger de Wendover, 111, 347, 349); and the King had actually to levy a little army to dislodge him and liberate his judges; and, in the exercise of the rights of martial law, he summarily hanged those who were thus taken in arms against him. It is implied in the very clause in Magna Charta, which the barons put in to prevent the ordinary exercise of such authority, that it might be lawfully exercised in case of actual insurrection or rebellion, and the levying of war against the Sovereign, which would amount to high treason, and could always lawfully be resisted by force of arms; and this not only under the personal order or direction of the Sovereign, but by his officers; as, for instance, the sheriff, who could always call out the whole power of the county to resist rebellion, and put it down by force of arms. But the exercise of martial or military law was always limited to time of war, or rebellion or armed insurrection, which amounted to levying of war against the Sovereign in the eye of the law. Thus it was laid down:—"If a lieutenant or other person have a commission of martial authority in time of peace, and hang or otherwise execute any man by colour of martial law, this is murder, for it is against Magna Charta." (8 Inst. 52). There can be no doubt, that all through our history, up to the era of the Revolution, the Crown had issued commissions of martial law in times of rebellion and insurrection, and our constitutional historians or writers have not shewn that these were illegal. Under the Tudors, indeed, it became not unusual to issue such commissions in periods of peace, merely to repress such bands of robbers or marauders which, as the result of disturbed times, often press upon a country, but are without that purpose or design to upset or destroy the established rule or order of things which is necessary to constitute the crimes of rebellion or treason, or cause a state of war. Under Elizabeth, especially, these commissions, issued in time of peace, became exceedingly arbitrary. (Vide 4 Hume's Hist. Eng. 429; 5 Hume's Hist. Eng. 456). Still, Lord Bacon laid it down, that those who caused rebellion were liable to be put down by martial law. (Ib.) And though it has been imagined that the Petition of Right abolished the power of the Crown to establish martial law in periods of rebellion, this is an entire error. The Petition of Right recited, as one of the grievances it proposed to repress, "that of late divers commissions had been issued by which persons had been appointed commissioners, with power and authority to proceed within the land according to the justice of martial law, against such soldiers and marines, or other dissolve persons joining with them, as should commit any murder, robbery, felony, mutiny, or other outrage or misdemeanour, and by such summary course and order as is agreeable to martial law, and exercised in armies in time of war, to proceed to the trial and condemnation of such offenders, and cause them to be executed and put to death, according to the law martial." Now, this plainly implies—first, that there is such a thing as martial law; next, that in time of war it is recognised by the law of the realm; and, thirdly, that it allows of summary trial and execution. And the grievance alleged is, that commissions of martial law were issued in time of peace against offences cognisable at common law. Constitutional authorities and statutes, subsequent to the Revolution, recognise the doctrine, that martial law can be proclaimed and exercised in periods of rebellion, and that this is one of the prerogatives of the Crown, arising from its undoubted prerogative to proclaim a state of war, and provide for it as a natural necessity or emergency requiring the exercise of an absolute and arbitrary authority. "Martial law is built upon no settled principles, but is entirely arbitrary in its discretion, and is, in truth, no law, but something indulged rather than allowed as a temporary excrecence arising out of the distemper of the State, and not any part of the permanent law of the kingdom, but for necessary order and discipline, as the only thing which can give it; and, therefore, it ought not to be permitted in time of peace, when the King's Courts are open for all persons to secure justice according to the law of the land." (Hale's Hist. Com. Law, 34; 1 Bl. Com. 413). These principles have been in modern times, indeed, distinctly laid down even in our statutes, and the decisions in our courts of common law. The Mutiny Act has, for the last century and a half annually recited the proposition affirmed in Magna Charta and the Petition of Right, "that no man can be forejudged of life or limb in time of peace by martial law, or in any other manner than by the judgment of his peers, according to the long-established laws of the realm;" thus affirming the construction of those Great Charters which has been above elucidated, and recognising, by plain implication, that in time of peace martial law may be acted upon. So, the Riot Acts by implication affirm the same doctrine, for all of them (3 & 4 Edw. 6, c. 5; 1 Ann. stat. 2, c. 12; 1 Eliz. c. 16; 1 Geo. 1, stat. 2, c. 5; 7 Will. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 91) are in aid of the law already existing, and carry it further, by providing, that in certain specified circumstances, in which it might be doubtful in time of peace whether a mere riotous assemblage could be regarded as rebellious, or as raising a state of war which would justify martial law, the persons thus assembled shall be rendered liable to be treated as felons, and thereupon to be dispersed by military force, or by force of arms in a summary manner, and, if necessary, shot, cut down, or otherwise slain. It is to be observed, that the Riot Act, which applies to a mere unlawful assembly of twelve or more refusing to disperse, is not required where there is a riotous and rebellious mob already engaged in the perpetration of acts of violence and outrage, which are overt acts of rebellion. In such cases, as was established in the Lord George Gordon riots, the military may act without magisterial authority in the suppression of the rebellion; but this is to be distinguished from, though it implies, the power of the Crown to proclaim martial law—i. e. a state of war; for that has two effects—it conveys the authority and the orders of the Crown to the military, so to act as in a state of war; and it also conveys or implies the authority in the military, and the Crown, by virtue of its supreme command over the military, to determine, at all events primarily, when the necessity for martial law has ceased, and to exercise it after acts of actual outrage have ceased. In the Lord George Gordon riots the Attorney-General declared that the military could act without any authority in the repression of actual outrage while it was going on; but he did not say that, without the authority of the Crown, conveyed by proclamation of martial law, they could maintain the exercise of military law over the scene or area of the insurrection after the actual perpetration of acts of violence had ceased, however much measures of military repression might, for a short time, be required to restore order. And the sanction of the Crown, which was conveyed in that case, probably amounted virtually to the establishment of martial law, and would have been exemplified, had it been required, in the more recent case of the Chartist riots, 1848. It is true, that in the latter case the resort to force was only partially and locally required; but it was notorious that vast preparations had been made, and a strong army, with powerful parks of artillery, were provided for the purpose, if necessary, of exercising martial law; and if the insurrection had once begun, and had assumed, as it probably would have done, the aspect of a deliberate, extensive, and combined insurrection, there can be no doubt that it would have amounted to a levying of war, which would have justified the proclamation and exercise of martial (i. e. military) law until it was entirely and thoroughly suppressed, and peace, and quiet, and confidence perfectly restored.

There is, however, it is obvious, a distinction between what any subject, soldier, or civilian may do, of his own mere motion, to put down actual felonious outrage while it is going on; and what he may do under the Riot Act, by virtue of magisterial authority, against a mere riotous assembly, before any acts of felonious violence; and what he may do by the authority of the Crown, under martial law, for the complete repression of rebellion, for such period as may be necessary after actual violence has ceased. The first, and perhaps the third, were exemplified in the Lord George Gordon riots. The second was exemplified in what is called the Manchester massacre, where the mob were unarmed; and there were no acts of felonious violence. The third was exemplified, or ought to have been, in the case of the Bristol riots, the test of its necessity being the power of the police or civil force to exercise its functions with safety and efficiency; unaided by the military, which would not be until some time after actual insurrection was suppressed. The case of the Bristol riots affords an instance of what was undoubtedly a "levying of war," which would have justified martial law; and it will be borne in mind, that the officer in command was very severely censured for not resorting to it, and not suppressing the insurrection summarily, by the use of military force, without magisterial authority, and without waiting even for the proclamation of martial law, which of course implies that the Crown could have proclaimed martial law.

The difference between the exercise of military force before and after the proclamation of martial law is clear. In the former case, it is strictly limited to the prevention of actual violence—the shooting or striking down of rioters or rebels in the very act of felonious violence. In the other case, a state of war having been proclaimed by the Crown in the exercise of its prerogative, the laws of war apply; and these extend, it is well known, to far greater lengths than the mere repression of violence. In the one case, the rebel or the rioter may be shot in the very act of shooting a man or firing a house; in the other, he may be seized with musket shot, or any other clear signs of guilt, and summarily tried and shot, even though far from the scene of actual violence, or even in his own house. The reason is obvious. Assuming a state of war, the military commander alone is judge of its exigencies; and the peril and pressure of a superior or overwhelming force may be such as to justify, or even require, the most stringent, stern, and summary measures of repression. Such measures could never be allowed to any subjects, soldiers, or others, except in a state of war; and of course no subject, unless representing the Crown, and clothed with the royal authority, could be trusted to proclaim a state of war. Assuming, however, a state of war, the laws of war apply, and the first and fundamental of those laws is, that the superior military authority, that is, in this country the Sovereign, or abroad the governor, is the sole judge of the necessity for the existence or continuance of a state of war, or the measures necessary for its repression and termination. It is a mere matter of arbitrary discretion, provided only that a state of war is proclaimed by the acting lawful authority the Crown or its representative. Of course the Crown, by its ministers, or in the person of its governor, would be responsible for the exercise of this terrible authority, but would be responsible only to the Crown and to Parliament for excess or error, unless (what is, of course, unlikely to occur) the whole thing was colourable and concocted; in which case the actors would be guilty of murder. But unless this could be set up, then, for any mere error or excess, the minister, the military commander, or the governor, would be responsible only to the Crown and to Parliament. The Crown might censure or dismiss. Parliament might address the Crown for censure or dismissal. But as in the case of private persons, a mere error or excess does not vitiate an act for which there is lawful authority, unless the excess is so gross as to make the whole act unlawful ab initio; so, a multo fortiori, in cases of public officers acting bona fide in cases of great public peril and emergency, mere error or excess, unless so gross as to shew an utter absence of any real honest ground for the measures taken, would probably not involve any legal liability, and assuredly would not prevent a bill of indemnity. As the very object of proclaiming martial law is to allow of such measures of repression as may be required after overt acts of outrage have ceased, it would be worse than idle to restrict those measures within the rigid bound, of a manifest necessity. There is a scope for the exercise of martial law beyond manifest necessity, and so far as may be reasonable, under all the circumstances; that is, so far as might fairly and naturally be deemed reasonable by a military commander under such circumstances—not what lawyers, calmly judging, might deem reasonable. In other words, the measures taken must be such as that no person of any sense could, even under the circumstances which existed, have honestly or reasonably have supposed reasonable; for to tell a military man, who is exercising a power avowedly and necessarily one of arbitrary discretion, that he is to exercise it at the peril of legal liability, not only for gross and reckless severities, but for honest errors of judgment, would be, it is manifest, to paralyse the arm of the executive in moments of the utmost possible public peril; and in our own time we have seen the disastrous results of such a paralysis of military force at times of insurrection, such as occurred at Bristol and Birmingham. When once martial law has been proclaimed, it is of its very nature and essence, that, while it lasts, the military may take any measures they honestly deem necessary for the perfect repression of rebellion, and the restoration of order.

In entire accordance with this view are the judicial decisions of our own times.

Thus, in the leading case on the subject of martial law, it was laid down that even the delinquencies of soldiers, where they are ordinary offences against the civil peace, are tried by the common-law courts (Grant v. Gould (2 H. Bl. 101)); and though it is then said also that martial law does not exist in England, it is obvious, from the case and the context, that this was meant of ordinary times, not times of war, when martial law is proclaimed. It is said, "Where martial law is established, it is of a totally different nature from that which is inaccurately called martial law merely because the decision is by a court martial, but which bears no affinity to that which was formerly attempted to be exercised in this kingdom, which was contrary to the constitution, and which has been for a century wholly exploded." (Ib.) Now, it was, as we have seen, martial law in time of peace, which was so exploded as unconstitutional; and this is clear from what follows:—"It extends to a great variety of cases not relating to the discipline of the army—as plots against the Sovereign, intelligence to the enemy, and the like—are, all considered as cases within the cognisance of military authority," and may, therefore, be summarily tried, and punished even with death. So that it is recognised, that by martial law, when it is established, acts other than those of actual violence may be summarily and capitally punished, even such acts as giving intelligence to the enemy. And although it is said that such martial law has no existence in England, it is obvious that this means no ordinary existence; and this must be the meaning of the passage in Stephen's Blackstone on the subject (vol. 2, p. 602, in notes), "Though our Sovereigns formerly exercised the right of proclaiming martial law within the kingdom, that prerogative seems to be now denied them by the Petition of Right." This must mean in time of peace, for the Petition of Right and the Mutiny Act so limit it; and therefore it all turns upon this—whether there was what might reasonably be deemed a state of war; as to which there are numerous authorities to shew that acts of force by an armed body of men, combined against the constituted authorities, and especially those representing the Crown, amount to levying of war; and illustrations have already been given, arising in our own times, of cases of this kind of domestic war or rebellion which would justify martial law.

Applying this doctrine to the case of Jamaica, we find that there was an armed and combined force, directed specifically and primarily against the constituted authorities, and especially against the custos of the county or parish (who answers well enough to our lord lieutenant of a county), and, moreover, acts of murder by this armed and combined force against those civilians and volunteers, who were lawfully assembled, under lawful authority, in a public capacity, and on a public occasion, pertaining to the government of the colony; and, further, we find other acts of felonious violence perpetrated by the same or a similar mob, at places considerably distant from the scene of the first outbreak; and we find that, under the general belief and impression of a wide-spread conspiracy to destroy the English inhabitants and the English rule, the governor, who is commander-in-chief, proclaimed martial law in the district, and continued measures of severe repression several days after the actual violence had ceased, ending with the summary trial and execution of a person taken in another district, but alleged to have been closely connected with the felonious and rebellious outrages committed in the district where he was so tried and executed. Now, as to this removal from the district where he was taken, to that where crime were committed, to which, it was alleged, he was privy, it comes to nothing (assuming such privy); for it is a maxim in law that "crime is local" (Rafael v. Verelot, 2 W. Bl. 983, 1055, 1063), and must be tried where it is committed, and by the law which there prevails. (Per Heath, J., Mure v. Kay, 4 Taunt. 43). Indeed, one main reason why the trial of crime is local is, that it may thus be tried by the law which there prevails; and thus if a man, by letter or message, in one county, counsels or incites to murder in another, he not only may, but must, be tried in the county where the murder is perpetrated (if he is tried for the murder, as he may be if he is a party to it, which he may well be though at a distance), although if he is tried for a conspiracy, he may be tried either where the conspiracy was entered into, or where the overt acts were committed. The case, therefore, would come, in substance, to this—whether there was any reasonable ground for proclaiming martial law in the district where he was tried, and for holding him to be connected with, and privy to, the murders there committed? As to the first, the mere belief in the existence of a wide-spread conspiracy for wholesale extermination of the whites, would justify the proclamation, if the belief was such as might reasonably be entertained; and the fact that such a belief was generally entertained, and affirmed by the legislative authority, would of itself be prima facie evidence of its reasonableness. And the fact of felonious outrages by an armed and combined mob of a particular class and colour, with evidence of sympathy in the majority of persons of that class and colour, constituting a tremendous and overwhelming majority of the population, would likewise be prima facie proof of a necessity for proclaiming martial law. That being so, then any acts done in the usual and ordinary exercise of martial law, within a short and not unreasonable time after acts of outrage had ceased, would be justified; and, at all events, any error or excess, unless grossly and obviously unreasonable, would only be censurable by Parliament or the Crown. The argument here submitted seems strongly confirmed by the judgment of Lord Mansfield in the great case of Moslyn v. Fabrigas (Cowp. 170), where it was held, that an action of trespass (and, by parity of reasoning, an indictment) would lie against one who had been governor of a colony for acts committed there in his character as governor. It is curious, that one of the cases cited is that of a Governor of Jamaica, who was held liable, here, for an illegal and unjustifiable assault and false imprisonment, there (Way v. Yelby, 6 Mod. 195) Lord Mansfield lays down, that the action lies here for the very reason that it would not lie there; at all events, during the defendant's government. But he says, "I can conceive cases in time of war, in which a governor would be justified, though he acted very arbitrarily, in which he could not be justified in time of peace. Suppose, during a siege or invasion, upon a general suspicion, he should take up people as spies, upon proper circumstances, laid before the Court, it would be very fit to see whether he had acted as the governor of a colony ought, according to the circumstances of the case." Then, by the law of England, as has been seen, a rebellion is a case of war as much as an invasion. And the Mutiny Acts themselves recognise that, as is notorious, spies are, by the law military, liable to death. And a very similar illustration is given by the Court in the case of Grant v. Gould (2 H. Bl. 101), as to giving intelligence to the enemy. It seems clear, from these authorities, that supposing martial law proclaimed honestly, and in the belief of its necessity, by the governor of a colony, persons reasonably proved guilty of offences capitally punishable by martial law (among which are holding lawful correspondence with rebels), might be lawfully executed, supposing that, according to martial law, i.e. natural justice, they had a fair and honest trial.

We need hardly tell our legal readers, that by the common law of England, abundantly recognised by statute (vide 33 Hen. 8, c. 23), not only may persons who have committed crimes be brought to the place where they committed them for trial, but they must be; and further, that the illegality of an arrest cannot affect the legality of the trial; so that, even if they are illegally arrested in a distant place, they may nevertheless legally be tried where they committed the crime, and even although the offence were committed abroad, if on an English subject. (Re v. Azoparde, 1 Car. & M. 205). A British subject arrested abroad under a warrant upon an indictment for a misdemeanour, brought in custody to England, and there committed to prison, is not entitled to be discharged. (Per Lord Tenterden, C. J., and Parke, J.; dubitante, Littledale, J., Ex parte Scott, 4 Mau. & R. 361; 9 B. & Cr. 446). Where the crew of a Dutch ship had mastered the vessel and run away with her, and brought her into Deal, it was held that they might be seized and sent back to Holland. (Mure v. Kay, 4 Taunt. 43). So, again, we need not say to any lawyer that a man may even at common law be guilty of an offence in a place where he has not actually been, by bodily presence. This is often exemplified in cases of libel or conspiracy, especially such as are seditious in their character. A man may be indicted either where he writes the libel and sends it for publication, or where it is published by his direction—either where he forms the seditious or treasonable conspiracy, or where the overt acts are committed. This was exemplified, as regarded seditious libel, in the case of Sir F. Burdett, where, indeed, it was at first doubted whether a libel be triable in any county but that where the publication took place. (Reg. v. Burdett, Bart., 3 B. & Al. 717; 4 B. & Al. 95). But it is now held, that where a defendant writes and composes a libel in one county, with an intent to publish, and afterwards publishes it in another, he may be indicted in either. (Ib.) And thus, where the letter was inclosed in an envelope, and received in the county of M. open, accompanied with written directions for publication, as expressed in the envelope, it was not doubted that this was evidence to go to a jury of a publication in M. So that Gordon could by the common law have been indicted in St. Thomas's for a seditious libel published there.

So, where the publisher of a public register received seditious letters, the letters themselves containing expressions of the writer indicative of his having sent them to the publisher of the register, for the purpose of publication, the whole is evidence sufficient for the jury to find a publication by the procurement of the defendant in the county where the letters were so received. (Reg. v. Johnson, 7 East, 65; 3 Smith, 94). So it was held, that an information at common law for a conspiracy for planning and fabricating false vouchers to cheat the Crown (which planning and fabrication were done upon the high seas), is well triable in England, upon proof there of the receipt of the false vouchers transmitted thither by one of the conspirators through the medium of the post, and the application there of a third person for payment, which he there received. (Reg. v. Brisac, and Same v. Scott, 4 East, 164). So that it is abundantly clear that Gordon could have been indicted at the common law in a district where any seditious letters of his were received; or where acts done, if any, in pursuance of any seditious conspiracy to which he was a party, were committed. And if the conspiracy were to counsel murder, or the letters were such as incited to murder, he could be indicted where the murders were committed.

It is hardly necessary to cite authorities to shew that even a mere riotous assembly may be dispersed with force. Thus, in our times, it has been laid down by a great judge, that it is not only lawful for magistrates to disperse an unlawful assembly, even when no riot has occurred, but if they do not do so, and are guilty of criminal negligence in not putting down an unlawful assembly, they are liable to be prosecuted for a breach of their duty. (Reg. v. Neale, 9 Car. & P. 431—Littledale, J.) And further, that the mode of dispersing an unlawful assembly may be very different according to the circumstances attending it in each particular case; and an unlawful assembly may be so far verging towards a riot, that it may be the bounden duty of the magistrates to take immediate steps to disperse the assembly; and there may be cases where the magistrates will be bound to use force to disperse an unlawful assembly. (Ib.) And it has been laid down that any assembly of persons, attended with circumstances calculated to excite alarm, is an unlawful assembly. (Ib.) So, it was held, that the stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, s. 8, not having given any definition of what shall be a riot within the meaning of that enactment, the common-law definition of a riot must be resorted to; and in such a case if any one of her Majesty's subjects be terrified, this is a cause of terror and alarm to substantiate that part of the charge. (Reg. v. Langford, 1 Car. & M. 602—Patteson, J., and held right by all the judges).

It is equally clear, that a person may be guilty of complicity in a riot, whether felonious or not, although he was not actually present; and although a riot is not necessarily felonious, and a man may be guilty of inciting to a riot, who is not necessarily guilty of felonious acts of violence, it is certainly a matter of evidence. Thus, if persons are assembled to the number of three or more, and speeches are made to those persons to excite and inflame them, with a view to incite them to acts of violence, and if that same meeting is so connected, in point of circumstances, with a subsequent riot, that you cannot reasonably sever the latter from the excitement that was used, those who excited are guilty of the riot, although they are not present when it occurs. (Reg. v. Sharpe, 3 Cox's C. C. 288; 12 L. T. 537—Wilde, J.) So, if a house be demolished by rioters by means of fire, one of the rioters who is present while the fire is burning may be convicted for the felonious demolition, under stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, s. 8, although he is not proved to have been present when the house was originally set on fire. (Reg. v. Simpson, 1 Car. & M. 669—Tindal, C. J.) So, if in a case of feloniously demolishing a house by rioters, it appears that some of the prisoners set fire to the house itself, and that others did other acts on the outside of the house, it will be for the jury to say, whether the latter were not encouraging and taking part in a general design of destroying the house and furniture; and if so, the jury ought to convict them. (Reg. v. Harris, 1 Car. & M. 661—Tindal, C. J., Parke and Rolfe, JJ.) So, it is well known, that even according to the latest and most lenient version of the law of constructive homicide, a man may be guilty of a murder, although he was not actually and personally a party to it. Thus, where persons combine to stand by one another in a breach of the peace, with a general resolution to resist all opposers, and in the execution of their design a murder is committed, all of the company are equally principals in the murder, though at the time of the fact some of them were at such a distance as to be out of view. (Reg. v. Howell, 9 Car. & P. 437—Littledale, J.) Thus, Gordon might have been guilty of murder at St. Thomas's, even although he was all the while at Kingston. If so, he would have been, even by the common law, triable at St. Thomas's, and by the law which there prevailed, which was martial law; and therefore, if there was any ground for martial law, and his trial was (as we may presume it was) fair, it was perfectly legal. And so of all other acts done honestly under military orders.

REGULA GENERALIS.

COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION.

THE following Order of Court has just been issued by the Lord Chancellor:—

"I, the Right Honourable Robert Monsey Baron Cranworth, Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain, do hereby, in pursuance and execution of the powers given by the stat. 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99, order that any suit or matter transferred from any County Court to the Court of Chancery, under the provisions of sect. 9 of the said statute, shall proceed in the Court of the Honourable the Vice-Chancellor Sir Richard Torin Kindersley.

"Dated the 23rd day of December, 1865.

"CRANWORTH, C."

Court Papers.

NISI PRIUS SITTINGS, IN AND AFTER
HILARY TERM, 1866.

Court of Queen's Bench.

In Term.

MIDDLESEX.

1st sitting, Monday, Jan. 15
2nd sitting, Friday 19
3rd sitting, Wednesday .. 24

LONDON.

There will not be any sittings
during term in London.

After Term.

Thursday Feb. 1 | Wednesday Feb. 14

The Court will sit at ten o'clock every day.

The causes in the list for each of the above sitting days in term, if not disposed of on those days, will be tried by adjournment on the days following each of such sitting days.

Court of Common Pleas.

In Term.

MIDDLESEX.

Friday Jan. 12
Friday 19
Friday 26

LONDON.

The Court will not sit in London during term.

After Term.

Thursday Feb. 1 | Tuesday Feb. 13

The Court will sit during and after term at ten o'clock.

Exchequer of Pleas.

In Term.

MIDDLESEX.

1st sitting, Monday, Jan. 15
2nd sitting, Monday 22
3rd sitting, Monday 29

LONDON.

The Court will not sit in London during term.

After Term.

Thursday Feb. 1 | Monday Feb. 12

The Court will sit during and after term at ten o'clock.

The Court will sit in Middlesex, in term, by adjournment from day to day until the causes entered for the respective Middlesex sittings are disposed of.

COMMON-LAW CAUSE LISTS, HILARY TERM,
1866.

Court of Queen's Bench.

NEW TRIALS.

FOR JUDGMENT.

Leeds—Mayne v. Binns

FOR ARGUMENT.

Moved Easter Term, 1864.

Ches.—Hughes v. Birkenhead Improvement Commissioners (First action, to be argued with D. To stand over till decision in a similar point in court of error)

— Same v. Same (Second action, Ditto)

— Davies v. Same (Ditto)

Moved Mich. Term, 1864.

Durham—Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England v. Peart

Moved Easter Term, 1865.

Lancaster—Martin v. Smalley & an. (Stands for arrangement)

Tried during Term.

Midd.—Edwards v. Parker & ora.

— Dordoy v. Johnson & an.

Moved Trin. Term, 1865.

Derby—Cartwright & ora. v. Forman

Midd.—Watts & ora. v. Lewis
— Sullivan v. Hayward

Tried during Term.

Midd.—Double v. Sharp
— Hazlitt v. Templeman

Moved Mich. Term, 1865.

Midd.—Springett v. Balls
— Feltham v. England
Lond.—London, Brighton, & South-coast Railway Co. v. Williams

— Sandeman v. Scurr
— Cleveland Iron Co. (Limited) v. Stephenson (To stand over until security for costs be given)

— Morgan v. Chetwynd

— Hibbs v. Ross

— Double v. Reynell

Lond.—Strong v. Berry

— Nash v. Hay

Surrey—Castrique v. Fraise

— County General Conservators Co. (Limited) v. Mare

— Chambers v. Reid

— Jeffs v. Day

Derby—Brough v. Lord

Scarsdale

Carmarthen—Williams & ora.

v. Evans

Cambridge—Kemp v. Waddingham & an.

Newcastle—Henderson & ora.

v. Whitfield

Lancaster—Bainbridge v.

Dobson

Manchester—Micklenberg v.

Gloyer

Kelly v. Sherlock

Liverpool—Bates v. Hewitt

— Lunt v. London & North-western Railway Co.

SPECIAL PAPER.

Those marked thus * are Special Cases, and thus † De-murrers.

FOR ARGUMENT.

† Hughes v. Birkenhead Improvement Commissioners (New Trial to be argued with this D., stands over)

† Same v. Same (Ditto)

† Dayles v. Same (Ditto)

* Bryant v. Foot

† Jolwald v. Continental Bank Corporation (Limited) (To stand over till issues in fact tried, &c.)

† Le Strange v. Rowe (Part heard, stands over till issues in fact are tried)

† Tydeman v. Carne (Stands over over till probate taken out)

† Hetherington v. Hicks (St. over till issues in fact are tried)

† Bewley v. Rugg (Stands over for arrangement)

† Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England v. Peart

† Keyes & ora. v. Edwards & ora. (Sp. C. to be stated)

* Piper v. Reg. (Pet. of right)

* Booth v. Parker

* Foster v. Dodd

* Taylor v. Shafto

† Donald v. Suckling

* Greenwood v. Scragg

† Wensum Valley Railway Co. v. Great Eastern Railway Co.

* Mee v. Parren & an.

† Bankart & an. v. Peckham

† Hewetson & an. v. Todd

* Gillespie v. Newton & an.

* Franklin v. Llantrissant and Taff Vale Junction Railway Co.

† European Central Railway Co. (Limited) v. Kenby

† Windus v. Crook

* Swinford v. Keble

* Clapp & an. v. Great Western Railway Co.

† Jeffs v. Day

† Rayner v. Ritson

* Nicholson v. Guardians, &c.

of Bradford Union

* Somes & ora. v. Jenkins

† Todd & ora. v. Busco, Bart.

† Drakford v. Piercy

* Smith v. Jenkins

* Lawrence v. Hitch

† Spicer v. Hodges

† Duffett & ora. v. Hutchings

† London, Hamburg, &c. Bank (Limited) v. Dumas.

ENLARGED RULES.

First Day.

Hemming v. Parker

In re Walker

Condon v. Leather

In re Goatley

Reg. v. Travers Twiss, Judge of Consistory Court

Reg. v. Toomer

Reg. v. London, Chatham, and Dover Railway Co.

Reg. v. Middle Level Commissioners

Reg. v. Ell

Reg. v. Members of Hearts of Oak Benefit Society

Reg. v. St. Katharine Docks Co.

Reg. v. Davis

Reg. v. Metropolitan Railway Co.

Reg. v. Recorder of London

Reg. v. Metropolitan District Railway Co.

INDEX OF PRINCIPAL MATTERS

IN

VOLUME XI.—NEW SERIES.

- ACTUAL SEIZIN. Case of Hoell, App., Blain, Resp., 27
- ADVERSE POSSESSION.—See LIMITATIONS.
- ALHAMBRA, THE. Case of Mr. Strange; Mr. Tyrwhitt's judgment, 9
- ALLISON v. MONKWEARMOUTH. Case of, 263
- ANCIENT LIGHTS. Effect of alterations and enlargements, 251, 471
- ANIMAL. Liability of owner for injury by, 335, 435
- APPEALS from magistrates. Effect of, in unsettling the law, 263
- APPOINTMENT by will. On the 10th section of the Wills Act, and the decisions thereon, 107
- APPOINTMENTS AND PROMOTIONS.—
Montague E. Smith to be a Justice of the Court of Common Pleas, 51
C. M. Smith to be Master of the Court of Queen's Bench, 115
J. P. De Gex to be Queen's Counsel, 123
G. Jessell to be Queen's Counsel, ib.
E. F. Smith, to be Queen's Counsel, ib.
Joshua Williams to be Queen's Counsel, ib.
W. H. Doyle to be Chief Justice of the Bahamas, 360
— Hanson to the Stamp Office, ib.
C. P. Phillips to be Revising Barrister for the City of London, ib.
J. H. Watley to be Queen's Counsel for the Island of Nevis, ib.
G. L. Russell to be Judge of the Bloomsbury County Court of Middlesex, 368
Josiah W. Smith, Q. C., to be Judge of the County Court, No. 27, 404
W. M. Hindmarch, Q. C., to be Recorder for the City of York, ib.
R. Lush, Q. C., to be one of the Judges of the Court of Queen's Bench, 428
- ARBITRATION. As to the expediency of creating courts of, 40
what is a submission to reference in writing within the Common-law Procedure Act, 1854, 329
- ARCHES, COURT OF. Sittings, 21
- ASSOCIATION OF CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE OF THE UNITED KINGDOM, on bankruptcy reform and partnership law amendment, 89
- ATTORNEY-GENERAL v. GARDNER. Case of, 240
- ATTORNEY-GENERAL v. YELVERTON. Case of, ib.
- BAILY, Mr., and Mr. Homersham Cox. Correspondence between, relating to the late election of a reader on constitutional law and legal history, 417
remarks thereon, 438
- BAKER, T. Laws relating to the Public Health, reviewed, 109
- BANKS. Law in Scotland on the liability of directors for false report, 10
- BANKRUPTCY. Fraudulent preference; case of Bills v. Smith, 87
on the arrangement clauses in the act of 1861, 231
as to including secured creditors in computation of majority, 280 on deeds of arrangement with respect to joint and separate creditors, 319 receiving unregistered deed of assignment in evidence, 281 return of deeds of arrangement registered under the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, 330
- BANKRUPTCY LAW. On the amendment of, 39
Lord Westbury's letter to Mr. Paget on, 7
Mr. Moffat on, 197
resolution of the Association of Chambers of Commerce of the United Kingdom on the amendment of the law of, 89
the report of the select committee appointed to inquire into the working of the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, 128 observations on the report, 127
- BANKRUPTCY, OFFICIAL ASSIGNEES IN. Judgment of Mr. Commissioner Sanders on the case of Mr. Harris, official assignee of Birmingham Court, 21
"Westbury's Walk" (from the Standard), 34
- BAR. On calling clergymen to the bar; case of Mr. Lascelles, 51
- BAR. Calls to the:—
Easter Term, 1865, 171
Trinity Term, 1865, 243
Michaelmas Term, 1865, 438
- BARRY, W. M. Treatise on the Practice of Conveyancing, reviewed, 306
- BEAVAN, Mr. His postscript on law reporting, 480
- BENEFIT SOCIETIES. Suggestion for the formation of, with table, by J. Tidd Pratt, 483, 499
- BEQUEST. On the effect of words of specific description in residuary bequests, 449 for promotion of monastic profession; legality of, 33
- BERLIN. Offer of premium for essay on imprisonment for debt, by the Juridical Society of Berlin, 223
- BEST AND SMITH, MESSRS. Letters by, on law reporting, 465, 472
- BETTS v. MENZIES. Case of, 429
- BETTS v. NEILSON. Case of, 368
- BILLS IN PARLIAMENT to confer on the county courts a limited jurisdiction in equity, 83 to amend the law relating to attorneys and solicitors, 94 for the further amendment of the law of evidence and the practice in certain courts of justice, ib.
to amend the law of libel, and for more effectually securing the liberty of the press, ib.
juries in criminal cases, ib.
to facilitate the discharge of insolvent debtors in certain cases, ib.
partnership law amendment, 104 to abolish arrest on final process in England, and for the amendment of the law of bankruptcy in certain particulars, 119 to enable the benchers of the Inns of Court to appoint judicial committees in certain cases, and to give the necessary powers to such committees, ib.
the Land Debentures Bill, as amended in select committee, 122 to establish equitable councils of conciliation to adjust differences between masters and operatives, 196
- BILLS v. SMITH. Case of, 87
- BISHOP OF NATAL. Letter by John Westlake on the case of, 120
- BLADES v. HIGGS. Case of, 351, 471
- BOARD OF WORKS. Liability of local board for nuisance, 203
- BRIBERY AT ELECTIONS. Recent act, 359
- BROUGHAM, LADY. Obituary notice of, 23
- BROWN, W. Treatise on the Succession Duty Act reviewed, 240
- BUCKELL v. BLENKHORN. Case of, as to testamentary appointments, 107

BUSINESS. Right to sue for damage by hindering access to place of business, 139

BUSINESS IN THE COMMON-LAW COURTS, 316

CARRIERS. Effect of notices by railway company as carriers of goods and passengers, 479, 487

CASES AND CODES, 29, 30, 63, 160, 205, 305

CATOR v. BOARD OF WORKS FOR THE LEWISHAM DISTRICT. Case of, 203

CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE OF THE UNITED-KINGDOM, ASSOCIATION OF. On bankruptcy reform, and partnership law amendment, 89

CHANCERY. Statistics of the Suits, Fee Fund, 95

CHARGES ON LAND. Inexpediency of facilitating the creation of, in favour of different persons, 109

CHATTEL. As to the rule that there is no warranty of title to a personal chattel, 149 as to right of owner to retake by force, 351

CHEQUE. Validity of post-dated, 337

CHOLMONDELEY v. MINTON. Case of, 101

CHURCH. Letter on the Bishop of Natal's case, by John Westlake, 120

CLERGYMEN called to the bar, 51

CODES AND DIGESTS. Report of the commissioners appointed to prepare the codes of the State of New York, 160

remarks on the Report of the New York Commissioners, 205

case law and code law, 305

observations on the address of Sir James Wilde at York, 63

Mr. Hawkins on, 20

Mr. Reilly's paper on, 30

COLONIES. On the Colonial Laws Validity Act, 335

COMMISSIONERS TO TAKE ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF MARRIED WOMEN.

H. C. Maddock, Spring-gardens, 81

Pembroke, J. W. Phillips, Haverfordwest, 368

COMMISSIONERS TO ADMINISTER OATHS AT COMMON LAW:

London, George Corpe, 21

J. C. Pulling, 449

H. C. Maddock, Spring-gardens, 81

COMMON LAW. Comparative advantages of local law and of the statute law, 63

COMMON LAW, COURTS OF. Business in, 316

COMMON-LAW PROCEDURE ACT, 1854. As to interrogatories under, 167

COMPANY. Case in Scotland on liability of directors for false report, 10

COMPENSATION under acts giving powers to take land, &c. Damage to business, 139 case of Richter v. The Metropolitan Railway Company, 10

COMPOSITION DEEDS under the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, 331

as to reckoning secured creditors in the majority, under the arrangement clauses, 280 with reference to claims of joint and separate creditors, 319

return of deeds of arrangement registered under the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, 330

CONFESSION. The seal of. Case of Constance Kent, 287, 298

CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HISTORY. On the office of reader, 219

on the late election of a reader, 205

correspondence as to the late election, 417

remarks thereon, 488

CONTRACTS by infants. Necessaries, 3

CONVEYANCE. Where it operates under the Statute of Use, 27

CONVEYANCERS. The practice of, 320

COPYRIGHT. Return as to registration of, at Stationers' Hall, 32

CORRUPT PRACTICES PREVENTION ACT, 1860.

COUNCIL FOR LAW REPORTING. Members appointed, 69 proceeding of—See REPORTING.

COUNTY COURTS. On the present inefficiency of, 495 suggestions for abolishing, 496

Sir J. B. E. Wilmut on the extension of the jurisdiction of, 59 equitable jurisdiction; speech of Lord Westbury on introducing bill, 69 debate on, 92

on the bill for conferring equitable jurisdiction on, 83

equitable jurisdiction; review of Lord Westbury's bill, 77

Equitable Jurisdiction Bill; debate on, 197 equitable jurisdiction; on the amended bill for, 229

on the act for giving equitable jurisdiction to, 267

orders and forms in equity, 367, 385

order of the 23rd December, 1865, as to appeals in equity, from, 511

whether their equitable jurisdiction excludes that of the Court of Chancery, 407

COURT OF ARCHES. Sittings of, 21

COURT PAPERS:

equity sittings after Hilary Term, 1865, 40

equity sittings, Easter Term, 1865, 119

equity sittings, Trinity Term, 1865, 183

equity sittings after Trinity Term, 1865, 244

equity sittings, Michaelmas Term, 1865, 419

equity sittings after Michaelmas Term, 1865, 459

equity sittings, Hilary Term, 1866, 490

equity cause lists, Hilary Term, 1865, 7

equity cause lists after Hilary Term, 1865, 50

equity cause lists, Easter Term, 1865, 153

equity cause lists, Trinity Term, 1865, 207

equity cause lists after Trinity Term, 1865, 253

equity cause lists, Michaelmas Term, 1865, 430

equity cause lists after Michaelmas Term, 1865, 473

nisi prius sittings, Easter Term, 1865, 193

nisi prius sittings, Trinity Term, 1865, 195

nisi prius sittings, Michaelmas Term, 1865, 440

nisi prius sittings, Hilary Term, 1866, 512

common law cause lists, Hilary Term, 1865, 21

common law cause lists, Easter Term, 1865, 147, 171

common law cause lists, Trinity Term, 1865, 200, 223, 236

common law cause lists, Michaelmas Term, 1865, 420, 443

common law cause lists, Hilary Term, 1866, 512

spring circuits, 43

summer circuits, 266

COURTS. Business, &c. in the courts of common law, 316 on abolishing distinction of jurisdiction, 496

COURTS OF JUSTICE CONCENTRATION BILLS. Petition in favour of, 68, 89

address of the council for the promotion of social science on, 3

Lord Redesdale's protest, 104

COX, HOMERSHAM. Correspondence with Mr. Reilly and Lord Westbury as to the late election of a reader on constitutional law and legal history, 417

remarks thereon, 498

COX v. BURBIDGE. Case of, 466

CREDIT FONCIER AND MOBILIER OF ENGLAND, LIMITED. Remarks on, 423

CREDITORS. Deeds of arrangement under Bankruptcy Act, 1861, 231

as to including secured creditors in computation of majority, 280

return of deeds of arrangement registered under the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, 330 deeds of arrangement with respect to joint and separate creditors, 319

CRIMINAL LAW. On the judge's power to discharge the jury in capital cases, 399, 465

the case of Constance Kent and the plea of guilty, 303

on defects in the law relating to infanticide, 321

the provisions of the Indian Penal Code with respect to infanticide, 322

CRIMINAL LAW—(continued).

on the bill for regulating procedure before the justices out of quarter sessions, 47 on the act for amending the law of evidence and practice in criminal trials, 271 venue of trial, 510
remarks on the late trials in Jamaica, 507

CROMPTON, Mr. Justice. Obituary notice of, 448

DANIELL'S CHANCERY PRACTICE, by Field, Dunn, and Biddle, reviewed, 207

DAYS OF GRACE on promissory notes, 437

DEBENTURES ON LAND. On Messrs. Ayrton and Collins' bill for authorising, 93, 100 this bill is amended in select committee, 122

DEBTOR AND CREDITOR. As to deeds of arrangement with respect to joint and separate creditors, 319
on the arrangement clauses in the act of 1861; 331
as to reckoning secured creditors in the majority under the arrangement clause, 280 return as to deeds of arrangement registered under the Bankruptcy Act, 1861; 230

DEED. When it operates under the Statute of Uses, 27

DEEDS OF ARRANGEMENT under the Bankruptcy Act, 1861; 231, 280, 319, 336

DESCENT. Limitation to the heirs of the settlor, 322

DIGESTS AND CODES. Observations on the address of Sir James Wilde at York, 63, 65 report of the commissioners appointed to prepare the codes of the State of New York, 160
remarks on the report of the New York commissioners, 205

Mr. Hawkins on, 20

Mr. Reilly's paper on, 30

case law and code law, 305

DIRECTORS OF COMPANY. Case in Scotland, on liability of, for false report, 10

DIVORCE. On the amendment of the law and practice of, 69

DODD, P. W., and G. H. BROOKE'S Law and Practice of the Court of Probate, reviewed, 206

DOE v. CARTER v. BARNARD. Case of, 152

DOG injuring sheep. Liability of owner, 330

DRAMATIC REPRESENTATIONS. Case of the Alhambra; Mr. Tyrwhitt's judgment, 9

EDWARDS, TENISON. Notanda Digest, reviewed, 28

EJECTMENT on a title by prior possession only, 151

ELECTIONS for Parliament. Law of bribery, recent act, 359 qualification to vote; actual seizure of rent-charge, 27 review of cases on appeal from decisions of revising barristers, 25, 119

ENGINES on roads. Recent act respecting, 415

ENTRY, forcible, to recover a chattel, 351

EQUITY. Adverse enjoyment of an equitable interest, 291 on the amendment of equity procedure in small matters, 66, 495

on the fusion of law and equity, 495

EQUITABLE JURISDICTION of County Courts. On the act for, 366
orders and forms in equity, 269, 285

ERLE, T. W. On the present system of summoning special juries, 497

EVIDENCE. The seal of confession, 287, 298 on the decisions as to interrogatories under the Common-law Procedure Act, 1854; 167 on the act for amending the law of, in criminal trials, 271

FEEES in the courts of common law to be paid by stamps, Reg. Gen. 1865; 439

FERRE NATURE. Rights of property in animals after death, 362

FIELD, L., E. C. DUNN, and J. BIDDLE. Daniell's Chancery Practice, reviewed, 207

FLOYER v. BANKS. Case of, 242

FORCIBLE RECOVERY of chattels, 351

FRAUDULENT PREFERENCE. Case of Bills v. Smith, 87

FRIENDLY SOCIETIES. Suggestions for the formation of, with tables, by J. Tidd Pratt, 485, 495

FUSION OF LAW AND EQUITY. How far desirable, 495

GAME. Rights of property in dead game, 351 case of Blades v. Higgs, as to the property in, 471

GLADSTONE, Mr. His merits as a financier, 278

GOODEVE, JOSEPH. Obituary notice of, 71

GRACE, DAYS OF. On promissory notes, 437

GREENWOOD, G. W., and H. HORWOOD. Manual of the Practice of Conveyancing, reviewed, 300

GRIFFITH, W. D. Arrangements with Creditors under the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, &c., reviewed, 280

GUARANTEE. Effect of concealment of a material circumstance from the guarantor, 55

HALL, W. C. Legal Forms for the Use of Attorneys and Solicitors, reviewed, 481

HANSON, A. Succession Duty Act, reviewed, 240

HARRIS, Mr. Official assignee of Birmingham Court of Bankruptcy; judgment of Mr. Commissioner Sanders in, 21

HARRIS, G. Principia Prima Legum, reviewed, 406

HAWKINS, E. V. On digests and codes, 29

HAYNES, F. O. Outlines of Equity, reviewed, 68

HEELIS, App., BLAIN, Resp. Case of, 27

HEIRS. On limitations to the heirs of the settlor, 322

HOLLAND, T. B. Essay upon Composition Deeds, reviewed, 68

HUSBAND AND WIFE. Wife's authority to pledge her husband's credit, 295 power of wife to alienate her separate estate in fee, 77, 88, 109

HURLSTONE, E. T. Letters by, on law reporting, 477, 459

HUTCHINSON v. COPESTAKE. Case of, 251

ILLEGALITY OF MONASTIC ORDERS, 33

IMPRISONMENT FOR DEBT. Lord Westbury's bill to abolish, stated; 112

INCORPORATED LAW SOCIETY. Resolution of, regarding the bar scheme for law reporting, 16 results of examinations—Hilary Term, 1865; 49
Easter Term, 1865; 184

Trinity Term, 1865; 235, 253

Michaelmas Term, 1865; 472

INCUMBRANCES ON LAND. Inexpediency of facilitating the creation of, in favour of different persons, 109

INFANTS. Contracts by, necessities, 3

INFANTICIDE. On defects in the law relating to, 321
the provisions of the Indian Penal Code, 332

INHERITANCE. Limitation to the heirs of the settlor, ib.

INJURY by animal. Liability of owner, 335, 485

JURIES OF COURT. On the office of reader in, 219 remarks on the late election of a reader on constitutional law and legal history, 265

correspondence as to the late election, 417
remarks on the election and correspondence, 488 lectures during Hilary Term, 1865; 302 rules for the public examination of students, Trinity Term, 1865; 113 rules for the public examination of students, Michaelmas Term, 1865; 289 results of examinations of students, Michaelmas Term, 1864; 450

prospectus of lectures, Trinity Term, 1865; 114

prospectus of lectures, Michaelmas Term, 1865; 291

INSURRECTION. Authority to deviate from ordinary procedure in case of, 507

- INTERROGATORIES in the courts of common law, under the Common-law Procedure Act, 1854, on the decisions relating to, 167
- JAMAICA. Martial law in, 507
- JOINT AND SEPARATE ESTATE. As to application of, under deeds of arrangement, 319
- JUDICIAL STATISTICS, 1864. Civil side, 336, 344, 352, 361, 402, 408
- JUDGMENT. Effect of the stat. 27 & 28 Vict. c. 112, considered, 429 effect of the act where debtor has only a power of appointment, 429
- JUDGMENT LAW AMENDMENT BILL. Report of the select committee on, 16
- JURIDICAL SOCIETY. Paper by Mr. Hawkins on digests and codes, 29 paper by E. Webster on capital punishment, 59
- JURIDICAL SOCIETY OF BERLIN. Offer of premium by, for essay on imprisonment for debt, 223
- JURIES, SPECIAL. Mr. T. W. Erie on the present system of summoning, 497
- JURY. On the discharge of, in capital cases, 399, 455
- JURY DE MEDITATE LINGUÆ. Case of Giorgetti, 315
- JUSTICE, PALACE OF.—See COURTS.
- JUSTICES OF THE PEACE. On the bill to consolidate and amend acts for regulating procedure before, out of quarter sessions, 47
- KENT, CONSTANCE. Case of, and the seal of confession, 297, 298 plea of guilty, 303
- LAND. Inexpediency of facilitating the creation of charges on, in favour of different persons, 109
- LAND DEBENTURES. On the bill for, introduced by Messrs Ayrton and Collins, 90, 109 the bill as amended in select committee, 122
- LAND REGISTRY, OFFICE OF. Return as to business in, 182
- LANDS CLAUSES CONSOLIDATION ACT. Cases on compensation under; damage to business, 132
- LANDLORD AND TENANT. Whether landlord can enter during term, upon lessee's title being barred by adverse possession, 152
- LASCELLES, Mr. On his being called to the bar, 51
- LAW. Comparative advantages of case law and statute law, 63, 205, 395
Mr. Hawkins on codification, 29
Mr. Reilly on a digest of law, 30
martial law in Jamaica, 507
in what cases the ordinary course of procedure may be disregarded, ib.
- LAW REPORTING.—See REPORTING.
- LAW MAGAZINE. On law reporting, 169
- LAWS. On the Colonial Law Validity Act, 335
- LEASEHOLDS. Whether within Locke King's Act, 109
- LEASEHOLDS IN MORTGAGE. Amount of probate duty payable on, 56, 66, 81, 109
- LEE v. JONES. Case of, 55
- LEE v. RILEY. Case of, 435
- LEGAL EDUCATION. On the office of reader to the Inns of Court, 219 on the late election of a reader on constitutional law and legal history, 265
correspondence as to the late election, 417
remarks on the election and correspondence, 488.—See INCORPORATED LAW SOCIETY, INNS OF COURT.
- LEGISLATION OF 1864. Review of, 15 of the session of 1865, reviewed, 271
- LETTERS-PATENT.—See PATENT.
- LIGHT, ANCIENT, whether lost by alteration or enlargement, 251, 471 case of Tapling v. Jones, 251
- LIMITATIONS, STATUTE OF. On the nature and conditions of the title gained by adverse possession, 161 whether the act transfers the title to the person in possession, ib.
whether bar of tenant for life's title accelerates remainder, 152 effect of adverse enjoyment among equitable claimants, 191
case of Cholmondeley v. Clinton, ib.
cases of equitable claims not within the statute, 193
- LIS PENDENS. Effect of, and effect of registration of, 363
- LITERATURE. Return as to registration of works of, at Stationers' Hall, 32
- LOCAL BOARD OF WORKS liable for nuisance, 203
- LOCKE KING'S ACT, whether applicable to leaseholds, 109
- LOCOMOTIVES on roads. Recent act respecting, 415
- MAGISTRATES. On the effect of appeals from, in unsettling the law, 263
- MANNING, SERJT., on union chargeability, 193
- MARTIAL LAW in Jamaica, 507
- METROPOLIS LOCAL MANAGEMENT ACT. Liability of local board for nuisance, 203
- MILLER v. BIDDLELL. Case of, 437
- MOFFATT, Mr. On the bankruptcy laws, 197
- MONASTIC ORDERS. Illegality of, 33
- MORTGAGE. Whether Locke King's Act extends to leaseholds, 109
- NATAL, BISHOP OF. Letter on his case by John Westlake, 120
- NEW REPORTS, THE, AND THE JURIST. On the alleged piracy by the latter on the former, 170
- NEW YORK. Report of the commission appointed to prepare the codes of the laws of the State of New York, 161 remarks on the report of the commissioners, 205
- NICHOLS, W., Esq., judge of the Birmingham County Court. Obituary notice of, 11
- NOTANDA DIGEST, reviewed, 28
- NUISANCE by local board of works, 203
- ORDER IN CHANCERY, May 27, 1865. As to the mode of proceeding for the proof of debts, 232
- ORDERS AND FORMS for equitable procedure in county courts, 369, 385 order of the 23rd December, 1865, as to appeals in equity from county courts, 511
- ORDERS, RELIGIOUS. Illegality of, 33
- PAGET, MR. Lord Westbury's letter to, on bankruptcy law amendment, 7
- PALACE OF JUSTICE.—See COURTS.
- PARLIAMENT ELECTIONS. Bribery; recent act, 359 qualification to vote; actual seizure of a rent-charge, 27 review of cases on appeals from decision by revising barristers, 75, 119
- PARLIAMENT, PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES in House of Lords. Courts of Justice Bills; Common Law Courts Fees Bill, 171
Mortgage Debentures Bill, 210 debate on Courts of Justice Site Bill, 69 speech of Lord Westbury on introducing County Courts Equity Jurisdiction Bill, 69 attorneys' and solicitors' costs, 82
County Courts Equity Jurisdiction Bill, 92 Imprisonment for Debt (Attorneys' and Solicitors') Bill, 101 new courts of justice, 111
Private Bills of Costs Bill, 121, 134
Record of Title (Ireland) Bill; Married Women's Property (Ireland) Bill; Common-law Courts (Fees) Bill; strikes and lock-outs; Courts of Justice Bill; Juries (Ireland) Bill, 184 to 187
Record of Title (Ireland) Bill; County Courts Equitable Jurisdiction Bill; the Rev. Mr. Wagner, Oxford University (Venerian Foundation) Bill, 197

PARLIAMENTARY PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES—
(continued).

Partnership Amendment Bill; Mortgage Debentures Bill; Land Debentures Bill, 245

Courts of Justice Site Bill; Common-law Courts (Fees) Bill; Mortgage Debentures Bill; the Statute Law; Prisons Bill; Land Debentures (Ireland), 256

Mr. Winslow's case; resignation of Lord Westbury; his speech, 274

House of Commons:

debate on capital punishment; marriage law; legacy and succession duties; poor relief in unions; fees of parliamentary counsel; law of libel; Private Bills Costs Bill; felony and misdemeanour; Evidence and Practice Bill, 70

Courts of Justice Concentration Bill; Law of Evidence, &c. Bill; church attendance on the Sabbath, 82 partnership law; registration of county voters, 93

law of patents; juries in criminal cases, 103

the murder at Saffron-hill, 122

Courts of Justice Concentration (Site) Bill, 134 tenure and improvement of land; Mortgage Debentures Bill; Partnership Amendment Bill, 171 bankruptcy laws; inspection of coal mines; County Voters Registration Bill, 187 duty on attorneys' and solicitors' certificates; Bankruptcy Act, 1861; Charitable Trusts (Fees) Bill; the Oxford University (Vinerian Foundation) Bill; Inns of Court Bill, 192 patent laws; bankruptcy laws, 198

Crown Suits, &c. Bill; Partnership Amendment Bill; Attorney's Certificate Duties Bill; master and servant; the Leeds Court of Bankruptcy, 210 to 214

Record of Title (Ireland) Bill; County Courts Equitable Jurisdiction Bill; bankruptcy; lunacy, 224 to 227

Record of Title (Ireland) Bill; Courts of Justice Bills, 235

Law of Evidence Bill; public executions; Record of Title (Ireland) Bill; Prisons Bill; Theatres Bill, 247

Inland Revenue Bill; Law of Evidence, &c. Bill; capital punishment commission; contracts for highways; stamp duty; patent laws; County Courts Equitable Jurisdiction (Judge's Salaries), 257 to 260

County Courts Equitable Jurisdiction Bill; Inland Revenue Bill; Railway Debentures, &c. Registration Bill; Mortgage Debentures Bill; Leeds Bankruptcy Court, 266

Leeds Bankruptcy Court; resignation of Lord Westbury, 275

PARTNERSHIP. On the right to use the partnership firm after a dissolution, 463

Lord Westbury's exposition of the law of, 253

the bill to amend the law of, stated, 104 observations on the bill, 100, 180

debates on the bill to amend the law of, 210, 245

resolutions of the Association of Chambers of Commerce of the United Kingdom, on the amendment of the law, 80 on the new act to amend the law of, 311, 343

PATENT. Prior publication of invention by specification; case of Betts v. Menzies, 429 on the infringement of, by using the article, 368 case of Betts v. Neilson, ib.

extracts from annual report of commissioners, 58

PATENT LAW. On the amendment of, 39

the report of the commissioners appointed to inquire into the working of the law relating to letters-patent for inventions, 130

Mr. Robert Wilson's remarks on the report of the commissioners, 140

PEACHEY, FRANCIS. Letter by, on the stamp duties on transfers of mortgages and choses in action, 223

POOR. On the practice on appeals to the quarter sessions from orders of removal, 179 rating of brewery, 263

Mr. Sergeant Manning on union chargeability, 193

POSSESSION, ACTUAL, of a rent-charge. Case of Heelis, App., Blain, Resp., 27

PRACTICE OF CONVEYANCERS, 329

PRESCRIPTION. Effect of alteration and enlargement of ancient lights, 251 case of Tapling v. Jones, ib.

PRINCIPAL AND SURETY. Effect of concealment of material circumstance from surety, 55

PROBATE DUTY. As to deduction of mortgage debt in respect of leaseholds in mortgage. Paper by Mr. Reynolds on, 56 observations by S. S. W., 66, 81

by the editor, 67, 109

PROFESSION, MONASTIC. Illegality of, 33

PROMISSORY NOTES. Days of grace on, 437

QUALIFICATIONS to vote for members of Parliament. Review of recent appeals from revising barristers, 75, 119

seisin of rent-charge, 27

QUARTER SESSIONS. On the practice on appeals to, from orders of removal, 179

RAILWAY CARRIERS in France, 23

RAILWAY COMPANY. Liability of, for delay, 23 duties of, as carriers of goods and passengers, 479, 487 effect of notices by, to freighters and passengers, ib.

as to compensation for interruption to business by, 139

RATING of brewery. Case of Allison v. Monkwearmouth, 263

REDESDALE, LORD. Protest on the third reading of the Courts of Justice Concentration Bill, 194

READERSHIP ON LEGAL HISTORY AND CONSTITUTIONAL LAW. On the approaching election, 219

on the late election of a reader, 265

correspondence as to the late election of a reader, 417

remarks on the late election and correspondence, 488

REG. v. NEWTON. Case of, 399, 455

REGISTRATION of his pendens, 363

of works of literature, &c., at Stationers' Hall, return as to, 32

REGISTRATION OF VOTERS. Remarks of recent appeals from decisions by revising barristers, 75, 119

REGISTRY. Office of Land Registry, return as to business in, 182

REGULA GENERALIS. The payment of common-law fees by stamps, 489

REILLY, F. S. On a digest of law, 30

REMAINDER. Whether accelerated by extinction of tenant for life's title by adverse possession, 152

RENT-CHARGE. Actual possession of; case of Heelis, App., Blain, Resp., 27

REPORTING. Progress of the Bar scheme; resolutions of the Incorporated Law Society, 15

resolutions of benchers of Middle Temple, as to, 29

resolutions of the benchers of Gray's Inn, Inner Temple, and Lincoln's Inn, 40 on the Bar scheme and its promoters, by G. L., 48 members of the council of, appointed, 69 guarantee by the Law Institution, ib.

on the preliminary address of the council of law reporting, 108 letter by James T. Hopwood as to the sanction of the judges, 160 article in the Law Magazine on, 169 on the proceedings of the council of, 313 letter from Mr. J. T. Hopwood, 321

remarks on, 411

letters by Mr. Hurlstone, 417, 459

remarks on the new scheme, 447

remarks on the proceedings of the council, 438, 457

address of the council to the Lord Chancellor and the judges, 440

remonstrance of the law publishers, 442 letters by Messrs. Best & Smith, 465, 472 letter by Mr. Scott, 466

postscript by Mr. Beavan on, 480 the Master of the Rolls on, 481

REVIEWS:

- Laws relating to Public Health, by T. Baker, 109
 Treatise on the Practice of Conveyancing, by W. Barry, 306
 Daniell's Chancery Practice, by L. Field, E. C. Dunn, & J. Biddle, 297
 Practical Treatise on the Succession Duty Act, by W. Brown, 240
 Law and Practice of the Court of Probate, by P. W. Dodd & G. H. Broeke, 206
 Notanda Digest, by Tenison Edwards, 28
 Arrangements with Creditors under the Bankruptcy Act, 1801, &c., by W. D. Griffith, 280
 Manual of the Practice of Conveyancing, by G. W. Greenwood & H. Horwood, 303
 Legal Forms for the Use of Attorneys and Solicitors, by W. C. Hall, 481
 Succession Duty Act, by A. Hanson, 240
 Outlines of Equity, by F. O. Haynes, 68
 Essay upon Composition Deeds, by T. E. Holland, 68
 Principia Prima Legum, by G. Harris, 403
 Hodge's Law of Railways, 4th ed., by C. M. Smith, 68
 Guide to the Law for General Use, by E. Reynolds, 481
 Compendium of the Law of Real and Personal Property, by Josiah W. Smith, 4
 Legal Forms for Common Use, by James W. Smith, 481
 On the Report of the Patent Law Commission, by R. Wilson, 140
REVISING BARRISTERS. Review of cases on appeal from, 75, 119
REYNOLDS, E. Guide to the Law for General Use, reviewed, 481
RICKET' v. METROPOLITAN RAILWAY COMPANY. Case of, 159
RIOT. Proceedings in case of, 508
ROAD MURDER. The seal of confession, 287, 298
 the plea of guilty, 308
ROMILLY, LORD. On law reporting, 481
RULE IN SHELLEY'S CASE. Whether it extends to springing uses, 427
RULES AND ORDERS, Chancery, May 27, 1805. As to the mode of proceeding for the proof of debts, 232 equitable procedure in county courts, 360, 385
 Master's vacation, 1805; payment of common-law fees by stamps, 489 appeals in equity from county courts, 511
SALE OF CHATTEL. Warranty of title under, 150
SANDARS, T. C. On his election to the office of reader on constitutional law and legal history, 265
SCOTT, Mr. Letter by, on law reporting, 463
SEISIN, ACTUAL, of a rent-charge. Case of Hicks, App., Blain, Resp., 27
SEPARATE ESTATE in real estate. Power of wife to alienate the fee, 77, 88, 109
SETTLEMENT. Prepared by lady's solicitor, at husband's expense, 3, 4
SHEEP. Liability of owner of dog for injury by sheep, 336
SHELLEY'S CASE. Whether the rule in, extends to springing uses, 427
SHERIFFS. List of sheriffs and undersheriffs, &c. for 1865; 90, 450
SMITH, C. M. Hodge's Law of Railways, 4th ed. by, reviewed, 68
SMITH, JAMES WALTER. Legal Forms for Common Use, reviewed, 481
SMITH, JOSIAH W. Compendium of the Law of Real and Personal Property, reviewed, 4
SOLDIERS. How far subject to martial law, 509
SPECIAL JURIES. Mr. T. W. Erle on the present system of summoning, 497
STAMP DUTY on transfers of mortgages and choses in action, 222
STAMP LAWS. On the recent vexatious legislation with respect to, 279
STATIONERS' HALL. Registration of works of literature at, return as to, 32

- STEAM CARRIAGES on roads. Recent act respecting, 415
STATISTICS, JUDICIAL, 1864. Civil side, 336, 344, 352, 361, 402, 408
STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS. On the nature and conditions of the title gained under, by adverse possession, 151 effect of adverse enjoyment among equitable claimants, 191
 case of Cholmondeley v. Clinton, ib.
STATUTES. On the digesting of, 63
SUCCESSION DUTY. On the cases of Attorney-General v. Gardner, Attorney-General v. Yelverton, and Floyer v. Bankes, 240 contract in consideration of money's worth, 242
SUITORS' FEE FUND. Statistics of, 95
SURETY. Effect of concealment of material fact from, 55 whether existing debt to the person guaranteed is a material circumstance, 55
TAPLING v. JONES. Case of, 256
TAYLOR v. MEADS. Case of, as to separate estate, 77, 109
 the case of, as to appointments by will, 108
THEATRES ACT, 6 & 7 Vict. c. 68, s. 2. Case of the Alhambra; Mr. Tyrwhitt's judgment, 9
TITLE. Rule that a sale of a chattel does not imply a warranty of title, 159
TRIAL. Venue of, 510
UNION CHARGEABILITY. Remarks on, by Serjeant Manning, 193
USES, STATUTE OF. Actual seisin by virtue of, 27 when a conveyance operates under; case of Heelis, App., Blain, Resp., ib.
VENDOR of chattel. Whether he warrants the title, 159
VOTE. Bribery, recent act, 350 decisions on qualification to vote in elections of members of Parliament, 75, 119 qualification by actual seizure of a rent-charge, 27
WARRANTY OF TITLE, by vendor of a chattel, 159
WESTBURY, LORD. His letter to Mr. Paget on the amendment of the bankruptcy laws, 7 his exposition of the law of partnership, 253 eulogy on, 273
 his speech after resigning the seals, 274
WESTBURY'S WALK. (From the Standard), 34
WESTLAKE, JOHN. Letter on the Bishop of Natal's case, 120
WIFE. Power of, over her separate estate in fee, 77, 88, 109 authority of, to pledge her husband's credit, 295
WILDE, SIR JAMES. Observations on the address of, 63
WILL. Whether words of specific description in residuary bequests are operative as specific gifts, 449
WILLS ACT. On the 10th section of the act, as to the solemnities in executing testamentary powers, and the decisions thereon, 107 case of Taylor v. Meads, 108
WILSON, ROBERT. On the Report of the Patent-law Commissioners, 140
WINSLOW, Mr. On the pension granted to, 273
WITNESS. The seal of confession, 287, 298.

RUSSELL ON CRIMES.

This day is published, in 3 vols. royal 8vo., price 5l. 15s. 6d. cloth.
A TREATISE ON CRIMES AND MISDEMEANOURS. By Sir WILLIAM OLDNALL RUSSELL, Knt., late Chief Justice of Bengal. Fourth Edition. By CHARLES SPRENGEL GREAVES, Esq., one of Her Majesty's Counsel.
 London: Stevens & Sons, 26, Bell-yard; H. Sweet, 3, Chancery-lane; and W. Maxwell, 32, Bell-yard, Lincoln's-inn.

Printed by HENRY HANSARD, at his Printing Office, in Parker Street, in the Parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, in the County of Middlesex; and published by HENRY SWEET, of No. 3, CHANCERY LANE, and RICHARD STEVENS, of No. 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN, at the Office, No. 39, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.—Saturday, January 6, 1866.

A TABLE OF THE PUBLIC STATUTES

PASSED IN THE SESSION 1865—28 & 29 VICTORIA,

ABSTRACTED IN THIS VOLUME.

CAP. III.

An Act for the Protection of Inventions and Designs exhibited at certain Industrial Exhibitions in the United Kingdom (27th March, 1865) 1

CAP. VIII.

An Act to amend the Election Petitions Act, 1848, in certain Particulars (7th April, 1865) ib.

CAP. IX.

An Act to allow Affirmations or Declarations to be made instead of Oaths in all Civil and Criminal Proceedings in Scotland (7th April, 1865) 2

CAP. XIV.

An Act to make better Provision for the Naval Defence of the Colonies (7th April, 1865) ib.

CAP. XV.

An Act to extend the Term for granting fresh Letters-patent for the High Courts in India, and to make further Provision respecting the Territorial Jurisdiction of the said Courts (7th April, 1865) ib.

CAP. XVI.

An Act to make further Provision for the Management of the Unredeemed Public Debt in Ireland, and for the Reduction of the Interest payable on certain Sums advanced by the Bank of Ireland for the Public Service (7th April, 1865) ib.

CAP. XVII.

An Act to enlarge the Powers of the Governor-General of India in Council at Meetings for making Laws and Regulations, and to amend the Law respecting the Territorial Limits of the several Presidencies and Lieutenant-Governorships in India (9th May, 1865) ib.

CAP. XVIII.

An Act for amending the Law of Evidence and Practice on Criminal Trials (9th May, 1865) ib.

CAP. XIX.

An Act to extend the Period for borrowing the Sum authorised to be raised under the Metropolitan Main Drainage Extension Act, 1863 (9th May, 1865) 3

CAP. XXI.

An Act to amend the Irish Bankrupt and Insolvent Act, 1847 (9th May, 1865) ib.

CAP. XXII.

An Act to amend the Acts relating to the Scottish Herring Fisheries (9th May, 1865) ib.

CAP. XXVI.

An Act to provide for Superannuation Allowances to Officers of Unions in Ireland (26th May, 1865) 4

CAP. XXVII.

An Act for awarding Costs in certain Cases of Private Bills (26th May, 1865) ib.

CAP. XXX.

An Act to grant certain Duties of Customs and Inland Revenue (26th May, 1865) 5

CAP. XXXIII.

An Act to repeal the Act of the Parliament of Ireland, of the 6 Ann. c. 11, for explaining and amending the several Acts against Tories, Robbers, and Rapacious. (2nd June, 1865) 6

CAP. XXXIV.

An Act to make the Metropolitan Houseless Poor Act perpetual (2nd June, 1865) ib.

CAP. XXXV.

An Act to amend the Law relating to the Police Superannuation Funds in Counties and Boroughs (2nd June, 1865) 7

CAP. XXXVI.

An Act to amend the Law relating to the Registration of County Voters, and to the Powers and Duties of Revising Barristers in certain Cases (2nd June, 1865) ib.

CAP. XXXVII.

An Act to make better Provision respecting the Transaction of County Business and the Administration of Justice at Quarter Sessions in the County of Sussex; and to confirm certain Proceedings of the Justices of the said County (2nd June, 1865) 6

CAP. XL.

An Act to extend to the Court of Chancery of the County Palatine of Lancaster certain of the Provisions of an Act passed in the Session, holden in the 23 & 24 Vict., intitled "An Act to give to Trustees, Mortgagees, and others, certain Powers now commonly inserted in Settlements, Mortgages, and Wills" (19th June, 1865) 11

CAP. XLII.

An Act for facilitating the Annexation of Tithes to District Churches (19th June, 1865) ib.

CAP. XLIII.

An Act to provide for the Security of Property of Married Women separated from their Husbands in Ireland (19th June, 1865) 11

CAP. XLV.

An Act to provide for the Collection by means of Stamps or Fees payable in the Superior Courts of Law at Westminster, and in the Offices belonging thereto (19th June, 1865) 12

CAP. XLVIII.

An Act to supply Means towards defraying the Expenses of providing Courts of Justice and the various Offices belonging thereto; and for other Purposes (19th June, 1865) 13

CAP. XLIX.

An Act to enable the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Works and Public Buildings to acquire a Site for the Erection and Concentration of Courts of Justice, and of the various Offices belonging to the same (19th June, 1865) .. 16

CAP. L.

An Act for regulating the keeping of Dogs, and for the Protection of Sheep and other Property from Dogs, in Ireland (19th June, 1865) 18

CAP. LII.

An Act to amend the Drainage and Improvement of Lands Acts (Ireland), and to afford further Facilities for the Purposes thereof (29th June, 1865) 19

CAP. LIV.

An Act to alter the Days between which Pheasants may not be killed in Ireland (29th June, 1865) ib.

CAP. LV.

An Act to empower the University of Oxford to make Statutes as to the Vinerian Foundation in that University (29th June, 1865) ib.

CAP. LVI.

An Act to provide for the better Prevention of Trespass in Scotland (29th June, 1865) ib.

CAP. LVII.

An Act to amend certain Provisions in the Ecclesiastical Leasing Act, 1858 (29th June, 1865) 20

CAP. LX.

An Act to render Owners of Dogs in England and Wales liable for Injuries to Cattle and Sheep (29th June, 1865) ib.

CAP. LXIII.

An Act to remove Doubts as to the Validity of Colonial Laws (29th June, 1865) ib.

CAP. LXIV.

An Act to remove Doubts respecting the Validity of certain Marriages contracted in Her Majesty's Possessions abroad (29th June, 1865) 21

CAP. LXVI.

An Act to allow the charging of the Excise Duty on Malt according to the Weight of the Grain used (29th June, 1865) ib.

CAP. LXVIII.

An Act to enable the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England to grant Superannuation Allowances to Persons employed in their Service (29th June, 1865) .. 21

CAP. LXIX.

An Act further to amend and render more effectual the Law for providing fit Houses for the Beneficed Clergy; and for other Purposes (29th June, 1865) 22

CAP. LXXII.

An Act to make better Provision respecting Wills of Seamen and Marines of the Royal Navy and Marines (29th June, 1865) ib.

CAP. LXXIII.

An Act for regulating the Payment of Naval and Marine Pay and Pensions (29th June, 1865) 23

CAP. LXXV.

An Act for facilitating the more useful Application of Sewage in Great Britain and Ireland (29th June, 1865) .. 24

CAP. LXXVII.

An Act to amend the Act of the 27 & 28 Vict. c. 64, commonly called "The Public House Closing Act, 1864" (29th June, 1865) 26

CAP. LXXVIII.

An Act to enable certain Companies to issue Mortgage Debentures founded on Securities upon or affecting Land, and to make Provision for the Registration of such Mortgage Debentures and Securities (29th June, 1865) . ib.

CAP. LXXIX.

An Act to provide for the better Distribution of the Charge for the Relief of the Poor in Unions (29th June, 1865) 31

CAP. LXXX.

An Act to explain and amend the Lunatic Asylum Act, 1853, and the Lunacy Act Amendment Act, 1862, with reference to Counties of Towns which have Courts of Quarter Sessions, but no Recorder (29th June, 1865) 32

CAP. LXXXIII.

An Act for further regulating the Use of Locomotives on Turnpike and other Roads for Agricultural and other Purposes (5th July, 1865) ib.

CAP. LXXXVI.

An Act to amend the Law of Partnership (5th July, 1865) 34

CAP. LXXXVIII.

An Act for the recording of Titles to Land in Ireland (5th July, 1865) ib.

CAP. LXXXIX.

An Act to provide for the better Government of Greenwich Hospital, and the more beneficial Application of the Revenues thereof (5th July, 1865) 41

CAP. XC.

An Act for the Establishment of a Fire Brigade within the Metropolis (5th July, 1865) ib.

CAP. XCIII.

An Act to consolidate the Offices of Comptroller-General of the Exchequer and Chairman of the Commissioners for auditing the Public Accounts; and for other Purposes (5th July, 1865) 42

CAP. XCIV.

An Act to amend the Carriers Act (5th July, 1865) .. ib.

CAP. XCVI.

An Act to amend the Laws relating to the Inland Revenue (5th July, 1865) ib.

CAP. XCIX.

An Act to confer on the County Courts a limited Jurisdiction in Equity (5th July, 1865) 46

CAP. CI.

An Act for authorising Transferable Debentures to be charged upon Land in Ireland (5th July, 1865) .. 49

CAP. CIII.

An Act to provide for the Discontinuance of a separate Court of Quarter Sessions and a separate Gaol in the Borough of Falmouth (5th July, 1865) 51

CAP. CIV.

An Act to amend the Procedure and Practice in Crown Suits in the Court of Exchequer at Westminster; and for other Purposes (5th July, 1865) ib.

CAP. CV.

An Act to continue the Poor-law Board for a limited Period (5th July, 1865) 57

CAP. CVI.

An Act to authorise Loans in aid of the Construction of Docks in British Possessions (5th July, 1865) 58

CAP. CXI.

An Act to regulate the Disposal of Money and Effects under the Control of the Admiralty, belonging to deceased Officers, Seamen, and Marines of the Royal Navy and Marines, and other Persons (5th July, 1865) ib.

CAP. CXII.

An Act to repeal Enactments relating to Powers of the Commissioners of the Admiralty, and to various Matters under the Control of the Admiralty (5th July, 1865) 59

CAP. CXIII.

An Act to authorise the Payment of Retiring Pensions to Colonial Governors (5th July, 1865) 60

CAP. CXV.

An Act to amend the Naval Discipline Act, 1864 (5th July, 1865) ib.

CAP. CXVI.

An Act to explain the Foreign Jurisdiction Act (5th July, 1865) ib.

CAP. CXIX.

An Act for continuing various expiring Acts (5th July, 1865) ib.

CAP. CXXI.

An Act to amend the Salmon Fishery Act, 1861 (5th July, 1865) 61

CAP. CXXII.

An Act to amend the Law as to the Subscriptions and Declarations to be made, and Oaths to be taken, by the Clergy of the Established Church of England and Ireland (5th July, 1865) 62

CAP. CXXIV.

An Act for consolidating certain Enactments relating to the Admiralty (6th July, 1865) 63

CAP. CXXV.

An Act for the Regulation of Dockyard Ports (6th July, 1865) 64

CAP. CXXVI.

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law relating to Prisons (6th July, 1865) ib.

CAP. CXXVII.

An Act to amend the Law relating to small Penalties (6th July, 1865) 77

THE STATUTES

PASSED IN THE SESSION 1865—28 & 29 VICTORIA.

CAP. I.

An Act to amend certain clerical Errors in the Civil Bill Courts Procedure Amendment Act (Ireland), 1864.
[3rd March, 1865.]

CAP. II.

An Act to extend the Powers now vested in Justices of the Peace to grant Licenses to deal in Game to the Divisional Magistrates within the Police District of Dublin Metropolis.
[27th March, 1865.]

CAP. III.

An Act for the Protection of Inventions and Designs exhibited at certain Industrial Exhibitions in the United Kingdom.
[27th March, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Short title.

2. Power to Board of Trade to certify that certain industrial exhibitions are entitled to the benefit of this act.

3. Exhibition of new inventions not to prejudice patent rights.

4. Exhibition of designs not to prejudice right to registration.

CAP. IV.

An Act to apply the sum of One hundred and seventy-five thousand six hundred and fifty Pounds out of the Consolidated Fund to the Service of the Year ending the 31st March, 1865.
[27th March, 1865.]

CAP. V.

An Act for the Incorporation of the Territories of British Kaffraria with the Colony of the Cape of Good Hope.
[27th March, 1865.]

CAP. VI.

An Act for the Protection of Inventions and Designs exhibited at the Dublin International Exhibition for the Year 1865.
[27th March, 1865.]

CAP. VII.

An Act to confirm a Provisional Order under the General Police and Improvement (Scotland) Act, 1862, relating to the Burgh of Perth.
[7th April, 1865.]

CAP. VIII.

An Act to amend the Election Petitions Act, 1848, in certain Particulars.
[7th April, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Committee to adjourn to day after the meeting of the House when House not sitting, and committee has occasion to report.

2. In case the House shall not sit, committee further to adjourn.

3. In certain cases the House may direct a committee to adjourn for a reasonable period.

4. If committee dissolved by any error, &c., a new committee shall be struck, unless the House shall otherwise order.

5. House may order a dissolved committee to be revived, and to reassemble and act.

6. As to sittings of revived committee.

Whereas it is expedient to amend the Election Petitions Act, 1848 (hereinafter called the principal act), in certain particulars hereafter mentioned: be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. If any select committee appointed under the principal act have occasion to apply to or report to the House, and the House be adjourned for more than twenty-four hours, such committee shall adjourn to the day immediately following that on which the House shall be appointed to meet for the dispatch of business, unless that day shall happen to be a Sunday, Christmas Day, or Good Friday, and in that case the committee shall adjourn to the next following day.

2. In case the House from any cause shall happen not to sit for the dispatch of business on the day appointed for that purpose, the committee shall again, and so from time to time, adjourn till after the House shall sit for the dispatch of business; but no adjournment shall be made for any longer period than to the day next after the day the House shall actually sit for the dispatch of business, unless such day shall happen to be a Sunday, Christmas Day, or Good Friday, and in that case the adjournment shall be to the next following day.

3. In case it shall become necessary to adjourn the consideration of any application or report made by any committee to the House, the House may, if it shall so think fit, direct the committee to adjourn their sitting again, and from time to time, and for such reasonable time as shall be sufficient to enable the House to decide on such application and report, and such committee shall adjourn accordingly.

4. If at any time after the appointment of a committee under the principal act it shall appear to the House that, from any error, irregularity of proceeding, oversight, or other cause, such committee has become dissolved, or unable to continue its sittings for any cause not provided for by the principal act, another committee shall be appointed to decide on the petition referred to such committee, unless the House shall otherwise order, within three sitting days, as herein provided; and for the purpose of appointing such other committee, the general committee and the members of the chairmen's panel shall meet as soon as conveniently can be after the expiration of three sitting days from the time the occasion for such new committee shall be reported to or brought under the notice of the House by any member, at a day and hour to be appointed by the general committee; and notice of such meeting shall be published with the votes, and all the proceedings of such former committee shall be of no effect.

5. In all cases where a committee shall have become dissolved by any error, irregularity of proceeding, oversight, or other cause, not involving the death or permanent illness of any of its members, the House may, if it shall so think fit, within three sitting days after such event shall have been reported to or brought under the notice of the House by any member, order such committee to stand revived, and to meet and continue its sittings; and in such case no new committee shall be appointed, unless for any subsequent cause; and the proceedings of such new committee shall have the same force and effect and be as valid as if no such dissolution thereof had taken place.

6. A committee ordered to stand revived shall meet at the time mentioned in such order, and shall in its subsequent sittings and adjournments be regulated by all the provisions of the principal act and of this act.

CAP. IX.

An Act to allow Affirmations or Declarations to be made instead of Oaths in all Civil and Criminal Proceedings in Scotland. [7th April, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Recited acts repealed.
2. Power to persons objecting to be sworn from alleged conscientious motives to make affirmation, &c.
3. Persons falsely affirming &c., to incur penalties of wilful perjury.
4. Short title.

CAP. X.

An Act to apply the Sum of Fifteen Millions out of the Consolidated Fund to the Service of the Year 1865. [7th April, 1865.]

CAP. XI.

An Act for punishing Mutiny and Desertion, and for the better Payment of the Army and their Quarters. [7th April, 1865.]

CAP. XII.

An Act for the Regulation of Her Majesty's Royal Marine Forces while on Shore. [7th April, 1865.]

CAP. XIII.

An Act to confirm certain Provisional Orders under the Drainage and Improvement of Lands Act (Ireland), 1863, and the Act amending the same. [7th April, 1865.]

CAP. XIV.

An Act to make better Provision for the Naval Defence of the Colonies. [7th April, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Short title.
2. Interpretation.
3. Power for colonies to provide vessels, and raise men and commission officers, &c.
4. Volunteers to form part of royal naval reserve.
5. Power to Admiralty to issue special commissions.
6. Placing of colonial vessel, with men and officers, at her Majesty's disposal.
7. As to services of volunteers and officers in navy.
8. Delegation of Admiralty powers to naval officer.
9. Not to impose charge on imperial revenues, &c.
10. Not to affect powers vested in colonies.

CAP. XV.

An Act to extend the Term for granting fresh Letters-patent for the High Courts in India, and to make further Provision respecting the Territorial Jurisdiction of the said Courts. [7th April, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Extension of time for granting fresh letters-patent.
2. Sects. 10 and 18 of the 24 & 25 Vict. c. 104, repealed.
3. Power to the Governor-General in Council to alter local limits of jurisdiction of high courts.
4. Power to Crown to disallow any order of the Governor-General for that purpose.
5. Time when act shall come into operation.
6. Not to interfere with certain powers of Governor-General.

CAP. XVI.

An Act to make further Provision for the Management of the Unredeemed Public Debt in Ireland, and for the Reduction of the Interest payable on certain Sums advanced by the Bank of Ireland for the Public Service. [7th April, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. From the 6th April, 1865, certain provisions of the 8 & 9 Vict. c. 37, repealed.
2. Interest payable to Bank of Ireland.
3. From the 6th April, 1865, interest on the debt to the Bank of Ireland to be reduced to 3l. per cent. per annum.
4. As to future payment to the Bank of Ireland for management of the public debt in Ireland.
5. Commissioners of National Debt to transmit to Treasury statement of the amount of the debt in Ireland, and allowance for management to be computed thereon.

CAP. XVII.

An Act to enlarge the Powers of the Governor-General of India in Council at Meetings for making Laws and Regulations, and to amend the Law respecting the Territorial Limits of the several Presidencies and Lieutenant-Governorships in India. [9th May, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Power to Governor-General to make laws for all British subjects, whether in service of Government of India or otherwise.
2. Preceding section to be read as part of sect. 22 of recited act.
3. Sect. 18 of the 16 & 17 Vict. c. 95, repealed.
4. Power to Governor-General to appoint territorial limits of presidencies, &c. by proclamation.
5. Power to Secretary of State in Council to signify disallowance of such proclamation.

Whereas, by an act passed in the session holden in the 24 & 25 Vict. c. 67, it was, among other things, enacted, that the Governor-General of India in Council shall have power, at meetings for the purpose of making laws and regulations, to make laws and regulations for all persons, whether British or native, foreigners or others, within the Indian territories under the dominion of her Majesty, and for all servants of the Government of India within the dominions of princes and States in alliance with her Majesty: and whereas it is expedient to enlarge the said power by authorising the Governor-General of India in Council to make laws and regulations for all British subjects of her Majesty within the dominions of such princes and states: be it enacted &c., as follows:—

- Sect. 1. The Governor-General of India shall have power, at meetings for the purpose of making laws and regulations, to make laws and regulations for all British subjects of her Majesty within the dominions of princes and states in India in alliance with her Majesty, whether in the service of the Government of India or otherwise.
2. The preceding section shall be read with, and taken as part of, sect. 22 of the said act of the 24 & 25 Vict. c. 67.
3. And whereas it is expedient to amend the law respecting the territorial limits of the several presidencies and lieutenant-governorships in India: sect. 18 of the act of the 16 & 17 Vict. c. 95, intitled "An Act to provide for the Government of India," is hereby repealed.
4. It shall be lawful for the Governor-General of India in Council from time to time to declare and appoint, by proclamation, what part or parts of the Indian territories for the time being under the dominion of her Majesty shall be or continue subject to each of the presidencies and lieutenant-governorships for the time being subsisting in such territories, and to make such distribution and arrangement, or new distribution and arrangement, of such territories into or among such presidencies and lieutenant-governorships as to the said Governor-General in Council may seem expedient.
5. Provided always, that it shall be lawful for the Secretary of State in Council to signify to the said Governor-General in Council his disallowance of any such proclamation: and provided further, that no such proclamation for the purpose of transferring an entire zillah or district from one presidency to another, or from one lieutenant-governorship to another, shall have any force or validity until the sanction of her Majesty to the same shall have been previously signified by the Secretary of State in Council to the Governor-General.

CAP. XVIII.

An Act for amending the Law of Evidence and Practice on Criminal Trials. [9th May, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Provisions of sect. 2 of this act to apply to trials commenced on or after the 1st July, 1865.
2. Summing up of evidence in cases of felony and misdemeanour.
3. How far witness may be discredited by the party producing.
4. As to proof of contradictory statements of adverse witness.
5. Cross-examinations as to previous statements in writing.
6. Proof of previous conviction of witness may be given.
7. As to proof by attesting witnesses.

8. As to comparison of disputed writing.

9. "Counsel."

10. Not to apply to Scotland.

Whereas it is expedient that the law of evidence and practice, on trials for felony and misdemeanour and other proceedings in courts of criminal judicature, should be more nearly assimilated to that on trials at Nisi Prius: be it enacted &c., as follows; that is to say,

Sect. 1. That the provisions of sect. 2 of this act shall apply to every trial for felony or misdemeanour which shall be commenced on or after the 1st July, 1865, and that the provisions of sections from 3 to 8 inclusive, of this act shall apply to all courts of judicature, as well criminal as all others, and to all persons having, by law or by consent of parties, authority to hear, receive, and examine evidence.

2. If any prisoner or prisoners, defendant or defendants, shall be defended by counsel, but not otherwise, it shall be the duty of the presiding judge, at the close of the case for the prosecution, to ask the counsel for each prisoner or defendant so defended by counsel whether he or they intend to adduce evidence; and in the event of none of them thereupon announcing his intention to adduce evidence, the counsel for the prosecution shall be allowed to address the jury a second time in support of his case, for the purpose of summing up the evidence against such prisoner or prisoners, or defendant or defendants; and upon every trial for felony or misdemeanour, whether the prisoners or defendants, or any of them, shall be defended by counsel or not, each and every such prisoner or defendant, or his or their counsel respectively, shall be allowed, if he or they shall think fit, to open his or their case or cases respectively; and after the conclusion of such opening, or of all such openings, if more than one, such prisoner or prisoners, or defendant or defendants, or their counsel, shall be entitled to examine such witnesses as he or they may think fit, and when all the evidence is concluded, to sum up the evidence respectively; and the right of reply, and practice and course of proceedings, save as hereby altered, shall be as at present.

3. A party producing a witness shall not be allowed to impeach his credit by general evidence of bad character; but he may, in case the witness shall, in the opinion of the judge, prove adverse, contradict him by other evidence, or, by leave of the judge, prove that he has made at other times a statement inconsistent with his present testimony; but before such last-mentioned proof can be given, the circumstances of the supposed statement, sufficient to designate the particular occasion, must be mentioned to the witness, and he must be asked whether or not he has made such statement.

4. If a witness, upon cross-examination as to a former statement made by him relative to the subject-matter of the indictment or proceeding, and inconsistent with his present testimony, does not distinctly admit that he has made such statement, proof may be given that he did in fact make it; but before such proof can be given, the circumstances of the supposed statement, sufficient to designate the particular occasion, must be mentioned to the witness, and he must be asked whether or not he has made such statement.

5. A witness may be cross-examined as to previous statements made by him in writing, or reduced into writing, relative to the subject-matter of the indictment or proceeding, without such writing being shewn to him; but if it is intended to contradict such witness by the writing, his attention must, before such contradictory proof can be given, be called to those parts of the writing which are to be used for the purpose of so contradicting him: provided always, that it shall be competent for the judge, at any time during the trial, to require the production of the writing for his inspection, and he may thereupon make such use of it for the purposes of the trial as he may think fit.

6. A witness may be questioned as to whether he has been convicted of any felony or misdemeanour, and upon being so questioned, if he either denies or does not admit the fact, or refuses to answer, it shall be lawful for the cross-examining party to prove such conviction; and a certificate, containing the substance and effect only (omitting the formal part) of the indictment and conviction for such offence, purporting to be signed by the clerk of the court or other officer having the custody of the records of the court where the offender was convicted, or by the deputy of such clerk or officer (for which certificate a fee of 5s. and no more shall be demanded or taken), shall, upon proof of identity of the person, be sufficient evidence of the said conviction, without proof of the signature or official character of the person appearing to have signed the same.

7. It shall not be necessary to prove by the attesting witness any instrument to the validity of which attestation is not requisite, and such instrument may be proved as if there had been no attesting witness thereto.

8. Comparison of a disputed writing with any writing, proved to the satisfaction of the judge to be genuine, shall be permitted to be made by witnesses; and such writings, and the evidence of witnesses respecting the same, may be submitted to the court and jury as evidence of the genuineness or otherwise of the writing in dispute.

9. The word "counsel" in this act shall be construed to apply to attorneys in all cases where attorneys are allowed by law, or by the practice of any court, to appear as advocates.

10. This act shall not apply to Scotland.

CAP. XIX.

An Act to extend the Period for borrowing the Sum authorised to be raised under the Metropolitan Main Drainage Extension Act, 1863.
[9th May, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Extension of time for borrowing powers to the 31st December, 1867.

2. Construction of this act and the Main Drainage Acts.

CAP. XX.

An Act to authorise the Inclosure of certain Lands in pursuance of a Report of the Inclosure Commissioners for England and Wales.
[9th May, 1865.]

CAP. XXI.

An Act to amend the Irish Bankrupt and Insolvent Act, 1857.
[9th May, 1865.]

Sect. 1. No railway company incorporated by Parliament liable to be made bankrupt under the 20 & 21 Vict. c. 60.

2. Not to affect any adjudication of bankruptcy already made.

3. Short title.

4. To extend to Ireland only.

Whereas it is expedient to provide that railway companies incorporated by act of Parliament shall not be liable to be adjudicated bankrupt: be it therefore enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. From and after the passing of this act, no railway company incorporated by act of Parliament shall be liable to be made bankrupt under the the Irish Bankrupt and Insolvent Act, 1857, and the provisions of the said act which relate to the bankruptcy of joint-stock companies shall not apply to railway companies so incorporated as aforesaid.

2. Nothing herein contained shall affect any adjudication of the bankruptcy of any such railway company made or to be made on any petition for adjudication presented on or before the 1st April, 1865, or the proceedings thereunder; it being, however, hereby declared, that no person, company, or body corporate, by reason of his or their being a shareholder or shareholders of any railway company made bankrupt under any such adjudication of bankruptcy, is or shall be liable to pay or contribute any sum beyond the extent of his or their shares in the capital of the company not paid up at the time of such adjudication.

3. This act may be cited for all purposes as "The Irish Bankrupt and Insolvent Amendment Act, 1865."

4. This act shall extend to Ireland only.

CAP. XXII.

An Act to amend the Acts relating to the Scottish Herring Fisheries.
[9th May, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Sect. 4 of the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 92, repealed.

2. Not lawful to fish for herrings from the 1st February to the 31st May, between Ardnamurchan and the Mull of Galloway.

CAP. XXIII.

An Act to confirm a Provisional Order under the Land Drainage Act, 1861. [9th May, 1865.]

CAP. XXIV.

An Act to confirm certain Provisional Orders under the Local Government Act, 1858, relating to the Districts of Bridlington, Brighouse, Burnley, Henley, Shipley, Wallingford, Llangollen, Ormskirk, Swansea, Tormoham, and Lockwood. [9th May, 1865.]

CAP. XXV.

An Act to confirm certain Provisional Orders under the Local Government Act, 1858, relating to the Districts of Derby, Ramsgate, Oswestry, Bury, Heap, Cockermouth, Matlock Bath, and Bromsgrove. [9th May, 1865.]

CAP. XXVI.

An Act to provide for Superannuation Allowances to Officers of Unions in Ireland. [26th May, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Power to guardians, with consent of Poor-law Commissioners, to grant superannuation allowances to officers in certain cases.

2. Such allowances not to be assignable, &c.
3. Limitation of grants of allowances.
4. Notice of grant to be given to guardians.
5. Interpretation of words herein used.

CAP. XXVII.

An Act for awarding Costs in certain Cases of Private Bills. [26th May, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Where committee report "preamble not proved," opponents to be entitled to recover costs.
2. When committee report unanimously "opposition unfounded," promoters to be entitled to recover costs. Proviso.
3. Costs to be taxed.
4. Powers of taxing officer.
5. Recovery of costs when taxed.
6. Form of action in Scotland.
7. Persons paying costs may recover a proportion from other persons liable thereto.
8. When committee report "preamble not proved," promoters to pay costs out of deposits.
9. Definition of promoters.
10. Meaning of private bill.
11. Commencement of act.

Whereas it is expedient to empower committees of both Houses of Parliament on private bills to award costs in certain cases: be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. When the committee on a private bill shall decide that the preamble is not proved, or shall insert in such bill any provision for the protection of any petitioner, or strike out or alter any provision of such bill for the protection of such petitioner, and further unanimously report, with respect to any or all of the petitioners against the bill, that such petitioner or petitioners has or have been unreasonably or vexatiously subjected to expense in defending his or their rights proposed to be interfered with by the bill, such petitioner or petitioners shall be entitled to recover from the promoters of such bill his or their costs in relation thereto, or such portion thereof as the committee may think fit; such costs to be taxed by the taxing officer of the House as hereinafter mentioned, or the committee may award such a sum for costs as they shall think fit, with the consent of the parties affected.

2. When the committee on a private bill shall decide that the preamble is proved, and further unanimously report that the promoters of the bill have been vexatiously subjected to expense in the promotion of the said bill by the opposition of any petitioner or petitioners against the same, then the promoters shall be entitled to recover from the petitioners, or such of them as the committee shall think fit, such portion of their costs of the promotion of the bill as the committee may think fit; such costs to be taxed by the taxing officer of the House as hereinafter mentioned, or such a sum for costs as the committee shall name, with the consent of parties affected; and in their report to the House the committee shall state what portion of the costs, or what sum for costs, they shall so think fit to award, together with the names of the parties liable to pay the same, and the names of the parties entitled to receive the same: provided always, that no landowner who bona fide at his own sole risk and charge opposes a bill which proposes to take any portion of the said petitioner's property for the purposes of the bill, shall be liable to any costs in respect of his opposition to such bill.

3. On application made to the taxing officer of the House by such promoters or petitioners, or by their solicitors or parliamentary agents, not later than six calendar months after the report of such committee, and in cases where no sum shall have been named by the committee, with the consent of the parties affected, not until one month after a bill of such costs shall have been delivered to the party chargeable therewith, which bill shall be sealed with the seal or subscribed with the proper hand of the parties claiming such costs, or of their solicitor or parliamentary agent, the taxing officer shall examine and touch such costs, and shall deliver to the parties affected, or either or any of them, on application, a certificate signed by himself expressing the amount of such costs, or in cases where a sum for costs shall have been named by the committee, with the consent as aforesaid, such sum as shall have been so named, with the name of the party liable to pay the same, and the name of the party entitled to receive the same, and such certificate shall be conclusive evidence as well of the amount of the demand as of the title of the party therein named to recover the same from the party therein stated to be liable to the payment thereof; and the party claiming under the same shall, upon payment thereof, give a receipt at the foot of such certificate, which shall be a sufficient discharge for the same.

4. All powers given to the taxing officer by the acts the 10 & 11 Vict. c. 69, and the 12 & 13 Vict. c. 78, with reference to the examination of parties and witnesses on oath, and with reference to the production of documents, and with reference to the fees payable in respect of any taxation, shall be vested in the taxing officer for the purposes of this act.

5. The party entitled to such taxed costs, or such sum named by the committee, with such consent as aforesaid, or his executors or administrators, may demand the whole amount thereof, so certified as above, from any one or more of the persons liable to the payment thereof, and in case of non-payment thereof on demand, may recover the same by action of debt in any of her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster or Dublin, or by action in the Court of Session in Scotland. In such action it shall be sufficient, in England or Ireland, for the plaintiff to declare that the defendant is indebted to him in the sum mentioned in the said certificate; and the said plaintiff shall, upon filing the said declaration, together with the said certificate and an affidavit of such demand as aforesaid, be at liberty to sign judgment as for want of plea by nil dicit, and take out execution for the said sum so mentioned in the said certificate, together with the costs of the said action, according to the due course of law: provided always, that the validity of such certificate shall not be called in question in any court.

6. In such action it shall be sufficient, in Scotland, for the pursuer to allege that the defender is indebted to him in the sum mentioned in the said certificate, under the like proviso in regard to the validity of the certificate.

7. In every case it shall be lawful for any person from whom the amount of such costs or sum named by the committee, with consent as aforesaid, has been so recovered, to recover from the other persons, or any of them, who are liable to the payment of such costs or sum named by the committee, with consent as aforesaid, a proportionate share thereof, according to the number of persons so liable, and according to the extent of the liability of each person.

8. In any case in which the committee shall have reported that the preamble is not proved, and where in accordance with the Standing Orders of either House of Parliament, and of an act of the 9 Vict. c. 20, a deposit of money or stock is made with respect to the application to Parliament for an act, the money or stock so deposited shall be a security for the payment by the promoters of the bill for the act of all costs or sums in respect of costs, if any, payable by them under this act: and every party entitled to receive any costs or sum so payable shall accordingly have a lien available in equity for the same on the money or stock so deposited, and the lien shall attach thereon at the time when the bill is first referred to a committee of either House of Parliament: provided, that where several parties have the lien for an amount exceeding in the aggregate the net value of the money or stock, their respective claims shall proportionably abate.

9. When a bill is not promoted by a company already formed, all persons whose names shall appear in such bill as promoting the same, and in the event of the bill passing the company thereby incorporated, shall be deemed to be promoters of such bill for all the purposes of this act.

10. For the purposes of this act, the expression "private bill" shall extend to, and include, any bill for a local and personal act.

11. That this act shall not take effect before the 1st November, 1865.

CAP. XXVIII.

An Act to authorise certain Payments out of the Land Revenues of the Crown to provide Compensation for certain Claims in the Isle of Man. [26th May, 1865.]

CAP. XXIX.

An Act for raising the Sum of One Million Pounds by Exchequer Bonds for the Service of the Year 1865. [26th May, 1865.]

CAP. XXX.

An Act to grant certain Duties of Customs and Inland Revenue. [26th May, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Grant of duties specified in schedules annexed.
 2. Provisions of former acts to apply to this act.
 3. The sums assessed to the income tax under Schedules (A.) and (B.) for the year 1864 to be taken as the annual value for assessment under this act.
 4. Assessors not to be appointed for duties under Schedules (A.) and (B.)
 5. Power to increase number of commissioners for general purposes in certain cases.
 6. No reduction to be made unless profits of the year are proved less than the average of last three years.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Commons of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, in Parliament assembled, towards raising the necessary supplies to defray your Majesty's public expenses, and making an addition to the public revenue, have freely and voluntarily resolved to give and grant unto your Majesty the several rates and duties hereinafter mentioned; and do therefore most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. There shall be charged, collected, and paid, for the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, the several rates and duties of customs and inland revenue respectively specified and contained in the several schedules marked respectively (A.), (B.), and (C.) to this act annexed; and the said rates and duties shall respectively take effect at or from the respective times, and shall continue to be charged, collected, and paid for and during the periods respectively specified or mentioned in that behalf in the said schedules respectively, and where no period is specified or limited for the duration thereof, the same shall continue to be charged, collected, and paid respectively until Parliament shall otherwise order; and the said several schedules shall be deemed to be part of this act.

2. All the powers, provisions, clauses, regulations, allowances, and exemptions, forfeitures, pains, and penalties, contained in or imposed by any act or acts, or any schedule thereto, relating to any duties of the same kind or description as the several rates or duties granted by this act respectively, and in force at the time of the passing of this act, and not hereby expressly repealed, or, as regards the income tax, in force on the 5th April, 1865 (except as hereinafter provided), shall respectively be in full force and effect with respect to the said rates and duties by this act granted respectively, so far as the same are or shall be applicable, in all cases not hereby expressly provided for, and shall be observed, applied, allowed, enforced, and put in execution for and in the raising, levying, collecting, and securing of the said last-mentioned rates and duties respectively, and otherwise in relation thereto, so far as the same shall not be superseded by, and shall be consistent with, the express provisions of this act, as fully and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as if the same had been herein repeated and specially enacted, mutatis mutandis, with reference to the rates and duties by this act granted respectively: provided always, that for the purposes of this act the year 1863, mentioned in the 43rd section of the act passed in the 25 Vict. c. 22, shall be read as and deemed to mean the year 1865.

3. The sum charged as the annual value or amount of any property, profits, or gains in the several and respective assessments of income tax made in pursuance of the act passed in the 27 Vict. c. 18, under Schedules (A.) and (B.) respectively of the act passed in the 16 & 17 Vict. c. 34, for the year ended on the 5th April, 1865, shall (except as to railways and otherwise as provided by the acts relating to income tax) be taken as the annual value or amount of such property, profits, or gains respectively for the year commencing on the 6th April, 1865, and the duties of income tax granted by this act, and chargeable under the said schedules respectively, shall be computed, assessed, and charged according to such annual value or amount; and the commissioners executing the Income Tax Acts shall, for each place within their several and respective districts, cause duplicates of the assessments of the said duties so computed, assessed, and charged under the said Schedules (A.) and (B.) for the said last-mentioned year to be made out and delivered, together with warrants for collecting the same; and in England the said commissioners shall appoint such persons, being inhabitants of the place to which the duplicate shall relate, as they, the said commissioners shall think fit, to be collectors of the duties thereby charged, in like manner as if such persons had been presented to them by assessors under the acts now in force: provided always, that the said assessments shall be subject to be increased in like manner as the assessments made for the year ended on the 5th April, 1865, and subject also to be abated or discharged at the end of the year commencing on the 6th April, 1865, for any cause allowed by the said acts: provided that whenever it shall appear that any property, profits, or gains chargeable under the said Schedules (A.) and (B.) respectively have not been charged by the assessments made for the year ended on the 5th April, 1865, such property, profits, and gains shall be assessed to the duties of income tax granted by this act under the provisions of the said several acts applicable thereto.

4. No assessors shall be appointed for the duties payable under the said Schedules (A.) and (B.), but the inspectors or surveyors of taxes shall act as assessors in respect of such duties whenever it shall be necessary; and in lieu of the poundage granted by the 183rd section of the 5 & 6 Vict. c. 35, to be divided between the assessors and collectors in regard to the duties which shall be collected under the said Schedules (A.) and (B.), there shall be paid a poundage of 1½d. to the collectors of the said duties.

5. Whereas by sect. 4 of the act passed in the 5 & 6 Vict. c. 35, provision is made for choosing and appointing persons to be commissioners for the execution of the Income Tax Acts in Great Britain, and the number of persons so to be appointed is limited to seven persons appointed commissioners for the general purposes of the said acts, and seven to supply vacancies amongst such commissioners, in each district or division, and it is necessary to increase the number of such commissioners and persons respectively in certain cases: be it enacted, that whenever it shall appear to the Board of Inland Revenue that the number of persons so appointed, or to be appointed, for any district, division, or place in Great Britain is insufficient for the proper discharge of the business arising under this act, the Board shall authorise the increase of the number of persons to be chosen commissioners for general purposes for such district, division, or place to any number not exceeding fourteen, and of persons to supply vacancies amongst such commissioners to any number not exceeding fourteen, and such persons shall respectively be appointed and chosen according to the regulations contained in the said enactment.

6. And whereas by sect. 133 of the said act of the 5 & 6 Vict. [c. 35], provision is made for giving relief, by reduction of the assessment, for repayment of duty in certain cases where the profits of the year of assessment fall short of the sum on which the assessment has been made: be it enacted, that no such reduction or repayment shall be made in any such case unless the profits of the said year of assessment are proved to be less than the profits for one year on the average of the last three years, including the said year of assessment; nor shall any such relief extend to any greater amount than the difference between the sum on which the assessment has been made and such average profits for one year as aforesaid.

SCHEDULES.

SCHEDULE (A.)

Containing the Duty of Customs granted by this Act.

In lieu of the duties of customs now charged on tea, the following duties of customs shall, on and after the 1st June, 1865, until the 1st August, 1866, be charged thereon, on the importation thereof into Great Britain and Ireland; (that is to say),

Tea, the lb. £0 0 6

SCHEDULE (B.)

Containing the Stamp Duties granted by this Act on Fire Insurance.

In lieu of the duties now payable in respect of insurances against loss or damage by fire only, there shall be charged, collected, and paid the following duties; (that is to say),

For and upon every policy of assurance or insurance, or other instrument, by whatever name the same shall be called, whereby any insurance shall, on and after the 25th June, 1865, be made of or upon any building, goods, wares, merchandise, or other property, from loss or damage by fire only, the duty of 1*d.* :

And for and upon any note or memorandum given as a receipt on the deposit of any sum of money preparatory to the making out or issuing of any such policy as aforesaid, the duty of 1*d.* :

And for and in respect of every such insurance as aforesaid which shall be made, or continued or renewed, on or after the said 25th June, 1865, a duty of 1*s.* 6*d.* for every 100*l.* insured for a year, and at and after that rate for any fractional part of 100*l.* insured, and for any fractional part of a year, as well as for any number of years for which the insurance shall be made, or continued or renewed; but no fraction of 1*d.* shall be charged; and when any such insurance as aforesaid shall be made or renewed at any time between the 27th April, 1865, and the said 25th June, for any period of time extending beyond the said last-mentioned day, there shall be charged and paid for and in respect of the time intervening between the making or renewing of the said insurance and the said 25th June, the yearly percentage duty, at and after the rate chargeable on the said 27th April, and for and in respect of any subsequent period, including the said 25th June, the rate of duty chargeable according to this act; and no return or allowance of duty, except at and after the last-mentioned rate, shall be made, in respect of time unexpired or otherwise, on any such insurance as aforesaid, which shall have been made or renewed before the said 27th April, 1865.

SCHEDULE (C.)

Containing the Rates and Duties of Income Tax granted by this Act.

For one year commencing on the 6th April, 1865, and in respect of all property, profits, and gains mentioned or described as chargeable in the act passed in the 16 & 17 Vict. c. 34, for granting to her Majesty duties on property arising from property, professions, trades, and offices, the following rates and duties shall be charged; (that is to say),

For every 20*s.* of the annual value or amount of all such property, profits, and gains (except those chargeable under Schedule (B.) of the said act), the rate or duty of 4*d.* :

And for and in respect of the occupation of lands, tenements, hereditaments, and heritages chargeable under Schedule (B.) of the said act, for every 20*s.* of the annual value thereof—

In England the rate or duty of 2*d.* :

And in Scotland and Ireland respectively the rate or duty of 1½*d.* :

Subject to the provisions contained in sect. 3 of the 26 Vict. c. 22, for the exemption of persons whose whole income from every source is under 100*l.* a year, and relief of those whose income is under 200*l.* a year.

CAP. XXXI.

An Act to enable the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Works and Public Buildings to acquire additional Lands for improving the Site of the new Public Offices in Downing-street, and the Approaches thereto. [2nd June, 1865.]

CAP. XXXII.

An Act to enable the Secretary of State in Council of India to acquire additional Lands for improving the Site of the India Office, and the Approaches thereto. [2nd June, 1865.]

CAP. XXXIII.

An Act to repeal the Act of the Parliament of Ireland, of the 6 Ann. c. 11, for explaining and amending the several Acts against Tories, Robbers, and Rapparees. [2nd June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. The 6 Ann. c. 11 (I.), &c. repealed.

2. Grand juries not to present persons as vagrants.

3. Short title.

4. Sect. 7 of the 50 Geo. 3, c. 102, repealed.

Sect. 1. The Irish act of the 6 Ann. c. 11, for explaining and amending two several acts against tories, robbers, and rapparees, and so much of any act or acts as revives or makes perpetual the same, are hereby repealed.

2. From and after the passing of this act, it shall not be lawful for any grand jury to present any person in Ireland as a vagrant, any statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

3. This act to be called "The Vagrancy (Ireland) Amendment Act, 1865."

4. The 7th section of the 50 Geo. 3, c. 102, is hereby repealed.

CAP. XXXIV.

An Act to make the Metropolitan Houseless Poor Act perpetual. [2nd June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Provisions of recited act extended to relief after Lady-day, 1865. Sect. 6 repealed.

2. Poor-law Board to have wards inspected, and may revoke and renew certificate.

3. Allowance may be made for providing wards.

4. Power to police to provide for temporary relief.

5. Hours during which wards shall be open for admission.

6. Short title.

Whereas it is expedient that the provisions of the Metropolitan Houseless Poor Act, 1864, should be made perpetual: be it therefore enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. That the provisions of the said act shall be extended to the expenditure for relief of destitute wayfarers, wanderers, and foundlings, or other destitute persons, in the several unions and parishes referred to in the said act, relieved and to be relieved from and after Lady-day, 1865; and the 6th section of the said act is hereby repealed.

2. The Poor-law Board shall from time to time cause the wards and other places of reception provided according to the said act to be inspected not less than once in every four months between the hours of six o'clock in the evening and eight in the morning in the months between October and March inclusive, and between the hours of eight o'clock in the evening and eight in the morning in the months between April and September inclusive; and the results of such inspections shall be reported to the Poor-law Board, who may at any time revoke and renew the certificates granted or to be granted under the 1st section of that act.

3. The said board may allow for the costs and expenses referred to in the 4th section of that act, when they shall see fit to do so, a sum or several sums in gross instead of a sum in respect of each pauper as therein provided.

4. Any constable of the metropolitan police or of the police of the city of London may personally conduct any destitute wayfarer, wanderer, or foundling, or other destitute person, not having committed or being charged with any offence punishable by law, within the knowledge of such constable, to any wards or other places of reception approved of by the Poor-law Board under the said act or this act; and every such wayfarer, wanderer, or foundling shall, if there be room in such wards or other places of reception, be temporarily relieved therein.

5. The wards or places of reception provided under the said act shall be open for the admission of destitute wayfarers, wanderers, and foundlings, or other destitute persons, who shall apply to be admitted during the hours between six o'clock in the evening and eight in the morning in the months between October and March inclusive, and during the hours between eight o'clock in the evening and eight o'clock in the morning in the months between April and September inclusive, and the guardians shall be entitled to be reimbursed for all the relief administered in conformity within the provisions of that act during those hours respectively.

6. This act may be cited for all purposes as "The Metropolitan Houseless Poor Act, 1865."

CAP. XXXV.

An Act to amend the Law relating to the Police Superannuation Funds in Counties and Boroughs.

[2nd June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Short title.

2. Short titles of certain Police Acts.

3. Amendment of sect. 11 of the 3 & 4 Vict. c. 88, sect. 10 of the 19 & 20 Vict. c. 69, and sects. 9 and 10 of the 22 & 23 Vict. c. 39.

4. Head constable included in provisions of the 22 & 23 Vict. c. 32.

5. Nothing to prevent dismissals without retiring allowances. Proviso.

6. Parts of Lincolnshire to be one county for purposes of service in police, so long as county continues under one chief constable.

7. Appointment of joint committees.

8. Consequences of police force in county of Lincoln ceasing to be under one chief constable.

9. As to superannuation of constables formerly watchmen of Brighton under the 6 Geo. 4, c. clxxix.

CAP. XXXVI.

An Act to amend the Law relating to the Registration of County Voters, and to the Powers and Duties of Revising Barristers in certain Cases.

[2nd June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Short title.

2. Clerk of peace to deliver precept to overseers of poor on or before the 10th June in every year.

3. Overseers to publish register.

4. 20th August last day for giving notices of objection.

5. 1st September last day for delivery of papers to clerk of peace.

6. Grounds of objection to be specified in notice.

7. Person objected to only required to give evidence in support of his right to vote &c.

8. Each ground of objection to be treated by revising barrister as a separate objection.

9. Sect. 100 of principal act to apply to objections.

10. Persons changing their place of abode, and persons objected to, may make declarations.

11. Penalty for falsely signing such declaration.

12. As to time for revision of county lists.

13. Orders for costs.

14. Such costs in no case to exceed 5l.

15. Revising barrister to read out names expunged and inserted.

16. Power to remove persons from court who interrupt proceedings.

17. Interpretation of terms.

Whereas it is expedient to amend an act passed in the session of Parliament holden in the 6 & 7 Vict. [c. 18], intituled "An Act to amend the Law for the Registration of Persons entitled to vote, and to define certain Rights of Voting, and to regulate certain Proceedings in the Election of Members to serve in Parliament for England and Wales," so far as relates to the registration of county voters, and to the powers and duties of revising barristers: be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. This act may be cited as "The County Voters Registration Act, 1865," and shall be construed with, and as part of, the said recited act, hereinafter termed "The Principal Act."

2. The clerk of the peace shall, on or before the 10th June in every year, make and cause to be delivered to the overseers of the poor of every parish and township within his county his precept according to the Form No. 1 in Schedule (A.) to this act, instead of the precept numbered 1 in Schedule (A.) to the principal act, together with the forms of notices, list, and copies of register in the principal act mentioned.

8. The clerk of the peace of every county shall, together with the precept, transmit to the overseers of every parish or township within such county a sufficient number of copies of the part or parts of the register relating to such parish or township; and the overseers of the poor of every parish and township shall, on or before the 20th June in every year, and at the same time with the publication of the notice mentioned in the 4th section of the principal act, publish a copy of the register then in force relating to their parish or township, and shall remove the same after a period including two Sundays at least, and not later than the 20th July.

4. The 20th August shall be the last day for giving notices of objection to the overseers and to the person objected to; and the 7th section of the principal act shall be read as if the word "twentieth" had been substituted therein for the word "twenty-fifth."

5. The 1st September shall be the last day for the delivery, by the overseers to the clerk of the peace, of the papers mentioned in the 9th section of the principal act; and such section shall be read as if the words "first day of September" had been substituted therein for the words "twenty-ninth day of August."

6. Any notice of objection to any person on the list of claimants for any parish or township may be given according to the provisions of the 7th section of the principal act, but, with that exception, no notice of objection given under the provisions of the said 7th section, other than a notice to the overseers, shall be valid, unless the ground or grounds of objection be specifically stated therein; and this provision shall be deemed to be sufficiently satisfied by naming the column or columns of the list on which the objector grounds his objection: provided always, that if the objection be grounded on the third column, then it shall be necessary to state in the notice whether the objection relates to the nature of the voter's interest in the qualifying property, or to the value of the qualifying property, or to both; and each of such last-mentioned grounds of objection shall be deemed a separate ground of objection, as well as any objection grounded on any one of the other columns; and such last-mentioned notice may be according to the form numbered 2 in Schedule (A.) to this act, or to the like effect, in substitution for the form numbered 5 in Schedule (A.) to the principal act.

7. No person objected to under the provisions of this act shall be required to give evidence before the revising barrister in support of his right to be registered, otherwise than as such right shall be called in question in such ground or grounds of objection.

8. Every separate ground of objection shall be treated by the revising barrister as a separate objection; and for every ground of objection which, in the opinion of the revising barrister, shall have been groundlessly or frivolously and vexatiously stated in a notice of objection, he shall, on the application of the person objected to, or any one on his behalf, and upon production of the notice of objection, award costs against the objector to the amount at least of 2s. 6d., and this though the name of the person objected to be expunged upon some other ground of objection stated in the same notice of objection.

9. The provisions of the 100th section of the principal act shall apply to notices of objection given under the provisions of this act.

10. Any person whose name appears on the list of voters then in force, and whose then place of abode is not correctly stated in the said list, or who shall have received a notice of objection grounded on the second column of the list, and who shall have possessed on the last day of July the same qualifications in respect of which his name has been inserted on the list, may, if he think fit, make and subscribe a declaration before any justice of the peace, or any commissioner or other person authorised to administer oaths in any of her Majesty's superior courts at Westminster, in the form contained in Schedule (B.) to this act, or to the like effect; and all such declarations shall be duly dated, and shall, on or before the 14th September, be transmitted to the clerk of the peace; and it shall be the duty of the clerk of the peace to indorse on every such declaration the name of the polling district, and of the parish or township in which the qualification to which the declaration relates is situate, and the name of the person making the declaration, and also the date on which he has received the same, and to affix his initials to such last-mentioned indorsement, and to deliver all such declarations to the revising barrister at his first court, arranged under the heads of the several polling districts, according to the alphabetical order of the parishes and townships; and every revising barrister shall, for the purpose of correcting the statement in the list of the place of abode of such person, receive any such declaration as evidence, to be used in court at the proper time, if transmitted to the clerk of the peace on or before such last-mentioned day, of which the indorsement in that behalf by the clerk of the peace shall be prima facie proof, and if purporting to be subscribed before a justice of the peace, or commissioner, or other person authorised as aforesaid, without proof of the signature of the person subscribing the same, or of the justice, commissioner, or person before whom the same purports to have been subscribed, unless he shall have good reason to doubt the genuineness of any signature thereto; and all such declarations may be perused by any person at the office of the clerk of the peace, without payment of any fee, at any time between the hours of ten of the clock in the forenoon, and four of the clock in the afternoon of any day, except Sunday, before the 20th September; and the clerk of the peace shall deliver copies of any such declaration to all persons applying for the same, on payment of the price of 4d. per folio of seventy-two words.

11. Any person falsely or fraudulently signing any such declaration in the name of any other person, whether such person shall be living or dead, and every person transmitting as genuine any false or falsified declaration, knowing the same to be false or falsified, and any person knowingly and wilfully making any false statement of fact in such declaration, shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and punishable by fine or imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year, and the revising barrister shall have power to impound any such declaration.

12. No court shall be holden by a revising barrister for the revision of the lists of any county before the 20th September in any year.

13. Every order for costs by a revising barrister, whether revising the lists of a county, city, or borough, in the case of any objection, shall be made before his proceeding to hear any objection stated in any other notice of objection, and such order may be delivered either to the person to whom the costs shall therein be ordered to be paid, or to some other person on his behalf: provided always, that this section shall not be taken to repeal the last proviso contained in the 46th of the principal act.

14. The sum ordered to be paid by way of costs shall not upon any one vote exceed the sum of 5*l.*, and the 46th section of the principal act shall be read as if the words "five pounds" had been substituted therein for the words "twenty shillings."

15. It shall be the duty of every revising barrister, whether revising the lists of a county, city, or borough, before signing any page of any list, as required by the 41st section of the principal act, to read out audibly in open court the names expunged and inserted by him therein, and all corrections and insertions made by him.

16. It shall be lawful for any revising barrister, whether revising the lists of a county, city, or borough, to order any person to be removed from this court who shall interrupt the business of the court, or refuse to obey his lawful orders in respect of the same; and it shall be the duty of the chief constable, commissioner, or chief officer of police of the county, city, borough, or place in which the court is held, to take care that an officer of police do attend that court during its sitting, for the purpose of keeping order therein, and to carry into effect any order of the revising barrister as aforesaid.

17. For the purposes of this act the word "value" shall in the case of an objection to any person claiming to be retained or inserted in the list as an occupying tenant mean "amount of rental."

SCHEDULES TO WHICH THIS ACT REFERS.

SCHEDULE (A.)

No. 1.

Precept of the Clerk of the Peace to the Overseers.

County of —, } To the overseers of the poor of the parish to wit. } of — [or of the township of —.]

In pursuance of the provisions of the acts of Parliament in that behalf, I require your attention to the following INSTRUCTIONS.

On or before the 20th June you are to publish one of the copies of the register for your parish [or township] herewith sent, together with a notice, signed by you, according to the form marked No. 2, among the printed forms herewith sent.

The manner in which you are required to publish that register and notice is as follows (that is to say), you are to fix one of the printed copies (each copy being first signed by you) on or near the outside of the outer door or of the outer wall near the door of every church and public chapel in your parish or township, including chapels which do not belong to the Established Church, or if there should be no such church or chapel, then in some public or conspicuous situation in your parish [or township], and it must remain there during a period including two Sundays at least, and not later than the 20th July.

On or before the last day of July you are to make out an alphabetical list of all persons who, on or before the 20th July, shall have delivered or sent to you their claims as voters for the county [riding, &c.] in which your parish [or township] lies, in respect of any property situate wholly or in part within your parish [or township]; and in making out such list you are to write or cause to be written, in the proper column of the printed form of list (herewith sent) numbered 3, the Christian name and surname of every such person, with the place of his abode, the nature of his qualification, and the local or other description of the property, and the name of the occupier, accordingly as the same shall be stated in the claim. If you have reasonable cause to believe that any person so claiming, or any person whose name shall appear in the copy of the register for your parish [or township] herewith sent, is not entitled to have his name on the new register about to be made, you are to add the word "objected" before his name in the margin of the copy of the register or list in which his name appears; and you are also to add the word "dead" before the name of any person whom you shall have reasonable cause to believe to be dead. Having done this, you are to sign the list of claimants, and also one of the copies of the register herewith sent, and to cause a sufficient number of copies of such lists to be written or printed, and then, on or before the 1st August, you are to publish the said register and lists, with your marginal additions, on every church and chapel in your parish [or township], in the same manner as before mentioned with regard to the notice.

You are to keep a copy of the list of claimants and of the said register sent to you, with your marginal additions thereon, signed by you, and to allow them to be perused by every person desirous of perusing them, at any time between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and four o'clock in the afternoon of any day, except Sunday, during the first fourteen days after you have published them, without payment or demand of any fee; and you are also to deliver copies of the list of claimants and of the said register, signed by you, to every person applying for the same, on payment of a price for such copy after the rate contained in the table marked Schedule (D.), No. 1, herewith sent.

You are to make out a list, according to the form numbered 6 (herewith sent), containing the name of every person against whom a notice of objection shall have been given to you, or any one of you, on or before the 20th August; and you are to publish copies of such lists on or before the 1st September on every church and chapel in your parish or township, in the same manner as before mentioned with regard to the notice; and you are to keep a copy of such list of persons objected to, to be perused by any person, without payment or fee, at any time between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and four o'clock in the afternoon of any day, except Sunday during the first fourteen days of September, both inclusive; and you are to deliver a copy of such list to any person requiring the same, on payment of a price for such copy after the rate contained in the table marked Schedule (D.), No. 1, herewith sent.

And if you shall find any such notice, list, register, or other document published by you as aforesaid to be destroyed, mutilated, defaced, or removed, you are forthwith to place another to the same effect in its place.

On or before the 1st September you are to deliver to the clerk of the peace of the county [riding, &c.] wherein your parish [or township] is situate, the list of claimants, the copy of the part of the register (herewith sent), and also a copy of the list of persons objected to, signed by you.

You are to attend the court to be holden by the barrister appointed to revise the lists relating to your parish [or township], of the time and place of holding which notice will be sent to you; and you are there to deliver to the barrister holding such court the original notices of claim and original notices of objection given to you as aforesaid.

Herein if you fail you will be liable to the penalties in that case provided. Given under my hand, this — day of —.

—, clerk of the peace for the county of —.

No. 2.

Notice of Objection to be given to Parties already on the Register objected to by any Person other than Overseers, and to the occupying Tenant of the qualifying Property, where Notice is required to be given to the occupying Tenant.

To Mr. —, of — [here insert the name and place of abode of the person objected to as described in the list, and in the case of notice to the tenant of the qualifying property, insert his name and place of abode, as described in the list.]

Take notice that I object to your name [in the notice to the tenant instead of the words "your name," insert the name of the person objected to] being retained in the [here insert the name of the parish] list of voters for the county of — [or for the — Riding, &c.]

And I ground my objection, on the 1st column of the register, or on the 2nd column,
or on the 3rd column,

and the objection relates to the nature of your interest [in the notice to the tenant instead of the words "your interest," insert "the interest of" here insert the name of the person objected to], in the qualifying property; or to the value of the qualifying property;

or on the 4th column.

Dated this — day of — 18—.

Signed A. B., of [place of abode], on the register of voters for the parish of —.

SCHEDULE (C.)

Form of Declaration by Voter as to his Place of Abode.

I, A. B., of [place of abode], on the list of voters for the parish [or township] of —, in the county [or riding or division of the county] of —, do solemnly and sincerely declare, that I possessed on the last day of July now last past the same qualification in respect of which my name has been inserted in such list, and that my true place of abode is now —.

(Signed) A. B.

Place of abode.

C. D.

Made and subscribed before me the — day of —,
in the year —.

[Signature of justice, &c.]
[Statement of his quality, as justice, &c.]

CAP. XXXVII.

An Act to make better Provision respecting the Transaction of County Business and the Administration of Justice at Quarter Sessions in the County of Sussex; and to confirm certain Proceedings of the Justices of the said County.

[2nd June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Divisions to be separate counties for purposes herein described.

2. Divisions not to separate counties for other purposes herein described.

3. 21 & 22 Vict. c. 33, not to apply to Sussex.

4. Divisions to be such for purposes of future acts.

5. Provisions as to adjourned sessions.

6. Precepts for divisions separately.

7. Notices of appeals.

8. Special court of general sessions.

9. Mode of summoning special court.

10. Quorum and adjournment of special court.

11. Authority of special court.

12. Orders of special court.

13. Rates for bridges in western division.

14. Nothing to affect sect. 6 of the 18 & 19 Vict. c. 57, as to expenses relating to militia.

15. Militia storehouses.

16. Nothing to affect provisions of the 48 Geo. 3, c. cvii.

17. Proceedings for acts done may be stayed by court.

18. Repeal of the 27 & 28 Vict. c. 100.

19. Short title.

Whereas, although there is only one commission of the peace for the whole county of Sussex, the county has for convenience been long treated as divided, for the purposes of the transaction of the public business of the county and the administration of justice at quarter sessions, into the eastern division and the western division; and it is expedient that legal validity be given to such division for those purposes, both as to the past and as to the future: be it therefore enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. Subject to the provisions of this act, the eastern division and the western division of the county of Sussex shall each be, and be deemed to have been, a county of itself in relation to the matters and business following, namely—in relation to the several matters specified in the first schedule to this act, whether arising under, or regulated by, the several enactments therein specified, or under or by any other enactments for the time being in force—and in relation to all matters whatever arising under, or regulated by, any of the enactments in the same schedule specified—and in relation to all expenditure required or permitted by any of those enactments, or by any other enactments for the time being in force to be made out of county rates, or rates in the nature of county rates—and in relation to all business connected with any of the matters in the present section mentioned, as far as the same relate to either division separately; and the justices of the peace for the county, sitting in quarter sessions for the county in each division thereof, shall have, and be deemed to have had, the like powers and authorities to transact such business in and for each division separately, as if each division was, and had been, a whole county of itself, with a commission of the peace for such whole county.

2. Nothing in this act shall make a division of the county of Sussex a county of itself in relation to any of the several matters specified in the second schedule to this act, whether arising under, or regulated by, any of the several enactments therein specified, or under or by any other enactments for the time being in force—or in relation to any matter whatever arising under, or regulated by, any of the enactments in the same schedule specified—or in relation to any expenditure required or permitted by any of those enactments, or by any other enactments for the time being in force to be made by justices of the peace out of county rates, or rates in the nature of county rates, for the purposes of any establishment, matter, or thing, over the establishing or constituting whereof justices of the peace as such have no authority—or in relation to any business connected with any of the matters in the present section mentioned.

3. Nothing in the act of the session of the 21 & 22 Vict. c. 33, "for the better Management of County Rates," shall apply, or be deemed to have applied, to the county of Sussex.

4. Where any enactment, passed after the passing of this act, has reference to divisions of a county, then, subject to the provisions of this act (unless a contrary intention appears), the divisions of the county of Sussex shall be deemed divisions within the meaning of such enactment, and every such enactment shall extend and apply to the divisions of the county of Sussex, as if they had separate commissions of the peace.

5. Every court held or to be held in either division of the county of Sussex, purporting to be a court of quarter sessions for the county, and begun to be held in that division within the time allowed by law for the holding of quarter sessions for the county, but after the conclusion of the business of the court of quarter sessions for the county sitting in the other division, shall for all purposes be deemed to have been, or to be, the court of quarter sessions for the county duly continued by adjournment from the court of quarter sessions for the county which before sat in the other division, and that whether the adjournment of the court from a place in the one division to a place in the other division was or is actually made or not, or was or is recorded or not.

6. It shall be, and be deemed to have been, lawful for justices of the peace for the county of Sussex, in the manner heretofore used, to issue their precept from time to time to the sheriff of the county, to summon men of the body of one division of the county to serve as jurors at a court of quarter sessions, original or adjourned, to be held in that division, and to cause such precept to relate in all respects to one division only of the county, as if the division was and had been a county of itself, and for all sheriffs, constables, officers, and persons to act under a precept so framed.

7. With respect to any notice required to be given by one party to another relative to any appeal or other matter to be heard and determined by the court of quarter sessions of the peace for the county of Sussex, the first day of sessions shall be deemed to be the day on which the court of quarter sessions for the county begins to be held in that division wherein the appeal or other matter is heard and determined.

8. Nothing in this act shall interfere with the power of the justices of the peace for the county of Sussex to hold a court of general sessions of the peace for the county; and a special court of general sessions may be summoned and held as hereafter in this act provided.

9. If at any time two or more justices of the peace for the county of Sussex deliver to the clerk of the peace for the county or his deputy a requisition in writing under their hands and seals for the summoning and holding of a special court of general sessions for the county under this act, stating the business which they desire to be brought before the court, and the time and place at which the court is to be held (the time being not less than twenty-one days after the delivery of the requisition, and the place being within the county), the clerk of the peace shall, as soon as may be, and within seven days after the delivery to him of the requisition, publish the same, with a notice that a court will be held accordingly, by advertisement inserted in two newspapers usually circulating in the county of Sussex.

10. A special court of general sessions of the peace for the county of Sussex shall be held in accordance with such requisition; and nine justices shall be a quorum thereof; and the court may adjourn from time to time and from place to place within the county as seems fit.

11. Such a special court of general sessions shall have authority to transact the following business, and no other, namely, any business specified in the requisition, provided it is shewn to the court that it relates to or involves a question with respect to the total amount, or the shares chargeable to the divisions severally, of any expenditure incurred or to be incurred for a purpose common to or affecting both divisions or concerning the whole county at large (including expenditure in relation to any establishment, matter, or thing for the purposes of which the divisions of the county of Sussex, under the joint operation of this act and of any act relative to such establishment, matter, or thing, are for the time being united or authorised to be united as two counties of themselves), or with respect to some matter or thing preliminary to or consequent on any such expenditure, and either that a difference on the question has arisen between the justices sitting in quarter sessions in the divisions severally, or that the question has been referred to the special court by the justices sitting in quarter sessions in one of the divisions.

12. The special court of general sessions shall not make, assess, or levy any rate, or make any order on the treasurer of either division of the county of Sussex, but the order of the special court in any business transacted by it shall be binding on the justices of the peace sitting in quarter sessions in each division, and shall be carried into effect by those justices accordingly, as far as the divisions severally are affected by the order.

13. It shall be, and be deemed to have been, lawful for the justices of the peace for the county of Sussex sitting in quarter sessions, in the western division of the county, in the manner heretofore used, to make, assess, and levy separate rates, in the nature of county rates, on and in the several rapes in that division, for repair and maintenance of bridges in the several rapes, and to appoint separate treasurers of the several rapes for the purposes of those rates.

14. Nothing in this act shall affect the provisions of sect. 6 of the act of the session of the 18 & 19 Vict. c. 57, "further to amend the Laws relating to the Militia in England," concerning the expenses to be paid for the purposes of the acts therein mentioned relating to the militia in the county of Sussex, or empower justices of the peace for the county of Sussex sitting in quarter sessions, or in special court of general sessions, or otherwise, to alter those provisions.

15. It shall be, and be deemed to have been, lawful for the justices of the peace for the county of Sussex, to provide and maintain out of county rates for the militia of the county two separate storehouses, with quarters for the permanent staff, and other proper conveniences and appurtenances, at separate places.

16. Nothing in this act shall affect the provisions of the act (local and personal) of the 48 Geo. 3 [c. cvii], "for enabling the Justices of the Peace for the Eastern Division of the County of Sussex to take down the present Shire Hall or Sessions House in the Town of Lewes, and for enabling them to build another Shire Hall or Sessions House in a more convenient Situation within the said Town."

17. Any action or proceeding whatever shall not, after the passing of this act, lie or be maintainable against any person on account of the doing or omitting, at any time before the passing of this act, of anything the doing or omission whereof is made valid or lawful by this act; and if any such action or proceeding is nevertheless brought or instituted, the court in which the same is brought or instituted, or any judge thereof, may, on the application of the defendant, make such order therein for staying proceedings, or such other order as seems just; but any such order may be at any time afterwards discharged or varied as justices may require.

18. The act of the last session of Parliament (c. 100) "to confirm certain Proceedings of the Justices of Sussex," is hereby repealed; but this repeal shall not affect the past operation of that act, or any rate, order, act, matter, or thing made, done, or regulated under that act before the passing of this act.

19. This act may be cited as "The County of Sussex Act, 1865."

THE FIRST SCHEDULE.

Matters respecting which Divisions to be deemed separate Counties.

County treasurers—12 Geo. 2, c. 29.

County rates—15 & 16 Vict. c. 81.

Constabulary—2 & 3 Vict. c. 93; 3 & 4 Vict. c. 88; 7 & 8 Vict. c. 33; 19 & 20 Vict. c. 69; 22 & 23 Vict. c. 32.

Gaols and houses of correction—4 Geo. 4, c. 64; 5 Geo. 4, c. 85; 6 Geo. 4, c. 40; 7 Geo. 4, c. 18; 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 38; 5 & 6 Vict. c. 98; 13 & 14 Vict. c. 105; 16 & 17 Vict. c. 43.

Asylums for pauper lunatics—16 & 17 Vict. c. 97; 18 & 19 Vict. c. 105; 19 & 20 Vict. c. 87; 25 & 26 Vict. c. 111.

Bridges—12 Geo. 2, c. 29; 14 Geo. 2, c. 33; 43 Geo. 3, c. 59; 52 Geo. 3, c. 110; 54 Geo. 3, c. 90; 55 Geo. 3, c. 143; 4 & 5 Vict. c. 49.

Highways—25 & 26 Vict. c. 61; 27 & 28 Vict. c. 101.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

Matters respecting which Divisions not to be deemed separate Counties.

Militia—17 & 18 Vict. c. 105; 18 & 19 Vict. c. 57; 23 & 24 Vict. c. 94.

Coroners salaries—23 & 24 Vict. c. 116.

Judges lodgings—7 Geo. 4, c. 63; 2 & 3 Vict. c. 69.

CAP. XXXVIII.

An Act to authorise the Alteration of the Time for holding Statutory Meetings of Commissioners of Supply in Scotland.
[19th June, 1865.]

CAP. XXXIX.

An Act to authorise the Inclosure of certain Lands in pursuance of a Report of the Inclosure Commissioners for England and Wales.
[19th June, 1865.]

CAP. XL.

An Act to extend to the Court of Chancery of the County Palatine of Lancaster certain of the Provisions of an Act passed in the Session, holden in the 23 & 24 Vict., intituled "An Act to give to Trustees, Mortgagees, and others, certain Powers now commonly inserted in Settlements, Mortgages, and Wills." [19th June, 1865.]

Whereas it is doubtful whether the provisions contained in the 27th section of the act passed in the session holden in the 23 & 24 Vict. [c. 145], intituled "An Act to give to Trustees, Mortgagees, and others, certain Powers now commonly inserted in Settlements, Mortgages, and Wills," apply to trustees appointed by the Court of Chancery of the County Palatine of Lancaster: be it declared and enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. That the words "the Court of Chancery" in the 27th section of the last-mentioned act shall be deemed to extend to and include the Court of Chancery of the County Palatine of Lancaster.

CAP. XLI.

An Act to confirm certain Provisional Orders under the Local Government Act, 1858, relating to the Districts of Sheffield, Bradford, and Gloucester. [19th June, 1865.]

CAP. XLIII.

An Act for facilitating the Annexation of Tithes to District Churches. [19th June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Short title of act.

2. Definition of terms.

3. Power to rectors or vicars to sell tithes to district church.

4. Assents required to agreement.

5. Form of agreement.

6. Assents how testified.

7. Persons and bodies corporate empowered to give lands or goods for the purposes of this act.

8. Agreement to be carried into effect by Order in Council.

9. Where tithes belong to incumbent of district church, Ecclesiastical Commissioners may declare church to be either a rectory or vicarage.

Whereas by the act of the session of 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 45, s. 21, it is, amongst other things, provided that it shall be lawful for any rector or vicar for the time being of any rectory or vicarage, by a deed duly executed by him, to annex to any chapel of ease or parochial chapel to any district church or chapel, or any chapel having a district assigned thereto, whether already built or hereafter to be built (such chapel of ease or other chapel or church, with the district or place to which the same belongs, being situate within the limits or within the original limits of the said rectory or vicarage), any part or parts of the tithes or other annual revenues belonging to such rectory or vicarage: provided that every such annexation be made with such consents as are therein mentioned: and whereas it is expedient to extend the powers of annexing tithes to district churches: be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. This act may be cited for all purposes as "The District Church Tithes Act, 1865."

2. For the purposes of this act "district church" shall include any chapel of ease or parochial chapel, or any district church or chapel or any church or chapel having a district assigned thereto, whether already built or hereafter to be built, and the church of any parish formed or to be formed under the new Parishes Acts, 1843, 1844, and 1856, or any of such acts; and "district" shall include any such parish as last aforesaid, or any ancient or consolidated chapelry, or any parish or district formed under any of the Church Building Acts, or any other general or local act; and "tithes" shall include "commutation rentcharges, and all moduses, compositions, prescriptive and other payments or redemption money in lieu of tithes," or any part or parts thereof respectively, and any land for which such tithes or other payments in lieu thereof may have been commuted.

3. The rector or vicar for the time being of any rectory or vicarage may agree with the incumbent of any district church, either wholly or in part, situate within the limits or original limits of the said rectory or vicarage, to annex to such district church the tithes or part of the tithes belonging to such rectory or vicarage, and arising in respect of property situate within the district belonging to such district church, in consideration of a sufficient compensation being made to the said rector or vicar and his successors for the loss of the said tithes out of the endowments of the said district church, or by some other means.

4. No agreement shall be valid on the part of a rector or vicar under this act unless it be assented to—first, by the archbishop or bishop of the diocese within which his rectory or vicarage is situate, or if it be situate within a peculiar jurisdiction belonging to an archbishop or bishop by such last-mentioned archbishop or bishop; and, secondly, by the patron of the rectory or vicarage; and no agreement shall be valid on the part of the incumbent of a district church except with the consent of the patron of such church, and with the approval of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England where the compensation to be made to the rector or vicar is payable out of funds in the hands of the said commissioners, and of the governors of the bounty of Queen Anne for the augmentation of the maintenance of poor clergy where the compensation to be made is payable out of funds in the hands or subject to the control of the said governors.

5. Any agreement under this act between a rector and vicar on the one part and an incumbent of a district church on the other shall be in writing under their respective hands.

6. Any assents required by this act may be testified by the assenting party executing the agreement between the rector or vicar and the incumbent of the district church and the provisions of the above-mentioned act, and of the act of the session of the 17 & 18 Vict. c. 84, as to patrons of benefices, shall apply to the assent of the patrons under this act.

7. The provisions of the 22nd section of the act of the session of the 6 & 7 Vict. c. 37, enabling persons and bodies corporate to give lands or goods for the purposes of that act, shall extend to authorise them to give in manner therein mentioned lands or goods for the purposes of purchasing any tithes, or to give any tithes with a view to the annexation of such tithes to a district church.

8. Any agreement made in pursuance of this act shall be carried into effect by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England, and any Order made by her Majesty in Council ratifying such agreement, and transferring on the one side the tithes proposed to be transferred to the incumbent of the district church, and on the other securing to the rector or vicar the compensation agreed upon, shall be valid to vest in the said incumbent and his successors such tithes, and to secure to the said rector or vicar such compensation; and when the approval of the governors of the bounty of Queen Anne is required, such approval may be certified by any instrument under their corporate seal, and when the approval of the said Ecclesiastical Commissioners is required it shall be implied by such Order in Council as aforesaid being passed.

9. Where tithes of any kind or amount belong to or shall to the satisfaction of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners be transferred to the incumbent of the church of any parish, chapelry, or district, provided such tithes arise within such parish, chapelry, or district, or where any annuity shall be granted by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners to any incumbent in consideration of tithes arising within the limits of his district, and now or at any time in the possession of the said Ecclesiastical Commissioners, it shall be lawful for the said Ecclesiastical Commissioners, by instrument under their common seal, to declare that such church shall be and be deemed to be either a rectory or vicarage as they may under the circumstances of each case think proper, and such instrument shall be published in the London Gazette, and take effect from the time of publication.

CAP. XLIII.

An Act to provide for the Security of Property of Married Women separated from their Husbands in Ireland.

[19th June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Protection of property acquired by wife after desertion by her husband.

2. Protection of wife's property after divorce à mens et thoro.

3. After divorce à mens et thoro, wife to be deemed feme sole as to property.

4. *Mode of enforcing decree for alimony.*5. To apply to Ireland only.

Whereas certain provisions have been made for the protection of the property of married women separated from their husbands in England, and it is expedient to extend the same to Ireland; be it therefore enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. A wife deserted by her husband in Ireland may, at any time after such desertion, if resident within the police district of Dublin, apply to a police magistrate, or if resident in the country to justices in petty sessions, or in either case to a judge of the Court of Common Pleas sitting in chambers, for an order to protect any money or property she may acquire by her own lawful industry, and property which she may become possessed of after such desertion, against her husband or his creditors, or any person claiming under him; and such magistrate or justices or judge, if satisfied of the fact of such desertion, and that the same was without reasonable cause, and that the wife is maintaining herself by her own industry or property, may make and give to the wife an order protecting her earnings and property acquired since the commencement of such desertion from her husband, and all creditors and persons claiming under him, and such earnings and property shall belong to the wife as if she were a feme sole: provided always, that a copy of every such order, if made by a police magistrate or justices at petty sessions, shall, within ten days from the making thereof, be lodged with the clerk of the peace of the county within which the wife is resident; and that it shall be lawful for the husband, and any creditor or other person claiming under him, to apply to the same judge, or any other judge of the court, or to the magistrate or justices by whom such order was made, or for the time being acting instead of or as successors to the same, for the discharge thereof: provided also, that if the husband, or any creditor or other person claiming under the husband, shall seize or continue to hold any property of the wife after notice of any such order, he shall be liable, at the suit of the wife (which she is hereby empowered to bring), to restore the specific property, and also for a sum equal to double the value of the property so seized or held after such notice as aforesaid: if any such order of protection be made, the wife shall, during the continuance thereof, be and be deemed to have been during such desertion of her in the like position in all respects with regard to property, and courtesy, and suing and being sued, as she would be under this act if she obtained a decree of divorce à mensâ et thoro.

2. In every case of a divorce à mensâ et thoro the wife shall, from the date of the sentence, and whilst the separation shall continue, be considered as a feme sole with respect to property of any description which she may acquire or which may come to or devolve on her, and such property may be disposed of by her in all respects as a feme sole, and on her decease the same shall, in case she shall die intestate, go as the same would have gone if her husband had been then dead: provided that if any such wife should again cohabit with her husband, all such property as she may be entitled to when such cohabitation shall take place shall be held to her separate use, subject, however, to any agreement in writing made between herself and her husband whilst separate.

3. In every case of divorce à mensâ et thoro the wife shall, whilst so separated, be considered as a feme sole for the purposes of contract, and wrongs and injuries, and suing and being sued in any civil proceeding, and her husband shall not be liable in respect of any engagement or contract she may have entered into, or for any wrongful act or omission by her, or for any costs she may incur as plaintiff or defendant: provided that where upon any such divorce alimony has been decreed or ordered to be paid to the wife, and the same shall not be duly paid by the husband, he shall be liable for necessities supplied for her use: provided that nothing shall prevent the wife from joining at any time during such separation in the exercise of any joint power given to herself and her husband.

4. Every decree or order for alimony and costs made or pronounced after the passing of this act by any court in Ireland having authority for that purpose may be enforced in the same manner as if the said decree or order was a judgment or order of one of the superior courts of law in Ireland.

5. This act shall be held to apply to Ireland only.

CAP. XLIV.

An Act for confirming a Provisional Order made by the Board of Trade under the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862, relating to the Pilotage of the River Tyne. [19th June, 1865.]

CAP. XLV.

An Act to provide for the Collection by means of Stamps or Fees payable in the Superior Courts of Law at Westminster, and in the Offices belonging thereto.

[19th June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. From and after the 31st December, 1865, all fees payable in superior courts to be collected by stamps.

2. Stamps to be impressed or adhesive.

3. General rules to be made by Treasury.

4. Documents not properly stamped to be invalid.

5. Nothing to interfere with powers of Treasury, &c. for alteration of fees, &c.

6. Payment of salaries, &c. out of money received for stamps.

7. Accounts to be laid before Parliament.

8. Repeal of enactments in second schedule.

9. Short title.

Be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. From and after the 31st December, 1865, or from and after such earlier time as the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, with the concurrence of the Lord Chief Justices of the Courts of Queen's Bench and Common Pleas, and of the Lord Chief Baron of the Court of Exchequer, by notice published in the London Gazette, appoint the following fees shall be collected by stamps; namely, all fees for the time being payable in the several courts and offices, or to the several officers, or in respect of the several matters, specified in the first schedule to this act, whether under the several enactments therein specified, or otherwise, and all fees whatever for the time being payable under any of those enactments.

2. All or any stamps to be used under this act shall be impressed or adhesive, as the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury from time to time direct.

3. The Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, with the concurrence of the Lord Chief Justices and Lord Chief Baron, may from time to time make such rules as seem fit for regulating the use of stamps under this act, and particularly for prescribing the application thereof to documents from time to time in use, or required to be used, for the purposes of such stamps, and for insuring the proper cancellation of adhesive stamps and keeping accounts of such stamps.

4. Any document which ought to bear a stamp under this act shall not be of any validity, unless and until it is properly stamped; but if any such document is, through mistake or inadvertence, received, filed, or used without being properly stamped, a judge of one of the said courts may, if he thinks fit, order that the same be stamped as in such order may be directed; and on such document being stamped accordingly, the same, and every proceeding relative thereto, shall be as valid as if such document had been properly stamped in the first instance.

5. Nothing in this act shall interfere with the exercise by any of the judges of the said courts, or by the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, or by any other authority, of any power of altering or otherwise regulating the amount of any fees comprised in this act, or of any salaries or other charges for the time being by law payable thereout, or charged thereon, or of directing that any fees comprised in this act shall cease to be applicable to any charges, or payments charged thereon, or payable thereout, and shall be from time to time paid into the receipt of the Exchequer, and be carried to, and form part of, the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom.

6. The Commissioners of Inland Revenue shall keep a separate account of all money received in respect of stamps under this act; and, subject to the deduction out of the money so received of any expenses incurred by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue in the execution of this act, and to the payment or discharge thereout, in such manner as the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury from time to time direct, of salaries or other charges for the time being by law charged on, or payable out of, any fees comprised in this act, the money so received shall, under the direction of the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, be carried to, and shall form part of, the said Consolidated Fund.

7. The account so kept by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue for every year ending the 31st March, together with an account for every such year, prepared under the direction of the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, shewing the salaries and other charges now or formerly charged on, or payable out of, any fees comprised in this act, and for the time being, in pursuance of any act, paid out of the said Consolidated Fund, or out of money provided by Parliament, and also shewing all other charges in respect of the said courts, and their several offices, for the time being paid out of the said Consolidated Fund, or out of money provided by Parliament, by way of salary, compensation, or otherwise, shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament within one month after the termination of such year of account, if Parliament is then sitting, or if not, then within one month after the next meeting of Parliament; and the second of such yearly accounts, and every subsequent account, shall shew the items for two consecutive years, and the increase or decrease of any of those items in the second of those years as compared with the first.

8. From and after the time appointed for the commencement of the collection of fees by means of stamps under this act, the acts described in the second schedule to this act shall be repealed to the extent in that schedule specified.

9. This act may be cited as "The Common-law Courts (Fees) Act, 1865."

THE FIRST SCHEDULE.

15 & 16 Vict. c. 73, s. 10. (7 Will. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 30. 18 & 19 Vict. c. 126, s. 20).	{ The superior courts, and their several offices, judges' chambers, and clerks of assize, acting as associates on circuits.
6 & 7 Vict. c. 20, s. 15. (23 & 24 Vict. c. 54).
17 & 18 Vict. c. 36, ss. 3, 4, 5.	{ Crown Office, Queen's Bench.
3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 74, s. 89. 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 82, s. 6. 19 & 20 Vict. c. 75. (17 & 18 Vict. c. 75. 20 & 21 Vict. c. 57—as to England.
25 & 26 Vict. c. 67, s. 36. 25 & 26 Vict. c. 96).	{ Registration of certificates, &c. of acknowledgments of deeds of married women, &c., Common Pleas.
1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 19. 2 & 3 Vict. c. 11, ss. 2, 4, 7, 8, 9. 13 & 14 Vict. c. 75. 18 & 19 Vict. c. 15—as to Common Pleas.
23 & 24 Vict. c. 115, s. 2. (3 & 4 Vict. c. 82. 13 & 14 Vict. c. 35, s. 17. 16 & 17 Vict. c. 107, ss. 195-7—as to England.	{ Registration of judgments, crown debts, &c., Common Pleas.
22 & 23 Vict. c. 35, s. 22. 23 & 24 Vict. c. 38, s. 4. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 134, s. 213. 25 & 26 Vict. c. 89, s. 114).
27 & 28 Vict. c. 112, s. 3. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 86, s. 4. (22 & 23 Vict. c. 21, ss. 1-4).	{ Queen's Remembrancer's Office.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

- 5 & 6 Vict. c. 86.—An Act for abolishing certain Offices on the Revenue Side of the Court of Exchequer in England, and for regulating the Office of her Majesty's Remembrancer in that Court.—Sect. 5.
- 6 & 7 Vict. c. 20.—An Act for abolishing certain Offices on the Crown Side of the Court of Queen's Bench, and for regulating the Crown Office.—Sect. 12.
- 13 & 14 Vict. c. 75.—An Act to regulate the Receipt and Amount of Fees receivable by certain Officers in the Court of Common Pleas.—Sect. 1.
- 15 & 16 Vict. c. 73.—An Act to make Provision for a permanent Establishment of Officers to perform the Duties at Nisi Prius in the Superior Courts of Common Law, and for the Payment of such Officers and of the Judges'

Clerks by Salaries, and to abolish certain Offices in those Courts.—Sects. 14 and 29.

CAP. XLVI.

An Act to suspend the making of Lists and the Ballots for the Militia of the United Kingdom. [19th June, 1865.]

CAP. XLVII.

An Act to defray the Charge of the Pay, Clothing, and contingent and other Expenses of the Disembodied Militia in Great Britain and Ireland; to grant Allowances in certain Cases to Subaltern Officers, Adjutants, Paymasters, Quartermasters, Surgeons, Assistant Surgeons, and Surgeon's Mates of the Militia; and to authorise the Employment of the Non-commissioned Officers. [19th June, 1865.]

CAP. XLVIII.

An Act to supply Means towards defraying the Expenses of providing Courts of Justice and the various Offices belonging thereto; and for other Purposes. [19th June, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Short title.*
- 2. Definition of terms.*
- 3. Advances to be made by Paymaster-General.*
- 4. Plan of building, and arrangements for care and maintenance of the building.*
- 5. Repayments to the account of the Paymaster-General to be carried to, and be made part of, the Consolidated Fund.*
- 6. Mode of repayment of advances to Consolidated Fund.*
- 7. 200,000*l.* to be contributed out of money to be provided by Parliament as the value of courts and offices transferred, and of relief from rent to the public.*
- 8. 1,000,000*l.* stock to be contributed by the Surplus Interest Fund.*
- 9. Contribution of suitors other than of Chancery to be ascertained and discharged by a redemption annuity.*
- 10. Mode of ascertaining the amount chargeable on the suitors.*
- 11. Apportionment amongst suitors other than those of the Court of Chancery of their contribution.*
- 12. Mode of levying contribution.*
- 13. Annual adjustment of suitors' redemption annuity.*
- 14. Cessation of rent of courts fee.*
- 15. Power of Treasury to make regulations.*
- 16. Chancery compensations may be redeemed or paid out of the capital of court funds.*
- 17. Indemnity against loss by appropriation of Surplus Interest Fund.*
- 18. Saving of jurisdiction of courts.*
- 19. Forms of writs to be altered by Order in Council.*
- 20. Power to try London causes in the new courts.*
- 21. Power to try Middlesex causes in the new courts.*
- 22. Discontinuance of existing courts and offices.*
- 23. Society of Lincoln's-inn may repurchase Six Clerks and Registrars offices. Trusts declared by the 56 Geo. 3, c. 84, to be discharged. Lord Chancellor to adjust accounts. On payment of balance Lord Chancellor to make vesting order.*

Whereas a bill has been or is about to be introduced into Parliament in the present session by the short title of "The Courts of Justice Concentration (Site) Act, 1865," and the purposes intended to be carried into effect by such bill are the acquisition of a site capable of affording accommodation to the Superior Courts of Law and Equity, the Probate and Divorce Courts, the High Court of Admiralty, and the various offices belonging to the same, and to such other courts for the administration of justice, and offices connected therewith, as may be required:

And whereas it is expedient to make provision for the cost of acquiring such site, and of the erection thereon of suitable buildings, with all proper furniture and conveniences, for such courts and offices; and also to make provision for such other changes incident to and consequential on the removal of the existing courts and offices from the sites now occupied by them as are hereinafter mentioned:

And whereas it is expedient that the cost of erecting the said courts of justice should be borne, as follows:—

First, by money to be provided by Parliament to the extent of the value of the property surrendered, and of relief to the public by the cessation of rents now charged to the public:

Secondly, by a contribution of 1,000,000*l.* stock, part of a sum of 1,291,629*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.*, 3*l.* per Cent. Stock, now standing in the books of the Bank of England to the credit of an account intitled "Account of Securities purchased with Surplus Interest arising from Securities carried to Account of Moneys placed out for the Benefit and better Security of the Suitors of the High Court of Chancery," which has arisen from the profit of investments, made under the authority of Parliament at the risk of the public, of unemployed cash balances paid into the High Court of Chancery on account of individual suitors, and which is hereinafter referred to as "The Surplus Interest Fund."

Thirdly, by the taxation of suitors of the courts other than the Court of Chancery to be accommodated in the said building:

And whereas it is expedient that the moneys required from time to time for carrying into effect the purposes of the said Site Act and this act should be defrayed in the first instance out of moneys to be provided by Parliament:

And whereas the capital of the aforesaid Surplus Interest Fund is ultimately liable to make good any deficiency which may occur in the general cash balance remaining in the Court of Chancery from time to time for payment of the sums due to the suitors of the said court, and the same is, with other funds in Chancery, also charged with the payment of certain compensations in the nature of life annuities and other temporary charges, and it is expedient that provision should be made for such liabilities and charges in the manner hereinafter appearing:

Be it therefore enacted &c., as follows:—

Preliminary.

Sect. 1. This act may be cited for all purposes as "The Courts of Justice Building Act, 1865."

2. "The Treasury" shall mean the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury for the time being, or any two or more of them:

"Suitors" shall mean and include not only suitors in courts but also all persons proving wills or conducting business in any of the courts or offices to be accommodated in the said new buildings other than and except suitors in the Court of Chancery:

"Compensation allowances" shall mean and include not only the compensation allowances charged on or payable partly or wholly out of the Surplus Interest Fund, or the interest or dividends thereof, or other funds in Chancery, and existing at the time of the passing of this act, but also the salaries payable to the abolished Masters in Chancery and their clerks, and to the master of the reports.

Provision of Funds for Works.

3. All sums of money required from time to time for carrying into effect the purposes of the Courts of Justice Concentration (Site) Act, 1865, and for the purpose of erecting upon the site to be acquired under the same act all such suitable buildings for the accommodation of the Superior Courts of Law and Equity, the Probate and Divorce Courts, and the Court of Admiralty, and the various offices connected therewith, and of such other courts for the administration of justice, and offices connected therewith, or offices used for any other purpose of legal administration, as may from time to time be prescribed by the Treasury, with all proper furniture and conveniences, and access thereto, not exceeding in the whole 1,500,000*l.* cash, shall be provided in the first instance by issues to be made to the Paymaster-General by the Comptroller-General of the Exchequer out of moneys to be provided by Parliament, and the Paymaster-General shall keep a separate account thereof.

4. The plan upon which the said buildings shall be erected, and the necessary arrangements for the proper and convenient accommodation of all the courts and offices to be provided for therein, and for proper access thereto, shall be determined upon by the Treasury, with the advice and concurrence of such persons as her Majesty shall think fit to authorise in that behalf; and after the completion of the said buildings her Majesty may, by Order in Council, from time to time nominate and appoint such persons as she shall think fit, with such powers to superintend and regulate the said buildings and to provide for the proper care and maintenance thereof, and also (if it shall be found necessary) to vary from time to time the internal arrangements of the said buildings, and the purposes to or for which any part thereof may be used or appropriated, as to her Majesty shall seem proper and expedient: provided always, that no orders or regulations requiring any expenditure of public money shall be made by such persons without the consent of the Treasury.

Repayment of Advances.

5. All sums of money which shall be paid into the Bank of England to the account of the Paymaster-General, in repayment of advances made by virtue of this act, shall from time to time, at such periods as the Treasury shall direct, be transferred to the account kept by the said Bank of England with her Majesty's Exchequer, and when so transferred shall be carried to, and form part of, the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

6. For the purpose of securing the repayment of the advances to be made, under the provisions of this act, other than those to be granted as the estimated value of the present courts and offices, as hereinafter provided, there shall be contributed a sum not exceeding 1,300,000*l.* cash, as follows:—

First, 1,000,000*l.*, 3*l.* per Cent. Stock, out of the 3*l.* per Cent. Consolidated Annuities, and out of the 3*l.* per Cent. Reduced Annuities, now standing in the books of the Bank of England to the credit of an account intitled "Account of Securities purchased with Surplus Interest arising from Securities carried to Account of Moneys placed out for the Benefit and better Security of the Suitors of the High Court of Chancery, which Account is herein called 'The Surplus Interest Fund:'"

And, secondly, a contribution in the nature of a redemption annuity payable for a term not exceeding fifty years, to be raised by fees to be imposed as hereinafter directed on suitors and on processes in the courts and offices to be accommodated in the said new buildings other than the Court of Chancery, equivalent to the residue of the said advances, with interest thereon.

7. Out of the moneys to be provided by Parliament as aforesaid for carrying into effect the purposes of the Courts of Justice Concentration (Site) Act, 1865, the sum of 200,000*l.* cash, being the estimated value of the present courts and offices, to be transferred to the Commissioners of Public Works and Buildings, or to become available for other public purposes, and of the relief from rental, which is at present defrayed out of public moneys for buildings in the occupation of legal departments to be hereafter accommodated in the new courts, shall be considered as a grant towards the erection of the said courts, and shall not be repayable to the Consolidated Fund; and if any other property now used for courts and offices, and not included in the said estimate of 200,000*l.*, should in like manner be transferred or become available for other public purposes, credit shall be given for the value of such property by a reduction of the annuity to be paid by the contribution to be levied on suitors as hereinafter provided, or otherwise as the Commissioners of the Treasury and the Lord Chancellor shall jointly determine.

8. There shall from time to time be sold, under the order of the Lord Chancellor (such order to be made on the certificate of the Treasury), such portions of the said surplus interest fund, to the extent of but not exceeding in the whole one million of the stock composing the same, as the said Lord Chancellor shall from time to time direct; and the moneys arising from every such sale shall be received by one of the cashiers of the Bank of England, and be paid by him to the aforesaid account of the Paymaster-General at the Bank of England, and shall be transferred to the account of her Majesty's Exchequer as aforesaid.

9. The residue of the advances, with interest, is to be repaid, and is to be deemed to be discharged, by a contribution, to be levied on the suitors (other than those of the Court of Chancery) using the said buildings, in the nature of a redemption annuity calculated at 4*l.* per cent. per annum on the amount of such residue, and payable for a term not exceeding fifty years; such term to commence from the period when any part of such buildings shall be used for the transaction of the business of such suitors; the commencement of such period to be announced in the London Gazette by the direction of the Treasury.

10. The amount of such residue so chargeable on the said suitors is to be ascertained by adding to the principal money payable by them interest from the time of the respective advances up to the commencement of the said term, at the rate of 3l. 6s. per cent. per annum, such being the rate at which the said redemption annuity of 4l. per cent. has been calculated.

11. The suitors (other than those of the Court of Chancery) are to contribute in proportion, as far as may be, to the extent of the use made by them of the buildings erected in pursuance of the said Building Act.

The proportion in which the suitors are to contribute shall, subject to the provisions of this act, be determined by the Treasury.

12. The contribution of the suitors under this act shall be levied by means of a separate fee, hereinafter called the rent of courts fee, to be collected by stamps, to be impressed on or affixed to such documents in use in each court or office to be accommodated in the said new buildings, and to be of such amounts as may be from time to time determined by the Treasury, with the consent of the Lord Chancellor, together with the chief judge of each of the superior courts of common law, or any one of such chief judges, and of such other persons or person as her Majesty by Order in Council may please to direct; and all the provisions of any act of Parliament relating to the payment or collection of the fees levied in any court in which the rent of courts fee is collected, and relating to the stamps for collecting such fees, shall apply to the rent of courts fee payable under this act.

The net produce of such rent of courts fee is to be paid by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue to the credit of the aforesaid account of the Paymaster-General.

13. The said Paymaster-General is to keep and annually make up an account of the moneys due and paid in respect of the said redemption annuity and of the net produce received by him in respect of such rents of courts fee, and of all other payments (if any) made on account of such redemption annuity; and the said fees imposed in respect of such rent of courts fee may be from time to time revised and varied so that the produce thereof may satisfy the amount payable from time to time in respect of the said redemption annuity; but if in any year there shall have been an excess in the said receipts beyond the amount due for such annuity, such excess is to be invested and accumulated, and applied at such periods as the Lord Chancellor and the Treasury shall from time to time determine in satisfying, discharging, and redeeming so much of the said annuity as it shall at the rates aforesaid, and having regard to the length of term unexpired, be sufficient to discharge and redeem.

This account shall be annually laid before Parliament.

14. As soon as such redemption annuity shall have been satisfied as aforesaid the rent of courts fee shall cease to be levied.

15. Subject to the provisions of this act, the Treasury may from time to time make regulations with respect to the mode of making and replacing the advances required to be made for the purposes of this act, and with respect to all other matters necessary to carry this act into effect; and any regulations made by the Treasury in pursuance of the power given by this act, shall be as valid as if they were inserted in this act.

Power to redeem Chancery Compensations out of Capital, and Indemnity of the Chancery Cash Balance.

16. The Lord Chancellor may negotiate with any of the persons entitled to compensation allowances for the purchase or redemption of the same, at a price not exceeding the price contained in the tables referred to in the act of Parliament of the 10 Geo. 4, c. 24, s. 14, either for a gross amount of cash or stock, or for a Government annuity; and for the purpose of effecting such purchase or redemption, or of providing for any part of such compensation allowances remaining unredeemed which the income of the funds charged therewith may be insufficient to satisfy, the Lord Chancellor may order the sale, transfer, or payment of any part of the residue of the said Surplus Interest Fund, or of any of the other funds charged with such compensation allowances, or the purchase therewith from the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt of terminable Annuities either for lives or for terms of years.

17. If the general cash balance of the suitors remaining in the Court of Chancery shall be at any time insufficient to satisfy the demands of the suitors thereon, such deficiency shall, to the extent to which the moneys arising by the sale of the aforesaid one million of the said Surplus Interest Fund would have been available, be made good out of the Consolidated Fund; and if the residue of the Surplus Interest Fund and the other funds charged with compensation allowances are insufficient to meet such charges, in that case such last-mentioned deficiency also shall be made good out of the Consolidated Fund.

Saving of Jurisdiction on Removal of Courts.

18. Notwithstanding their removal to the site provided by the Courts of Justice Concentration (Site) Act, 1865, the superior courts of law and equity may exercise the same jurisdiction, and enjoy the same rights and privileges, as they have hitherto exercised and enjoyed, and all statutes, charters, and other instruments wherein Westminster is described or referred to as being the locality of the said courts, shall be construed as if the site provided by the Courts of Justice Concentration (Site) Act, 1865, had been described or referred to in the said statutes, charters, and other instruments, as the locality of the said courts, instead of Westminster.

19. Her Majesty may, by Order in Council, make any alteration that may be thought expedient for the purpose of adapting the forms of testing writs and other instruments, and the forms themselves of writs or other instruments in use in the said courts, to the change of locality made by the Courts of Justice Concentration (Site) Act, 1865.

20. Her Majesty may, by Order in Council, from time to time, at the request of the lord mayor, aldermen, and commons of the city of London in common council assembled, direct that all or any issues or inquiries in cases at Nisi Prius which would otherwise be tried and executed within the county of the city of London shall for ever thereafter, or for a time to be specified in such Order, be tried and executed at the courts authorised to be erected by this act; and in the event of such Order being made, the said courts shall, for the purpose of giving jurisdiction to the sheriffs of London in relation to such trials and inquiries, and for the summoning of jurors, and for all other purposes of or incidental to any such trials or inquiries, be deemed to be situate in the county of the city of London.

21. Her Majesty may, by Order in Council, from time to time direct that all or any issues or inquiries in cases at Nisi Prius which would otherwise be tried and executed within the county of Middlesex shall for ever thereafter, or for a time to be specified in such Order, be tried and executed at the courts authorised to be erected by this act; and in the event of such Order being made, the said courts shall, for the purpose of giving jurisdiction to the sheriff of Middlesex in relation to such trials and inquiries, and for the summoning of jurors, and for all other purposes of or incidental to any such trials or inquiries, be deemed to be situate in the county of Middlesex.

Transfer of Property now used for Offices.

22. Whereas the legal business hitherto carried on in the buildings situate in or near Southampton-buildings, known as the "Masters' Offices," and erected in pursuance of the act of the session of the 32 Geo. 3, c. 42, is intended to be transacted in the courts, offices, and premises authorised to be erected under this act; and it is expedient that such Masters' offices should be appropriated in manner hereinafter mentioned for public purposes: be it enacted, that all the buildings erected as aforesaid, with the sites thereof, and all the lands and hereditaments, if any, purchased or acquired in pursuance of the said act of the 32 Geo. 3, with all their actual and reputed appurtenances, shall on the passing of this act vest in the Commissioners of her Majesty's Works and Public Buildings, as incorporated by the act of the session of the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 28, to be held by them for the purposes of the last-mentioned act, discharged from all subsisting trust declared with respect thereto: provided that the said commissioners shall not take possession of any part or parts of the said buildings that may be occupied for legal purposes until the Lord Chancellor certifies that in his opinion such part or parts is or are no longer required by the persons so occupying the same.

23. And whereas by virtue of two statutes (local and personal) passed in the 15 Geo. 3, cc. 22 and 56, land, being part of the garden of the Hon. Society of Lincoln's-inn, was sold by the said society for the purpose of building thereon the Six Clerks and Registrars Offices, and the same are now used as the offices of the Accountant-General and Registrars in Chancery, and of the Clerks of Records and Writs, and of the Clerk of Inrolments in Chancery, and the same are now under the said two acts, and under the statute passed in the 6 Vict. c. 103, s. 29, vested in the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery and his successors, but subject to a provision that the buildings shall be used for the purposes of the aforesaid offices, and for no other purpose:

And whereas, under an act (local and personal), passed in the 56 Geo. 3, c. 84, a court for the sittings of the Vice-Chancellor of England was erected in Lincoln's-inn, and vested in the said society for the public purposes by the said act directed, and for no other purposes:

And whereas the said society have, since the year 1840, expended out of their own funds diver sums in the erection and fitting up of courts for the use of the judges of the said Court of Chancery, and otherwise for the benefit of the said court:

And whereas, after the said new buildings shall have been erected and commenced to be used, the said several offices and courts will no longer be applicable to the purposes for which the same were erected or fitted up, and it is necessary that provision should be made by Parliament respecting the same; and as the said Hon. Society of Lincoln's-inn will cease to have the benefit of the business of the said courts being carried on within the precincts of their said inn, it is just and expedient that the said society should be repaid the amount of their aforesaid outlays: be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said society to repurchase and become repossessed of the said land sold by them for the said Six Clerks and Registrars Offices in Chancery, upon their repaying the purchase moneys received by them for the said land; and further, that the said society shall be entitled, if they so elect, to become possessed of the erections and buildings thereon, upon paying for the same at a valuation as old building materials; and further, that the trust declared by the said stat. 56 Geo. 3, c. 84, shall be discharged, and the said court erected under the said statute for the Vice-Chancellor of England shall become, to all intents and purposes, the exclusive property of the said society, without their making any payment for the same, or the materials thereof; and further, that the said society shall be repaid the said principal sums they have from time to time since the year 1840 expended out of their funds for the use of the said Court of Chancery; and that it shall be lawful for the said Lord Chancellor to adjust and settle an account with the said society upon the basis of this enactment, and to order that the balance of such account shall be paid into, or out of, the Sutors' Fee Fund of the Court of Chancery, as the case may be; and upon payment of the said balance to or by the said society, as the case may be, the Lord Chancellor shall make an order that the said land and buildings do vest in the trustees for the time being of the real estates of the said society, and the same shall thereupon be vested accordingly, discharged from all trusts, restrictions, and regulations declared, imposed, or enjoined by the said two statutes, the 15 Geo. 3, cc. 22 and 56, and 6 Vict. c. 103, or any or either of them; but this enactment is not to come into force, or to take any effect, until after the Lord Chancellor shall certify under his hand to the Treasury that the business hitherto conducted in the said buildings and courts, or any part thereof, has been transferred to the buildings authorised to be erected under the Courts of Justice Concentration (Site) Act, 1865, and such certificate shall have been filed in the Report Office of the Court of Chancery; and the option of repurchasing the said sites, and purchasing the said erections and buildings respectively, may be exercised by the said society at any time within two years after notice to the treasurer of the said society of the filing of such certificate.

CAP. XLIX.

An Act to enable the Commissioners of her Majesty's Works and Public Buildings to acquire a Site for the Erection and Concentration of Courts of Justice, and of the various Offices belonging to the same. [19th June, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Short title.
 2. Incorporation of Commissioners of Works for purposes of act.
 3. Description of purposes of act.
 4. Power to commissioners to purchase lands.
 5. Lands to continue subject to land tax and rates.
 6. Power to commissioners to enter on lands.
 7. The 8 & 9 Vict. c. 18, and the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 106, incorporated.
 8. Questions of disputed compensation in London to be heard in the Lord Mayor's Court.
 9. Extinction of rights of way and other easements.
 10. Commissioners to pay to incumbents annual sums for loss of fees, &c.
 11. Compensation for tithes or rentcharges to be paid by commissioners.
 12. As to claims for compensation by yearly tenants.
 13. Limits for compulsory purchases.
 14. Power to purchase lands for accesses to courts and offices by agreement.
 15. Powers to commissioners to execute works.
 16. For protection of sewers of Metropolitan Board of Works.
 17. Saving rights of the commissioners of sewers.
 18. Exemption from Building Act.
 19. No notice to be given to purchase property until a certificate has been received by the Treasury from persons appointed under the 28 Vict. c. 48, to advise, &c. as to plan.
 20. No purchases to be without the authority of the Treasury.
 21. Authentication of notices.
 22. Orders concerning money paid into court may be made at chambers.
 23. Penalty for obstructing commissioners in exercise of power.
 24. Deeds not liable to stamp duty.
 25. Deeds to be enrolled in Court of Exchequer.
 26. Plans to be deposited in the Office of Works, &c., and be open for inspection.

Whereas a commission was issued in 1858, under the Sign Manual of her Majesty, for the purpose of inquiring into the expediency of bringing together into one place or neighbourhood all the Superior Courts of Law and Equity, the Probate and Divorce Courts, and the Court of Admiralty, and the various offices belonging to the same, and into the means which existed or might be supplied for providing a site or sites, and for erecting suitable buildings for carrying out the above objects: and whereas the said commission have reported to her Majesty, that the concentration of such courts is expedient, and have recommended, as a site for the said courts and offices, certain houses, buildings, and lands situate in the parish of Saint Clement Danes and the Liberty of the Rolls, in the county of Middlesex, and the parish of Saint Dunstan in the West, in the city of London, but such houses, buildings, and lands cannot be acquired without the authority of Parliament: and whereas duplicate plans, describing the situation of the said houses, buildings, and lands, hereinafter referred to as the prescribed lands, with a book of reference thereto, containing the names of the owners and lessees, or reputed owners and lessees, and of the occupiers thereof, have been deposited with the clerk of the peace for the county of Middlesex, at his office at the Sessions House, Clerkenwell, and with the clerk of the peace for the city of London, at his office at the Sessions House in the Old Bailey, and it is expedient that powers should be given to the Commissioners of her Majesty's Works and Public Buildings to purchase such lands, and to provide accommodation for the said courts and offices, or some of them: be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Preliminary.

Sect. 1. This act may be cited for all purposes as "The Courts of Justice Concentration (Site) Act, 1865."

Incorporation of Commissioners.

2. The Commissioners of her Majesty's Works and Public Buildings for the time being, hereinafter referred to as "the commissioners," shall be incorporated for the purposes of this act by the name and style of "The Commissioners of her Majesty's Works and Public Buildings," and by that name shall have perpetual succession and a common seal, to be by them from time to time altered, as they think fit, with power to hold lands for the purposes, and subject to the provisions of this act.

Acquisition of Site.

3. The purposes of this act are the acquisition of a convenient site for the accommodation of the Superior Courts of Law and Equity, or some of them, the Probate and Divorce Courts, and the Courts of Admiralty, and the various offices connected with them, and of such other courts for the administration of justice, and offices connected therewith, or used for any other purpose of legal administration, as may from time to time be prescribed by the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, and the providing of convenient means of access to the said courts and offices.

4. The commissioners may, out of any moneys placed at their disposal for that object, purchase, take, and use, for the purposes of this act, all or any of the prescribed lands.

5. All lands purchased by the commissioners in pursuance of this act, which were at the time of such purchase subject to land tax, to poor or other rates, shall continue liable thereto, but they shall not be assessed to any tax or rate on a higher rateable value than that on which they were assessed on the 1st January, 1865.

6. The commissioners, their surveyors, officers, and workmen, may at all reasonable times in the daytime, upon giving twenty-four hours previous notice in writing, enter into and upon any of the prescribed lands for the purpose of surveying or valuing the same.

7. The Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, and the act amending the same passed in the session of the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 106, shall be incorporated with this act, with the exceptions and additions and subject to the provisions hereinafter contained; that is to say—

- (1). There shall not be incorporated with this act the sections and provisions of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, hereinafter mentioned; that is to say, sect. 16, whereby it is provided that the capital is to be subscribed before the compulsory powers are to be put in force; sect. 17, whereby it is provided that the certificate of the justices shall be evidence that the capital has been subscribed; or the provisions relating to affording access to the special act:
- (2). In the construction of this act and the said incorporated acts, this act shall be deemed to be the special act, and the commissioners shall be deemed to be the promoters of the undertaking:
- (3). The bond required by sect. 85 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act shall be under the common seal of the commissioners, and shall be sufficient without the addition of the sureties in the said section mentioned:
- (4). The term "sheriff," used in the provisions of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, relating to the reference to a jury, shall, as regards any part of the prescribed lands within the city and liberty of Westminster, be deemed to apply to the high bailiff of the city and liberty of Westminster or his deputy.

8. In every case in which any question of disputed compensation may be required to be determined by the verdict of a jury, in the city of London or the liberties thereof, the jury shall be required to appear before the court of the lord mayor and aldermen of the city of London, to be holden in the outer chamber of the Guildhall of the said city, according to the custom of the said city, at a time to be appointed by the said court; and all the directions and provisions contained in the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, in respect to the settlement of questions of disputed compensation by juries appearing before the sheriff, coroner, or other person, shall extend and be applied with respect to the settlement of any such question of disputed compensation under this act by juries appearing before the said court of mayor and aldermen as aforesaid; and the said court shall give judgment for the purchase money or compensation assessed by such jury; and a verdict and judgment shall be signed by the registrar of the said court of mayor and aldermen, and entered among the records of the said court, and the said registrar shall settle the costs of every such inquiry.

9. Upon the purchase by the commissioners of the prescribed lands or any part thereof, all rights of way, rights of laying down or of continuing any pipes, sewers, or drains, on, through, or under such lands, or part thereof, and all other rights or easements in or relating to such land, or part thereof, shall be extinguished, and all the soil of such ways, and the property in the pipes, sewers, or drains, shall vest in the commissioners, subject to this provision, that all persons and bodies of persons, corporate or unincorporate, may recover from the commissioners such compensation, if any, as they may be entitled to under the provisions of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, for any rights or property of which they may be deprived in pursuance of this section; the amount of such compensation to be determined in manner provided by the said Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845.

10. The commissioners shall pay an annual sum to each of the persons hereinafter mentioned; that is to say—

The rector of St. Clement Danes, in the city of Westminster;

The perpetual curate of St. Thomas, Liberty of the Rolls, in the county of Middlesex;

The rector of the parish of St. Dunstan in the West, in the city of London; by way of compensation for the loss of all such Easter dues, oblations, surplice fees, or other customary payments that may be taken away in consequence of carrying into effect the purposes of this act. Such payments shall be made half-yearly, on the 1st January and the 1st July in each year. The amount payable to each such person shall be calculated on an average of the amount received by him in respect of the said customary payments on an average of the three years immediately preceding the passing of this act, and in the event of difference shall be definitely settled by an arbitrator appointed by her Majesty's Attorney-General for the time being.

The first of the above-mentioned half-yearly payments shall be made on the 1st July, 1867.

11. Nothing in this act contained shall prejudice the right of any rector or other ecclesiastical person to any tithes, or rentcharge in lieu thereof, charged upon or payable out of any lands purchased by the commissioners in pursuance of this act; and the said commissioners shall from time to time pay the said tithes or rentcharge, when the same shall become due, out of any moneys that may be in their hands applicable thereto.

12. All claims for compensation made upon the commissioners under the provisions of this act or any act incorporated herewith shall, if the person claiming to be entitled to compensation has no greater interest than as tenant for a year or from year to year in the lands in respect of which the compensation is claimed, be determined in manner provided by the 121st section of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845.

13. The limit for the compulsory purchase of lands under this act shall be five years.

14. The commissioners may, for the purpose of improving the approaches, or of providing convenient roads, bridges over, or tunnels under streets, or other modes of access to the proposed courts of justice and the offices connected therewith, acquire by purchase or otherwise any lands or interest in lands or easements, and for the purposes of such acquisition the said Lands Clauses Consolidation Act shall be deemed to apply, with the exception of so much thereof as relates to the purchase of lands otherwise than by agreement.

15. The commissioners may pull down and remove any buildings on the prescribed lands, and may construct thereon such buildings and works, and do all such other things, as may in their opinion be necessary or expedient in order to carry into effect the purposes of this act or any of them.

16. Where any works to be done under or by virtue of this act shall or may pass over, under, or by the side of, or so as to interfere with, any main sewer under the jurisdiction or control of the Metropolitan Board of Works, the commissioners shall not commence such work until they shall have given to the said Metropolitan Board fourteen days previous notice in writing of their intention to commence the same, by leaving such notice at the principal office of such board, with a plan and section shewing the course and inclination thereof, and other necessary particulars relating thereto, and until such board shall have signified their approval of the same, unless such board do not signify their approval, disapproval, or other directions within fourteen days after service of the said plans, sections, and particulars as aforesaid; and the commissioners shall comply with and conform to all orders, directions, and regulations of the said Metropolitan Board in the execution of the said works, and shall provide, by new, altered, or substituted works, in such manner as such board may deem necessary, for the proper protection of, and for preventing injury or impediment to, the main sewers hereinbefore referred to, by or by reason of the said intended works or any part thereof, and shall save harmless the said Metropolitan Board against any expense to be occasioned thereby; and all such last-mentioned works shall be done by or under the direction, superintendence, and control of the engineer or other officer or officers of the said Metropolitan Board, at the expense in all respects of the commissioners; and all expenses which the said Metropolitan Board may be put to by reason of the works of the commissioners, whether in the execution of works, the preparation or examination of plans or designs, superintendence, or otherwise, shall be paid to such board by the commissioners; and when any new, altered, or substituted works as aforesaid, or any works connected therewith, shall be completed, by or at the expense of the commissioners, under the provisions of this act, the same shall thereafter be as fully and completely under the direction, jurisdiction, and control of the said Metropolitan Board as any sewers or works now are or hereafter may be; and nothing in this act shall extend to prejudice, diminish, alter, or take away any of the rights, powers, or authorities of the said Metropolitan Board, but all such rights, powers, or authorities shall be as valid and effectual as if this act had not been passed; provided that no renewal or alteration, other than a change of site of existing works, shall be deemed new works under this act; and if the commissioners shall complain of any withholding of consent on the part of the said board, or of any orders and directions and regulations, or of any charges sought to be imposed by such board upon the commissioners, in the execution of any such works, it shall be lawful for her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Home Department for the time being to determine every such difference, and by order under his hand to authorise the works, and the manner of executing the same, as he shall think fit; and after the date of the application by the commissioners to the said Secretary of State no penalty shall be incurred by any default of the commissioners in respect of or in relation to such works, or the matters in difference between the parties.

17. Nothing in this act contained shall prejudice, diminish, alter, or take away any of the rights, powers, or authorities vested in the commissioners of sewers of the city of London, with respect to Bell-yard, Fleet-street, in the city of London.

18. All buildings erected on the prescribed lands shall be exempt from the operation of the first part of the Metropolitan Buildings Act, 1855.

19. No notice shall be given of the intention to take any property under this act, nor shall any contract be entered into for the purchase of any property, until a certificate in writing shall have been received by the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, signed by the major part in number of the persons appointed by her Majesty, under the Courts of Justice Building Act, 1865, to advise and concur with the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, with reference to the plan and arrangements of the buildings to be erected upon the lands hereby authorised to be taken, stating that they are satisfied that the lands to be acquired under this act, of which a plan has been laid before Parliament, are sufficient for all the purposes of the intended new courts and buildings connected therewith, and that the probable cost of the said lands and buildings will not exceed the amount of the funds provided, under the Courts of Justice Building Act, 1865, for those purposes.

Miscellaneous.

20. No purchase shall be made by the commissioners for the purposes of the act without the consent in writing of the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury; but it shall not be necessary for any vendor or any purchaser from the said commissioners to ascertain that such assent has been given, nor shall the commissioners be bound to produce to any such vendor or purchaser any evidence of such assent; and any such assent may be given either generally, or for any particular purchase or purchases, as to the said Commissioners of the Treasury may seem meet.

21. Every notice, summons, writ, or other document required to be given, issued, or signed by or on behalf of the commissioners, may be given, issued, or signed by the solicitor or secretary for the time being of the commissioners, and need not be under the common seal of the commissioners, and may be in writing or in print, or partly in writing and partly in print.

22. All orders which under this act the Court of Chancery is empowered to make on motion or petition, in relation to any money paid into the Bank of England with the privy of the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery under this act, or the securities in or upon which the same may be invested, or the dividends or interest on such money and securities, may be made by any judge of the said court upon application to him, while sitting at chambers, upon summons, in like manner as in other cases in which proceedings may be so had, subject nevertheless to any General Orders which may hereafter be made concerning the practice, proceedings, or business of the said court, on any such applications.

23. If any person wilfully obstruct any person acting under the authority of the commissioners, in the lawful exercise of the powers vested in them under this act, he shall forfeit a sum not exceeding 5*l.* for every such offence, to be recovered in a summary manner.

24. No deed, bond, or other instrument made by, to, or with the commissioners for any of the purposes of this act, shall be subject to any stamp duty imposed by any act now in force, nor to any stamp duty to be imposed by any future act, unless such instruments are specially charged therewith in such future act.

25. Every conveyance, assignment, or other deed or instrument whereby any land by this act authorised to be purchased is conveyed or assigned to the commissioners for the purposes of this act, shall be enrolled amongst the records of her Majesty's Court of Exchequer, and entered in the books of the said commissioners; and every such conveyance, assignment, or other deed or instrument, when so enrolled, shall, without any other enrolment or acknowledgment thereof, and without any registry thereof, be good and available in law, any act of Parliament, law, practice, or usage to the contrary in anywise notwithstanding.

26. A copy of the plans of the prescribed lands shall be deposited at the office of the commissioners, and shall remain at the said office, to the end that all persons may at all reasonable times, on payment of a fee of 1*s.* have liberty to inspect the same.

CAP. L.

An Act for regulating the keeping of Dogs, and for the Protection of Sheep and other Property from Dogs, in Ireland. [19th June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Short title.

2. Commencement of act.

3. Only to extend to Ireland.

4. Interpretation clause.

5. Commissioners of Inland Revenue to provide dies for denoting license duty.

6. Licensee to keep dogs, &c.

7. Occupiers to be liable to payment of license duty. Joint occupiers.

8. Clerk to make entry of licensees in book to be kept for that purpose.

9. Proceedings on transfer of dog by sale or gift.

10. Power to justices to enforce payment of fees in certain cases. Petty sessions clerk shall fill up forms, when required.

11. Lists of licensees to be printed and posted.

12. Petty sessions clerk to account with the registrar half-yearly.

13. Accounts to be verified.

14. Allowance for licensees or license stamps spoiled &c.

15. Repayment of expenses.

16. Moneys received for stamps to be subject to the 21 & 22 Vict. c. 100.

17. Accounts to be presented to Parliament.
18. Registrar to furnish notices setting forth acts required to be done under this act.
19. Provisions of the Stamp Acts, as far as applicable, to be extended to this act.
20. Penalty on owners of dogs not having the same licensed.
21. Penalty for refusing to produce license.
22. Recovery of penalties. Application of penalties.
23. No penalty where failure not wilful.

CAP. LI.

An Act to enable the Admiralty to contract for certain Works in connexion with the Extension of Her Majesty's Dock-yards. [29th June, 1865.]

CAP. LII.

An Act to amend the Drainage and Improvement of Lands Acts (Ireland), and to afford further facilities for the Purposes thereof. [29th June, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Short title.
2. Copies of inspectors' reports to be lodged with clerk of the peace.
3. Part of sect. 38 of first-recited act repealed, and Commissioners of Public Works empowered to advance moneys necessary for the works.
4. All the provisions of former acts with respect to loans to apply to loans under this act.
5. Nothing in the acts construed to render legal works that would have been illegal if acts had not passed.
6. This act to apply to districts in which provisional orders have been made.
7. This and recited act to be as one.

CAP. LIII.

An Act to confirm a Provisional Order under the Drainage and Improvement of Lands (Ireland) Act, 1863, and the Act amending the Same. [29th June, 1865.]

CAP. LIV.

An Act to alter the Days between which Pheasants may not be killed in Ireland. [29th June, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Part of recited act repealed.
2. Fixing period for shooting pheasants in Ireland.
3. Limit of act.

Whereas by an act passed in the Parliament of Ireland, in the 27 Geo. 3, c. 35, intituled "An Act for the Preservation of Game," it was enacted (amongst other things) that from and after the 1st June, 1787, every person who shall wilfully kill or destroy any pheasant between the 10th January and the 1st September in any year shall forfeit a sum not exceeding 5*l.* for every such pheasant: and whereas these days having been found inconvenient, it is expedient to alter them: be it therefore enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. From and after the passing of this act so much of the said recited act of the 27 Geo. 3 as relates to the killing or destroying any pheasant between the 10th January and the 1st September in any year shall be, and the same is declared to be, hereby repealed.

2. From and after the passing of this act, no person or persons shall on any pretence whatsoever kill or destroy any pheasant between the 1st February and the 1st October in any year, and if any person or persons shall do so, he or they shall be liable to the same penalty as by the before-recited act is laid upon every person or persons transgressing the same.

3. This act shall be held to apply to Ireland only.

CAP. LV.

An Act to empower the University of Oxford to make Statutes as to the Vinerian Foundation in that University. [29th June, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Power to University to make statutes as to the Vinerian foundation.
2. Provisions of the 25 & 26 Vict. c. 26, to apply to statutes under this act.
3. Short title.

Whereas it is expedient to extend the powers of making statutes possessed by the University of Oxford: be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. That the said University may, with the view of better promoting the teaching and study of the law in the said University, vary by statute all or any of the directions, trusts, and regulations now in force relating to the Vinerian professorship and the Vinerian fellowship and scholarships respectively, and to the application of the funds held in trust by the said University under the will of Charles Viner, Esq., deceased: provided, that part of the income of such funds shall always be applied to the teaching of law, and the residue towards encouraging the study of the law by means of fellowships or scholarships, or both; and that the name of the said Charles Viner, or the title Vinerian, shall always be retained in connexion with the said foundation: provided also, that the interests of the present professor, fellow, and scholars respectively on the said Vinerian foundation shall not, without their respective consents, be altered or affected by any such statute; but every person who, after the passing of this act, may be elected a Vinerian professor, or fellow, or scholar, shall be subject to any statute to be afterwards made by the University, under the powers of this act, as fully as if he had been elected under such statute.

2. All the provisions of the Oxford University Act, 1862, as to statutes of the University passed by virtue thereof, shall extend and apply to statutes of the University made by virtue of this act; and the Oxford University Act, 1862, and this act, shall be construed together as one act.

3. This act may be cited for all purposes as "The Oxford University, Vinerian Foundation, Act, 1865."

CAP. LVI.

An Act to provide for the better Prevention of Trespass in Scotland. [29th June, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Short title.
2. Interpretation of terms.
3. Parties lodging in premises or encamping on land, without permission, guilty of an offence.
4. Apprehension and punishment of offenders.
5. As to prosecutions under act.

Whereas it is expedient that provision should be made for the better prevention of trespass in Scotland: be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. This act may be cited for all purposes as "The Trespass (Scotland) Act, 1865."

2. In this act the following words shall have the meanings here assigned to them:

"Premises" shall mean and include any house, barn, stable, shed, loft, granary, outhouse, garden, stack-yard, court, close, or inclosed place:

"Magistrate" shall mean and include the sheriff and sheriff substitute, or any one or more justice or justices of the peace, or any one or more magistrate or magistrates, having jurisdiction respectively in the county or burgh where any offence against the provisions of this act is committed, or where any person charged with such offence is found or brought to trial:

"Procurator fiscal" shall mean and include the procurator fiscal of the court having such jurisdiction.

3. Every person who lodges in any premises, or occupies or encamps on any land, being private property, without the consent and permission of the owner or legal occupier of such premises or land, and every person who encamps or lights a fire on or near any private road or enclosed or cultivated land, or in or near any plantation, without the consent and permission of the owner or legal occupier of such road, land, or plantation, or on or near any turnpike road, statute labour road, or other highway, shall be guilty of an offence punishable as hereinafter provided.

4. Every person who commits an offence against the provisions of this act may, if found in the act of committing the same by any officer of police or constable, be apprehended by such officer or constable, and detained in any prison, police station, lock-up, or other place of safe custody, and not later than in the course of the next lawful day after he shall have been so taken into custody shall be brought before a magistrate; and every person charged with the commission of any such offence may, if not so taken into custody, or if he shall have been liberated on bail or pledge, be summoned to appear before a magistrate, and on being convicted of such offence on his own confession, or on the evidence of one or more credible witnesses, shall for a first offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding 20s., or to imprisonment for any period not exceeding fourteen days, and for a second or any subsequent offence shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding 40s., or to imprisonment for any period not exceeding twenty-one days.

5. Every prosecution for any offence against the provisions of this act shall be raised and proceeded in at the instance of the procurator fiscal, and shall be heard and determined by one or more magistrate or magistrates in a summary form; and every such prosecution shall be commenced within one month after the offence has been committed.

CAP. LVII.

An Act to amend certain Provisions in the Ecclesiastical Leasing Act, 1858. [29th June, 1865.]

Whereas doubts have arisen as to the interpretation of certain provisions of the Ecclesiastical Leasing Act, 1858: be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. The moneys which, in respect of any sale effected under the said act, shall become due and payable by way of perpetual annual chief or other rent or rent-charge, shall not be subject to the provisions contained in the 2nd section of the same act, which require that all moneys which may become payable in respect of sales under the Ecclesiastical Leasing Acts, shall be paid to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England, to be invested and dealt with as contemplated by the said section.

CAP. LVIII.

An Act for confirming, with Amendments, certain Provisional Orders made by the Board of Trade under the General Pier and Harbour Act, 1861, relating to Carrickfergus, Hastings, Maldon, Northam, and Shanklin. [29th June, 1865.]

CAP. LIX.

An Act for confirming, with Amendments, a Provisional Order made by the Board of Trade under the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862, relating to the Pilotage of the Port of Sunderland. [29th June, 1865.]

CAP. LX.

An Act to render Owners of Dogs in England and Wales liable for Injuries to Cattle and Sheep. [29th June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Owner of dog to be liable in damages for any injury committed by his dog. Recovery of damages.

2. Who shall be deemed the owner of the dog.

3. Extent of act.

Whereas it is expedient to amend the law as to the liability of the owners of dogs for injuries done to cattle and sheep by such dogs: be it therefore enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. The owner of every dog shall be liable in damages for injury done to any cattle or sheep by his dog; and it shall not be necessary for the party seeking such damages to shew a previous mischievous propensity in such dog, or the owner's knowledge of such previous propensity, or that the injury was attributable to neglect on the part of such owner. Such damages shall be recoverable in any court of competent jurisdiction by the owner of such cattle or sheep killed or injured. Where the amount of the damages claimed shall not exceed 5*l.*, the same shall be recoverable in a summary way before any justice or justices sitting in petty sessions under the provisions of the act the 11 & 12 Vict. c. 43.

2. The occupier of any house or premises where any dog was kept or permitted to live or remain at the time of such injury shall be deemed to be the owner of such dog, and shall be liable as such, unless the said occupier can prove that he was the owner of such dog at the time the injury complained of was committed, and that such dog was kept or permitted to live or remain in the said house or premises without his sanction or knowledge: provided always, that where there are more occupiers than one in any house or premises let in separate apartments, or lodgings, or otherwise, the occupier of that particular part of the premises in which such dog shall have been kept or permitted to live or remain at the time of such injury shall be deemed to be the owner of such dog.

3. This act shall extend to England and Wales only.

CAP. LXI.

An Act for providing a further Sum towards defraying the Expenses of constructing Fortifications for the Protection of the Royal Arsenal and Dockyards and the Ports of Dover and Portland, and of creating a Central Arsenal. [29th June, 1865.]

CAP. LXII.

An Act to provide for the Exemption of Churches and Chapels in Scotland from Poor Rates. [29th June, 1865.]

CAP. LXIII.

An Act to remove Doubts as to the Validity of Colonial Laws. [29th June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Definitions: "colony:" "legislature:" "colonial legislature:" "representative legislature:" "colonial law:" "act of Parliament, &c. to extend to colony when made applicable to such colony: "governor:" "letters-patent."

2. Colonial law when void for repugnancy.

3. Colonial law when not void for repugnancy.

4. Colonial law not void for inconsistency with instructions.

5. Colonial legislature may establish, &c. courts of law. Representative legislatures may alter constitution.

6. Certified copies of laws to be evidence that they are properly passed. Proclamation to be evidence of assent and disallowance.

7. Certain acts enacted by legislature of South Australia to be valid.

Whereas doubts have been entertained respecting the validity of divers laws enacted or purporting to have been enacted by the legislatures of certain of her Majesty's colonies, and respecting the powers of such legislatures, and it is expedient that such doubts should be removed:

Be it hereby enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. The term "colony" shall in this act include all of her Majesty's possessions abroad in which there shall exist a legislature, as hereinafter defined, except the Channel Islands, the Isle of Man, and such territories as may for the time being be vested in her Majesty under or by virtue of any act of Parliament for the Government of India:

The terms "legislature" and "colonial legislature" shall severally signify the authority, other than the Imperial Parliament or her Majesty in Council, competent to make laws for any colony:

The term "representative legislature" shall signify any colonial legislature which shall comprise a legislative body of which one half are elected by inhabitants of the colony:

The term "colonial law" shall include laws made for any colony either by such legislature aforesaid or by her Majesty in Council:

An act of Parliament or any provision thereof, shall, in construing this act, be said to extend to any colony when it is made applicable to such colony by the express words or necessary intendment of any act of Parliament:

The term "governor" shall mean the officer lawfully administering the government of any colony:

The term "letters-patent" shall mean letters-patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

2. Any colonial law which is or shall be in any respect repugnant to the provisions of any act of Parliament extending to the colony to which such law may relate, or repugnant to any order or regulation made under authority of such act of Parliament, or having in the colony the force and effect of such act, shall be read subject to such act, order, or regulation, and shall, to the extent of such repugnancy, but not otherwise, be and remain absolutely void and inoperative.

3. No colonial law shall be, or be deemed to have been, void or inoperative on the ground of repugnancy to the law of England, unless the same shall be repugnant to the provisions of some such act of Parliament, order, or regulation as aforesaid.

4. No colonial law, passed with the concurrence of or assented to by the governor of any colony, or to be hereafter so passed or assented to, shall be, or be deemed to have been, void or inoperative by reason only of any instructions with reference to such law or the subject thereof which may have been given to such governor by or on behalf of her Majesty, by any instrument other than the letters-patent or instrument authorising such governor to concur in passing or to assent to laws for the peace, order, and good government of such colony, even though such instructions may be referred to in such letters-patent or last-mentioned instrument.

5. Every colonial legislature shall have, and be deemed at all times to have had, full power within its jurisdiction to establish courts of judicature, and to abolish and reconstitute the same, and to alter the constitution thereof, and to make provision for the administration of justice therein; and every representative legislature shall, in respect to the colony under its jurisdiction, have, and be deemed at all times to have had, full power to make laws respecting the constitution, powers, and procedure of such legislature: provided, that such laws shall have been passed in such manner and form as may from time to time be required by any act of Parliament, letters-patent, Order in Council, or colonial law for the time being in force in the said colony.

6. The certificate of the clerk or other proper officer of a legislative body in any colony, to the effect that the document to which it is attached is a true copy of any colonial law assented to by the governor of such colony, or of any bill reserved for the signification of her Majesty's pleasure by the said governor, shall be prima facie evidence that the document so certified is a true copy of such law or bill, and, as the case may be, that such law has been duly and properly passed and assented to, or that such bill has been duly and properly passed and presented to the governor; and any proclamation purporting to be published by authority of the governor in any newspaper in the colony to which such law or bill shall relate, and signifying her Majesty's disallowance of any such colonial law, or her Majesty's assent to any such reserved bill as aforesaid, shall be prima facie evidence of such disallowance or assent.

And whereas doubts are entertained respecting the validity of certain acts enacted, or reputed to be enacted, by the legislature of South Australia: be it further enacted, as follows:—

7. All laws or reputed laws enacted, or purporting to have been enacted, by the said legislature, or by persons or bodies of persons for the time being acting as such legislature, which have received the assent of her Majesty in Council, or which have received the assent of the governor of the said colony in the name and on behalf of her Majesty, shall be, and be deemed to have been, valid and effectual from the date of such assent for all purposes whatever; provided that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to give effect to any law or reputed law which has been disallowed by her Majesty, or has expired, or has been lawfully repealed, or to prevent the lawful disallowance or repeal of any law.

CAP. LXIV.

An Act to remove Doubts respecting the Validity of certain Marriages contracted in Her Majesty's Possessions abroad. [29th June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Colonial laws establishing validity of marriages to have effect throughout her Majesty's dominions. Not to give effect to marriages unless parties are competent to contract marriage.

2. Definition of "legislature."

Whereas laws have from time to time been made by the legislatures of divers of her Majesty's possessions abroad for the purpose of establishing the validity of certain marriages previously contracted therein, but doubts are entertained whether such laws are in all respects effectual for the aforesaid purpose beyond the limits of such possessions: be it therefore enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. Every law made, or to be made, by the legislature of any such possession as aforesaid for the purpose of establishing the validity of any marriage or marriages contracted in such possession shall have, and be deemed to have had, from the date of the making of such law, the same force and effect for the purpose aforesaid within all parts of her Majesty's dominions as such law may have had, or may hereafter have, within the possession for which the same was made: provided, that nothing in this law contained shall give any effect or validity to any marriage, unless at the time of such marriage both of the parties thereto were, according to the law of England, competent to contract the same.

2. In this act the word "legislature" shall include any authority competent to make laws for any of her Majesty's possessions abroad, except the Parliament of the United Kingdom and her Majesty in Council.

CAP. LXV.

An Act to explain the Defence Act, 1860.

[29th June, 1865.]

CAP. LXVI.

An Act to allow the charging of the Excise Duty on Malt according to the Weight of the Grain used.

[29th June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Commencement of act.

2. Maltster entitled to have the duty upon malt made by him charged according to the weight of the grain used.

3. Cover to be affixed to cistern.

4. Notice to be given of the steeping of grain.

5. Declaration to be given of the weight of grain to be steeped.

6. Mode of ascertaining weight of grain.

7. Mode of calculating duty on malt when charged according to weight.

8. Maltster to provide scales and weights and bushel measure.

9. Officer may weigh any grain in the malthouse of a maltster making malt under the provisions of this act.

10. Penalty where the weight of grain shall exceed declared weight.

11. Grain making into malt may be sprinkled at the expiration of ninety hours after being emptied from cistern.

12. Penalty for offences against this act.

13. Condition No. 3 in sect. 28 of the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 113, repealed, and other provisions made.

14. The 12 Geo. 1, c. 4, ss. 48 to 50, and the 3 Geo. 4, c. 18, ss. 12 to 16, and 18 and 19, relating to the exportation of malt on drawback, repealed.

15. Not to repeal provisions of other Malt Acts.

16. Continuance of act.

CAP. LXVII.

An Act to amend the Acts relating to the Harbour of Kingstown.

[29th June, 1865.]

CAP. LXVIII.

An Act to enable the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England to grant Superannuation Allowances to Persons employed in their Service. [29th June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Power to commissioners, out of their common fund, to grant retired allowances.

2. Power to grant gratuities in certain cases where officials not entitled by length of service to superannuation.

3. No superannuation to be granted unless approved by Treasury.

4. Restrictions as to grant of full superannuation allowance.

5. Under special circumstances an increase may be made to regular superannuation allowance.

6. Superannuation not to be granted to persons under sixty, except upon medical certificate.

7. Where superannuation granted to any person under sixty, he shall be liable to be recalled to service.

8. None but secretary to be deemed in service of commissioners unless admitted with a certificate from Civil Service Commissioners, &c.

9. Return of superannuations to be inserted in annual report.

CAP. LXIX.

An Act further to amend and render more effectual the Law for providing fit Houses for the Beneficed Clergy; and for other Purposes. [29th June, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Extension of provisions of recited acts relating to repairing, rebuilding, or acquiring houses of residence, &c.
2. Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty may sell lands, &c. given to them for their general purposes.
3. Powers of recited acts extended to this act.
4. Corporations and persons under disability or incapacity authorised to convey houses and lands for parsonages.
5. Five of the governors may form a quorum.

Whereas under the provisions of the several acts passed in the sessions held in the 17 Geo. 3, c. 53, the 21 Geo. 3, c. 66, the 7 Geo. 4, c. 66, and the 1 & 2 Vict. c. 23, the incumbent of a benefice is authorised and empowered, with the consents in the said acts specified, to borrow and take up at interest a sum of money exceeding one year's but not exceeding three years' net income of his benefice, for the purpose of building, repairing, or purchasing a house and other necessary buildings, or a proper site for such house and other necessary buildings, to be used as the parsonage or glebe house and offices for his benefice, and as a security for the money so to be borrowed to mortgage the glebe tithes, rent-charges, rents, and other profits and emoluments of his benefice for the term of thirty-five years, the principal so borrowed being repayable by thirty annual instalments, with interest to accrue due thereon: and whereas it is expedient to extend the provisions of the said acts and to provide for the other purposes hereinafter expressed: be it therefore enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. The incumbent of any benefice may, according to the provisions of and with the consents required by the said acts, and by any act or acts amending or referring to the same, borrow and take up at interest on mortgage as provided by the same acts, or any of them, for the purposes of the same acts or any of them, or for the purposes of the act passed in the session held in the 55 Geo. 3, c. 147, or for the purpose of purchasing any lands or hereditaments not exceeding twelve acres, contiguous to or desirable to be used or occupied with the parsonage house or glebe belonging to such benefice, or for the purpose of building any offices, stables, or outbuildings, or fences necessary for the occupation or protection of such parsonage, or for the purpose of restoring, rebuilding, or repairing the fabric of the chancel of the church of such benefice (in any case where such incumbent is or shall be liable to repair or sustain the fabric of such chancel), or for the purpose of building, improving, enlarging, or purchasing any farm house or farm buildings, or labourers' dwelling houses, with the appurtenances belonging to or desirable to be acquired for any farm or lands appertaining to such benefice, any sum or sums of money not being less than 100*l.*, and not exceeding three years' net income of such benefice; and out of the sum to be borrowed it shall be lawful to pay the charges and expenses of the architect or surveyor who shall be employed in or about any of the purposes aforesaid, and also the costs and expenses of and incidental to the preparation of the mortgage deed or deeds, and of and incidental to any purchase by the said acts or this act authorised to be made.

2. It shall be lawful for the governors of the bounty of Queen Anne, for the augmentation of the maintenance of the poor clergy, absolutely to sell and dispose of, either altogether or in parcels, and either by public sale or by private contract, for such sum or sums of money as to the said governors shall seem fair and reasonable, all houses, lands, tithes, tithe rent-charges, and hereditaments, of what nature or kind soever, which may have been, or shall hereafter be, given, devised, or conveyed to or acquired by the said governors for the purpose generally of augmenting the maintenance of the poor clergy; and the moneys to arise from every such sale shall be paid to the said governors, and the receipts of their treasurer for the time being shall be sufficient discharges for the said moneys, and shall effectually release and exonerate the person or persons paying the same from all responsibility in respect of the application thereof; and the said moneys, when so received, shall be applied and disposed of by the said governors for the benefit and augmentation of benefices in such and the same manner, according to the rules and regulations of the said governors, as the general funds and profits of the said governors are applicable and disposable.

3. All the powers, authorities, provisions, forms, and matters in the hereinbefore-mentioned acts contained shall, except as herein otherwise is provided, extend and be applicable, mutatis mutandis, to all the purposes of this act and of the said hereinbefore-mentioned acts, as if the same had been respectively repeated and set forth herein.

4. It shall be lawful for the principal officer of any public department holding any messuages, buildings, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, for or on behalf of her Majesty, or otherwise for the public use or the use of such department, and for every body politic, corporate, or collegiate, and corporation aggregate or sole, and for all trustees, guardians, commissioners, or other persons having the control, care, or management of any hospital, school, charitable foundation, or other public institution, and for all other persons by the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, empowered to sell and convey or release lands by any assurance under the hand and seal or under the common seal, as the case may be, of such principal officer, body, or corporation, or under the hands and seals or hand and seal of such trustees, guardians, commissioners, or other persons or person, to grant and convey or release, either by way of voluntary gift or of sale, to the said governors, in fee-simple or otherwise, any messuages, buildings, lands, tenements, or hereditaments to be used as and for parsonages or residences for incumbents of benefices, or the outbuildings, yards, gardens, or appurtenances thereto, or as and for sites or for enlarging sites for such parsonages or residences, or the outbuildings, yards, gardens, or appurtenances thereto; and all such assurances may be made according to the form contained in the 20th section of the 1 Vict. c. 20, or as near thereto as the circumstances of the case will admit, or in any other form which the said governors may approve; but no such assurance or assurances from the same body of persons otherwise than upon a sale for the fair value shall comprise (including the site of any building) more than one acre, and upon every such assurance by way of sale the purchase money may be paid to the seller or sellers, or as he or they shall appoint, and the receipt of them or him, or their or his appointees, shall be a sufficient discharge for the same, except that in the case of a sale for more than 90*l.* by a tenant for life or other person having only a partial estate, the purchase money shall be paid to and applied by two trustees, in manner provided by the 71st section of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845.

5. To facilitate the despatch of the business of the said governors, any five of the said governors, three of whom at least shall be archbishops or bishops, shall make a quorum for the future, and be sufficient at any court for the despatch, by majority of votes, of all business of the said governors.

CAP. LXX.

An Act to alter the Distribution of the Constabulary Force in Ireland, and to make better Provision for the Police Force in the Borough of Belfast. [29th June, 1865.]

CAP. LXXI.

An Act to amend the Acts for the Establishment of a National Gallery in Dublin. [29th June, 1865.]

CAP. LXXII.

An Act to make better Provision respecting Wills of Seamen and Marines of the Royal Navy and Marines. [29th June, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Short title.
2. Interpretation of terms.
3. Will made before entry ineffectual as to wages, &c.
4. Will invalid if combined with power of attorney.
5. Regulations for wills of seamen, &c. as to wages, &c.
6. As to wills made by prisoners of war.
7. Payment under will not in conformity with act.
8. Commencement of act.
9. Publication of Orders in Council.

Be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. This act may be cited as "The Navy and Marines (Wills) Act, 1865."

2. In this act—

The term "the Admiralty" means the Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, or the Commissioners for executing the Office of Lord High Admiral:

The term "seaman or marine" means a petty officer or seaman, non-commissioned officer of marines or marine, or other person forming part in any capacity of the complement of any of her Majesty's vessels, or otherwise belonging to her Majesty's naval or marine force, exclusive of commissioned, warrant, and subordinate officers, and assistant engineers, and of Kroomen.

3. A will made after the commencement of this act by any person at any time previously to his entering into service as a seaman or marine shall not be valid to pass any wages, prize money, bounty money, grant, or other allowance in the nature thereof, or other money payable by the Admiralty, or any effects or money in charge of the Admiralty.

4. A will made after the commencement of this act by any person while serving as a seaman or marine shall not be valid for any purpose if it is written or contained on or in the same paper, parchment, or instrument with a power of attorney.

5. A will made after the commencement of this act by any person while serving as a seaman or marine, or when he has ceased so to serve, shall not be valid to pass any wages, prize money, bounty money, grant, or other allowance in the nature thereof, or other money payable by the Admiralty, or any effects or money in charge of the Admiralty, unless it is made in conformity with the following provisions:—

- (1). Every such will shall be in writing, and be executed with the formalities required by the law of England in the case of persons not being soldiers in actual military service or mariners or seamen at sea:
- (2). Where the will is made on board one of her Majesty's ships, one of the two requisite attesting witnesses shall be a commissioned officer, chaplain, or warrant or subordinate officer belonging to her Majesty's naval or marine or military force:
- (3). Where the will is made elsewhere than on board one of her Majesty's ships, one of the two requisite attesting witnesses shall be such a commissioned officer or chaplain, or warrant or subordinate officer as aforesaid, or the governor, agent, physician, surgeon, assistant surgeon, or chaplain of a naval hospital at home or abroad, or a justice of the peace, or the incumbent, curate, or minister of a church or place of worship in the parish where the will is executed, or a British consular officer, or an officer of customs, or a notary public:

A will made in conformity with the foregoing provisions shall, as regards such wages, money, or effects, be deemed to be well made for the purpose of being admitted to probate in England; and the person taking out representation to the testator under such will shall exclusively be deemed the testator's representative with respect to such wages, money, or effects.

6. Notwithstanding anything in this or any other act, a will made after the commencement of this act by a seaman or marine while he is a prisoner of war shall (as far as regards the form thereof) be valid for all purposes if it is made in conformity with the following provisions:—

- (1). If it is in writing and is signed by him, and his signature thereto is made or acknowledged by him in the presence of, and is in his presence attested by, one witness, being either a commissioned officer or chaplain belonging to her Majesty's naval or marine or military force, or a warrant or subordinate officer of her Majesty's navy, or the agent of a naval hospital, or a notary public:
- (2). If the will is made according to the forms required by the law of the place where it is made:
- (3). If the will is in writing, and executed with the formalities required by the law of England in the case of persons not being soldiers in actual military service or mariners or seamen at sea.

7. Notwithstanding anything in this act, in case of a will made after the commencement of this act by any person while serving as a marine or seaman, and being either in actual military service or a mariner or seaman at sea, the Admiralty may pay or deliver any wages, prize money, bounty money, grant or other allowance in the nature thereof, or other money payable by the Admiralty, or any effects or money in charge of the Admiralty, to any person claiming to be entitled thereto under such will, though not made in conformity with the provisions of this act, if, having regard to the special circumstances of the death of the testator, the Admiralty are of opinion, that compliance with the requirements of this act may be properly dispensed with.

8. This act shall commence on such day, not later than the 1st January, 1866, as her Majesty in Council thinks fit to direct; nevertheless her Majesty in Council may, if it seems fit, with reference to any places out of the United Kingdom, direct that this act do not commence there, respectively, until a time after that day, and with respect to every such place the time so appointed shall be deemed the time of the commencement of this act.

9. Every Order in Council under this act shall be published in the London Gazette, and shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament within thirty days after the making thereof, if Parliament is then sitting, and if not, then within thirty days after the next meeting of Parliament.

CAP. LXXIII.

An Act for regulating the Payment of Naval and Marine Pay and Pensions.
[29th June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Short title.

2. Interpretation of terms.

3. Payment of naval and marine pay and pensions according to Order in Council.

4. Prohibition of assignment of pensions, &c.

5. Prohibition of assignment of wages, &c.

6. Exemption from stamp duty.

7. Proof to be given by masters claiming pay of apprentices.

8. Saving for Naval Agency Act.

9. Saving for Naval Discipline Act.

10. Saving for power of Secretary of State as to pensions.

11. Orders in Council.

12. Orders in Council to be published in London Gazette.

13. Commencement of act.

Be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. This act may be cited as "The Naval and Marine Pay and Pensions Act, 1865."

2. In this act—

The term "the Admiralty" means the Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, or the Commissioners for executing the Office of Lord High Admiral:

The term "officer" means a commissioned, warrant, or subordinate officer, or assistant engineer in her Majesty's naval or marine force:

The term "seaman or marine" means a petty officer or seaman, non-commissioned officer of marines or marine, or other person forming part, in any capacity, of the complement of any of her Majesty's vessels, or otherwise belonging to her Majesty's naval or marine force (not being an officer within the meaning of this act).

3. All pay, wages, pensions, bounty money, grants, or other allowances in the nature thereof payable in respect of services in her Majesty's naval or marine force to a person being, or having been, an officer, seaman, or marine, or to the widow or any relative of a deceased officer, seaman, or marine, shall be paid in such manner, and subject to such restrictions, conditions, and provisions as are from time to time directed by Order in Council.

4. Any assignment, sale, or contract made after the commencement of this act by an officer, seaman, or marine entitled to any naval pension—or by a person entitled to a pension as the widow of an officer—or by a person entitled to an allowance from the Compassionate Fund—or by a person entitled to any marine half pay—or in relation to such pension, allowances, or half pay, shall be void.

5. Any assignment, sale, or contract made after the commencement of this act, of or relating to any pay, wages, bounty money, grants, or other allowances in the nature thereof, payable in respect of services in her Majesty's naval or marine force to a person being, or having been, a subordinate officer, seaman, or marine, shall be void.

6. All bills, orders, receipts, and other instruments drawn, given, or made under the authority, or in pursuance of, an Order in Council, under this act, by, to, or upon any person in the service of her Majesty or of the Admiralty, shall be exempt from stamp duty.

7. If the wages of a seaman or marine are claimed under an indenture of apprenticeship by a master, they shall be paid to the seaman or marine, and not to the master, unless the master produces the indenture, with satisfactory proof that it was in full force during the period for which he claims the wages, and that the apprentice was at the time of the execution of the indenture under the age of eighteen years, and had not previously been at sea.

8. Nothing in this act shall apply to any money distributable under the Navy Agency and Distribution Act, 1864.

9. Nothing in this act shall authorise the making by Order in Council of any rule inconsistent with any provision affecting naval or marine pay or pensions contained in the Naval Discipline Act, 1864, or any act for the like purposes for the time being in force.

10. Nothing in this act shall take away or abridge any power vested in one of her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State relative to naval pensions.

11. Her Majesty in Council may from time to time make such Orders in Council as seem meet for the better execution of any of the purposes of this act.

12. Every Order in Council under this act shall be published in the London Gazette, and shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament within thirty days after the making thereof, if Parliament is then sitting, and if not, then within thirty days after the next meeting of Parliament.

13. This act shall commence on such day, not later than the 1st January, 1866, as her Majesty in Council thinks fit to direct.

Any Order in Council for the better execution of any of the purposes of this act may nevertheless be made before that day, but not so as to commence before it.

CAP. LXXIV.

An Act to enable Her Majesty's Secretary of State for the War Department to lay down and use a Tramway or Temporary Railway across certain public Roads in the County of Devon. [29th June, 1865.]

CAP. LXXV.

An Act for facilitating the more useful Application of Sewage in Great Britain and Ireland. [29th June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Short title.

2. Application of act.

3. Definition of sewer authority.

4. Powers of sewer authorities.

5. Power of entry.

6. Payment of expenses.

7. Power to take lands.

8. Compensation.

9. Power of sewer authorities to combine.

10. Sewer authority may take proceedings to prevent pollution of streams.

11. Sewers not allowed to drain into any stream, &c.

12. Power to Public Works Loan Commissioners to lend money to sewer authorities.

13. Powers of act cumulative.

14. Sewer authority may enter into contract for supply of sewage.

15. Application of the 27 & 28 Vict. c. 114, to works, &c. for supply of sewage.

16. Board of Works in Ireland to have power of Secretary of State in sewage matters.

Whereas it is expedient to remove difficulties under which local boards and other bodies having the care of sewers labour in disposing of the sewage of their districts so as not to be a nuisance, and to give facility to such authorities to make arrangements for the application of such sewage to land for agricultural purposes: be it therefore enacted &c.,

Sect. 1. This act, for all purposes, may be cited as "The Sewage Utilization Act, 1865."

2. This act shall not extend to any part of the metropolis as defined by the act of the session 18 & 19 Vict. c. 120, for the better local management of the metropolis, and shall not, with the exception of clause 15, extend to any parish as defined in the schedule to this act in a part of which parish the Public Health Act, 1848, and the Local Government Act, 1858, or one of such acts, is in force at the time of the passing of this act.

3. The expression "sewer authority" shall, in the several places in the schedule annexed hereto in that behalf mentioned, mean the persons or bodies of persons referred to in the first column of the schedule annexed hereto; and the term "district," in relation to a sewer authority, shall, as respects each authority, mean in the place in that behalf referred to in the second column of the said schedule.

"Local board" shall mean a local board authorised in pursuance of the Public Health Act, 1848, and the Local Government Act, 1858, or one of such acts.

4. Sewer authorities shall have power to construct such sewers as they may think necessary for keeping their district properly cleansed and drained, and shall, as respects all sewers constructed by them or under their control, whether the same were made before or after the passing of this act, have all the powers that local boards have, in respect of sewers vested in or constructed by them, under the 45th and 46th sections of the Public Health Act, 1848, the 30th section of the Local Government Act, 1858, and the 4th section of the Local Government Act, 1858, Amendment Act, 1861, subject to the provisions of the 5th and 6th sections of the last-mentioned act, and to the saving clauses in the Local Government Act, 1858, mentioned, from 68 to 74, both inclusive; and in Scotland, in addition to such of the aforesaid powers as are applicable to Scotland, all the powers contained in sect. 7 (Public Sewers) of part 4 of the General Police and Improvement (Scotland) Act, 1863.

5. The sewer authority shall have the powers of entry conferred by the 143rd section of the Public Health Act, 1848, for the purposes of making or keeping in repair any works made or to be made by them, as well as for the purposes specified in the said section.

6. A sewer authority shall pay all expenses incurred by them in carrying this act into effect out of the fund or rate in the schedule in that behalf mentioned, and shall have all such powers of borrowing money on the security of such fund or rate as local boards have of borrowing money under the Local Government Act, 1858, and the acts amending that act, on the security of the funds or rates in the said acts in that behalf mentioned, subject to the conditions and sanction under which such powers are exercised by local boards under the said acts.

7. A sewer authority shall, for the purposes of this act, have the powers of taking lands conferred on local boards by the 75th section of the Local Government Act, 1858, and any act amending the same.

8. Full compensation shall be made, out of any fund or rate applicable to the purposes of this act, to all persons sustaining any damage by reason of the exercise of any of the powers of this act; and in case of dispute as to amount, the same shall be settled by arbitration, as provided in the Public Health Act, 1848, or any act amending the same, or if the compensation claimed do not exceed the sum of 20*l*., the same may be ascertained by and recovered before justices in a summary manner, in manner provided by the acts mentioned in this section.

9. Two or more sewer authorities, including under that expression for the purposes of this section local boards, may combine together for the purpose of executing and maintaining any works that may be for the benefit of their respective districts, and all moneys they may agree to contribute for the execution and maintenance of such common works shall, in the case of each authority, be deemed to be expenses incurred by them in the execution of works within their district, and shall be raised accordingly.

10. A sewer authority, with the sanction of her Majesty's Attorney-General in England, and of the Attorney-General for Ireland in Ireland, and of the Lord Advocate in Scotland, may, either in its own name or in the name of any other person, with the consent of such person, take such proceedings by indictment, bill in Chancery, action, or otherwise, as it may deem advisable, for the purpose of protecting any watercourse within its jurisdiction from pollutions arising from sewage either within or without its district; and the costs of and incidental to any such proceedings, including any costs that may be awarded to the defendant, shall be deemed to be expenses properly incurred by the sewer authority in carrying into effect the purposes of this act.

11. Nothing contained in this act, or in the acts referred to therein, shall authorise any sewer authority to make a sewer so as to drain direct into any stream or watercourse.

12. The Public Works Loan Commissioners, as defined by the Public Works Loan Act, 1853, may advance to any sewer authority, upon the security of any rate applicable to the purposes of this act, without any further security, such sums of money as may be recommended by one of her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, to be applied by such authority in carrying into effect the purposes of this act.

13. All powers given by this act shall be deemed to be in addition to, and not in derogation of, any other powers conferred on any sewer authority by act of Parliament, law, or custom; and the sewer authority may exercise such other powers in the same manner as if this act had not passed.

14. The sewer authority of any place may from time to time, for the purpose of utilizing its sewage, agree with any person or body of persons, corporate or unincorporate, as to the supply of such sewage, and works to be made for the purpose of that supply, and the parties to execute the same and to bear the costs thereof, and the sums of money, if any, to be paid for that supply; provided that no contract shall be made for the supply of sewage for a period exceeding twenty-five years.

15. The making of works of distribution and service for the supply of sewage to lands for agricultural purposes shall be deemed an "improvement of land" authorised by the Land Improvement Act, 1864, and the provisions of that act shall apply accordingly.

16. The Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland shall, in respect to any sewage authority or sewer matter in Ireland, have and exercise all the powers conferred by this act, or any act incorporated herewith, on one of her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State; and all applications by this act, or any act incorporated herewith, authorised or directed to be made to one of her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State in respect to sewage matters, or the powers conferred by this act on sewage authorities, shall in Ireland be made to the Commissioners of Public Works; and all orders made on such applications by said commissioners shall have the same force and effect as orders made by one of her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State on similar applications in England and Scotland.

SCHEDULE.

ENGLAND AND WALES.

Description of Local Authority.	Description of Places.	Rate or Fund out of which Expenses to be paid.
The mayor, aldermen, and burgesses acting by the council.	In boroughs, with the exception of the boroughs of Oxford and Cambridge, not within the jurisdiction of a local board.	The borough fund or borough rate.
The commissioners, trustees, or other person intrusted by any local act of Parliament with powers of improving, cleansing, lighting, or paving the town.	The boroughs of Oxford and Cambridge, and any town or place not included within the above descriptions, and under the jurisdiction of commissioners, trustees, or other persons intrusted by any local act with powers of improving, cleansing, lighting, or paving any town.	Any rate leviable by the commissioners, trustees, or other persons.
The vestry, select vestry, or other body of persons acting by virtue of any act of Parliament, prescription, custom, or otherwise, as or instead of a vestry, or select vestry.	In parishes not within the jurisdiction of any sewer authority hereinbefore mentioned, and in which a rate is levied for the maintenance of the poor.	The poor rate.

SCOTLAND.

The town council	Places within the jurisdiction of any town council, and not subject to the separate jurisdiction of police commissioners or trustees.	The revenue of the burgh, or any rate applicable to sewers leviable by the town council.
The police commissioners or trustees.	In places where police commissioners or trustees exercise the functions of police commissioners or trustees under any general or local act.	Any rate leviable by the commissioners or trustees, or any fund belonging to them.
The parochial board . . .	Any town or village not included in the above descriptions.	The poor rate.

IRELAND.

The right hon. the lord mayor, aldermen, and burgesses.	The city of Dublin	The district sewer rate.
The mayor, aldermen, and burgesses.	Towns corporate or boroughs (with the exception of Dublin).	Any rate leviable by the town council, or any fund belonging to them, applicable in the whole or in part to the making or repairing of sewers within their jurisdiction.
The town commissioners or other governing body.	Towns having town commissioners under the 9 Geo. 4, c. 82, or the 17 & 18 Vict. c. 103, or any acts amending the same, or having commissioners or other governing body under any local act.	Any rate leviable by these bodies, or any fund belonging to them, applicable in the whole or in part to the making or repairing of sewers within their jurisdiction.
The board of guardians or any committee thereof appointed by the board.	Any town or village in any union not included in the above descriptions.	The poor rate; but the expenses to be charged only on the electoral division in which the town or village is situated.

CAP. LXXVI.

An Act for confirming, with Amendments, certain Provisional Orders, made by the Board of Trade, under the General Pier and Harbour Act, 1861, relating to Girvan, McEaglesay, and Stornoway. [29th June, 1865.]

CAP. LXXVII.

An Act to amend the Act of the 27 & 28 Vict. c. 64, commonly called "The Public House Closing Act, 1864." [29th June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Short title.

2. Power to justices to grant licences to licensed victuallers and refreshment housekeepers suspending operation of recited act.
3. Power to withdraw such licence.
4. Act to be in force in certain districts, &c.
5. Justices of the peace to grant licences.
6. Act to be construed with recited act.

Whereas it is expedient to amend the Public House Closing Act, 1864:" be it therefore enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. This act may be cited for all purposes as "The Public House Closing Act, 1865."

2. It shall be lawful for the licensing justices at the time of granting or renewing any licence, upon the production of such evidence as they shall deem sufficient to shew that it is necessary or desirable, for the accommodation of any considerable number of persons attending any public market, or following any lawful trade or calling, if in the discretion of such justices, they shall think fit, to grant to any licensed victualler or keeper of a refreshment house whose place of business is in the immediate neighbourhood of such market, or of the place where the persons follow such lawful trade or calling, a licence exempting him from the provisions of the hereinbefore-mentioned act between the hours of two and four o'clock in the morning, or any part of such hours, during such days, times, or hours as shall be specified in such licence; and no licensed victualler or keeper of refreshment house to whom such licence has been granted under this act shall be subject to any penalty for a contravention of the hereinbefore-mentioned act during the days or times to which such licence extends, but he shall not be exempted by such licence from any penalty to which he may be subject under any other act of Parliament; provided that the printed notice stating the days and special hours during which, and the class of persons for whom, the house is open under such licence, shall be affixed in a conspicuous position outside the house.

3. It shall be lawful for such justices, from time to time, as and when it may seem fit to them, either to withdraw such licence altogether, or to alter, vary, or amend the same in such manner as such justices may deem necessary or expedient.

4. The said act, as herein amended, shall be in force in such districts under the operation of the Public Health Act, 1848, or the Local Government Act, 1858, as adopt the same; and local boards of health established under or by virtue of the said Public Health Act, 1848, and local boards established under or by virtue of the said Local Government Act, 1858, may adopt the said Public House Closing Act, 1864, in the same manner; and the same shall come into operation at the same time as is provided for the adoption and coming into operation of that act by corporate boroughs, or boards of improvement commissioners; provided that this section shall not apply to any district which is a corporate borough, or within the jurisdiction of a board of improvement commissioners.

5. So much of the eighth clause of the said recited act as defines the local authority to be a commissioner, superintendent, or other chief officer of police shall be repealed, and instead thereof the local authority shall be, in any district, city, or town where petty sessions are held, except in the metropolitan police district, two justices of the peace sitting in petty sessions, and in any other district, city, or town, two justices of the peace acting in the district, city, or town.

6. This act shall be deemed, construed, and taken as part of the said hereinbefore-mentioned act.

CAP. LXXVIII.

An Act to enable certain Companies to issue Mortgage Debentures founded on Securities upon or affecting Land, and to make Provision for the Registration of such Mortgage Debentures and Securities. [29th June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Short title.

2. Extent of act.
3. No company to avail themselves of act unless it shall comply with provisions herein named.
4. Power to company to borrow money on mortgage debentures.
5. Nature of securities on which debentures may be founded.
6. Securities on which companies wish to issue debentures to be produced to registrar of titles, &c. for registry.
7. Register of securities to be established in office of land registry.
8. Registrar of titles, &c. to conduct business of register.
9. Upon deposit with registrar of securities held by company, and the deeds relating thereto, and certificate of company, and declaration of surveyor, registrar may register deed creating security.
10. Form of declaration of surveyor.
11. Power to company to issue debentures not exceeding amount of registered securities, &c.
12. Before company shall register any mortgage debentures, it shall file a return containing particulars herein named.
13. Company may issue new debentures in lieu of those paid off.
14. Registered securities charged with payment of debentures, and not applicable for any other purpose until discharged from registration.
15. Rights of holders of mortgage debentures.
16. Proceedings on redemption of securities.
17. Owner of registered security, upon default of company, may obtain the discharge thereof from company's debentures.
18. Registrar to determine fees.
19. Collection of fees.
20. Inspection of register.
21. Company to make quarterly returns to registrar.
22. Quarter days for purposes of act.
23. Quarterly returns made to registrar to be as in Form (C.) in schedule, and to contain particulars herein named.
24. Estimate for quarterly returns of amount or value of annuities.
25. Total amount of registered securities.
26. Form of mortgage debenture.
27. Company to keep "register of securities."
28. Terms on which mortgage debentures may be issued.
29. Mortgage debentures to be numbered.
30. Indorsement to be made upon mortgage debenture.
31. List of mortgage debentures to be kept by company.
32. Register of mortgage debentures.
33. Registration of mortgage debentures.
34. Indorsement of registrar.
35. No notice of trust receivable by company, &c.
36. Entry in register of discharge of mortgage debenture.
37. Transfer of mortgage debenture.
38. Entry of transfers by deed of mortgage debentures to be made by company.
39. Stamp Act applied to stamps under act.
40. Further powers of investment to trustees.
41. Power to appoint receiver.
42. Terms on which power may be exercised.
43. Saving rights of mortgagees to sue.
44. Application for receiver.
45. Removal of receiver.
46. Powers and duties of receiver.
47. Court may stay order for receiver upon terms.
48. Company not to issue mortgage debentures on ceasing to be entitled to avail itself of act.
49. Penalties in such event.
50. How penalties may be recovered.
51. Registrar, &c. not personally liable for executing act.

52. Not exempt from Joint-stock Companies Act.
53. Interpretation of terms.

Whereas it is expedient that provision should be made whereby such companies as are hereinafter defined may be enabled to issue mortgage debentures founded upon the security of certain descriptions of property as hereinafter defined, and for the registration in the office of land registry of such mortgage debentures and securities: be it therefore enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. This act may be cited for all purposes as "The Mortgage Debenture Act, 1865."

2. This act shall extend and apply to, and the powers hereby conferred may be exercised by, all such companies incorporated and carrying on business under the Companies Act, 1862, or under any act of Parliament, as now or hereafter may be entitled to advance money on the security of land; and in the construction of this act the expression "the company" means any company to which this act applies, and which shall for the time being be availing itself of the provisions of this act.

3. No company shall be entitled to avail itself of this act, unless it shall comply with the following provisions:—

First, the company must, under its act of Parliament or memorandum of association, be limited to one or more of the following objects:—

1. The making of advances of money upon any of the following securities:—
 - (a). Lands, messuages, hereditaments, and real property, and all estates and interests therein:
 - (b). Rates, dues, assessments, and impositions upon the owners or occupiers of lands or real property imposed by or under the authority of any act of Parliament, public or private, royal charter, commission of sewers or drainage, or other sufficient legal authority:
 - (c). Charges and securities upon or affecting lands, messuages, hereditaments, and real property, executed, made, given, or issued under the authority of any act of Parliament, public or private:
2. The borrowing of money on transferable mortgage debentures, or on one or more of the securities above mentioned:

Provided that any company already constituted under the Companies Act, 1862, for the purposes of making advances on real securities, and whose memorandum of association includes, but is not limited to, the objects hereinbefore specified, may, by special resolution, in accordance with the provisions of that act, alter its memorandum for the purpose of limiting and so as to limit its objects and business to those so specified; and such company shall thereupon be and become a company constituting and carrying on business under such altered memorandum; and on its being shewn to the satisfaction of the registrar hereinafter mentioned that such alteration has been made, and that all obligations, if any, entered into by the company in respect of the business which prior to such special resolution it was empowered to transact, other than the business to which it will be limited after the passing of such special resolution, have been discharged, and that the articles of association of the company are in accordance with the altered memorandum, such company shall be deemed to be a company within this act, and entitled to the benefits thereof.

Second. The company must have a paid-up capital of not less than 100,000*l*.

Third. Each share must be of the nominal value of not less than 50*l*, of which not less than one-tenth nor more than one-half must have been paid up.

4. Subject to the provisions and restrictions of this act, the company may from time to time borrow money upon mortgage debentures to be issued by it under the authority of this act.

5. The securities upon and in respect of which such mortgage debentures may be founded and issued shall be securities affecting property in England or Wales of the following descriptions:—

- (a). Lands, messuages, hereditaments, or real property, or some estate or interests therein:
- (b). Rates, dues, assessments, or impositions upon the owners or occupiers of lands, messuages, hereditaments, or real property, imposed by or under the authority of any act of Parliament, public or private, royal charter, commission of sewers or drainage, or other sufficient legal authority:

- (c). Charges upon or affecting lands, messuages, hereditaments, or real property executed, made, given, or issued under the authority of any act of Parliament, public or private:

But, from the securities described in paragraph (a) shall be excepted securities upon mines or mineral property, quarries, brickfields, and factories, mills, and other buildings or works for manufacturing purposes, and also securities upon leasehold estates, determinable upon a life or lives, and not renewable or held for a term, of which, at the date of the security less than fifty years shall be unexpired, or which are subject to any rent beyond a nominal rent or a ground rent.

In construing this act the word "securities" shall be deemed to mean such securities as above defined and restricted, and no others.

6. When and from time to time as the company may desire to use any securities in their possession for the purpose of founding and issuing mortgage debentures thereon, they shall produce the deeds or instruments creating such securities, duly executed and stamped, to the office of land registry established by the 25 & 26 Vict. c. 53, in order to the same being duly registered in such office of land registry, in accordance with the provisions of this act.

7. For the purposes of such registration there shall be established in such office of land registry, in respect of every company issuing mortgage debentures under this act, a register with the name of the company attached, which shall be called a register of securities under the Mortgage Debentures Act, 1865.

8. The business of the registration shall be conducted in such office in accordance with such rules and regulations as the registrar, with the sanction of the Lord Chancellor, from time to time shall prescribe.

9. Upon production to, and deposit with, the registrar of the deeds or instruments purporting to be duly executed and stamped as aforesaid, together with a certificate under the common seal of the company and the hands of one or more directors and of the secretary or accountant of the company, in the form or to the effect of Form (A.) in the schedule hereto, and in the cases hereinafter mentioned of the certificate of a surveyor as hereinafter provided, the registrar shall enter in the proper register of securities the date of every such deed or other instrument, its nature, whether mortgage, grant of annuity, rent-charge, or other security, the amount of the principal money or the amount and duration of the annuity thereby secured, and the tenure, extent, and situation of the property upon which the security is taken: provided always, that the registrar shall not register any deed or instrument relating to or affecting any property not situate in England or Wales.

10. The registrar shall not register any deeds or instruments for the purposes of this act until there shall have been produced for his inspection, and left to be registered, a voluntary declaration made by a surveyor or valuer, approved by the Inclosure Commissioners for England and Wales, in the Form (B.) in the said schedule hereto, or to the like effect; but when such deeds or instruments relate exclusively to any of the securities described in sect. 5 (b and c), the report of the surveyor or valuer shall state only the value at the time of his report of the securities to be valued. There shall also be delivered with the before-mentioned deeds or instruments a schedule, under the hand of the secretary or one of the directors of the company, of the deeds and documents which were delivered to the company at the time when the security was executed to them, which deeds or documents shall be deposited with the registrar, to be retained by him until withdrawn as hereinafter provided.

11. Upon the securities so from time to time registered, the company may found and issue its mortgage debentures, but so that the aggregate principal sum secured by all the mortgage debentures shall never exceed at any one time the then total amount (to be ascertained in the manner hereinafter provided) of the registered securities of the company, and also shall never exceed ten times the amount for the time being uncalled of its subscribed share capital.

12. Before any company entitled to issue mortgage debentures under the provisions of this act shall register any such mortgage debentures under the provisions of this act, such company shall file in the office of the land registry a return containing the following and such other particulars as the registrar may from time to time require, which return shall be under the hand of one at least of the directors of the company and the secretary:

- (a). The amount of the nominal capital of the company, and the number and amount of shares into which the same is divided:
- (b). The amount per share and the aggregate amount paid up on the shares:
- (c). The assets or property of the company at the date of the return, and how invested:
- (d). The names, addresses, and occupations of the directors and auditors of the company:
- (e). The registered office of the company.

13. If and whenever any of such mortgage debentures shall be paid off by the company, the company may issue new mortgage debentures in lieu thereof, and so from time to time, provided that the aggregate principal sum secured by all the mortgage debentures then issued and outstanding shall not exceed either of the before-mentioned limits.

14. All the registered securities for the time being of the company shall be charged with the payment of the principal moneys and interest from time to time payable upon or in respect of all the mortgage debentures of the company for the time being issued and outstanding; and no registered security, until discharged therefrom as hereinafter provided, shall be applicable to or available for any other purpose than the satisfaction of such principal moneys and interest, or be transferred, disposed of, or otherwise dealt with by the company, unless and until the same shall have been discharged from registration in the manner hereinafter provided: provided, nevertheless, that such registration shall not prevent the company from receiving, applying, and giving a valid discharge for any interest which may from time to time be receivable upon or in respect of any such security, unless where a receiver shall have been actually appointed under the provisions of this act.

15. The persons from time to time entitled to the company's mortgage debentures shall, proportionally, according to the amount of the moneys secured thereby, be entitled one with another to the benefit of the registered securities of the company upon which such mortgage debentures are founded, without any preference one above another by reason of priority of the date of any such mortgage debenture or otherwise.

16. Whenever any person who has executed a security which has been registered under the provisions of this act is entitled to redeem such security, and has given notice to the company of his intention so to do, the company shall thereupon, and before the day appointed for the redemption, make application to the registrar for the purpose of having such security freed and discharged from the charge of the mortgage debentures issued by the company, and upon a security of at least equal value, as certified by a declaration of the surveyor or valuer before mentioned, being produced to him for registration and being registered accordingly, or its being shewn to his satisfaction that at least an equivalent of mortgage debentures issued under the provisions of this act has been cancelled, he shall allow the same to be so freed and discharged, and shall cause an entry to be made in the register of securities of the said security being discharged, and shall deliver to the company the several deeds or instruments to which such security relates, and which were delivered to the registrar for registration, under the provisions hereinbefore contained, and such entry shall be conclusive evidence of such discharge.

17. If the company shall not have procured such discharge on or before the day appointed for redemption, the mortgagor or other person entitled to redeem such security may apply to the High Court of Chancery by summons, calling upon the company to shew cause why such security is not so discharged, and upon hearing such summons the judge shall appoint a day by which the discharge shall be obtained, and in default thereof shall order that the amount of principal and interest money due upon such security shall, by a day to be named in the order, be paid into the Bank to the credit of the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery to the account of the company's mortgage debentures, and shall make such order as to the costs of and incidental to the application as the court may deem just.

Upon production to, and deposit with, the land registrar of such order, together with the Accountant-General's certificate of such payment into court as aforesaid, the registrar shall make an entry in the proper register of securities of the discharge of such security from the company's mortgage debentures, and shall deliver to the person named in such order the several deeds and instruments to which such security relates, and which were delivered to the registrar under the provisions herein contained.

Upon the company proving to the satisfaction of the court, by the production of a certificate of the registrar, either that a security at least equal in value to the amount so paid into court as aforesaid has been registered as aforesaid, or that an equivalent amount of the company's mortgage debentures has been cancelled, the court shall direct the payment out of court to the company of the amount so paid in, together with any dividends that may have accrued due thereon in the meantime.

18. There shall from time to time be paid by the company or others, in respect of business transacted under this act by the registrar, such fees as the registrar, with the sanction of the Lord Chancellor, from time to time prescribes; and there shall also be paid by the company to the registrar, the assistant registrar, and the other officers and servants of the office respectively, such remuneration for their respective services in the execution of this act as the Lord Chancellor from time to time sanctions.

19. The following rules shall be observed with respect to the collection of fees:—

- (a). All fees so payable shall be received by stamps denoting the amount of fees payable, and not in money:
- (b). When a fee is payable in respect of a document, a stamp denoting the amount of the fee shall be affixed to the document and properly cancelled:
- (c). The Commissioners of Inland Revenue shall provide everything that is necessary for the collection of the moneys by this act directed to be paid by stamps.

20. Subject to such regulations and on payment of such fees as the registrar, with the sanction of the Lord Chancellor, from time to time prescribes, any person may inspect and make copies of and extracts from the register.

21. When and so long as the company issues any mortgage debentures under this act, and from time to time, so long as any mortgage debenture so issued remains outstanding, the company shall, within ten days after every quarter day as hereinafter defined, make out and deliver to the registrar the quarterly return by this act prescribed; and every quarterly return shall be verified by the statutory declaration of two directors, and the manager, secretary, or accountant of the company.

22. The 31st March, the 30th June, the 30th September, and the 31st December in every year, shall be the quarter days for the purposes of this act.

23. Every quarterly return to be made by the company to the registrar shall be in the form set forth in Form (C.) in the schedule to this act, or as near thereto as circumstances may admit, and shall contain, with reference to the then last quarterly day, the following particulars:—

- (a). An account of all the securities of the company's at that time registered, shewing the aggregate of all principal sums remaining secured thereby, and unpaid, and shewing also the aggregate amount or the aggregate estimated value of all annuities and other periodical payments secured thereby:
- (b). An account shewing the aggregate amount and the estimated value of the company's other investments, and also the total number and aggregate nominal amount of the shares of the company's capital held by persons registered in the company's books as the holders thereof, and the aggregate amount paid up in respect of those registered shares, and the aggregate amount remaining to be paid thereon:
- (c). The numbers and dates of the several mortgage debentures issued by the company and remaining in force, and the several principal sums secured by those mortgage debentures respectively, and the aggregate amount thereof, and the rates of interest payable on those principal sums respectively, and the time or times for the repayment of those principal sums respectively.

24. The amount or value of the annuities and other periodical payments to be comprised in the quarterly returns shall be ascertained or estimated by an actuary approved by the registrar.

25. The aggregate of all principal sums remaining secured by the registered securities, together with the aggregate amount or value of the said annuities as so ascertained or estimated, shall for the purposes of this act be deemed to be the total amount for the time being of the registered securities of the company.

26. Every mortgage debenture from time to time issued by the company shall be a deed under the common seal of the company, duly stamped, as a mortgage for the amount secured, and bearing the signatures of at least two of the directors, and the counter-signature of the manager, secretary, or accountant of the company, and shall be in accordance with the Form (D.) in the schedule to this act, or as near thereto as circumstances admit.

27. The company shall keep a register, to be called the "register of securities," in which shall be entered the date of every deed or other instrument registered at the land registry for the purposes of this act, its nature, whether mortgage, grant of annuity, rent-charge, or other security, the amount of the principal money, or the amount and duration of the annuity thereby secured, the tenure, extent, and situation of the property upon which the security is taken, and if there are any charges which take priority of the company's security, then the amount of such prior charges.

28. The mortgage debentures shall be for the payment of principal sums at a fixed time to be named therein, not less than six months nor exceeding ten years from the date, with interest thereon in the meantime, at such rate as may be agreed, payable half-yearly or otherwise; and no mortgage debenture shall be issued for a less principal sum than 50*l*.

29. The mortgage debentures shall be numbered consecutively, beginning with number one, and every mortgage debenture shall be distinguished by its appropriate number; and notwithstanding the cancellation, loss, or destruction of a mortgage debenture, no other mortgage debenture shall bear the number of that so cancelled, lost, or destroyed.

30. There shall be indorsed upon every mortgage debenture issued under the provisions of this act—

- (a). The amount of the nominal capital of the company issuing the same:
- (b). The number and amount of the shares into which such capital is divided:
- (c). The number of shares issued and the amount paid up in money upon each share so issued:
- (d). The amount of the registered securities of the company as declared by the last quarterly return:
- (e). The registered office of the company:

Provided that any inaccuracies or omissions in such indorsements shall not affect or invalidate the debenture.

31. A book containing a list of mortgage debentures shall be kept by the company's secretary, and on the issue of any mortgage debenture an entry of the number and date thereof, and of the principal money secured thereby, and the name, description, and residence of the person to whom it is issued shall be entered in such book.

32. There shall also be established and kept in the office of land registry, by or under the direction of the registrar, in respect of every company issuing mortgage debentures under this act, a register of the mortgage debentures of the company.

33. When any mortgage debenture of the company is duly executed and stamped, the company shall produce it to the registrar, in order to its being registered, and thereupon the registrar shall enter in the register of mortgage debentures the number and the date of the mortgage debenture, the amount of the principal money thereby secured, and the time or times for repayment of the principal money thereby secured, and shall make on the mortgage debenture an indorsement stating the day on which the mortgage debenture was produced to him for registration, and of the page of the book in which the entry thereof is made; and without such an indorsement no mortgage debenture shall be a charge under this act upon the registered securities of the company.

34. The indorsement of the registrar on any mortgage debentures as hereinbefore mentioned shall be conclusive evidence that it is a mortgage debenture duly registered under the provisions of this act.

35. No notice of any trust in respect of any mortgage debentures shall be receivable by the company or the registrar.

36. When a mortgage debenture is produced by the company to the registrar, with a receipt for the moneys secured thereby indorsed thereon, signed and stamped, he shall make in the register of mortgage debentures an entry of the discharge thereof.

37. Every mortgage debenture may be transferred by indorsement in the Form (E.) in the schedule to this act, or to the like effect.

38. Within thirty days after the date of every such transfer, if executed within the United Kingdom, or otherwise within thirty days after the arrival thereof in the United Kingdom, it shall be produced to the company's secretary, and thereupon the secretary shall make an entry thereof in a transfer book; and after the entry, the transfer shall entitle the transferee to the full benefit of the original mortgage debenture, so far as it is then in force; and no person having made the transfer shall have power to make void, release, or discharge the mortgage debenture so transferred, or any money thereby secured; and for the entry the company may demand not exceeding 2*s*. 6*d*.; and, until the entry, the company shall not be in any manner responsible to, or bound to take notice of, the transferee in respect of the mortgage debenture.

39. That several acts from time to time in force relating to stamps under the care or management of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue shall apply to the stamps to be provided in pursuance of this act, and to documents on which the stamps are impressed, and to collecting and securing the sums of money denoted by stamps, and to preventing, detecting, and punishing all frauds, forgeries, and other offences relating thereto, as fully as if the provisions were in this act repeated, and specially enacted, with reference to those stamps and sums of money respectively.

40. In all cases in which, by the instrument creating the trust, trustees have a general power to invest trust moneys in or upon the security of shares, stock, mortgages, bonds, or debentures of companies incorporated by, or acting under, the authority of an act of Parliament, they may invest such trust moneys on the security of mortgage debentures duly issued under, and in accordance with, the provisions of this act.

41. Any person for the time being entitled to any mortgage debenture of the company shall be empowered from time to time to enforce the payment of any arrears of interest or principal (as the case may be) due on such mortgage debenture, by procuring the appointment of a receiver in the manner and subject to the conditions hereinafter mentioned.

42. If within seven days after the interest accruing upon any mortgage debenture has become payable, and after demand thereof in writing made upon the company by the person entitled thereunto, such interest be not paid, or if within three weeks after the principal money secured by any mortgage debenture has become payable, and after demand thereof in writing made as aforesaid, such principal money be not paid, the person at the time entitled to the receipt of such interest or principal respectively may apply for the appointment of a receiver, as hereinafter provided.

43. No such application shall in any way prejudice or affect the right of any person entitled to any such mortgage debenture to sue for any such interest or principal money, as the case may be, in any court of law or equity.

44. Every application for a receiver in the cases aforesaid may be made to the High Court of Chancery by petition or by summons at chambers, and on any such application the Court of Chancery may appoint a receiver to act on behalf of the applicant and the other persons entitled to the company's mortgage debentures.

45. The court may also remove the receiver, and appoint another in his stead, and so from time to time, and may make such orders and give such directions as to the powers and duties of the receiver, and otherwise as to the disposal of the moneys received by him, as may be thought fit.

46. Subject to any such orders and directions, the receiver shall be entitled to receive or recover the whole, or a competent part, of the principal moneys, instalments, annuities, interest, and other moneys from time to time payable to the company upon or in respect of their registered securities, and also any moneys standing to the account of the company's mortgage debentures, under the provision of sect. 17, until the principal and interest due on all the debentures issued by the company, together with all costs, including the reasonable and proper charges of such receiver, shall have been fully paid; and upon such appointment being made, and notice thereof to the several persons liable upon such registered securities, all such moneys from time to time payable upon or in respect of such registered securities shall be paid to, and received or recovered by, such receiver; and the receiver shall apply the same, as from time to time received or recovered by him, first to the payment of all such costs, and afterwards to the discharge and payment of all interest, or principal and interest, as the case may be, due upon such mortgage debentures; and after such costs, and such interest, or principal and interest, shall have been fully paid, the power of such receiver shall cease.

47. The court may order, as to any of the above-mentioned powers and duties, that the receiver shall not exercise the same without the sanction or further direction of the court; and the court may, at any time after an order for the appointment of a receiver has been made, make an order staying the same, either altogether or for a limited time, on such terms, and subject to such conditions, as it may deem fit.

48. In case any company shall cease to be entitled to issue mortgage debentures under this act, such company shall nevertheless have the powers and be subject to the provisions of this act with respect to all mortgage debentures then issued and outstanding; but no mortgage debentures shall be issued or renewed by such company upon any ground or pretence whatever after it shall have ceased to be so entitled.

49. In case any company which shall not at the time being be entitled to avail itself of the provisions of this act shall issue mortgage debentures under, or purporting to be under, the provisions of this act, or in case any company entitled to avail itself of the provisions of this act shall at any time issue mortgage debentures for an aggregate principal sum exceeding the limit to which at the time being they are entitled to issue, any person who shall knowingly or wilfully be concerned in such issue shall in every such case forfeit the sum of 500*l*.

50. Every penalty hereinbefore provided may be sued for and recovered by any person whosoever will sue for the same by action in any of the superior courts of law in England or Ireland or Scotland, according as the offence has been committed in either of those parts of the United Kingdom, together with full costs of suit.

51. No person, being the registrar, assistant registrar, or other officer or servant of the office of land registry, shall be liable to any action, suit, or other proceeding, or any claim or demand, by reason of anything done bona fide by him in the execution of this act.

52. This act shall not exempt the company from the provisions of any act relating to joint-stock companies, and applicable to the company.

53. In the construction of this act all words meaning or applying to individuals only shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to corporations also.

THE SCHEDULE REFERRED TO IN THE FOREGOING ACT.

FORM (A.)

Form of Return to be made by the Company on Application to Registrar to register Securities.

Date of Company's Mortgage or other Security, and distinguishing Number of Letter.	Nature of Security, whether Mortgage, Grant of Annuity, Rent charge, or other Security.	The Amount of Principal Money secured, or, if Rent-charge or Annuity, the Amount and Duration thereof, and the Annual or other Periodical Payment to be made on account thereof.	Tenure, whether Freehold, Copyhold, or Leasehold.	If the Company's Charge is upon any of the Securities comprised in Sect. 5 (a), set out the Extent and Situation of the Property on which the Mortgage or other Security is charged; if Land, state the Acreage, Parish, and County; if Houses, state the Town, Street, and No., if any, in addition to Parish and County.	Nature of the Mortgagors' or Grantors' Interest therein.	The Nature and Amount of the Prior Charges thereon (if any); if more than One Charge, set out each Charge separately.	If the Company's Charge is upon any of the Securities comprised in Sect. 5 (b) and (c), set out the Nature thereof, the Total Amount of the Principal Money originally advanced by the Company, and the Amount unpaid at the Date hereof, and the Authority, statutable or other, under which the same is issued.

We hereby certify that the above return is correct.

A. B.
C. D.

FORM (B.)

Form of Surveyor's or Valuer's Declaration.

[Here insert a copy of the return to be made by the company on application to register securities, distinguishing each security by a separate letter or number.]

I, —, of —, do solemnly and sincerely declare, that the information above contained with respect to the security numbered or lettered —, is, to the best of my information and belief, correct, and that the value of the property above described (and, if the borrower's interest is of a limited nature, the value of the borrower's estate and interest or the property above described), exceeds the amount of £—, the advance made by the company in respect thereof (if there are prior charges, and of the prior charges thereon), to the extent of one-third at least of such value.

[A separate declaration may be made in respect of each security, and where the mortgage or charge is secured exclusively upon any of the securities comprised in sect. 5 (b and c), omit from the word "declare" to the end, and insert "to the best of my information and belief the security above described, and numbered —, is now of the value of £—."]

FORM (C.)

Form of Quarterly Return.

Mortgage Debenture Act, 1865.

The first quarterly return of the — Company, with reference to the 30th December, 1865.

The registered Securities of the Company.

1. Aggregate securities under clause 5— a . . .	£150,000
2. Aggregate securities under clause 5— b . . .	20,000
3. Aggregate securities under clause 5— c . . .	10,000
	£180,000

4. Other investments (to be specifically enumerated)	16,500
5. 40,000 shares of 50 l . each, held by registered holders . . .	£2,000,000
Paid up thereon . . .	200,000
Remaining unpaid thereon . . .	£1,800,000

LIABILITIES.

Mortgage Debenture issued and in force.

No.	Date.	Yearly Rate per Cent. of Interest.	Time for Repayment of Principal.	Principal Sum secured.
1	Aug. 1, 1865	Four . . .	Aug. 1, 1869	£10,000
2	Aug. 1, 1865	Four . . .	Aug. 1, 1869	5,000
3	Aug. 10, 1865	Three and three-quarters, and so on.	Aug. 10, 1871	20,000
			Total - £

We hereby certify that the above return is correct.

A. B.
C. D.

FORM (D.)

Form of Mortgage Debenture.

The — Company.

Mortgage Debenture, No. —.

By virtue of the Mortgage Debenture Act, 1865, we, the — Company, in consideration of £ —, paid to us by A. B., of —, do hereby charge all the registered securities of the company with the payment to the said A. B., his executors, administrators, and assigns, of the sum of £ —, and interest thereon at the rate of —, which sum of £ — is to be paid and payable to the said A. B., his executors, administrators, and assigns, at the — [place], on the — day of —, with interest on the same at the rate of — per cent. per annum, payable half-yearly, at said place, on every — day of —, and — day of —, and we hereby undertake to pay the said sum of £ — and interest at the rate aforesaid, as above mentioned.

Given under our common seal, this — day of —.

A. B., Director.

C. D., Director.

Countersigned, G. F., Secretary.

Registered.

FORM (E.)

Form of Transfer on Mortgage Debenture.

I, A. B., of —, in consideration of £ —, [state true consideration], hereby transfer to C. D., of —, his executors, administrators, and assigns, the within mortgage debenture.

(signed) A. B.

CAP. LXXIX.

An Act to provide for the better Distribution of the Charge for the Relief of the Poor in Unions. [29th June, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. So much of sect. 26 of the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, as requires parishes in unions to defray expenses of their own poor repealed; and expenses thenceforth incurred to be charged to the common fund.
2. Guardians in unions may obtain orders of removal in respect of paupers settled elsewhere.
3. Guardians may defend and may appeal against orders of removal.
4. Signature and service of notices and other documents.
5. Guardians empowered to call for books and papers from the overseers.
6. Guardians may remove without orders where there is consent.
7. Penalty on paupers removing after order of removal.
8. One year to be substituted for three years in sect. 1 of the 24 & 25 Vict. c. 55.
9. Costs of prosecutions to be charged to the common fund.
10. Provision for deaths in the workhouse.
11. Poor-law board to make all requisite orders.
12. Computation of the charges on the common fund.
13. Saving of settlements in other respects.
14. Unions, &c. under local acts enabled to avail themselves of this act.
15. Calls for money in advance to be made on the overseers of the several parishes.
16. Interpretation of terms.
17. Short title.

Whereas it is expedient to make provision for the better distribution of the charge for the relief of the poor in unions than is by law now established: be it therefore enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. From and after the 25th March, 1866, so much of the 26th section of the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, as requires that each of the parishes in a union formed under the authority of that act shall be separately chargeable with and liable to defray the expense of its own poor, whether relieved in or out of the workhouse of such union, shall be repealed; and all the cost of the relief to the poor, and the expenses of the burial of the dead body of any poor person under the direction of the guardians, or any of their officers duly authorised, in such union thenceforth incurred, and all charges thenceforth incurred by the guardians of such union in respect of vaccination and registration fees and expenses, shall be charged upon the common fund thereof.

2. When any pauper relieved in any such union shall be settled in any parish situated in another union or subject to a board of guardians, and shall not be exempt from removal by reason of any provision of the law, the guardians of the union to which such pauper shall be chargeable may obtain an order of removal addressed to the guardians of the union or parish, or the overseers of the parish, as the case may require, in which such pauper shall be settled, and the guardians of such last-mentioned union or parish shall receive such pauper in like manner and subject to the like incidents and consequences as in the case of orders of removals heretofore obtained by overseers, with such modifications as may be necessary to meet the circumstances of the chargeability to the union instead of the parish.

3. The guardians obtaining such order may defend the same, and the guardians upon whom it shall be made may appeal against the same, in like manner and with the like incidents and consequences as in the case of orders obtained or appealed against by overseers.

Provided that every appeal now pending may be continued and determined as though this act had not been passed.

4. Every notice, statement, demand, or other document required to be given by any such guardians in respect of any order of removal shall be deemed to be sufficiently authenticated if signed by their clerk in their name, and shall be deemed to be duly served upon the guardians to whom it shall be addressed if it be delivered to their clerk personally, or be left at his office, or be sent through the post addressed to him at such office.

5. For better enabling the guardians to obtain such orders of removal, or to appeal against the same, they may order the overseers of the poor, or any officer or other person having the custody of any books, papers, documents, or writings of or belonging to any parish in their union, to produce the same, upon reasonable notice to the board of guardians, or to their clerk or other person appointed by them, and shall allow copies or extracts to be taken therefrom for the use of such guardians, without fee or reward.

6. Where the guardians of any union or parish shall be satisfied that any pauper is settled within and removable to their union or parish, and shall consent under their common seal to receive such pauper without an order of removal, the guardians seeking to remove such pauper may do so without any such order.

7. Any pauper removed under an order of removal, obtained by the guardians of any such union returning to and becoming chargeable to such last-mentioned union again, within the period of twelve months from such removal, without the consent of the guardians thereof, shall be deemed to be an idle and disorderly person within the meaning of the 5 Geo. 4, c. 83, and be liable to be convicted and punished as such.

8. From and after the 25th March, 1866, the period of one year shall be substituted for that of three years specified in the 1st section of the 24 & 25 Vict. c. 55.

9. The costs and expenses lawfully incurred in and about the prosecution of any person for which the guardians of the union may be liable, or which they undertake to pay, under the 59th section of the 7 & 8 Vict. c. 101, shall in all cases be charged to the common fund.

10. For the purposes of the burial of any poor person dying in the workhouse of any union, such workhouse shall be considered as situated in the parish in the union where such poor person resided last, previously to his removal to the workhouse.

11. The Poor-law Board shall, as soon as convenient, make all such orders as may be requisite to render the provisions of this act applicable to the proceedings and accounts of the guardians of unions and of overseers of parishes comprised therein.

12. The guardians shall distribute the charges upon the common fund during and at the close of every half year in the proportions according to which the orders for the contributions to the common fund were made upon the several parishes comprised in such unions at the commencement of such half year, notwithstanding the change which may be made in the valuation list of any parish during such period.

13. Except as herein provided, no alteration shall be made in respect of the settlement of poor persons in parishes.

14. If in any union or incorporation for the relief of the poor, where the cost thereof is not borne by a common fund, or where the common fund is not calculated upon an equal basis throughout the union or incorporation, the body having under the constitution of such union or incorporation, the management of such relief shall be desirous of adopting the provisions of this act, such body may, on a resolution to that effect of a majority at two successive meetings, by writing under the hand of the presiding chairman of the second of such meetings, apply to the Poor-law Board to be included in this act; and upon the consent of that board being given under its seal to such application, and subject to such terms and conditions as that board may deem requisite, such union or incorporation shall be so included from such time as the said board shall declare; and such consent so signified shall be evidence that such application was in all respects duly made according to the provisions above mentioned.

15. When this act has been adopted by any such union or incorporation as aforesaid, and such adoption has been legally brought into operation in such union or incorporation, the body having the management of the relief of the poor therein shall from time to time make calls in advance for money for the relief of such poor upon the overseers of the several parishes therein respectively, on the basis of an equal pound rate on the annual value of the property in each parish rateable to the relief of the poor according to the law in force for the time being, and shall have the same powers of enforcing such calls as they now possess under the provisions of such local act for enforcing calls or rates for the relief of the poor; and such overseers shall have the same powers for making, levying, and enforcing rates to meet and pay such calls as they now possess, either under the provisions of such local act or the general law relating to the making, levying, and enforcing rates for the relief of the poor.

16. The words herein used shall be interpreted in the manner prescribed by the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, and the subsequent acts amending or explaining the same, and the provisions in such acts which apply to poor persons rendered chargeable upon the common fund by reason of their having become irremovable through the operation of the statutes in that behalf, shall apply to all the poor in the union hereby rendered chargeable upon the common fund.

17. This act may be cited as "The Union Chargeability Act, 1865."

CAP. LXXX.

An Act to explain and amend the Lunatic Asylum Act, 1853, and the Lunacy Act Amendment Act, 1862, with reference to Counties of Towns which have Courts of Quarter Sessions, but no Recorder. [29th June, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Definition of word "county," in Lunatic Asylum Acts.

2. Powers of justices of such counties.

3. This and recited acts to be construed together.

Whereas by the Lunatic Asylum Act, 1853, county is defined to include a county of a city or county of a town, and borough is defined to mean every borough, town, and city corporate having a quarter sessions, recorder, and a clerk of the peace: and whereas by the Lunacy Acts Amendment Act, 1862, it is provided that the word "county" shall not, except in the case of the city of London, mean a county of a city or county of a town: and whereas certain counties of cities and counties of towns have quarter sessions and clerks of the peace, but no recorders, wherefore the same do not come within the provisions of the Lunatic Asylum Act, 1853, and the acts construed as one therewith: and whereas it is expedient to remedy such defect: be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. That the word "county" in the Lunatic Asylum Act, 1853, and the several acts construed as one therewith, shall be construed to include every county of a city or county of a town having quarter sessions and a clerk of the peace, and no recorder.

2. The justices of every county of a city or county of a town having quarter sessions and a clerk of the peace, and no recorder, shall have all the powers and authorities conferred on or given to the justices of every borough not having any asylum by sect. 7 of the Lunatic Asylum Act, 1853, notwithstanding that such county of a city or town may have an asylum of its own: provided always, that it shall not be obligatory on any such county of a city or town to keep up and maintain any such asylum from and after or during such time as it shall avail itself of the provisions of the said section.

3. This act shall be construed as one with the Lunatic Asylum Act, 1853, and several acts construed as one therewith, and may be cited for all purposes as "The Lunacy Act Amendment Act, 1865."

CAP. LXXXI.

An Act to render valid Marriages heretofore solemnized in the Chapel of Ease called Saint James-the-Greater Chapel, Eastbury, in the Parish of Lamborne, in the County of Berks. [5th July, 1865.]

CAP. LXXXII.

An Act to amend the Endowment and Augmentation of Small Benefices (Ireland) Act, 1860. [5th July, 1865.]

CAP. LXXXIII.

An Act for further regulating the Use of Locomotives on Turnpike and other Roads for Agricultural and other Purposes. [5th July, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Commencement of act.

2. Certain sections of the 24 & 25 Vict. c. 70, repealed.

3. Rules for the manner of working locomotives on turnpike roads and highways as herein stated. Penalty on non-compliance with rules.

4. Limit of speed of locomotives on turnpike roads and highways.

5. Size and weight of locomotives which may be used.

6. Restrictions as to the use of steam-engines within twenty-five yards of roads not to apply to locomotives used for ploughing purposes.

7. Name and residence of owner to be affixed to locomotives.

8. Power to local authorities to make orders as to hours, &c. locomotives may pass through cities, &c. Penalty on acting contrary to such orders.

9. In Ireland the county surveyor to be deemed the conservator of the roads in his county, and proceedings for damage to be taken in his name.

10. How penalties to be recovered and applied in Ireland.

11. Sect. 41 of the 25 & 26 Vict. c. 93, not to be affected.

12. Saving as to actions at law.

13. Short title.

Whereas by the Locomotives Act, 1861, certain provision was made for regulating the use of locomotives on turnpike and other roads, and it is expedient that further and fuller provision should be made for that object: be it therefore enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. This act shall not come into operation till the 1st September, 1865, which day is hereinafter referred to as the commencement of the act, and shall cease and determine on the 1st September, 1867.

2. After the commencement of this act, and so long as the same shall continue in force, the 5th, 9th, 11th, and 15th sections of the said recited act, and all orders made in pursuance of the said 5th section, are hereby repealed.

3. Every locomotive propelled by steam or any other than animal power on any turnpike road or public highway shall be worked according to the following rules and regulations; viz.

Firstly, at least three persons shall be employed to drive or conduct such locomotive, and if more than two waggon or carriages be attached thereto, an additional person shall be employed, who shall take charge of such waggons or carriages:

Secondly, one of such persons, while any locomotive is in motion, shall precede such locomotive on foot by not less than sixty yards, and shall carry a red flag constantly displayed, and shall warn the riders and drivers of horses of the approach of such locomotives, and shall signal the driver thereof when it shall be necessary to stop, and shall assist horses, and carriages drawn by horses, passing the same:

Thirdly, the drivers of such locomotives shall give as much space as possible for the passing of other traffic:

Fourthly, the whistle of such locomotive shall not be sounded for any purpose whatever; nor shall the cylinder taps be opened within sight of any person riding, driving, leading, or in charge of a horse upon the road; nor shall the steam be allowed to attain a pressure such as to exceed the limit fixed by the safety valve, so that no steam shall blow off when the locomotive is upon the road:

Fifthly, every such locomotive shall be instantly stopped, on the person preceding the same, or any other person with a horse, or carriage drawn by a horse, putting up his hand as a signal to require such locomotive to be stopped:

Sixthly, any person in charge of any such locomotive shall provide two efficient lights to be affixed conspicuously, one at each side on the front of the same, between the hours of one hour after sunset and one hour before sunrise:

In the event of a non-compliance with any of the provisions of this section, the owner of the locomotive shall, on summary conviction thereof before two justices, be liable to a penalty not exceeding 10*l.*; but it shall be lawful for such owner, on proving that he has incurred such penalty by reason of the negligence or wilful default of any person in charge of or in attendance on such locomotive, to recover summarily from such person the whole or any part of the penalty he may have incurred as owner.

4. Subject and without prejudice to the regulations herein-after authorised to be made by local authorities, it shall not be lawful to drive any such locomotive along any turnpike road or public highway at a greater speed than four miles an hour, or through any city, town, or village at a greater speed than two miles an hour; and any person acting contrary thereto shall for every such offence, on summary conviction thereof, forfeit any sum not exceeding 10*l.*

5. Subject to the provisions of this act, any locomotive which shall not exceed nine feet in width or fourteen tons in weight may be used on any turnpike road or public highway, provided that the wheels of such locomotive be constructed according to the requirements of the said recited act; and no locomotive exceeding nine feet in width or fourteen tons in weight shall be used on any such road, except subject to the provisions contained in the 3rd section of the said act as to the use of locomotives exceeding seven feet in width and twelve tons in weight.

6. Any provision in any act contained prohibiting, under penalty, the erection and use of any steam-engine, gin, or other like machine, or any machinery attached thereto, within the distance of twenty-five yards from any part of any turnpike road, highway, carriageway, or cartway, unless such steam-engine, gin, or other like engine or machinery be within some house or other building, or behind some wall, fence, or screen sufficient to conceal or screen the same from such turnpike road, highway, carriageway, or cartway, shall not extend to prohibit the use of any locomotive steam-engine for the purpose of ploughing within such distance of any such turnpike road, highway, carriageway, or cartway, provided a person shall be stationed in the road, and employed to signal the driver when it shall be necessary to stop, and to assist horses, and carriages drawn by horses, passing the same, and provided the driver of the engine do stop in proper time.

7. The name and residence of the owner of every locomotive shall be affixed thereto in a conspicuous manner. If it is not so affixed the owner shall, on summary conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding 2*l.*

8. The following local authorities (that is to say),

- (1). In the city of London and liberties thereof, the court of the lord mayor and aldermen;
- (2). In the metropolis, as defined by the act of the session of the 18 & 19 Vict. c. 120 (except the city of London), the Metropolitan Board of Works;
- (3). In any borough in England the population of which shall have exceeded 5000 at the last census, the council of the borough;
- (4). In any borough or town in England the population of which shall have exceeded 5000 at the last census, not within the jurisdiction of a council, but within the jurisdiction of any trustees or improvement commissioners appointed under any public or private act of Parliament, the trustees or commissioners;

- (5). In any borough or town in Scotland the population of which shall have exceeded 10,000 at the last census, within the jurisdiction of a town council, the town council, and in any such town in Scotland not within the jurisdiction of a town council, but subject to the jurisdiction of police commissioners, or of trustees exercising under any public or private act of Parliament the functions of police commissioners, the police commissioners, or, where there are no police commissioners, then the trustees,— may make orders as to the hours during which (and as to the speed, not in any case to exceed two miles an hour, at which) locomotives are to pass through the city or place subject to their respective jurisdictions; and any person in charge of a locomotive acting contrary to such regulations shall, on summary conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding 10*l.*:

Every order made in pursuance of this section shall be reduced into writing, and shall have affixed thereto the common seal of the local authority, where they have a common seal, and shall be signed by the members of the local authority, or any two of them, where they have not a common seal:

A copy of such order shall be affixed to some public place within the jurisdiction of the local authority, and advertised in some newspaper circulating within the jurisdiction of the local authority, and the production of a newspaper containing such advertisement shall be evidence of the copy having been advertised in pursuance of this act.

9. For the purposes of this act, the county surveyor of each county in Ireland shall be deemed to be the conservator of all the roads in the county of which he is surveyor, made or repaired by grand jury presentment; and it shall not be lawful to use any locomotive, other than those specially authorised by this act, on any such road in any county in Ireland, without the consent in writing of the county surveyor thereof, approved of by one or more justices sitting at petty sessions; and all compensation for damage done by any locomotive to any bridge, gullet, or arch, or any of the walls, buttresses, or supports thereof, on any such road in any county in Ireland, shall be recoverable in the name of the county surveyor thereof, for and on behalf of the county, from the party liable to pay the same; such compensation, if not exceeding 10*l.*, to be recovered in a summary way by summons at petty sessions, and if over 10*l.* to be recovered by process in the civil bill court.

10. Every penalty imposed by the provisions of this act shall, in Ireland, be recoverable before a justice or justices of the peace in petty sessions, subject and according to the provisions of the Petty Sessions (Ireland) Act, 1851, and any act amending the same, and shall be applied according to the provisions of the Fines (Ireland) Act, 1851, and any act amending the same.

11. Nothing in this act contained shall repeal, alter, or in any way affect the provisions of the 41st section of the Thames Embankment Act, 1862.

12. Nothing in this act contained shall authorise any person to use a locomotive which may be so constructed or used as to be a public nuisance at common law, and nothing herein contained shall affect the right of any person to recover damages in respect of any injury he may have sustained in consequence of the use of a locomotive.

13. This act may be cited as "The Locomotives Act, 1865," and "The Locomotives Act, 1861," and this act, shall be construed together as one act.

CAP. LXXXIV.

An Act to amend the Prisons (Scotland) Administration Act, 1860, and to explain the 52nd and 77th Sections of the said Act. [5th July, 1865.]

CAP. LXXXV.

An Act to amend the Laws relating to Procurators in Scotland. [5th July, 1865.]

CAP. LXXXVI.

An Act to amend the Law of Partnership.

[5th July, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. The advance of money on contract to receive a share of profits not to constitute the lender a partner.*
- 2. The remuneration of agents, &c., by share of profits not to make them partners.*
- 3. Certain annuitants not to be deemed partners.*
- 4. Receipt of profits in consideration of sale of goodwill not to make the seller a partner.*
- 5. In case of bankruptcy, &c., lender not to rank with other creditors.*
- 6. Interpretation of "person."*

Whereas it is expedient to amend the law relating to partnership: be it therefore enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. The advance of money by way of loan to a person engaged or about to engage in any trade or undertaking upon a contract in writing with such person, that the lender shall receive a rate of interest varying with the profits, or shall receive a share of the profits arising from carrying on such trade or undertaking, shall not, of itself, constitute the lender a partner with the person or the persons carrying on such trade or undertaking, or render him responsible as such.

2. No contract for the remuneration of a servant or agent of any person engaged in any trade or undertaking, by a share of the profits of such trade or undertaking, shall, of itself, render such servant or agent responsible as a partner therein, nor give him the rights of a partner.

3. No person being the widow or child of the deceased partner of a trader, and receiving by way of annuity a portion of the profits made by such trader in his business, shall, by reason only of such receipt, be deemed to be a partner of or to be subject to any liabilities incurred by such trader.

4. No person receiving by way of annuity or otherwise a portion of the profits of any business, in consideration of the sale by him of the goodwill of such business, shall, by reason only of such receipt, be deemed to be a partner of or be subject to the liabilities of the person carrying on such business.

5. In the event of any such trader as aforesaid being adjudged a bankrupt, or taking the benefit of any act for the relief of insolvent debtors, or entering into an arrangement to pay his creditors less than 20s. in the pound, or dying in insolvent circumstances, the lender of any such loan as aforesaid shall not be entitled to recover any portion of his principal, or of the profits or interest payable in respect of such loan, nor shall any such vendor of a goodwill as aforesaid be entitled to recover any such profits as aforesaid until the claims of the other creditors of the said trader for valuable consideration in money or money's worth have been satisfied.

6. In the construction of this act the word "person" shall include a partnership firm, a joint-stock company, and a corporation.

CAP. LXXXVII.

An Act to enable Her Majesty's Postmaster-General to acquire a Site for the Extension of the General Post-office in St. Martin's-le-Grand, in the City of London.

[5th July, 1865.]

CAP. LXXXVIII.

An Act for the recording of Titles to Land in Ireland.

[5th July, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Short title and extent of act.*
- 2. Construction of terms.*
- 3. Record of title to be established under control of the Landed Estates Court.*
- 4. Any conveyance from the court may be recorded under this act.*
- 5. Extension of the powers of the court as to granting declarations of title.*
- 6. Every declaration of title may be recorded, and need not be registered in the deeds registry.*
- 7. Any person obtaining a conveyance or declaration may decline to have his title recorded under this act.*

- 8. Conveyances and declarations when recorded to be entered, each to form, with subsequent entries, a folio.*
- 9. Duplicates of conveyances or declarations may be issued.*
- 10. Books of record not to be inspected without leave. Index to be made.*
- 11. Questions arising on the record to be disposed of by a judge, who may decide or deal with the same as may seem right.*
- 12. Recorded owners to be entitled to the estates mentioned on the record free from all other claims.*
- 13. Informality not to prejudice entry in record of title.*
- 14. Every charge, &c. to be entered in record of title.*
- 15. Estates of proprietors subject to existing law.*
- 16. Acts relating to registry of deeds not to apply to recorded land.*
- 17. Power to amend the record on fiat of a judge, and the like amendment to be made in land certificate. Power to order a certificate to be brought in to be amended or a new one substituted.*
- 18. Officer to deliver land certificates. Certificates of charge to be also issued.*
- 19. Officer to compare certificate with the record.*
- 20. Recorded owner desirous of selling, &c. may obtain special land certificate.*
- 21. Certificate to be evidence, and may be deposited as security.*
- 22. Power of subdividing land or charge, and of obtaining new certificates.*
- 23. Procedure on transfer of part of an estate.*
- 24. Apportionments may be made and surveys directed for the purposes of subdivision.*
- 25. On proof of loss, &c. of certificate, a new one may be given.*
- 26. Modes by which recorded estates and charges may be dealt with.*
- 27. Attendance of parties at the office to transfer or deal with recorded land, &c.*
- 28. Transfer, &c. may be by the statutory forms, which shall be effectual.*
- 29. Other deeds may be recorded, on evidence of due execution. Originals or copies to be retained in court.*
- 30. When deed signed, &c., the interest thereunder to be deemed recorded, and an official note to be made.*
- 31. Vesting orders may be made, as under the Trustee Acts.*
- 32. Power to recorded owner of closing the record, and remitting his estate to the operation of the old law relating to the registry of deeds, &c. in Ireland.*
- 33. Jurisdiction of court declared in cases of actual fraud.*
- 34. Devisees of deceased recorded owner may apply to be recorded as owner. Notice to be given to heir, &c.*
- 35. Heir-at-law of deceased owner may apply to be recorded. Court may appoint a representative of estate of a deceased owner. Powers of the representative.*
- 36. Personal representative may be recorded.*
- 37. Assignees may be recorded instead of owner. As to marriage of female owner.*
- 38. The judge may direct estates and interests under settlements to be separately recorded.*
- 39. Interests, &c. separately recorded to be recorded estates or charges.*
- 40. Interests, &c. may be recorded by reference. No appeal to lie if the judge declines to record separately.*
- 41. Trustees with power of sale may be recorded as owners, and a person may be recorded as "consenting party" to any sale, &c.*
- 42. No judgment, Crown bonds, lis pendens, &c. to affect recorded land, unless duly entered on the record. Judgments need not be registered by affidavit.*
- 43. Judgments, recognisances, &c. to be re-entered before five years. If not so re-entered they shall not affect purchasers for valuable consideration.*
- 44. Part payment of charge to be noted. Interest from the last gale day only shall be deemed to be due on the occasion of a transfer. No release necessary where the payment of a charge is noted.*

45. Sale by sheriff of any recorded land or leases to be noted.
46. Power to any person interested to lodge a caveat prohibiting dealing with land, &c.
47. Caveat to cease unless extended. Power to a judge to extend the operation of a caveat.
48. In certain cases a note to be made on certificate as to disposition of land.
49. Mode of leasing or demising recorded land. Consent of any person entitled to a charge to be obtained, otherwise the rights of such person to be expressly reserved. Certain leases excepted from operation of the act.
50. Title of lessor in lease not to be indefeasible unless the court shall direct a note to be entered to that effect.
51. Power in certain cases to record land, although an interval has elapsed since such land was the subject of a conveyance or declaration by the court.
52. Officer not to be restrained by injunction, &c.
53. Indemnity for acts done bona fide.
54. Days and hours when the office shall be opened for business.
55. General rules to be made and approved of, and submitted to Parliament.
56. Seal of Record of Title Office.
57. Person making false statement, guilty of misdemeanour.
58. No proceeding, &c. declared a misdemeanour to affect remedies of persons aggrieved.
59. Answers to questions, &c. not admissible in evidence.
60. Provisions as to applications made by married women.
61. Provisions for other persons under disability.
62. Record to be under management of certain officers of the court. Arrangements to be made for constant attendance, &c. Power to appoint additional clerks to assist in the office, if necessary.
63. Practice before the judge, and right of appeal.
64. Address of recorded owners, &c. to be given for the purpose of serving notices.
65. A scale of costs may be framed for professional services in regard to recorded land.
66. Forms in schedule to be used, but may be varied if necessary.
67. Return of business done to be sent in annually by the judges.
68. Judges to frame a schedule of fees.
69. Rules with regard to the collection of fees.
70. Stamp Acts in force to apply to stamps provided under this act.

Whereas it is expedient that titles conferred by the Landed Estates Court, Ireland, should be kept free from complication, so that subsequent dealings with the estates held under such titles may be more simple and economical: be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. This act may be cited for all purposes as "The Record of Title Act (Ireland), 1865;" it shall apply to Ireland only, and shall come into operation on the 2nd November, 1865.

2. In the construction of this act (except where the context or other provisions of this act require a different construction)—

The word "judge" shall mean one of the judges of the Landed Estates Court, Ireland:

The word "court" shall mean the Landed Estates Court, Ireland:

The word "officer" shall mean the officer for the time being of the Landed Estates Court, Ireland, whose duty it shall be to carry out this act, under the direction of the said court:

The word "record" shall mean the book or books to be provided and kept for the recording of titles, pursuant to this act, in the Landed Estates Court:

The word "land" shall extend to manors, messuages, advowsons, rectories, tithes, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, and to rents or annuities charged upon hereditaments, whether subject to any fee-farm or other perpetual rent, with or without condition of re-entry for securing the same, or otherwise, and whether corporeal or incorporeal, and to any undivided share thereof:

The word "lease" shall include an agreement for a lease, and the estate or interest created or agreed to be created by a lease or agreement in the whole or any part of the land therein comprised, and shall include any term of years:

The word "owner," as applied to land, shall include any person entitled in possession in fee-simple, or in tail, or quasi in tail, and any person who has a power of appointing or disposing of the fee, or appointing or granting in fee farm, and whether with or without the consent of another person, and any person entitled as a trustee for sale, or having a power of sale or of granting in fee farm, and whether with or without consent as aforesaid, and as applied to a lease shall include any person entitled in possession to the interest thereunder, or having power to appoint or dispose thereof, and to any person entitled thereto as a trustee for sale or having a power of sale:

The words "person" or "owner" shall extend to a body politic or corporate:

The word "charge" or "incumbrance" shall include any legacy, portion, lien, or other charge whereby a sum of money is secured to be paid, and also any annual or periodical charge, and also any charge hereafter to be imposed on land under any public act promoting drainage or land improvement, and also every other charge upon land which is deemed an incumbrance in a court of equity:

The word "certificate" or "land certificate" shall include the counterpart of a conveyance, or the duplicate of a judicial declaration of title recorded pursuant to this act:—

The word "settlement" shall include any instrument under which any land or lease shall be at law or in equity so limited as to create partial or limited estates or interests:

The expression "recorded estate" shall mean any land or lease the title to which shall be recorded under the provisions of this act.

Record of Title to be established of Land which has been the Subject of Conveyance or Declaration by the Landed Estates Court.

3. There shall be established a record of title, to be kept under the control and direction of the Landed Estates Court; and the office in which such record is kept shall be called "The Record of Title Office" of the said court.

4. Any person, upon obtaining a conveyance from the court of any land or lease, or of any interest therein, shall be entitled to have such conveyance entered in the record, and on the same being so entered the land or lease, or interest therein, comprised in such conveyance, shall be, and be deemed to be, for the purposes of this act, a "recorded estate."

5. And whereas the court has power to grant a judicial declaration of title to a fee-simple estate, and it is desirable to extend such power: be it therefore enacted that, notwithstanding anything contained in an act of the 21 & 22 Vict. [c. 72], intituled "An Act to facilitate the Sale and Transfer of Land in Ireland," the court may, on the application of the owner of any land or lease of any tenure in Ireland, proceed to investigate his title to the estate or interest or power in respect of which he claims to be such owner, and grant such declaration, in the manner directed by the said act.

6. Any person, upon obtaining a declaration of title from the court, shall be entitled to have such declaration entered upon the record, and thereupon the land or lease comprised shall be, and be deemed to be, a recorded estate; and no declaration of title so entered upon the record shall be registered in the office for registering deeds in Ireland; and it shall not be necessary to keep in the court any other record or copy of any such declaration of title than that hereinafter mentioned, anything in the said recited act, or in any rule or order made pursuant thereto, notwithstanding.

7. Any person to whom any conveyance or declaration of title shall be given by the court may, by requisition under his hand, lodged in the proper office of the court within seven days after the execution of such conveyance or declaration by a judge, require that the title so conferred shall not be recorded under this act; and on such requisition the court shall deliver out such conveyance or declaration, and the same shall not be recorded: the provisions of the said act of the 21 & 22 Vict., as to the registration of declarations of title in the office for registering deeds, shall in that case take effect as though this act had not been passed: provided always, that any declaration of title made after the passing of this act, and not recorded pursuant to this act, may be registered in the said office for registering deeds at any time within fourteen days after the execution thereof by the judge.

8. All conveyances and declarations which are retained for the purpose of being recorded under this act shall be entered in the book or books forming the record, and bound up therein, leaving space for further entries; and each of such conveyances and declarations, together with the further entries (if any) thereunder, shall form a division (hereinafter called a folio) of the record, distinguished by a separate number, or in such other manner as the officer may determine.

9. A counterpart of every conveyance and a duplicate of every declaration of title, recorded as aforesaid, signed by a judge, and under the seal of the court, may be issued to the person entitled thereto; and every such counterpart or duplicate so issued shall be marked by the officer with a memorandum of the recording as aforesaid; and every such counterpart or duplicate so marked shall as of the date thereof be and be deemed to be for all purposes as effectual as a "land certificate" granted as hereinafter mentioned, and shall for the purposes of this act be regarded as a land certificate.

10. The record shall be kept in the office, and shall not be removed therefrom for any purpose, unless the court shall direct. The record may be inspected by the recorded owners of the estates and interests, or of the mortgages and incumbrances recorded therein respectively, or by their solicitors or agents. No other person shall be permitted to inspect or to take copies of or extracts from the record, unless authorised by any such owner or by fiat of a judge. An index to recorded estates shall be made and regularly entered up; and such index may be inspected by any person without payment of any fee.

11. If in making up or continuing such record of title as aforesaid any question shall arise as to the true construction or legal validity or effect of any deed, will, or instrument, or as to the persons entitled, or the extent or nature of the estate, right, or interest, power or authority, of any person or class of persons, or the priority of any charge or incumbrance, claim or interest, or as to the mode in which any entry ought to be made in the record of title, such questions shall be disposed of by the judge, who may either decide the same, or direct any proceeding at law or in equity for that purpose, or, at his discretion, and without deciding such question, may direct such entry to be made on the record as shall appear to be right; and the judge may direct the estate or interest of any person to be recorded by reference to the deed, will, or instrument creating the same, or copy thereof made and retained in court, as hereinafter directed.

12. Subject to any qualification mentioned in such record of title, and to any recorded charges, incumbrances, tenancies, or leases, and to any tenancy or lease not required to be noted on the record, the recorded owner for the time being shall be and be deemed to be absolutely and indefeasibly possessed of, and entitled to, such recorded estate against all persons, and free from all rights, interests, claims, and demands whatsoever, including any estate, claim, or interest of her Majesty, her heirs and successors: provided always, that nothing herein contained shall prejudice or affect any rent-charge in lieu of tithe, or any Crown rent or quit-rent to the Crown, or any charge imposed before the day of the passing of this act under any public act or acts for promoting drainage or land improvement in Ireland.

13. No entry in such record of title as aforesaid shall be set aside or called in question as against any person who may afterwards become interested under any sale, mortgage, or contract for valuable consideration by reason of any irregularity or informality therein, or in the proceedings previous to the making thereof.

14. From and after the recording of any land or lease, every settlement, transfer, mortgage, charge, lease, or sub-lease granted or in any manner created in or affecting such land or lease, or any part thereof (except as herein excepted), shall be entered or noted in the record of title to be kept as aforesaid. Recorded charges on the same land or lease shall, as between themselves, rank according to the date of their being recorded, and not according to the date of their creation.

15. Subject to the enactments herein contained, the estates and interests of all recorded owners shall remain subject to the existing law, and may be dealt with, assured, devised, and transmitted by descent or representation, according to the ordinary rules of law and equity.

16. The provisions of the several acts of Parliament now in force relating to the registry of deeds in Ireland shall cease to be applicable to any land so soon as it has been placed on the record, under the provisions of this act, and so long as it remains thereon; and the said several acts shall not be applicable to any lease, charge, or incumbrance on the record, so far as the same affects any recorded estate: provided always, that so soon as any conveyance or declaration of title has been recorded under this act, a memorial of the placing of the land or lease on the record shall be prepared, specifying the recorded ownership and full description of the lands, which memorial shall be certified under the seal of the court, and shall be forthwith handed to the registrar of the registry of deeds in Ireland; and such registrar is hereby authorised and directed to file such memorial, when duly verified, in the same way as memorials of deeds, and shall receive such fees thereon as now chargeable for memorials of deeds, and the said registrar shall duly enter in the registry the name of the said owner, and the description of the lands, and shall make the usual return on any requisition as with regard to memorials of deeds. Such memorial, when registered, shall be conclusive evidence of the several matters therein contained.

17. The officer shall, when directed by a fiat of a judge, but not further or otherwise, make any amendment, or correct any error in the record, or in any map thereto annexed, as the judge shall consider just: such amendment or correction shall be made after such notices, and on such terms as to costs or otherwise, as the judge may think fit. Every such amendment or correction in the record shall be marked by the officer with the date of making the same, and with the initials of his name; and any certificate which may have been issued as hereinafter mentioned, or other instrument of title, shall be amended in like manner; and the judge may direct and compel any such certificate or instrument of title to be brought to the office by any person for the purpose of amendment, or for the purpose of having a new certificate granted in lieu thereof; and such amendment of the old, or substitution of a new, certificate shall be without prejudice to any claim of lien or other claim thereon, and shall be on such terms as to costs as may be just.

As to Land Certificates and Certificates of Charges.

18. The officer shall, upon request, deliver to every person who is named or described in the record as the owner of any recorded estate a certificate, herein called a "land certificate," under the seal of the office, which certificate shall contain a copy of the description of the estate and particulars of the incumbrances, leases and other matters in force relating thereto, and a copy of the map (if any); the officer shall also upon request, deliver to every person who is named or described in the record as the owner of any charge or incumbrance a certificate of charge: provided always, that no certificate shall be issued until any duplicate conveyance or declaration or former certificate (as the case may be) which may have been issued shall be returned to the officer to be cancelled.

19. At the request of the holder the officer shall at any time compare any such certificate with the record, and, if there has been no alteration, shall certify at the foot of such certificate that it contains a true statement of the entries in the record, and shall sign the same and add the date of such signature. Any alteration or omission which can be conveniently made in a certificate, or any addition thereto, so as to make the same correspond with any alteration in the record, may be made and signed by the officer, if he shall think fit. Before recording any transfer or other dealing (except a lease), the officer shall serve a notice thereof on the recorded owner in the manner directed by sect. 64 of this act, unless such owner shall appear in person, and be identified to the satisfaction of the officer; and the officer shall also require the production of the certificate or other instrument of title equivalent thereto, that may have been issued; and when such transfer or disposition has been completed such certificate or instrument of title (if reissued) shall be made up so as to correspond with the record. A new certificate may be granted on the delivery up of the former certificate.

20. Whenever any recorded owner shall be desirous of selling or mortgaging any recorded estate he may, on giving up to the officer his land certificate, obtain a "special land certificate" for that purpose, which shall contain the particulars given in the land certificate. Such special certificate shall be conclusive evidence of the title of the recorded owner as appearing by the record. No entry shall be made by the officer in the record of any deed, instrument, act, or transaction affecting the estate comprised in such special certificate, except on the delivery up of such special certificate, until fourteen days have expired from and after the day of the date thereof. A note of such special certificate shall be entered in the record.

21. Every land certificate, or certificate of charge, duly signed and sealed, shall be conclusive evidence of the several matters therein contained as of the date of such certificate. The deposit of the certificate by the person entitled thereto shall for the purpose of creating a lien on his estate and interest, be a valid security in the terms of any letter or memorandum or agreement accompanying such deposit; and such letter or memorandum or agreement shall be chargeable with the same stamp duty as a mortgage would have been according to the Stamp Acts now in force.

22. Any owner of a recorded estate or charge, on making application to the officer, and upon giving up his certificate to be cancelled, and on producing the consent of any incumbrancer or other person whose consent shall be deemed necessary, may obtain separate certificates for separate parcels of land, or for separate portions of any charge, or may obtain one certificate comprising several parcels of land or charges; and in such case the old folio of the record may be cancelled, and new folios or chapters relating to such subdivisions may be opened therein.

23. On the transfer of part of a recorded estate a new folio shall be opened in respect of such part, and a new land certificate issued; and a suitable entry shall at the same time be made on the folio and map relating to the residue and on the certificate thereof; or, if the officer shall deem it more convenient, he may cancel the old folio, and open a new one, and issue a new certificate in respect of the residue of the estate.

24. If for any purpose mentioned in the last section any apportionment of head rent or of tenant's rent shall be desirable, the court may apportion such rent, whether the same be reserved by a fee-farm grant, or by a lease according to its usual practice with regard to apportionments, and on the like notices or consents being produced: provided always, that the officer may, if he deem it necessary, require the boundary survey to be made and new maps furnished before proceeding to open new folios in the record as to separate parcels contained.

25. If any land certificate or certificate of charge be lost or destroyed, the officer may, upon the fiat of the judge who shall be satisfied of the fact of such loss or destruction, and shall direct such public advertisement for the recovery of the same as he may consider expedient, give a new certificate, and shall state thereon that it is given in substitution for the former certificate, and the same fees shall be chargeable for the new as for the former certificate; but no such new certificate shall be any avail against any person who may have already derived title under the former certificate.

Transfer and Transmission of recorded Estates and Charges.

26. Recorded estates and recorded charges may be conveyed, charged, settled, dealt with, or affected—

By a statutory deed or disposition in either of the forms in the schedule annexed to this act;

By indorsement on the certificate;

By deposit of the certificate as aforesaid;

By deed, will, decree, order, or other means by which such land or charge, if not recorded, might now, according to law, be dealt with or affected;

but no estate, interest, contract, or dealing not noted on the record shall prevail against the title of any owner, or of the proprietor of any estate, interest, charge, or incumbrance duly recorded under this act; and no equitable mortgage or lien on recorded land shall be created by deposit of title deeds.

27. On the occasion of any transfer, mortgage, or other disposition of a recorded estate, or of any charge or incumbrance thereon, the parties or their attorneys lawfully authorised may attend at the office to complete the transaction. The description of the land and of the estate or charge proposed to be transferred or dealt with shall be taken from or refer to the record, and shall be inserted, under the superintendence of the officer, in one of the statutory forms set out in the schedule hereto; and such transfer or disposition shall be executed by the owner or transferor, or by his attorney lawfully authorised, and duly attested by a solicitor, and shall then and there, together with the power of attorney (if any), be delivered to the officer for the purpose of having an official note entered in the record.

28. The recorded owner of any estate, charge, or incumbrance may transfer or charge the same by one of the forms in the schedule hereto, and the same shall be as complete and effectual as any other form of transfer, charge, or mortgage would have been either at law or in equity. Persons taking under either of the said statutory forms shall take as fully and effectually as if the estates and rights expressed to be created and given by such forms respectively had been created or granted by any of the modes of assurance now known to the law.

29. Any person claiming under a deed or instrument affecting recorded land executed elsewhere than in the office may apply to have the same recorded as to such land, on giving sufficient evidence of the due execution thereof; and when the officer has received such deed or instrument he shall forthwith note the same on the record, and shall retain in court either the original or a counterpart, or a copy, made and compared in such manner as the court may by general rule direct, and under the hand of the grantor; and the original, if handed back to the person entitled thereto, shall be so marked or indorsed by the officer as to shew that it has been noted on the record; and so far as relates to the recorded estate or charge thereby affected it shall not be necessary to register any memorial of such deed or instrument in the office for registering deeds in Ireland: provided always, that the officer may decline to receive and note any deed or instrument which is not made in one of the forms in the schedule hereto, unless a judge has, by fiat indorsed thereon, directed the same to be received and noted.

30. So soon as any deed or instrument has been duly executed, and has been received by the officer, such deed or instrument, and the estate and right created thereby, shall be deemed to have been duly entered on the record, and an official note of reference thereto shall forthwith be made by the officer in the proper folio of the record: provided always, that such deed or instrument, and the estate and right created thereby, shall not be deemed to have been entered on the record so as to affect any land, lease, or charge comprised in any such "special land certificate" as hereinbefore mentioned until after the expiration of the time hereinbefore limited for the entry of any deed, act, or transaction affecting such land or charge.

31. For the purpose of authorising or of compelling a transfer to be made of any recorded estate or charge or any part thereof, the court or a judge may make such orders and give such directions as to the appointment, removal, or change of trustees, or as to the vesting in them or in any other person of any land or charge, as the Lord High Chancellor is empowered to make or give under the Trustees Act, 1850, or any act amending or extending the same.

32. The owner of any recorded estate may at any time by a requisition under his hand, and with the consent of all persons who may appear to be interested as having charges or otherwise, and whose consent shall be deemed necessary, require the record to be closed, and on such requisition and consent being examined and found to be sufficient, a memorial of the closing of the record shall be prepared, specifying the ownership and full description of the lands, which memorial shall be signed by the officer and by the said owner, and shall be forthwith handed to the registrar of the registry of deeds in Ireland; and such registrar is hereby authorised and directed to file such memorial, when duly verified, in the same way as memorials of deeds, and shall receive such fees thereon as now chargeable for memorials of deeds, and the said registrar shall duly enter in the registry the name of the said owner and the description of the lands, and shall make the usual return on any requisition as with regard to memorials of deeds. Such memorial, when registered, shall be conclusive evidence of the several matters therein contained.

After the registration of such memorial, the record shall be deemed to be closed as to such estate, but shall for all purposes be deemed to have conferred an indefeasible title upon the person last therein described as owner (subject as therein, and as in this act, is excepted).

33. Notwithstanding anything contained in this act, the Landed Estates Court shall have the same jurisdiction that courts of equity now have on the ground of actual fraud, and it may alter or amend the record on such terms as may be just.

34. On the death of the recorded owner of any real estate any person claiming as devisee may apply to the judge for a fiat directing the officer to record the applicant as owner, in the place of the deceased person; but the judge shall withhold such fiat until the applicant shall have lodged in the office the probate, or a true copy of the will or codicil under which he claims; and no transfer or disposition by any such devisee shall be recorded, except after the service of such notice on the heir-at-law and executors (if any) as the judge may deem necessary; and the judge may also, if he shall see fit, suspend such fiat until a decision of some other competent court in favour of the title claimed by such devisee shall have been obtained.

35. On the death of the recorded owner of real estate, any person claiming as heir-at-law may apply to the judge for a fiat directing the officer to record the applicant; but no such person shall be recorded as owner until at least six calendar months from the date of such application shall have expired, and such notices of every such application shall be given, by advertisement and otherwise, as the judge may think necessary or proper: if there shall be any doubt, dispute, or litigation touching the ownership of the estate of a deceased owner, the court may appoint a person to be recorded in his place as the representative of such estate, and shall give directions to such representative from time to time touching the management and letting of the estate; and all acts of such representative in pursuance of the directions of the court shall be valid and binding on all parties interested in the estate.

36. On the death of the recorded owner of a chattel interest in or of a charge affecting land, his personal representative may apply to be recorded in the place of the deceased person.

37. On the bankruptcy or insolvency of any recorded owner, the assignee or assignees of his estate shall be entitled to be recorded in his place. On the marriage of any female owner of a recorded estate or charge, her husband may apply to be recorded as co-proprietor in right of his wife.

Power to record Estates and Interests under Settlements.

38. Upon the application of any person claiming under any settlement of a recorded estate, a judge may make an order directing the officer to record separately any vested estate under the settlement, either in possession, or in remainder after the dropping of a life or lives, which can be aliened by the owner thereof, without the consent of any other person, and which is not liable to be defeated or affected at law or in equity by the act of any other person, or by any other contingency. Upon any such application the judge shall ascertain whether any power of sale or exchange or power of charging exists with respect to such estate, and if so, the record shall be qualified by stating the existence of such power; the judge may also direct the officer to record separately any vested and ascertained charge or incumbrance under the settlement.

39. Any estate, interest, or charge under a settlement, when separately recorded, shall be, for the purposes of this act, and shall be deemed to be, a "recorded estate," or a "recorded charge," and a separate folio or division (as the case may be) of the record shall be opened therefor, and a separate certificate issued to the person entitled.

40. On any application to record separately any estate, interest, or charge under a settlement, the judge may decline to have the same separately recorded, or he may (at his option) direct that the same be recorded by means of a note of reference to the whole or any portion of the settlement or counterpart, or the copy retained in court, as hereinbefore provided for; and no appeal shall lie from any decision of the judge given under this section.

41. Trustees with a power of sale may be recorded as joint owners, and any tenant for life or other person may, by their consent, or by direction of a judge, be entered as a "consenting party," and without the consent of the person so inscribed as last aforesaid no transfer or disposition shall be made: provided always, that the judge shall have full power (after such inquiries and notices as it shall deem just) to direct the name of any person to be removed as a "consenting party," and to direct the name of any other person to be inserted in lieu thereof; and any person interested in preventing any sale or disposition by such joint owners may lodge a caveat with the officer in manner hereinafter mentioned.

Judgments and other Claims on recorded Estates.

42. No judgment, recognisance, crown bond, lis pendens, acceptance of office, inquisition, decree, or order entered on a charge upon recorded land, or in any manner affect the same, unless and until a memorandum of the same, in such form and with such verification or other evidence as the court may by general rule direct, shall be lodged with the officer; and the officer shall, on such memorandum being lodged, and such information given as will enable him to identify the land sought to be charged, make an official note thereof on the record. It shall not be necessary to register or file any affidavit in the Registry of Deeds Office for the purpose of making a judgment a charge on recorded land.

43. Judgments, recognisances, crown bonds, lis pendens, acceptances, and inquisitions, decrees, and orders entered on the record by the lodgment of a verified memorandum, and the entry of an official note as aforesaid, shall be re-entered before the end of every five years from the entry thereof by the like means; and no judgment, recognisance, crown bond, lis, acceptance, inquisition, decree, or order shall be of any force or effect as against a purchaser for valuable consideration, or mortgages of a recorded estate, unless the same shall have been entered or re-entered on the record within five years previous to the date of the recording of his purchase or mortgage; and no such purchaser or mortgagee shall be affected by notice, express or implied, of any judgment, recognisance, crown bond, lis, acceptance, inquisition, decree, or order.

44. Whenever payment is made of any part of the principal money due on a recorded charge or incumbrance, the officer may, on production of a receipt signed by the recorded owner of the charge and duly verified, make an official note thereof, on the record. Unless and until such note be made the entire principal sum expressed to be due shall, on the occasion of any transfer for valuable consideration, be considered as due. Interest on the principal sum since the last gale day shall be considered as due, unless the fact of the payment of such interest be recorded. If in any instrument of transfer any further interest be expressed to be due, such transfer of arrears of interest shall be valid only to the extent to which such interest shall be actually due and recoverable from the land. On the application of any recorded owner or incumbrancer, and on finding that any charge, incumbrance, or claim upon a recorded estate has been paid off or satisfied, the officer may make an entry of the fact on the record, and no release or reconveyance shall in that case be necessary.

45. Whenever any recorded land or lease shall be sold by the sheriff under any writ, or shall be sold under any direction, decree, or order of any competent court, the officer, on production to him of the conveyance or assignment, and of an office copy of the writ, direction, decree, or order, may record the purchaser as owner of such land or lease.

Caveats against Transfer, &c.

46. Any person interested in any land, lease, or charge recorded in the name of any other person may lodge a caveat with the officer, which caveat shall be in such form and shall be verified and noted on the record in such manner as the court shall by general rule direct. A caveat shall remain in force for a period of twenty-one days from the date thereof if the court shall be then sitting, or if the court shall not be sitting then for twenty-one days from the next sitting of the court. Any transfer or other disposition recorded during such period shall, unless a judge shall otherwise direct, be made expressly subject to the title and claim (if any) of the cautioner.

47. After the expiration of such period the caveat shall cease, and the officer shall cancel any note thereof on the record, unless a fiat continuing it be made by a judge; and upon the caveat so ceasing the land, lease, or charge shall be dealt with in the same manner as if no caveat had been lodged. If before the expiration of the said period the cautioner or his solicitor appears before a judge, and gives such undertaking or security, or lodges such sum in court as such judge may consider sufficient to indemnify every person against any damage that may be sustained by reason of any disposition of the property being delayed, then and in such case such judge may direct the officer to delay recording any dealing with the land, lease, or charge for a further period, to be specified in such order, or make such other order as may be just. If any caveat be lodged without reasonable cause, such judge may order payment by the cautioner of such sum by way of compensation or costs as he may deem just.

48. Where two or more persons are recorded as owners of any estate or charge, a note may, with their consent or by direction of the judge, be made by the officer on the record to the effect that when the number of such owners is reduced below a specified number, no disposition of such land or charge shall be made by the survivors unless the judge shall otherwise direct; and such note shall appear on every copy or certificate issued by the officer.

Leases and Demises of recorded Land.

49. Whenever recorded land is intended to be leased or demised, the lease and a counterpart thereof, after being executed by the recorded owner, and attested, may be brought to the officer, who shall make an official note of the terms of such lease in the proper folio of the record, and shall mark or indorse on such lease and counterpart a note that they have been recorded. A lease granted by any person having power to lease, but not being the recorded owner, may, on the fiat of the judge, be noted on the record in like manner. On the application of the lessee, and after notice to the recorded owner, any such lease may be entered in a subdivision or chapter of the said folio, and such lease shall in that case be deemed to be a "recorded estate" within the meaning of this act: provided always, that if the lessor's interest shall be subject to any recorded charge, either the consent of the person appearing entitled to such charge shall be obtained before a lease or demise of recorded land shall be noted or entered on the record, or, if such consent be not obtained, the officer shall enter a note to the effect that the granting or recording of such lease is "without prejudice to the title and claim" of the person entitled to such charge; and the interest of the lessee shall remain subject to such qualification as last aforesaid, but the officer may at any time, on such consent being obtained, and proved to his satisfaction, cancel such qualification, and thereupon the title of the lessee shall become indefeasible, subject only to the reservations, clauses, and covenants contained in the lease: provided also, that any tenancy or lease lawfully made at a rackrent without fine for a term not exceeding thirty-one years, and under which the tenant is in possession, or any assignment thereof, shall be valid for all purposes, although not entered or recorded under this act.

50. On the recording, pursuant to this act, of any land held under lease, the indefeasible title shall not extend to the title of any lessor or grantor under whom the same is held, unless the court, having investigated the title of such lessor or grantor, shall direct an official note to be entered to the effect that the title of such lessor or grantor is guaranteed, and in such case the validity of such lease shall not afterwards be impeached on the ground of any want of power or title in the said lessor or grantor to make the same, or by reason of any clause, condition, or covenant in the same, or by reason of the same not having been duly registered.

Land heretofore conveyed, &c. may be brought upon the Record.

51. Any person who has heretofore obtained a conveyance from the Court of the Commissioners for the Sale of Incumbered Estates in Ireland, or has obtained or may hereafter obtain a conveyance or declaration of title from the Landed Estates Court, or the assign or representative of any such person, may apply in a summary manner, without petition, to the court, to be recorded as owner, pursuant to this act; and on producing such conveyance or an office copy of such declaration, and on furnishing such search or other evidence of title, and after the publication of such advertisement as the court may direct, such person may, if the court think fit, be recorded as owner of the whole or part of the land or lease comprised in such conveyance or declaration, and such land or lease, or part thereof, shall thereupon become a recorded estate within the meaning of this act: provided always, that an interval of two calendar months shall elapse between such first application and the final recording of the title as aforesaid; and that the officer may, if he think fit, require a new survey of the land to be made, and a new map, for the purpose of entry on the record.

General Provisions, Practice of the Office, Rules, Forms, Fees, &c.

52. No act, entry, or proceeding under this act shall be restrained, nor shall the officer be restrained by order or injunction of a court of equity or by writ of prohibition; nor shall the officer be required by writ of mandamus to do any act, or make any official note or entry under this act; nor shall the record or any book or document be liable to be removed from the office under any writ or process of any other court, unless a judge shall so direct.

53. The judge shall not, nor shall the officer, or any person acting under the authority of either of them, be liable to any action, suit, or proceeding for or in respect of any act or matter bona fide done or omitted in the exercise or supposed exercise of the powers of this act.

54. The "record of title office" of the court shall be open for business on every day of the year, except the following days, viz. Sundays, Christmas Day, New Year's Day, Good Friday, Easter Monday, and Whit Monday, and any day duly appointed to be kept as a day of general fast or thanksgiving. The said office shall be open during such hours, and such officer and clerks shall attend therein, as the court shall from time to time direct.

55. The court shall, on or before the 1st January next, frame a code of general rules and of forms for carrying out the objects of this act. Such general rules shall further provide for the sale, transfer, partition, and exchange of "recorded estates" by the court. Such rules and forms shall be submitted to the Lord Chancellor of Ireland, and approved of by him, before they shall be binding, and when made and approved of as aforesaid they shall be laid before Parliament forthwith, if Parliament is sitting, or if not, within fourteen days after the next sitting of Parliament; and such rules and forms may from time to time be added to, rescinded, or altered by the like authorities respectively; and all such rules shall take effect as general rules of the court.

56. A seal shall be prepared for the record of title office of the court, and shall be kept in the custody of the officer, and all certificates and other documents purporting to be sealed with such seal shall be admissible as evidence, without further proof.

57. If in any proceeding to obtain the recording of any land, or to obtain any certificate, or otherwise in any transaction relating to land which is or is proposed to be put upon the record, any person acting either as principal or agent, shall knowingly, and with intent to deceive, make or assist or join in or be privy to the making of any material false statement or representation, or suppress, conceal, or assist or join in or be privy to the suppressing, withholding, or concealing from any judge or the officer, or any person assisting the officer, any material document, fact, or matter of information, every person so acting shall be deemed to be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be liable to be imprisoned for a term not exceeding three years, and either with or without hard labour, or to be fined such sum as the court by which he is convicted shall award. The act or thing done or obtained by means of such fraud or falsehood shall be null and void to all intents and purposes, except as against a purchaser for valuable consideration without notice.

58. No proceeding or conviction for any act hereby declared to be a misdemeanor shall affect any remedy which any person aggrieved by such act may be entitled to, either at law or in equity, against the person who has committed such act.

59. Nothing in this act contained shall entitle any person to refuse to make a complete discovery by answer or otherwise to any bill or petition in equity, or to answer any question or interrogatory in any civil proceeding in any court of law or equity, or in the Court of Bankruptcy, but no answer in any such bill, question, or interrogatory shall be admissible in evidence against such person in any criminal proceeding.

60. Where any married woman is desirous of making any application, giving any consent or doing any act, or becoming party to any proceeding under this act, her husband's concurrence shall be required, and she shall be examined apart from her husband, touching her knowledge of the nature and effect of the application or other act, and it shall be ascertained that she is acting freely and voluntarily, and such examination may be taken by the judge. A married woman entitled to her separate use, and not restrained from anticipation, shall, for the purposes of this act, be deemed a feme sole.

61. Where any person who (if not under disability) might have made any application, given any consent, done any act, or been party to any proceeding under this act, is a minor, idiot, or lunatic, the guardian or committee of the estate respectively of such person may, with the assent of a judge, make such applications, give such consents, do such acts, and be party to such proceedings as such person respectively, if free from disability might have made, given, done, or been party to, and shall otherwise, with such assent as aforesaid, represent such person for the purposes of this act. Where there is no guardian or committee of the estates of any such person as aforesaid, being infant, idiot, or lunatic, or where any person, the committee of whose estates if he were idiot or lunatic would be authorised to act for and represent such person under this act, is of unsound mind or incapable of managing his affairs, but has not been found idiot or lunatic under an inquisition, it shall be lawful for a judge to appoint a guardian of such person for the purpose of any proceedings under this act, and from time to time to change such guardian; and where a judge sees fit, he may appoint a person to act as the next friend of a married woman for the purpose of any proceeding under this act, and from time to time remove or change such next friend.

62. The record shall be under the management of the following principal officers of the Landed Estates Court; viz. the examiners and the registrar, or of such one of them as the judges shall from time to time direct; and in case of his absence, the judges shall appoint one other of the said officers to supply his place; and the judges shall adjust the duties now performed by the said officers in such manner as may appear expedient for the purposes aforesaid, and shall so arrange the same that some one of the said officers shall be in attendance daily (except as aforesaid) throughout the year; and there shall be paid to such officers, or any of them, or to any other officer or clerk of the court whose duties shall be increased by the operation of this act, such sum, by way of increased annual salary, as the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury shall approve, on the recommendation of the said judges. If the Lord Chancellor of Ireland shall now, or at any time hereafter, consider it necessary or expedient, having regard to the business of the court, that additional clerks should be appointed, it shall be lawful for the judges, with the consent of the said commissioners, to appoint such additional clerks to assist in carrying out this act, and there shall be paid to such clerks such salaries as the judges, with the assent of the said commissioners, shall appoint; and such clerks shall be removable by the joint order of the said judges, with the sanction of the Lord Chancellor, and shall be subject to the same regulations, and shall hold their offices during pleasure, and in other respects on the same conditions, and shall be paid out of the same funds, and in the same manner, as the other clerks of the court; and all other expenses of carrying out this act shall be paid out of such moneys as shall be provided by Parliament.

63. All applications to the judge under this act shall be made in chamber, and such judge may direct any matter before him to be argued in court. Any order or decision or direction of the judge, excepting a decision or direction given under the 40th section of this act, shall be subject to the like appeal to the Court of Chancery Appeal in Ireland, and thence to the House of Lords, as is provided by the said cited act of the 21 & 22 Vict.

64. A place of address in Ireland shall be entered in a book to be kept for that purpose in the court, for every person whose name is entered on the record as owner of land or of a charge, or as a cautioner, or as entitled to receive any notice; or any such person may, at his option, give from time to time the name and address of any solicitor of the court to act on his behalf. Notices shall be deemed sufficiently served if sent through the notice office of the court, or by registered post-letter to such address as aforesaid.

65. The judges of the court may frame a scale of costs to be paid to solicitors or certificated conveyancers in respect of any service rendered by them in relation to any recorded estate or charge, or any matter connected therewith. Such scale shall be framed with regard to the skill and trouble involved, and the amount of property affected, and not with regard to the length of the documents prepared. Such scale shall be submitted to the Lord Chancellor of Ireland, and shall be approved of by him before it shall be binding, and with the like approval it may be varied. Such scale shall be acted on by all persons having by law or by consent of parties authority to tax or moderate costs.

66. The forms contained in the schedule hereto may be used, but they may be modified or altered to suit the circumstances of every case, and deeds made in such altered forms shall be equally valid and effectual.

67. On the 2nd November of each year after this act shall come into operation the judges shall furnish to the Lord Lieutenant or other chief governor or governors of Ireland a return to be laid before Parliament shewing the number of estates recorded under the act during the year, distinguishing those which are brought in and recorded under the 51st section of this act, and distinguishing estates and interests under settlements separately recorded as aforesaid; and the return shall also shew the amount of fees received during the year pursuant to this act.

68. The judges of the court shall, with the consent of the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, frame a schedule of fees to be received by the recording officer in respect of the following matters, viz.—

1. Transfers, transmissions, and other dealings with recorded estates and charges, having regard to the value of the estates and the amounts of the charges;
2. Recording of estates under the 51st section of this act, having regard to the value of such estates;
3. Entry and cancellation of official notes or entries; lodgment of caveats, and of deeds and other documents; issue of certificates, and other acts to be done by the recording officer;

The judges may, with the consent of the said commissioners from time to time lower or raise such fees, or any of them; all fees shall be paid over so as to form part of the Consolidated Fund of Great Britain and Ireland; the recording officer may also charge any sum actually payable, according to a scale to be sanctioned by the judges, to a surveyor, printer, or scrivener, for services or work necessarily done in respect of any map, entry, certificate, or copy under this act; except as aforesaid, no fees or sums shall be received by any officer or clerk of the court in respect of proceedings under this act.

69. The following rules shall be observed with respect to the collection of fees:—

1. All fees payable shall be received by stamps denoting the amount of fees payable, and not in money;
2. When any fee is payable in respect of a document, a stamp denoting the amount of fee shall be affixed to or impressed on such document;
3. Whenever an adhesive stamp shall be used to denote payment of any fee, such stamp shall be effectually cancelled in such manner as the recording officer shall direct, so as to be incapable of being used again;
4. The Commissioners of Inland Revenue shall provide everything that is necessary for the collection of the moneys hereby directed to be paid by stamps.

70. The several acts for the time being in force relating to stamps under the care or management of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, shall apply to the stamps to be provided in pursuance of this act, and to any document on which such stamps may be affixed or impressed, and to collecting and securing the sums of money denoted by stamps, and to preventing, detecting, and punishing all frauds, forgeries, and other offences relating thereto, as fully as if such provisions had been herein repeated and specially enacted with reference to the last-mentioned stamps and sums of money respectively.

SCHEDULE.

No. 1.—FORM OF TRANSFER OF RECORDED LAND.

I, A. B., the recorded owner of the under-mentioned land, pursuant to the Record of Title Act, Ireland, 1865, in consideration of £—— sterling paid to me by C. D., of —, &c., do grant to the said C. D., all [insert description of land taken from or referring to the record, and refer to map (if any)], to hold to him and his heirs for ever [or otherwise, according to the nature of the interest transferred.] Dated this — day of —.

Signed and sealed at the Record of Title Office, Landed Estates
Court, Ireland, in my presence,
E. F., of —, a solicitor of } I hereby accept the above the Court. } transfer.

Signature —.
(Seal).

Signature —.
Address —.

NO. 2.—FORM OF CHARGE.

I, A. B., the recorded owner of the under-mentioned land, pursuant to the Record of Title Act, Ireland, 1865, in consideration of £— sterling lent to me by G. H., of —, do charge in favour of the said G. H. the hereditaments described in the schedule hereto with the principal sum of £—, repayable on the — day of —, together with interest thereon at the rate of — per cent. [reducible to —, if paid within a month after due], and payable half-yearly, every — and —. Dated this — day of —.

Witness, &c., } Signature —.
as above. } (Seal).

I hereby accept the above charge.
Signature —.
Address —.

Schedule above referred to.

N. B. This form may be adapted to the case of an annuity charged on land.

NO. 3.—FORM OF TRANSFER OF CHARGE.

I, the within-named G. H., the recorded owner of a charge under the Record of Title Act, Ireland, 1865, in consideration of £— sterling paid to me by J. K., of —, do transfer to the said J. K. the [within mentioned] charge, on which £— now remains due [together with interest from the date of interest.]

Witness, &c., } Signature —.
as above. } (Seal).

I hereby accept the above transfer.
Signature —.
Address —.

NO. 4.—FORM OF POWER OF ATTORNEY TO TRANSFER.

I, A. B., the recorded owner of land [or, a charge] pursuant to the Record of Title Act, Ireland, 1865, do hereby appoint L. M., of —, &c., solicitor, my attorney, for the purpose of [transferring to S. T., of —, &c., absolutely], all my hereditaments, as entered and described in the record of title, under folio [Tyrone, No. 189], and my estate therein [or, my charge, describing it.]

Witness, &c. —
(Seal).

CAP. LXXXIX.

An Act to provide for the better Government of Greenwich Hospital, and the more beneficial Application of the Revenues thereof. [5th July, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Short title.
2. Commencement of act.
3. Interpretation of terms.
4. enactments described in schedule repealed.
5. Power to order new pensions, &c.
6. Power to grant allowances to present inmates.
7. Name of pensions, &c.
8. Assignments, &c. void.
9. Pensions, &c. to be voted.
10. Abolition of commissioners, &c.
11. Power to remove other officers, &c.
12. Annuities to be provided for commissioners, &c.
13. Continuance of superannuation allowance.
14. As to titles, &c. of governor and lieutenant-governor.
15. Appointment of visitor and governor.
16. Annuities to be provided for clerks, &c., if removed.

17. Annuity to be held with half-pay, &c.
18. Power to require clerks for whom annuities have been provided to serve in any suitable capacity.
19. Provision as to annuities on appointment to offices.
20. As to government of the hospital, &c.
21. Expenses to be paid out of money provided by Parliament.
22. As to transfer of real property.
23. Lands to be held for benefit of hospital and subject to this act and the 27 & 28 Vict. c. 57.
24. Quitrents, &c. for lands.
25. Services of tenants.
26. Protection of existing leases.
27. Payment of rents and profits into Bank.
28. Expenses of management, &c.
29. Restrictions on leasing.
30. Power to make free grants of land for places of worship, &c.
31. As to purchase money of land sold.
32. Transfer of stock.
33. Payment of dividends.
34. Transfer of cash balances.
35. Transfer of other personal property.
36. Payment of other income.
37. Not to affect sect. 2 of the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 34, as to charge on Consolidated Fund.
38. Conversion of stock, &c.
39. Transfers between capital and income accounts.
40. Change of investment and purchase of lands.
41. The 27 and 28 Vict. c. 57, to apply to this act.
42. Vesting of lands purchased.
43. Devises, &c. for hospital.
44. Sale of advowsons to be arranged similar to those contained in the 26 & 27 Vict. c. 120.
45. Marked stores to be deemed naval stores, as in the 27 & 28 Vict. c. 91.
46. Comptroller of hospital estates.
47. Audit of accounts of property.
48. Audit of money voted.
49. Accounts to be laid before Parliament.
50. Certificate of amount expended.
51. Repayment of money expended to Consolidated Fund.
52. Actions by Admiralty.
53. Saving rights of Crown.
54. Power to sue by information, &c.
55. Transfer of contracts, &c.
56. Continuance of actions, &c.
57. Powers may be exercised by two lords.
58. Style of Admiralty in deeds, &c.
59. Protection of Admiralty.
60. Publication, &c. of Orders in Council.

CAP. XC.

An Act for the Establishment of a Fire Brigade within the Metropolis. [5th July, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Short title.
2. Definition of "metropolis" and "insurance company."
3. Definition of "Metropolis Local Management Acts."
4. Duty of metropolitan board in relation to fires.
5. Purchase of buildings and land.
6. Transfer of plant of existing fire offices.
7. Constitution of fire brigade.
8. Salaries of fire brigade.
9. Power to make regulations for fire brigade.
10. Compensation to parish officers.
11. As to purchase of fire escapes.
12. As to powers of fire brigade.
13. Contributions by insurance offices.
14. Mode of enforcing contributions.
15. Mode of ascertaining proportions of contributions.
16. Penalty on insurance company not making a return.
17. Examination of books of insurance companies.
18. Contributions by Government towards expense of brigade.
19. Expenses of act not specially provided for.
20. Penalty on non-payment of rate by overseers.
21. Power to board, with consent of Treasury, to borrow not exceeding 40,000l.
22. Power to turn discharged officers or men out of houses provided for them.

23. Penalty where chimneys are on fire.
24. Recovery of penalties.
25. Summary proceedings for determining certain matters.
26. Extension of powers given to two justices.
27. Audit of accounts, and report by board.
28. Power to delegate powers of board to a committee.
29. Establishment of salvage force by insurance offices.
30. Brigade when employed beyond the metropolis, or on special services.
31. Board to send information of fire to offices.
32. Transfer to board of powers of parishes as to fire-plugs.
33. Definition of "owner."
34. Partial repeal of unrepealed sections of the 14 Geo. 3, c. 78.
35. Partial repeal of the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 90.

CAP. XCI.

An Act to confirm certain Provisional Orders made under an Act of the Fifteenth Year of Her present Majesty, to facilitate Arrangements for the Relief of Turnpike Trusts.
[5th July, 1865.]

CAP. XCII.

An Act to shorten the Time for the Election of Members to serve in Parliament for the Ayr District of Burghs.
[5th July, 1865.]

CAP. XCIII.

An Act to consolidate the Offices of Comptroller-General of the Exchequer and Chairman of the Commissioners for auditing the Public Accounts; and for other Purposes.
[5th July, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Appointment of Chairman of Commissioners of Public Accounts to office of Comptroller-General on occurrence of next vacancy.*
2. Power to abolish office of Chief Clerk of the Exchequer.
 3. Annual salary of Comptroller-General and Chairman of Audit Board.

Whereas by an act passed in the session of the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 15, intitled "An Act to regulate the Office of the Receipt of His Majesty's Exchequer at Westminster," it was enacted, that "the constitution and establishment of the Exchequer shall consist of the following officers: (that is to say) a Comptroller-General, to be designated Comptroller-General of the Receipt and Issue of his Majesty's Exchequer, with an annual salary of 2000*l.*, an Assistant-Comptroller, a Chief Clerk, and such number of clerks and assistants, with such salaries as shall be established and regulated from time to time by the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury:" and whereas it is expedient that when a vacancy shall occur in the said office of Comptroller-General the duties of the said office shall be performed by the Chairman of the Commissioners for auditing the Public Accounts, and that he shall be appointed Comptroller-General accordingly: be it therefore enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. On the occurrence of the next vacancy in the said office of Comptroller-General, the office of the said Comptroller shall be granted, by letters-patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, to the Chairman for the time being of the Commissioners for auditing the Public Accounts; and it shall be incumbent on him and he is hereby authorised to perform all the duties of the said Comptroller, in addition to his duties as such Chairman as aforesaid; and the said letters-patent shall continue in force during good behaviour, subject, however, to the removal of such Comptroller from such office by her Majesty, her heirs and successors, on the address of the two Houses of Parliament, subject also to the abolition of the office, or to its regulation, either as to the salary or the duties thereof, at any future time by the authority of Parliament.

The office of Assistant-Comptroller may be granted to such other of the Commissioners for auditing the Public Accounts as the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury shall from time to time appoint for executing the same, any statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

2. The Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury may, if and when they shall think fit, abolish the office of Chief Clerk of the Exchequer, upon making adequate provision for the performance of the statutable duties thereof.

3. The person appointed in pursuance of this act to the said offices of Comptroller-General and Chairman of the Commissioners for auditing the Public Accounts shall, in respect of both such offices, be entitled to an annual salary of 2000*l.* and no more, such salary to be paid out of the Consolidated Fund.

CAP. XCIV.

An Act to amend the Carriers Act. [5th July, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. The terms "lace" in the 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 68, not to include machine-made lace.*
2. Commencement of act.
 3. Short title.

Be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. In the Carriers Act (that is to say, the act of the session held in the 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 68, "for the more effectual protection of mail contractors, stage coach proprietors, and other common carriers for hire, against the loss of or injury to parcels or packages delivered to them for conveyance or custody, the value and contents of which shall not be declared to them by the owners thereof"), the term "lace" shall, with respect to any parcel or package delivered after the commencement of this act, be construed as not including machine-made lace.

2. This act shall commence from and immediately after the 30th September, 1865.

3. This act may be cited as "The Carriers Act Amendment Act, 1865."

CAP. XCV.

An Act to amend the Law relating to the Duties on Sugar, and the Drawbacks on those Duties. [5th July, 1865.]

CAP. XCVI.

An Act to amend the Laws relating to the Inland Revenue.
[5th July, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Scale of stamp duties on conveyances, in lieu of scale in the 13 & 14 Vict. c. 97.*
2. Scale of stamp duties on appraisements, in lieu of scale in the 55 Geo. 3, c. 184.
 3. Scale of stamp duties on awards, in lieu of duties in the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 111.
 4. Stamp duty reduced on certain licenses granted by ecclesiastical authority.
 5. *Agreements for letting small tenements chargeable with 1*d.* stamp duty.*
 6. Duty on certificates taken out by conveyancers and special pleaders within the first three years of their practice reduced.
 7. Stamp duty on charterparties reduced. If stamp not cancelled, charterparties invalid. Terms on which certain charterparties may be stamped after being signed.
 8. Reduction of duty on certain time policies of sea insurance. Insurances on a voyage and also for time, how chargeable.
 9. Limitation of time for making application for allowance of stamp duty on policies of reinsurance repealed.
 10. "Policies." Stamp duties granted on certain policies of assurance, in lieu of former duties thereon.
 11. Accidental death policy not to be chargeable as life assurance. Not to repeal or alter the duties payable by the Railway Passengers Assurance Company.
 12. Sect. 8 of the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 111, and sect. 29 of the 24 & 25 Vict. c. 91, repealed.
 13. Provisions for preventing frauds in relation to the stamp duties imposed by this act on policies of insurance.
 14. Meaning of the terms "assurance" and "policy."
 15. Policies and instruments of insurance made abroad on behalf of insurers in the United Kingdom, when chargeable with stamp duty. Policies executed abroad to be brought to be stamped within two months after being received in the United Kingdom.

16. Receipts given for sums deposited on allotments of shares, or for calls on scrip or shares, not to be exempted from stamp duty.
17. Stamp duties on transfers of mortgages.
18. Hawkers' licenses may be renewed before expiration, and new licenses to stand in place of licenses surrendered.
19. First appointments of certain officers of customs not chargeable with stamp duty.
20. No declaration in order to a marriage without license.
21. Stamp duties on certificates of marriage, and of having received the Holy Sacrament, repealed.
22. Appeals against adjudications on stamp duties may be heard in Scotland and Ireland.
23. British spirits in warehouse may be transferred on production of delivery order.
24. Sect. 123 of the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 114, repealed.
25. Amending the law respecting appeals under Excise Acts on complaints before commissioners and justices.
26. Persons convicted of the illegal manufacture of goods liable to excise duty may be afterwards sued for collateral penalties under sect. 33 of the 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 53.
27. Liquids containing purified methylic alcohol to be deemed low wines for distilling purposes, and persons distilling the same to be deemed distillers.
28. Preparation of methylic alcohol for distilling spirits to be carried on only in a licensed distillery.
29. Rules and regulations under which the distilling of spirits from such low wines is to be carried on. Spirits to be chargeable with excise duty.
30. Stamp duty of 6d. only on certain contracts under Highway Acts.

Be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. For and in lieu of the scale of stamp duties chargeable under the title "conveyance" in the schedule of the act passed in the 13 & 14 Vict. c. 97, the following scale of stamp duties shall be chargeable; (that is to say),

Where the purchase or consideration money expressed in or upon the principal or only deed, instrument, or writing of conveyance shall not exceed 5l.	£0	0	6
And where the same shall exceed 5l. and not exceed 10l.	0	1	0
And where the same shall exceed 10l. and not exceed 15l.	0	1	6
And where the same shall exceed 15l. and not exceed 20l.	0	2	0
And where the same shall exceed 20l. and not exceed 25l.	0	2	6
And where the same shall exceed 25l. and not exceed 50l.	0	5	0
And where the same shall exceed 50l. and not exceed 75l.	0	7	6
And where the same shall exceed 75l. and not exceed 100l.	0	10	0
And where the same shall exceed 100l. and not exceed 125l.	0	12	6
And where the same shall exceed 125l. and not exceed 150l.	0	15	0
And where the same shall exceed 150l. and not exceed 175l.	0	17	6
And where the same shall exceed 175l. and not exceed 200l.	1	0	0
And where the same shall exceed 200l. and not exceed 225l.	1	2	6
And where the same shall exceed 225l. and not exceed 250l.	1	5	0
And where the same shall exceed 250l. and not exceed 275l.	1	7	6
And where the same shall exceed 275l. and not exceed 300l.	1	10	0
And where the purchase or consideration money shall exceed 300l., then for every 50l., and also for any fractional part of 50l.	0	5	0

2. And for and in lieu of the scale of stamp duties chargeable under the title "appraisement" in the schedule to the act passed in the 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, the following scale of stamp duties shall be chargeable; (that is to say),

Where the amount of the appraisement or valuation shall not exceed 5l.	£0	0	3
And where it shall exceed 5l. and not exceed 10l.	0	0	6
And where it shall exceed 10l. and not exceed 20l.	0	1	0
And where it shall exceed 20l. and not exceed 30l.	0	1	6
And where it shall exceed 30l. and not exceed 40l.	0	2	0
And where it shall exceed 40l. and not exceed 50l.	0	2	6
And where it shall exceed 50l. and not exceed 100l.	0	5	0
And where it shall exceed 100l. and not exceed 200l.	0	10	0
And where it shall exceed 200l. and not exceed 500l.	0	15	0
And where it shall exceed 500l.	1	0	0

3. And for and in lieu of the scale of stamp duties chargeable under the title "award" in the schedule to the act passed in the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 111, the following scale of stamp duties shall be chargeable; (that is to say),

For and upon every award in England or Ireland, and award or decret arbitral in Scotland, where the amount or value of the matter in dispute shall not exceed 5l.	£0	0	3
And where it shall exceed 5l. and not exceed 10l.	0	0	6
And where it shall exceed 10l. and not exceed 20l.	0	1	0
And where it shall exceed 20l. and not exceed 30l.	0	1	6
And where it shall exceed 30l. and not exceed 40l.	0	2	0
And where it shall exceed 40l. and not exceed 50l.	0	2	6
And where it shall exceed 50l. and not exceed 100l.	0	5	0
And where it shall exceed 100l. and not exceed 200l.	0	10	0
And where it shall exceed 200l. and not exceed 500l.	0	15	0
And where it shall exceed 500l. and not exceed 750l.	1	0	0
And where it shall exceed 750l. and not exceed 1000l.	1	5	0
And where it shall exceed 1000l., and also in all other cases not above provided for.	1	15	0

4. And in lieu of the stamp duty of 2l. now chargeable by law for or upon any license to be granted by any archbishop, bishop, chancellor, or other ordinary, or by any ecclesiastical court, in England or Ireland, or by any presbytery or other ecclesiastical power in Scotland, for any of the following purposes; (that is to say),

- (1). To hold the office of lecturer, reader, chaplain, church clerk, chapel clerk, parish clerk, or sexton:
- (2). For licensing a building for the performance of divine service within an ecclesiastical district formed under the provisions of the New Parishes Act:
- (3). For licensing any chapel for the solemnisation of marriages therein pursuant to the provisions of the 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 85:
- (4). For licensing or authorising any matter which regards a consecrated building or ground, or anything to be constructed, set up, taken down, or altered therein, or to be removed therefrom:

There shall be charged and paid for or upon any such license as aforesaid the stamp duty of 10s.: provided always, that nothing herein contained shall extend to charge with duty any license expressly exempted from stamp duty by any act of Parliament now in force.

5. Any agreement or memorandum for the letting of a dwelling-house or tenement, or part of a dwelling-house or tenement, for any period less than a year, at a rent payable weekly or monthly, and not exceeding the rate of 3s. 6d. per week, shall be chargeable with the stamp duty of 1d. only in lieu of any other stamp duty now chargeable on any such agreement or memorandum.

6. And whereas by an act passed in the 10 & 17 Vict. c. 63, certain stamp duties specified in the schedule to the same act annexed are imposed upon a certificate to be taken out yearly by every person, being a member of one of the four Inns of Court in England, and by every person in Ireland, who, in the character of conveyancer, special pleader, draftsman in equity, or otherwise, shall, for or in expectation of any fee, gain, or reward, draw or prepare any conveyance of or deed or instrument relating to any estate or property, real or personal, or any other deed or contract whatever, or any pleadings or proceedings in any court of law or equity: be it enacted, that any such certificate to be taken out by any such person as aforesaid within the period of three years after he shall first begin to practise in manner aforesaid shall be charged with only one half of the said duties respectively.

7. In lieu of the stamp duty of 5s. now chargeable by law on any charterparty, or any document chargeable with stamp duty as a charterparty, there shall be charged and paid thereon the stamp duty of 6d., which may be denoted either by an impressed stamp upon the charterparty or document, or by an adhesive stamp affixed thereon; provided, that if an adhesive stamp be used, the person who shall last sign the charterparty or document, or whose signature shall complete the same as a binding contract, shall at the time of his so signing the same cancel the said stamp by writing thereon his name or the name of his firm, together with the true date of his so writing the same; and in default of so cancelling the adhesive stamp in manner aforesaid, such charterparty or document shall not be good, valid, or available for any purpose whatever: provided always, that if any charterparty or other such document as aforesaid which shall be brought to the Commissioners of Inland Revenue to be stamped within the respective times hereinafter mentioned after the same shall bear date and shall have been first signed, the commissioners shall stamp the same with an impressed stamp on the following terms; (that is to say), if within seven days, on payment of the duty of 4s. 6d.; and if after that time, and within one calendar month after such date and first signing, then on payment of the duty and the sum of 10s.; but after the expiration of the last-mentioned period it shall not be lawful to stamp such charterparty or other document as aforesaid on any pretence whatever: provided always, that if any charterparty, whether printed or written, shall be first signed by any party thereto out of the United Kingdom, such charterparty being unstamped, it shall be lawful for any party thereto within ten days after it shall have been received in this kingdom, and before the same shall have been signed by any person here, to affix thereto an adhesive stamp by writing across the same his name and the date when he shall affix such stamp, and thereupon such charterparty shall be deemed to be duly stamped.

8. And whereas by an act passed in the 7 Vict. c. 21, certain stamp duties contained in the schedule to the same act were imposed on policies of sea insurance in relation to ships or vessels for or upon any voyage, and also for any certain term or period of time: be it enacted, that there shall be charged and paid, in lieu of the duties chargeable under the said last-mentioned act, for and in respect of any such insurance made for a certain term or period of time upon, or in relation to, any ship or vessel, the following reduced rates of duty for every 100l., and also for any fractional part of 100l., whereof the same shall consist; (that is to say),

Where any insurance shall be made upon or in relation to any ship or vessel lying or being in any dock, harbour, or river for any certain term or period of time not exceeding one calendar month

£0 0 6

And where any such insurance as aforesaid shall be made for any term, or period of time, exceeding one month, and not exceeding three months, and also where any insurance shall be made upon, or in relation to, any ship or vessel lying or being elsewhere than as aforesaid for any term or period of time not exceeding three months

0 1 0

And where any insurance shall be made upon or in relation to any ship or vessel wheresoever the same may be, for any term or period of time exceeding three months, and not exceeding six months £0 2 0

Exceeding six months 0 4 0

And any sea insurance made for or upon a voyage, and also for any certain term or period of time, or to extend to or cover any certain term or period of time beyond twenty-four hours after the ship shall have arrived at her destination, and been there moored at anchor, is hereby declared to be an insurance for a certain term or period of time, as well as an insurance made upon a voyage, and the policy to be chargeable with duty accordingly.

9. And whereas by an act passed in the last session of Parliament, c. 56, s. 1, the time for making application to the Commissioners of Inland Revenue for the allowance for the stamp duty impressed on a policy of reinsurance is limited to a period of three calendar months next after the termination of the risk: be it enacted, that so much of the said section as limits the time for making such application as aforesaid shall be and the same is hereby repealed.

10. And whereas by the said act passed in the 55 Geo. 3 [c. 184], certain stamp duties contained in the schedule to the same act were imposed, under the head or title of "policy," on various descriptions of insurance commonly known by the several names of life insurance, fire insurance, and sea insurance respectively, specifically described and charged with duty as in the said schedule is mentioned; and, lastly, certain duties were imposed upon any policy of insurance whereby any other lawful insurance whatsoever than as aforesaid should be made upon any property or interest whatever from loss or damage of any kind: and whereas by the said act passed in the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 111, certain other stamp duties, described under the head or title of "policy" in the schedule to the last-mentioned act, were also granted and imposed: be it enacted, that in lieu of the duties so granted and imposed by the said two last-recited acts respectively as last aforesaid, so far as they relate to any insurance on which duties are imposed by this act, there shall be charged and paid for and upon any policy of assurance, whereby any lawful insurance not chargeable with stamp duty as life insurance, fire insurance, or sea insurance, shall be made upon any property or interest whatever from loss or damage of any kind, or whereby any sum of money shall be assured or agreed to be paid only upon the death of any person from accident or violence, or otherwise than from a natural cause, or as compensation for a personal injury, or whereby any sum of money shall be assured or agreed to be paid as for loss or damage, or compensation for, or indemnity against, loss or damage arising from, or consequent upon the happening of, any accident, the following duties; (that is to say),

If the premium or consideration for such insurance shall not exceed 2s. 6d. £0 0 1

And if the same shall exceed 2s. 6d. and shall not exceed 5s. 0 0 3

And if the same shall exceed 5s., then for every 5s., and also for any fractional part of 5s. of such premium or consideration 0 0 3

And where any such insurance as aforesaid shall be made on such terms or conditions that the rates of duty aforesaid cannot be applied to the same, or the policy charged therewith, then, in lieu of the foregoing rates of duty, there shall be charged and paid upon such policy in respect of the amount of the sum insured the same rate of stamp duty as is now chargeable by law on a policy of life assurance.

11. Provided always, that no policy of assurance for payment of any sum of money upon the death of any person only from accident or violence, or otherwise than from a natural cause, shall be deemed to be a policy of life assurance chargeable otherwise than under this act; and provided also, that nothing herein contained shall extend to repeal or alter the duty chargeable under an act passed in the 12 & 13 Vict., intitled "An Act to confer certain Powers on the Railway Passengers Assurance Company" on the sums received by the said company in respect of the insurance tickets issued by them, or to impose any other duty upon or in respect of such tickets.

12. Sect. 8 of the said act of the 23 & 24 Vict. [c. 111], and sect. 29 of an act passed in the 24 & 25 Vict. c. 91, shall be and the same are hereby repealed, save and except as to any arrears of duty or any penalty incurred before the passing of this act.

13. And for preventing frauds in respect of the stamp duties by this act imposed on policies of insurance, the provisions and penalties contained in sect. 6 of the act passed in the 16 & 17 Vict. c. 59, shall be observed, applied, and put in force in relation to policies of insurance of any description (other than sea insurance) whereon duties are imposed by this act; and further, if any person shall make, sign, or deliver out any policy not duly stamped for denoting the duty by this act charged thereon, he shall forfeit the sum of 20*l.*; and where any insurance shall be made by or for any society or company, the person who shall be a managing director or secretary or other principal officer thereof at the time of committing any offence or unlawful act, neglect, or default for which any penalty is by this or any other act imposed shall be held to be a person committing such offence, or doing or suffering such unlawful act, neglect, or default, and shall, as well as the said society or company, be subject and liable to any and every such penalty as aforesaid.

14. The term "assurance" used in this act shall mean and include insurance, and the term "policy" shall mean and include any agreement or other instrument, by whatever name the same shall be called, whereby any such assurance as aforesaid shall be made or agreed to be made.

15. The stamp duties chargeable under this or any other act for the time being in force upon or in respect of any policy of insurance of any description shall extend to and be deemed to be payable upon and in respect of any policy or other instrument of insurance which shall be made or signed out of the United Kingdom by or on behalf of any person carrying on the business of insurance within the United Kingdom, or by which, according to any stipulation, agreement, or understanding, expressed or implied, any loss or damage or by which, according to any stipulation, agreement, or understanding, expressed or implied, any loss or damage or any sum of money shall be payable or recoverable in the United Kingdom upon the happening of any contingency whatever; and no such policy or other instrument of insurance shall be valid or available in the United Kingdom for any purpose whatever, unless the same shall be duly stamped for denoting the duties chargeable thereon as aforesaid: provided always, that if such policy or instrument shall be brought to the Commissioners of Inland Revenue for the purpose of being stamped as aforesaid within two calendar months next after the same shall have been received in the United Kingdom, and upon proof of that fact to the satisfaction of the said commissioners, they shall cause such policy or instrument to be duly stamped on payment of the duties chargeable thereon; but after the expiration of the said period it shall not be lawful for the commissioners to permit the said policy or instrument to be stamped on any pretence whatever.

16. And whereas by the laws in force receipts given for money deposited in any bank, or in the hands of any banker to be accounted for, are exempted from stamp duty, except receipts or acknowledgments for sums paid or deposited for or upon letters of allotment of shares, or in respect of calls upon scrip or shares, or of in any joint stock or other company, or proposed or intended company: be it enacted, that such exception shall be deemed to apply wheresoever any such company may be, and shall also extend to receipts and acknowledgments for sums paid or deposited for or in respect of allotments of shares, and calls upon scrip or shares, or of in any loan or proposed or intended loan raised or proposed to be raised by or on behalf of any foreign or colonial government, state, corporation, or company; all which said receipts and acknowledgments, so excepted as aforesaid, by whomsoever given, shall be chargeable with the duty imposed on receipts.

17. And whereas by the said act passed in the 13 & 14 Vict. c. 97, certain stamp duties specified in the schedule to the same act were granted and imposed upon any transfer or assignment, disposition or assignation, of any mortgage or wadset, or of any such other security as in the said schedule is described, or of the benefit thereof, or of the money or stock thereby secured: be it enacted, that in lieu of the said last-mentioned duties there shall be charged and paid for and upon every such transfer or assignment, disposition or assignation, as aforesaid, the following stamp duties; (that is to say),

For every 100*l.* or any fractional part of 100*l.* of the amount or value of the principal money or stock already secured by such mortgage, wadset, or other such security as aforesaid, thereby transferred, or assigned, or disposed, the duty of 6*d.*:

And if any further sum of money or stock shall be added to the principal money or stock already secured as aforesaid, there shall be charged and paid also the same duty as on a mortgage or wadset for the amount or value of such further money or stock.

18. Any hawker, pedlar, or petty chapman may apply for a renewed license under the provisions of the statute in that behalf at any time before the expiration of his current license; and on production and surrender of his current license, and payment of the duty chargeable on a new license, it shall be lawful for the officer to grant to him a renewed license, and such officer shall insert therein the days of the commencement and termination of the period for which the same shall be granted, and the day of granting the same, and shall indorse thereon a memorandum of the date and place of surrender of the current license; and such renewed license, so indorsed, shall stand in the place of and be of the same force and effect as the surrendered license during the unexpired term thereof, as well as for the whole of the term for which the renewed license shall have been granted.

19. No stamp duty shall be chargeable upon the first grant or appointment of any person to the office or employment of outdoor officer, boatman, waterman, or watchman in the service of the customs, or upon any commission or deputation granted to him in pursuance of such appointment.

20. No declaration required to be made pursuant to any act relating to marriages in order to a marriage without license shall be chargeable with any stamp duty.

21. And whereas under the title "certificate" in the schedule to the act passed in the 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, a stamp duty of 5*s.* is imposed on a certificate of marriage, and the like duty on a certificate of any person's having received the Holy Sacrament: be it enacted, that the said respective stamp duties last mentioned shall be and the same are hereby repealed.

22. And whereas by the statutes in that behalf her Majesty's Court of Exchequer at Westminster is required to hear appeals against adjudications of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue relating to the stamp duty on deeds as in the said statutes is mentioned: be it enacted, that in cases where deeds shall be presented for the opinion of the said commissioners at their offices in Edinburgh and Dublin respectively, appeals against their adjudications may be heard and determined by her Majesty's Court of Exchequer in Scotland and Ireland respectively, in the same manner and subject in all respects to the like provisions as in the said statutes are respectively enacted with regard to appeals to her Majesty's Court of Exchequer at Westminster.

23. Any British spirits deposited in a general warehouse, in the name of a distiller or dealer in spirits, may be transferred in the book kept by the officer of excise in charge of such warehouse into the name of a purchaser, upon his producing to the officer an order in writing from such distiller or dealer, countersigned by the proprietor of the warehouse or his known servant, for the delivery of the spirits to such purchaser; and all spirits so transferred shall be discharged from all claim in respect of any duties, penalties, or forfeitures to which the distiller or dealer from whom such transfer has been made may be liable, but no spirits shall be delivered out of warehouse for home consumption until payment shall be made of the full duties of excise chargeable thereon.

24. Sect. 123 of the act passed in the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 114, is hereby repealed.

25. In the case of any complaint brought before the Commissioners of Inland Revenue or justices of the peace respectively by virtue of the provisions contained in the 27th section of the act passed in the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 51, in respect of any matter or thing which may be the subject of complaint under the said section, if the complainant, or the solicitor, collector, or supervisor to whom notice of such complaint is by law required to be given in such case, shall feel aggrieved by the judgment and determination of the said commissioners or justices respectively, it shall be lawful for either party aggrieved thereby to appeal from such judgment and determination in like manner, and upon giving such notices, and upon such terms, conditions, and regulations (so far as the same shall be applicable), as are prescribed in cases of appeals by the several acts passed respectively in the 7 & 8

Geo. 4, c. 58, the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 51, and the 4 Vict. c. 20; provided that no such appeal shall be allowed when the sum in dispute shall not exceed 50*l*.

93. And whereas, by an act passed in the 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 53, s. 83, any person discovered, as therein mentioned, aiding or assisting or concerned in the private manufacturing of goods or commodities subject to any duty of excise is liable to the penalty of 50*l*., over and above other penalties mentioned or referred to in the same section of the said act: and whereas doubts are entertained whether a person who has been convicted in the said penalty of 50*l*. can afterwards be lawfully prosecuted for, and convicted in, any such other penalties as aforesaid: be it declared and enacted, that it shall be lawful to proceed against any person for the recovery of all or any of such last-mentioned penalties, notwithstanding he may have been previously convicted in the said penalty of 50*l*.

27. And whereas it is discovered that potable spirits may be obtained from methylic alcohol, by distilling the same after certain processes of purification, by which it is freed from the unpalatable flavours which pertain to it in its crude state, and it is expedient to subject such spirits to the duty of excise chargeable on spirits: be it enacted, that any liquid containing, or having mixed therewith, methylic alcohol which shall have been purified or prepared for distillation by means of filtration, or any other process which may free it, or be intended to free it, wholly or partially from any flavour or odour which might otherwise pertain to it, shall be deemed to be low wines for the purpose of distillation, within the meaning of the laws of excise relating to the distilling of spirits; and every person making, preparing, or having in his possession any such low wines, and having also a still, shall be deemed to be a distiller liable to the several duties, penalties, and forfeitures imposed by law on distillers of spirits.

28. Methylic alcohol which shall have undergone any such process of filtration or purification as aforesaid shall be deemed to have been so prepared for the purpose of distilling spirits therefrom, and no person other than a person duly licensed as a distiller of spirits shall so prepare or purify any methylic alcohol, nor shall any such process as aforesaid be commenced or carried on elsewhere than on premises duly licensed as a distillery, and of which, together with the stills, vessels, and utensils to be used therein, due entry shall have been made with the officers of excise, under pain of such penalties and forfeitures and liability to seizure for any breach of this enactment as would or might be incurred by any act done in contravention of the 3rd section of the act passed in the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 112.

29. The distilling of spirits from any such low wines as aforesaid shall be carried on under and subject to the like rules, regulations, and conditions as are prescribed by the laws in force in relation to the distilling of spirits, and the spirits produced by such distillation shall be deemed to be British spirits, chargeable with the duties of excise, and shall be subject to all the laws, provisions, and regulations relating to British spirits: provided always, that where it shall be made to appear to the Commissioners of Inland Revenue that any of such rules, regulations, or conditions are inapplicable to the making, preparing, or distilling of such low wines as aforesaid, or impose too great a restriction on such distillation, it shall be lawful for the said commissioners to relax or dispense with any of such rules, regulations, or conditions, and to frame others in lieu thereof for the purpose of regulating and facilitating the business of the said distillation, and otherwise in relation thereto, as they shall see fit in that behalf.

30. No contract to be made or entered into pursuant to the Highway Acts for or relating to the making, maintaining, or repairing of highways shall be chargeable with any higher stamp duty than 6*d*.

CAP. XCVII.

An Act to indemnify such Persons in the United Kingdom as have omitted to qualify themselves for Offices and Employments, and to extend the Time limited for those Purposes respectively. [5th July, 1865.]

CAP. XCVIII.

An Act to allow British Compounded Spirits to be warehoused upon Drawback. [5th July, 1865.]

CAP. XCIX.

An Act to confer on the County Courts a limited Jurisdiction in Equity. [5th July, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Jurisdiction in equity to be exercised in county courts in certain suits and matters.

2. In matters under this act, judge and officers of the county courts to have the powers and authorities of a judge and officers of the Court of Chancery.

3. Power to a Vice-Chancellor to order transfer of suits from county court to Court of Chancery.

4. City Small Debts Court to have same jurisdiction in all matters as a metropolitan county court.

5. Power to judge of a county court to order any legacy, &c. to which an infant or person beyond the seas may be entitled to be paid into the Bank of England, in accordance with the provisions of sect. 32 of the 36 Geo. 3, c. 52.

6. Act not to impair jurisdiction of the Stannaries Court.

7. Provisions of County Court Acts as to juries, suitors, and witnesses extended to suitors and witnesses under this act.

8. Power to enforce judgments of county courts in equity.

9. Where amount of subject matter of suit exceeds limit of the jurisdiction of county court, suit may be remitted to Court of Chancery, &c.

10. In what courts proceedings shall be taken.

11. As to transfer of suit from one county court to another.

12. Remuneration of registrars and high bailiffs in matters of equity.

13. Certain fees to be taken, and to be paid over to the Consolidated Fund, and the salaries of the judges to be increased by 500*l*. a year.

14. Judge not obliged to hold courts in the month of September.

15. As to registry of judgments in London.

16. Power to frame rules and orders under the 19 & 20 Vict. c. 108.

17. Scale of costs to be framed by the judges.

18. Parties aggrieved may appeal.

19. Appeal to be made either to the High Court of Chancery or a Vice-Chancellor.

20. Registrar of the Bloomsbury County Court of Middlesex not being an attorney or solicitor, to be entitled to retire from his office with compensation.

21. This act and the 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95, and any act amending or altering the same, to be construed together.

22. Salary of T. Rodgers, Esq., as joint registrar of the County Court of Yorkshire, holden at Sheffield, to be 700*l*. a year.

23. Commencement of act.

Whereas it is desirable to confer on the county courts jurisdiction in equity: be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. The county courts held by virtue of an act passed in the 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95, shall have and exercise all the power and authority of the High Court of Chancery in the suits or matters hereinafter mentioned; that is to say,

(1) In all suits by creditors, legatees (whether specific, pecuniary, or residuary), devisees (whether in trust or otherwise), heirs-at-law, or next of kin, in which the personal or real or personal and real estate against or for an account or administration of which the demand may be made shall not exceed in amount or value the sum of 500*l*.:—

(2) In all suits for the execution of trusts in which the trust estate or fund shall not exceed in amount or value the sum of 500*l*.:—

(3) In all suits for foreclosure or redemption, or for enforcing any charge or lien, where the mortgage, charge, or lien shall not exceed in amount the sum of 500*l*.:—

(4) In all suits for specific performance, or for the delivering up or cancelling any agreement for the sale or purchase of any property where the purchase money shall not exceed the sum of 500*l*.:—

(5) In all proceedings under the Trustees Relief Acts, or under the Trustee Acts, or under any of such acts, in which the trust estate or fund to which the proceeding relates shall not exceed in amount or value the sum of 500*l.* :

- (6). In all proceedings relating to the maintenance or advancement of infants in which the property of the infant shall not exceed in amount or value the sum of 500*l.* :
- (7). In all suits for the dissolution or winding up of any partnership in which the whole property, stock, and credits of such partnership shall not exceed in amount or value the sum of 500*l.* :
- (8). In all proceedings for orders in the nature of injunctions, where the same are requisite for granting relief in any matter in which jurisdiction is given by this act to the county court, or for stay of proceedings at law to recover any debt provable under a decree for the administration of an estate made by the court to which the application for the order to stay proceedings is made.

2. In all such suits or matters the judge of a county court shall, in addition to the powers and authorities now possessed by him, have all the powers and authorities, for the purposes of this act, of a judge of the High Court of Chancery; and the treasurer, registrar, and high bailiff shall, in all matters in which the county court has jurisdiction under this act, discharge any duties which an officer of the Court of Chancery can discharge, either under the order of a judge of such court or the practice thereof, and all officers of the county courts shall in discharging such duties conform to any rules or orders to be framed as hereinafter provided.

3. Any one of the Vice-Chancellors, on the application at chambers of any party to any suit or matter pending under this act, shall have power, then and there, or, if he shall think fit, after hearing a summons served upon the other party or parties, to transfer the same to the Court of Chancery, upon such terms, if any, as to security for costs or otherwise, as he may think fit.

4. The judge and officers of the court held under the provisions of the London (City) Small Debts Extension Act, 1852, hereinafter called the "City Court," shall respectively have and exercise the like jurisdiction, powers, and authorities in all respects, except the power of appointing officers, as are for the time being possessed and exercised by the judge and officers respectively of a metropolitan county court; and the chief clerk and the chief bailiff of the City Court shall henceforth be respectively styled the Registrar and High Bailiff thereof, the word "registrar" being interpreted to include the assistant clerks, and the words "high bailiff" the bailiffs of the City Court; and the fees which may be from time to time taken in a county court in any proceeding in which jurisdiction is hereby given to the judge and officers of the City Court shall be taken in the City Court, and shall be paid into the general fund thereof, and the judge and officers of the City Court shall, out of the said general fund, be respectively paid additional salaries of such amount as the mayor, aldermen, and commons of the city of London, in common council assembled, from time to time shall think fit to direct; and such judge and officers of the City Court shall conform to the rules and orders made under the authority of this act.

5. Any legacy or sum of money to which any person who is an infant or absent beyond seas may be found or declared entitled by any county court in any suit or matter under this act may be ordered by the court to be paid to the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery, in accordance with the provisions of sect. 32 of an act passed in the session of Parliament held in the 36 Geo. 3, c. 52; and the person ordered to pay the same shall, within such time as the court shall direct, produce to the registrar of the court the certificate of the Accountant-General of the payment of such money; and if default be made in such payment the judge may direct a warrant of execution to issue to the high bailiff of the court, who by such warrant shall be empowered to levy or cause to be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of such person a sum of money equal in amount to the sum which he was ordered to pay to the said Accountant-General and to the costs incurred by reason of such default, and the sum so levied shall be paid to and be receivable by the said Accountant-General under the direction of the court; and all amounts so paid or transferred into the Court of Chancery, with any dividends thereon, shall be paid or transferred to the person or persons entitled thereto, or otherwise applied for his or their benefit, on application by summons to one of the Vice-Chancellors while sitting at chambers.

6. Nothing in this act contained shall be construed to impair the jurisdiction of the Stannaries Court, or to give authority to any county court judge to entertain jurisdiction in any case to which the equitable jurisdiction of the said court at present extends.

7. Whenever it is required that a jury should be summoned for the trial of any matter arising out of the jurisdiction given to the county courts by this act, it shall be summoned from the list of jurors in the possession of the registrar of the county court in which the suit or matter has been brought; and all the enactments relating to the summoning, impanelling, and swearing of a jury in a county court, and to the number of the jury and the unanimity of their verdict, shall apply to every jury summoned under this act; and the duties and obligations of and upon all jurors, suitors, and witnesses, and their liability to penalty and punishment, shall, in any proceeding under this act, be the same as those created, authorised, and imposed by the several statutes now in force relating to county courts.

8. For the due execution of any judgment, decree, or order made under the authority of this act, or of the rules and orders to be framed as hereinafter provided, the court shall have power to order, and the registrar upon such order shall have authority to seal and issue, and the high bailiff to execute, any writ or warrant of possession, writ or warrant of execution, or other process of execution for carrying into effect any judgment, decree, or order of the said court; and such writs, warrants, and processes shall be in the form and executed at the time and in the manner to be set forth in the rules and orders to be framed as hereinafter provided.

9. If during the progress of any suit or matter it shall be made to appear to the court that the subject-matter exceeds the limit in point of amount to which the jurisdiction of the county courts is hereby limited, it shall not affect the validity of any order or decree already made, but it shall be the duty of the court to direct the said suit or matter to be transferred to the Court of Chancery, and thereupon the said suit or matter shall proceed in such one of the Vice-Chancellor's Courts as the Lord Chancellor may by general order direct; and such Vice-Chancellor shall have power to regulate the whole of the procedure in the said suit or matter when so transferred: provided always, that it shall be lawful for any party to apply to such Vice-Chancellor at chambers for an order authorising and directing the suit or matter to be carried on and prosecuted in the county court, notwithstanding such excess in the amount of the limit to which jurisdiction in the matter is hereby given to the county courts; and the Vice-Chancellor, if he shall deem it right to summon the other parties, or any of them, to appear before him for that purpose, after hearing such parties, or on default of the appearance of all or any of them, shall have full power to make such order.

10. With respect to the court in which proceedings in equity shall be taken—

- (1). Proceedings under this act which relate to the recovery or sale of any mortgage, charge, or lien on lands, tenements, or hereditaments shall be taken in that county court within the district of which the lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or any part thereof, are situate:
- (2). Proceedings under the Trustee Acts, 1850 and 1852, shall be taken in the county court within the district of which the persons making the application, or any of them, reside or reside:
- (3). Proceedings for the administration of the assets of a deceased person shall be taken in the county court within the district of which the deceased person had his last place of abode in England, or in which the executors or administrators, or any one of them, shall have their or his place of abode:
- (4). Proceedings in partnership cases shall be taken in the county court within the district of which the partnership business was or is carried on:
- (5). Proceedings for the specific performance, or the delivery up or cancelling of agreements, shall be taken in the county court within the district of which the defendants, or any one of them, reside or resides, or carry on or carries on business :

- (6). Proceedings in any suit or other matter under this act, which are not otherwise provided for, shall be taken or instituted in the county court within the district of which the defendants, or any or either of them, shall reside or carry on business.

11. If during the progress of a suit or matter it shall be made to appear to the court that the same could be more conveniently prosecuted in some other county court, it shall be competent for the court to transfer the same to such other county court, and thereupon the suit or matter shall proceed in such other county court.

12. The registrars and high bailiffs of the county courts shall be remunerated for the duties to be performed by them under the jurisdiction in equity given to the courts by this act, by receiving for their own use such fees as may be from time to time authorised to be taken by any orders to be made by the Commissioners of the Treasury, with the consent of the Lord Chancellor; and the Commissioners of the Treasury are hereby authorised and empowered, with such consent as aforesaid, from time to time to make such orders.

13. In addition to the fees to be authorised to be taken by order of the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury as aforesaid, there shall be paid by the suitors the several fees which are specified and set forth in the schedule to this act, or such further or other fees as the said commissioners with the consent of the Lord Chancellor, shall from time to time by order direct, which fees shall be received by the registrar of the court, and accounted for and paid over by him to the treasurer of the court, who shall, at such times as the said commissioners shall direct, pay such fees into the Bank of England, to the credit of the Paymaster-General, to be by him paid over to the credit of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the salaries paid out of such fund to the judges of the county courts shall be increased by 300*l.* a year: provided always, that the salary of the successor to any judge who under this act shall receive a larger salary in the whole than 1500*l.* shall not exceed 1500*l.*: provided also, that if any judge heretofore appointed shall resign his office by reason of any permanent infirmity before he shall have received or become entitled to receive the increased amount of salary payable to him under this act for the full period of five years, any annuity which the Lord Chancellor may recommend to be paid to him upon such retirement shall be calculated with reference to the average amount of salary received or receivable by him for the five years next preceding the date of such retirement, and not with reference to the yearly salary which he shall be entitled to as a judge of a county court at the time of presenting his petition for the grant of an annuity.

14. No judge of any county court shall be obliged to hold any courts during the month of September in any year, unless he shall be ordered by the Lord Chancellor so to do; and if any judge shall be desirous of holding courts in the said month of September, and of being relieved from the obligation to do so at some other period of the year, it shall be lawful for such judge, with the sanction of the Lord Chancellor, to close the courts upon his circuit for any period or periods of time of which the Lord Chancellor shall approve, not exceeding in the whole four weeks in any one year: provided always, that every county court shall always be open for the receipt and payment out of money due under any order of the court, pursuant to the rules and orders in force for the time being, or for any proceeding in bankruptcy before the registrar.

15. Such of the judgments and decrees as may be directed by any rule or order shall be registered with the registrar of county court judgments in London, in such manner as may be therein directed.

16. The county court judges appointed or to be appointed by the Lord Chancellor from time to time to frame rules and orders for regulating the practice of the courts, and forms of proceeding therein, under the 32nd section of an act passed in the 19 & 20 Vict. c. 108, shall frame the rules and orders for regulating the practice of the county courts under this act, and forms of proceedings therein, and from time to time amend such rules, orders, and forms; and such rules, orders, and forms, or amended rules, orders, and forms, certified under the hands of such judges, or of any three or more of them, shall be submitted to the Lord Chancellor, who may allow or disallow or alter the same, and so from time to time; and the rules, orders, and forms, or amended rules, orders, and forms, so allowed or altered, shall, from a day to be named by the Lord Chancellor, be in force in every county court.

17. The county court judges mentioned in the last section shall be empowered to frame a scale of costs and charges to be paid to counsel and attorneys with respect to all proceedings which are herein authorised to be taken, and from time to time to amend such scale; and such scale or amended scale, certified under the hands of such judges, or any three or more of them, shall be submitted to the Lord Chancellor, who from time to time may allow or disallow or alter the same; and the scale or amended scale so allowed or altered shall, from a day to be named by the Lord Chancellor, be in force in every county court.

18. If any party in a suit or matter under this act shall be dissatisfied with the determination or direction of a judge of a county court on any matter of law or equity, or on the admission or rejection of any evidence, such party may appeal from the same to the Vice-Chancellor authorised as aforesaid, provided that such party shall, within thirty days after such determination or direction, give notice of such appeal to the other party or his attorney, and also deposit with the registrar of the county court the sum of 10*l.* as security for the costs of the appeal; and the said court of appeal may make such final or other decree or order as it shall think fit, and may also make such order with respect to the costs of the said appeal as such court may think proper; and such orders shall be final: provided that nothing herein contained shall authorise any party to appeal against any decision of a county court, given upon any question as to the value of any real or personal property, for the purpose of determining the question of the jurisdiction of the court under this act, nor to appeal against the decision of a county court on the ground that the proceedings might or should have been taken in any other county court.

19. In any case which may be the subject of an appeal under this act in causes arising within the county palatine of Lancaster, the appeal may be made either to the High Court of Chancery or a Vice-Chancellor thereof, or to the Court of Chancery of the county palatine of Lancaster or the Vice-Chancellor thereof; and that in case of an appeal to the Court of Chancery for the said county palatine or the Vice-Chancellor thereof, the order on such appeal shall have the same effect as if it had been made by a Vice-Chancellor of the High Court of Chancery; but no appeal shall be made to the Court of Chancery of the said county palatine or the Vice-Chancellor thereof unless the consent thereto in writing of the respondent or respondents on such appeal, or of his or their solicitor or solicitors, shall be first obtained.

20. The present registrar of the Bloomsbury County Court of Middlesex, not being an attorney or solicitor, but holding his office by virtue of sect. 12 of the act passed in the 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95, shall be entitled on the passing of this act to claim and receive compensation for the loss of such office in the same manner as is provided by sect. 38 of the said act; and the amount of compensation to be awarded shall be paid out of moneys that may be voted by Parliament for that purpose.

21. This act and the act passed in the 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95, and any act amending or altering the same, shall be read and construed as one act, as if the several provisions contained in the said acts referred to, not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, were repeated and re-enacted in this act.

22. The salary of Thomas Rodgers, Esq., who, in respect of his abolished office of deputy steward of the court baron of the manor of Ecclesall, in the county of York, became, under the provisions of sect. 11 of the 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95, joint registrar of the county court of Yorkshire, holden at Sheffield, shall, in consideration of the great increase of labour and responsibility of the said last-mentioned office, be, from the passing of this act, 700*l.* a year, notwithstanding the restriction contained in sect. 82 of the 19 & 20 Vict. c. 108; and upon the death, removal, or resignation of either of the persons now in possession of the office of registrar of the said county court, no other person shall be appointed to such office of registrar, jointly or otherwise, until both the persons holding such office on the 1st June, 1865, shall have died, been removed, or have resigned.

23. The provisions of this act shall come into operation on the 1st October, 1865, except the provisions relating to framing a scale of costs, and making rules and orders of practice and forms of proceeding, and except the provision which relieves the judges from the obligation of holding courts during the month of September without the order of the Lord Chancellor, which provisions shall come into operation on the passing of this act.

SCHEDULE.

On the commencement of every suit or matter ..	£0	10	0
On setting down any matter for hearing	1	0
On application for final decree or decretal order .	1	0	0

CAP. C.

An Act to transfer from the Admiralty to the Board of Trade Powers and Duties relative to certain Harbours.

[5th July, 1865.]

CAP. CI.

An Act for authorising Transferable Debentures to be charged upon Land in Ireland. [5th July, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Extent of Act.

2. Short title.

3. Interpretation of terms.

4. Court may certify land to be chargeable with debentures.

5. Owner of land may issue debentures with sanction of court.

6. Form and effect of debenture.

7. Transfer of debentures.

8. Coupons.

9. Debentures on unincumbered land.

10. Debentures on incumbered land.

11. Priority of debentures.

12. Debentures mutilated or injured.

13. Debentures destroyed or lost.

14. Limitation of principal and interest.

15. Debentures, personal or real estate.

16. Debenture to be a charge by way of mortgage.

17. Provision as to the payment of money into court.

18. Trusts affecting debentures.

19. When interest due, application may be made for sale.

20. Option to be paid out of sale.

21. Indemnity to trustees as to option.

22. When debenture due, application may be made for sale.

23. On consent, new debentures may be issued.

24. Indemnity to trustees as to consent.

25. Owner of overdue debenture refusing new one may be paid off by owner of land.

26. If owner of land under disability, court may appoint guardian.

27. Court may dismiss proceedings on payment.

28. Debenture holder to have no claim on court or public funds.

29. Stamp duties.

30. Court may frame forms and rules.

31. General powers.

Whereas it is expedient to authorise the creation of transferable debentures to be charged upon land in Ireland: be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. This act shall apply to Ireland only.

2. In any act of Parliament, document, or proceeding, this act shall be sufficiently designated as "The Land Debentures (Ireland) Act, 1865."

3. In the construction of this act, and of this section thereof, the following words and expressions shall have the meanings hereby assigned to them respectively, unless there be something in the subject or context requiring a different construction:—

The word "court" means the Landed Estates Court of Ireland:

The word "certificate" means a certificate declaring land chargeable with debentures under this act:

The word "debenture" means a debenture charged upon land under this act:

The word "person" extends to and includes a body politic or corporate, whether aggregate or sole, and any company as well as a private individual, and includes also the assignees of any bankrupt or insolvent:

The word "possession" includes the receipt of rents and profits:

The word "land" includes and extends to lands, tenements, and hereditaments held in fee-simple or fee-farm, also impropriate rentcharges in lieu of tithe, and other perpetual rentcharges or annuities and fee-farm rents issuing out of land in Ireland, whether subject or not subject to any incumbrance:

The words "recorded land" mean any land the title to which shall be recorded under the Record of Title Act (Ireland), 1865:

The word "owner," as applied to land or recorded land, means the person or persons entitled for his or their own benefit, at law or in equity, in possession, to a fee-simple, fee-farm, or perpetual interest in any land or recorded land as above defined:

The word "incumbrance" means any legal or equitable charge by mortgage, lien, judgment, decree, rule, or order, Crown bond, recognisance, legacy, portion, trust, or otherwise, whereby any sum of money is secured upon or made payable out of any land, and includes also any easement, and any rentcharge, annuity, or other annual or periodical charge or payment, except only quit and Crown rents, rentcharges in lieu of tithe, and charges imposed by any act for the drainage or improvement of land:

And the word "incumbrancer" means any person entitled to an incumbrance, or to require the payment, discharge, or benefit thereof.

4. It shall be lawful for the owner of any recorded land to apply to the court to have such land declared chargeable with debentures under this act. Thereupon the court shall investigate the title to the land, and its existing state and circumstances. If upon such investigation it appear proper to grant the application, as to the whole or any part of the land, the court shall certify to that effect, and shall cause an entry of such certificate to be made in its books, in such form as it may deem fit.

5. After the entry of such certificate it shall be lawful for the owner of the land described therein, at any time and from time to time, to issue debentures under this act pursuant to such certificate, on satisfying the court that no just rights of other parties which have accrued since the date of the certificate will be injuriously affected thereby. The sanction of the court to the issue of any debenture shall be signified in such manner as the court may by any general order authorise for that purpose.

6. A debenture, when issued under the sanction of the court, shall be well charged upon the land described in the certificate under which it is issued.

All debentures shall be in such form as the court may approve of; for such sums of money, bearing interest at such rate or rates, or not bearing interest, and payable or redeemable at such time or times, not being less than six months, nor more than ten years, from the date of the certificate, as to the court may seem fit.

7. Before sanctioning the issue of any debenture, the court shall cause an entry thereof to be made in its books. After the issue of any debenture under the sanction of the court, the owner of the land charged therewith may transfer such debenture, by means of a memorandum to that effect entered in the books of the court. Every transferee of a debenture may also transfer it by means of a memorandum in the books of the court. The transfer shall be in such form as the court may approve of. It shall vest in the person to whom it is made the ownership of the debenture, and all rights of action or suit which the transferor had at the time of such transfer. Every debenture shall be for a sum of not less than 50*l.*, and shall specify the place where the principal and interest shall be payable.

8. A debenture may have annexed to it coupons, entitling the bearer to the interest payable in respect thereof. The payment to the bearer of any coupon of the amount expressed therein shall be a full discharge to the person paying the same of all liability in respect of the coupon and the interest represented thereby.

9. In the case of unincumbered land, no debenture shall be charged for such a principal sum as, either solely or together with the amount of the principal sum or sums charged on the same land by virtue of any other debenture or debentures, shall be more than ten times the sum which may appear to the court to be the yearly value of such land, not exceeding, in any case, the value fixed by the public valuation of lands in Ireland, having regard, amongst other matters, to any lease then affecting the same; nor shall there be reserved by any debenture upon such unincumbered land, interest of such annual amount as, either solely or together with the annual interest reserved and charged by any other debenture or debentures upon the same land, shall exceed one-half of what may appear to the court to be its yearly value as aforesaid.

10. If the charge proposed to be created by debenture is to be puisne or subject to any other incumbrance the court shall have regard thereto, and shall estimate such other incumbrance at its full value; and shall so limit the debentures which it may think fit to issue, that their amount shall be as amply secured as debentures would be if charged on unincumbered land to an amount not exceeding ten times the yearly value thereof.

11. Debentures upon any land shall be puisne and subject to the several incumbrances specified or referred to in the certificate; also to quit or crown rents, to rentcharges in lieu of tithes, and to charges imposed by any act heretofore made for the drainage or improvement of land. With those exceptions, all debentures charged upon any land shall be the first incumbrances thereon. Where there shall be more than one debenture charged on the same land, there shall be no priority as between the several debentures, notwithstanding any priority in the date or number thereof.

12. In case any debenture shall be given up to the court in a mutilated or injured state, it shall be lawful for the court to cancel such debenture, and to sanction the issue in its place of a new debenture, on such terms and the payment of such fees as the court may consider just.

13. In case it shall be proved to the satisfaction of the court that any debenture was destroyed or lost, it shall be lawful for the court to sanction the issue in its place of a duplicate debenture, marked as such, on such terms and the payment of such fees as the court may consider just; but without prejudice to the rights of any holder of the original debenture, by whom it may afterwards be actually produced. Such duplicate debenture shall be transferable by entry only in the books of the court.

14. Every debenture shall be deemed a sum of money charged upon land within the meaning of sects. 40 and 42 of the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27, intitled "An Act for the Limitation of Actions and Suits relating to Real Property, and for simplifying the Remedies for trying the Rights thereof," and shall be subject to the periods of limitation prescribed by those sections as to principal and interest respectively.

15. Every debenture, when vested in any person other than the owner of the land charged therewith, shall be deemed personal estate; and when vested in the owner of the land, shall be deemed real estate.

16. A debenture shall be deemed to be a charge by way of mortgage, and the money payable under a debenture a mortgage debt, within the operation of the act passed in the 17 & 18 Vict., intitled "An Act to amend the Law relating to the Administration of the Estates of deceased Persons."

17. On the application of the owner of the land charged with any debenture, and on being satisfied by affidavit or otherwise that the principal money has remained unpaid for thirty days by reason of failure on the part of the debenture holder to receive payment, or that there is other proper ground for the application, the court may, if and on such terms as it shall think fit, order that the applicant be at liberty, within seven days or such other time as it shall consider reasonable, to pay the principal due and the interest up to the date of such payment into the Bank of Ireland, to the account of such matter as the court may direct, with the name of the owner of the land, but in trust to attend the orders of the court.

The payment of the money into Bank pursuant to such order shall, as regards the owner of the land, be deemed a payment by him to the holder of the debenture.

18. The land charged, or the owner thereof, shall not be affected by any trust affecting a debenture, or by any notice whatever of such trust; but the party entitled to the benefit of such trust may nevertheless proceed to establish the same as against the holder of the debenture.

19. The owner of any debenture to whom any interest shall remain due for the term of one month after the time appointed for the payment thereof, shall be at liberty to apply to the court for a sale of the land charged with such debenture.

20. The court shall thereupon give to the holder of every debenture the option either to have the sum due for principal and interest on his debenture paid out of the proceeds of the sale, according to the priority of his demand, or to have the interest only paid, and to permit the principal to remain a charge on the unsold lands until the time appointed by the debenture for payment of the principal.

21. If the owner of any over-due debenture shall be a trustee, he shall not be deemed guilty of a breach of trust, nor be accountable for the manner in which he may exercise such option.

22. The owner of any debenture which shall remain unpaid at the time appointed by such debenture for payment of the principal thereof, may apply to the court for a sale of the land charged therewith.

23. In case the owner of any debenture, and the owner of the land charged therewith, shall so consent, it shall be lawful for the court to sanction the issue of a new debenture in place of such over-due debenture, which new debenture shall bear such interest, and shall be payable at such time, as shall be therein expressed.

24. If the owner of any over-due debenture shall be a trustee, he shall not be deemed guilty of a breach of trust by reason of his giving or withholding his consent to the acceptance of such new debenture.

25. In case the owner of any over-due debenture shall refuse to accept a new debenture in lieu thereof, the owner of the land charged therewith may pay off the same, and apply to the court to sanction the issue of a new debenture in lieu thereof.

26. If the owner of any land shall be under any disability, the court may appoint a guardian ad litem for such owner; and the consent and directions of such guardian shall have the same effect as if the owner had been under no disability, and had given such consent or directions.

27. The court shall have authority to dismiss any proceeding upon payment of interest and costs, or on such further or other terms as it may deem equitable.

28. Under no circumstances shall the holder of a debenture have any claim whatever upon the court, or upon any public funds, in respect of any mistake or omission relating to the value, quality, or title of or to the estate, or otherwise howsoever.

29. Within the meaning of the several acts in force relating to stamps, a certificate under this act shall be deemed to be a deed not specifically charged nor expressly exempted. A debenture shall be deemed to be a mortgage made as a security for the amount of the principal money thereby secured, and a transfer of a debenture shall be deemed to be a transfer of a mortgage.

Provided that no debenture shall be transferred by means of a memorandum in the books of the court until it shall have been stamped with the amount of stamp duty applicable in the case of mortgages given by public companies, as mentioned in the 14th section of the 16 & 17 Vict. c. 59.

30. The court may frame and promulgate all such forms, rules, and directions as it shall consider requisite or expedient for the assistance and guidance of persons acting under this act; for annulling certificates; for regulating the transfer of debentures; for calling in or cancelling debentures, and for the issue of orders, in case of forgery, abstraction, destruction, defacement, or other like inconvenience; for the giving of notices; and generally for facilitating or regulating the course of procedure, or giving effect to the purposes and provisions of this act.

31. The court shall also have the same or the like powers and authorities for the purposes of this act as it has for those of the act or acts of Parliament under which it is at present constituted, as well in relation to the appointment or removal and to the salaries of necessary officers, as also to the making of general orders, the conduct or costs of proceedings, the production of documents or examination of witnesses, and to any other matter requisite for effecting the objects of this act.

CAP. CII.

An Act to amend an Act of the Twentieth and Twenty-first Years of Her Majesty, for the Abatement of the Nuisance arising from the Smoke of Furnaces in Scotland, and an Act of the Twenty-fourth Year of Her Majesty to amend the said Act. [5th July, 1865].

CAP. CIII,

An Act to provide for the Discontinuance of a separate Court of Quarter Sessions and a separate Gaol in the Borough of Falmouth. [5th July, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Short title.
2. Commencement of act.
3. Falmouth to cease to have separate court of quarter sessions.
4. Provision as to prison at Falmouth.
5. Removal of prisoners in Falmouth prison.
6. Prison at Falmouth to belong to county of Cornwall.
7. Compensation and superannuation allowances to recorder, &c. at Falmouth.

CAP. CIV,

An Act to amend the Procedure and Practice in Crown Suits in the Court of Exchequer at Westminster; and for other Purposes. [5th July, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Short title.
2. Division of act into parts.
3. Extent of act.
4. Commencement of act.
5. Construction, as to Attorney-General, &c.
6. Interpretation of terms in Part II.
7. Printing of information.
8. Abolition of subpoena and distringas, and substitution of service of printed information.
9. Mode and effect of service of printed information.
10. Printed information served to be first marked by officer.
11. Sale to defendant of printed copies.
12. Amendments to be subject to same rules.
13. Form, &c. of interrogatories.
14. Defendant not bound to answer unless interrogated.
15. Time for defendant to put in plea, answer, or demurrer, &c.
16. Contents of answer.
17. Abolition of commissioners to take answers, &c.
18. Swearing of answers, &c. in Scotland, &c.
19. False swearing, &c. perjury.
20. Oath of messenger abolished.
21. Alteration of mode of taking evidence.
22. Application of sect. 103 of 17 & 18 Vict. c. 125.
23. Proceeding in case of abatement of writ, &c.
24. Statement of new facts on record.
25. Writs in counties palatine to be directed to sheriffs.
26. Power to court to rectify errors in procedure.
27. Saving for distringas to restrain transfer of stock, &c.
28. Power to court to make general rules.
29. Provision as to pending suits.
30. Fees, remuneration, &c., to be appointed by Treasury with concurrence of barons.
31. Appeal, &c. in proceedings at law on revenue side of Exchequer.
32. Effect of appeal as to stay of execution.
33. Repeal of sect. 36 of 18 & 19 Vict. c. 90, and sect. 14 of 20 & 21 Vict. c. 62.
34. Evidence of defendants, &c.
35. Application of sect. 103 of 17 & 18 Vict. c. 125.
36. Abolition of writ of distringas.
37. Suits against British subjects resident out of jurisdiction of Exchequer.
38. Suits against foreigners resident out of jurisdiction of Exchequer.
39. Forms of writs in schedule.
40. Omission to insert or indorse matters in or on writ not to nullify it.
41. Amendment in case of substitution by mistake, &c. of one writ for another.
42. Writs for service in and out of jurisdiction.
43. Affidavit may be sworn before a consul, &c.
44. False swearing, perjury.
45. Provision as to pending suits.
46. Provision for change of venue and for view.
47. Extents and writs of diem clausit extremum,

48. Future Crown debts, &c. not to affect land till writ of execution issued and registered.
49. Mode of registration, and discontinuance of other modes of registration.
50. Provisions of the 25 Geo. 3, c. 35, as to sale, &c. to apply in all cases.
51. Saving the prerogative of the Crown.
52. Inquiry on objection to inquisition finding Crown's title.
53. Enactments in third schedule repealed.
54. Construction of Part V.
55. Summary proceedings for account and payment of succession or legacy duty.
56. Summary proceedings for payment of succession or legacy duty assessed.
57. Summary proceedings for payment of probate duty.
58. Court may before judgment order report and special case.
59. Appeal in summary proceedings and on appeal from assessment.
60. Courts of appeal.
61. Notice of appeal; and bail.
62. Power to Court to make general rules.
63. Forms of writs in schedule.
64. Application of procedure and practice of revenue side of court.

Be it enacted &c., as follows:—

PART I.—PRELIMINARY,

Sect. 1. This act may be cited as "The Crown Suits, &c. Act, 1865."

2. This act shall be deemed to be divided into five parts, as follows:—

Part I, preliminary:

Part II, relating to proceedings by English information in the Court of Exchequer:

Part III, relating to proceedings at law on the revenue side of the Court of Exchequer:

Part IV, relating to certain other classes of proceedings where the Crown is interested:

Part V, relating to recovery of succession, legacy, and probate duty in certain cases.

3. This act shall extend to England only.

4. This act shall commence from and immediately after the 1st November, 1865; general rules under this act may nevertheless be made before that time, but not so as to commence before it.

5. With respect to the construction of this act, the following provisions shall have effect:—

(1). The provisions of this act relative to her Majesty's Attorney-General shall be construed as applying also to her Majesty's Solicitor-General, when a vacancy in the office of Attorney-General or other occasion so requires:

(2). The provisions of this act relative to the Crown, or to her Majesty in right of the Crown, shall be construed as applying also to the Duchy of Lancaster, or to her Majesty in right of that duchy, when the case so requires:

(3). The terms "party" and "parties" where used in this act include, and the same terms where used in any enactment extended and applied by this act shall for the purposes of this act include, her Majesty's Attorney-General, and the Attorney-General of the Prince of Wales and Duke of Cornwall, as the case may require:

(4). The term "a judge," where used in this act, means any judge of one of her Majesty's superior courts of law at Westminster transacting business out of court.

PART II.—PROCEEDINGS BY ENGLISH INFORMATION IN THE COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

6. In this part of this act—

The term "the Court of Exchequer" or "the court" means her Majesty's Court of Exchequer at Westminster exercising jurisdiction or authority in suits relating to the revenues of the Crown and of the Duchies of Lancaster and Cornwall instituted and conducted according to the forms of equitable procedure:

The term "information" means an information, styled an English information, exhibited in the Court of Exchequer in the name of her Majesty's Attorney-General, or of the Attorney-General of the Prince of Wales and Duke of Cornwall, as the informant, and includes an information and bill:

The term "suit" or "cause" means a suit or cause commenced by information:

and, except as expressly provided otherwise, nothing in this part of this act shall be deemed to apply to any proceedings other than proceedings in suits commenced by information.

7. An information shall be printed, and shall be received and filed in print, and not otherwise.

8. The writ of subpoena to appear to and answer an information, and the writ of distringas against a corporation to appear to an information, are hereby abolished; and in lieu of the service of such writs respectively, there shall be served a printed information, having an indorsement thereon, in the form given in the first schedule to this act, with such variations as circumstances require.

9. Except in case of a corporation aggregate, such service shall be effected as service of a writ of subpoena is now effected (save that the original information shall not be produced), and shall have the same effect in all respects as service of a writ of subpoena now has; and in case of a corporation aggregate, such service shall be effected by delivery of a printed information, having an indorsement thereon as aforesaid, to the mayor or other head officer, or to the town clerk, clerk, treasurer, or secretary of the corporation.

10. The information served shall be first so marked by the proper officer of the court as to indicate the filing of the information and the date of the filing.

11. A defendant shall be entitled to have as many printed copies of the information as he requires, on paying for them at such rate as general rules under this part of this act direct.

12. On amendment of an information, the foregoing provisions shall extend and apply, mutatis mutandis, to the information as amended; but an information may be amended in writing in such cases as general rules direct.

13. An information shall not contain interrogatories, but the informant, within such time as general rules direct, may file interrogatories for the examination of defendants from whom he requires an answer, and deliver to each such defendant, or his solicitor, a copy of the interrogatories, or of such of them as are applicable to the particular defendant.

14. A defendant shall not be bound to put in an answer, unless interrogatories have been filed, and unless a copy has been delivered as aforesaid.

15. A defendant, whether required to answer or not, may, without leave of the court or a judge, put in a plea, answer, or demurrer, within such time as general rules direct; but after that time, a defendant not required to answer shall not be at liberty to put in a plea, answer, or demurrer, except by leave of the court or a judge; nevertheless, the power of the court or a judge to grant further time for pleading, answering, or demurring, on the application of a defendant, whether required to answer or not, shall remain unaffected.

16. An answer may contain not only the defendant's answers to the interrogatories, if any, but also such statements material to the case as he thinks fit to set forth therein.

17. Commissions to take pleas, answers, disclaimers, and examinations are, with respect to pleas, answers, disclaimers, and examinations taken within the jurisdiction of the court, hereby abolished; and any such plea, answer, disclaimer, or examination may be filed, without any formalities other than such as are required in relation to an affidavit.

18. Pleas, answers, disclaimers, examinations, affidavits, declarations, affirmations, and protestations of honour in causes depending in the court may be sworn and taken in Scotland, Ireland, the Isle of Man, or the Channel Islands, or in any colony, island, plantation, or place under the dominion of her Majesty in foreign parts, before any court or judge, or before any notary public, or before any person authorised to administer oaths there, or in any foreign parts out of her Majesty's dominions before any of her Majesty's consuls or vice-consuls there; and every such instrument may be used, and shall be admitted in evidence, saving just exceptions; and judicial and official notice shall be taken of the seal or signature of any such court, judge, notary public, person, consul, or vice-consul affixed, appended, or subscribed to any such document.

19. Any person wilfully and corruptly swearing, declaring, affirming, or protesting falsely in any plea, answer, disclaimer, examination, affidavit, declaration, affirmation, or protestation of honour so taken out of England, shall be deemed guilty of perjury in every case where, having so sworn, declared, affirmed, or protested before competent authority in England, he would be deemed guilty of perjury, and may be dealt with, indicted, tried, and (if convicted) sentenced, and his offence may be laid and charged to have been committed, in any county or place in England in which he is in custody as if the offence had been actually there committed.

20. Pleas, answers, disclaimers, and examinations, whether taken by commission out of the jurisdiction of the court or otherwise, may be filed without the oath of a messenger, and any alteration made therein before the taking thereof shall be authenticated as in the case of an affidavit.

21. By general rules the examination of witnesses on written interrogatories may be discontinued, and such amendments as from time to time seem fit may be made in the mode of taking evidence and the practice relative thereto; and for the purpose of such evidence any officer or person from time to time directed by general rules or by an order of the court or a judge to take such evidence may administer oaths and take declarations.

22. The court shall be deemed to be a court of civil judicature within the meaning of sect. 103 of the Common-law Procedure Act, 1854.

23. Where a suit becomes abated by death or otherwise, or becomes defective by reason of some change or transmission of interest or liability, an order to the effect of an order to revive, or of a supplemental decree, may be obtained as of course on an allegation of the abatement of the suit, or of the same having become defective, and of the change or transmission of interest or liability; and the parties who would in the same case be defendants to an information of revivor or supplemental information shall, when served with such order, be parties to the suit, and be bound to appear within such time and in such manner as general rules direct, subject to the following provisions:—

(1.) It shall be open to any party so served (within such time after service as general rules direct) to apply to the court or a judge to discharge the order on any ground that would have been open to him on an information of revivor or supplemental information:

(2.) If any party so served is under any disability other than coverture, the order shall be of no effect as against such party until a guardian ad litem has been appointed for such party, and such time has elapsed thereafter as general rules direct.

24. Facts or circumstances occurring after the institution of a suit may be introduced by way of amendment into the original information if the cause is otherwise in such a state as to allow of the information being amended, and if not, may be stated on the record in such manner, and subject to such regulations with respect to the proof thereof, and to the affording defendants leave and opportunity to answer and meet the same, as general rules direct.

25. Writs issuing out of the court to be executed in the counties palatine shall be directed and delivered to the sheriffs of those counties, and shall be executed and returned by them to the court in all respects as writs are executed and returned by sheriffs of other counties.

26. If in any suit any direction of this part of this act or of general rules under it by mistake of parties fails to be followed, the court or a judge may (if it seems fit), on payment of such costs as the court or a judge directs, make such order, giving effect to and rectifying the proceedings, as appears justified by the merits of the case.

27. Notwithstanding anything in this part of this act or in any other act, a writ of distringas (in such form as general rules under this part of this act from time to time direct) to restrain the transfer of stock transferable at the Bank of England, or the payment of the dividends thereon, shall continue to be issuable from the office of the Queen's Remembrancer on behalf of her Majesty's Attorney-General, or of the Attorney-General of the Prince of Wales and Duke of Cornwall.

28. The Lord Chief Baron and two or more barons of the court shall from time to time make such general rules as seem fit for carrying this part of this act into execution, and for regulating the sittings of the court, and the procedure and practice in suits by information, and in other proceedings in the court.

29. Nothing in this part of this act, or in any general rules made under it, shall apply to any suit commenced by information filed before the commencement of this act; nevertheless in any such suit the court or a judge may, if it seems fit, on hearing the parties, from time to time direct that the procedure and practice prescribed in this part of this act, or in any general rules made under it, be followed in the court in any respect.

30. The Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, with the concurrence of the Lord Chief Baron and two or more barons of the court, may from time to time, if they think fit, appoint fees to be charged on proceedings in suits in the court, which fees shall be collected by stamps, and such provisions of the Common-law (Fees) Act, 1865 [28 & 29 Vict. c. 45], as relate to the collection by stamps of the fees therein referred to, shall extend and apply to the fees to be taken under this section; and there shall be paid to any officer of the court or other person employed in taking examinations of witnesses, or discharging other duties connected with proceedings in suits in the court, such remuneration, if any, as the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, with the concurrence aforesaid, from time to time direct.

PART III.—PROCEEDINGS AT LAW ON THE REVENUE SIDE OF THE COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

31. The provisions of sects. 34 to 37, and 39 to 45 (all inclusive), and of sects. 59 and 95 of the Common-law Procedure Act, 1854, shall extend and apply to the revenue side of her Majesty's Court of Exchequer at Westminster as a court of law (to which court the term "the court" when hereafter used in this part of this act refers), in the same manner as those provisions apply to the plea side of that court.

32. In any suit or proceeding at law on the revenue side of the court notice of appeal shall be a stay of execution on the following condition, but not otherwise, namely—that within eight days after the decision complained of, or before execution delivered to the sheriff, bail to pay the sum recovered and costs, or to pay costs when adjudged, be given to the same amount and be approved of in like manner as bail in error is required to be given and approved of under the rules of the court for the time being in force, except where the court or a judge otherwise orders; but such bail shall not be necessary where the appellant is her Majesty, or her Majesty's Attorney-General on behalf of her Majesty in right of the Crown or in right of the Duchy of Cornwall, or the Attorney-General of the Prince of Wales and Duke of Cornwall, or where the appellants are the Commissioners of Inland Revenue.

33. Sect. 36 of the Supplemental Customs Consolidation Act, 1855 [18 & 19 Vict. c. 96], and sect. 14 of the Customs Amendment Act, 1857 [20 & 21 Vict. c. 62], shall, from and after the commencement of this act, be repealed.

34. Sects. 2 and 3 of the act of the session of the 14 & 15 Vict. (c. 90), "to amend the Law of Evidence," and the Evidence Amendment Act, 1853, shall extend and apply to proceedings at law on the revenue side of the court; and any proceeding at law on the revenue side of the court shall not, for the purposes of this act, be deemed a criminal proceeding within the meaning of the said sections and act as extended and applied by the present section.

35. The revenue side of the court, as a court of law, shall be deemed to be a court of civil judicature within the meaning of sect. 103 of the Common-law Procedure Act, 1854.

36. In a suit at law on the revenue side of the court a writ of distringas against a corporation aggregate to compel an appearance shall not be necessary; but in such a suit a writ of subpoena or scire facias (as the case may require) may issue against a corporation aggregate to compel an appearance; and service of such a writ may be effected by delivery thereof, or of a copy thereof, to the mayor or other head officer, town clerk, clerk, treasurer, or secretary of the corporation; and the like proceedings to judgment may be taken on a writ of subpoena or scire facias so issued as, according to the practice for the time being of the Court of Exchequer, may be taken on a like writ issued against an individual defendant.

37. In a suit at law on the revenue side of the court against a British subject resident out of the jurisdiction of the court in any place except Scotland or Ireland, the informant may sue out against that person a writ of subpoena bearing an indorsement stating that the writ is for service out of the jurisdiction of the court; and the time for appearance by the defendant to such writ shall be regulated by the distance from England of the place where he is resident; and the court or a judge, on being satisfied by affidavit that the writ was personally served on the defendant, or that reasonable efforts were made to effect personal service thereof on him, and that it came to his knowledge, and either that he wilfully neglects to appear to the writ, or that he is living out of the jurisdiction of the court in order to defeat the claim to which the information relates, may order from time to time that the informant be at liberty to proceed in the suit in such manner and subject to such conditions as to the court or a judge seem fit, the time allowed for the defendant to appear being reasonable, and regard being had to the other circumstances of the case; but it shall be a condition precedent to the informant's obtaining judgment that he give proof of the merits of the claim to the satisfaction of the court or a judge, or of the officer of the court to whom the court think fit to refer the matter.

38. In a suit at law on the revenue side of the court against a person, not a British subject, resident out of the jurisdiction of the court in any place except Scotland or Ireland, the like proceedings may be taken as against a British subject resident out of the jurisdiction, save that in lieu of the form of writ used in that case the informant shall issue a writ of subpoena commanding the defendant to appear within the time therein prescribed, after service on him of notice of the writ, and shall in manner aforesaid serve a notice of the writ on the defendant; and such service shall have the same effect as service of the writ of subpoena in a suit against a British subject resident out of the jurisdiction of the court; and thereupon, by leave of the court or a judge, on their or his being satisfied by affidavit, the like proceedings may be had and taken as aforesaid.

39. The forms of writs of subpoena and of notice given in the second schedule to this act applicable in the respective cases aforesaid shall be used in those cases, with such variations as circumstances require, but general rules relating to the process and practice at law of the revenue side of the court may from time to time prescribe any such altered, additional, or substituted forms of writs of subpoena and notice for use in the respective cases aforesaid as seem fit, and the same shall be used accordingly.

40. If in any such case the informant omits to insert in or indorse on any writ or copy thereof any of the matters for the time being required to be inserted therein or indorsed thereon, such writ or copy shall not on that account be void, but it may be set aside as irregular, or it may be amended on such terms as to the court or a judge seem fit, either on an application to the court or a judge for such amendment, or on an application to set aside the writ.

41. If in any such case one form of writ of subpoena is by mistake or inadvertence substituted for another, such mistake or inadvertence shall not be an objection to the writ or any other proceeding in the suit, but on an ex parte application to a judge, either before or after an application to set aside such writ or any proceeding thereon, and whether the writ or notice thereof has been served or not, the writ may be amended by a judge without costs.

42. A writ of subpoena for service out of the jurisdiction may be issued and marked as a concurrent writ with one for service within the jurisdiction, and a writ of subpoena for service within the jurisdiction may be issued and marked as a concurrent writ with one for service out of the jurisdiction.

43. An affidavit for the purpose of enabling the court or a judge to make an order for liberty to proceed against a defendant resident out of the jurisdiction of the court may be sworn at any foreign port or place before any of her Majesty's consuls or vice-consuls there; and every affidavit so sworn may be used and shall be admitted in evidence, saving just exceptions; and judicial and official notice shall be taken of the seal or signature of the consul or vice-consul affixed or subscribed to any such affidavit.

44. If any person wilfully and corruptly makes a false affidavit before such consul or vice-consul he shall be deemed guilty of perjury, as if the false affidavit had been made in England before competent authority, and may be dealt with, indicted, tried, and (if convicted) sentenced, and his offence may be laid and charged to have been committed in any county or place in England in which he is in custody, as if the offence had been actually there committed.

45. No repeal or other provision in this part of this act shall affect or apply to any suit or proceeding instituted or taken before the commencement of this act.

PART IV.—CERTAIN OTHER CLASSES OF PROCEEDINGS WHERE THE CROWN IS INTERESTED.

46. Where a cause in which her Majesty's Attorney-General on behalf of the Crown is entitled to demand as of right a trial at bar is at any time depending in any of her Majesty's superior courts of law at Westminster, whether instituted before or instituted after the commencement of this act, and the Attorney-General states to the court that he waives his right to a trial at bar, the following provisions shall have effect:—

- (1). The court, on the application of the Attorney-General, shall change the venue to any county in which the Attorney-General elects to have the cause tried;
- (2). The court may (if requisite) order that the sheriff of the county into which the venue is removed do cause a view to be had by jurors of that county (notwithstanding that the view must be taken and had by such sheriff and jurors out of their own county);
- (3). For the purposes aforesaid the court may make such orders as seem necessary or proper; and all such orders shall be binding on all sheriffs and other officers, and on all jurors and other persons concerned, and shall be sufficient warrant for the doing of everything thereby authorised or directed to be done;
- (4). The powers of the judges of the superior courts of law, and of the judges of the Court of Exchequer, as a court of revenue at law respectively to make general rules for the regulation of procedure and practice, and of costs, charges, and expenses, shall extend to the making of such general rules as from time to time seem fit for the better execution of this section;
- (5). Subject to any such rules, the provisions of the Common-law Procedure Act, 1852, and of any rules made under it, and all other law and practice for the time being in force relative to change of venue and to views, shall extend to the cases of change of venue and view to which this section relates.

47. A commission to find a debt due to the Crown shall not be necessary for authorising the issue of an immediate extent or of a writ of diet clausit extremum; and an immediate extent may be issued on an affidavit of debt and danger, and a writ of diet clausum extremum may be issued on an affidavit of debt and death (similar, mutatis mutandis, to the affidavit of debt and danger, or of debt and death, on which, after inquisition returned, an immediate extent or a writ of diet clausum extremum has been used to be issued), and on the fiat of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, or of a baron of her Majesty's Court of Exchequer at Westminster, or of a judge of her Majesty's Court of Queen's Bench or Common Pleas at Westminster.

48. Any judgment, decree, or order obtained after the commencement of this act by or on behalf of the Crown, or any recognisance entered into after the commencement of this act on the proper account of the Crown, or any inquisition finding after the commencement of this act a debt due to the Crown, or any obligation or specialty made after the commencement of this act to the Crown, or any acceptance of office accepted after the commencement of this act from or under the Crown, shall not affect any land (of whatever tenure) as to a bona fide purchaser for valuable consideration or a mortgagee (whether such purchaser or mortgagee have or have not notice of the judgment, decree, order, recognisance, inquisition, obligation, specialty, or acceptance of office), unless a writ of extent or of diet clausit extremum, or other writ or process of execution, in pursuance of or in relation to such judgment, decree, order, recognisance, inquisition, obligation, specialty, or acceptance of office, has been issued and registered before the execution of the conveyance or mortgage to such purchaser or mortgagee, and the payment by him of the purchase or mortgage money.

49. The registration of such writ or process shall be effected as follows; namely—a minute of the name of the person against whom the writ or process is issued, and of the date of the issuing thereof, and of the amount for which it is issued, shall be left with the senior Master of the Court of Common Pleas at Westminster, who shall forthwith enter the same particulars in a book by the name in alphabetical order of the person against whom the writ or process is issued; and no other registration of such writ or process, or of the judgment, decree, order, recognisance, inquisition, obligation, specialty, or acceptance of office, in pursuance of or in relation to which it is issued, shall be necessary for any purpose. There shall be paid for every such entry a fee of 2s. 6d.; and all persons shall be at liberty to search the said book, with the other books in the office, on payment of a fee of 1s.

50. The act of the 25 Geo. 3, c. 35, "for the more easy and effectual sale of lands, tenements, and hereditaments of Crown debtors or of their sureties," shall extend to authorise the sale, subject and according to the provisions of that act, of any land taken in execution by virtue of any writ or process of execution issued after the commencement of this act, by any court of law or equity, for enforcing the payment of any sum of money to or in favour of the Crown.

51. Nothing in this part of this act shall take away or abridge any prerogative or right of the Crown, in respect of priority or otherwise, over or against the creditors of any debtor or accountant to the Crown, and save as in this part of this act expressly provided, every prerogative or right of the Crown as against the land of any debtor or accountant to the Crown, or over or against the creditors of any such debtor or accountant, shall remain in all respects as if this part of this act had not been enacted.

52. With respect to inquests of office or inquisitions after the commencement of this act finding the title of her Majesty in right of the Crown or in right of the Duchy of Cornwall, or the title of the Prince of Wales and Duke of Cornwall, to any real property, the following provisions shall have effect:—

- (1). If in any such case a copy of the inquisition is served on any person, and such person thinks himself aggrieved by any description of boundary or other finding therein, he may within six months after such service, or within such enlarged time as her Majesty's Court of Exchequer at Westminster or a judge may think fit to allow, file in the office of the Court of Exchequer in which the inquisition is filed a statement in writing of his objection to the inquisition;
- (2). On any such objection being filed, the Court of Exchequer or a baron thereof, on the application of the proper officer on behalf of her Majesty in right of the Crown or in right of the Duchy of Cornwall, or on behalf of the Prince of Wales and Duke of Cornwall (as the case may require), may appoint a fit person to inquire into the matter of the objection; and the person so appointed shall hold an inquiry on or near the land in question, or at some other convenient place (notice of the time and place for the holding of the inquiry being given to the person objecting); and for the purposes of such inquiry the person so appointed shall have power to summon witnesses and administer oaths;
- (3). The person so appointed shall make a return in writing to the Court of Exchequer of the result of the inquiry, which return shall be filed in the office in which the inquisition is filed; and if in any respect the return and the inquisition differ in effect, the inquisition shall be deemed to be altered so as to conform with the return;
- (4). Where a copy of an inquisition is served as aforesaid, an affidavit of service shall be filed in the office in which the inquisition is filed, and an office copy of such affidavit shall be evidence of the service;
- (5). Nothing in this section shall take away or abridge the right of any person to traverse an inquisition.

PART V.—RECOVERY OF SUCCESSION, LEGACY, AND PROBATE DUTY, IN CERTAIN CASES.

53. The enactments described in the third schedule to this act, as far as they relate to England, shall from and after the commencement of this act be repealed, but not so as to affect any proceeding pending at the commencement of this act, or any appeal or other step capable of being brought or taken therein or in relation thereto, or any right, title, obligation, liability, forfeiture, or penalty acquired, accrued, or incurred before the commencement of this act; and every such proceeding, appeal, step, right, title, obligation, liability, forfeiture, and penalty may be continued, brought, taken, maintained, and enforced as if this act had not been passed.

54. In this part of this act—

The term "the Succession Duty Act" means the Succession Duty Act, 1855:

The term "the Legacy Duty Acts" means the acts for charging duties on legacies and shares of the personal estates of deceased persons, so far as those acts relate to England:—

The term "the Court of Exchequer" means her Majesty's Court of Exchequer at Westminster.

This part of this act as far as it relates to duty under the Succession Duty Act and Legacy Duty Acts shall be read with the Succession Duty Act as one act.

55. If any person accountable for or chargeable with duty under the Succession Duty Act or the Legacy Duty Acts, required by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue to deliver an account under those acts or any of them, makes default in doing so, the commissioners may sue out of the Court of Exchequer a writ of summons commanding him to deliver an account and to pay the duty and the costs of the proceedings, or to shew cause to the contrary; and on cause being shewn such order shall be made as seems just.

56. Where, in pursuance of the Succession Duty Act or the Legacy Duty Acts, the Commissioners of Inland Revenue make an assessment of duty, and the duty is not paid, and there is no notice of appeal against the assessment under sect. 50 of the Succession Duty Act, or of disputing the liability to assessment, the commissioners may sue out of the Court of Exchequer a writ of summons commanding the person liable for the duty, or the owner of any property expressly charged therewith, to pay the duty payable by him and the costs of the proceedings, or to shew cause to the contrary, and on cause being shewn such order shall be made as seems just.

57. If any person takes possession of and in any manner administers any part of the personal estate of any person deceased without obtaining probate of his will or letters of administration of his estate within six months after his decease, or within two months after the termination of any suit or dispute respecting the will or the right to letters of administration, if there is any such suit or dispute that is not ended within four months after the death, the Commissioners of Inland Revenue may sue out of the Court of Exchequer a writ of summons commanding the person so taking possession and administering as aforesaid to deliver to the commissioners an account of the estate of the deceased and of its value, and to pay such duty as would have been payable if probate or administration had been obtained and the costs of the proceedings, or to shew cause to the contrary, and on cause being shewn such order shall be made as seems just; and any such proceedings shall be a waiver of all penalties incurred in the premises by such person as aforesaid.

58. In proceedings by writ of summons as aforesaid the court may, if they think fit, refer the matter to the proper officer to report thereon, and may, if they think fit, order the facts contained in his report to be stated in the form of a special case for the opinion of the court, and give directions as to the mode of settling the case, and the matters to be contained therein, and for the production of any documents, and may, if they think fit, direct any issue or issues of fact to be tried by a jury; and the court may proceed to give judgment on the special case, and for any amount of duty which the court are of opinion is due to the Crown, and for costs; and on such judgment error may be brought and judgment given as on a special case stated by consent.

59. In proceedings by writ of summons as aforesaid, and also in cases of appeal to the Court of Exchequer from the assessment of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue under sect. 50 of the Succession Duty Act, an appeal shall lie from the decision of the court or a judge on a case stated by the parties, or, if they differ, settled by the Court of Exchequer or a judge, or any officer of the Court of Exchequer, to whom the same is referred by the court or a judge; and the court of appeal shall give such judgment as ought to have been given by the Court of Exchequer or judge, and may award costs.

60. The appeal in all such cases as aforesaid shall be made to the Court of Error in the Exchequer Chamber, and the decision of that court shall be subject to appeal to the House of Lords.

61. No such appeal shall be allowed unless notice thereof is given in writing to the opposite party or attorney, and to the proper officer of the Court of Exchequer, within four days after the decision complained of, or such further time as may be allowed by the court or a judge; and bail shall be given and approved of as provided with respect to suits at law on the revenue side of the Court of Exchequer.

62. The Lord Chief Baron and two or more barons of the Court of Exchequer shall from time to time make such general rules as seem fit for carrying this part of this act into execution, and for regulating the procedure and practice in proceedings by writ of summons as aforesaid.

63. The forms of writs of summons given in the fourth schedule to this act, applicable in the respective cases aforesaid, shall be used in those cases, with such variations as circumstances require; but general rules under this part of this act may from time to time prescribe such altered, additional, or substituted forms of writs of summons for use in the respective cases aforesaid or any of them as seem fit, and the same shall be used accordingly.

64. Subject to the provisions of this part of this act, and to general rules made thereunder, proceedings by writs of summons as aforesaid shall be deemed proceedings at law on the revenue side of the Court of Exchequer within the meaning of sects. 10, 11, and 16 to 22 (both inclusive) of the act of the session of the 22 & 23 Vict. (c. 21), "to regulate the Office of Queen's Remembrancer, and to amend the Practice and Procedure on the Revenue Side of the Court of Exchequer."

SCHEDULES.

THE FIRST SCHEDULE.

FORM OF INDORSEMENT ON ENGLISH INFORMATION UNDER PART II.

To the within-named C. D.

Victoria R.

We command you [and every of you, where there are more defendants than one], that within — days after service hereof on you, exclusive of the day of such service, you cause an appearance to be entered for you in our Court of Exchequer at Westminster for the within-contained information, and that you observe what our said court directs.

Witness —, at Westminster, this — day of —, 18—.

NOTE.—If you fail to comply with the foregoing directions, an appearance may be entered for you, and you will be liable to be arrested and imprisoned [or, in case of a corporation, to be distrained by all your lands and chattels], and to have a decree made against you in your absence.

Appearances are to be entered at the Queen's Remembrancer's Office, Chancery-lane, London.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

FORMS OF WRITS OF SUBPENA AND NOTICE UNDER PART III.

(A).

Writ where Defendant, being a British Subject, is resident out of Jurisdiction of Court of Exchequer.

Victoria, &c.

To C. D., of —, in the county of —.

We command and strictly enjoin you, that within [here insert a sufficient number of days within which the defendant might appear with reference to the distance he may be at from England] days after the service of this writ on you, inclusive of the day of such service, you do cause an appearance to be entered for you in our Court of Exchequer at Westminster, to answer us concerning certain articles then and there on our behalf to be objected against you; and take notice, that in default of your so doing, we shall proceed thereon to judgment and execution.

Witness, &c.

[Memorandum to be subscribed on writ.]

This writ is to be served within [six] calendar months from the date thereof, or, if renewed, from the date of such renewal, including the day of such date, and not afterwards.

[Indorsement to be made on writ before service thereof.]

At the suit of her Majesty's Attorney-General [or as the case may be.]

By information.

This writ is for service out of the jurisdiction of the Court of Exchequer, and is issued by E. F., the solicitor of [as the case may be],

[if for penalties],

for the forfeiture by you of £— for penalties under the statutes relating to the revenue of customs [or excise, stamps, taxes, &c., as the case may be];

[or, if for duties or a debt],

for the recovery of £— for duties due from you under the statutes relating [&c., as before—or state shortly the nature of the debt.]

Take notice, that in default of your entering an appearance in the Court of Exchequer, according to the exigency of this writ, an information may be filed and judgment signed thereon, and execution issued on such judgment, together with costs, at the expiration of fourteen days from the day or signing such judgment.

(B.)

Writ where Defendant, not being a British Subject, is resident out of the Jurisdiction of Court of Exchequer.

Victoria, &c.

To C. D., late of —, in the county of —.

We command and strictly enjoin you, that within [here insert a sufficient number of days within which the defendant might appear with reference to the distance he may be at from England] days after notice of this writ is served on you, inclusive of the day of such service, you do cause an appearance to be entered for you in our Court of Exchequer at Westminster, to answer us concerning certain articles then and there on our behalf to be objected against you; and take notice, that in default of your so doing, we shall proceed therein to judgment and execution.

Witness, &c.

[Memorandum to be subscribed on writ.]

Notice of this writ is to be served within [six] calendar months from the date thereof, including the day of such date, and not afterwards.

[Indorsement as on writ (A.)]

(C.)

Notice of last foregoing Writ.

To C. D., [late of Brighton, in the county of Sussex], residing at [Paris, in France.]

Take notice, that in the name of the Attorney-General of her Majesty Queen Victoria of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland [or, as the case may be], E. F., the solicitor of [as the case may be], has commenced proceedings at law against you, C. D., in her Majesty's Court of Exchequer at Westminster, by writ of that court, dated the — day of —, A.D. 18—,

[if for penalties],

for the forfeiture by you of £— for penalties under the statutes relating to the revenue of customs [or, excise, stamps, taxes, &c., as the case may be];

[or, if for duties or a debt],

for the recovery of £— for duties due from you under the statutes relating [&c., as before, or state shortly the nature of the debt.]

Take notice, that you are required within — days after the receipt of this notice, inclusive of the day of such receipt, to defend yourself against the said proceedings, by entering an appearance in the said Court of Exchequer, and that in default of your so doing an information may be filed, and the said E. F. may, by leave of that court or of a judge of one of her Majesty's superior courts of law at Westminster, proceed thereon to judgment and execution.

(Signed)

F. F.,
Solicitor of —.

THE THIRD SCHEDULE.

ENACTMENTS REPEALED AS TO ENGLAND BY PART V.

42 Geo. 3, c. 99—An Act for allowing the stamping certain Deeds until the 31st December, 1802; for amending an Act passed in the Thirty-sixth Year of the Reign of His present Majesty, relating to Duties on Legacies and Shares of Personal Estates; for exempting certain Legacies from the Payment of Duty; for reducing the Allowances on present Payment of Stamp Duties; and for reducing certain Stamp Duties on Policies for Sea Insurances.—Sect. 2.

16 & 17 Vict. c. 51—The Succession Duty Act, 1853.—Sects. 47 and 48.

22 & 23 Vict. c. 21—An Act to regulate the Office of Queen's Remembrancer, and to amend the Practice and Procedure on the Revenue Side of the Court of Exchequer.—Sects. 12, 13, 14, and 15.

24 & 25 Vict. c. 92—An Act to amend the Law for the Collection of the Stamp Duties on Probates, Administrations, Inventories, Legacies, and Successions.—Sect. 1.

THE FOURTH SCHEDULE.

FORMS OF WRITS OF SUMMONS UNDER PART V.

(A.)

For Account and Payment by Executor.

Victoria, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland Queen, Defender of the Faith, to —, greeting:

Whereas we have been given to understand, in our court before our barons of the Exchequer at Westminster, that you, being — accountable part— within the true intent and meaning of the Succession Duty Act, 1853, and the Legacy Duty Acts, have been required by our Commissioners of Inland Revenue to render an account, pursuant to the said acts, and have made default therein.

Now, we command you —, that (all excuses ceasing) within fourteen days from the service of this writ, or a copy thereof, you do deliver to the said Commissioners of Inland Revenue an account, upon oath, of all the legacies and of all the property of the said —, deceased, paid or to be paid or administered by you as such execut— as aforesaid, and that you do within the same time pay the duty chargeable upon the said legacies and property of the said —, deceased, and the costs of these proceedings; or that you, the said —, do within the same time appear before the barons of our said Exchequer at Westminster, and shew cause why you make default in the premises, and this you, —, are in nowise to omit, upon pain of process of contempt issuing against your person for your neglect therein.

Witness —, at Westminster, the — day of —, in the year of our Lord 186—.

(B.)

For Account and Payment by Administrator.

Victoria, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland Queen, Defender of the Faith, to —, greeting:

Whereas we have been given to understand, in our court before our barons of the Exchequer at Westminster, that you, being — accountable part— within the true intent and meaning of the Succession Duty Act, 1853, and the Legacy Duty Acts, have been required by our Commissioners of Inland Revenue to render an account, pursuant to the said acts, and have made default therein.

Now, we command you —, that (all excuses ceasing) within fourteen days from the service of this writ, or a copy thereof, you do deliver to the said Commissioners of Inland Revenue an account, upon oath, of all the personal estate and effects of the said —, deceased, paid or to be paid or administered by you as such administrat— as aforesaid, and that you do within the same time pay the duty chargeable upon the said personal estate and effects of the said —, deceased, and the costs of these proceedings; or that you, the said —, do within the same time appear before the barons of our said Exchequer at Westminster, and shew cause why you make default in the premises, and this you, —, are in nowise to omit upon pain of process of contempt issuing against your person for your neglect therein.

Witness —, at Westminster, the — day of —, in the year of our Lord 186—.

(C.)

For Account and Payment by Trustees, Legates, &c.

Victoria, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland Queen, Defender of the Faith, to —, greeting:

Whereas we have been given to understand, in our court before our barons of the Exchequer at Westminster, that you, being — accountable part— within the true intent and meaning of the Succession Duty Act, 1853, and the Legacy Duty Acts, have been required by our Commissioners of Inland Revenue to render an account, pursuant to the said acts, and have made default therein.

Now, we command you, —, that (all excuses ceasing) within fourteen days from the service of this writ, or a copy thereof, you do deliver to the said Commissioners of Inland Revenue an account, upon oath, of —, and that you do within the same time pay the duty chargeable —, and the costs of these proceedings; or, that you, the said —, do within the same time appear before the barons of our said Exchequer at Westminster, and shew cause why you make default in the premises, and this you, —, are in nowise to omit upon pain of process of contempt issuing against your person for your neglect therein.

Witness —, at Westminster, the — day of —, in the year of our Lord 186—.

(D.)

For Account and Payment by Successor, Trustee, &c.

Victoria, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland Queen, Defender of the Faith, to —, greeting:

Whereas we have been given to understand, in our court before our barons of the Exchequer at Westminster, that you, being — accountable part— within the true intent and meaning of the Succession Duty Act, 1853, have been required by our Commissioners of Inland Revenue to render an account, pursuant to the said act, and have made default therein.

Now, we command you, —, that (all excuses ceasing) within fourteen days from the service of this writ, or a copy thereof, you do deliver to the said Commissioners of Inland Revenue an account, upon oath, of all the property to which, or to the income whereof, — became beneficially entitled as successor — on the death of —, deceased, by reason of the disposition thereof made by —, and that you do, within the same time, pay the duty chargeable on the same succession and the costs of these proceedings; or, that you, the said —, do within the same time appear before the barons of our Exchequer at Westminster, and shew cause why you make default in the premises, and this you, —, are in nowise to omit upon pain of process of contempt issuing against your person for your neglect therein.

Witness —, at Westminster, the — day of —, in the year of our Lord 186—.

(E.)

For Accounts and Payment by Executor, being also Successor.

Victoria, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland Queen, Defender of the Faith, to —, greeting:

Whereas we have been given to understand, in our court before our barons of the Exchequer at Westminster, that you, being — accountable part— within the true intent and meaning of the Succession Duty Act, 1853, and the Legacy Duty Acts, have been required by our Commissioners of Inland Revenue to render an account pursuant to the said acts, and have made default therein.

Now, we command you, —, that (all excuses ceasing) within fourteen days from the service of this writ, or a copy thereof, you do deliver to the said Commissioners of Inland Revenue an account, upon oath, of all the legacies and of all the property of the said —, deceased, paid or to be paid or administered by you as such executor as aforesaid, and also an account of all the property to which, or to the income whereof, you have — become beneficially entitled as such successor as aforesaid upon the death of the said —, deceased —; and that you do within the same time pay the duty chargeable, under the Legacy Duty Acts upon the said legacies and property of the said —, deceased; and also the duty chargeable under the said Succession Duty Act upon the said property as — succession — as aforesaid, and the costs of these proceedings; or that you, the said —, do within the same time appear before the barons of our Exchequer at Westminster, and shew cause why you make default in the premises; and this you, —, are in nowise to omit upon pain of process of contempt issuing against your person for your neglect therein.

Witness —, at Westminster, the — day of —, in the year of our Lord 186—.

(F.)

For Payment of Succession Duty when assessed.

Victoria, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland Queen, Defender of the Faith, to —, greeting:

Whereas we have been given to understand, in our court before our barons of the Exchequer at Westminster, that you, being — accountable part — within the true intent and meaning of the Succession Duty Act, 1853, have, as required by the said act, delivered to our Commissioners of Inland Revenue an account of the property for the duty whereon you are accountable, and that the said commissioners have, in pursuance of the said act, assessed the duty on such account, but that you, —, have made default in payment of the same, or some part thereof.

Now we, having been likewise given to understand in manner aforesaid, that there has been no appeal from the said assessment, and no notice of disputing the liability to the same, command you, —, that (all excuses ceasing) within fourteen days from the service of this writ, or a copy thereof, you do pay to the said Commissioners of Inland Revenue, or their proper officer, the said duty so assessed, or such part thereof as shall at the time of such service be by law due and payable, and the costs of these proceedings; or, that you, the said —, do within the same time appear before the barons of our said Exchequer at Westminster, and shew cause why you make default in the premises, and this you, —, are in nowise to omit upon pain of process of contempt issuing against your person for neglect therein.

Witness —, at Westminster, the — day of —, in the year of our Lord 186—.

(G.)

For Account and Payment of Probate Duty.

Victoria, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland Queen, Defender of the Faith, to —, greeting:

Whereas we have been given to understand, in our court before the barons of the Exchequer at Westminster, that you, having taken possession of, and administered some part or parts of, the personal estate and effects of —, deceased, have not obtained probate of the will (or letters of administration of the estate and effects) of the said —, deceased, within the time required by law.

Now, we command you, —, that (all excuses ceasing) within fourteen days from the service of this writ, or a copy thereof, you do deliver to our Commissioners of Inland Revenue an account, upon oath, of the estate and effects of the said —, deceased, and of the true value thereof, and that you do within the same time pay to the said Commissioners of Inland Revenue such duty as would have been duly payable on such probate (or letters of administration) as aforesaid if the same had been duly obtained by you, and the costs of these proceedings; or, that you, the said —, do within the same time appear before the barons of our said Exchequer at Westminster, and shew cause why you make default in the premises, and this you, —, are in nowise to omit upon pain of process of contempt issuing against your person for your neglect therein.

Witness —, at Westminster, the — day of —, in the year of our Lord 186—.

CAP. CV.

An Act to continue the Poor-law Board for a limited Period.
[5th July, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Continuance of the Poor-law Board for one year.

CAP. CVI.

An Act to authorise Loans in aid of the Construction of Docks in British Possessions. [5th July, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Short title.
2. Interpretation of terms.
3. Power to Treasury to issue out of Consolidated Fund any sums not exceeding 300,000*l.* to account of Admiralty.
4. Account of Admiralty to be opened at Bank of England.
5. Money issued to be carried to account of Admiralty.
6. Loans for docks to be out of money issued.
7. Loan not restricted as to powers of borrower.
8. Priority of mortgages under this act.
9. Style of Admiralty in deeds, &c.
10. Signatures, &c. of two commissioners.
11. Mortgaged property to vest in Admiralty, &c.
12. Payment of interest and repayment of principal.
13. Transfer back to Consolidated Fund.
14. Agreements for loans to be laid before Parliament.
15. Agreements before passing of this act confirmed.

CAP. CVII.

An Act to continue certain Turnpike Acts in Great Britain. [5th July, 1865.]

CAP. CVIII.

An Act to confirm certain Provisional Orders under the Local Government Act, 1864, relating to the Districts of Nottingham, Rusholme, Plymouth, Redcar, Cardiff, Kingston-upon-Hull, Guildford, Ramsgate, Ryde, Workington, and Oxford, and for other Purposes relative to certain Districts under the said Act. [5th July, 1865.]

CAP. CIX.

An Act for transferring the Ulster Canal to the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland. [5th July, 1865.]

CAP. CX.

An Act to confirm a certain Provisional Order under the Local Government Act, 1864, relating to the Hastings District. [5th July, 1865.]

CAP. CXI.

An Act to regulate the Disposal of Money and Effects under the Control of the Admiralty, belonging to deceased Officers, Seamen, and Marines of the Royal Navy and Marines, and other Persons. [5th July, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Short title.

2. Interpretation of terms.
3. Residue belonging to deceased officers, seamen, or marines.
4. Residue belonging to deceased persons in civil service of navy.
5. Residue exceeding 100*l.* to be paid to representative.
6. Residue not exceeding 100*l.* to be paid to representative, if any.
7. Power to require certificate, &c. before representation.
8. Residue not exceeding 100*l.*, and no representation, power to pay it to widow, &c.
9. Admiralty not bound to pay to nominee of representative.
10. Admiralty not to dispose of residue for three months, &c.
11. Provision for payment of debts out of residue.
12. Saving for existing claims.
13. Provision as to unsold effects, &c.
14. Disposal of medals and decorations.
15. Exemptions from duty.
16. Validity of payments, sales, &c. under this act.
17. Her Majesty may make Orders in Council.
18. Orders in Council to be published in the London Gazette.
19. Commencement of act.

Be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. This act may be cited as "The Navy and Marines (Property of Deceased) Act, 1865."

2. In this act—

The term "the Admiralty" means the Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, or the Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral:

The term "officer" means a commissioned, warrant, or subordinate officer, or assistant engineer, in her Majesty's naval or marine force:

The term "seaman or marine" means a petty officer or seaman, non-commissioned officer of marines or marine, or other person forming part, in any capacity, of the complement of any of her Majesty's vessels, or otherwise belonging to her Majesty's naval or marine force (not being an officer within the meaning of this act), or a petty officer or man of the Royal Naval Reserve or Naval Coast Volunteers:

The term "representation" includes probate and letters of administration, with or without will annexed:

The term "representative" means any person taking out representation:

The term "person" includes a corporation.

3. On the death of any person being or having been an officer, seaman, or marine, the amount (if any) to the credit of the deceased in the books of the Admiralty, in respect of sale of effects, arrears of pay, wages, prize money, bounty money, grants, or other allowances in the nature thereof, or other money payable by the Admiralty (which amount is hereafter in this act, with reference to every such case, called the residue), shall be disposed of according to the provisions of this act.

4. On the death of any person being or having been employed in any of her Majesty's dockyards or other naval establishment, or in any of the civil departments of the navy, or entitled to an allowance from the Compassionate Fund, or of any widow entitled to a pension on the establishment of the navy, the amount (if any) due by the Admiralty (which amount is hereafter in this act, with reference to every such case, called the residue), shall be disposed of according to the provisions of this act.

5. Where the residue exceeds 100*l.* the Admiralty shall dispose thereof by paying it to the representative of the deceased.

6. Where the residue does not exceed 100*l.* it shall not be necessary for any purpose that representation to the deceased be taken out; but in any case the Admiralty may, if they think fit, require representation to be taken out; and if, on that regulation or otherwise, representation is taken out, then the Admiralty shall dispose of the residue by paying it to the representative.

7. In the case, nevertheless, of a seaman or marine, the Admiralty shall not be bound to pay the residue (whatever be its amount) to the representative of the deceased, if representation has been taken out either by a creditor as such, or by any person without such certificate respecting the title to representation having been first obtained from the Admiralty, or such other regulations or conditions having been duly observed or performed, as is or are prescribed by Order in Council; and in any such case the Admiralty shall dispose of the residue in pursuance of this act as if representation had not been taken out.

8. Where the residue does not exceed 100*l.*, and representation is not taken out, then, subject to the other provisions of this act, the Admiralty shall, as soon as may be, dispose of the residue as follows:—

(1). They shall, if they think fit, pay the residue to any person shewing himself or himself, to their satisfaction, to be entitled to take out representation to the deceased (otherwise than as a creditor)—to the end that the residue may be applied by the person to whom it is so paid in a due course of administration; and the same shall be so applied accordingly (for which application the Admiralty may require such security as they think fit):

(2). Or else the Admiralty shall, if they think fit, pay to the persons (if any) beneficially interested in the residue their respective shares thereof:

(3). And in cases where the foregoing provisions of the present section do not apply, and the amount of the residue appears to the Admiralty insufficient to cover the expense of representation, the Admiralty shall dispose of the residue in manner prescribed by Order in Council.

9. In the case of a seaman or marine, the Admiralty shall not pay the residue, or any part thereof, to any nominee of the representative of the deceased, or of a person entitled to take out representation to the deceased, whether such nominee be appointed by power of attorney or otherwise, unless in special circumstances it appears to the Admiralty safe and proper to make such payment to any such nominee.

10. Notwithstanding anything in this act, the Admiralty shall not in any case dispose of the residue, or any part thereof, otherwise than by paying the same to the representative of the deceased, until after the expiration of three months from the receipt by the Admiralty of notice of the death, unless in special circumstances it appears to the Admiralty safe and proper to dispose of the residue, or any part thereof, at an earlier time.

11. In the case of a seaman or marine, where representation is not taken out, the Admiralty shall, before disposing of the residue, or any part thereof, satisfy out of the residue (as far as the same will extend) any debt of the deceased of which they have notice, subject to the following conditions:—

First.—That the debt accrued due within three years before the death:

Second.—That payment of it is claimed within two years after the death:

Third.—That the claimant proves the debt to the satisfaction of the Admiralty:

Fourth.—That six months have elapsed from the receipt by the Admiralty of notice of the death, and no person has shewn herself or himself to the satisfaction of the Admiralty to be entitled to take out representation to the deceased.

In any such case, any person claiming to be a creditor of the deceased shall not be entitled to obtain payment of his debt out of any money being under this act in the hands of the Admiralty by any means or proceeding whatever, except by means of a claim lodged with the Admiralty, and proceedings thereon, under and according to this act.

12. Nothing in this act shall prejudicially affect the claim of any creditor in respect of a debt incurred before the commencement of this act.

13. The provisions of this act relative to the residue, in the case of a deceased officer, seaman, or marine, shall extend and apply, mutatis mutandis, to unsold effects and money (if any) in charge of the Admiralty.

14. Medals and decorations belonging to an officer, seaman, or marine dying on service shall not be considered as comprised in the personal estate of the deceased with reference to the claims of creditors, or for any of the purposes of administration under this act, or otherwise; and notwithstanding anything in this or any other act, the same shall be held and disposed of according to regulations prescribed by Order in Council.

15. Where the residue does not exceed 100*l.*, and is administered and disposed of under this act without representation being taken out, it shall not be liable to the payment of any duty; and if in any case the Admiralty under this act require security by bond for the application of a residue in due course of administration, the bond shall be exempt from stamp duty where an ordinary administration bond relative to the same residue would be so exempt; but this provision shall not affect any exemption from duty existing independently thereof.

16. Every payment or application of money, and every sale or other disposition of property, made by the Admiralty in pursuance of this act, or of any Order in Council for carrying this act into effect, shall be good and valid as against all persons whomsoever; and the Admiralty shall be, by virtue of this act absolutely discharged from all liability in respect of the money or other property so paid, applied, or disposed of.

17. Her Majesty in Council may from time to time make such Orders in Council as seem meet for the better execution of any of the purposes of this act.

18. Every Order in Council under this act shall be published in the London Gazette, and shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament within thirty days after the making thereof, if Parliament is then sitting, and if not, then within thirty days after the next meeting of Parliament.

19. This act shall commence on such day, not later than the 1st January, 1886, as her Majesty in Council thinks fit to direct.

Any Order in Council for the better execution of any of the purposes of this act may nevertheless be made before that day, but not so as to commence before it.

CAP. CXII.

An Act to repeal Enactments relating to Powers of the Commissioners of the Admiralty, and to various Matters under the Control of the Admiralty. [5th July, 1885.]

Sect. 1. Repeal of enactments in schedule.

2. Commencement of act.

3. Publication of Orders in Council.

4. Short title.

Whereas the enactments described in the schedule to this act relate either to powers of the Admiralty, or to protection of the Royal Dockyards, or to naval and marine pay and pensions, or to wills or property of deceased officers, seamen, and marines, and others, or to matters connected therewith, and the same either have ceased to be in force, or on the commencement of divers acts of the present session will cease to be in force, and it is therefore expedient that the same be expressly repealed: be it therefore enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. The enactments described in the schedule to this act are hereby repealed; but this repeal shall not affect the past operation of any such enactment, or the force or operation of any Order in Council, or regulation or instruction made or given, or the validity or invalidity of anything done or suffered, or any right, title, obligation, or liability accrued, before the commencement of this act; nor shall this act interfere with the institution or prosecution of any proceeding in respect of any offence committed against, or any penalty or forfeiture incurred under, any enactment hereby repealed.

2. This act shall commence on such day, not later than the 1st January, 1886, as her Majesty in Council thinks fit to direct; nevertheless her Majesty in Council may, if it seems fit, with reference to any places out of the United Kingdom, direct that this act do not, in respect of the repeal of any of the enactments in the schedule described, commence there, respectively, until a time after that day, and with respect to every such place the time so appointed shall be deemed the time of commencement of this act.

3. Every Order in Council under this act shall be published in the London Gazette, and shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament within thirty days after the making thereof, if Parliament is then sitting; and if not, then within thirty days after the next meeting of Parliament.

4. This act may be cited as "The Admiralty, &c. Acts Repeal Act, 1885."

SCHEDULE.

ENACTMENTS REPEALED.

9 & 10 Will. 3, c. 41 (9 Will. 3, c. 41, in the Statutes of the Realm)—An Act for the better preventing the Imbezzlement of His Majesty's Stores of War, and preventing Cheats, Frauds, and Abuses in paying Seamen's Wages.

4 Ann. c. 16 (4 & 5 Ann. c. 3, in the Statutes of the Realm), in part—An Act for the Amendment of the Law and the better Advancement of Justice.—In part, namely, sect. 26.

9 Geo. 3, c. 30—An Act for repealing so much of an Act passed in the Tenth Year of Her late Majesty Queen Anne as relates to the Harbour Moorings of the Royal Navy, and for the more effectual Preservation of such Moorings, and Punishment of Persons guilty of stealing or embezzling Her Majesty's Naval Stores, or of Forgery or Perjury in relation to Seamen's Wages.

54 Geo. 3, c. 150, in part—An Act for the better Regulation of the several Ports, Harbours, Roadsteads, Sounds, Channels, Bays, and navigable Rivers in the United Kingdom, and of His Majesty's Docks, Dockyards, Arsenals, Wharfs, Moorings, and Stores therein; and for repealing several Acts passed for that Purpose.—In part, namely, sects. 2 to 9, and 17 to 20 (all inclusive).

57 Geo. 3, c. 118—An Act for authorising the Executors or Administrators of deceased licensed Navy Agents to receive Prize Money, Bounty Money, and other Allowances of Money upon Orders given to such deceased Agents.

59 Geo. 3, c. 56—An Act to make further Regulations as to the Payment of Navy Prize Orders.

59 Geo. 3, c. 59—An Act to extend the Provisions of an Act made in the Fifty-fifth Year of His present Majesty, for the Payment of Wages due to deceased Seamen and Marines, to Wages due to intestate Bastards.

1 Geo. 4, c. 85—An Act to make further Provisions respecting Naval Prize Money.

- 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 93—An Act for vesting all Estates and Property occupied by or for the Naval Service of this Kingdom in the Principal Officers and Commissioners of His Majesty's Navy, and for granting certain Powers to the said Principal Officers and Commissioners.
- 10 Geo. 4, c. 26, in part—An Act for transferring the Management of Greenwich Out-Pensions and certain Duties in Matters of Prize to the Treasurer of the Navy.—In part, namely, sects. 11, 13, 14, and 32.
- 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 20, in part—An Act to amend and consolidate the Laws relating to the Pay of the Royal Navy.—Except sect. 80.
- 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 41, in part—An Act to make further Regulations with respect to Army Pensions.—In part, namely, sect. 3, as far as relates to naval or marine pensions.
- 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 40, in part—An Act to amend the Laws relating to the Business of the Civil Department of the Navy, and to make other Regulations for more effectually carrying on the Duties of the said Department.—Except sects. 1, 5, 6, and 7.
- 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 25—An Act to alter and amend the Provisions of an Act passed in the Eleventh Year of the Reign of His late Majesty King George the Fourth, for amending and consolidating the Laws relating to the Pay of the Royal Navy.
- 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 24—An Act for the Encouragement of the voluntary Enlistment of Seamen, and to make Regulations for more effectually manning Her Majesty's Navy.—In part, namely, sect. 7.
- 7 Will. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 26, in part—An Act for the Amendment of the Laws with respect to Wills.—In part, namely, sect. 12.
- 5 Vict. c. 3—An Act to alter an Act of the Eleventh Year of King George the Fourth, for amending the Laws relating to the Pay of the Royal Navy, and an Act of the Fifth Year of King William the Fourth, to alter the Provisions of the said Act.
- 6 & 7 Vict. c. 58—An Act to enable Her Majesty to acquire Lands for the Enlargement of Her Majesty's Dockyards, and for other Naval Purposes.
- 13 & 14 Vict. c. 62—An Act to alter and extend an Act passed in the Eleventh Year of King George the Fourth, for amending and consolidating the Laws relating to the Pay of the Royal Navy.
- 15 & 16 Vict. c. 46—An Act to amend an Act of the Eleventh Year of King George the Fourth, for amending and consolidating the Laws relating to the Pay of the Royal Navy.
- 16 & 17 Vict. c. 60, in part—An Act to make better Provision concerning the Entry and Service of Seamen, and otherwise to amend the Laws concerning Her Majesty's Navy.—In part, namely, sects. 3, 11, and 19.
- 17 & 18 Vict. c. 19, in part—An Act for facilitating the Payment of Her Majesty's Navy, and the Payment and Distribution of Prize Bounty, Salvage, and other Moneys to and amongst the Officers and Crews of Her Majesty's Ships and Vessels of War, and for the better Regulation of the Accounts relating thereto.—In part, namely, sect. 13.
- 26 & 27 Vict. c. 30—An Act to authorise further Harbour Regulations for the Protection of Her Majesty's Ships, Dockyards, and Naval Stations.

CAP. CXIII.

An Act to authorise the Payment of Retiring Pensions to Colonial Governors. [5th July, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Definition of "colony."
 2. Full rate of pension as herein stated.
 3. Reduced rate.
 4. When full rate may be granted.
 5. When reduced rate may be granted.
 6. Permanent civil service not to be counted under this or any other act.
 7. Deductions from pension on account of half pay, &c.
 8. Advancement to high rates of pension.
 9. Person receiving pension bound to accept employment till of age of sixty; not to relinquish it till sixty-five.
 10. As to pension of person also employed in civil service.

11. What to be deemed employment in civil service.
 12. Secretary of State to determine when an officer is in administration of Government.
 13. Statement of pensions to be laid before Parliament.

CAP. CXIV.

An Act for confirming, with Amendments, certain Provisional Orders made by the Board of Trade under the General Pier and Harbour Act, 1861, relating to Eastbourne, Clevedon, Horne Bay, Llandrillo, and Pensarn.

[5th July, 1865.]

CAP. CXV.

An Act to amend the Naval Discipline Act, 1864.

[5th July, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Amendment of act of 1864 as to minimum term of penal servitude.

2. Short title.

Be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. With respect to any sentence of penal servitude passed after the passing of this act under the Naval Discipline Act, 1864, paragraph (4), of sect. 49 of that act, shall have effect as if the words "not less than five years" were substituted therein for the words "not less than three years."

2. The act may be cited as "The Naval Discipline Act Amendment Act, 1865."

CAP. CXVI.

An Act to explain the Foreign Jurisdiction Act.

[5th July, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Meaning of "British colony" in the 6 & 7 Vict. c. 94.

2. Short title.

Be it declared and enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. In the Foreign Jurisdiction Act (that is to say, the act of the session of the 6 & 7 Vict. c. 94, "to remove doubts as to the exercise of power and jurisdiction by her Majesty within divers countries and places out of her Majesty's dominions, and to render the same more effectual,") the term "British colony" includes, and shall be construed to include, any of her Majesty's possessions out of the United Kingdom.

2. This act may be cited as "The Foreign Jurisdiction Act Amendment Act, 1865."

CAP. CXVII.

An Act to regulate the Appointment of a Vicar or Incumbent to the Vicarage of the Parish Church of Rochdale, in the County of Lancaster, and in the Diocese of Manchester.

[5th July, 1865.]

CAP. CXVIII.

An Act to continue and amend the Peace Preservation (Ireland) Act, 1856.

[5th July, 1865.]

CAP. CXIX.

An Act for continuing various expiring Acts.

[5th July, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Short title.

2. Continuance of acts in schedule.

Whereas the several acts mentioned in the first column of the schedule hereto are wholly, or, as to certain provisions thereof, limited to expire at the times specified in respect of such acts in the fourth column of the said schedule: and whereas it is expedient to continue such acts, in so far as they are temporary in their duration, for the times mentioned in respect of such acts respectively in the fifth column of the said schedule: be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. This act may be cited for all purposes as "The Expiring Laws Continuance Act, 1865."

2. The acts mentioned in column 1 of the said schedule, and the acts, if any, amending the same, shall, in so far as such acts, or any provisions thereof, are temporary in their duration, be continued until the times respectively specified in respect of such acts in the fifth column of the said schedule.

SCHEDULE.

1. Original Acts.	2. Amending Acts.	3. How far temporary.	4. Time of Expiration of temporary Provisions.	5. Continued until
3 & 4 Vict. c. 89. Poor Rates, Stock-in-Trade Exemption.	. . .	Whole Act . .	1st October, 1865, and end of then next session. (26 & 27 Vict. c. 95).	1st October, 1866, and end of then next session.
4 & 5 Vict. c. 59. Application of Highway Rates to Turnpike Roads.	. . .	Whole Act . .	1st October, 1865, and end of then next session. (23 & 24 Vict. c. 67).	1st October, 1870, and end of then next session.
10 Vict. c. 32. Landed Property Improvement (Ireland).	13 & 14 Vict. c. 31.	As to powers of Commissioners.	1st January, 1865, and end of then next session. (26 & 27 Vict. c. 95).	1st January, 1866, and end of then next session.
10 & 11 Vict. c. 90. Poor Laws (Ireland).	14 & 15 Vict. c. 68.	As to appointment of Commissioners, &c.	23rd July, 1865, and end of then next session. (27 & 28 Vict. c. 84).	23rd July, 1866, and end of then next session.
10 & 11 Vict. c. 98. Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction.	. . .	As to provisions continued by 21 & 22 c. 50.	1st August, 1865, and end of then next session. (27 & 28 Vict. c. 84).	1st August, 1867, and end of then next session.
11 & 12 Vict. c. 32. County Cess (Ireland).	20 & 21 Vict. c. 7.	Whole Act . .	1st August, 1865, and end of then next session. (27 & 28 Vict. c. 84).	1st August, 1866, and end of then next session.
11 & 12 Vict. c. 107. Sheep and Cattle diseased.	16 & 17 Vict. c. 62.	Whole Act . .	1st August, 1865, and end of then next session. (27 & 28 Vict. c. 84).	1st August, 1866, and end of then next session.
14 & 15 Vict. c. 104. Episcopal and Capitular Estates Management.	17 & 18 Vict. c. 116. 22 & 23 Vict. c. 46. 23 & 24 Vict. c. 124.	Whole Act . .	1st January, 1865, and end of then next session. (27 & 28 Vict. c. 84).	1st January, 1866, and end of then next session.
17 & 18 Vict. c. 117. Incumbered Estates (West Indies).	21 & 22 Vict. c. 96. 25 & 26 Vict. c. 45. 27 & 28 Vict. c. 108.	As to appointment of Commissioners.	2nd August, 1865. (27 & 28 Vict. c. 84).	2nd August, 1867, and end of then next session.
24 & 25 Vict. c. 109. Salmon Fishery (England) Act.	. . .	As to appointment of Inspectors, sect. 31.	1st October, 1865. (27 & 28 Vict. c. 84).	1st October, 1866, and end of then next session.
25 & 26 Vict. c. 97. Salmon Fisheries (Scotland) Act.	26 & 27 Vict. c. 50. 27 & 28 Vict. c. 118.	As to powers of Commissioners, &c.	1st January, 1866 . .	1st January, 1867.
26 & 27 Vict. c. 114. Salmon Fisheries (Ireland).	. . .	As to duration of office of the Special Commissioners for Irish Fisheries, and all powers, rights, and privileges pertaining thereto.	28th July, 1865, and end of then next session.	28th July, 1866, and end of then next session.
17 & 28 Vict. c. 92. Public Schools.	. . .	Whole Act . .	1st August, 1865. . .	1st August, 1866.

CAP. CXX.

An Act to amend the Acts relating to the Preservation and Improvement of Harwich Harbour. [5th July, 1865.]

CAP. CXXI.

An Act to amend the Salmon Fishery Act, 1861. [5th July, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Short title.
2. Construction of act.
3. Definition of terms.
4. Power to justices of county to apply for formation of fishery districts.
5. Limits of river and of fishery district, how settled.
6. Appointment of conservators to district within limits of one county.
7. Committee for fishery district in different counties.
8. Application for appointment of joint committee.
9. Appointment of fishery committee.
10. Notice of appointment of fishery committee.
11. Proceedings of joint fishery committee.
12. Meeting of joint fishery committee.
13. Dissolution of a joint fishery committee.
14. Ex officio members of board.
15. Tenure of office by conservators.
16. Notice of appointment of conservators.
17. Cesser of powers of existing conservators.
18. Rules as to objections and evidence.

19. Provision as to common estuary.
20. Alterations of fishery district.
21. Constitution of board of conservators.
22. Proceedings of board.
23. Appointment of committees.
24. Amendment of sect. 18 of Salmon Fishery Act, 1861.
25. Vacancies in board, and defect in qualification of members.
26. Evidence of proceedings at meeting.
27. Enumeration of powers of board of conservators.
28. Mortgage of license duties.
29. Audit of accounts of board.
30. Power of water bailiff for protection of fisheries.
31. Order for entry of water bailiff on land.
32. Alteration of fish pass or free gap.
33. Issue of licenses.
34. Rules as to licenses.
35. Penalty on fishing with rod without license.
36. Penalty on fishing at weirs or with nets without license.
37. Production of license.
38. County of city or county of town included under the term "county."
39. Amendment of provisions relating to fixed engines.
40. Commissioners to inquire as to fixed engines.
41. Certificate as to privileged engines.
42. Commissioners to inquire as to fishing weirs.
43. Notices of courts of commissioners.
44. Hearing as to legality of fixed engines.

45. Appeal from decision of special commissioners.
46. Appointment of commissioners under sign manual.
47. Commissioners to have a common seal.
48. Commissioners not to sit in Parliament.
49. Acts of the commissioners.
50. The Treasury to fix salaries, &c., and appoint additional officers.
51. Duration of office of commissioners.
52. Powers of commissioners.
53. Copies of orders of commissioners.
54. Penalty for false swearing.
55. Proceedings not to abate by death, &c.
56. Power in certain cases to award imprisonment with hard labour instead of penalty.
57. Minimum penalties.
58. Forfeiture of nets, &c.
59. Limit of time for compensation for fish pass.
60. Consent of conservators necessary for artificial propagation of salmon.
61. As to disqualification of justices.
62. Payment of penalties to conservators in certain cases.
63. River Esk within limits of act.
64. Partial application of Salmon Acts to trout in salmon rivers.
65. Provisions as to exportation of salmon.
66. Appeal to quarter sessions in case of summary conviction.

CAP. CXXII.

An Act to amend the Law as to the Subscriptions and Declarations to be made, and Oaths to be taken, by the Clergy of the Established Church of England and Ireland. [5th July, 1865.]

- Sect. 1. Declaration of assent.
 2. Declaration against simony.
 3. Stipendiary curate's declaration.
 4. Subscription and oaths on ordination.
 5. Subscription and oaths on institution to benefice or license to a perpetual curacy, &c.
 6. Declaration on taking stipendiary curacy.
 7. Declaration after institution or collation.
 8. Declaration after license to stipendiary curacy.
 9. No other declaration or oaths than those required by act to be enforced.
 10. Declaration of assent to be substituted in case of other ecclesiastical appointments.
 11. Oaths to be administered during ordination or consecration services.
 12. Nothing to affect oath of canonical obedience to bishops, &c.
 13. Extent of act.
 14. Short title.
 15. As to repeal of acts in schedule.

Whereas it is expedient that the subscriptions, declarations, and oaths required to be made and taken by the clergy of the United Church of England and Ireland should be altered and simplified: be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. The following declaration is hereinafter referred to as "the declaration of assent:—

"I, A. B., do solemnly make the following declaration:—I assent to the Thirty-nine Articles of Religion, and to the Book of Common Prayer, and of the ordering of bishops, priests, and deacons. I believe the doctrine of the United Church of England and Ireland, as therein set forth, to be agreeable to the Word of God; and in public prayer and administration of the sacraments I will use the form in the said book prescribed, and none other, except so far as shall be ordered by lawful authority."

2. The following declaration is hereinafter referred to as "the declaration against simony:—

"I, A. B., solemnly declare, that I have not made, by myself or by any other person on my behalf, any payment, contract, or promise of any kind whatsoever which to the best of my knowledge or belief is simoniacal, touching or concerning the obtaining the preferment of —, nor will I at any time hereafter perform or satisfy, in whole or in part, any such kind of payment, contract, or promise made by any other without my knowledge or consent."

3. The following declaration is hereinafter referred to as "the stipendiary curate's declaration:—

"I, A. B., incumbent of —, in the county of —, bonâ fide undertake to pay to C. D., of —, in the county of —, the annual sum of £—, as a stipend for his services as curate, and I, C. D., bonâ fide intend to receive the whole of the said stipend."

"And each of us, the said A. B. and C. D., declare that no abatement is to be made out of the said stipend in respect of rent or consideration for the use of the glebe house; and that I, A. B., undertake to pay the same, and I, C. D., intend to receive the same, without any deduction or abatement whatsoever."

4. Every person about to be ordained priest or deacon shall, before ordination, in the presence of the archbishop or bishop by whom he is about to be ordained, at such time as he may appoint, make and subscribe the declaration of assent, and take and subscribe the oath of allegiance and supremacy according to the form set forth in the act of 21 & 22 Vict. c. 48.

5. Every person about to be instituted or collated to any benefice, or to be licensed to any perpetual curacy, lectureship, or preachship, shall, before institution or collation is made or license granted, make and subscribe the declaration of assent, and the declaration against simony, and take the said oath of allegiance and supremacy, in the presence of the archbishop or bishop by whom he is to be instituted, collated, or licensed, or the commissary of such archbishop or bishop.

6. Every person about to be licensed to a stipendiary curacy shall, before obtaining such license, present to the archbishop or bishop by whom the license is to be granted, the stipendiary curate's declaration, signed by himself and by the incumbent of the benefice to which he is about to be licensed.

7. Every person instituted or collated to any benefice with cure of souls, or licensed to a perpetual curacy, shall, on the first Lord's-day on which he officiates in the church of such benefice or perpetual curacy, or on such other Lord's-day as the ordinary may appoint and allow, publicly and openly, in the presence of the congregation there assembled, read the Thirty-nine Articles of Religion, and immediately after reading the same make the said declaration of assent, adding, after the words "Articles of Religion," in the said declaration, the words "which I have now read before you."

If any person instituted, collated, or licensed as aforesaid wilfully fails to comply with the provisions of this section, he shall absolutely forfeit his benefice or perpetual curacy, but no title to present by lapse shall accrue by any such forfeiture until the ordinary has given six months' notice thereof to the patron.

8. Every person licensed to a stipendiary curacy shall, in the presence of the archbishop or bishop by whom he was licensed, or of the commissary of such archbishop or bishop (unless, having been ordained on the same day, he has already made and subscribed the same), make and subscribe the declaration of assent, and on the first Lord's-day on which he officiates in the church or in one of the churches in which he is licensed to serve publicly, and openly make a declaration of assent in the presence of the congregation there assembled, and at the time of divine service.

If any person licensed to a stipendiary curacy wilfully fails to comply with the provisions of this section his license shall be void.

9. Subject as hereinafter mentioned, no person shall, on or as a consequence of ordination, or on or as a consequence of being licensed to any stipendiary curacy, or on or as a consequence of being presented, instituted, collated, elected, or licensed to any benefice, perpetual curacy, lectureship, or preachship, be required to make any subscription or declaration, or take any oath, other than such subscriptions, declarations, and oaths as are required by this act.

10. On all occasions other than those hereinbefore provided for, on which any declaration or subscription with respect to the Thirty-nine Articles, or the Book of Common Prayer, or the Liturgy is required to be made by any person in holy orders appointed to any ecclesiastical dignity, benefice, or office, the making and subscribing the declaration of assent shall be substituted for the making any such declaration or subscription as aforesaid; and on all occasions other than those hereinbefore provided, on which any oath against simony is required to be taken, the making and subscribing the declaration against simony shall be substituted for the taking such oath.

11. No oath shall be administered during the service for the ordering of deacons, or during the service for the offering of priests, or during the service for the consecration of archbishops and bishops.

12. Nothing in this act contained shall extend to or affect the oath of canonical obedience to the bishop, or the oath of due obedience to the archbishop taken by bishops on consecration.

13. That this act do extend to the islands of Guernsey, Jersey, Alderney, and Sark, and to the Isle of Man.

14. This act may be cited for all purposes as "The Clerical Subscription Act, 1865."

15. The enactments described in the schedule hereto, and all enactments amending, confirming, or continuing the same, and all other enactments inconsistent with this act, are hereby repealed.

SCHEDULE.

ENACTMENTS REPEALED.

28 Hen. 6, c. 15 (Irish).—The whole of sects. 9 and 10.

1 Eliz. c. 1.—An Act to restore to the Crown the ancient Jurisdiction over the Estate Ecclesiastical and Spiritual, and abolishing all foreign Powers repugnant to the same.—Sects. 19, 20, 21, 22, and 23, so far as they relate to any oath to be taken by a person who is ordained or licensed to a stipendiary curacy, or presented, instituted, collated, elected, or licensed to any benefice, perpetual curacy, lectureship, or preachingship.

2 Eliz. c. 1 (Irish).—An Act restoring to the Crown the ancient Jurisdiction over the Estate Ecclesiastical and Spiritual, and abolishing all foreign Power repugnant to the same.—Sects. 7, 8, and 9, so far as they relate to any oath to be taken by a person who is ordained or licensed to a stipendiary curacy, or presented, instituted, collated, elected, or licensed to any benefice, perpetual curacy, lectureship, or preachingship.

13 Eliz. c. 12.—An Act for the Ministers of the Church to be of the sound Religion.—The whole of sect. 3, except the words following:—"No person shall hereafter be admitted to any benefice with cure, except he then be of the age of three-and-twenty years at the least, and a deacon."

And so much of sect. 5 as provides that no one shall be admitted to the order of deacon or ministry unless he shall first subscribe to the said Articles.

13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4.—An Act for the Uniformity of Public Prayers and Administration of Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies, and for establishing the Form of making, ordaining, and consecrating Bishops, Priests, and Deacons in the Church of England.—The whole of sects. 6, 8, and 11, and sect. 19, except the words following:—"No person shall be or be received as a lecturer, or permitted, suffered, or allowed to preach as a lecturer, or to preach or read any sermon or lecture in any church, chapel, or other place of public worship within this realm of England, or the dominion of Wales and town of Berwick-upon-Tweed, unless he be first approved and thereunto licensed by the archbishop of the province or bishop of the diocese, or (in case the see be void) by the guardian of the spiritualities under his seal."

17 & 18 Car. 2, c. 6 (Irish).—The whole of sects. 3, 5, and 6, and sect. 18, except the words following:—"That no person shall be or be received as a lecturer, or permitted, suffered, or allowed to preach as a lecturer, or to preach or read any sermon or lecture in any church, chapel, or other place of public worship within this realm of Ireland, unless he be first approved and thereunto licensed by the archbishop of the province or bishop of the diocese, or (in case the see be void) by the guardian of the spiritualities under his seal."

1 Will. & M. c. 9.—An Act for the abrogating the Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance, and appointing other Oaths.—The whole act, so far as relates to any oath to be taken by any person who is ordained or is licensed to a stipendiary curacy, or presented, instituted, collated, elected, or licensed to any benefice, perpetual curacy, lectureship, or preachingship.

8 Will. & M. c. 2.—An Act for the abrogating the Oath of Supremacy in Ireland, and appointing other Oaths.—So much of sect. 4 as relates to persons admitted to any ecclesiastical office or employment.

1 Geo. 1, st. 2, c. 13.—An Act for the further Security of His Majesty's Person and Government, and the Succession of the Crown in the Heirs of the late Princess Sophia, being Protestants, and for extinguishing the Hopes of the pretended Prince of Wales, and his open and secret Abettors.—Sects. 2 and 7, so far as they relate to any oath to be taken by any person who is ordained or is licensed to a stipendiary curacy, or presented, instituted, collated, elected, or licensed to any benefice, perpetual curacy, lectureship, or preachingship.

23 Geo. 2, c. 36.—The whole act.

1 & 2 Vict. c. 106.—Part of sect. 81, beginning with the words "and in every case in which application shall be made," to the end of the section.

CAP. CXXIII.

An Act to apply a Sum out of the Consolidated Fund and the Surplus of Ways and Means to the Service of the Year ending the 31st March, 1866, and to appropriate the Supplies granted in this Session of Parliament.

[6th July, 1865.]

CAP. CXXIV.

An Act for consolidating certain Enactments relating to the Admiralty.

[8th July, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Provisions of the 27 & 28 Vict. c. 57, to apply to this act.

2. Style of Commissioners of Admiralty in suits. As to costs.

3. Prerogatives of the Crown in suits preserved, &c.

4. Saving for proceeding by information, &c.

5. Superintendents of dockyards to be justices for certain purposes.

6. Punishment for uttering false petitions, certificates, &c.

7. Parts of the 24 & 25 Vict. c. 98, incorporated.

8. Punishment for personation of seamen, &c.

9. Saving for punishment under other acts, &c.

10. Commencement of act.

11. As to publication of Orders in Council.

12. Short title.

Be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. The provisions of the Admiralty Lands and Works Act, 1804, respecting the user of lands, and respecting powers of management and leasing, and other rights and powers relative to lands, and respecting recovery of possession and sale of lands, and respecting actions and suits by and against the Admiralty relative to lands, shall apply in relation to all lands for the time being vested in, or purchased by, the Commissioners of the Admiralty.

2. Except as otherwise expressly provided, the Commissioners of the Admiralty for the time being may be styled, in any action, suit, or other proceeding at law or in equity, "The Commissioners for executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom," without more; and any action, suit, or proceeding shall not be affected by any change among the Commissioners of the Admiralty; and in any action, suit, or proceeding the Commissioners of the Admiralty shall be liable and entitled to pay or receive costs according to the ordinary law and practice relative to costs.

3. Nothing in this act, or in the Admiralty Lands and Works Act, 1864, shall take away or abridge in any action or suit the legal rights, privileges, and prerogatives of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, but in all actions and suits instituted by or against the Commissioners of the Admiralty, and in all proceedings and matters connected therewith, the Commissioners of the Admiralty may exercise and enjoy all such rights, privileges, and prerogatives as are for the time being exercised and enjoyed in any action or suit in any court of law or equity by her Majesty, her heirs or successors, as if the Crown were actually a party to such action or suit.

4. Notwithstanding anything in this act, or in the Admiralty Lands and Works Act, 1864, it shall be lawful for her

* The numbers of the sections correspond with the numbers in the ordinary edition of the statutes.

Majesty, her heirs and successors, to proceed by information in the Court of Exchequer, or by any other Crown process, legal or equitable, in any case in which it would have been competent for her Majesty, her heirs or successors, so to proceed, if no provisions respecting procedure had been inserted in this act, or in the Admiralty Lands and Works Act, 1864.

5. The superintendents of her Majesty's dockyards shall be in all places justices of the peace in respect of all offences specified in this act, and of all matters relating to her Majesty's naval service, and the stores, provisions, and accounts thereof.

6. If any person, in order to sustain any claim to any pay, wages, allotment, prize money, bounty money, grant, or other allowance in the nature thereof, half-pay, pension, or allowance from the Compassionate Fund of the Navy, or other money payable by the Admiralty, or to any effects or money in charge of the Admiralty, or in order to procure any person to be admitted a pensioner as the widow of an officer of the navy, does any of the following things, namely, offers or utters to any person in the service of the Crown or the Admiralty any false affidavit, knowing the same to be false, or makes or subscribes, or offers or utters, as aforesaid, any false written petition, application, statement, answer, certificate, or voucher, or other false writing, knowing the same to be false—every such person shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and, being convicted thereof, shall be liable, at the discretion of the court, to be kept in penal servitude for any term not exceeding five years, or to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour, and with or without solitary confinement, or on summary conviction before a justice, sheriff, or magistrate shall be liable to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding six months, with or without hard labour.

7. The following sections of the act of the session of the 24 & 25 Vict. (c. 98), "to consolidate and amend the Statute Law of England and Ireland relating to indictable Offences by Forgery," shall be incorporated with this act, and shall be read as if they were here re-enacted, namely—sects. 40 to 42 and 50 to 53 (all inclusive); and for this purpose the expression "this act," used in the said incorporated sections, shall be construed to include the present act, and expressions therein used relating to forgery or forged writings shall be construed to apply to any act being a misdemeanour under the last foregoing provision of this act, and to writings made, subscribed, offered, or uttered in contravention of that provision.

8. If any person, in order to receive any pay, wages, allotment, prize money, bounty money, grant, or other allowance in the nature thereof, half-pay, pension, or allowance from the Compassionate Fund of the Navy, payable or supposed to be payable by the Admiralty, or any other money so payable or supposed to be payable, or any effects or money in charge or supposed to be in charge of the Admiralty, falsely and deceitfully personates any person entitled or supposed to be entitled to receive the same, every such person shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and being convicted thereof shall be liable, at the discretion of the court, to be kept in penal servitude for any term not exceeding five years, or to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour, and with or without solitary confinement, or on summary conviction before a justice, sheriff, or magistrate, shall be liable to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding six months, with or without hard labour.

9. Nothing in this act shall prevent any person from being proceeded against and punished under any other act or at common law in respect of an offence (if any) punishable as well under this act as under any other act or at common law.

10. This act shall commence on such day, not later than the 1st January, 1866, as her Majesty in Council thinks fit to direct.

11. Every Order in Council under this act shall be published in the London Gazette, and shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament within thirty days after the making thereof, if Parliament is then sitting, and if not then within thirty days after the next meeting of Parliament.

12. This act may be cited as "The Admiralty Powers, &c. Act, 1865."

CAP. CXXV.

An Act for the Regulation of Dockyard Ports.

[6th July, 1865.]

1. Short title.
2. Interpretation of terms.
3. Power to define limits.
4. Appointment of Queen's harbour masters.
5. Fort regulations to be made by Orders in Council.
6. Penalties in such orders.
7. Orders in Council to be made as to lights, prevention of collision, &c., with concurrence of Board of Trade.
8. As to the printing and sale of orders.
9. Publication of orders.
10. Effect of order.
11. Power for Queen's harbour master to unmoor vessels, &c.
12. Power to search, &c.
13. Power to remove wreck, &c.
14. Power to remove unserviceable vessels.
15. Recovery of expenses of removal of wreck, &c.
16. Recovery of expenses by owner from master, &c.
17. Summary proceedings for penalties, &c.
18. Application of penalties.
19. Penalties, &c. may be raised by sale of vessel.
20. Service of summons.
21. Local jurisdiction.
22. Jurisdiction of justice of the peace.
23. Saving for right of property, &c.
24. Limitation of actions, &c.
25. Commencement of act.
26. Orders in Council to be laid before Houses of Parliament.

CAP. CXXVI.

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law relating to Prisons.

[6th July, 1865.]

1. Short title.
2. Commencement of act.
3. Application of act.
4. Definition of terms.
5. Description of "prison authorities."
6. Definition of "justices in sessions assembled."
7. Contracts, &c. by prison authority in counties.
8. Maintenance of prisons by separate prison jurisdiction.
9. Definition of separate prison jurisdiction.
10. Officers of prison.
11. Appointment of chaplain to two prisons.
12. Assistant chaplains and deputy gaoler.
13. Notice to be sent to bishop as to chaplains and assistant chaplains.
14. Tenure of office and salaries of prison officers.
15. Superannuation of officers.
16. Removal of prison officers from apartments.
17. Requisitions of act as to separation of prisoners.
18. Cells to be certified for confinement of prisoners.
19. Requisitions of act as to hard labour.
20. Regulations as to government of prisons.
21. Rules in addition to regulations in schedule.
22. Inspector of prisons to leave a minute of observation.
23. Power to build prisons.
24. Conditions as to building prisons.
25. Mode of obtaining sanction of Secretary of State to building of prisons.
26. Approval of Secretary of State.
27. Charge of borrowed moneys.
28. Certain clauses of the 10 & 11 Vict. c. 16, as to borrowing money, incorporated.
29. Public Works Loan Commissioners to lend money for building prisons.
30. Appointment of surveyor-general of prisons.
31. Contracts by prison authorities for maintenance of prisoners.
32. Expenses of contracts between prison authorities.
33. Appropriation of prisons for purposes of classification.
34. Public notice of prisons being appropriated to certain prisoners.
35. Government allowance withheld from inadequate prisons.

36. Power of Secretary of State to close inadequate prisons.
37. Assisting prisoners to escape.
38. Punishment for carrying spirituous liquors or tobacco into prison.
39. Punishment for carrying letters into and out of prisons.
40. Notice of penalties to be placed outside of prison.
41. When term of imprisonment expires on Sunday, prisoner to be discharged on preceding day.
42. Allowance to discharged prisoner.
43. Discharged prisoners provided with means of returning to place of settlement.
44. Certain provisions of the 8 & 9 Vict. c. 18, incorporated.
45. Confirmation of title to lands purchased for purpose of prison.
46. Sale of unnecessary prisons.
47. Conditions of sale.
48. Inquests on prisoners.
49. General issue may be pleaded to action.
50. Venus where laid.
51. Provision as to arbitration.
52. Recovery of penalties.
53. Appointment of visiting justices.
54. Power to make rules as to visiting justices.
55. Visits to prison by any justice.
56. Abolition of distinction between gaol and house of correction.
57. Jurisdiction over prison.
58. Custody of prisoners.
59. Security to sheriff.
60. Responsibility of sheriff.
61. Description of prison in writ.
62. Gaoler of prison to deliver calendar.
63. Removal of prisoners for trial.
64. Removal of prisoners in other cases.
65. Her Majesty may order prisoners to be removed from one prison to another.
66. Custody and trial of prisoners in a substituted prison.
67. Misdemeanants of first division.
68. Prohibition of committals to prisons in second schedule.
69. Removal of prisoners in scheduled prisons.
70. Expenses of prisoners confined in county prisons under act.
71. Power to use scheduled prisons as lock-up houses.
72. Power to allow compensation to persons deprived of office.
73. Acts and parts of acts in third schedule repealed.
74. No repeal hereby enacted to affect any order made, &c.
75. Certificates as to calls.
76. Saving as to repealed provisions referred to in other acts.
77. Saving as to meaning of Gaol Act, 25 & 26 Vict. c. 44.
78. Saving of rights of creditors.
79. Saving of superannuation allowances.
80. Saving as to rules.
81. Saving as to appointment of officers.
82. Saving as to commissions.

Whereas it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to prisons in England: be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Preliminary.

1. This act may be cited for all purposes as "The Prison Act, 1865."
2. This act shall come into operation on the 1st February, 1866, which day is hereinafter referred to as the commencement of the act.
3. This act shall not extend to Scotland or Ireland, and shall not apply to the prisons for convicts under the superintendence of the directors of convict prisons, or to any military or naval prison.
4. In this act, and in any act implied or incorporated by this act, the expressions hereinafter mentioned shall have the meanings hereinafter attached to them, unless there is something in the tenor of the act inconsistent with such meanings; that is to say—

- "Municipal borough" shall mean any place for the time being subject to the Municipal Corporation Act passed in the session of the 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76, and any acts amending the same, and "borough" shall include "municipal borough."
- "Prison" shall mean gaol, house of correction, bridewell, or penitentiary; it shall also include the airing grounds or other grounds or buildings occupied by prison officers for the use of the prison and contiguous thereto:
- "Gaoler" shall mean governor, keeper, or other chief officer of a prison:
- "Clerk of the peace" shall include any officer performing similar duties to those of a clerk of the peace:
- "Treasurer" shall include any officer performing duties similar to those of treasurer:
- "Quarter sessions" shall include "general sessions:"
- "Criminal prisoner" shall mean any prisoner charged with or convicted of a crime.
5. The persons hereinafter named shall be prison authorities for the purposes of this act; that is to say—
 - (1). As respects any prison belonging to any county, except as hereinafter mentioned, or to any riding, division, hundred, or liberty of a county, having a separate court of quarter sessions, the justices in quarter sessions assembled:
 - (2). As respects any prison belonging to a county divided into ridings or divisions, and maintained at the common expense of such ridings or divisions, the justices of the county assembled at a court of gaol sessions held in manner provided by the act of the 5 Geo. 4, c. 12:
 - (3). As respects any prison belonging to the city of London, or the liberties thereof, the court of the lord mayor and aldermen:
 - (4). As respects any prison belonging to a municipal borough, the council of the borough:
 - (5). As respects any prison belonging to any district, liberty, city, borough, or town having a separate prison jurisdiction, and not hereinbefore mentioned, the justices, council, or other persons having power at law to build, enlarge, or repair such building, assembled at any gaol session or other formal meeting of their body.
6. The expression "justices in sessions assembled" shall mean as follows; that is to say—
 - (1). As respects any prison belonging to any county, except as hereinafter mentioned, or to any riding, division, hundred, or liberty of a county, having a separate court of quarter sessions, the justices in quarter sessions assembled:
 - (2). As respects any prison belonging to any county divided into ridings or divisions, and maintained at the common expense of such ridings or divisions, the justices of the county assembled at gaol sessions:
 - (3). As respects any prison belonging to the city of London, or the liberties thereof, the court of the lord mayor and aldermen:
 - (4). As respects any prison belonging to any municipal borough, the justices of the borough assembled at sessions to be held by them at the usual time of holding quarterly sessions of the peace, or at such other time as they may appoint:
 - (5). As respects any prison belonging to any city, district, borough, or town having a separate prison jurisdiction, and not hereinbefore mentioned, the justices or other persons having power at law to make rules for the government of such prison.
7. The provisions of the act of the 21 & 22 Vict. c. 92, shall apply to all contracts, mortgages, or conveyances entered into or executed in pursuance of this act by or on behalf of, or with the justices of, any county, riding, division, hundred, or liberty of a county, in general or quarter sessions assembled; and in the construction of that act the expression "justices in quarter sessions assembled" shall include the justices of the county in gaol sessions assembled, in pursuance of the act of the 5 Geo. 4, c. 12, and shall also include the bailiff and justices of the liberty of Romney Marsh assembled at any session or meeting. And all contracts, mortgages, or conveyances entered into or executed in pursuance of this act by or on behalf of, or with, any other prison authority shall be entered into and executed in manner in which such instruments or deeds are usually entered into by such authority.

PART I.—THE MAINTENANCE AND GOVERNMENT OF PRISONS.

Obligation to maintain Prisons.

8. There shall be provided, at the expense of every county, riding, division, hundred, liberty, franchise, borough, town, or other place having a separate prison jurisdiction, adequate accommodation for its prisoners in a prison or prisons constructed and regulated in such manner as to comply with the requisitions of this act in respect of prisons.

All expenses incurred by a prison authority in carrying into effect the provisions of this act shall be defrayed out of the county rate, or rate in the nature of a county rate, borough rate, or other rate leviable in the county, riding, division, hundred, liberty, franchise, borough, town, or other place having a separate prison jurisdiction, and applicable to the maintenance of a prison, or out of any other property applicable to that purpose.

9. For the purposes of this act every county, riding, division, hundred, liberty, franchise, borough, town, or other place shall be deemed to have a separate prison jurisdiction which maintains a separate prison, or would be liable at law to maintain a separate prison if accommodation were not provided for its prisoners in the prison of some other jurisdiction.

Where a county is divided into ridings or divisions, and a prison is maintained at the common expense of such ridings or divisions, that county shall, in relation to such prison, and for the purposes thereof, be deemed to have a separate prison jurisdiction, notwithstanding a separate county rate is not levied in such county at large.

Appointment of Officers.

10. There shall be appointed to every prison by the justices in sessions assembled,

A gaoler; a chaplain, being a clergyman of the Established Church; a surgeon, duly registered as such, under the act of the session of the 21 & 22 Vict. c. 90; and such subordinate officers as may be necessary.

And to every prison in which females are confined,

A matron, and such subordinate female officers as may be necessary.

Provided, that in a prison where females only are imprisoned, the matron shall be deemed to be the gaoler, and shall, so far as is practicable, perform all the duties, and be subject to all the obligations, of a gaoler in relation to such prison.

11. The same person may officiate as chaplain of any two prisons situate within a convenient distance from each other, if such prisons together are calculated to receive not more than 100 prisoners; but the chaplain of more than one prison, and the chaplain of any prison in which the average number of prisoners confined at any one time during the three years next before his appointment has not been less than 100, shall not, whilst holding his chaplaincy, hold any benefice with cure of souls or any curacy.

12. The justices in sessions assembled may appoint an assistant chaplain, being a clergyman of the Established Church, and a deputy gaoler, or either of such officers, to any prison which they deem sufficiently large to require the appointment of such officers, or either of them.

13. Notice of the nomination of a chaplain or assistant chaplain to a prison shall, within one month after it has taken place, be transmitted to the bishop of the diocese in which the prison is situate, and no chaplain or assistant chaplain shall officiate in any prison until he has obtained a license for that purpose from the bishop of the diocese wherein the prison is situate, nor for any longer time than while such license continues in force.

14. Every officer of a prison appointed under this act shall hold his office during the pleasure of the justices in sessions assembled, and shall receive such salary as they may direct, subject to this proviso, that in the case of a municipal borough the amount of the salary of every prison officer appointed under this act shall be approved by the council.

15. If any officer of a prison has been an officer of such prison for not less than twenty years, and is not less than sixty years of age, or becomes incapable, from confirmed sickness, age, or infirmity, or injury received in actual execution of his duty, of executing his office in person, and such sickness, age, infirmity, or injury is certified by a medical certificate, and there shall be a report of the visiting justices testifying to his good conduct during his period of service, and recommending a grant to be made to him (such report to be made at some sessions of the justices holden not less than two months before the sessions at which the grant is made), the justices in sessions assembled may grant to such officer, having regard to his length of service, an annuity, by way of superannuation allowance, not exceeding two-thirds of his salary and emoluments, or a gratuity not exceeding the amount of his salary and emoluments for one year; any annuity or gratuity so fixed to be payable out of the rates lawfully applicable to the payment of the salaries of such officers. Where the power to levy the last-mentioned rates is vested in a different body from the justices, the consent of such last-mentioned body shall be obtained to the amount of superannuation allowed.

16. Whenever any officer of a prison is suspended, removed from, or resigns his office, or departs this life, the officer so suspended, removed, or resigning, and his family, and the family of every such deceased officer, shall quit the possession of the house or apartments in which he or they have previously resided by virtue of such office, when required so to do by notice under the hand or hands of two or more visiting justice or justices of the peace; and if he or they refuse or neglect to give such possession for forty-eight hours after such notice as aforesaid has been given to him or them, any two justices, upon proof made to them of such removal, resignation, or death, and of the service of such notice, and of such neglect or refusal to comply therewith, may, by warrant under their hands and seals, direct any constable, within a period therein named, to enter by force, if necessary, into such premises, and deliver possession thereof to the prison authority, or to any person appointed by the visiting justices.

Discipline of Prisoners.

17. The requisitions of this act with respect to the separation of prisoners are as follows:—

- (1) In every prison separate cells shall be provided, equal in number to the average of the greatest number of prisoners, not being convicts under sentence of penal servitude, who have been confined in such prison at any time during each of the preceding five years:
- (2) In every prison punishment cells shall be provided or appropriated for the confinement of prisoners for prison offences:
- (3) In a prison containing female prisoners as well as males, the women shall be imprisoned in separate buildings, or separate parts of the same buildings, in such manner as to prevent their seeing, conversing, or holding any intercourse with the men:
- (4) In a prison where debtors are confined, means shall be provided for separating them altogether from the criminal prisoners:
- (5) In a prison where criminal prisoners are confined, such prisoners shall be prevented from holding any communication with each other, either by every prisoner being kept in a separate cell by day and by night, except when he is at chapel or taking exercise, or by every prisoner being confined by night to his cell, and being subjected to such superintendence during the day as will, consistently with the provisions of this act, prevent his communicating with any other prisoner.

18. No cell shall be used for the separate confinement of a prisoner unless it is certified by one of her Majesty's inspectors of prisons to be of such a size, and to be lighted, warmed, ventilated, and fitted up in such a manner as may be requisite for health, and furnished with the means of enabling the prisoner to communicate at any time with an officer of the prison; but a distinction may be made in respect of the use of cells for the separate confinement of prisoners during long and short periods of imprisonment, and in respect of the use of cells in which the prisoner is intended to be employed during the whole day, or for a long or short part thereof; and the certificates of the inspector may be varied accordingly, so as to express the period of imprisonment for which each cell may be considered fit, and the number of hours in the day during which the prisoners may be employed therein.

No punishment cell shall be used unless it is certified by such inspector that it is furnished with the means of enabling the prisoner to communicate at any time with an officer of the prison, and that it can be used as a punishment cell without detriment to the prisoner's health, and the time for which it may be so used shall be stated in the certificate.

Every certified cell shall be distinguished by a number or mark placed in a conspicuous position, and shall be referred to by its number or mark in the certificate of the inspector, and if the number or mark of any certified cell is changed without the consent of the inspector, such cell shall be deemed to be an uncertified cell until a fresh certificate has been given.

Any certificate given by an inspector in respect of a cell may be withdrawn on such alteration taking place in such cell as to render the certificate, in his opinion, inapplicable thereto, and upon a certificate in respect of a cell being withdrawn that cell shall cease to be a certified cell for the purposes of this act.

If any prison authority feel aggrieved by the refusal of the inspector to certify a cell for any of the purposes of this act, it may appeal to one of her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, and his decision shall be final.

19. Hard labour for the purposes of this act shall be of two classes, consisting, first, of work at the tread wheel, shot drill, crank, capstan, stone-breaking, or such other like description of hard bodily labour as may be appointed by the justices in sessions assembled, with the approval of the Secretary of State, which work is hereinafter referred to as hard labour of the first class; secondly, of such other description of bodily labour as may be appointed by the justices in sessions assembled, with the approval of the Secretary of State, which work is hereinafter referred to as hard labour of the second class; and in every prison where prisoners sentenced to hard labour are confined, adequate means (having regard to the average number of such prisoners confined in that prison during the preceding five years) shall be provided for enforcing hard labour in accordance with the regulations of this act; and no prison shall be deemed to be in conformity with the regulations of this act with respect to the enforcement of hard labour unless such means as aforesaid have been provided therein, and prisoners sentenced to hard labour have been employed thereat in manner provided by this act: provided, that employment in the necessary services of the prison may, in the case of a limited number of prisoners, be selected by the visiting justices, as a reward for industry and good behaviour, be deemed to be hard labour of the second class.

20. The regulations contained in the first schedule hereto with respect to the government of prisons shall be binding on all persons in the same manner as if they were enacted in the body of this act.

21. The justices in sessions assembled shall make rules for the supply to all prisoners confined in prisons within their jurisdiction of a sufficient quantity of plain and wholesome food, regard being had so far as relates to convicted criminal prisoners to the nature of the labour required from or performed by such prisoners, so that the allowance of food may be duly apportioned thereto, and shall frame dietary tables for this purpose, and the said justices may make rules in respect of any other matters relating to the government of prisons within their jurisdiction, in addition to the regulations in the said first schedule, and may from time to time repeal or alter any rules made or dietary tables framed in pursuance of this section; but no rule or dietary table, or repeal or alteration of a rule or dietary table, shall be valid under this section until one of her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State has certified his approval in writing under his hand; and when such approval has been certified, such rule or dietary table, or repeal or alteration of a rule or dietary table, shall be binding on all persons in the same manner as if it were enacted by this act. If the justices in sessions assembled make default in making rules and dietary tables that may be approved by the said Secretary of State in respect of the supply of food to prisoners in any prison within their jurisdiction, there shall be in force in such prison such rules or dietary tables with respect to such supply as may from time to time be determined by the said Secretary of State in writing under his hand.

22. Upon visiting or inspecting a prison to which this act applies, the inspector shall, by letter addressed to the visiting justices, call their attention to any irregularity he may have observed therein, or any complaint he may have to make against the buildings, the officers, or the discipline of the prison, and the visiting justices shall enter a copy of such letter in their minute book.

Enlargement and Rebuilding of Prisons.

23. Subject to the conditions hereinafter mentioned, any prison authority may alter, enlarge, or rebuild any of its prisons, or may, if necessary, build other prisons in lieu of or in addition to any subsisting prisons, and may borrow money for the purpose of such alteration, enlargement, new building, or building.

24. The necessity for any alteration or enlargement or for rebuilding of an existing prison, or for the building of a new prison, shall be proved, in the case of a municipal borough, by the certificate of the recorder, or chairman of quarter sessions where there is no recorder, and in any other case by a presentment of two or more of the visiting justices or other justices having jurisdiction within the district of the prison authority; and the consideration of such certificate or presentment shall not be entertained by the prison authority unless not less than three weeks previous notice has been given in one or more public newspaper or newspapers circulating within the district of the prison authority of their intention to take the same into consideration at the time and place to be mentioned in such notice, and in every case the sanction of one of her Majesty's Secretaries of State must be obtained to any such alteration, enlargement, rebuilding, or building.

25. In order to obtain the sanction of the Secretary of State to the alteration, enlargement, or rebuilding of any prison, the prison authority shall forward to him a plan of the proposed alterations, enlargement, or new building, drawn on such scale and accompanied with such particulars as the said Secretary may determine, and shall add thereto an estimate of the expense proposed to be incurred by the prison authority, and the amount of money proposed to be borrowed; and wherever a new prison is built, or an old prison is altered, enlarged, or rebuilt, a chapel or suitable room shall be provided easy of access to the prisoners, and shall be strictly set apart for religious worship, or for the religious and moral instruction of the prisoners, and shall not be employed for any other purpose.

26. The said Secretary of State may approve of the plans submitted to him with or without modification, or may disapprove of the same, and his approval or disapproval shall be certified in writing under his hand.

27. Any moneys borrowed by a prison authority may be charged by that authority on any county rate or rate in the nature of a county rate, borough rate, or other rate applicable to the maintenance of a prison and leviable by that authority, or on any other property belonging to that authority and applicable to the same purpose as the said rates, and shall be repaid, together with the interest due thereon, out of such rates or other property.

28. The clauses of the Commissioners Clauses Act, 1847, with the exception of the 84th clause with respect to mortgages to be created by the commissioners, shall form part of and be incorporated with this act, and any mortgagee or assignee may enforce payment of his principal and interest by appointment of a receiver.

In the construction of the said clauses "the commissioners" shall mean "the prison authority."

Where a prison authority borrows any money for the alteration, enlargement, or rebuilding of any prison, or the building of any new prison, they shall charge the rates or property out of which the moneys borrowed are payable not only with the interest of the moneys so borrowed, but also with the payment of such further sum as will ensure the repayment of the whole sum borrowed within thirty years, or if the loan has been made by the Public Works Loan Commissioners as defined by the Public Works Loan Act, 1853, within twenty years of the time of borrowing the same.

29. The said Public Works Loan Commissioners, as defined by the Public Works Loan Act, 1853, may advance to any prison authority upon the security of any rate applicable to or chargeable with the maintenance of a prison without any further security, for the purpose of altering, enlarging, or rebuilding any subexisting prison or building any new prison in pursuance of this act, such sums of money as may be recommended by one of her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State.

30. It shall be lawful for one of her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State to appoint a proper person to be a surveyor-general of prisons for the purpose of advising prison authorities on the construction of prisons, and reporting to the Secretary of State on the several plans of prisons which may be sent to him for his report, and for the performance of such other duties connected with the construction of prisons as may be from time to time entrusted to him by the Secretary of State.

Contracts for Maintenance of Prisoners and Appropriation of Prisons.

31. Any prison authority may contract with any prison authority having a prison in conformity with the requisitions of this act, that the latter authority is to receive into and maintain in its prison or one of its prisons all prisoners maintainable at the expense of the former authority, or any particular class or classes of such prisons: provided—

That no such contract shall be valid unless the prison of the latter authority is approved by one of her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State as being a fit prison to receive the prisoners contracted to be received there.

32. A contract entered into between prison authorities for the reception into and the maintenance in the prison of the one authority of the prisoners maintainable by the other authority may include the costs of conveying the prisoners to prison, and all other costs incurred in respect of such prisoners.

All moneys payable under the contract shall be raised in the same manner in which moneys for defraying the expenses of the prison for which a substitute is provided under the contract would be raiseable; and where such expenses are not by law wholly defrayable out of one fund, and a difference arises between the several persons interested in the several funds applicable to defraying such expenses as to what proportion ought to be applied to paying the expenses arising under the contract, such difference shall be settled by arbitration in manner hereinafter mentioned.

33. Where two or more prisons are within the jurisdiction of the same prison authority, that authority may carry into effect the requisitions of this act with respect to the separation of prisoners or the enforcement of hard labour by appropriating particular prisons to particular classes of prisoners.

34. Where a change has been made as to the prison to which prisoners committed within the jurisdiction of any prison authority may be sent by reason of such authority having appropriated any of its prisons to a particular class of prisoners, or having contracted with another prison authority for the reception of its prisoners, or from any other cause, notice of such change shall be published once at the least in each of two successive weeks in some newspaper or newspapers usually circulated within the jurisdiction of the same prison authority, and a copy thereof shall be served upon the gaoler of every prison within such jurisdiction.

Penalty for inadequate Prisons.

35. Whenever it appears to one of her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State that default has been made in any prison in complying with the requisitions of this act in respect of the separation of prisoners or of the enforcement of hard labour, or of providing a chapel or suitable room for religious worship, it shall be lawful for the said Secretary of State to certify such non-compliance in writing under his hand to the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, and upon such certificate being given no contribution shall thenceforth be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament towards the expenses of maintaining any prisoners in that prison until the said Secretary of State has revoked his certificate, upon being satisfied that the defaulting prison has been brought into conformity with the requisitions of this act, and then only from the date of such revocation:

Provided,—

1st. That this section shall not affect the payment of any contribution payable on or before the 31st December, 1868:

2nd. That before the certificate of the said Secretary of State is given under this section with respect to any prison, a copy of the report of the inspector of prisons relating to that prison, and a statement of the grounds on which the said Secretary proposes to give his certificate, shall be sent to the prison authority; and it shall be lawful for such authority, upon receiving a copy of the said report and statement, to address any explanations or observations relating thereto to the said Secretary of State:

3rd. Whenever the certificate of the said Secretary of State is given under this section in respect of a prison, a copy of the said statement of grounds, accompanied with any such explanations or observations as aforesaid, shall be laid before Parliament.

36. If at any time it appear to one of her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State that a prison authority has, in respect of any prison within its jurisdiction, made default for four successive years in complying with the requisitions of this act with respect to the separation of prisoners, or with respect to the enforcement of hard labour, or with respect to providing a chapel or suitable room for religious worship, the said Secretary of State may, by notice under his hand, addressed to the authority of that prison, and forwarded by post, in a prepaid letter, to the gaoler of the prison, or otherwise delivered to him, require that authority, within a time specified in such notice, to bring such prison into conformity with the requisitions of this act with respect to such matters as aforesaid, or to exercise the powers given to such authority by this act, of contracting for the removal of the whole or a number of its prisoners proportioned to the inadequacy of its prison in respect of such separation or means of providing such hard labour, to some other prison where means exist for carrying into effect the requisitions of this act with respect to the separation of prisoners or means of enforcing hard labour; and if any prison authority to whom such notice is given fail, within six months after the receipt thereof, to comply with the requirements thereby made, the said Secretary of State may order the said inadequate prison to be closed, and direct the removal of the prisoners therein, and the committal of future prisoners, to some other prison, the authority of which may be willing to receive them; and upon such order being made, it shall be the duty of the gaoler of the said inadequate prison, without further warrant, to remove all the prisoners therein to the substituted prison named in the order of the Secretary of State, and such substituted prison shall thenceforth, and so long as such order is in force, for all purposes relating to the committal, detention, trial, and punishment of the prisoners so removed, and of the prisoners committed thereto, in pursuance of this section, be deemed to be the prison of the defaulting authority, and that authority shall pay, out of any rates or moneys applicable to the support of the inadequate prison, all expenses incurred in and about the closing of that prison, and the removal of the prisoners therein to the substituted prison; and all expenses incurred by the authority of the substituted prison in respect of the prisoners committed to that prison in pursuance of this section shall be defrayed by the authority of the inadequate prison in the same manner in all respects as if that authority had contracted, in pursuance of this act, with the authority of the substituted prison for the reception in the last-mentioned prison of prisoners belonging to the authority of the inadequate prison.

Notice of any order made by the said Secretary of State in pursuance of this section shall be published in the London Gazette, and once at least, in two successive weeks, in one of the newspapers usually circulating in the county, city, borough, or place in which the prison to which the order relates is situate, and a copy of the Gazette or newspaper containing such order shall be conclusive evidence of its contents.

Offences in relation to Prisons.

37. Every person who aids any prisoner in escaping, or attempting to escape, from any prison, or who, with intent to facilitate the escape of any prisoner, conveys, or causes to be conveyed, into any prison any mask, dress, or other disguise, or any letter, or any other article or thing, shall be guilty of felony, and, on conviction, be sentenced to imprisonment, with hard labour, for a term not exceeding two years.

38. Every person who, contrary to the regulations of the prison, brings or attempts, by any means whatever, to introduce into any prison any spirituous or fermented liquor or tobacco, and every officer of a prison who suffers any spirituous or fermented liquor or tobacco to be sold or used therein, contrary to the prison regulations, on conviction, shall be sentenced to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or to a penalty not exceeding 20*l.*, or both in the discretion of the court; and every officer of a prison convicted under this section shall, in addition to any other punishment, forfeit his office and all arrears of salary due to him.

39. Every person who, contrary to the regulations of a prison, conveys, or attempts to convey, any letter or other document, or any article whatever not allowed by such regulations, into or out of any prison, shall, on conviction, incur a penalty not exceeding 10*l.*, and, if an officer of the prison, shall forfeit his office and all arrears of salary due to him; but this section shall not apply in cases where the offender is liable to a more severe punishment under any other provision of this act.

40. The visiting justices shall cause to be affixed in a conspicuous place outside the prison a notice setting forth the penalties that will be incurred by persons committing any offence in contravention of the three preceding sections.

Discharge of Prisoners.

41. Any prisoner confined in a prison whose term of imprisonment would, according to his sentence, expire on the Lord's-day, shall be entitled to his discharge on the Saturday next preceding such Lord's-day; and every gaoler of every prison having the custody of any such prisoner as aforesaid is hereby required and authorised to discharge such prisoner on the Saturday next preceding any such Lord's-day.

42. Where any prisoner is discharged from prison, the visiting justices may order a sum of money not exceeding 2*l.* to be paid out of any moneys under their control, and applicable to the payment of the expenses of the prison, by the gaoler to the prisoner himself, or to the treasurer of a certified Prisoners' Aid Society, on his receiving from such society an undertaking in writing, signed by the secretary thereof, to apply the same for the benefit of the prisoner, or, if that becomes impossible, to appropriate the whole of any unapplied part thereof for the benefit of such other prisoner or prisoners discharged from the said prison as the visiting justices may direct.

43. When a prisoner is discharged from prison the visiting justices of the prison may provide such prisoner out of any moneys under their control, and applicable to the payment of the expenses of the prison, with the means of returning to his home or place of settlement, by causing his fare to be paid by railway, or in any other convenient manner.

Purchase of Land.

44. Any prison authority may purchase and hold such lands or easements relating to lands as they may require for the purposes of this act; and to facilitate such purposes, the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, and the act amending the same, passed in the session of the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 106, shall be incorporated with this act, with the exceptions and subject to the conditions hereinafter contained; that is to say—

- (1). There shall not be incorporated with this act the sections and provisions of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, hereinafter mentioned; that is to say, sect. 10, whereby it is provided, that the capital is to be subscribed before the compulsory powers are to be put in force; sect. 17, whereby it is provided that the certificate of the justices shall be evidence that the capital has been subscribed; the provisions relating to the entry upon lands by the promoters of the undertaking contained in sects. 84 to 91, both inclusive; sect. 123, whereby a limit of time for the compulsory purchase of land is imposed; or the provisions relating to access to the special act:
- (2). In the construction of this act and the said incorporated acts, this act shall be deemed to be the special act, and the prison authority shall be deemed to be the promoters of the undertaking, and the word "lands" shall include any easement in or out of the lands:
- (3). The prison authority shall not, except in respect of land contiguous to a prison, and required for the purpose of enlarging a prison, or rendering it more commodious or safe, put in force the provisions of the said incorporated acts with respect to the purchase of land otherwise than by agreement.

45. When any lands have been purchased for the purposes of a prison in pursuance of this act, such lands shall, at the expiration of five years from the date of a conveyance having been made to any person or body corporate on trust for such purposes, absolutely vest in that person or body corporate for all the estate or interest purported to be conveyed, to be held on trust for the aforesaid purposes; and if before the expiration of the said term of five years any proceedings are taken on which judgment is obtained for the recovery of the possession of the said lands, then within two calendar months after judgment has been obtained there shall be paid to the person obtaining such judgment, instead of the delivery of possession of the lands, all costs incurred in obtaining such judgment and compensation for the full value of his estate or interest in such lands; the amount of such compensation to be ascertained in manner provided by the said Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, in case of disputed compensation as to land, and to be calculated on the basis of the value of the land at the time of the purchase thereof.

Disposal of unnecessary Prisons.

46. Any prison authority may sell any prison or land belonging to or held on trust for them as such prison authority, that appears to them to be unnecessary, by reason of their having provided for the accommodation of their prisoners, and the moneys arising from such sale shall be applied in discharging any expenses that may have been or may hereafter be incurred by such authority in building, altering, enlarging, or rebuilding any prison within their jurisdiction, or otherwise in aid of the rate raiseable for the maintenance of their prison.

47. No sale or purchase shall be made in pursuance of this act by a prison authority, unless not less than three weeks' previous notice has been given in some one or more public newspaper or newspapers circulating within the district of the prison authority, of their intention to take into consideration the propriety of making such a sale or purchase at a time and place to be mentioned in such notice.

Any sale in pursuance of this act may be made by private contract or public auction, and subject to any special conditions as to title or other matters the vendors may think expedient. No purchaser shall be required to examine into the propriety of the sale of any prison or land in pursuance of this act, or into the appropriation of any moneys paid by him to the vendors; and any such sale shall, in the absence of actual fraud on his part, be valid so far as he is concerned, notwithstanding any omission to give such notice as aforesaid, or any other impropriety in the sale or misapplication of the purchase money.

Miscellaneous.

48. It shall be the duty of the coroner having jurisdiction in the place to which the prison belongs, to hold an inquest on the body of every prisoner who may die within the prison. Where it is practicable, one clear day shall intervene between the day of the death and the day of the holding the inquest; and in no case shall any officer of the prison, or any prisoner confined in the prison, be a juror on such inquest.

49. If any suit or action is prosecuted against any person for anything done in pursuance of this act, such person may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence, at any trial to be had thereupon, and that the same was done by authority of this act; and if a verdict passes for the defendant, or the plaintiff becomes nonsuited, or discontinues his action after issue joined, or if, upon demurrer or otherwise, judgment be given against the plaintiff, the defendant shall recover double costs, and have the like remedy for the same as any defendant hath by law in other cases; and though a verdict be given for the plaintiff in any such action, such plaintiff shall not have costs against the defendant, unless the judge before whom the trial takes place certifies his approbation of the action, and of the verdict obtained thereupon.

50. All actions, suits, and prosecutions commenced against any person for anything done in pursuance of this act, shall be laid and tried in the county or place where the act complained of was committed, and shall be commenced within six calendar months after the committal thereof, and not otherwise.

51. Any difference authorised or directed by this act to be settled by arbitration, shall be referred to the arbitration of a barrister-at-law to be appointed in writing, on the application of any party to the difference, by any judge of assize of the last preceding or of the next succeeding circuit; and all the provisions of the Common-law Procedure Act, 1854, relating to compulsory references, shall be deemed to extend to any such arbitration, with this addition, that it shall be obligatory on the arbitrator, at the request of any party to the difference, to state a special case for the opinion of a superior court.

52. Offences under this act, with the exception of felonies, and of offences for the mode of trial of which express provision is made by this act, shall be prosecuted summarily before two justices acting for the division or place where the matter requiring the cognisance of such justices arises, and in manner directed by the act of the 11 & 12 Vict. c. 43, and any act amending the same.

Visiting Justices.

53. The justices within every prison jurisdiction, in sessions assembled, shall, at their first sessions in each year, nominate two or more justices, with their consent, to be visitors of each prison within their jurisdiction, with power, if they think fit, to declare such nomination to be for the whole year, or to renew the same or make a fresh nomination in each succeeding quarter of the year; and one or more of the visiting justices so appointed shall from time to time visit and inspect each prison, and shall examine into the state of the buildings, so as to form a judgment as to the repairs, additions, or alterations which may appear necessary, strict regard being had to the requisitions of this act with respect to the separation of prisoners, and enforcement of hard labour in prisons, and shall further examine into the conduct of the respective officers, and the treatment and conduct of the prisoners, the means of setting them to work, the amount of their earnings, and the expenses attending the prison, and shall inquire into all abuses within the prison, and shall take cognisance of matters of pressing necessity, and within the powers of their commission as justices, and regulate the same, and shall once at least in each quarter of a year make a report to the justices in sessions assembled.

54. The justices in sessions assembled may make rules with respect to the duties of visiting justices, and from time to time repeal or alter any rule so made, and make other rules in addition thereto or in substitution therefor; but no rules shall be valid which are inconsistent with any provision of this act.

55. Any justice of the peace having jurisdiction in the place to which a prison belongs may, whenever he thinks fit, enter into and examine the condition of such prison, and of the prisoners therein, and he may enter any observations he may think fit to make in reference to the condition of the prison, or abuses therein, in the visitors book to be kept by the gaoler; and it shall be the duty of the gaoler to draw the attention of the visiting justices, at their next visit to the prison, to any entries made in the said book; but he shall not be entitled, in pursuance of this section, to visit any prisoner under sentence of death, or to communicate with any prisoner, except in reference to the treatment in prison of such prisoner, or to some complaint that such prisoner may make as to such treatment.

PART II.—LAW OF PRISONS.

56. Subject to the provisions of this act with respect to the appropriation of prisons to particular classes of prisoners, every prison to which this act applies shall be deemed to be a gaol and house of correction; but no class of prisoners that have not previously to the commencement of this act been confined in any prison, shall be confined there until one of her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State has certified that such prison is a fit place of confinement for that class of prisoners.

57. Every prison, wheresoever situate, shall for all purposes be deemed to be within the limits of the place for which it is used as a prison.

58. Every prisoner confined in a prison shall be deemed to be in the legal custody of the gaoler, provided that nothing in this act contained shall affect the jurisdiction or responsibility of the sheriff in respect of prisoners under sentence of death, or his jurisdiction or control over the prison where such prisoners are confined, and the officers thereof, so far as may be necessary for the purpose of carrying into effect the sentence of death, or for any purpose relating thereto; and in any prison in which sentences of death is required to be carried into effect on any prisoner, whether such prison is or not the common gaol of the county, the sheriff shall, for the purposes of carrying that sentence into execution, be deemed to have the same jurisdiction with respect to such prison as he has by law with respect to the common gaol of a county, or would have had if this act had not passed.

59. The gaoler of any prison in which debtors are confined shall give security to the sheriff for their safe custody, to such amount as may be determined by agreement, or, in default of agreement, may be settled by the justices in sessions assembled; and any such security may be given to the sheriff and his successors in office, and shall be deemed to ensure to the benefit of each succeeding sheriff in the same manner as if he were individually named therein.

60. The sheriff shall not be liable for the escape from imprisonment of any prisoner other than a debtor.

61. Any writ, warrant, or other legal instrument addressed to the gaoler of a particular prison, describing the prison by its situation or other definite description, shall be valid, by whatever title such prison is usually known, or whatever be the description of the prison, whether gaol, house of correction, bridewell, penitentiary, or otherwise.

62. The gaoler of every prison shall deliver or cause to be delivered to the judges of assize, and to the justices in quarter sessions, a calendar of all prisoners in custody for trial at such assizes or gaol sessions, in the same way as the sheriff of a county has hitherto been required by law to deliver a calendar of such prisoners when committed to the common gaol of the county, and the sheriff shall no longer be required to deliver or cause to be delivered such calendar.

63. A prisoner may be brought up for trial, and may be removed by or under the direction of the gaoler from one prison to another, or from one place of confinement to another, to which such prisoner may be legally removed, for the purpose of being tried or undergoing his sentence; and no prisoner whilst in the custody of a gaoler shall be deemed to have escaped, although he may be taken into different jurisdictions, or different places of confinement.

64. Prisoners may be removed from one prison to another prison or place of confinement within the jurisdiction of the same prison authority, or to the prison of any other authority, with the consent of such last-mentioned authority, by order of the justices in sessions assembled, for the purpose of enabling any prison to be altered, enlarged, or rebuilt, or in case of a contagious or infectious disease breaking out in any prison, or for any other reasonable cause; and in case of emergency such removal may be made in pursuance of an order under the hands of the visiting justices; and any prisoners removed from a prison in pursuance of this section may, by order of the justices in sessions assembled, be taken back by the gaoler to the prison from whence they were removed, or be removed to any other place in which they can legally be imprisoned.

65. It shall be lawful for her Majesty, by an order under the hand of one of her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, to direct any person in prison in England and Wales under sentence of any court, or of any competent authority, for any offence committed by him, to be removed from the prison in which he is confined to any other of her Majesty's prisons within England and Wales, there to be imprisoned during his term of imprisonment.

66. Where a prison authority, in this section called the contracting authority, has contracted with any other prison authority, in this section called the receiving authority, that the receiving authority is to receive into and maintain in its prison any prisoners maintainable at the expense of the contracting authority, the prison of the receiving authority shall for all the purposes of and incidental to the commitment, trial, detention, and punishment of the prisoners of the contracting authority, or any of such purposes, according to the tenor of the contract, be deemed to be the prison of the contracting authority, except that the contracting authority shall have no right to interfere in the management of the prison of the receiving authority.

67. In every prison to which this act applies prisoners convicted of misdemeanour, and not sentenced to hard labour, shall be divided into at least two divisions, one of which shall called the first division; and whenever any person convicted of misdemeanour is sentenced to imprisonment without hard labour, it shall be lawful for the court or judge before whom such person has been tried to order, if such court or judge think fit, that such person shall be treated as a misdemeanant of the first division, and a misdemeanant of the first division shall not be deemed to be a criminal prisoner within the meaning of this act.

PART III.—DISCONTINUANCE OF CERTAIN PRISONS.

68. After the commencement of this act no person shall be committed to any of the prisons mentioned in the second schedule hereto.

All persons who before the passing of this act might lawfully have been committed to any of the said scheduled prisons shall, after the passing thereof, be committed to the prison of the county in which the said scheduled prison is situated; and such county prison shall, for all purposes relating to or consequential on the committal, trial, detention, or punishment of prisoners committed or removed thereto in pursuance of this part of this act, be regarded in law as if it were the said scheduled prison.

In this part of this act, so far as it relates to the prison at Richmond in the said second schedule mentioned, "county" shall mean the North Riding of Yorkshire, and so far as it relates to the prison at Rye, in the same schedule mentioned, the county gaol of Lewes shall be deemed to be the prison of the county.

69. As soon as conveniently may be after the commencement of this act the gaoler of each of the said scheduled prisons shall, without writ of habeas corpus or other writ for that purpose, remove every prisoner under sentence or committed for trial in such prison to the prison of the county in which the said scheduled prison is situate, and deliver such prisoner into the custody of the gaoler of the said county prison, together with the writ and other process under which the prisoner was arrested or confined; and the gaoler of the said county prison shall be bound to receive such prisoner, and shall give a receipt to the gaoler of the said scheduled prison for every prisoner removed in pursuance of this section.

70. The expenses which may be incurred by any county in the conveyance, transport, maintenance, safe custody, and care of every prisoner confined, in pursuance of this part of this act, in the county prison instead of in one of the said scheduled prisons, including the expenses of the removal of the prisoners from one prison to another, shall be defrayed in manner provided by law in cases where the prisoners committed for offences arising within any borough or other place that does not contribute to the county rate are sent to any prison of a county, and there is no special contract between such borough or other place and the county relative to such prisoners.

71. The prison authority of any of the said scheduled prisons may sell the same, in manner provided by this act, in case where a prison appears to a prison authority to be unnecessary, by reason of its having provided for the accommodation of its prisoners in some other adequate prison, or may, with the sanction of the said Secretary of State, cause the same to be used as a police-station house or a lock-up house, and the money arising from any sale made in pursuance of this section, shall be applied in discharging any expenses that may be incurred by such authority in the maintenance of its prisoners, or otherwise in aid of the rate applicable to prison purposes.

72. The justices in sessions assembled having jurisdiction over each of the said scheduled prisons, may allow such compensation or allowance as they think fit to any person who, by reason of the passing of this part of this act, is deprived of any salary or emoluments, so that no such compensation or allowance exceeds the proportion of the salary and emolument, if any, which might be granted under similar circumstances to a person in the civil service, under the acts for regulating such compensations or allowances for the time being in force; and any compensation or allowance so allowed shall be paid out of any rates applicable to the payment of the salaries of such officers, subject to this proviso, that when the power to levy such rates is vested in a different body from the justices, the consent of such last-mentioned body shall be obtained to the amount allowed.

PART IV.—REPEAL OF STATUTES, AND SAVING CLAUSES.

73. After the commencement of this act, there shall be repealed the several acts specified in the third schedule hereto, to the extent in the said schedule mentioned.

74. No repeal hereby enacted shall affect—

- (1). Any order made, sentence passed, or other act or thing duly done under any acts hereby repealed:
- (2). Any right or privilege acquired, any security given, or other liability incurred under any act hereby repealed:
- (3). Any penalty, forfeiture, or other punishment incurred in respect of any offence against any act hereby repealed:
- (4). Any appointment to an office made under any act hereby repealed, or any power of removing the holder of such office, or otherwise dealing with such office as respects the existing holder thereof, in manner provided by any act hereby repealed:
- (5). The power of committing prisoners to any prison, except in so far as the same may be altered in pursuance of powers given by this act.

75. All cells certified before the commencement of this act by any inspector of prisons, as being fit to be used for the separate confinement of prisoners, shall be deemed to be cells certified for such purpose under this act.

76. Any unrepealed act of Parliament in which reference is made to the provisions of any act hereby repealed, shall be construed as if in such first-mentioned act reference had been made to the corresponding provisions of this act.

77. In the construction of the act of the 25 & 26 Vict. c. 44, the expression "the Gaol Act" shall mean this act instead of the act therein referred to.

78. Nothing in this act contained shall affect the right of any creditor who may have advanced any moneys for building, repairing, or otherwise for the purposes of any prison discontinued in pursuance of this act, or may have advanced any moneys on any mortgage or other security; and it shall be lawful for such creditor to pursue any remedies for recovering the principal or interest moneys due to him, and to enjoy the benefit of any security of which he may be possessed, in the same manner as if this act had not passed, and as if the acts hereby repealed had remained in full force.

79. Nothing in this act contained shall affect the tenure of office or salary or superannuation allowance of any officer of a prison, not being one of the said scheduled prisons, appointed prior to the commencement of this act, but such officer shall remain entitled to the same tenure of office, salary, and superannuation allowance as if this act had not passed; provided that the superannuation allowance of any prison officer appointed before the commencement of this act may, on the application of such officer, and with the consent of the justices in sessions assembled, be calculated on the same scale on which the superannuation allowances of officers appointed after the passing of this act are directed to be calculated.

80. All rules in force in any prison that are inconsistent with this act, or the regulations in the schedule hereto, shall be repealed from and after the commencement of this act, but all other rules in force in any prison shall so continue until altered in manner in this act provided.

81. Nothing in this act contained shall affect any right vested by act of Parliament or charter in the council of any municipal borough, of appointing a gaoler, chaplain, or other officer to the prison of such borough.

82. Nothing in this act contained relating to the custody of prisoners shall affect the validity of any commission of gaol delivery, commission of oyer and terminer, or other commission, precept, writ, warrant, or other document, notwithstanding the same may be addressed to or make mention of the sheriff of any county, city, or place, instead of being addressed to or making mention of the gaoler of a prison or prisons; and every such commission, precept, writ, warrant, or other document shall be obeyed by the gaoler, and take effect in the same manner as if the gaoler had been named therein instead of the sheriff.

SCHEDULE I.

REGULATIONS FOR GOVERNMENT OF PRISONS.

General.

1. The prison shall be kept in a cleanly state, and the walls and ceilings of the wards, cells, rooms, and passages used by the prisoners throughout every prison shall either be painted with oil, or be limewashed, or partly painted and partly limewashed. Where painted with oil, the painting shall be washed with hot water and soap once at least in every six months. Where limewashed, the limewashing shall be renewed once at least in every year. The day rooms, work rooms, passages, and sleeping cells shall be washed or cleansed once a week, or oftener, if requisite.

2. No thing shall be allowed to grow against the outer walls of the prison, nor any rubbish or other articles to be laid against them, nor shall any tools or implements of any kind likely to facilitate escape be left unnecessarily exposed.

3. Thermometers shall be placed in different parts of the prison.

4. No person shall be permitted to sleep in the apartments of any subordinate officer of the prison without permission from the gaoler, such permission to be reported to a visiting justice.

5. A report shall be made to the gaoler at ten o'clock each night whether the officers resident in the prison are all present; and no ingress or egress shall be allowed into or out of the prison between the hours of ten o'clock at night and six o'clock in the morning, except to the gaoler and his family, the chaplain, or surgeon, or in special cases, which shall be entered in the journal of the gaoler.

Admission and Discharge of Prisoners.

6. Prisoners on admission shall be searched, and all dangerous weapons, articles calculated to facilitate escape, and prohibited articles, shall be taken from them.

7. No prisoner shall be searched in the presence of any other prisoner.

8. All money or other effects brought into the prison by any prisoner, or sent to the prison for his use, which he is not allowed to retain, shall be placed in the custody of the gaoler, who shall keep an inventory of them in a separate book.

9. The name, age, height, weight, features, particular marks, and general appearance of a criminal prisoner shall, upon his admission, be noted in a nominal record of prisoners, to be kept by the gaoler. Every criminal prisoner shall also, as soon as possible, be examined by the surgeon, who shall enter in a book to be kept by the gaoler a record of the state of health of the prisoner, and any observations he may deem it expedient to add.

10. All prisoners, previously to being removed to any other prison, or being discharged from prison, shall be examined by the surgeon; and no prisoner shall be removed to any other prison unless the surgeon certifies, by an entry in the nominal record, that the prisoner is free from any illness that renders him unfit for removal; and no prisoner shall be discharged from prison if labouring under any acute or dangerous distemper, nor until, in the opinion of the surgeon, such discharge is safe, unless such prisoner require to be discharged.

11. Prisoners before trial shall be kept apart from convicted prisoners.

12. Female prisoners shall be searched on admission by female officers. In other respects the same course shall be pursued in reference to the admission, removal, or discharge of a female prisoner as in the case of a male prisoner, the matron performing the duties imposed on the gaoler in case of a male prisoner.

Food, Clothing, and Bedding of Prisoners.

13. No tap shall be kept in any prison; nor shall spirituous liquors of any kind be admitted for the use of any of the prisoners therein, under any pretence whatever, unless by a written order of the surgeon, specifying the quantity to be admitted, and the name of the prisoner for whose use it is intended; but this regulation shall not apply to any stock of spirituous liquors kept in the prison for the use of the infirmary, and under the control of the surgeon.

14. No smoking shall be allowed, or tobacco introduced, except with the consent and subject to the rules made by the visiting justices, or under a written order of the surgeon.

15. Any order by the surgeon for the admission of spirituous liquors or tobacco shall be entered by him in his journal.

16. A debtor shall be permitted to maintain himself, and to procure or receive at proper hours food, wine, malt liquor, clothing, bedding, or other necessities, but subject to examination, and to such rules as may be approved by the visiting justices.

17. No part of any food, wine, malt liquor, clothing, bedding, or other necessities belonging to any debtor shall be sold to any other prisoner; and any debtor transgressing this regulation shall lose the privilege of receiving or purchasing any wine or malt liquor for such a time as the visiting justices may deem proper.

18. A debtor, if unable to provide himself with sufficient food, clothing, bedding, or other necessities, shall receive the allowance of food, clothing, bedding, or other necessities, allotted to debtors unable to maintain themselves by the prison rules for the time being in force.

19. A criminal prisoner before trial may procure for himself, or receive at proper hours, food, and malt liquor, clothing, bedding, or other necessities, subject to examination, and to such rules as may be approved by the visiting justices; and any articles so procured may be paid for out of the moneys belonging to such prisoner in the hands of the gaoler. No part of such food, malt liquor, bedding, clothing, or other necessities shall be sold or transferred to any other prisoner; and any prisoner transgressing this regulation shall be prohibited from procuring any food or other necessities for such time as the visiting justices may deem proper. If a criminal prisoner before trial does not provide himself with food, he shall receive the allowance of food allotted to criminal prisoners before trial by the rules of the prison.

20. Criminal prisoners before trial may, if they desire it, wear the prison dress, and they shall be required to do so if their own clothes are insufficient or unfit for use, or necessary to be preserved for the purposes of justice. The prison dress for prisoners before trial shall be of a different colour from that of convicted prisoners.

21. Every convicted criminal prisoner shall be allowed a sufficient quantity of food according to the scale established by the rules of the prison. Prisoners under the care of the surgeon shall be allowed such diet as he may direct. Care shall be taken that all provisions supplied to the prisoners be of proper quality and weight. Scales and legal weights and measures shall be provided, open to the use of any prisoners, under such restrictions as may be made by the prison rules.

22. No convicted criminal prisoner shall be allowed any wine, beer, or other fermented liquor, except under a written order from the surgeon, to be entered in his journal, specifying the quantity and the name of the prisoner for whose use it is intended, or shall receive any food, clothing, bedding, or necessities other than the prison allowance, except under special circumstances, to be judged of by one or more of the visiting justices, and to be reported to the prison authority.

23. A convicted criminal prisoner shall be provided with a complete prison dress, and shall be required to wear it.

24. On the discharge of a prisoner his own clothes shall be returned to him, unless it has been found necessary to destroy them, in which case he shall be provided with clothing.

25. If necessary, the clothes of a prisoner shall be purified before he is allowed to wear them in the prison, or to take them on his discharge.

26. Every male prisoner shall sleep in a cell by himself, or, under special circumstances, in a separate bed, placed in a cell containing not fewer than two other male prisoners, and sufficient bed clothes shall be provided for every prisoner. A convicted criminal prisoner may be required to sleep on a plank bed without a mattress during such time as may be determined by the rules of the prison. Epileptic prisoners, or prisoners labouring under diseases requiring assistance or supervision in the night, may at any time, notwithstanding this regulation, be placed by order of the surgeon with not fewer than two other male prisoners.

27. The bed clothes shall be aired, changed, and washed as often as the surgeon or the visiting justices may direct.

Personal Cleanliness.

28. Prisoners shall be required to keep themselves clean and decent in their persons, and to conform to such rules as may be laid down for that purpose.

29. The hair of a female prisoner shall not be cut without her consent, except on account of vermin or dirt, or when the surgeon deems it requisite on the ground of health; and the hair of male criminal prisoners shall not be cut closer than may be necessary for purposes of health and cleanliness.

Employment of Prisoners.

30. No gaming shall be permitted in any prison, and the gaoler shall seize and destroy all dice, cards, or other instruments of gaming.

31. Debtors may be permitted to work and follow their respective trades and professions, provided their employment does not interfere with the regulations of the prison; and such debtors as find their own implements, and are not maintained at the expense of the prison, shall be allowed to receive the whole of their earnings; but the earnings of such as are furnished with implements, or are maintained at the expense of the prison, shall be subject to a deduction, to be determined by the visiting justices, for the use of implements and the cost of maintenance.

32. Criminal prisoners before trial shall have the option of employment, but shall not be compelled to perform any hard labour.

33. On the acquittal of any criminal prisoner, or when no bill of indictment is found against him, such an allowance on account of his earnings, if any, shall be paid to such prisoner on his discharge as the visiting justices may think reasonable.

34. Every male prisoner of sixteen years of age and upwards, sentenced to hard labour, shall, during the whole of his sentence where it does not exceed three months, and during the first three months of his sentence where it exceeds three months, be kept at hard labour of the first class for such number of hours, not more than ten or less than six (exclusive of meals), as may be prescribed by the visiting justices; and during the remainder of his sentence shall be kept in like manner at hard labour of the first class, except where during such remainder of his sentence the visiting justices substitute hard labour of the second class for hard labour of the first class; provided that if the surgeon certifies any such prisoner to be unfit to be kept at hard labour of the first class during the whole or any part of the prescribed hours, such prisoner shall, during such whole or part of the prescribed hours, be kept at hard labour of the second class, unless the surgeon certifies that such prisoner is unfit to be kept at either class of hard labour during the whole or any part of such hours; provided that prisoners sentenced to hard labour for periods not exceeding fourteen days may, in pursuance of rules made by the justices in sessions, be kept in separate confinement at hard labour of the second class during the whole period of their sentences.

35. Every male prisoner under the age of sixteen years, sentenced to hard labour, and every female prisoner sentenced to hard labour, shall be kept at hard labour of the second class during such number of hours not more than ten or less than six (exclusive of meals) in each day as may be prescribed by the visiting justices, unless the surgeon certifies that he or she is unfit for hard labour.

36. No prisoner shall be employed at hard labour on Sundays, Christmas-day, Good Friday, and days appointed for public fasts or thanksgivings.

37. The surgeon shall from time to time examine the prisoners sentenced to hard labour during the time of their being so employed, and shall enter into his journal the name of any prisoner whose health he thinks to be endangered by a continuance at hard labour of either class, and thereupon such prisoner shall not again be employed at such class of hard labour until the surgeon certifies that he is fit for such employment.

38. Provision shall be made by the visiting justices for the employment of all convicted criminal prisoners not sentenced to hard labour. The visiting justices shall make rules as to the amount and nature of such employment, but no prisoner not sentenced to hard labour shall be punished for neglect of work, excepting by such alteration in the scale of diet as may be established by the rules of the prison in the case of neglect of work by such prisoners.

Health of Prisoners.

39. Debtors shall have the means of daily taking exercise in the open air.

40. Criminal prisoners, if employed at work in their own cells, shall be permitted to take such exercise in the open air as the surgeon may deem necessary for their health.

41. The names of the prisoners who desire to see the surgeon, or appear out of health, shall be reported by the officer attending them to the gaoler, and by him without delay to the surgeon.

42. All directions given by the surgeon in relation to any prisoner, with the exception of orders for the supply of medicines or directions in relation to such matters as are carried into effect by the surgeon himself or under his superintendence, shall be entered day by day in his journal, which shall have a separate column in which entries are to be made by the gaoler, stating in respect of each direction the fact of its having been or not having been complied with, accompanied by such observations, if any, as the gaoler may think fit to make, and the date of the entry.

43. In every prison an infirmary or proper place for the reception of sick prisoners shall be provided.

Religious Instruction.

44. In every prison where there is no chapel a suitable room shall be set apart for the purposes of the chapel.

45. Prayers to be selected by the chaplain from the Liturgy of the Established Church shall be read daily by the chaplain, gaoler, or such other person as may be appointed by the visiting justices, and at such time or times as may be fixed by them, and portions of the scriptures shall be read to the prisoners, when assembled for religious instruction, by the chaplain, or by such person, with the consent of the visiting justices, as he may appoint.

46. The chaplain shall on every Sunday, and on Christmas-day and Good Friday, perform the appointed morning and evening services of the Established Church, and preach at such time or times as shall be fixed by him, with the approval of the visiting justices. He shall give religious and moral instruction to the prisoners who are willing to receive it. He shall administer the Holy Sacrament of the Lord's Supper on suitable occasions to such prisoners as shall be desirous, and as he may deem to be in a proper frame of mind to receive the same. He shall frequently visit every room and cell of the prison occupied by prisoners, and shall direct such books to be distributed and read, and such lessons to be taught, in the prison as he may deem proper for the religious instruction of the prisoners. Criminal prisoners shall attend divine service on Sundays, and on other days when such service is performed, unless prevented by illness or other reasonable cause, to be allowed by the gaoler, or unless their attendance is dispensed with by the visiting justices; this regulation shall not apply to any prisoner who is attended or visited by a minister of a church or persuasion differing from the Established Church; and no prisoner shall be compelled to attend any religious service held or performed, or any religious instruction given, by the chaplain, minister, or religious instructor of a church or persuasion to which the prisoner does not belong.

47. If any prisoner is of a religious persuasion differing from that of the Established Church, and no minister has been appointed to attend at the prison on the prisoners of that persuasion, the visiting justices shall permit a minister of such persuasion to be approved by them to visit such prisoner at proper and reasonable times, under such restrictions as may be imposed by the visiting justices to guard against the introduction of improper persons and prevent improper communications, unless such prisoner expressly objects to see such minister.

48. No books or printed papers shall be admitted into any prison for the use of the prisoners, except by permission of the visiting justices; and no books or printed papers intended for the religious instruction of prisoners belonging to the Established Church shall be admitted but those chosen by the chaplain; provided that in case there may be a difference of opinion between the chaplain and visiting justices with respect to books or papers proposed to be admitted for the religious instruction of a prisoner belonging to the Established Church, reference shall be had to the bishop of the diocese, whose decision shall be final; and subject to such permission of the visiting justices as aforesaid, all books or printed papers admitted into any prison for the religious instruction of prisoners belonging to any other persuasion, and who are visited by a minister of such persuasion, shall be approved by such minister; and the gaoler shall keep a catalogue of all books and printed papers admitted into the prison.

49. The chaplain shall communicate to the gaoler any abuse or impropriety in the prison which may come to his knowledge, and shall enter the same in his journal.

50. Where an assistant chaplain is appointed to a prison, he shall be competent to perform any duty required by law to be performed by the chaplain, and when either of them, the chaplain or assistant chaplain, is absent from the prison, the other shall take his duties. Where there is no assistant chaplain, or in case of the services of the assistant chaplain not being available by reason of sickness or other unavoidable cause, the chaplain shall, when absent from the prison on leave or from any unavoidable cause, appoint, with the consent of the visiting justices, a substitute, and insert his name and residence in his journal. In the event of any sudden cause preventing the chaplain, or, in the absence of the chaplain, the assistant chaplain, from performing his duties, he may accept the assistance of a clergyman of the Established Church in the performance of divine service in the chapel, inserting the fact, and the name of such clergyman, in his journal.

51. A minister appointed under the Prison Ministers Act, 1863, may, when absent on leave, or from any unavoidable cause, appoint a substitute with the consent of the visiting justices.

52. In the event of the death of any chaplain or assistant chaplain of a prison, or of a minister appointed under the Prison Ministers Act, 1863, the visiting justices shall provide a substitute until the next meeting of the justices in sessions.

Instruction.

53. Provision shall be made in every prison for the instruction of prisoners in reading, writing, and arithmetic during such hours and to such extent as to the visiting justices may seem expedient, provided that such hours shall not be deducted from the hours prescribed for hard labour.

Visits to and Communications with Prisoners.

54. Due provision shall be made for the admission, at proper times and under proper restrictions, of persons with whom prisoners before trial may desire to communicate, care being taken that, so far as is consistent with the interests of justice, such prisoners shall see their legal advisers alone; such rules also shall be made by the justices in sessions assembled for the admission of the friends of convicted prisoners as they may deem expedient; the justices shall also impose such restrictions upon the communication and correspondence of prisoners with their friends as they judge necessary for the maintenance of good order and discipline in such prison.

55. The gaoler may demand the name and address of any visitor to a prisoner; and when he has any ground for suspicion may search or cause to be searched male visitors, and may direct the matron or some other female officer to search female visitors, such search not to be in the presence of any prisoner or of another visitor; and in case of any visitor refusing to be searched, the gaoler may deny him or her admission; the grounds of such proceeding, with the particulars thereof, to be entered in his journal.

Prison Offences.

56. No punishments or privations of any kind shall be awarded, except by the gaoler, or by a visiting or other justice.

57. The gaoler shall have power to hear complaints respecting any of the offences following; that is to say,

- (1). Disobedience of the regulations of the prison by any prisoner:
- (2). Common assaults by one prisoner on another:
- (3). Profane cursing and swearing by any prisoner:
- (4). Indecent behaviour by any prisoner:
- (5). Irreverent behaviour at chapel by any prisoner:
- (6). Insulting or threatening language by any prisoner to any officer or prisoner:
- (7). Absence from chapel without leave by any criminal prisoner:
- (8). Idleness or negligence at work by any convicted criminal prisoner:

(9). Wilful mismanagement of work by any convicted criminal prisoner.

All the above acts are declared to be offences against prison discipline; and it shall be lawful for the gaoler to examine any person touching such offences, and to determine thereupon, and to punish such offences by ordering any offender, for any time not exceeding three days, to close confinement, to be kept there upon bread and water. And the gaoler shall enter in a separate book, called the punishment book, a statement of the nature of any offence that he has punished in pursuance of this regulation, with the addition of the name of the offender, the date of the offence, and the amount of punishment inflicted.

58. If any criminal prisoner is guilty of repeated offences against prison discipline, or is guilty of any offence against prison discipline which the gaoler is not by this act empowered to punish, the gaoler shall report the same to the visiting justices, or one of them; and any one of such justices, or any other justice having jurisdiction in the place to which the prison belongs, shall have power to inquire upon oath and to determine concerning any matter so reported to him, and to order the offender to be punished by confinement in a punishment cell for any term not exceeding one month, or, in the case of prisoners convicted of felony or sentenced to hard labour, by personal correction.

59. No prisoner shall be put in irons or under mechanical restraint by the gaoler of any prison, except in case of urgent necessity; and the particulars of every such case shall be forthwith entered in the gaoler's journal, and notice forthwith given thereof to one of the visiting justices; and no prisoner shall be kept in irons or under mechanical restraint for more than twenty-four hours without an order in writing from a visiting justice, specifying the cause thereof, and the time during which the prisoner is to be kept in irons or under mechanical restraint, which order shall be preserved by the gaoler as his warrant.

60. All corporal punishments within the prison shall be attended by the gaoler and the surgeon. The surgeon shall give such orders for preventing injury to health as he may deem necessary, and it shall be the duty of the gaoler to carry them into effect; and the gaoler shall enter in the punishment book the hour at which the punishment is inflicted, the number of lashes, and any orders which the surgeon may have given on the occasion.

Prisoners under Sentence of Death.

61. Every prisoner under warrant or order for execution shall, immediately on his arrival in the prison after sentence, be searched by or by the orders of the gaoler, and all articles shall be taken from him which the gaoler deems dangerous or inexpedient to leave in his possession. He shall be confined in a cell apart from all other prisoners, and shall be placed by day and by night under the constant charge of an officer. He shall be allowed such a dietary and amount of exercise as the gaoler, with the approval of the visiting justices, may direct. The chaplain shall have free access to every such prisoner, unless the prisoner be of a religious persuasion differing from that of the Established Church, and be visited by a minister of such persuasion, in which case the minister of such persuasion shall have free access to him. With the above exceptions, no person, not being a visiting justice or an officer of the prison, shall have access to the prisoner except in pursuance of an order from a visiting justice.

During the preparation for an execution, and the time of the execution, no person shall enter into the prison who is not legally entitled to do so, unless in pursuance of an order in writing from two or more visiting justices.

Prison Officers.

62. No prisoner shall be employed as turnkey, assistant turnkey, wardaman, yardaman, overseer, monitor, or schoolmaster, or in the discipline of the prison, or in the service of any officer thereof, or in the service or instruction of any other prisoner. But this regulation shall not be taken to prevent the employment of any debtor in that part of the prison in which he may be lawfully confined in any manner in which he may be willing to be employed, and which is consistent with his safe custody.

63. Every prison officer, while acting as such, shall, by virtue of his appointment, and without being sworn in before any justice, be deemed to be a constable, and to have all such powers, authorities, protection, and privileges, for the purpose of the execution of his duty as a prison officer, as any constable duly appointed has within his constableness by common law, statute, or custom.

64. No officer of a prison shall sell or let to, nor shall any person in trust for or employed by him sell or let to, or derive any benefit from the selling or letting of any article to, any prisoner.

65. No officer of a prison shall, nor shall any person in trust for or employed by him, have any interest, direct or indirect, in any contract for the supply of the prison.

66. No officer of a prison shall at any time receive money, fee, or gratuity of any kind, for the admission of any visitors to the prison or to prisoners, or from or on behalf of any prisoner, on any pretext whatever.

67. Female prisoners shall in all cases be attended by female officers.

Gaoler.

68. The gaoler shall reside in the prison. He shall not be an undersheriff or bailiff, or be concerned in any other employment.

69. The gaoler shall strictly conform to the law relating to prisons and to the prison regulations, and shall be responsible for the due observance of them by others. He shall observe the conduct of the prison officers, and enforce on each of them the due execution of his duties, and shall not permit any subordinate officer to be employed in any private capacity, either for any other officer of the prison, or for any prisoner.

70. The gaoler shall, in case of misconduct, have power to suspend any subordinate officer, and shall report the particulars without delay to a visiting justice.

71. The gaoler shall, as far as practicable, visit the whole of the prison, and see every male prisoner once at least in every twenty-four hours, and in default of such daily visits and inspections, he shall state in his journal how far he has omitted them, and the cause thereof. He shall, at least once during the week, go through the prison at an uncertain hour of the night, which visit, with the hour and state of the prison at the time, he shall record in his journal. When visiting the females' prison, he shall be attended by the matron or some other female officer.

72. The gaoler shall cause an abstract, to be approved by the Secretary of State, of the regulations relating to the treatment and conduct of prisoners, with a copy of the prison dietaries (printed in legible characters), to be posted in each cell, and shall read, or cause the same to be read, to every prisoner who cannot read, within twenty-four hours after his admission.

73. The gaoler shall without delay call the attention of the surgeon to any prisoner whose state of mind or body appears to require attention, and shall carry into effect the written directions of the surgeon respecting alterations of the discipline or treatment of any such prisoner.

74. The gaoler shall notify to the surgeon without delay the illness of any prisoner, and shall deliver to him daily a list of such prisoners as complain of illness, or are removed to the infirmary, or confined to their cells by illness, and he shall daily deliver to the chaplain and surgeon lists of such prisoners as are confined in punishment cells.

75. Upon the death of a prisoner, the gaoler shall give immediate notice thereof to the coroner of the district to which the prison belongs, and to one of the visiting justices, as well as to the nearest relative of the deceased, where practicable.

76. The gaoler shall without delay report to the visiting justices any case of insanity or apparent insanity occurring among the prisoners.

77. The gaoler shall keep the following records and accounts:—

- (1). The register required by the Prison Ministers Act, 1863, to be kept of the church or religious persuasion to which each prisoner belongs;
- (2). A journal, in which he shall record all such matters as he is directed to record therein by this act, and all other occurrences of importance within the prison;
- (3). A nominal record of all prisoners committed to his charge, in such form as may be directed by the visiting justices:

(4). A punishment book for the entry of the punishments inflicted for prison offences;

(5). A visitors book for the entry of any observations made by visitors to the prison;

(6). A record of articles taken from prisoners;

(7). A record of the employment of prisoners sentenced to hard labour, and the manner in which they have been so employed;

(8). A list of books and documents committed to his care.

(9). An inventory of all the furniture and movable property belonging to the prison;

(10). An account of all prison receipts and disbursements.

78. The gaoler shall be responsible for the safe custody of the journals, registers, books, commitments, and all other documents confided to his care.

79. The gaoler shall not be absent from the prison for a night without permission in writing from a visiting justice; and his leave of absence, with the name of the visiting justice granting it, shall be entered in his journal; but if absent without leave for a night, from unavoidable necessity, he shall state the fact, and the cause of it, in his journal.

80. Where a deputy gaoler is appointed to a prison, he shall be legally competent to perform any duty required by law to be performed by the gaoler, and when the gaoler is absent from the prison the deputy gaoler shall perform all his duties. Where there is no deputy gaoler, or in case of his services not being available by reason of sickness or other unavoidable cause, the gaoler shall, when absent from the prison on leave, appoint, with the consent of the visiting justices, an officer of the prison to act as his substitute, and during such absence the substitute so appointed shall have all the powers and perform all the duties of the gaoler.

The deputy gaoler, when in charge of the prison as gaoler, shall, if absent from the prison from any unavoidable cause, or unable from sickness to perform his duties, appoint a substitute with the sanction of the visiting justices.

Matron.

81. The matron shall reside in the prison. She shall have the care and superintendence of the whole female department. The wards, cells, and yards where females are confined shall be secured by locks different from those securing the wards, cells, and yards allotted to male prisoners, and the keys of those locks shall be kept in the custody of the matron.

82. The matron shall, so far as practicable, visit and inspect every part of the prison occupied by females, and see every female prisoner once at least in every twenty-four hours, and in default of such daily visits and inspections, she shall state in her journal how far she has omitted them, and the causes thereof. She shall, at least once during the week, go through such part of the prison at an uncertain hour of the night, which visit, with the hour and state of such part of the prison at the time, shall be recorded in her journal.

83. The matron shall not be absent from the prison for a night without permission in writing from a visiting justice on the recommendation of the gaoler; and her leave of absence, with the name of the visiting justice granting it, shall be entered in her journal; but if absent without leave for a night from unavoidable necessity, she shall state the fact, and the cause of it, in her journal.

84. The matron shall, with the consent of the gaoler, and with the approval of the visiting justices, appoint a female officer of the prison to act as deputy matron whenever she is absent on leave from the prison, and during such absence the deputy matron shall have all the powers and duties of the matron. Before leaving the prison the matron shall personally give over the charge of the part of the prison occupied by females to the deputy matron.

85. The matron shall keep a journal, in which she shall record all occurrences of importance within her department, and punishments of female prisoners, and lay the journal before the gaoler daily, and before the visiting justices at their ordinary meetings.

Surgeon.

86. The surgeon shall visit the prison at least twice in every week, and oftener if necessary, and shall see every prisoner in the course of the week. He shall daily visit the prisoners, if any, confined in punishment cells, and he shall visit daily, and oftener if necessary, such of the prisoners as are sick, and, when necessary, shall direct any prisoner to be removed to the infirmary.

87. The surgeon shall enter, in the English language, day by day, in his journal, to be kept in the prison, an account of the state of every sick prisoner, the name of his disease, a description of the medicines and diet, and any other treatment which he may order for such prisoner.

88. The surgeon shall, once at least in every three months, inspect every part of the prison, and enter in his journal the result of each inspection, recording therein any observations he may think fit to make on any want of cleanliness, drainage, warmth, or ventilation; any bad quality of the provisions, any insufficiency of clothing or bedding, any deficiency in the quantity or defect in the quality of the water, or any other cause which may affect the health of the prisoners.

89. Whenever the surgeon has reason to believe that the mind of a prisoner is, or is likely to be, injuriously affected by the discipline or treatment, he shall report the case in writing to the gaoler, together with such directions as he may think proper, and he shall call the attention of the chaplain to any prisoner who appears to require his special notice.

90. The surgeon may, in any case of danger or difficulty which appears to him to require it, call in additional medical assistance; and no serious operation shall be performed without a previous consultation being held with another medical practitioner, except under circumstances not admitting of delay, such circumstances to be recorded in his journal.

91. The surgeon shall forthwith on the death of any prisoner, enter in his journal the following particulars: viz. at what time the deceased was taken ill, when the illness was first communicated to the surgeon, the nature of the disease, when the prisoner died, and an account of the appearances after death (in cases where a post mortem examination is made), together with any special remarks that appear to him to be required.

92. In case of sickness, necessary engagement, or leave of absence, to be given by the visiting justices, the surgeon shall appoint a substitute, approved of by the visiting justices. The name and residence of the substitute shall be entered in his journal.

Prison Officers.

93. All officers of the prison shall obey the directions of the gaoler, subject to the regulations of this act, and all subordinate officers shall perform such duties as may be directed by the gaoler, with the sanction of the visiting justices, and the duties of each subordinate officer shall be inserted in a book to be kept by him.

94. Subordinate officers shall not be absent from the prison without leave from the gaoler, and before absenting themselves they shall leave their keys, instruction book, and report book in the gaoler's office.

95. Subordinate officers shall not be permitted to receive any visitors within the prison without permission of the gaoler.

96. All subordinate officers shall frequently examine the state of the cells, bedding, locks, bolts, &c., and shall seize all prohibited articles, and deliver them to the gaoler forthwith.

Porter.

97. The officer acting as gate porter may examine all articles carried in or out of the prison, and may stop any person suspected of bringing in spirits or other prohibited articles into the prison, or of carrying out any property belonging to the prison, giving immediate notice thereof to the gaoler.

Reports.

98. Within one week after the termination of every assize or court of quarter sessions, the gaoler shall transmit by post to one of her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State a calendar containing the names, crimes, and sentences of every prisoner tried at such assize or court of quarter sessions in such form and containing such particulars as may be required by the Secretary of State; and whenever such court adjourns for any longer time than one week, the day upon which the adjournment is made shall be deemed the termination of the session within the meaning of this regulation; and every adjourned session for the trial of prisoners shall, for the purposes of this act, be deemed a separate session; and every gaoler who neglects or refuses to transmit such calendar, or wilfully transmits a calendar containing any false or imperfect statement, shall for every such offence forfeit a sum not exceeding 20*l.*, to be recovered summarily.

99. The visiting justices shall, once at least in each quarter of the year, carefully examine the following books kept by the gaoler of every prison, that is to say, the register kept in pursuance of the Prison Ministers Act, 1863, the journal, the nominal record, the punishment book, the visitors book, the record of articles taken from prisoners, the record of the employment of prisoners, the list of books and documents committed to his care, the inventory and the account of prison receipts and disbursements, and shall report to the justices in sessions assembled any special circumstances which call for notice in respect of such books. The gaoler shall also at such sessions answer, on oath if required, the inquiries of the justices with respect to the condition of the prison and of the prisoners, and with respect to any other matters relating thereto. He shall at the same time present a certificate, signed by himself, containing a declaration how far the regulations of this act with respect to the separation of prisoners and enforcement of hard labour have been complied with, and shall point out any deviation therefrom which has taken place since his last attendance at sessions.

100. The journals of the chaplain and surgeon shall, once at least in each quarter of a year, be laid before the justices in sessions assembled at such time as they may appoint, and shall be signed by the chairman of the sessions in proof of the same having been there produced. The chaplain shall once in the year, and he may at any sessions, deliver to the justices in sessions assembled a statement of the condition of the prison to which he is attached, and his observations thereon; and the surgeon shall, once at least in each quarter of a year, report to the justices in sessions assembled the condition of the prison, and the state of health of the prisoners under his care.

101. There shall be kept in every prison a book, to be called the non-resident officers book, in which the chaplain and any other officer of the prison not residing within the prison, but attending on or required to attend on such prison, shall regularly enter the date of every visit made to the prison by such officer; and every entry shall be signed with the name and be in the handwriting of such officer, and such book shall, once at least in each quarter of a year, be laid before the justices in sessions assembled at such time as they may appoint, and shall be signed by the chairman of the sessions in proof of the same having been produced. The gaoler of every prison shall be responsible for the safe custody of such book, and shall at all times, when required so to do, produce it for inspection to the visiting justices, or to any justice of the peace for the county, riding, division, hundred, district, city, town, or place to which the prison belongs.

Construction and Application of Schedule.

102. Subject to the provisions of this act the justices in sessions assembled shall make such rules as they think expedient with respect to the classification and treatment of prisoners who are not debtors and are not criminal prisoners within the meaning of this act.

103. Any rules made by the justices in sessions assembled, or by the visiting justices, and any dietary tables framed in pursuance of this act, shall be deemed to be regulations of the prison within the meaning of this act.

104. All officers of a prison shall be deemed to be subordinate officers with the exception of the gaoler, the chaplain, the surgeon, the matron, and any minister appointed under the Prison Ministers Act.

SCHEDULE II.

Prisons of	Legal Character of Prison.	County.
Aberystwith . . .	Borough Prison	Cardigan.
Bradninch . . .	" . . .	Devon.
Faversham . . .	" . . .	Kent.
Helstone . . .	" . . .	Cornwall.
King's Lynn . . .	" . . .	Norfolk.
Lichfield . . .	" . . .	Stafford.
Maldon . . .	" . . .	Essex.
Newcastle under-Lyme . . .	" . . .	Stafford.
Penzance . . .	" . . .	Cornwall.
Richmond . . .	" . . .	York.
Romney Marsh . . .	Liberty . . .	Kent.
Rye . . .	Borough . . .	Sussex.
South Molton . . .	" . . .	Devon.
Tenterden . . .	" . . .	Kent.

SCHEDULE III.

LIST OF ACTS REPEALED.

- 4 Geo. 4, c. 64—An Act for consolidating and amending the Laws relating to the building, repairing, and regulating of certain Gaols and Houses of Correction in England and Wales.—The whole act.
- 5 Geo. 4, c. 85—An Act for amending an Act of the last Session of Parliament relating to the building, repairing, and enlarging of certain Gaols and Houses of Correction, and for procuring Information as to the State of all other Gaols and Houses of Correction in England and Wales.—The whole act.
- 6 Geo. 4, c. 40—An Act to enable Justices of the Peace in England in certain Cases to borrow Money on Mortgage of the Rate of the City, Riding, or Place for which such Justices shall be then acting.—The whole act.
- 7 Geo. 4, c. 18—An Act to authorise the Disposal of unnecessary Prisons in England.—The whole act.
- 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 38—An Act for effecting greater Uniformity of Practice in the Government of the several Prisons in England and Wales, and for appointing Inspectors of Prisons in Great Britain.—Sects. 2, 5, 6, 11, and 12.
- 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76—An Act to provide for the Regulation of Municipal Corporations in England and Wales.—Sects. 115 and 116.
- 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 105—An Act for the better Administration of Justice in certain Boroughs.—Sects. 1 and 2.
- 1 Vict. c. 78—An Act to amend an Act for the Regulation of Municipal Corporations in England and Wales.—Sects. 37 and 38.
- 2 & 3 Vict. c. 56—An Act for the better ordering of Prisons.—The whole act, except sects. 18, 19, 20, and 21, and except sects. 22 and 23 so far as they relate to prisons or places of confinement to which this act does not extend.
- 3 & 4 Vict. c. 25—An Act to amend the Act for the better ordering of Prisons.—The whole act.
- 5 & 6 Vict. c. 53—An Act to encourage the Establishment of District Prisons.—The whole act.
- 5 & 6 Vict. c. 98—An Act to amend the Law relating to Prisons.—Sects. 1, 2, 4, 8, 9, 13, 25, and 30, so far as the said sections relate to prisons within the provisions of this act.
- 7 & 8 Vict. c. 50—An Act to extend the Powers of the Act for encouraging the Establishment of District Courts and Prisons.—The whole act.
- 7 & 8 Vict. c. 94—An Act to enable Barristers to arbitrate between Counties and Boroughs to submit a Special Case to the Superior Courts.—The whole act.
- 11 & 12 Vict. c. 39—An Act to facilitate the raising of Money by Corporate Bodies for building or repairing Prisons.—The whole act.
- 16 & 17 Vict. c. 43—An Act for enabling the Justices of Counties to contract in certain Cases for the Maintenance and Confinement of convicted Prisoners in the Gaols of adjoining Counties.—The whole act.

25 & 26 Vict. c. 44—An Act to amend the Law relating to the giving of Aid to discharged Prisoners.—Sects. 2 and 3.

26 & 27 Vict. c. 79—An Act for the Amendment of the Law relating to the Religious Instruction of Prisoners in County and Borough Prisons in England and Scotland.—So much of sect. 3 as is inconsistent with the provisions of this act, and the whole of sect. 5, but so far only as relates to prisons to which this act applies.

CAP. CXXVII.

An Act to amend the Law relating to small Penalties.

[6th July, 1865.]

Sect. 1. Short title.

2. Commencement of act.

3. Definition of "penalty."

4. Recovery of small penalties.

5. Saving as to hard labour.

6. Application of act.

7. Not to apply to penalties under Revenue Acts.

8. Extent of act.

Whereas it is expedient to amend the law relating to small penalties: be it enacted &c., as follows:—

Sect. 1. This act may be cited for all purposes as "The Small Penalties Act, 1865."

2. This act shall come into operation on the 1st August, 1865.

3. The word "penalty" in this act shall include any sum of money recoverable in a summary manner.

4. Where upon summary conviction any offender may be adjudged to pay a penalty not exceeding 5*l.*, such offender, in case of non-payment thereof, may, without any warrant of distress, be committed to prison for any term not exceeding the period specified in the following scale, unless the penalty shall be sooner paid:—

For any penalty	The imprisonment not to exceed—
Not exceeding 10 s.	Seven days.
Exceeding 10 s. and not exceeding 1 l.	Fourteen days.
Exceeding 1 l. but not exceeding 2 l.	One month.
Exceeding 2 l. but not exceeding 5 l.	Two months.

5. Nothing in this act contained shall affect the power of imposing hard labour in addition to imprisonment in cases where hard labour might, on non-payment of the penalty, have been so imposed if this act had not been passed.

6. This act shall apply to penalties, including costs, recoverable in a summary manner in pursuance of any act of Parliament, whether passed before or after the commencement of this act; and all provisions of any act of Parliament authorising, in the case of non-payment of a penalty not exceeding 5*l.*, a longer term of imprisonment than is provided by this act, shall be repealed.

7. This act shall not apply to any penalty imposed by any act of Parliament relating to the inland revenue.

8. This act shall extend to England only.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL ACTS,

DECLARED PUBLIC, AND TO BE JUDICIALLY NOTICED.

28 & 29 VICTORIA.—SESSION 1865.

CAP. I.

An Act to enable the Cole Valley and Halstead Railway Company to increase their Capital.

CAP. II.

An Act to regulate the Mode of Valuation of the underground Pipes or Works in the City of Glasgow belonging to the City and Suburban Gas Company of Glasgow, for the Purpose of Assessment under the Glasgow Police Act, 1862.

CAP. III.

An Act to enable the Metropolitan Board of Works to open a new Street in Whitechapel, and to remove Middle-row, Holborn, all in the County of Middlesex.

CAP. IV.

An Act to reduce the Capital and Borrowing Powers of the Mistly, Thorpe, and Walton Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. V.

An Act to confer further Powers upon the Brighton, Hove, and Preston Constant Service Waterworks Company.

CAP. VI.

An Act to enable the Rosendale Union Gas Company to raise additional Capital.

CAP. VII.

An Act to dissolve the Union subsisting between the Visitors of the Lunatic Asylum for the Counties of Leicester and Rutland and the Corporation of the Borough of Leicester, for the Admission of Lunatic Paupers from the said Borough into the said Asylum, and to empower the said Corporation to provide a separate Asylum; and to authorise the Corporation to establish a Market for the Sale of Hay and other Commodities, in lieu of the existing Market; and to extend the Powers of the said Corporation with respect to Streets in the said Borough; and for other Purposes.

CAP. VIII.

An Act for making an Embankment on the South Shore of the River Shannon, near to the City of Limerick; and for other Purposes.

CAP. IX.

An Act for authorising the Local Board for the District of the Borough of Oswestry and the Liberties thereof to provide a better Supply of Water to the District, and to complete the Sewerage of the District, and to dispose of the Sewage for Irrigation; and for other Purposes.

CAP. X.

An Act to repeal an Act for making, repairing, and improving certain Roads leading to and from Helston, in the County of Cornwall, and to make other Provisions in lieu thereof; and for other Purposes.

CAP. XI.

An Act to enable the Ramsbottom Gas Company to raise additional Capital.

CAP. XII.

An Act to authorise the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Borough of Bolton to construct an Aqueduct and other Works in connexion with the intended Wayoh Reservoir; and to make further Provisions for the Regulation of the Borough.

CAP. XIII.

An Act for better supplying with Gas the Inhabitants of Redhill, and of certain Places in the Neighbourhood thereof, in the County of Surrey.

CAP. XIV.

An Act to enable the South Metropolitan Gas-light and Coke Company to purchase additional Lands; to remove a Church in the Neighbourhood of their Works; and for other Purposes relating to the Company.

CAP. XV.

An Act for more effectually lighting Folkestone and its Neighbourhood with Gas.

CAP. XVI.

An Act to incorporate the Banbury Water Company (Limited), and to make further Provision for the Supply of Water to the Town of Banbury and the Neighbourhood thereof.

CAP. XVII.

An Act for better supplying with Water the Town of Luton, in the County of Bedford.

CAP. XVIII.

An Act to enable the Athenry and Ennis Junction Railway Company to raise additional Capital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. XIX.

An Act to authorise the Construction of a Railway from Poole to Bournemouth.

CAP. XX.

An Act to authorise the Construction of new, and widening and altering the existing, Streets, and other Works and Improvements in the Borough of Liverpool; and for other Purposes.

CAP. XXI.

An Act to vest in the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company and the Lancashire Union Railways Company jointly certain Portions of Railway near Blackburn.

CAP. XXII.

An Act to authorise the widening of the Blackpool Branch of the Preston and Wyre Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. XXIII.

An Act to incorporate a Company for making a Railway to be called "The Luddenden Valley Railway;" to authorise working and other Arrangements with the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company; to enable that Company to subscribe Capital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. XXIV.

An Act for incorporating the Fareham Gas and Coke Company; for the Increase and Regulation of their Capital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xxv.

An Act to extend the Limits within which the Bath Gas-light and Coke Company are authorised to supply Gas, and to enable the Company to construct a Railway or Tramway; to erect additional Works; to raise further Capital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xxvi.

An Act for granting further Powers to the Bristol Waterworks Company, and for the Amendment of their existing Act.

CAP. xxvii.

An Act for the Improvement and Regulation of the proposed new Town of West Worthing, in the Parish of Heene, in the County of Sussex.

CAP. xxviii.

An Act to incorporate the Exmouth Gas, Coke, and Water Company (Limited), and to make further Provision for lighting the Town of Exmouth and certain neighbouring Places with Gas.

CAP. xxix.

An Act to enable the Shrewsbury and North Wales Railway Company to raise further Sums, and to divide their Shares, and to make Deviations and Alterations in their authorised Line of Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xxx.

An Act to amend the Acts relating to the East and West India Dock Company.

CAP. xxxi.

An Act to authorise the Metropolitan and St. John's Wood Railway Company to extend their Railway to Hampstead; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xxxii.

An Act to enable the Crystal Palace District Gas Company to raise additional Capital.

CAP. xxxiii.

An Act to enable the Corporation of Bristol to improve the River Avon and the Docks of Bristol.

CAP. xxxiv.

An Act for better supplying with Water the Borough of St. Alban, and the Parishes and Places of St. Albans, St. Peter, St. Michael, St. Stephen, and Saundridge, all in the County of Hertford.

CAP. xxxv.

An Act for enabling the Tyldesley-with-Shakerley Local Board to supply Gas in their District, and in adjoining Places; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xxxvi.

An Act to confer further Powers upon the Chesterfield Waterworks and Gas-light Company.

CAP. xxxvii.

An Act to authorise the Carmarthen and Cardigan Railway Company to form into separate Capitals the Capitals authorised to be raised by the Carmarthen and Cardigan Railway Acts, 1862 and 1863; and to extend the Times granted by the said Acts for the Purchase of Lands and Execution of Works.

CAP. xxxviii.

An Act for the Supply of the City of Winchester and its Neighbourhood with Water and with Gas, and for incorporating into One Company the Winchester Waterworks Company (Limited) and the Winchester Gas-light and Coke Company.

CAP. xxxix.

An Act for conferring further Powers on the Lostwithiel and Fowey Railway Company in relation to their Capital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xl.

An Act to define the Capital of the Midland Great Western Railway of Ireland Company; to enable the Company to create Preference Shares; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xli.

An Act for enabling the Buckfastleigh, Totnes, and South Devon Railway Company to extend their Railway to Ashburton; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xlii.

An Act to confirm an Agreement between the Bristol and Exeter Railway Company and the Devon and Somerset Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xliii.

An Act to enable the Great Southern and Western Railway Company to create Debenture Stock.

CAP. xlii.

An Act to enable the Kington and Eardisley Railway Company to divide their Shares; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xlv.

An Act to grant further Powers to the Stafford and Uttoxeter Railway Company.

CAP. xli.

An Act for enabling the Corporation for preserving and improving the Port of Dublin, to lay down and maintain Tramways on the Quays and elsewhere at Dublin; for amending the Acts relating to the Corporation; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xlvii.

An Act for better supplying with Water the Inhabitants of the Townships of Runcorn, Weston, and Halton, in the Parish of Runcorn, in the County of Chester.

CAP. xlviii.

An Act to empower the Glasgow and South-western Railway Company to contribute Funds towards and hold Shares in the Undertaking of the City of Glasgow Union Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xlix.

An Act for incorporating the Rastrick Gas Company (Limited), and extending their Powers; and for other Purposes.

CAP. l.

An Act to enable the London, Brighton, and South-coast Railway Company to make new Railways from St. Leonards to their Ouse Valley and Tunbridge Wells and Eastbourne Lines, and Deviations in those Lines; and for other Purposes.

CAP. li.

An Act for the Construction of Railways to connect, by means of the Thames Tunnel, certain Railways on the Surrey Side of the River Thames with certain Railways on the Middlesex Side of the said River, to be called "The East London Railway;" and for other Purposes.

CAP. lii.

An Act for incorporating and granting other Powers to the Birstal Gas-light Company.

CAP. liii.

An Act to enable the Bodmin Railway Company to extend their Railway to the Bodmin and Wadebridge Railway; to raise further Moneys; and for other Purposes.

CAP. liv.

An Act to incorporate a Company for better supplying with Gas Littleborough, in the Parish of Rochdale, in the County of Lancaster, and the Neighbourhood thereof; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lv.

An Act for better lighting with Gas the District of Brierley Hill, and certain Parishes and Places adjacent thereto, in the Counties of Stafford and Worcester.

CAP. lvi.

An Act to authorise the Newport Pagnell Railway Company to extend their Railway to Olney, in the County of Bucks.

CAP. lvii.

An Act to reconstitute the Preston Gas Company; to authorise them to raise further Moneys; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lviil.

An Act to amend an Act for building a new Chapel upon Portsmouth Common, in the Parish of Portsea, in the County of Southampton; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lix.

An Act to amend the Galway Commissioners Waterworks Act, 1863.

CAP. lx.

An Act to transfer the Statute Labour Roads in the Burgh of Dundee to the Commissioners of Police of the said Burgh, and to provide for the Management and Maintenance of the said Roads.

CAP. lxi.

An Act to incorporate a Company for making a Railway from the Darlington and Barnard Castle Branch of the North-eastern Railway, near Gainsford, in the County of Durham, to Forestt, in the North Riding of the County of York; to authorise Working and other Arrangements with the North-eastern Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxii.

An Act to authorise the Great Eastern Railway Company to make a Railway from their Saint Ives and March Railway at Somersham to the Ramsey Railway at Ramsey, in the County of Huntingdon.

CAP. lxiii.

An Act for consolidating and amending the Acts relating to Markets and Slaughter-houses in Glasgow; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxiv.

An Act to incorporate the Gosport Gas and Coke Company, and to make further Provision for lighting with Gas the Town of Gosport, and certain Parishes and Places in the Neighbourhood thereof; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxv.

An Act to enable the Local Board of Health for the District of the Borough of Llanelly to construct Waterworks, and supply their District and adjoining Places with Water; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxvi.

An Act to enable the London, Brighton, and South-coast Railway Company to make short Junction Railways to connect their existing and authorised Railways in the County of Surrey, and to acquire additional Lands; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxvii.

An Act to restore the Exemption of Goods loaded or unloaded on the Lands or Docks of Robert Vyner, Esq., Part of and adjoining to the Great Float at Birkenhead, from the Payment of Dock Rates on Goods to the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board.

CAP. lxviii.

An Act to enable the Whitehaven Junction Railway Company to enlarge their Station Accommodation at Whitehaven; to raise a further Sum of Money; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxix.

An Act to authorise the Commissioners of the Glasgow Corporation Waterworks to construct a Bridge for carrying the Aqueduct from Loch Katrine to Glasgow over the River Endrick; to provide for the better Distribution of Water; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxx.

An Act to make better Provision respecting the Repayment of Money borrowed by the Corporation of Sunderland; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxxi.

An Act for authorising the Acquisition by the London and South-western Railway Company and the Devon and Somerset Railway Company of the Undertaking and Property of the Ilfracombe Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxxii.

An Act to grant various additional Powers to the North London Railway Company.

CAP. lxxiii.

An Act to enable the Corporation of the President, Vice-Presidents, Treasurer, and Members of the School for the Indigent Blind to sell and grant Leases of the Land belonging to them, and to purchase other Land, and for otherwise enabling them the better to carry out the Purposes of the said Corporation.

CAP. lxxiv.

An Act to enable the Glasgow and South-western Railway Company to make new Railways between Kilmarnock and Glasgow; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxxv.

An Act for better supplying the Township of Horsforth, in the West Riding of the County of York, with Water; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxxvi.

An Act for incorporating and granting other Powers to the Drighlington and Gildersome Gas-light Company.

CAP. lxxvii.

An Act to authorise the Liverpool United Gas-light Company to increase their Capital, and to purchase additional Lands; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxxviii.

An Act to extend for a further Period the Powers of the Wexford Harbour Embankment Company for the Completion of their Undertaking; and to amend the Acts relating to the said Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxxix.

An Act to amend the Provisions of the Acts relating to the Company of Proprietors of the Stourbridge Navigation, and to confer further Powers on that Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxxx.

An Act for more effectually maintaining and repairing several Roads adjoining or near to the Town of Great Torrington, in the County of Devon; and for new Powers; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxxxi.

An Act for authorising an Extension of the Corwen and Bala Railway; for abandoning Portions of the Corwen and Bala and Bala and Dolgelly Railways; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxxxii.

An Act to enable the Weald of Kent Railway Company to make a Deviation of their authorised Line of Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxxxiii.

An Act to vest the Carmyllie private Railway in the Scottish North-eastern Railway Company; Powers to that Company to take Tolls; raise additional Capital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxxxiv.

An Act to enable the Maryport and Carlisle Railway Company to construct the Derwent Branch Railway; to enlarge the Bull Gill Station; to purchase additional Lands; to raise further Moneys; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxxxv.

An Act to empower the Port Talbot Company to raise additional Capital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxxxvi.

An Act to enable the Whitehaven, Cleator, and Egremont Railway Company to make Branches and other Works, and to extend their Railway to Bigrigg Moor, in the County of Cumberland; to raise further Capital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxxxvii.

An Act for authorising the Construction of Railways in the County of Northumberland, to be called "The Hexham and Allendale Railway;" and for other Purposes.

CAP. lxxxviii.

An Act to authorise the Construction of Docks at King's Lynn, and for other Purposes relating to that Undertaking.

CAP. lxxxix.

An Act for authorising the London and South-western Railway Company to abandon the making of Lines of Railway at Kensington and Hammersmith, and to make other Lines of Railway instead thereof; and to make the Chiswick Curve; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xc.

An Act for enabling the Mayor, Aldermen, and Citizens of the City of Manchester to construct new Streets, enlarge Markets, improve the Channel of the River Medlock, and to effect further Improvements in the said City; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xci.

An Act to incorporate a Company for making a Railway from the South Durham and Lancashire Union Branch of the North-eastern Railway at Lartington, to Middleton in Teesdale; Powers to that Company to subscribe; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xcii.

An Act for enabling the Agra and Masterman's Bank (Limited) to divide the original Shares of One hundred Pounds in the Capital of the Company into two Shares of Fifty Pounds each.

CAP. xciii.

An Act to extend the Time for completing the Aylesbury and Buckingham Railway; to raise additional Capital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xciv.

An Act to reincorporate the Gomersal Gas-light Company (Limited); to authorise the raising of additional Capital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xcv.

An Act for establishing a Cattle Market at Market Drayton, in the County of Salop.

CAP. xcvi.

An Act for granting further Powers to the Belfast Gas-light Company.

CAP. xcvi.

An Act to transfer to the Bristol and Exeter Railway Company the Powers of constructing and working the Cheddar Valley and Yatton Railway; to extend the Time for purchasing Lands; to authorise the Purchase of additional Lands; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xcvi.

An Act for a Joint Station at Bristol, for the Great Western, Bristol and Exeter, and Midland Railway Companies; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xcix.

An Act for enabling the Local Board of the Borough of Carnarvon to supply their District with Water.

CAP. c.

An Act to enable the London and Blackwall Railway Company to lease their Undertaking to the Great Eastern Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ci.

An Act to authorise the Hammersmith and City Railway Company to alter some of the Works connected with their Railway, and to purchase additional Lands, and to lease or transfer their Undertaking to the Great Western and Metropolitan Railway Companies; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cii.

An Act for authorising the London and South-western Railway Company to make new Lines of Railway in Surrey, and for vesting in them Portions of Railways, and for authorising Agreements between them and other Railway Companies, and for the raising by them of further Moneys; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ciii.

An Act for authorising the London and South-western Railway Company to make and maintain a Railway from their Main Line of Railway at Pirbright by Aldershot to Farnham; and for other Purposes.

CAP. civ.

An Act for authorising the London and South-western Railway Company to make and maintain a Railway from Bideford to Great Torrington; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cv.

An Act to authorise the Great Northern Railway Company to construct a Railway from Hornsey to their Hertford, Luton, and Dunstable Line near Hertford.

CAP. cvi.

An Act for better supplying with Water the Towns of Kidderminster, Stourport, and Bewdley, and certain Parishes and Places adjacent thereto, in the County of Worcester.

CAP. cvii.

An Act to empower the Ventnor Harbour Company to raise additional Capital.

CAP. cviii.

An Act for more effectually paving, lighting, and improving the Town of Ross, in the County of Hereford; for maintaining and providing Markets within such Town; and for supplying the same with Water; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cix.

An Act for better supplying the Town of Rhyl and Places in the surrounding District with Water; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cx.

An Act for better supplying the Town of Gainsborough and the Neighbourhood thereof with Water; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cx.

An Act to enable the North-eastern Railway Company to construct Branch Railways and other Works in the Counties of Durham and York; to acquire additional Lands; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxii.

An Act for supplying with Water the Burgh of Ayr and Places adjacent.

CAP. cxiii.

An Act to extend the Time for the Purchase of Lands for, and Completion of, the Sligo Extension of the Enniskillen, Bundoran, and Sligo Railway Company; and to enable the Company to raise further Money.

CAP. cxiv.

An Act to enable the Dublin and Antrim Junction Railway Company to create Preference Shares in lieu of unissued, surrendered, and forfeited Shares; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxv.

An Act to authorise the Enlargement and Maintenance of existing Waterworks in the Township of Glossop, in the Parish of Glossop, in the County of Derby, and the Construction of new Waterworks; and to authorise the Sale of such Waterworks, and the Purchase thereof; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxvi.

An Act to authorise the Construction, by the London and Blackwall Railway Company, of Railways in the Parishes of Stepney, Poplar, and Limehouse, to be called "The London, Blackwall, and Millwall Extension Railway;" to authorise Agreements with other Companies with reference thereto; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxvii.

An Act to confer further Powers upon the Metropolitan Railway Company with reference to certain Works and Lands; and to authorise the Lease or Transfer of the Undertaking of the Hammersmith and City Railway Company, and Arrangements with other Parties; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxviii.

An Act to authorise the Great Eastern Railway Company to make certain Railways in connexion with their Railways near the Metropolis, and to purchase Station Lands; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxix.

An Act to authorise the Hastings and St. Leonards Gas Company to raise a further Sum of Money; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxx.

An Act to repeal and consolidate the Acts relating to the Exeter Gas-light and Coke Company, and the Exeter Commercial Gas-light and Coke Company; and to confer further Powers on the Exeter Gas-light and Coke Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxxi.

An Act for reclaiming from the Sea certain Lands on and near the Eastern and South-eastern Coast of Essex; for making Conduits from the North London Main discharging Sewers to the Coast of Essex; for utilising the Sewage of North London; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxxi.

An Act for making a Railway to connect Brean Down Harbour with existing Railways in the County of Somerset; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxlii.

An Act to vary, extend, and consolidate the Powers of the Northern Assurance Company; and for other Purposes relating thereto.

CAP. cxliii.

An Act for the further Improvement of the Drainage and Navigation by the River Witham, in the County of Lincoln, and for amending the Acts relating thereto; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxliii.

An Act to authorise the North British Railway Company to make several Railways in the Parishes of Liberton, Lasswade, and elsewhere, in the County of Edinburgh; and to have Running Powers over the Esk Valley Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxliii.

An Act to authorise the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the City and Borough of Ripon, to purchase the Gasworks of the Ripon Gas-light Company, and to supply Gas within the said City and Borough, and the Neighbourhood thereof, in the West and North Ridings of the County of York; and to preclude Questions as to the Style of the City and Borough, and the Name of the Corporation; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxliii.

An Act to empower the West Sussex Junction Railway Company to make a Deviation from the authorised Line of their Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxliii.

An Act to repeal, and re-enact with Amendments, the Provisions of the Act relating to the Leamington Priors Gas-light and Coke Company; to extend the Limits of Supply thereby authorised; to authorise an Increase of Capital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxlix.

An Act for the Incorporation and better Regulation of the Affairs of the Assam Company.

CAP. cxxx.

An Act to extend the Kilrush and Kilkee Railway, and to grant further Time for Completion of the Works.

CAP. cxxxi.

An Act to repeal the Acts relating to the Plymouth and Dartmoor Railway Company; to authorise the raising of additional Capital, and Arrangements with the South Devon Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxxxi.

An Act for making a Railway from the Bristol and Exeter Railway at Tiverton, to the Devon and Somerset Railway, in the Parish of Morebath, in the County of Devon; and for granting certain Powers to the Bristol and Exeter Railway Company with reference thereto.

CAP. cxxxi.

An Act to authorise the Amalgamation of the Dunblane, Doune, and Callander Railway Company with the Scottish Central Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxxxi.

An Act to authorise the Amalgamation of the Crieff Junction Railway Company with the Scottish Central Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxxxi.

An Act for enabling the Caledonian Railway Company to make a Railway from Barrhead to Paisley, and to improve the Railway between Barrhead and Crofthead, all in the County of Renfrew; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxxxi.

An Act for enabling the Caledonian Railway Company to make a Branch Railway for connecting their Main Line, near Dalmakaddar, with the Dumfries, Lochmaben, and Lockerby Junction Railway, near Shielhill, in the County of Dumfries; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxxxi.

An Act to repeal, consolidate, and amend the Provisions of the Acts of Parliament relating to the Company of Merchants of the City of Edinburgh, and to enlarge the Powers of the said Company; to amend the Act relating to Daniel Stewart's Hospital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxxxi.

An Act to extend the Limits for the Supply of Water, and to authorise the building of a Town Hall, by the Local Board of Health for the District of Merthyr Tydfil; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxxxi.

An Act for making a Railway from the Caledonian Railway at Crofthead to Kilmarnock, with a Branch to Belth, in the Counties of Renfrew and Ayr; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxli.

An Act for the Extension of the Boundaries of the Municipal Borough and District of Halifax, and otherwise improving the said Borough; to amend and extend the several Powers of the Acts relating thereto; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxli.

An Act to extend the Limits of Supply of the Neath Water Company, and to authorise them to construct additional Works; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxli.

An Act to enable the Southampton Gas-light and Coke Company to extend their Limits for the Supply of Gas, and to raise additional Capital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxli.

An Act to enable the Whitehaven and Furness Junction Railway Company to make Branches and other Works, and to extend their Railway from Millom, in the County of Cumberland, to join the Furness Railway, in the Parish of Dalton, in the County of Lancaster; to raise further Capital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxli.

An Act to extend the Term and amend the Provisions of the Act relating to the Cromford and Belper Turnpike Road.

CAP. cxli.

An Act for enabling the Mayor, Aldermen, and Citizens of the City of Manchester to construct new Works in connexion with their Waterworks; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxlvi.

An Act to authorise the Construction of a Pier in Morecambe Bay.

CAP. cxlvii.

An Act for extending the Powers of the Rickmansworth, Amersham, and Chesham Railway Company.

CAP. cxlviii.

An Act for the Incorporation of the Ham Oyster Fishery Company, and for authorising them to establish and maintain an Oyster Fishery near the North-east Coast of the Isle of Sheppey, in the County of Kent; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxlix.

An Act for authorising the Okehampton Railway Company to make and maintain Extensions of their Railway to Bude, in the County of Cornwall, and to Great Torrington, in the County of Devon, respectively, and to raise further Moneys; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cl.

An Act to authorise the vesting in the Great Eastern Railway Company of the Bishop Stortford, Dunmow, and Braintree Railway.

CAP. cli.

An Act to confer further Powers upon the Metropolitan District Railway Company.

CAP. clii.

An Act to give Effect to an Agreement between the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Council of the City of Edinburgh and the North British Railway Company with reference to the Fruit and Vegetable Market, and for the Enlargement of the North British Station at Edinburgh; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cliii.

An Act to incorporate a Company for making the Fareham and Netley Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cliv.

An Act for authorising the Teign Valley Railway Company to raise further Moneys; and for other Purposes.

CAP. clv.

An Act for defining and consolidating the Undertaking and Mortgage Debt of the Bristol Port Railway and Pier Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. clvi.

An Act to authorise the Cork and Limerick Direct Railway Company to issue Preference Shares in lieu of cancelled Shares, and to create Debenture Stock; and for other Purposes.

CAP. clvii.

An Act for authorising the Isle of Wight Railway Company to provide and work Steam Vessels, and to provide Accommodation for Traffic thereby, and to raise further Moneys; and for other Purposes.

CAP. clviii.

An Act to authorise the Llanelly Railway and Dock Company to raise more Money.

CAP. clix.

An Act to enable the Mid-Wales Railway Company to make a Railway to join the Central Wales Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. clx.

An Act to amend the Provisions of the West Bromwich Improvement Act, 1854, and the West Bromwich Improvement Amendment Act, 1855.

CAP. clxi.

An Act for enabling the Caledonian Railway Company to make a Branch Railway to Balerno, in the County of Edinburgh; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxlii.

An Act for the better Management of the Marsh Estate of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Borough of Southampton; and for authorising them to establish and maintain new Markets, and to raise further Moneys; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxliii.

An Act to repeal an Act passed in the Fourth Year of the Reign of Her present Majesty Queen Victoria, intituled "An Act for repairing several Roads leading from the Town of Barnstaple, in the County of Devon, and for making several new Lines of Road connected therewith," and to grant more effectual Powers in lieu thereof; to convert into Turnpike Road Portions of existing Roads; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxliv.

An Act to authorise the opening of certain new Streets in the Borough of Belfast, and to confer certain Powers upon a Company and the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Borough of Belfast for such Purposes.

CAP. cxlv.

An Act for empowering the Cheltenham Waterworks Company to extend their Works and Limits of Supply, and to raise a further Sum of Money; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxlvi.

An Act for granting certain Powers to the Crays Gas-light and Coke Company (Limited).

CAP. cxlvii.

An Act to authorise the Amalgamation of the General Terminus and Glasgow Harbour Railway Company with the Caledonian Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxlviii.

An Act to authorise the Consolidation into One Undertaking of the Inverness and Perth Junction and the Inverness and Aberdeen Junction Railways, and the Union into One Company of the Two Companies to which the said Railways respectively belong; to consolidate and amend the Acts relating to the same Companies; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxlix.

An Act for making a Railway from Bonar Bridge Railway Station at Ardgay, in the County of Ross, to Brora, in the County of Sutherland, to be called "The Sutherland Railway;" and for other Purposes.

CAP. clxx.

An Act to authorise the Carmarthen and Cardigan Railway Company to extend their Railway near Kidwelly, in Carmarthenshire.

CAP. clxxi.

An Act to continue the Winchcomb District of Turnpike Roads Trust, in the County of Gloucester; and for other Purposes.

CAP. clxxii.

An Act to enable the Mold and Denbigh Junction Railway Company to raise further Sums, and to divide their Shares, and to make Deviations and Alterations in their authorised Line of Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. clxxiii.

An Act to authorise the Bishop's Castle Railway Company to extend their Railway to the Minsterley Branch of the Shrewsbury and Welshpool Railway in Shropshire; and for other Purposes.

CAP. clxxiv.

An Act for transferring the New North Road or Parliamentary Road, Glasgow, to the Board of Police of Glasgow; and for other Purposes.

CAP. clxxv.

An Act for extending the Time for the Purchase of Lands and the Completion of the Railway authorised by the Carmarthenshire Railway Act, 1862.

CAP. clxxvi.

An Act for the Extension of the Wrexham, Mold, and Con-nah's Quay Railway to Farndon; and for other Purposes.

CAP. clxxvii.

An Act to authorise the Stonehouse and Nailsworth Railway Company to extend their Railway from Dudbridge to the Great Western Railway at Stroud; and for other Purposes relating to the same Company.

CAP. clxxviii.

An Act for authorising the making by the Tottenham and Hampstead Junction Railway Company of Lines of Railway by way of Substitution for Lines of Railway already authorised to be made by them; and for authorising Arrangements between them and the Great Eastern Railway Company and the Midland Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. clxxix.

An Act to enable the Furness Railway Company to construct new Lines of Railway, and to raise further Moneys; and for other Purposes.

CAP. clxxx.

An Act for maintaining, improving, and managing the Public Roads and Bridges in the County of Dumfries.

CAP. clxxxi.

An Act to authorise the Construction of a Railway from Wolverhampton to Walsall, all in the County of Stafford.

CAP. clxxxii.

An Act to authorise the Great Northern Railway Company to construct a Railway in Lincolnshire from Sleaford to Bourn.

CAP. clxxxiii.

An Act for separating for certain Purposes the Borough of Belfast from the County of Antrim; and for making better Provision respecting Contribution by the Borough towards the Expenses of the County; and for amending the Provisions of certain of the Acts relating to the Borough; and for other Purposes.

CAP. clxxxiv.

An Act to authorise the Great Eastern Railway Company to raise a further Sum of Money, and to consolidate certain of their Preference Stocks, and to confer Powers upon the said Company with reference to Lowestoft Harbour; and for other Purposes.

CAP. clxxxv.

An Act for making a Railway from Presteign, in the County of Radnor, to join the Central Wales Railway, in the Parish of Llangunllo, to be called "The Lugg Valley Railway;"
and for other Purposes.

CAP. clxxxvi.

An Act to enable the Solway Junction Railway Company to make certain Deviations in their authorised Line; and for other Purposes.

CAP. clxxxvii.

An Act to amend and enlarge the Powers and Provisions of the Westminster Improvement and Incumbered Estate
Act, 1861; for winding up the Affairs of the Commission; for the compulsory Purchase of Lands and the Completion of the Improvements; Borrowing Power; and for other Purposes.

CAP. clxxxviii.

An Act for amending and extending the Burnham Tidal Harbour Act, 1860, and for enlarging the Powers of the Tidal Harbour Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. clxxxix.

An Act for better supplying with Water the Town and Borough of Belfast and other Places, and for altering and amending the Constitution of the Corporation of the Belfast Water Commissioners; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cxc.

An Act to enable the Denbigh, Ruthin, and Corwen Railway Company to raise additional Capital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xcxi.

An Act to authorise the Edgware, Highgate, and London Railway Company to construct a short Line of Railway to connect their Railway with the Tottenham and Hampstead Junction Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xcxi.

An Act for making Railways from the Hammersmith and City Railway through Fulham to the North Shore of the River Thames; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xcxi.

An Act to empower the Lancashire Union Railways Company to construct an Extension Line to St. Helens and other Branches, in the County of Lancaster; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xcxi.

An Act to authorise the Lynn and Sutton Bridge Railway Company to execute certain Works at Sutton Bridge, and granting other Powers to the same Company.

CAP. xcxi.

An Act for the Improvement of the Town of Southport and the Neighbourhood thereof; and for other Purposes.

CAP. xcxi.

An Act authorising the Sale or Transfer of Southwark Bridge.

CAP. xcxi.

An Act to authorise the Sunningdale and Cambridge Town Railway Company to make new Railways, and to use Part of the Railway of the South-eastern Railway Company;
and for other Purposes.

CAP. xcxi.

An Act to authorise the Transfer to the Belfast, Holywood, and Bangor Railway Company of the Holywood Branch of the Belfast and County Down Railway; and for other Purposes relating to such Transfer.

CAP. xcxi.

An Act to extend the Time for the compulsory Purchase of Lands for Part of the Undertaking of the Sevenoaks, Maidstone, and Tunbridge Railway Company.

CAP. cc.

An Act to authorise the Edinburgh and Glasgow Railway Company to form a Station on the College Lands at Glasgow, and to subscribe to and hold Shares in the City of Glasgow Union Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cci.

An Act to authorise the Markland Railways Company to make Branch Railways in the County of Lanark; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cci.

An Act to enable the Caledonian Railway Company to make a Branch Railway for connecting their Railway with the North British Railway near Edinburgh; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cci.

An Act to authorise the Construction of a Railway, to be called "The Skipton and Wharfedale Railway."

CAP. cci.

An Act for a better Water Supply to Tunbridge Wells, and Places near thereto; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cci.

An Act for the Amalgamation of the Ogmere Valley Railways Company and the Ely Valley Extension Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccv.

An Act to authorise the Construction of Railways from the Port Carlisle Railway to the River Caldew, and thence to the Goods Lines on the Southern Side of the Carlisle Citadel Station; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccvii.

An Act for repairing the Road from the Guide Post below Haddon, out of the Bakewell Turnpike Road into the Bentley and Ashbourne Turnpike Road, in the County of Derby; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccviii.

An Act for amending the Metropolitan Market Act, 1857 and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccix.

An Act for the Mansfield and Worksoop Turnpike Road, in the Counties of Nottingham and Derby.

CAP. ccx.

An Act to give Effect to an Arrangement concerning the Contribution payable under certain Enactments by certain Barons in Roscommon and Galway, and the County of the Town of Galway, to the Midland Great Western Railway of Ireland Company.

CAP. ccxi.

An Act for conferring further Powers on the Swansea and Aberystwith Junction Railway Company.

CAP. ccxii.

An Act for maintaining the Public Roads and Bridges in the County of Wigtown.

CAP. ccxiii.

An Act to authorise the Construction of a Railway across the Firth of Forth in connexion with the Edinburgh and Glasgow and North British Railways, and in Completion of the improved Railway Route between Edinburgh and Perth across the Firth; also other Railways and Works; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxiv.

An Act for the further improving of the Town of Blackpool and the rest of the Township of Layton with Warbrick, in the County Palatine of Lancaster; and for other Purposes; and of which the Short Title is "Blackpool Improvement Act, 1865."

CAP. ccxv.

An Act for continuing the Term of the Turnpike Roads from Birmingham and Chesterfield, in the County of Derby, to the High Moors, in the Parish of Brampton, in the said County; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxvi.

An Act to authorise the Great Northern Railway Company to construct certain short Lines of Railway at Newark, Spalding, Essendine, and Barkstone; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxvii.

An Act to amalgamate the Monkland Railways Company with the Edinburgh and Glasgow Railway Company.

CAP. ccxviii.

An Act to authorise the Kidwelly and Llanelly Canal and Tramroad Company to stop up and discontinue the Use of their Canals, and to make a Railway from Burry Port, in the Parish of Pembrey, to join the Mountain Branch of the Llanelly Railway, in the Parish of Llanarthney, Carmarthenshire, with Branches; to change the Name of the Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxix.

An Act to empower the West Cornwall Railway Company to enter into Working Arrangements with other Companies, and to lease or sell their Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccx.

An Act to empower the Belfast Central Railway Company to make a Line of Railway and a Tramway, and to empower the Belfast Harbour Commissioners to make a Tramway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxi.

An Act to empower the Dublin Trunk Connecting Railway Company to make Junction and Deviation Railways; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxii.

An Act to authorise the Construction by the Dublin, Wicklow, and Wexford Railway Company of a Railway connecting their Railway with the Dublin and Kingstown Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxiii.

An Act for making a Railway from Dingwall to Kyle of Lochalsh, to be called "The Dingwall and Skye Railway;" and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxiv.

An Act for authorising the Isle of Wight Railway Company to make additional Railways, and to raise further Moneys; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxv.

An Act to enable the St. Clement Danes Improvement Company to make certain Improvements in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxvi.

An Act to authorise the Stourbridge Railway Company to construct a Branch Railway to Stourbridge, and to raise additional Sums of Money for their original Railway and Extension Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxvii.

An Act for the better Regulation of the Rochester Oyster Fishery; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxviii.

An Act for incorporating the Lymington River Company, and authorising them to make Improvements of the lower Part of the Lymington River in connexion with the Lymington Docks, and to reclaim Mud Land opposite to the Docks; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxix.

An Act for enabling the Busby Railway Company to extend their Railway to the Village of East Kilbride, in the County of Lanark; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxx.

An Act for the Incorporation of the Burnley Market Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxi.

An Act to revive and extend the Powers of the River Fergus Navigation and Embankment Company; and for authorising the Company to embank and reclaim from the Sea other Waste Lands on the Sides of the River Fergus, in the County of Clare; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxii.

An Act to enable the West Cork Railway Company to raise additional Capital; to maintain certain Portions of their Railway constructed beyond the authorised Limits; to extend the Time limited for Completion of Works; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxiii.

An Act to incorporate a Company for making Railways in the County of Worcester, to be called "The Halesowen and Bromsgrove Branch Railways;" and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxiv.

An Act to incorporate a Company for making and maintaining a Railway from the Peterston Station of the South Wales Railway to Cadoston-juxta-Barry, with a Branch to Sully, all in the County of Glamorgan; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxv.

An Act for supplying with Water the Town and Neighbourhood of Newtown, in the County of Montgomery.

CAP. cccxxvi.

An Act for the Extension of the Hoylake Railway to New Brighton; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxvii.

An Act to enable the Sidmouth Railway and Harbour Company to make and maintain a Branch from their authorised Railway, in the Parish of Sidmouth; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxviii.

An Act for making a Railway, to be called "The Spilsby and Firsby Railway;" and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxix.

An Act to enable the Swansea Vale and Neath and Brecon Junction Railway Company to construct a Branch to Abercraze; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxl.

An Act for more effectually maintaining and keeping in repair the Roads, Highways, and Bridges in the County of Aberdeen; for making new Roads in the said County; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxli.

An Act to authorise the Bishop's Castle Railway Company to make Communications between their Railway and certain neighbouring Railways; and for other Purposes relating to their Undertaking.

CAP. ccxlii.

An Act to abolish certain Restrictions as to the Use of the Connexion Railways of Messrs. Samuel Allsopp & Sons, at Burton-upon-Trent, and to authorise them to construct additional Railways.

CAP. ccxliii.

An Act to authorise the Construction of a Railway in the Town of Burton-upon-Trent; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxlii.

An Act for incorporating a Company, and for making and maintaining the Hawes and Melmerby Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxlv.

An Act to enable the Glasgow and South-western Railway Company to construct new Railways in connexion with their Railways and the Kirkcudbright and Bridge of Weir Railways; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxlv.

An Act to enable the Glasgow and South-western Railway Company to make and maintain certain Railways in the County of Ayr; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxlvii.

An Act to enable the City of Glasgow Union Railway Company to make Deviations of their authorised Railway; to construct a Railway to the Harbour of Glasgow; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxlviii.

An Act for amalgamating the Undertaking of the Marple New Mills and Hayfield Junction Railway Company with that of the Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Railway Company; and for authorising the last-mentioned Company to subscribe to the Undertaking of the Liverpool Central Station Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxlix.

An Act for authorising the Construction of a Railway from the Great Eastern Railway at Mellis to Eye, in the County of Suffolk; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccl.

An Act for the Improvement and better Government of the Borough of Newcastle-upon-Tyne; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccli.

An Act to enable the North-eastern Railway Company to construct a Railway and Works in Leeds, in the County of York; to raise additional Capital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclii.

An Act to incorporate the Committee for managing the General Station at Perth, and to vest in such Committee the whole of that Station and other Works to be made Part thereof; to alter the Division and Appropriation thereof; to authorise the Enlargement and Improvement of that Station and the Construction of new Works; to enable the Committee to recover the Expense of Enlargement from the Companies interested in such Station, and to confer Powers and impose Liabilities on those Companies; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccliii.

An Act to authorise the Joint Committee for managing the General Railway Station at Perth, to lease or feu Part of the Ground within the Station Limits for an Hotel, or to erect an Hotel thereon; to enable the Companies interested in the said Station, or the Majority of them, to contribute to the Hotel; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccliv.

An Act for regulating the Police, Lighting, Draining, and Improvement of the Burgh of Port Glasgow; for supplying with Water the said Burgh and Places adjacent; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclv.

An Act to empower the South Devon Railway Company to make a Branch Railway at Exeter, and to confer upon them further Powers in relation to their own Undertaking and the Undertakings of other Companies; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclvi.

An Act for incorporating the South Northumberland Railway Company, and authorising them to make and maintain the South Northumberland Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclvii.

An Act to enable the Torquay Gas Company to increase their Capital and extend their Works; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclviii.

An Act for making a Railway from near the Waterloo Station of the London and South-western Railway to Whitehall; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclix.

An Act to enable the West Riding and Grimsby Railway Company to raise further Sums of Money; to extend the Time limited in respect of One of their authorised Branches; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclx.

An Act to enable the Wrexham and Minera Railway Company to make and maintain new Lines of Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxi.

An Act to enable the Wrexham, Mold, and Connah's Quay Railway Company to extend their Railway to Connah's Quay; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxii.

An Act to stop up Part of an existing Road called Gloucester Road, formerly called Hogmore Lane, in the Parish of Saint Mary Abbotts, Kensington, in the County of Middlesex, and to vest the Site thereof in the Owners of the adjoining Lands, and to make a new Road of greater Width in lieu thereof; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxiii.

An Act for incorporating the Bude Canal and Launceston Junction Railway Company, and authorising them to make and maintain the Bude Canal and Launceston Junction Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxiv.

An Act to authorise the Construction of Railways from the Waterford and Limerick Railway at Clonmel to Lismore and Dungarvan; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxv.

An Act to enable the Dublin, Rathmines, Rathgar, Roundtown, Rathfarnham, and Rathcoole Railway Company to extend their Railway to Blessington and in Dublin; and for other Purposes in relation to the same Railway.

CAP. cclxvi.

An Act for making a Railway from the Town of Oban, in the County of Argyle, to the Dunblane, Doune, and Callander Railway near Callander, in the County of Perth, with a Tramway to the Harbour of Oban; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxvii.

An Act for making a new Railway Station at Leeds, in the County of York; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxviii.

An Act to provide for a Contribution by the London and South-western Railway Company to the Undertaking of the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway Company, and for the User by them of Part of the Undertaking; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxix.

An Act to authorise the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway Company to make connecting Railways, and to widen Parts of their existing Railways in Surrey, and to acquire additional Lands; to provide for the Abandonment of a Railway authorised by the Crystal Palace and South London Junction Railway Act, 1862; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxx.

An Act for making a Railway from Stratford-on-Avon to Worcester; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxxi.

An Act to enable the Mold and Denbigh Junction Railway Company to make certain new Lines of Railway, and to abandon a Portion of their authorised Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxxii.

An Act for making a Railway from Scarborough to Whitby.

CAP. cclxxiii.

An Act for the Dissolution of the Tooting, Merton, and Wimbledon Railway Company, and for vesting their Undertaking, Railway, and Property in the London and South-western Railway Company and the London, Brighton, and South-coast Railway Company; and for authorising the making and maintaining of a Junction Line of Railway at Wimbledon, between the London and South-western Railway, and the Tooting, Merton, and Wimbledon Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxxiv.

An Act to enlarge the Powers of the Tyne Improvement Commissioners, and to facilitate the Construction of the Tyneworth Docks; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxxv.

An Act for enabling the West Yorkshire Railway Company to raise further Money; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxxvi.

An Act for making a Railway from the West Midland Railway to the Coleford, Monmouth, Usk, and Pontypool Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxxvii.

An Act to authorise the Abandonment of the Wern Branch of the Cambrian Railways Company, and a Transfer of the Company's Agreement to work the Aberystwith and Welsh Coast Railway to Thomas Savin, and a Lease of the Company's Undertaking to the said Thomas Savin.

CAP. cclxxviii.

An Act to make further Provision for the Prevention of Accidents from Gunpowder in the River Mersey and in the Borough of Liverpool; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxxix.

An Act for making a Railway from the Deeside Railway Extension, at Charleston of Aboyne, to the Bridge of Gairn, to be called "The Aboyne and Braemar Railway."

CAP. cclxxx.

An Act for authorising the Sale by the Assignees in Bankruptcy of the Estate and Effects of the Bagenalstown and Wexford Railway Company of their Line of Railway, and all other their Property, together with the Rights, Powers, Authorities, and Privileges of the said Company, and for the Dissolution of the said Company.

CAP. cclxxxi.

An Act for authorising the Monmouthshire Railway and Canal Company to execute additional Works; to acquire the Brecon and Abergavenny Canal; to raise additional Capital; and for other Purposes relating to the same Company.

CAP. cclxxxii.

An Act for authorising the Sidmouth and Budleigh Salterton Railway Company to make and maintain a Deviation of their authorised Line in the County of Devon; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxxxiii.

An Act to enable the Aberystwith and Welsh Coast Railway Company to deviate from some of its authorised Lines; to make certain Extensions at Portmadoc Harbour, Aberdovey, and Cerig-y-Penrhyn; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxxxiv.

An Act to empower the Brecon and Llandovery Junction Railway Company to make a Deviation of Part of their authorised Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxxxv.

An Act for the Consolidation of the Capitals and Undertakings of the Brecon and Merthyr Tydfil Junction Railway Company; to enable them to raise more Money, and to construct new Lines to Ivor and Dowlais, and a Diversion of the Cyfarthfa Deviation; to extend the Time for the Completion of Parts of their Railways; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxxxvi.

An Act for granting certain Powers to the Bromley Gas Consumers Company (Limited).

CAP. cclxxxvii.

An Act for the Amalgamation of the Scottish Central Railway Company with the Caledonian Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxxxviii.

An Act to enable the Caledonian Railway Company to make and maintain certain Branch Railways; to supersede certain level Crossings; and to improve certain of their Stations and acquire additional Lands in the Counties of Renfrew, Lanark, Edinburgh, Dumfries, and Cumberland; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cclxxxix.

An Act for enabling the Caledonian Railway Company to make a Railway from their Line near Cleland, in the County of Lanark, to their Line near Mid-Calder, in the County of Edinburgh, with Branches to the Mineral Fields and Works in that District; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxc.

An Act for enabling the Caledonian Railway Company to extend their Douglas Branch to Muirkirk, in the Counties of Lanark and Ayr; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxci.

An Act to authorise the vesting of the Aberystwith and Welsh Coast Railway in the Cambrian Railways Company by Amalgamation.

CAP. ccxcii.

An Act for making and maintaining the Chester and West Cheshire Junction Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxciii.

An Act for making a Railway from Coventry to the Southam Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxciv.

An Act for making a Railway from the Town of Crieff to Comrie, with a Railway connecting the said Railway with the authorised Crieff and Methven Junction Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxcv.

An Act to incorporate a Company for maintaining an existing Railway from Carreg Hyldrem, in the County of Merioneth, to Portmadoc, in the County of Carnarvon, and making an Extension thereof.

CAP. ccxcvi.

An Act to authorise the Construction of Railways to connect Deal and Walmer, and Dover, in the County of Kent; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxcvii.

An Act to authorise the Amalgamation of the Dumfries, Lochmaben, and Lockerby Junction Railway Company with the Caledonian Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxcviii.

An Act for the Amalgamation of divers Railway Companies with the Glasgow and South-western Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccxcix.

An Act for conferring further Powers on the Great Western Railway Company for the Construction of Works and the Acquisition of Lands, and otherwise in relation to their own Undertaking and the Undertakings of other Companies and Persons; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccc.

An Act to consolidate and amend the Provisions relating to the Police of the Town of Greenock; to authorise certain Improvements in the said Town; and for various other Purposes.

CAP. ccci.

An Act for making Railways from Greenock to the Glasgow and South-western and Bridge of Weir Railways; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccii.

An Act to amend the Highbridge Markets and Gas Act; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccciii.

An Act for making a Railway from the Westerfield Station, near Ipswich, of the Great Eastern Railway, to Felixstow, in the County of Suffolk; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ccciv.

An Act for authorising the London and South-western Railway Company to make new Works; and for the Amalgamation with their Undertaking of the Undertakings of divers Railway Companies; and for authorising Arrangements respecting divers Railways; and for regulating and increasing the Capital and Borrowing Powers of the London and South-western Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccv.

An Act to authorise the Manchester and Milford Railway Company to make certain new Railways in substitution for Part of their authorised Railway and Aberystwith Branch; and to extend the Time for the Purchase of Lands and Completion of Part of their authorised Line; and to give various other Powers to the said Company, and to other Railway Companies; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccvi.

An Act for making a Railway from the Cammes Road Station on the Cambrian Railway to near the Town of Dinas Mowddwy; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccvii.

An Act to enable the Newry and Greenore Railway Company to make certain Deviations in their authorised Line, and to construct certain new Works; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccviii.

An Act to provide for a complete Union of the Undertakings of the North British and Edinburgh and Glasgow Railway Companies by Amalgamation; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccix.

An Act to authorise the Construction of a Pier at Burntisland and other Works by the North British Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccx.

An Act for making Railways from the North London Railway to Alexandra Park, and to the Edgware, Highgate, and London Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxi.

An Act for defining and extending the Powers of the Corporation of Oldham in relation to the Improvement of Streets in the Borough, and to Police and other Matters of local Government, and to Gas and Water Supply; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxii.

An Act to authorise the Construction of a Railway between Ross and Monmouth; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxiii.

An Act for dividing the Parish of St. Philip and Jacob, in the City and County of Bristol; and for forming the Out-Parish of St. Philip and Jacob into a distinct and separate Parish; for making further Provision as to the Election and Appointment of Overseers of the Poor for the said Out-Parish, and as to Churchwardens of the said Out-Parish; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxiv.

An Act for the making and maintaining of Stapenhill Bridge over the River Trent near to the Town of Burton-upon-Trent, with Approaches thereto, and for the discontinuing of Stapenhill Ferry across the River; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccv.

An Act for making a Railway from near the Aberystwith and Welsh Coast Railway, in the Parish of Towyn, in the County of Merioneth, to the Township of Maestrefnant, in the Direction of Talyllyn, to be called "The Talyllyn Railway;" and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxvi.

An Act for authorising the Vale of Neath Railway Company to raise further Moneys; and for giving Effect to Agreements between them and the Aberdare Valley Railway Company and the London and North-western Railway Company respectively; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxvii.

An Act to authorise the Construction of a Railway from Wotchet to Minehead, in the County of Somerset.

CAP. cccxviii.

An Act for making Railways in Wiltshire from the London and South-western Railway to the Berks and Hants Railway at Pewsey and Woodborough; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxix.

An Act to authorise Deviations in the Line of the Gloucester Extension of the Worcester, Dean Forest, and Monmouth Railway Company; and to enable the Company to raise additional Capital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxx.

An Act for authorising the Construction of a Railway from Acton to Brentford; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxi.

An Act to authorise the West Riding and Grimsby Railway Company to construct a Railway from the South Yorkshire Railway to Lincoln; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxii.

An Act for incorporating a Company for making a Railway from Portmadoc to Beddgelert, in the Counties of Carnarvon and Merioneth; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxiii.

An Act to enable the Bishop's Castle Railway Company to make Deviations in their authorised Railway, and a new Line in connexion therewith; to alter the Levels of their authorised Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxix.

An Act for enabling the Brecon and Merthyr Tydfil Junction Railway Company to acquire the Hereford, Hay, and Brecon Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxv.

An Act for the better Regulation and Management of the Docks and other Works at and near to Cardiff of the Trustees and others claiming under the Will of the late Marquis of Bute; for authorising Arrangements with Railway and other Companies; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxvi.

An Act to confer farther Powers upon the Carnarvon and Llanberis Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxvii.

An Act to vest in the Great Northern, the Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, and the Midland Railway Companies, jointly, the Stockport and Woodley Junction, the Stockport, Timperley, and Altrincham Junction, the Cheshire Midland, the West Cheshire, and the Garston and Liverpool Railways; and for other Purposes with respect to the said Undertakings.

CAP. cccxxviii.

An Act to authorise the Edinburgh and Glasgow Railway Company to make a Railway from Glasgow to Coatbridge, and a Junction with the City of Glasgow Union Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxix.

An Act for incorporating a Company for making a Railway, to be called "The Furness and Lancaster and Carlisle Union Railway;" and for other other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxx.

An Act for the Amalgamation of the Leeds, Bradford, and Halifax Junction Railway Company with the Great Northern Railway Company.

CAP. cccxxxi.

An Act for the Amalgamation of the West Yorkshire Railway Company with the Great Northern Railway Company.

CAP. cccxxxii.

An Act for conferring Powers on the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company for the Construction of Branch Railways and Works and the Acquisition of Lands; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxxiii.

An Act for conferring additional Powers on the London and North-western Railway Company in relation to their own Undertaking and the Undertakings of other Companies in England; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxxiv.

An Act for conferring additional Powers on the London and North-western Railway Company in relation to their own Undertaking and the Undertakings of other Companies in Wales; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxxv.

An Act for conferring additional Powers on the Midland Railway Company for the Construction of Works, and otherwise in relation to their own Undertaking and the Undertakings of other Companies; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxxvi.

An Act to repeal the Act relating to the Moses Gate and Ringley Branch Turnpike Roads, and to make other Provisions in lieu thereof; and to authorise new Works; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxxvii.

An Act to authorise the Widening and Extension of the Nantlle Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxxviii.

An Act for making a Railway from Christian Malford, in the County of Wilts, to Beachingstoke, in the same County.

CAP. cccxxxix.

An Act to authorise the North Staffordshire Railway Company to construct certain Railways forming a Loop Line of Railway in the Staffordshire Potteries; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxl.

An Act for authorising the Peterborough, Wisbeach, and Sutton Railway Company to extend their Railway to Crowland; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxli.

An Act to authorise the Construction of Railways in the County of Salop, to be called "The Shrewsbury and Potteries Junction Railway;" and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxlii.

An Act for authorising the Sirhowy Railway Company to construct a Railway in substitution for the authorised Extension of their Railway to the Merthyr, Tredegar, and Abergavenny Railway, and to deviate their authorised Railway in the Parish of Bedwellyt, and to use Parts of the Merthyr, Tredegar, and Abergavenny Railway; and for confirming the Mode in which certain Roads have been crossed or diverted by the Company; and for suspending the Operation of certain Provisions of the Sirhowy Railway Act, 1860, as to Passenger Trains to be run upon the Railways of the Company and the Monmouthshire Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxlii.

An Act for authorising the South-eastern Railway Company to make new Lines of Railway by way of Extensions of their Railway at Greenwich, Woolwich, and Cranbrook respectively; to acquire additional Lands; to raise further Moneys; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxlii.

An Act to authorise the Construction of a Railway in Essex, to be called "The South Essex Railway."

CAP. cccxli.

An Act to authorise the Strathspey Railway Company to extend their Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxli.

An Act to authorise the Ryde Pier Company to construct certain Tramways at Ryde, in the Isle of Wight; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxlvii.

An Act to authorise the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway Company to make a short connecting Railway at Beckenham, and to abandon certain authorised Lines; to make Provisions as to the Working of their Traffic and that of the South-eastern Railway Company; to confer further Powers with reference to the Kent Coast Railway, and Exemptions from Dues and Privileges at Broadstairs, Ramsgate, and Margate; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxlviii.

An Act for authorising the Construction of Railways from Bury St. Edmunds, in the County of Suffolk, to Thetford, in the County of Norfolk; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxlix.

An Act to authorise the Llanelly Railway and Dock Company to extend their Railway to the Mumbles.

CAP. cecl.

An Act for making a Railway from Navan, in the County of Meath, to Kingscourt, in the County of Cavan.

CAP. cecli.

An Act to authorise the Construction of Railways from Waterford to Dungarvon, in the County of Waterford, and from Lismore, in the County of Waterford, to Fermoy, in the County of Cork; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclii.

An Act to confer further Powers upon the Carmarthenshire Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cecliii.

An Act for making a Railway from the Great Southern and Western Railway at Thurles to Clonmel.

CAP. cecliv.

An Act to enable the Chichester and Midhurst Railway Company to extend their Railway to the London and South-western Railway, near Haslemere; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclv.

An Act for making and maintaining the Bedford and Northampton Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclvi.

An Act for making an Extension of the Blane Valley Railway, in the County of Stirling, and a Diversion of Part of the said Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclvii.

An Act for the Extension of the Drayton Junction Railway to Bettisfield; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclviii.

An Act for making a Railway from Girvan, in the County of Ayr, to East Challock, in the County of Wigtown; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclix.

An Act for enabling the Midland Railway Company to construct Railways from Mansfield to Southwell, and from Mansfield to Worksop, with a Branch to Staveley, and other Branches; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclx.

An Act to authorise the Construction of a Railway in the County of Monmouth, to be called "The Newport and Usk Railway;" and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclxi.

An Act to enable the Northampton and Banbury Junction Railway Company to make a Branch at Blisworth; to raise additional Capital; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclxii.

An Act to enable the Northampton and Banbury Junction Railway Company to extend their Railway to Chipping Norton and Blockley; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclxiii.

An Act to enable the North-eastern Railway Company to construct Branch Railways in the North Riding of Yorkshire, and abandon Portions of Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclxiv.

An Act for making Railways from the Newport, Abergavenny, and Hereford Line of the Great Western Railway Company at Pontypool to Caerleon, and to the Great Western Railway at or near Newport; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclxv.

An Act for authorising the Company of Proprietors of the Regent's Canal to improve their Limehouse Basin, and make a new Entrance thereto from the River Thames, and a Wharf on the Thames, and other Works, at Limehouse; for regulating their Capital, and authorising them to raise further Moneys; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclxvi.

An Act for making Railways in Gloucestershire to connect certain Railways on the East with Railways on the West of the River Severn; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclxvii.

An Act for incorporating a Company for making a Railway, to be called "The South Wales and Great Western Direct Railway;" and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclxviii.

An Act for the Amalgamation of the Undertakings of the West Hartlepool Harbour and Railway Company and the Cleveland Railway Company with that of the North-eastern Railway Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclxix.

An Act to incorporate a Company for making the Limerick and North Kerry Junction Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclxx.

An Act for authorising the Bodmin and Wadebridge Railway Company to improve the Line of their Railway, and to abandon Portions thereof, and to raise further Moneys; and for authorising Arrangements between them and other Railway Companies; and for other Purposes.

CAP. ceclxxi.

An Act to enable the Mid-Wales Railway Company to make Extensions to the Westward, and to abandon the Formation of the Llangurig Branch authorised to be made by the Mid-Wales Railway (Llangurig Branch, &c.) Act, 1863; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxii.

An Act for authorising the West London Docks and Warehouses Company to extend their Limits of Deviation; to divert or stop up Roads; to alter and vary their Rates and Duties and Rates of Interest; to change their Name; to raise further Moneys; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxiii.

An Act for making a Railway from the Cornwall Railway near Saltash, to the Tamar Kit Hill and Callington Railway at Callington, in the County of Cornwall.

CAP. cccxxiv.

An Act for authorising the Launceston, Bodmin, and Wadebridge Junction Railway Company to make an Extension Railway from the Bodmin and Wadebridge Junction Railway at Ruthern Bridge to the Cornwall Railway at Truro, and to raise further Moneys; and for changing the Name of the Company; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxv.

An Act to authorise the Construction of a Railway from the North Kent Railway to the Medway, and of a Pier in that River; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxvi.

An Act to authorise the Construction of a Railway in the County of Glamorgan, to be called "The Afon Valley Railway;" and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxvii.

An Act to authorise the Construction of a Dock and other Works at or near Newport, on the Western Side of the River Usk, to be called "The Alexandra Dock," and of Railways to connect the same with neighbouring Railways; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxviii.

An Act for authorising the Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Railway Company to make a Railway to Liverpool; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxix.

An Act for making certain Railways from the London, Brighton, and South-coast Railway to the East Grinstead, Groombridge, and Tunbridge Wells Railway, and to the Brighton, Uckfield, and Tunbridge Wells Railway; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxx.

An Act to authorise the Construction of a Railway from the South Wales Railway to Fishguard Bay, and of a Harbour there; and for other Purposes.

CAP. cccxxxi.

An Act to extend the Time limited for the Purchase of Lands and Completion of Works relating to the Waterford and Passage Railway Company.

CAP. cccxxxii.

An Act to authorise the Construction of Railways in and near Dublin, to be called "The Dublin Metropolitan Junction Railways."

THE JURIST.

NEW SERIES.
VOL. XI.—PART II.

CONTAINING

ORIGINAL ARTICLES ON LEGAL SUBJECTS,
ALL IMPORTANT STATUTES,
THE RULES AND ORDERS OF THE VARIOUS COURTS, CAUSE LISTS,
AND MISCELLANEOUS LEGAL INFORMATION,

FOR

THE YEAR 1865:

WITH AN

INDEX OF PRINCIPAL MATTERS.

LONDON:

W. SWEET, 3, CHANCERY LANE;
STEVENS & SONS, 26, BELL YARD, LINCOLN'S INN.

DUBLIN:

HODGES, SMITH & CO., GRAFTON STREET.

1866.

1

0

h

Standard Law Library

3 6105 06 040 322 2

